ISILAT: Sea. Narrow bay in the south of SUOR, dividing the peninsula of SABURR from the mainland. It is connected to the BAY OF TRESK via canals passing through the city of SEBER PAN.

ISINU: Geo. Low mountain in the east of SAUA that runs for 100-miles, north of the KARPAROS Mountain.

ISIPHAR: Ser. Second-largest city in the INTERURBAN STATES. The city is fortified and well-defenced, with a well-funded army and militia forces, and it has close economic ties with OPHAR (Pop. c. 120,000).

ISIRATU: His Rui. Once a major city in the Early FIFTH AGE culture of CHIWENOOL, and origin of the chthonic religion that is followed by the people of Tatar today known as ISIRATUANISM.

It fell into ruin following the fall of the culture, but was later rebuilt into a great temple-complex that bears the same name, located in the south of the BOSPAR Mountains.

ISIRATUANISM: Rel. Ancient religion that originated in the early FIFTH AGE nation of CHIWENOOL, though with roots thought to go back to the FOURTH AGE. The religion survived the fall of Chiwenool and was carried over by the people of TATAR and some scattered regions of the north of the BARRIER LANDS.

It is a primordial religion, that has at its centre a single unknowable chthonic being that is indifferent to mortal life. This being is left nameless in honour of its alien nature, and it is described only through apophatism (Negationism).

The religion is named after the ancient Chiwenan city where it originated, now a ruin, and its original location has been lost. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

ISITAR: Set. Small fortified coastal settlement in the c east of the SARASTROAN colony of IPSISSIMA^(1.). Its main industry is hunting and trapping (Pop. c. 3,000).

ISKAHA: Geo. Massif in the far east of THE SURRACH.

ISKAMM: Set. Settlement in the south of HOAMM, overlooking the SEA OF ARTA. It was once a coastal settlement, though the withdrawal of ELYDEN'S seas have left it 5-miles from the coast, its once-thriving salt industries in ruins (Pop. c. 6,400).

ISKANDAR: Soc. Org. One of the 17 GRAND HOUSES of the NACRE LEAGUE. The House is based in NORTHERN SIMBARA and has grown into one of the wealthiest and most influential entities in both the nation itself and as well as within the League, primarily focusing on the trade of high-value goods like spices, exotic fabrics, and precious metals. The house has also become involved in the burgeoning sea trade that has emerged since the outbreak of the NACRE WAR, controlling a significant portion of the League's fleet that operates from the city of BAVVERA.

ISKARI: Org. Dru. A secretive TROGLODYTIC cult in LYRIDIA that works to keep a sacred herb away from the attentions of the ABULIA and the WHITE-ROBES, who want its use quashed and the herb itself destroyed.

The herb, which has been kept nameless by the cult members to preserve its secrecy, is vital in cult rituals, and, when correctly prepared and imbibed can grant visions and glimpses of the future, which undermines the power of the SIBYL and her UBYRS. See Vol II: Drugs and Addictions.

ISKIMANNA: Geo. Geothermally active region in the far north of ALMAGEST, north of the MARMARA massif. The region is centred on a volcanic vent, named ANOTAL, after a classical god of life in the area, and earthquakes and noxious fumes are relatively common around it.

ISLAND OF CREATION: Myt. His. Ancient name given to ELYDEN in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, following the imprisonment of the DEMIURGES there due to their reckless destruction of their perfect artifice during the SHAPING OF CREATION. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

ISLAND KINGDOM, the: Geo. Ntn. Common name for the kingdom of FALLAROUR.

ISLAND STATES OF IRY: see IRY, ISLAND STATES OF.

ISLANIEL: Geo. Badlands region in the east of the LEVANTINE in the south east of AHRISHEN.

ISLE OF SOLITUDE: Geo. Citadel island off the northern coast of SABIA. It is a seminary for Sabian SHAPERS and a place of refuge to them. Lying close to the NULLAMBIT, the seminary allows them to meditate without the weight of the MATERIA OMNA on their minds. Shapers from across the free nations of ELYDEN travel here, where they study during their sojourn.

ISLES OF CATACLYSM: Geo. Lan. KORACHANI name for the BROKEN ISLES in KHAMID.

ISLES OF NICODEMIUS: Geo. Island-chain 300-miles off the southern coast of OKKHAM. The islands are a part of the Federation of Okkhami states, though are of little worth to the Federation.

ISMATH: Mil. Str. Large fortress in the south of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS, in MALAN. It originated as a simple tower built atop the ruins of a far older NAHORIAN ruin in c. 1000 RM and was slowly added to over the years, becoming a mighty coastal bastion, guarding the entrance into the STRAIT OF YUUA and the BAY OF MUSSAR beyond.

ISMERIA: Geo. Wasteland in the far south west of JURRAS⁽²⁾, occupying a shelf of around 2,000 square-miles north of the Jurrasi⁽¹⁾ Mountains. The region is noted for its picturesque iridescent labyrinthine geometric formations that resemble bismuth, though on a far larger scale. The region is ATRAMENTAL in origin, though shows no sign of taint.

ISODI: Rvr. River in the north west of LYRIDIA DHAI, flowing 220-miles north west from sources in the PLALEPH and PYREA Mountains, before emptying into the SEA OF PROPONTIS. Deforestation around the river during the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S tenure there left the soil loose, most of which has been carried away by wind and rain into the delta, creating a hypoxic zone.

ISODUNTAUN: corruption of ihson duntaun, lit 'empty forest'. Geo. For. The spent remnants of the MORTAR forest in the north of LYRIDIA DHAI that once stretched as far south as the northern face of the PLALEPH Mountains. It was exploited by KORACHANI logging operations, which left it a barren landscape of tree stumps and lose soil that has largely washed away into the SEA OF PROPONTIS. Some trees have begun to grow back, though the land is still weak, and they are few in number, restricted largely to the lands east of the river ISODI.

ISOKEHLLA: Geo. Area in the LAMEDUAN badlands in the north of VÂRR, known for its windowed formations.

ISORNA: Set. Major fortified city in the BAKHRAN STATES, and base to its military (Pop. c. 50,000).

ISOTELEK: Int. Tec. Geo. machine-plains in the c north of SABAISA, thought to be a THIRD AGE relic of the IROTHANI. The place is thought to have once been home to a great many sprawling CANOPIC ENGINES that stretched over dozens of square miles of the gently sloping plains towards the BAY OF BERITH. With the fall of the irothani kingdoms, the engines fell into disuse, and were allowed to rot.

In many cases the engines decayed to the point that their rust is now the soil that covers them, obscuring them from the surface. In other regions enough of the ancient machinery remains to be recognisable to those travelling across the region, though it is unlikely that any of the engines are usable today.

ISPEIA: (B. 2248 – D. 2349 RM) Phil. ALMAGESTI solipsist whose tenets inspired the foundation of the organisation that would later become known as the ACOLYTES OF ISPEIA.

ISPHAN: Ind. Set. Settlement in the south west of GNOTH, in the region of ALKAHEST⁽²⁾. Its min industry is the mining of tin and nickel (Pop. c. 13,000).

ISQAR: Set. Small city in the south west of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT. Its primary industry is copper mining (Pop. c. 20,000).

ISRAFA: Rvr. River in the c of SARAGOS, flowing seasonally for c. 200-miles from sources in the AGGOSHETH massif.

ISRAN THE ITINERANT: (B. 3912) Master ATRAMENTIST born in JURRAS^(2.). He teaches at the ACADEMY OF ATRAMENTAL ARTS and is a beloved individual in Jurras and PARTHIS alike, and his treatises and research have greatly improved the understanding and practicalities of shaping and technarcana in the PARTHISAN EMPIRE.

ISRAPHA: 1. Geo. Glacier in the far north of GNOTH, along one of the lowest regions of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains.

 Mil. Str. Fortress in the far north of GNOTH, close to the above glacier⁽¹⁾, guarding the pass leading north into the frozen wastes beyond NARAHASAPHAEL.

ISRAPHAEL: x. Oth. Per. OTHERWORLDER and PRIMOGENITOR of the HALFBLOOD HOUSE of UTTRAN. Nothing is known of its MORTAL life, and little is known of its life following its otherworldly rebirth, though it was active in the region of TISHANNA^(1.), where the north east of LLACHATUL meets the north west of MENISCEA, where its meddling in mortal affairs led to the rise of three unique uttrani matrilineal lines that have since become indistinct over millennia of intermingling.

It was of alien physique, with a pale horse-like face and hollow orbits where its eyes should have been, gangly bifurcating arms with four digits on each of its four hands, and disembodied needle-like appendages behind its back.

It died in c. -200 RM, leaving an uncorruptible body that was preserved by the uttrani, becoming a relic that is venerated to this day, forming the centre of a posthumous cult of personality that serves as a religion in ABATTUR to this day.

ISRAPHAISM: Rel. Org. Major religion observed in ABATTUR that reveres the incorruptible body of the OTHERWORLDER ISRAPHAEL as a deity. It is primarily observed by its UTTRANI population but many humans who live in the region also follow the deity.

The body of Israphael is preserved in a public reliquary in a monumental temple in the city of \underline{LAILLA} , where the faithful can pray before it.

ISSA: 1. Geo. Region in the east of THETIS known for its wide shallow steep-sided canyons and the rocky bridges (originally alcoves, though reduced through wind-erosion to bridges of darker, harder igneous rock) that are around and above them. The canyon is the remnant of an ancient river-system, its source long-since spent, that rarely floods. Because of this, it is used as a road by those travelling the region.

2. Set. Fortified settlement in the north of HITTA, and a major source of food to the capital. It forms part of the SALT ROAD, and offers food and provisions to the caravans that pass its borders (Pop. c. 9,000).

ISSABEL: Set. Fortified settlement in the far south east of KAZZAR, close to the border with the BARRIER LANDS, along the southern shore of lake BATA. Its main industry is the cultivation of thyme and production of a thymol-based perfume, which is popular amongst the nobility of PARTHIS and its colonies and dependencies. The settlement is characterised by its ancient medieval centre, around which are fields of thyme that are protected by fortified farmsteads (Pop. c. 9,000).

ISSIBAE: Sec. Small coastal city in the north east of CALBIA^(1.) (Pop. c. 16,000).

ISSOS: 1. Geo. Large valley in the north west of PELASGOS, forming a 170-stretch of the drainage basin of the eponymous river. The valley is shallow and rocky, and famed for its epic views and scattered cypresses and ancient, gnarled OLIVE trees.

2. Rvr. River in the north west of PELASGOS flowing west for 215-miles from sources in the CALDERAN Mountains, BULOPARRI Massif, and THAUMASI Highlands before joining with its parent, the river ATHALAR. There are many mines and quarries close to its path, including the sulphur mines of FYTAS. These industries have left its waters foul and discoloured.

ISSACH: Mil. Str. Fortress in the south west of SEDISIA, close to the border with ARROKAN. It is built atop a ruined KORACHANI fortress.

ISSACHAR: 1. Geo. Pass across the KNO INNOR Mountains, linking SARASTRO in the north with TARATI^(1.) in the south east, via the northern-most part of the ANUBIAN desert.

2. Mil. Str. Citadel in the north western highlands of the KHO INNOR Mountains in the far east of SARASTRO. The citadel guards travellers making their way along THE RED ROUTE as well as the SHADOW MARCH, as well as guarding the mountain passes there from attack. The citadel is built on the remnants of a far more ancient fortress that has stood there since explorations of the area following the FADING of the FOURTH AGE, its architecture echoing no known civilisations'.

ISSITI: Set. Coastal settlement in the north west of KASPIA. Its main industries are fishing and whaling (Pop. c. 9,000).

ISSMARA: Set. Settlement in the c of TARTAK (Pop. c. 4,000).

ISSRA: Geo. Cavern in the c north of LIDEA, north of the ORIAN Mountains.

ISTAK: Sct. Settlement in the c of KHURAUR. It forms part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 8,400).

ISTAR: 1. Oth. First generation HALFBLOOD native to the south east of MENISCEA, who in c. 900 RM constructed the fabled CRUCIBLE OF THE ACCORD, which they used to unify surrounding tribes into what in c. 940 RM became known as VAEVECTA(1.). Istar became ruler and god of this realm, remaining so for centuries until their death. They became famed for their great horned crown they wore, which became synonymous with their rule.

The Crucible was used to collect the blood of tribal leaders in an act of symbolic alliance, and the ritual was continued until c. 2000 RM, by which time Istar had been dead for close to 4 centuries and the confederacy of Vaevectan tribes had crumbled.

Istar died in 1612 RM, after which Vaevecta collapsed into a series of petty states that allowed the spread of mystery cults of the dark deity CHIMAERA to spread, which eventually supplanted worship of Istar as a deity, though they remained so in AHOPAH. Following their death the crown, now known only as the TWISTED CROWN, as lost before being recovered and worn by a long succession of rival Vaevectan rulers.

Today, the bloodline of Istar remains relatively common in the nations of CHAUTULA, VECTIS, and Ahopah, with most being concentrated in Ahopah, where many go on to become priests of the Istari faith⁽²⁾.

Famed for the great horned crown they wore

2. Rel. Oth. Religion in AHOPAH that reveres the first generation $\underline{\text{HALFBLOOD}}$ Istar^(L) as a deity. Its priests are themselves halfbloods from the same bloodline. The religion was common in ancient $\underline{\text{VAEVECTA}}^{(L)}$ though was supplanted following the $\underline{\text{HALFBLOOD}}$'s death in 1612 RM See Vol IV: Faiths and Religions.

