

The new master who summoned Raikou wanted to summon friend points to bolster his meager forces. He wanted to summon friend points to bolster his meager strength, but no one would call on his low-level servant, who had just begun to repair Human Order. I'm sure you'll be able to understand why I've been so impressed with your work. The new master is depressed because of the slow progress of the human repair

When Raikou saw him, he wondered if he could help him somehow. A veteran master with a long history of bravery, but with a bad reputation In exchange, he offers to follow the new master (and Raikou)...

Raikou was wondering if he could help him. In the meantime a veteran master with a bad reputation In exchange for one condition offers to follow the new master (and Raikou).

One condition was that every time Yorimitsu came to support her, she had to have physical relations with the veteran master.

It's outrageous to have a relationship with someone other than the new master who is recognized as my child. ...Normally, Raikou would have thought so, but he had achieved the restoration of Human Order. Raikou agrees to the proposal, thinking that he wants his beloved new master to become a great man...