ISTHA: 1. Geo. Region in the south of SAMMAEA, to the east of the SEA OF KRIHIEK. It is a shallow coastal shelf that was revealed following the retreat of ELYDEN'S seas over the last Millenia. It is flat and relatively featureless, peppered with the remains of what life once existed there – dry corals, salt flats and cuttlebones. The ruins of LINTEA are the only remarkable feature, and are located on the edge of the shelf of Istha.

2. Dem. 'Isthan'. Ntn. Nation in the south of SAMMAEA, to the east of the SEA OF KRIHIEK, named after the region in which it is located. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

ISTHIS: Sea. Ancient inland sea in the south east of SAMMAEA, in what is now the east of ZHARIAH⁽²⁾. The sea was shallow and dwindled in size as ELYDEN'S seas diminished, leaving it as a salty coastal lake sometime after c. 3200 RM. It survives to this day as a salty coastal lake and is fed by the rivers HENIAH, SEN, and ZOLIAH, and empties into the SEA OF ERENEA.

ISTIMATI: Set. Settlement and producer of raw UMBRA in the north of ALMAGEST, west of the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of AFFISH, in the far north east of the THAURIR (Pop. c. 6,200).

ISUMBAR HAIGON: (B. c. 1800 - D. 1881 RM). AZAZEMI polymath who questioned organised religion and the harm that the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE caused to the people of the INNER SEA. He was persecuted for his ideas and narrowly avoided death, escaping to PARTHIS, where he was accepted as a visionary. A secular state, its people are known for their agnostic beliefs, and Isumbar's ideas there were embraced and he lived there for many years until his death in 1881 RM.

Years after his death, his body was relocated to bigger grave, in honour of his contribution to Parthisan culture, and his middle finger was stolen in 2375 RM, later to find its way in a bell jar in a university in TETHRA in 2774 RM, where it is on display to this day, facing the KORACHANI capital of KHADON.

ISURAS: Dem. 'Isuran'. Ntn. Lan. KORACHANI name for TETHYSIA. It is sometimes used to describe the surrounding lands as a whole, including TISARA, RTHEI and TURCAR.

ISURUS: Geo. Mountain-range in the north east of SAMMAEA, forming a natural border between the east of the KHARKHARADONTID desert, and the south west of the territories of ETHISTONITH in RHINOCOLOURA. Cliffs along its western-face are known for the hewn-tombs of SENEROKH, thought to date back to the late FOURTH AGE.

ISUSHYAR: Set. Settlement in the BARRIER LANDS, in the north west of NORTHERN SAMMAEA, forming part of the IVORY ROAD. It emerged centuries ago as a caravanserai, and grew into a major economical centre to the north of the VANNAKORDOR region, filling a role similar to that of capital to the disparate city states of the region (Pop. c. 67,000).

 $\underline{\textbf{ISYOST: Pol. PERGOSTI}} \text{ outpost in the } \underline{\textbf{WHITE SHEET}}, \text{ in the far north of } \underline{\textbf{LLACHATUL}}.$

ITA: Geo. Craggy, dark-coloured badlands in the far north east of TETHYSIA. The place is largely deserted save some petrified FOURTH AGE ruins that lie half-buried in the rock.

ITAE: Sea. Small lagoon-like sea off the eastern coast of OKKHAM, forming the north western-most part of the SEA OF KHURSA.

ITAPHON: Set. Small city in the west of BANT, in the west of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.), in the east of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 15,000).

ITARA: 1. Geo. Peninsula in the south west of SAMMAEA, dividing the SEA OF ADAMASTOR^(1.) from the SEA OF KRIHIEK. It is occupied by the nation of SIMBARA, though there a CENGUISSAN exclave on its eastern-most tip, guarding passage into the Adamastor.

2. Pol. Set. Capital of SIMBARA since 3612 RM, and amongst one of its greatest cities. The city is renowned for its great thoroughfare (believed to be constructed over the ruin of a FOURTH AGE trade-route) and its triumphant arch that dwarves all else in the city. It forms a part of the ISHMMARRAN TRAIL and caters to the many merchants and travellers that cross through it. It is the seat of power of SOUTHERN SIMBARA, and is home to the throne of the emperor and empress (Pop. c. 831,000).

ITEALIN: Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of OURANASSA, in the south west of MULCIBER, in the western-most foothills of the GROWING MOUNTAINS. The city contains the largest permanent population of AHHAS and it is a religious centre of their sect of the cult of NEPHTHALONT (Pop. c. 95,000).

ITEPHUAT: 1. Geo. Major ridge, in the c north of GNOTH, forming an extension of the south eastern face of the SOLUN HIGHLANDS.

2. Rel. Str. Monastery in the c north of $\underline{\text{GNOTH}}$. The monastery is one of the seven $\underline{\text{MONASTERIES OF THOUGHT}}$.

ITERANT: also 'Klada'. Int. Med. Tec. Soc. The bodies created by LHAUS
CLADE LORDS in their search for immortality. The spirit of a departed Clade Lord would be transferred to a previously prepared iterant (a form of construct that acted as a vessel for the Clade Lord's spirit) through a complex ritual involving FIRMAMENTAL TECHNARCANA. Over time the Iterant body would be replaced. Each transferal or iteration, would bring with it a spirit that was farther removed from the distant lhaus that was embodied in the iterant; a being further consumed by its burning obsession with immortality.

Hieroglyphics and the skeletal remains of iterants found in the temple of YOTHSHAMMANEI are the only knowledge we have of FOURTH AGE iterants' appearance. What we know is that they are grotesque creatures that mock the human form. Seemingly skinless bodies of flesh and porcelain-like bone crests typify them, as do their featureless bony shield-like heads.

The same techniques used to make the iterant bodies of Clade Lords are used to create an elite force of soldiers known as the PORCELAIN PHALANX. These porcelain-skinned warriors are not as sophisticated in their creation as iterants, though they are nevertheless potent warriors – tough, fearless, and silent.

ITERATH: Pol. Set. Capital of WESTERN LARISH in the east of WESTERN MENISCEA. It is a major port and guards the entrance into the SEA OF SIABA⁽¹⁾. It is the western half of the TWIN CROWN of Larish (Pop. c. 330.000).

ITH AKHA: Pol. Sec. Capital city of the nation of ENITH, in the north west of SAMMAEA, south of the western-most part of the SEA OF ANIPTERRA. It originated form the Korachani colony of ITHAKA (Pop. c. 150,000).

ITH GIRA: Set. City in the SAMMAEAN nation of ENITH (Pop. c. 16,500).
ITH HARA: Set. Coastal settlement in the east of the SAMMAEAN nation of ENITH (Pop. c. 6,500).

ITH MINOS: also 'City of Reavers'. Set. City in the SAMMAEAN nation of ENITH. The city's nickname comes from an old slaving custom that once prevailed in the region. This has since died down (Pop. c. 120,800).

ITH SHABAR: Set. Major city in the c north west of the nation of ENITH in the north west of SAMMAEA. It is famed for its central hill-top citadel and has thus far remained neutral in the civil conflict that has engulfed the nation (Pop. c. 80,000).

ITHAKA: His Set. KORACHANI colony in the north west of SAMMAEA, south of the western-most part of the SEA OF ANIPTERRA. Ithaka was abandoned by Korachan in c. 1450 RM following decades of pirate and native attacks against it, which eventually became too costly to defend against. It was later reclaimed by natives and the old Korachani name was corrupted into ITH AKHA, which remains in use today. Surrounding cities in the region would also take on the same suffix over time, which came to mean city.

ITHAKAÉ: Set. Settlement in the west of the BARRIER LANDS. Its main industry is the mining of bauxite, which is the primary ingredient in the manufacture of aluminium (Pop. c. 8,000).

ITHAKAN LIBERATION ARMY: Pol. One of many political bodies that is currently vying for control of the failed state of ENITH in the north west of SAMMAEA. The group emerged following the sacking of Ith Akha in 3984 RM and wishes for the region to eschew all memory of the KORACHANI occupation there, of which some cultural fragments remain, not least of which is the name of capital ITHAKHA, which is a corruption of the Korachani colony of ITHAKHA.

ITHAMIND: Geo. Convoluted knotted land serving as a border between the south east of the UMBRA SOKHAR, the north east of KHARKHARADONTIS, and Rhinocoloura. The region is labyrinthine, near impossible to navigate.

ITHANI: Pol. Soc. PATRICIAN HOUSE with a presence around the INNER SEA REGION. Its offices can be found in most major cities, and the house acts as a broker for merchants and wholesalers, and it owns a large fleet of transport ships and vehicles. It also controlled the city of VIVIDARIA, which was a major dross manufacturer until c. 3600 RM, when a series of droughts led to the abandonment of its large glasshouses and a slow exodus from the city, causing it to lose influence in north western KORACHAN as a result. Most of its present business holdings came in the wake of this. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

ITHIO B'KUTH: Rui. Ancient FOURTH AGE temple in ROMOREA⁽²⁾ flooded in 3821 RM by the creation of the Sea of HASAAZ ARAAT. Few people know anything of its history and many legends and stories have evolved around the sunken temple.

ITHISH: Rvr. River in RHAMIA, its waters said by outsiders to be thick with the dreams of VORROPOHAIAH; where they flow from the northern face of the VARRACHON. The city of ANTILLUM is situated on its banks, though the river is used only for trade and transport, aquifers and manmade wells serving the other needs of the populace. Those who drink from the waters contract a melancholia that renders their body in a torpid state.

ITHITOTH: Pol. Set. Capital of THETIS since its founding in 3133 RM, and the largest of its walled cities. The nomadic NEMIS converge within its walls in the cooler winter months to take refuge from sandstorms in the RTHEI desert^(1.), effectively tripling its population for up to 4 months of the year. Despite this, it remains one of the largest permanently-settled cities in Thetis throughout the year. The symbiotic relationship between the city and the nomads has become something of a dogma in Ithitoth, and Thetis as a whole, with the nomads forming an instrumental part of life there – including bringing resources, skills and trade with them to a city that loses much of its vigour throughout the rest of the year.

Come winter, the place becomes vibrant, its gigantic markets and nomad camps bustling with life, the expansive courtyards of the temples dedicated to HRUNDU alive with the faithful (Pop. c. 790,000 in summer, 2,300,000 in winter).

ITHODHAR: Ind. Set. Gigantic iron mine just under 1-mile wide, 7-miles south of SKEIN in HOAMMI territories in northern SAMMAEA. The open cast mine lies disused and is stained bright orange from iron oxide.

ITHOIA: Pol. One of the many realms that emerged from the fragmentation of THYM following the WAR OF SCOURGING in the FADING after the FOURTH AGE, later became DHAMATEA (after city).

ITHYFRA: Set. Fortified city in the east of OPHIUSSA. It maintains close relations with TAHALL, trading with it (Pop. c. 44,000).

ITINERANT CODE: also 'Itinerant Hieroglyphs'. Int. Soc. Archaic symbols used by itinerant travellers across the INNER SEA, intended to inform other itinerants of what they may expect in nearby settlements or structures. Popular spots for these codes are under bridges and abandoned structures outside of urban areas, where itinerants might take shelter while travelling.

The code is somewhat ephemeral and has changed over the years, though it is closely guarded, making it a secretive means of communicating.

Such messages are purposefully written using ephemeral materials such as chalk or mud, so that the symbols do not last too long, making it easier to safeguard the code's use.

ITINERANT COURT, the: see GYPSY KINGS, THE.

ITINERANT ONES, the: Pol. His. Rnk. Local vernacular for the TECHNARCANISTS, BIOMECHANISTS and DEMIURNES expelled from VENTHIR in 1921 RM following an edict by the mad QUEEN HETEPHERES (in which her closest retinue of technarcanists and biomechanists were retained as personal slaves). Such vagabonds are shunned in neighbouring lands and, under the duress of Queen Hetepheres herself, were excommunicated from the Empire in 1939 RM, becoming exiles in their own lands, where they continued to wander, offering their services to those willing to accept them. Some of their number would go on to found the nation of SARAGOS.

ITINERARY, MALICHAR'S: Pol His. The period of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR'S disappearance between 84 RM, following his victory in NÁRTHEL, and 331 RM, with his rebirth as an OTHERWORLDER.

This period was marked by great turmoil including: the disappearance of the SEVEN THRONES; THE THRONE WARS, which escalated in 105 RM with challengers claiming the EMPTY THRONE; the ascent of ARCHON to the KORACHANI throne in 137 RM and subsequent deposition in 140 RM by the ARCHPATRICIAN MALETH; the growth of the cult of KHAR'ILLAE; the creation of the ORDER OF THRONE WARDENS in 203 RM; and great unrest in PELASGOS, which led to the PAPAL WARS in 225 RM.

During this time the Archpotentate Malichar wandered the wastes of KHARKHARADONTIS, finding the PROPHESISED REJHELLE OF RHODAN who became his companion and guide, taking him as far as the BITTER SEA and FLAMING SEA, where he died in 133 RM. He was later raised by natives in the town of UBOTE as a hollow vessel that wandered the deserts. He later confronted and killed the otherworlder ABEZETHIBOU in 209 RM before finally finding the tomb of RACHANAEL in DAEKYN in 212 RM. The DEMIURGE had strength enough to kill him and he was later reborn as an otherworlder in 231 RM in KULIGALA.

Eventually he regained memory of his life and purpose (something very uncommon for otherworlders, who typically experience this in reverse being reborn with fragments of their past life which are rapidly forgotten) and left Kuligala to search how to restore Rachanael to full life. He arrived in PORPHYR in 331 RM with a cadre of DEMIURNES he encountered on the way, and acquired great TECHNARCANE knowledge from NYARLOTH'S descendant TELEANYARA APEXEIDE, which he used to create the LEADEN THRONE in DAEKYN in 338 RM, into which the weakened Rachanael was placed, and around which the SEPULCHRAL PALACE was later erected. Following his itinerary, the Archpotentate Malichar began travelling north, back to the empire. In 339 RM he appeared in SARASTRO with his demiurne followers and some Porphyri allies and ended the SIEGE OF SARASTRO that had been ongoing since 322 RM. After his victory in Sarastro, Malichar returned to Korachan where he resumed control from The Seven, ending the chaos that had grown in his absence.

ITISS: Set. Settlement in the c north of ETUA. It is known to be a hub of CLONING, and HAGHOUERS are made in its vast manufactories, that make for reliable beasts of burden that can survive the ATRAMENTAL CORRUPTION of Etua (Pop. unknown).

ITORA: Set. Coastal fortress in the far west of TZALLRACH.

ITORATRA: Set. Major coastal city in the nation of IRUGNA⁽²⁾. It is famed for its artisans, any of whom specialise in crafting fine jewellery from fire agates mined to the south west in CENLIS (Pop. c. 78,000).

ITOS: His. Geo. Historic endorheic basin in the ROMOREA^(1.) rift valley. In 3821 RM it was flooded alongside other endorheic basins, by the Kingdom of Romorea^(2.), creating the artificial inland sea of HASAAZ ARAAT.

ITRAI: Set. Settlement in the c south of SEDISIA, north of the SIRAZHAD Mountains (Pop. c. 9,000).

ITRI: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the south of KAZZAR^(2.) belonging to the GODSLAYERS, who guard the southern border of the region, which is shared with the BARRIER LANDS.

ITRUSHAN DHOW: Veh. Distinctive twin-hulled lateen-rigged dhows that are common in FALLAROUR, the CORAL BARONIES, the AMMASHI FREE-ISLES, as well as coastal regions of KEPHUAAN and AMMESH. They vary in size from small vessels used for fishing and personal transportation, to large warships with crews of dozens. They are stable and offer good storage, and they are often used for transportation of cargo from island to island.

ITTABBAN: Set. A major industrial city in the c of NOAVATUR. Known for its platinum and iron mines, which extend deep beneath the city (Pop. c. 600,000).

ITTAMBRAY: Geo. Coastal region in the south west of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in the south west of MALAN. It is connected to the KHAMIDIAN exclave of KHARR and is known for its peninsulas and relatively dry terrain.

ITTRA: Pol. Soc. Tribe in the c east of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA.

ITULROTH: Set. Semi-permanent city in the c south of THETIS, located to the north east of the KOTHA TYRAL Mountains. During warm seasons the city is largely empty, though it fills up in winter months as the NEMIS nomads gravitate towards the settlements.

Itulroth is the most-heavily defended of the Nemis cities, with the most martial of permanent populations, and it also maintains a large marker where the nomads can trade goods that they bring with them from across the nation (Pop. c. 31,300).

ITURIA: Mil. Str. Fortress in the north of KORACHAN, guarding THE SHADOW MARCH as it passes close to the border with CHTHYRID.

IUA: Set. Coastal settlement in the south of Thetis. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 6,200).

IUDDRA: Geo. Island in the east of the PANTHEON ISLES, forming part of the BHALASSIAN ARCHIPELAGO⁽²⁾. It is the northern-most island with known sizeable deposits of silver and sulphur.

IUDIVRA: Rvr. River in the south east of ELEKHID, flowing east for 500-miles from sources in the ARAVASH Mountains before meeting the coast at the ROILING SEA.

IUJACHTHÉ: His. Nm. FOURTH AGE DVERG empire in the south west of WESTERN SAMMAEA, in what are now eastern BELEGOR, SYNCHTHONITHA, and western GRARNEÂST. See Vol III: Extinct States.

IUKTIDDUR: Set. Coastal city in the c of the mainland PANTHEON ISLES (Pop. c. 43,000).

IUKUALL: Geo. Rugged region in the east of AMILLAERE^(1,), to the west of lake CELUREA, known for its many hot springs and geysers. It is sparsely wooded though is not very large.

IULIA ZONARAS XII: (B. 3930) Pol. Soc. Archaptrician of HOUSE ZONARAS, and governess of the vassal state of LAASKHA since 3718 RM.

IUN IARAOM MAHTA: also 'Yaraomic Telling'. Soc. Leg. His. In the culture of the northern SAMMAEAN YARAOMIC PEOPLES, the oral history and mythology that is passed down from generation to generation by loremasters known as IARAOM GRABBA.

Yaraomic culture was brought to an untimely demise with the KORACHANI subjugation of northern Sammaea and the razing of their final stronghold, KEKELIB, in 933 RM, after which its people were either subjugated or forced to live in the wilderness away from the gaze of imperial persecution.

In the 3,000-years since then much of their history has been obliterated and forgotten, but the Iaraom Grabba scour old Yaraomic territories, searching for any fragments of history they can find, including pictographic poetry, elaborate pottery, and brightly-patterned fabrics, as well as third party accounts that they mesh together to form the Yaraomic Telling. Physical relics that make up part of the Yaraomic Telling are kept in the ancient fortress library of IARSHUGGAH, where their culture is slowly being rebuilt, awaiting the return of the KING-WHO-WASN'T.

However, the Telling has become a grotesque corruption of their true history, as seminal events in Yaraomic history have been lost to time, and even what is remembered today has undoubtedly been corrupted through millennia of reinterpretation, fragmented lore and additions from Korachani culture. Nevertheless, these tales form the basis of Yaraomic identity, and are what bind these scattered people together.

IUNITANT: Pol. His. Historical mercantile dynasty and eventual royal house that founded the kingdom of GREST(1) in the west of the island-continent of BROR(1). The merchant family rose to power in the AHAGGADAN(2) city of SCELD between 3150 – 3200 RM, where it grew wealthy from moving trade up and down the river AGO, as well as overland to the north and south. This led to a shifting of power in Ahaggad that escalated, erupting into a civil war that started in 3234 RM and lasted almost three decades, ending only in 3263 RM, with a victory for Sceld.

The house of Iunitant followed up this victory by marching against NEYEM (until then the capital of Ahaggad), razing it and executing its rulers. This cemented its claim to sovereignty and it moved the capital to Sceld, founding the new kingdom of Grest later the same year.

The house formed a powerful dynasty that ruled Grest for close to three centuries, before the House of $\underline{\text{NULUM}}$ took control in 3555 RM.

IUT UQURRA: Set. Major city in the c north east of VALA in the c south east of WESTERN MENISCEA. It forms part of the VAEVECTAN TRAIL and is known for expansive its storage silos and voluminous trade halls (Pop. c. 220,000).

IUTAECH: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY-ACTIVE region in the south east of PARAIYA, in the c east of the plains of MEGHA. Though otherwise thought to be relatively weak, some explorers and travellers claim to have seen bodies of dead creatures wandering its lands, causing the area to be shunned. Little is known about this phenomenon though it is thought that the bodies continue to decay despite this dead locomotion.

IVA: 1. Geo. Island in the north west of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS.2. Set. Settlement on the eponymous island (Pop. c. 17,300).

IVACALAT: Set. Settlement in the east of ALAM BETHYL, in the territory of TABERCIL^(2.) (Pop. c. 8,000).

IVACHAR: Geo. Region of badlands in the west of OPHIUSSA.

IVAOT: Geo. Island off the north western coast of the island of IRUGNA^(1.), belonging to the PARTHISAN colony of ABDAKROS^(1.).

IVARA: Set. Coastal settlement in the c south of the PANTHEON ISLES, located to the south of its mainland (Pop. c. 4,800).

IVEGGETH HO SIN: m. (B. 3911 RM) Pol. Per. Present IMPERATOR of IMEAL. She is a powerful SHAPER and is a HUMAN with IMMORTAL (2.) blood and is believed to have links with the ancient guardians of the TRUE MENISCUS.

IVERIA: Geo. Island off the north western coast of the island of IRUGNA^(1.), belonging to the PARTHISAN colony of ABDAKROS^(1.).

IVOANT: Set. Settlement in the west of the tribe of DATHOA, in the south west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 4,000).

IVORY CITADEL, the: Pol. Str. Seat of power of the CONGRESS OF WINDS, in the capital of MAHSERTH, in AHRISHEN.

IVORY DAGGERS, the: His. Obj. FIFTH AGE daggers thought to have been crafted in c. -1000 RM in the state of TORPOR^(1.) as a gift for the king. They were lost following the collapse of Torpor in c. 700 RM, and their whereabouts are presently unknown.

IVORY KEEP, the: Mil. Str. Large fortress in the c of VÂRR, named after the ivory-coloured rocks that dominate the region. Constructed in c. 1000 RM, the fortress's main role was to protect the many open-cast mines in the surrounding region as well as the trade-routes that led south to THE RED ROUTE. As the raw materials of Vârr were rapidly exploited in the ensuing centuries and eventually, around 3000 RM, exhausted, tower's purpose was no longer required and it was abandoned in 3403 RM.

Following the handing over of Vârr to the REGENT-KINGS in 3791 RM, the fortress was partially restored and a garrison placed there in a bid to protect what little remained of Vârr's resources.

IVORY MOON, the: see SIELLA, THE IVORY MOON.

IVORY ROAD, the: Com. Geo. Major trade-route in the north of SAMMAEA, ranging some 5,000-miles from ASHHAR in TATAR, just above the TROPIC OF RAH, via KOCHAB, all the way to CAMACA, capital of SAGITTARIA, via the major cities of KAMAH and DAAZ, and much of THE SURRACH. The name is derived from the ivory that was once a major commodity along the route, though the great beasts once at the heart of the trade have long since disappeared. See Vol II: Major Trade Routes.

IVORY THRONE, the: His. Pol. Ancient seat of power of the city-state of GILAM ASH in VALKA (present-day VAALK). Constructed in -43 RM by a bloodthirsty warlord, it rapidly became notorious across Valka for the rituals of bloodletting that developed around it, as defeated enemies of the Gilam Ashan warlord were decapitated, their blood poured onto it.

As KORACHANI administrators moved into the palace following the imperial subjugation of its people in 19 RM, the throne was removed, going missing. None know its fate, though it is thought to have been stolen and sold to a private collector.

IVYAR: Set. Small city in the c north west of KOLCHIS (Pop. c. 13,000).

IWILL: Sup. Dre. Geo. DREAMSCAPE in the north east of the HENDECARCHY of DERAEIA, in the east of MALAN, south of the DALMMA Mountains. The dreamscape is made of impossibly fused and shaped crystalline growths that form a cavern, the interior of which is far larger than the physical constraints of its MATERIAL PLANE exterior. The crystals are dangerous and razor sharp, making travel there difficult, though a nearby ONEIROMANCER outpost, known as THE SHAR, keeps an eye on the dreamscape, monitoring changes in its form and appearance over time — it does appear to me shifting, moving steadily west.

 \underline{IYADA} : Scr. fortified coastal settlement in the south west of \underline{KREM} . Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 6,000).

IYASAL: Set. coastal settlement in the west of KREM (Pop. c. 3,400).

IYAT: His. Set. Ancient city in the CITADEL MOUNTS, emerging in c. -1150 RM following the UHLSAATI victories against AUERENI barbarian attacks that had plagued the region for decades. The attacks had caused what remained of the Uhlsaati populace to seek shelter in the KOHOD

Mountain (later known as the EHBOT Mountain) with the barbarian armies scattered following the death of their leader in -1193 RM, the survivors emerged and began constructing high-towers around the Kohod. Iyat was one such fortress-city, the northern-most of its kind. Following its construction, the fortress soon began to attract emerging HAAGENI people from the north. Few were allowed in the fortress proper, with the rest settling the rocky hills and springs at its base between c. - 1100 and -1000 RM, forming what would eventually become the city of Iyat. A close bond with the Haageni city of IRAM was forged in those years, with trade between the two common.

By c. -300 RM the city had taken on the epithet of DUN, signifying its size and importance. Dun Iyat was by then the regions' main link to the north, with trade with SAOSTANA and IO common. Due to this, Dun Iyat became one of the most metropolitan of the Citadel Mount cities, with the majority of its structures lying beneath the fortress proper, sprawled out in an open plan at its base, with caravanserais and storage yards a common sight. The city prospered, becoming renowned for its hanging gardens and springs and the vast fields to its west, though a great earthquake wracked the base of the Kohod in -127 RM, shattering the land for miles around, reaching west as far as the plains of Uhlsaat. Dun Iyat was ruined, its mount fortresses toppled onto the shattered city below. Thousands lay dead, the survivors fleeing to the other cities in the region. The few who remained rebuilt portions of the lower city, where they remained, allowing the Citadel Mount to rot. And so, the city died, becoming a town, the name Dun Iyat forgotten, its epithet lost with the disaster that claimed its palaces. It was only with the arrival of Korachan to the region following its occupation of the Citadel Mounts that the town found a new lease-of-life, becoming known as DUN IACH.

IYMLI: Sup. Geo. Region in the c east of XYRPHAAT^(3.) that was the site of massed fighting during the time of conflict now known as the GREAT SLAUGHTER. Tens of thousands of people were killed there over years of fighting. The region lies over a wide FIRMAMENTAL LEY, and the sheer number of SPIRITS^(1.) that perished there have left their mark on the place, with PSYCHOMETRISTS and ANIMISTS being particularly sensitive to being close by.

IYRSA: Sup. Sea. Tainted sea, forming part of the TYRSIS in the north of THE INNER SEA, along the border between LAASKHA and AZAZEM. Its waters are blighted by effluvia from the dross industry in the area.

IZABAB: Ind. Sct. Settlement in the c north of AZAZEM. Its main industry is lead mining (Pop. c. 4,800).

IZABAL: 1. Dem. 'Izabali'. Ntn. Born of revolts and bloodshed in SAGITTARIA, Izabal is a small nation in the north west of NORTHERN SAMMAEA, overlooking the SEA OF AAHES, nestled between the URTAN LEAGUES, ERET, THE SURRACH, EREBETH, and Sagittaria.

Izabal was granted its independence in 3159 RM after decades of bloody civil war against the KNIGHTS-EXILE of Sagittaria, following the death throes of an unstable Sagittarian ATRAMENTIST led to the obliteration of a large portion of the Sagittarian army. She has since become a divine figure in Izabal, and is a patron to martyrs and all those without hope, with a religion surrounding her known as EKIZIACISM.

In 3398 RM Izabal became a monarchy with the victories of Lord (later King) Sampad against chorsairs and pirates. Since then, Izabal has prospered in the shadow of political chaos in Sagittaria, and has grown into a hub of trade, serving as a link between the west, in the form of the Surrach, and the east, both overland via Sagittaria and by sea across the GATE OF EREBETH.

Those with the means are spoilt by the vicinity of the Surrach and most nobles are epicureans, effectively sustaining a healthy trade relationship with the Surrach, and are patrons of the arts and sports, with gladiatorial fighting a lucrative business in Izabal, with prized fighters becoming wealthy and influential in the kingdom, often retiring to become knights.

In recent decades the monarchy has lost favour amongst the common people, with many using the games as a means of protesting against the monarchy, under the leadership of a union of disgraced knights and disenfranchised merchants. See Vol III: the Nations of Elyden.

2. Pol. Set. Capital city of the eponymous region, in the north west of the nation (Pop. c. 1,012,000). * (coastal)

IZADA: 1. Geo. Peninsula in the south of ARKOS^(1.), protruding east into the SEA OF ERIA.

2. Set. Major harbour in the c south of ARKOS^(1.), along the tip of the Izadan Peninsula^(1.) (Pop. c. 50,000).

IZAGUERRE: (D. 3918 RM) ALMAGESTI Polymath and explorer, who travelled extensively across WESTERN SAMMAEA, cataloguing her finds. For many decades her writings were the main point of reference for peoples' knowledge of various regions. Her most famous work is the 'MY SOJOURN IN THE HERMIT KINGDOM, a travelogue detailing her nine-year stay in the isolationist nation of SATHAII, which became the source for most laypeople's knowledge of the nation.

IZAL ARETH: Set. Small city in the territory of MAHEN in the north east of ALAM BETHYL (Pop. c. 16,300).

IZANIIJA SANTOON VI: (B. 3903 RM) Pol. Current empress of the ACACINNATHI DYNASTY in KREM.

IZAPOSAN: Rvr. Tainted course of the river AHAABARIPAR in the c of LAASKHA, around 10-miles long, famed for the fleshy texture of its banks and the viscosity and stench of its waters, which sicken those who drink it and kills any plants that draw on it for sustenance.

IZARIEL: 1. Rvr. River in the north of GNOTH, flowing south east for 400-miles from sources in the west of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains, before meeting lake ZURVAN.

Lak. Lake along the course of the above river^(1.) in the north of GNOTH.
 Mil. For. Small fortress in the north of Gnoth, overlooking the above river^(1.).

IZDARA: Set. Settlement in the west of the BARRIER LANDS. Its main industry is the mining of bauxite, which is the primary component in the manufacture of aluminium (Pop. c. 6,200).

IZEDDRID: Rui. Abandoned library in the c north west of NORTHERN SIMBARA. It was once famed for the breathtaking range of books in its collection, spanning all of ELYDEN and multiple Ages. It was destroyed during a short but devastating civil war in 2766 RM alongside most of its contents. What remained was lost, scattered all over Sammaea, most likely finding their way into private collections or eventually falling apart to time. The famed BOOK OF IZEDDRID is an index of the library's contents at the time of its destruction, and it is known to have survived for some time after the library's destruction.

IZEDDRID, the BOOK OF: Vol. Ancient index of the many thousands of volumes that were in the collection of the library of IZEDDRID at the time of its destruction in 2766 RM. The index was one of the few books to survive the destruction of the library, and for many years was the only record of the priceless tomes and artefacts that were lost. It became the focal point of a series of scholars who made it their mission to recreate the lost collection — either by sourcing other copies of the books, retrieving lost ones, or just doing what they could to make facsimile copies.

It went missing for centuries in c. 2900 RM, but was recovered in 3351 RM and was found to contain various new marginalia, notes and annotations, many of which described forgotten details from the long-since destroyed books. These mysterious notes were invaluable in aiding the rebuilding process, which continues to this day.

IZEAMAR: Geo. Island in the east of the PANTHEON ISLES archipelago.

IZENTAR: Ind. Soc. Bus. PATRICIAN HOUSE based in VALBAR⁽²⁾. It was established in 2823 RM in the city of PICATRIX in north eastern ALMAGEST, though members of the house took up the call to arms to colonise Valbar⁽¹⁾ following the Almagesti victory in the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES. Following this it made its mark in mining and as a refiner of METEORE and, later, manufacturing weapons, for which it would become famous.

Most of the items it produces are exported far east across the SEA OF POLARIS, with PERGOST, THANO, and CEHOPHELA, amongst others. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

IZIAMI: Rvr. River in TZALLRACH, flowing south for 550-miles from sources in the KANDON highlands, before meeting with its parent, the river BAELLI.

IZIRIO: Ser. Small city in the north of SEDISIA, along the course of the river NASHADRA (Pop. c. 15,000). $\underline{\textbf{IZINA}} : \textit{Set.} \ Settlement in the south west of \underline{OPHAR}^{(2)}. \ Its main industry is animal husbandry and shepherding (Pop. c. 2,800).$

IZOTHIA: Set. Small city in the east of TETHYSIA. Its main industry is the manufacture of fine ceremonial UZUMI swords, which are used across Tethysia (Pop. c. 13,000).

IZYRIANA: Set. City in the south east of KEPHUAAN (Pop. c. 44,000).

IZZA: Set. Settlement in the south of the BARRIER LANDS, in the foothills of the VANNAKORDOR Mountains, in the SEKUIAN Expanse. It is a major producer of rubies (Pop. c. 8,200).

IZZETTIA: Set. Small city in the south east of ANDILUTH. It is one of the few permanently-settled cities in ANDILUTH due to its opal mines. Much of the city is located underground (Pop. c. 18,000).

J

J'DATA: Set. Settlement in the c south west of N'RAKH (Pop. c. 6,400).

J'DRA'AT: Rvr. Major river in the c west of J'THANA, flowing north for 375-miles from sources in the BETHET and AKHET Mountains before joining with lake C'DATA.

I'HATAT: Rvr. River in the east of J'THANA flowing for 350-miles west from sources in the BETHET and NAKARRAN Mountains before meeting with its parent, the river J'DRA'AT.

I'KHOSO: Rvr. River in the c of N'RAKH, flowing west for 380-miles from sources in the STERHBEL Mountains before meeting its parent, the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.), at the N'DATA wetlands.

J'SABA: Rvr. River in the c of N'RAKH flowing west for 350-miles from sources in the STERHBEL Mountains before meeting its parent, the river SHIBBOLETH^(3,) at the settlement of K'TALFA.

I'SHALBA: Rvr. River in the c west of N'RAKH, flowing west for 220-miles from sources in the far west of the STERHBEL, before meeting its parent, the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.).

I'SORDA: Rvr. River in the west of N'RAKH, flowing east for 170-miles from sources in the T'ILLU Mountains before meeting its parent, the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.).

J'THANA: 1. Dem. 'J'thanan'. Ntn. Sovereign state in the c north east of SAMMAEA. known today for its exotic forests of century plants and the much-travelled lake C'DATA, which links it to the INNER SEA, J'THANA is a realm built by slaves freed following massed dissent in the AANTH nation of N'RAKH in 2193 RM.

In c. 2300 RM, the CITADEL MOUNT city of CASSAI defected to J'thana, though its link to remained J'thana tenuous at best, with political activity there leading to its return to the Citadel Mounts in c. 2900 RM.

Through the politicking of Siriphagan ALIHEIOANS and the corruption of its government, it becomes a vassal of SIRIPHAGOS in 2814 RM, though as Siriphagos waned in power, J'thana was able to break away, alongside a large part of the west of Siriphagos, in 3306 RM, and it has remained independent ever since, becoming a monarchy 3421 RM, remaining so to this day.

J'thana is now a gateway to the land of the AANTHA – alien, inscrutable arachniform beings, whose nation is an oddity even in ELYDEN. Though J'thana is a human nation, it maintains uneasy relations with N'rakh, and has merchant-houses that trade with the aantha, supplying them with goods they are unable to manufacture in return for exotic silks and resins.

The state of J'thana is ruled by an elected Triarchy, the intent of which is to temper any radical ideals by having multiple rulers, elected from amongst the population. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

2. Set. Once a city-state and region of N'RAKH, it became the capital of the newly independent eponymously-named state⁽¹⁾ in 2193 RM. It also forms a part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 710,900).

IABAQ: Set. Small coastal city in the north of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT (Pop. c. 15,500).

JABERIEL: Rvr. River in the c north of GNOTH, flowing south east for 480-miles from sources in the SOLUN Highlands, before meeting its parent, the river NEPHOT.

JACARANTHIA: Com. Set. Small fortified coastal city in the far east of ANDILUTH, overlooking the SOUND OF MEMEHAR. It forms a part of the SALT ROAD, and its well-guarded caravans make the arduous trek east through the unpopulated lands of the far north of KHARKHARADONTIS on their way to and from TARTAK (Pop. c. 18,000).

JACHIMO REMMAN: m. Per. Leg. A popular figure in the folklore and urban legends of the city of ALMAGEST. A champion of the lower classes, Jachimo Remman is considered by most to be a manumitted SLAVE who fights oppression of slaves and HELOTS. Conversely, he is regarded as a terrorist by the PATRICIAN class, who are typically the targets of his attacks.

For the most part the figure is believed to be fictional, with many otherwise anonymous events attributed apocryphally to him. The earliest mention of Jachimo Remman dated back to c. 3650 RM, making it a near certainty that he is not a single person – at the very least if he was real, he died long ago, though it is possible that others have taken on the mantle since then, meaning that there may be multiple people who call themselves Jachimo at any one time, or there may be none at all.

Regardless, this does nothing to dissuade the popularity of the legend in the city of Almagest and beyond, as it gives hope to the hopeless in dark times, particularly in recent years when disease, famine and conscription for distant wars are all becoming more common in Almagest.

IACHODOS: Geo. Rocky region in the far north of the TEMPLAR STATES, to the south of the BAY OF FIK and the east of the GHORDADOS headland. It is peppered with signs of ancient habitation – ruins, rubble huts, terraced fields and scattered pottery shards – but little concrete details on what culture lived there. Today the region is largely ignored and though there are no cities of note, its north western coast has many small fishing settlements that are of little consequence.

JACITES: Rel. Org. Religious sect originating within the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE prior to its sundering in 3705 RM. The sect appeared in c. 3240 RM in CLOTHO, in the north of KORACHAN, and spread west from there within a decade.

The sect is named after its founder, EMEMETH JACEN, who believed that mortal ascension (the potential for mortals to become OTHERWORLDERS or gods in their own right) was independent of the divinities they worshipped, which nullified much of the Church's teachings. He was excommunicated following the EDICT OF KHADON in 3243 RM and moved west into AZAZEM.

Following his death in 3242 RM the JACITES continued to spread throughout SKAROS, IPANAH $^{(2)}$ and AZAZEM, though their numbers were kept in check by Church-funded mercenaries. The Church of the Undying Machine announced the sect officially dead in 3312 RM, though small groups remained, largely in Ipanah, where they would eventually become the ancestors of its present-day religion of RAHANA.

JACITTA: 1. Pol. Soc. Tribe in the c west of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. The BOLILOT PEAKS form its eastern-most borders, and it is known for its fertile highland plains.
2. Pol. Sec. Ruling city in the tribe of the same name in the far west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 58,000).

JACKALS, the: Mil. Rnk. Elite scouts of the VENTHIRI armies. They are well-trained and equipped and individuals might be SHAPERS or non-HUMAN, including other MORTALS or high-generation HALFBLOODS. They are especially adept at operating behind enemy lines, often for long stretches of time.

JADE OBELISK, the: Int. His. Arc. Monolithic jade obelisk in the south east of NAARETH, in the region of ABASHERA, just outside a small cave. The obelisk is some 40-ft. tall and is of a narrow cuboid design, though its edges have been won smooth by the elements and it is otherwise dented and damaged in many parts. Two large holes intersect about 4-ft. From its apex, inside which is a suspended SOULSTONE.

The obelisk is in the tidal floodplains of the south of Naareth, and is fully revealed once-daily, and is near totally submerged a few times each year. It was the object of tribal worship some years ago, though this was quelled following the rise of the Church of the Volute in the region in the 2nd millennium RM, though it is believed that secret cults still worship the idol, whose origins are unknown.

JADE SEA, the: Sea. Bay off the eastern coast of EASTERN MENISCEA, in the north of EIKARTHYEA in the east of MENISCEA. It is named not after its colour, but after the jade trade that once thrived in the area. Though jade is no longer mined here, jade treasures and ornaments remain a commonly traded commodity in Eikarthyea.

JAEL: Rvr. Slow-moving river in the west of GNOTH, flowing c. 490-miles east from sources in the MESHABAR ridge, before reaching the AEARN Westlands

JAELA: Geo. Mountain in SAMMAEA, measuring some 750-miles long, forming a border between the south east of NARTHEL, the north west of VENTHIR, and the north east of SARASTRO. It was once famed for its mineral wealth, though abuse of its natural resources in the first two millennia of the FIFTH AGE saw it rendered barren, with the ancient ruin of its quarries and mines bearing testament to its once-wealth.

IAELAN REDOUBT: Mil. Str. Long line of fortifications constructed by KORACHANI troops following their conquering of NÁRTHEL in 84 RM; built along the then border of Nárthel with the empire of VENATH, with which tensions were then high. The line stretches around 1,500-miles from the so-called CITADEL OF RUIN in the south western plains of VARASI, east to the DAARAN peninsula that once divided the Venathi empire from Nárthel, running along the northern face of the JAELA mountain. The fortifications and citadels of the Redoubt were largely abandoned following QUEEN HETEPHERES abdication to Korachan in 361 RM.

JAELLANG: Geo. Plains in the north of LIDEA.

JAGGANAUTH: Mil. Tec. A class of heavy warships active within the fleets of the KORACHANI EMPIRE.

IAHADAT STATES, the: Dem. 'Jahadat'. Ntn. Located to the east of SAMMAEA, south of the SEA OF LETHEA, the Jahadat States are known for a climate that ranges from hot-humid, to semi-arid farther inland. It has long dry summers and mild winters with few, often severe, storms, which swell the waters of the river SYASHAN, which forms the heartland of the states.

Originating in the aftermath of a virulent outbreak FAHR'S PLAGUE in 2138 RM, the Jahadat States emerged in from the city of HEMANAT, which had successfully protected the centre of the fractured nation of ABACARDAT from the plague, which had been concentrated in the west. As the west faltered following the collapse of the capital city ATTRAHASISH, Hemanat founded new cities along the length of the river Syashan, which would grow into the Jahadat States by 2294 RM. By then the power centre had shifted from Hemanat to the Syashani cities, as they grew in number and influence, and Hemanat itself would break away, becoming an independent city, eventually becoming part of a re-emerging Abacardat once again.

Today there are twelve states in all, further divided into a handful of constituencies, each of which is controlled by a $\underline{JAHINN}^{(2)} - a$ $\underline{HALFBLOODED}$ descendant of the eponymous otherworlder who first appeared in Abacardat in 2136 RM. The Jahinn of the Jahadat States exist as a caste apart from their mortal subjects. There is a loose, uneasy alliance amongst most of the states, and marriages between their ruling families are common.

Worship of the PRIMOGENITOR Jahinn is the norm amongst the halfbloods, and the mortals follow the JAHINNID FAITH that is common in the region and surrounding areas. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

JAHAL: Geo. Small Mountain-range in the south of NÁRTHEL, along the border with SARASTRO.

JAHARON: Geo. Island off the northern coast of KETESH, north east of the SEA OF BASSANDER, and forming part of the IKUAI DARBOW chain of island.

IAHHAMANN: Rnk. Law. Org. Law-keepers in common in KAZZAR^(2.) and TATAR, thought to be descended from a knightly caste that was prevalent in the ALCHIARAN DYNASTY. The organisation is divided into three broad factions that are analogous with a navy, army and police, and members are drawn from citizens, either voluntarily or by conscription in times of need.

IAHINN: 1. (B. unknown) Oth. OTHERWORLDER PRIMOGENITOR first sighted outside the ailing city of HAMARAN in the north west of ABACARDAT, in the east of SAMMAEA, in c. 2136 RM. The appearance presaged an outbreak of FAHR'S PLAGUE that devastated the region 2 year later.

The otherworlder took the form of an alien humanoid, floating, its body wreathed in sinuous robes. Its skin was of stark black, and its visage was featureless, yet illuminated from within. The dim nimbus of that glow brought to the hearts of those that looked upon it a feeling of tranquillity and safety and it soon came to be worshipped as a deity. This worship spread across the west of Abacardat amid the outbreak of the plague, reaching as far east as the eastern shore of the SEA OF UHBATAQ^(3.) (today the BITTER SEA), becoming known as the JAHINNID FAITH.

During this time the otherworlder fathered a daughter, known as KAJAAHWA, who became the focal point of the Jahinnid Faith alongside her mortal mother, who died in childbirth and became a saint to martyrs. Jahinn became more obscure in this time, retreating to the PALACE OF THE STARS, a temple built in his honour in the west of the Uhbataqi Mountains⁽⁴⁾, never leaving it.

Today he has faded into obscurity, and is considered dead by most, and all aspects of veneration have been inherited by his daughter Kajaahwa. He continues to be worshipped by the Jahinn caste⁽²⁾ as an incarnation of perfection.

2. Oth. Pol. Rnk. Ruling HALFBLOOD caste common in the east of SAMMAEA, common in the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT and the JAHADAT STATES. The caste established itself between c. 2380 and 2500 RM and is descended from the eponymous OTHERWORLDER (1.), who is worshipped as an incarnation of perfection by the caste, who decry breeding with mortals for fear of diluting their bloodline. Those found guilty of having relations with mortals are exiled, and those found to have sired children with mortals are executed as traitors to the bloodline.

The Jahinn form an upper caste within Abacardat and neighbouring societies, particularly in the Jahadat States, where each state is ruled by an individual Jahinn, most of which are of 4^{th} and 5^{th} generations. In Abacardat the caste orchestrated the emergence of the Sultanate in 2326 RM, which rules to this day.

JAHINN SULTANATE: see Sultanate, Jahinn.

JAHINN, TEMPLE OF THE: Rel. Str. Main temple of the JAHINNID

FAITH that is prevalent in ABACARDAT and the JAHADAT STATES in the east of SAMMAEA. The temple is located in the small city of HAMARAN and is a site of pilgrimage to those who worship the Jahinnid Faith.

JAHINNID FAITH: Rel. Main religion observed in the SULTANATE OF
ABACARDAT and the JAHADAT STATES. Its roots can be traced back to the first appearance of the otherworlder JAHINN^(1.) in the city of HAMARAN in 2136 RM. This appearance came prior to an outbreak of FAHR'S PLAGUE that devastated the west of Abacardat and led to the beleaguered people turning to it for hope. The fact that those who looked upon the otherworlder found their fears assuaged aided in the rapid spread of this worship across afflicted cities over the next decades, but failed to move farther east that the old capital in ATTRAHASISH due to the blockade enacted by the city of HEMANAT to keep the c of Abacardat safe from the plague, though it would eventually spread farther east as it became established in the Jahadat States and the REFORMED STATE OF ABACARDAT farther east.

The birth in 2285 RM of Jahinn's daughter Kajaahwa led to a shifting of power within the church, with most coming to worship her and her mother, who died during childbirth. Jahinn would retreat from public appearances and would disappear within the Palace of the Stars, built specifically for him. Most outside the Jahinn caste would eventually forget about Jahinn, concentrating the veneration on Kajaahwa.

Salt plays an important role in the rituals of the faith, and this can possibly be attributed to the shrinking of the SEA OF UHBATAQ^(3.) (today the BITTER SEA) in the formative years of the religion and the salination of its waters and appearance of salt flats in lands left in its wake. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

JAGNOK: Set. Small fortified coastal city in the c of the independent region of ANAGAR, west of RAONGEN⁽²⁾ (Pop. c. 17,200).

JAIADAR: Set. Coastal settlement in the north of ESHIR^(2.), overlooking the Bay of Eshir^(1.) (Pop. c. 6,200).

IAINKAUROS: His. Sup. Infamous PLAGI FIFTH AGE SHAPER-king who is the most remembered ruler of the ancient desert kingdom of YASHMIN, and who is now largely known for his acts of sadism, which appear in accounts from across SAMMAEA. Lawbreakers were harshly punished under his rule, and in many cases were tortured and executed directly by him.

He is perhaps most well-known for constructing the expansive LABYRINTH OF JAINKAUROS, which was a near-mythical subterranean gaol where law-breakers were exiled.

JAKA: Geo. Shale wasteland in the south east of the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes, in SAMMAEA, just west of AETHIOS. The desert is the domain of HERENSUEGE, SCION of the DEMIURGE ASHTERATH, and is largely inhospitable to life, though some SERAPI tribes and degenerates do manage to eke out a living here, paying blood tributes to the scion. They are a nuisance to the people of Aethios, and its western borders are constantly patrolled from incursions.

JAKAYAN: Set. Small fortified coastal city in the far west of PERGOST, overlooking the BAY OF BAEFIR. Its main industry is whaling and the production of whale by-products, including oil and AMBERGRIS (Pop. c. 12 400).

JALIR: Set. Small fortified coastal city in the far north of ESHIR⁽²⁾. The city is home to the Zillas caste that controls trade between it and FENDOL, to the north, across the border with KARGAMA (Pop. c. 17,200).

JALLEN: Set. Small city in the region of TZEDEK in the far east of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 19,000).

JALMOUR FOUCA: m. (B. 3957 RM) Pol. Per. LORD OF THE CABINET of VALBAR⁽²⁾, representing the state of ABLATIA⁽¹⁾.

JAM ARREQ: also 'Plains of the Roah'. Geo. Expansive plains in the north of the SEPAHAUNATI peninsula known to be one of the last refuges of the large flightless ROAH BIRDS. Some settlements in this region train the birds as fleet-footed mounts.

IAMADANI: Set. Fortified settlement in the south of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR, in the south west of MALAN, along the banks of the LAUL EGLEA. It is close to the border with KHAMID and lies north of a series of concentric bastions that are designed to guard it from Khamidian forces, should they ever march north against it (Pop. c. 9,000).

JAMBIA: Geo. Headland dominating the north of ERET^(2.).

JAMERAH: Geo. Ancient floodplain in the c south west of MACELLARIA that is famed for its snaking canyon – the last remnants of an early FIFTH AGE river that dried in c. 2000 RM. FOURTH AGE accounts name a river that matches the description of Jamerah as the site of an ancient massacre – a tale given weight by the large number of bleached MORTAL bones that scatter the landscape there.

JAMOON: Set. Small coastal city in the north west of KREM, in the region of ABALASOON. Its main industry is the creation of GLASTEEL items (Pop. c. 17,200).

JANABRON: Set. Small city in the contested lands of UTIMAN in the far north of PORPHYR. It is a centre of agriculture (Pop. c. 18,000).

JANAMIN: Set. Settlement in the c south of the SULTANATE OF
ABACARDAT. Its main industry is arable farming (Pop. c. 6,000).

JANISAAR: Pol. Mil. Rnk. Militaristic noble caste common in the ARID TRIPTYCH, dating back to the days of the VENATHI EMPIRE, c. 100 RM. In the ensuing years they became renowned for their expert archers as well as their disdainful attitude towards other military formations, who they tended to consider beneath them.

Following the rise of the KORACHANI EMPIRE and the development of POWDERGUNS, the Janisaars became skilled marksmen. They dominated Venthiri armies around the turn of 2000 RM and wielded great political influence, many of them becoming very close with QUEEN HETEPHERES. Though their influence has waned in the ensuing years, they remain elite troops capable of acquiring some power within the Venthiri court.

JANISAARS TEMPLE OF THE: Rel. Str. This large lavishly decorated cathedral is located in Teira, the capital city of Venthir and is one of the few that is still dedicated to the Church of the Undying Machine. It is known for its six adjoining chapels (two of which are dedicated to the Archpotentate Malichar and Queen Hetepheres) and is famed for its baroque interior that is dominated by black marble, gold gilding, and grotesque statuary depicting angels and saints of the imperial faith.

It is perhaps most well-known for the intricate marbled tombs that cover the entirety of its floor. Each is sealed with a granite slab with intricate mosaics and inlays depicting the life and exploits of the IANISAAR (the equivalent of a knight) champion that is entombed within.

It is a great honour in Venthir to have a loved one buried within this cathedral and the families of these fallen champions are afforded certain citizenship rights, elevating them in status within the capital.

JANISSARY: Mil. Rnk. Generic term used for types of gunners who use long barrelled rifles. Specific examples include the CAVAKHI of KARAKHAS and the JANISAARS of VENTHIR.

JARAMORA: (B. c. 3700 RM) Pol. HARÉSHKI Prince, exiled for genocide in ALAMUT c. 3750 RM. Somehow, he survives in a ruined tower outside VÂRR known as the JARAMORAN TOWER.

JARAMORAN TOWER: Rui. Ruined tower located in the north east of RHAMIA, though it was once part of THE OLD FOREST. The tower is populated by the ALAMUTI exile JARAMORA.

JARED OF PACHOMIA: (B. c. 3960 RM) Mys. LIDEAN mystic of some notoriety, rose to power in the city of GASHA, though he was born in PACHOMIA^(2.).

JARRA: 1. Geo. Rocky verdant region in the east of NAARETH, known for its apiarists and honey-production.

2. Set. Settlement in the above region in the east of NAARETH. It is known for its apiarists and honey (Pop. c. 8,200).

IAS: Set. Coastal settlement in the west of JURRAS^(2.). Its primary industry is the production of food, much of which is transported to KETHRA in the south east (Pop. c. 5,800).

JAT RAZDA: 1. Geo. Region in the west of THE SURRACH, in the north west of SAMMAEA. Once a fertile shallow sea, it was one of the first recorded coastal regions in ELYDEN to dry up in c. 2000 RM. It is now a harsh place, renowned for its many salt-flats, cracked land and horsetail-like cacti. Its people are decent and hard-working. Its southern coast is populated by strange idols known as the DUSKHEADS, due to their large carved faces that face west across the SEA OF ESCHATA: a reminder of an ancient time and the people that once populated the region.

2. Set. Coastal city in the eponymous region, known for its harbours (Pop. c. 86,000).

JATAFF HAMAQA IV: (B. 3810 RM) Oth. HALFBLOOD of the JAHINN DYNASTY^(2.) and current ruler of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT.

JATAIR: 1. Sea. Small lagoon off the north eastern coast of ESHIR^(2.) 875-miles. As 'recently' as 300 years ago the sea level was of a height that did not require the distinction of a separate name, but continued diminishing

- of the GULF OF ESHIRON has seen it become almost completely cut off from the sea. Already, its waters are growing saltier than those of the surrounding seas and within a few decades it is likely to become completely cut off from the sea, after which it will dwindle, leaving behind a salty basin.
- 2. Set. Small coastal city in the north east of $\underline{\text{ESHIR}}^{(2)}$, overlooking the above lagoon. Its main industry is clam and mussel harvesting (Pop. c. 18,000).
- JATTAI: Set. City in the west of KHITAI. Its main industry is the mining of flint (Pop. c. 34,000).
- JAVAM TORT: Set. Fortified settlement in the north west of CHEIRA, close to the border with PNESSA (Pop. c. 7,000).
- JAVANDIR: Set. Fortified coastal city in the south east of ESHIR^(2.), along the course of the GHASTI (Pop. c. 40,200).
- JAVATA SAT: Set. Settlement in the north west of CHEIRA (Pop. c. 5,500).
- JAYAKAN: Com. Set. Trade city in the north east of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES. The city maintains good relations with SUOR (Pop. c. 45,000).
- IAZIBAL: Sec. Small coastal city in the south east of ZHARIAH⁽²⁾. It is the hub of the UMBRA mining industry in the region of ABBI DA'AD, exporting umbra by sea and pumping it overland (Pop. c. 15,000).
- IAZKIA: 1. Geo. Wide, relatively flat region, in the far north of THE SURRACH to the south. of GAUL. It is one of the more densely inhabited parts of the north of the Surrach, largely due to the fertile nature of its clay-like soils. The city of SUDA is amongst the most notable in the region.
 2. Set. City in the above region, and one of the first major cities in the northern-most reaches of the IVORY ROAD in the north of THE SURRACH. It is fortified and maintains large caravanserais and trade yards where merchants trade their wares (Pop. c. 41,000).
- IEBED DHUSH: Rvr. River in the south of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT, flowing for over 1,000-miles north from various sources, before meeting its parent, the river NEPHILA.
- IEDETHEN II: (B. 2578 ?) Pol. His. the last king of RAMIS, whose rule saw the collapse of the kingdom in c. 2630 RM. Little is known of the events leading up to the fall of Ramis or his fate, for most records of the period were expunged by the ADHERAN people.
- IEHADA: Lake in the JAHADAT STATES, in the east of SAMMAEA, along the course of the river SYASHAN. The Jahadat States take their name from the lake as many of their first cities were founded close by, as it was one of few reliable permanent sources of fresh water in the region.
- JEHAH: Set. Small town in the east of VENTHIR. It emerged from a minor settlement where in 2926 RM ST. BAEL witnessed an EXORCISM, following which pilgrims slowly came to the region, leading to its growth (Pop. c. 8,000).
- IEHENNA: Set. Geo. City and region in the PRISON CARCERI, thought to lie beneath the nation of CISNERIA in the BLACK MOUNTAINS. Little is known about the city despite its notoriety, and many scholars have come to doubt its existence entirely, though Cisnerian mountain men swear by the noises they hear in the region at night, as well as the shadowy figures they see at night, who they claim are ROPOHAII searching for people to take back to the underworld (Pop. unknown).
- IEHORIEL: Rvr. Slow-moving river in the west of GNOTH, flowing for 450-miles north from sources in ELAMIZ and MESHABAR ridges, before reaching the AEARN Wetlands.
- IEL FARRAN: Int. Arc. Obelisk in the salt desert of SLAAN in the east of ANUBIA. It is carved from a single crystal block, and the fossilised remains of a strange humanoid creature is entombed within. Some itinerants travel to the site to observe the corpse, laying their hands on its distended skull. SHAPERS who come near it are said to feel a great sorrow and loss. This may be related to the area being a powerful FIR. LEY marker.
- JEL HARATH: Rvr. River in the south of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT in the north west of SAMMAEA, forming part of the border with SATHAII. It flows for 280-miles east from sources in the DAHAAMAAN Mountains before meeting its parent, the river JEBED DHUSH.

IELEDIR: Set. Coastal settlement in the east of ESHIR⁽²⁾. Its main industry is sponging, and sponges collected here find their way along trade routes across northern SAMMAEA and as far as the INNER SEA REGION (Pop. c. 5,800).

JELLY RAIN: see RAIN, JELLY.

- JEMMAHALA: (B. 3967) Pol. Princess and ruler of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT. She inherited the throne of Sepahaunat in 3982 RM, following the death of her father, HAZAROT.
- JENDAYA MET: f. Pol. Per. (B. 3769 D. 3876 RM) The first dynastic PHAROANT of a newly independent KHAMID following the abandonment of the region by KORACHANI DOMNITORS in 3781 RM. Already an influential and loved political figure in Khamid, she was elected as the second Pharoant of the Republic Council in 3788 RM and quickly manipulated the intent of the constitution to her own ends, and by the end of her term in 3795 RM she was not only able to remain in power as Pharoant, but also corrupted the council (now known as the PHAROANT COUNCIL) to become subservient to her. She founded a new dynastic monarchy, becoming its first absolute ruler. Her line continues to rule Khamid to this day, and the present Pharoant, MESSIT SABAH III is her great-great-great-great-great-great-granddaughter.
- JERICHA: Rui. Expansive ruined citadel in the south east of the HENDECARCHY of DERAEIA, in MALAN, in the region known as the FIELDS OF JERICHA. It is heavily overgrown and little of the structure itself of which much remains is visible beneath the intrusive vines, trees, mosses, and bushes that now cover it.
- JERICHA, FIELDS OF: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region in the south east of the HENDECARCHY of DERAEIA in the east of MALAN, overlooking the USTARIAN cliffs beyond which lies TETHYSIA.
 - It is the site of an ancient battle, and the remains fossilised husks of ancient machinery are now embedded in the bedrock, protruding like the skeletons of dead creatures. The place is shunned by Malani people. It is named after the ruins of a nearby citadel. The place was once home to a caste of scavengers who lived on the waste of the ancient battle, but their numbers have now waned, though it remains home to a few itinerant scavengers to this day.
- JERIDA: Sea. Bay off the northern coast of KARGAMA, forming a part of the SEA OF ORRIDA.
- JEROLAMÉ GRIMACH: (B. 1753 1814 RM) KORACHANI architect born in DEOCHAN who is best remembered for his sprawling fountain dedicated to THE TRIPTYCH, that is located in KHADON, close to the BASTION OF STEEL.
- $\underline{\textbf{JERR}} : 1. \ \textit{Geo.} \ \textbf{Barrier island} \ off the north western-coast of} \ \underline{\textbf{TATAR}}, guarding \\ entrance into the \ \underline{\textbf{IGUZZEN}} \ \textbf{Lagoon}.$
- 2. Dem. 'Jerreni'. Set. City on the eponymous island. It is known for its corsairs, who are in a loose alliance with the TATARAN government. Tataran merchants are theoretically exempt from being preyed on by the corsairs and are granted right of first refusal on Jerreni plunder, and the corsairs are in turn ignored by the Tataran navy and are allowed to use their ports (Pop. c. 70,000).
- IET: Ele. 'False' gemstone produced from ancient decomposed wood that has had pressure applied to it over vast lengths of time. It is found almost exclusively in OSSIEL in the west of MENISCEA, in the expansive cliff system of AGAPH, where it has been mined for centuries, producing over 95% of the jet that is found in ELYDEN.
- IETARA: Sec. Fortified city in the far south east of JURRAS⁽²⁾, overlooking the GIBBORAH PASS into KARAKHAS. The city maintains mercantile relations with KARAKHAS and is known for its storage yards and markets (Pop. c. 20,000).
- IETHA: Set. Fortified coastal city in the north of the PARTHISAN colony of ABDAKROS^(1.) on the island of IRUGNA^(1.). It is located at the innermost point of the BAY OF SARMIS (Pop. c. 24,500).
- JETHEONDEN: also 'the Cursed Pit'. Int. Geo. Massive open-cast mine in the far north of DURCHAA^(1.), in the permafrost of CHATHADHAA. The pit was a major source of coal, and was in operation from c. 2200 2752 RM. Contact with the pit was lost in 2748 RM and when relief workers and slaves arrived there weeks later to replace the workers who had been there for 6-months, they found the pit abandoned, its machinery untouched, with no trace of the previous workers to be found. The only 'evidence' if such it can be called, was a pile of overalls, boots, gloves and mining helmets corresponding with the number of workers – over 200 – that were reported missing. No reason for the disappearance was found and the next years of the operation of the pit were plagued by accidents and eerie happenings, all leading to its abandonment in 2752 RM, with the official reason given being decreased yields.

JEWEL IN THE DESERT, the: see SAMMOM.

- JEYRAN: Set. Fortified settlement in the west of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES. Its main industry is copper mining and the settlement is overlooking a very large open cast mine, with part of it spilling down the south eastern edge of the mine (Pop. c. 10,000).
- IEZABEL SHARAHAB, SCOURGE OF PARTHIS: (B. 3891 RM) Mor. Sup. Able-bodied DEGENERATE and powerful ATRAMENTAL SHAPER. Discarded as an abomination when born, she survived and sought reprisal from those who would have had her dead. Her life unnaturally long, she wanders around the KORACHANI EMPIRE, moving from settlement to settlement, eking out her twisted version of justice upon those who would persecute and condemn her kind. She travels on a small AMBULANT, her broken body melded to it at the waist, UMBILICALS and biomechana connecting to her horribly scarred body.
- IEZEBETH OF APTERIA: (B. c. 3200 RM) Pol. Governor-PATRICIAN of APTERIA. She is a 1st generation PYRRAN HALFBLOOD, who rose to power in 3792 RM, becoming the governor of GÂTHA in 4006 RM.
- JHADDAQ: Ind. Set. Major food production centre in the far north of THE SURRACH, 120-miles north of the IVORY ROAD. It is known for its many fortified homesteads and the arable land that each possesses, where much of the food consumed in the north of the Surrach (Pop. c. 10,000).
- JHALOSS: Geo. Highlands in the c north of MALAN, dominating the west of the HENDECARCHY of HATON. Its western reaches are known for their jade deposits, which have been worked for millennia.
- JHAPARA: Geo. Mountain-range in the c of SUOR.
- JHEPHRIN: Geo. Island in the c of the MAIDEN ISLES, off the south eastern coast of MENISCEA.
- IHESRAT YAN: Mil. Str. Pylon-like concrete fortress built upon a small APE sinkhole in the far north of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES. The fortress was constructed in c. 3750 RM to keep the nightmare creatures spawned in the DREAMSCAPE at away from the surface world.
- JHORA HIL: Set. Coastal settlement in the south west of the nation of PERGOST. Its main industry is whaling (Pop. c. 15,000).
- JIANNA: Geo. Hills in the south west of RAONGEN^(2.), forming the south eastern foothills of the CHIAVALLE Mountains.
- IIBOSK: Set. Coastal city in the far south east of the HENDECARCHY of HATON in the c north of MALAN. Its main industry is fishing, and it has a large port where trade ships from other northern Hendecarchies bring goods for trade (Pop. c. 42,000).
- IIBRA Set. Mercantile city in the c north of ESHIR^(2.), along the main national overland trade-route. It provides lodging to travellers and caravanserais for merchants and is bustling with activity (Pop. c. 45,000).
- JIDASON: Set. Coastal settlement in the south west of KREM (Pop. c. 4.200).
- JIDKA: 1. Sea. Long narrow bay in the north west of SAMMAEA, off the western-coast of SEPAHAUNAT, in the SEA OF BATYAE.
 - 2. Set. Coastal metropolis in the west of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT, in the north west of SAMMAEA, overlooking the SEA OF BATYAE, at the base of the Sepahaunati peninsula. The city is known for its catamarans and its exotic cuisine, which consists of many delicacies and exotic fruits imported from the east of MENISCEA. Its primary industry is metalworking and it has multiple manufactories dedicated to various aspects of metallurgy (Pop. c. 500,000).
- JIRAIDA: Set. Coastal settlement in the east of ESHIR⁽²⁾. Its main industry is sponging, and sponges collected here find their way along trade routes across northern SAMMAEA and as far as the INNER SEA REGION (Pop. c. 7,300).

- JIRAIR: 1. Sea. Bay in the south east of ESHIR^(2.). Once known for its narrow length and deep waters, it has slowly shrunk over the past centuries, leaving it, being on average no more than 2-miles wide.
 - 2. Set. Major coastal city in the south west of ESHIR⁽²⁾. It is the terminus of a large national overland trade-route that begins over 700-miles to the north west in ISHKAR. The city was once located on a small island within the Bay of Jirair⁽¹⁾, but dwindling se levels saw it become part of the mainland in c. 3800 RM, and engineering works have been a constant for half a millennium, ensuring that its port remains linked to the sea (Pop. c. 87,200).
- JIRIDUN: Dem. 'Jiriduni'. Geo. Native name of the island in the c east of the SEA OF ORRIDA that is now more widely-known as OD MEGINNAS (1.) following its colonisation by PARTHISAN PATRICIAN HOUSES in c. 3480 RM
- JIRIDUNI: Lan. Language of the island-nation of OD MEGINNAS^(1.). Its roots lie in the native tongue of the JIRIDUNI people, which has a basis in the ancient LASCAR^(4.) tongue.
- JIRRA: Set. Coastal city in the north east of ESHIR⁽²⁾, overlooking the BAY OF ESHIR⁽¹⁾ and guarding passage in and out of its waters. It is famed for its large port, which is a hub of trade, serving as the entry point for most foreign trade into continental Eshir. In c. 2310 RM it became a base to the SEEKERS OF THE STONE, and remained a stronghold to them until their disbanding in 3202 RM (Pop. c. 180,000).
- IIVAD: Rel. Str. Monastery in the east of EASTERN LARISH. Home to monks and priests since c. 3200 RM, the settlement was constructed around a FIRMAMENTALLY-ACTIVE lake whose waters were renowned for their magnetic properties and purported curative properties. Though it has been revered as a holy site by faithful of the FIRMAMENTAL philosophies for centuries and has been a goal of pilgrims for just as long, many of those who repeatedly visit its shores find their bodies afflicted by sores akin to burns. Many see these stigmata as a sign of their faith.
- JOAPHASAR: His. Set. Mid FIFTH AGE nation that was destroyed in a botched act of HEXCRAFT in 2921 RM. Embroiled in a war with CEHOPHELA that it was losing and desperate for a means of victory, it resorted to a great ritual of HEXCRAFT, which was intended to debilitate its foes in Cehophela. Instead, the ritual backfired, leading to the complete obliteration of the capital of IRIUD, the destruction of surrounding farmlands, and the death of most of its population, with the remnants left deformed and maddened.
- Today its territories form part of the south western wastes of Cehophela, and they are largely forgotten, its twisted people hunted as vermin. See Vol III: Extinct States.
- IOCAETH: Geo. Mountain-range in the south of AETHIOS, stretching north for 325-miles from the border with RHINOCOLOURA.
- JOSALA: Set. Small city in the north of KREM, along the southern-face of the ARGENT Mountains (Pop. c. 13,000).
- IOCENT: Sec. Fortified settlement in the far south east of LYRIDIA, around 20-miles west of the border with TAMAR. The settlement trades with the fortress-city of KAHREN and HRAEFANA (Pop. c. 4,500).
- JODDA: Set. Fortified settlement in the region of MOLOCH in the west of THE SURRACH. It is known for its single large iron mine that employs half of its populace, and for its large ironworks (Pop. c. 20,000).
- IODOPHI: Geo. Region in the c north of DURCHAA^(1.), known for its fantastical lattice-like stone formations. Large parts of the region are known for their unstable DUSTSTONE formations, making travel there difficult.
- JOHAMGHANA: Set. Small settlement in the west of PERGOST, along the course of the river ARANDARA (Pop. c. 5,000).
- JOK HALLAR: Set. Major city in the c south of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT, at a fork where the river JEBED DHUSH meets the river NEPHILA. It is the centre of the church of SYBARR and is home to seven IDOLONS, which are guardians of the city. As a COMING-OF-AGE RITUAL amongst the city's youth, they are given the choice of picking one of the idolons as their patrons. It is also home to a large university where young ZAMINDARS study (Pop. c. 175,000).

JOLA: Geo. Highlands in the c north east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, forming a border between the tribes of ROASI in the north and SUUR'KA in the south.

IOLASH: Sca. Gulf in the south of DANU, in the south west of WESTERN MENISCEA. The narrow strait at the opening of the gulf is guarded by the capital city, LARACH.

IOLIADRA: Set. City in the c north west of SABAISA. It is located very close to the border with the south west of PORPHYR. Though it is known to trade north, it is not a mercantile city (Pop. c. 50,000).

JONESAL: Rel. Geo. Holy land in the north west of EREBETH.

IONIA: Int. Rui. Wooden-hulled ship now wrecked and located 160-miles from the coast in central OPHIUSSA. The ship was a famed galleon of the Ophiussan league, which ran aground in c. 2900 RM and was abandoned following irreversible damage to its hull. The waning levels of the Sea of Snakes led to it becoming landlocked, and it remains to this day, a marker to those travelling the Ophiussan trade-routes.

IONORO COMNEAS: PELASGOSI naturalist who travelled to the east of LLACHATUL between 1212 – 1239 RM, who described many endemic animals in details, bringing his drawings and writings back to Pelasgos in 1239 RM.

IONORO'S GHARIAL: Fau. Relative of the CROCODILE that lives in the south east of LLACHATUL, in freshwater wetlands in IACIO, SURUTUR and, less commonly, in RHEA. They largely subsist on fish, and can be a danger to farming and river traffic. They have bulbous glands behind their jaws that are ATRAMENTAL 'filters', making them resistant to ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED lands, which makes them common in such regions as they tend to have an advantage over fauna. Their bite is Atramentally-laced, and any prey that is not killed by them is likely to contract a wasting Atramental DISEASE not unlike AEPATHY that eventually kills them. As a result, Jonoro's gharials are also scavengers, living on the decayed remains of such animals.

They are named after the PELASGOSI naturalist JONORO COMNEAS, who was the first KORACHANI person to describe them in c. 1220 RM. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

JORANA: Geo. Island in the KORACHANI colony of UKOBACHAN, in the SEA OF ERENEA. The entire island is covered by the ATRAMENTAL EXPANSE known as BOS LEGYNURA.

JORDALLA: Geo. Region in the c-south east of THE SURRACH controlled by the city of ZARRI ZAKIR.

IORIN VALAIS: m. Per. (B. 3851 RM) High-ranking member of the VÁMAN

ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION. Venerable, he is remembered for his steadfast defence during the Siege of Ironhold, where he held the line against overwhelming odds, has made him a symbol of unwavering loyalty and courage within the order. He is respected today and remains as a celebrated councilmember, serving as an advisor to GRANDMASTER is HIMMILCAR FERDOUS.

IORINDHIA: His. Nm. Ancient splendid empire in the north of MENISCEA. Possibly dating to the mid FOURTH AGE, it was thought to encompass most of what is now the north east of MENISCEA, and was an empire of ILLIDRAEN, IFIRMIANS, GIGANRI and SEITHIN, most of which were slaughtered during the WAR OF SCOURGING. Some of its ruins survive to this day, but most of its great structures were toppled by the forces of the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL, their very foundations shattered.

Today, the territories of eastern CEHOPHELA, most of IMEAL, western ARERAQTH and north western XYRPHAAT⁽³⁾ stand on its ancient lands, though their people share no kinship with their distant ancestors, and know little of this period of ancient history. See Vol III: Extinct States.

 $\underline{\text{JOROLAA}}\text{: }\textit{Set.} \text{ Settlement in the c of }\underline{\text{DURCHAA}}^{(1.)} \text{ (Pop. c.6,000)}.$

JORRAN DANATH: m. Per. (B. 3926 rm) High-ranking member of the GRIGORIAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION.

He is one of few HIGH QUAESTORS within the Order and is charged with the vigil of LAASKHA, where he coordinates Grigorian agents in their investigations. A masterful spy, he is believed to have allies across the empire and beyond, with some whispering that he even has agents secreted within the most despised terrorist organisations across the INNER SEA REGION.

IORSHU: Geo. A natural shallow basin in the SYNHODOS plateau in JURRAS^(2.), in which stand dozens of tarnished iron GODSTONES. Ignored by the KORACHANI EMPIRE, the statues remain to this day, their once uniform surfaces now tarnished and oxidised beyond hope of recognition, the land about them orange with rust.

JORYLESYL: Set. Coastal settlement in the south east of OKKHAM, to the east of the peninsula of KHURSAE. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 5,000).

JOSEM: Rui. Abandoned manufactory, 35-miles north of HELLOS, in the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS.

IOSHKA II: (2733 – 2789 RM) Pol. His. Queen of the FLUN-SANDRA SOVEREIGNTY in AHRISHEN. She is remembered for formally dividing the kingdom into baronies, and for stripping the titles off many of the landed gentry, which saw a large degree of social upheaval, but which is now considered as a masterstroke and which served the kingdom well going ahead. She is also remembered for embracing industrialisation and initiated a push to spread the many canals of Ahrishen to its newly-industrialised regions, linking them together in a network that is still used today.

IOUKIR: Geo. Coastal hills in the north of ESHIR⁽²⁾, south of the Bay of Eshir⁽¹⁾. As recently as c. 3000 RM, the hills formed a long peninsula that stretched north east for 180-miles, separating the Bay of Eshir in the north west from the Gulf of GULF OF ESHIRON to the south east, which then reached around 150-miles farther west along the coast of Eshir than it does today.

JOURNAL OF THE LEAGUE OF EXPLORERS: see LEAGUE OF EXPLORERS, JOURNAL OF THE.

IOVA: Mil. Str. Major GIGANRI fortress in the east of GNOTH, facing south and guarding the border with AQUARIIA.

JOVAR: Set. Small coastal city in the east of KARGAMA (Pop. c. 15,000).

JOZETHAR: Set. Settlement in the c of south eastern VÂRR, famed one of the best producers of lime-chew (EKHUN) in the nation (Pop. c. 4,400)

IUDGE: 1. Law. Rnk. High-ranking position in the law-enforcement of the KORACHANI EMPIRE.

- 2. Rel. Rnk. In the KORACHANI EMPIRE, a rank within the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, comparable to the confessors of other faiths. Their role is to hear confessions of the faithful and determine if they are guilty of defiling the name of the UNDYING MACHINE. Those found guilty are sent to the QUESIANS to receive their judgement.
- 3. Pol. Rnk. Rulers of PELASGOS during the JUDICIARY AGE.
- 4. Pol. Rnk. The seven elected rulers of the UNIVERSITY the governing body of KAZZAR.

JUDICIARY AGE: Pol. His. Historical age in PELASGOS that followed the Neolithic period of the early FIFTH AGE, lasting from c. -300 – 73 RM. In many ways, this was the first iteration of true civilisation in Pelasgos and was similar to most Iron Age cultures, though the prevalence of a unified system of laws, enforcing personal ownership and rights of commoners made it ahead of many other regions during the time. The ANAXIN ruled over a republic of JUDGES(3-) who passed laws and enforced them. Through their influence the old worship of fertility and bird goddesses diminished, replaced by the cult of MITRA.

JUIYA: Mil. Pol. Str. Customs office and fortress in the west of RAONGEN⁽²⁾, close to the border with THE VORANDINE. It sees much traffic pass through it and most land trade from the Vorandine enters Raongen through here.

IUNASH: Set. City on the island of KILAWADA in FALLAROUR, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 46,000).

JUNCTA: also 'the Fungus Depths'. Int. Geo. Expansive subterranean fungus growth in hollows beneath the southern face of the CARCAENT Mountains in the far north east of the HENDECARCHY of STHAMAN in the c of MALAN. Juncta covers an area of thousands of square miles of caves and chasms, and lands it occupies are characterised by a thick spongy carpet of golden moss-like growth that invasively covers everything, including other flora in the region. It is believed by IMPERIAL scholars that the fungus is a single organism. If so, it is likely the largest living thing in ELYDEN.

JUPITER BELUS: 1. Mil. Str. Large fortress built around a classical tower in the GHALLETHA in the south of NÁRTHEL, just north of the border with SARASTRO. It was once a place of religious importance within the KORACHANI EMPIRE, though it has since been largely forgotten, populated by a skeleton crew of wardens and the so-called Priest-regent of Jupiter Belus, a hereditary title, the bearer of whom controls all land within 40-miles of the tower.

2. Rel. Imperial saint.

JURADHA: Set. Fortified settlement in the south east of JURRAS⁽²⁾, in the GIBBORAH Mountains (Pop. c. 8,000).

JURASAMA YETZIRAH: His. Rel. Pol. Per. One of three HE'ELAN ARCHDUKES of the BRORI^(1,) nation of GREST^(1,) and the eldest of her line, able to trace her ancestry back some 3 millennia to the ruler of the DALLIAMORAAN empire – ORIAS YETZIRAH, himself a powerful scion of indeterminate origin.

Little is known of her early life or her intermediate ancestors, but she founded the first HE'ELAN CULT in the city of NEYEM in c. 3300 RM, where she put in motion a long-term plan to make Grest her own. The cult studied the ancient forbidden Dalliamoraan texts known as the He'elan Writings, which condoned occultist activity and collusion with Otherworldly SPIRITS^(1,) in the pursuit of material gain before being abolished by Orias Yetzirah millennia ago. The Writings spread slowly yet steadily across Grest and within a few centuries most major cities had a cult lurking in the shadows, influencing events. During this time Jurasama made contact with two other descendants of Orias – ARA and IEBESH YETZIRAH — who together form the ruling caste of Grest, known as the He'elan Archdukes. Grest was divided into three territories — known as MANSIONS — with Ara ruling the northern Mansion of FURFUR^(1,), Iebesh ruling the southern Mansion of SITRI^(1,), and Jurasama ruling the main Mansion of Grest^(2,).

Jurasama moved the main cell of the cults from Neyem to $\underline{\text{SCELD}}$, where she orchestrated the downfall of the $\underline{\text{NULUM}}$ dynasty in 3781 RM, which culminated with the deposing of the monarchy and the elevation of the Archdukes to positions of power in Grest. The cults emerged from the shadows across the nation, ousting what governments had survived the death of the monarchy, bringing most of the land under the yoke of the Archdukes.

Jurasama and her peers instilled the populace with their occultist beliefs, rapidly corrupting the nation to a land of fanatical zealots beholden to dark teachings, whose leaders subjugated spirits known as DAIMONS to their twisted causes. She rules today as first amongst equals, holding Grest tightly within her iron grasp.

JURAT: Pol. Soc. Middle rank within the UNIVERSITY – the governing body of KAZZAR, who serve beneath the JUDGES⁽⁴⁾ as municipal officers who are granted titles and land to rule over upon their election, which take place every seven years. Outside of scandal, it is customary for Jurats to be elected for multiple consecutive terms.

JURIA: 1. Geo. Badlands in the LLURAN WASTES in the south of JURRAS⁽²⁾, characterised by narrow tall stone pillars that give the impression of a stone forest.

2. Set. City in the south of JURRAS^(2.), in the eponymous badlands region^(1.).

JURISI: Mil. Str. eastern-most of twin fortresses guarding the BAY OF
DEOCHAN and the river KHAD in the west of KORACHAN.

JURISI BRIDGE: Arc. A stone bridge with three spans totalling a length of around 200 ft. in the west of KORACHAN near the fortresses of JURISI. When constructed in 2089 RM it was coastal though the lowering of ELYDEN'S seas has left it some 200 miles from the coast.

It was designed by the famed engineer KORNELIUS MAGRIZAAR and remains intact and in daily use – a fitting testament to his engineering skills.

JURISPRUDENT: Pol. Rnk. 1. Historical ruling title of the ancient ELITAGRI FEDERATION, elected by eligible candidates who were typically diplomats and plutocrats from various cities across the Federation. The rank was abandoned following the rise of the $\underline{\text{KARGEMMAN}}$ $\underline{\text{MONARCHY}}$ in 1682 RM, but was later revived following the monarchy's abolishment in 2809 RM.

2. Chairperson of the United Assembly of Kargama, elected from eligible candidates from the Order of Witnesses. The Assembly was introduced in 2703 RM by the Kargemman Monarchy to act as a war council during a time of conflict with the Korachani empire during the Ehrenisian Crusades. The Monarchy was abolished in 2809 RM and the position of Jurisprudent was reintroduced by the United Assembly.

The current Jurisprudent is BEM DRASTAS, who was elected in 4001 RM.

JURRAS: 1. Geo. Mountains in the south east of JURRAS(2), forming the western-most reaches of the SYNHODOS MASSIF.

2. Dem. 'Jurrassi'. Ntn. Situated in the north of SAMMAEA, Jurras has a long history of subjugation under both KORACHAN (beginning in 403 RM) and PARTHIS, the latter of which is its current suzerain.

It is built atop territories that once belonged to two disparate FOURTH AGE cultures – SAMMON in the north and KARTHAN in the south. The FADING of the Fourth Age eventually gave birth to a new culture, known as SAMARIA, which dominated lands east of the SYNHODOS Massif^(1.), though it too faltered by around 200 RM. Many ruins of all these past cultures dot the countryside, many of which have been reappropriated for mundane tasks by a populace that knows not their previous purpose.

A vassal of Parthis since 3703 RM, Jurras was for millennia a territory of the Korachani empire, which abandoned it to its caretakers, the INTERREGES, in 3143 RM, after many of its natural resources had been exhausted and the cost of governing the region became too costly. The Interreges were overthrown in 3167 RM, after which Jurras became independent for the first since its founding.

Since its vassalage to Parthis, Jurras has become a centre of Sarastroan intelligence, with many Parthisan military outposts and centres based there. These specialise in disrupting their neighbours' actions (particularly Korachan and ALMAGEST), with the intent of sowing discord and destabilising governments to the benefit of Parthis. This role only grew following the outbreak of the WAR OF SUNDERING, and though Jurras and its parent maintained a veneer of political neutrality, it was secretly providing aid to Sarastroan allies via third parties and untraceable civil parties.

Today, Jurras is known for its dual powers – the Jurrasi SYNHOD, which serves as religious leaders in its worship of ancient iron statues known as the GODSTONES⁽²⁾; and its government, the TETRARCHY. So ubiquitous and powerful is the Jurrasi Synhod, that many outsiders mistake it for the governing body – an easy error to make, given that its structure is nearly identical to that of a monarchy. Despite this, the Synhod remains extremely influential, with enough power to force the Tetrarchy into a vote on the fate of one of its members, should the Synhodic Dynasty so desire.

Jurras is also known for its well-disciplined ARBITRATORS – a policing force with roots in the early Jurrasi state that predated the appearance of Korachan in the area. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

3. Rui. Ruined city in the south west of the vassal nation of JURRAS^(2.). It emerged in c. 200 RM after the appearance over the last centuries of various competing tribes that settled the vacuum left by the failed culture of Samaria and the abandonment of its capital in SAMARIS. Founded by idealistic lawmakers, Jurras rapidly became a metropolis and by c. 350 RM it has a population of around 100,000 bodies, and it was beginning it exert its influence over surrounding lands, bringing many of the tribes under its banner.

This unification of the land was cut short by the arrival of KORACHAN late in the fourth century RM. In 403 RM the city of Jurras was destroyed following a year-long siege, and the rest of the land was put under Korachani rule from the city of Samaria, which was renamed HAROSHETH.

Jurras was never resettled and its ruin now lies scant miles north of the major road linking the present capital of Kethra with Harosheth

This period lasted until 3143 RM, when the INTERREGES were left there. They were deposed in 3167 RM, and the region enjoyed a relatively short-lived period of independence.

JURRASI: Lan. Language that was spoken by the people of JURRAS⁽²⁾ prior to its subjugation by the KORACHANIEMPIRE early in the FIFTH AGE. The language was descended from the earlier SAMARIAN language, which itself was descended from SAMMONISH.

Jurrasi was slowly supplanted by KORACHANI after millennia under the yoke of the KORACHANI EMPIRE. It survives in a corrupted form today, where it is spoken in rural areas, slums and tenements across Jurras, though it is not recognised in an official capacity. See Vol II: Languages.

JUSDARHANA: Set. Small city in the south east of PERGOST in the region of MENNOM, along the east of lake FAISA.

JUSIYAN: Set. Small city in the c north west of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES (Pop. c. 14,200).

JUSSULANA: Sea. Sea off the north western coast of BROR^(1.), between the island of IRUGNA^(1.) and the nations of ISESETH, SABOMOR, CANNOS, and Bror^(2.).

IUSSULANAN WESTERLIES: Wea. Prevailing winds in the north western nations of Bror^(1.), to the north west of the LAHAED Mountains, including ISESETH, SABOMOR, CANNOS, and Bror^(2.). The winds are warm and moist and bring cooling rains in late Summer and Autumn in particular.

JUSTAKAR: Set. Settlement in the c of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES. It is a major manufacturer of food in the region (Pop. c. 8,000).

IUSTICIAR: Mil. Rnk. Org. High-ranking judicial officers within the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION, who preside over trials and investigations, and which are superior to COMPURGISTS.

They have the authority to pass judgement and administer punishment to those found guilty of corruption and are amongst the most respected members within the Order. They are most common in the ARÂTHUAHI ORDER, though can be found in all Orders.

JUTAR: Set. settlement in the east of KHULL, in the region of Naxar. Its main industry is the quarrying of fine granite that is used in architecture (Pop. c. 5,200).

JUVARE: Set. Settlement in the south of KARGAMA. Its main industry is the training of falcons, which are used across Kargama to keep its city squares free of vermin (Pop. c. 3,700).

K

K'LESSA: Set. Settlement in the south of N'RAKH (Pop. unknown).

K'SIBBA: Sct. Fortified city in the east of J'THANA, close to the border with SIRIPHAGOS. It is known for its trade with Siriphagos, and it forms part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 20,000).

K'SENA: Geo. Pumice canyons covering a 150-mile stretch of the course of the river SHIBBOLETH^(3,) in the c west of N'RAKH. The region is noteworthy for its many white-water rapids and waterfalls and the verdant crown atop the sheer pumice banks.

K'TALFA: Set. Small city in N'RAKH, where the river J'SABA meets its parent, the river SHIBBOLETH^(3,) (Pop. c. 20,000).

KAADA: His. Ntn. Ancient nation in the east of present-day VAALK. It emerged as the eponymous city of Kaada in c. -1000 RM following the FADING of the FOURTH AGE, though by c. -900 its cultural influence had grown, expanding west towards the ARIS Mountains, covering some 250,000 square-miles at its largest extent. By c. -450 RM it collapsed, following protracted conflict with AATI degenerates in the south. Following its demise, its dependencies fragmented into independent city-states, from which the ULLUASHI culture later emerged.

KAALA: Set. Settlement in the north of CHTHYRID, along the southern bank of the river NOTHA. It controls many settlements to its south, along the scree at the base of the DAGHA plateau, who mine its riches (Pop. c. 17,500).

KAAPAN: Geo. Island off the southern coast of LAASKHA. The east part of the island, known as the ZEONAN MALEDICTION, is ATRAMENTALLY CORRUPTED, and the island is, for the most part, ignored.

KAARAFFAR: Geo. Scrub plains in the south of LAASKHA, north of the LARSIS and EDASK basins. The region is relatively fertile and is home to the most farmlands in all of Laaskha. The region is sparsely wooded to the north.

KAARAKUN: Geo. Mountain in the c north of VAALK, forming a border along the south east of the SOSOTHOT peninsula for 250-miles.

KAARAPARR: Rvr. Large river in the west of LAASKHA, flowing south for 460-miles from the southern-face of the CAALUA Mountain. The river is commonly divided into two parts – the Upper Kaaraparr, which comprises the first 300-miles of the river and is slow-moving and winding, particularly across the KAARAFFAR; and the Lower Kaaraparr, which comprises the 160-miles following the confluence with the river SAMAPAR at the FALLS OF KAAR.

KAARRA: Ind. Set. ALUMINIUM quarry in eastern VAALK, in the north east of the SICHAAL formation (Pop. c. 4,800).

KAATH: 1. Geo. Island off the southern coast of THETIS. It is around 6,000 square-miles and is characterised by highlands in the east, which slopes gently to the lowlands of the west. It is largely uninhabited and covered in subtropical woodland that is for the most part virginal. It has one major settlement⁽²⁾.

2. Set. Coastal settlement in the south west of the eponymous island⁽¹⁾, off the south east coast of THETIS. It is the only major settlement on the isle of Kaath (Pop. c. 8,300).

KABAK: Set. Coastal city in the north west of TARTAK (Pop. c. 8,200).

KABAKKA: Mil. Str. Fortress in the c of AZAZEM belonging to the KNIGHTS FERROUS.

KABBARA: also 'the Chanting Prison'. Law. Str. Formidable granite prison in KARAKHAS, whose gaolers are known to be chanting shapers. It is notorious for its security, and as a result, many powerful individuals are incarcerated there, including the SCION BELPHETAR.

KABBARHAELA: Geo. Expansive region of permafrost in the north west of PERGOST, known to be one of few refuges to MAMMOTHS in LLACHATUL today.

KABBIR ELYRIA VI: (B. 3929) Pol. Present ARCHPATRICIAN of HOUSE ELYRIA and regent of TAMAR, in the name of SARASTRO.

KABILL: Set. City in the north of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in the south of MALAN. (Pop. c. 40,000).

KABIRA: For. Fertile sparsely wooded hills in the south west of GNOTH. The region is noted for the many rivers flowing east from the HABBAD RIDGE, forming steep valleys and verdant canyons leading east to the river PURUSA. The region is filled with many small independent KABIRI: Rel. Main religion in the nation of SURUTUR. It is a polytheism made up of seven deities, each embodying a different facet of creation.

It is thought by outside scholars that these deities have their roots in a various DEMIURGES, though their domains and tenets have changed considerably over time, rendering them largely unrecognizable from their original forms. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KABOSS: Set. Coastal island-settlement off the western-coast of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS (Pop. c. 8,700).

KABROU: Set. Small city in the west of PARAIYA (Pop. c. 12,000).

KABUKITABA: Set. Settlement in KARAKHAS, 20-miles south east of the capital in DEKANA. Its main industry is bookbinding, particularly using ANTHROPODERMY (human skin) on the covers. The practice is old and though few cities practice it today, it remains a healthy art in Kabukitaba, with many people from across Karakhas leaving their skin to the binders in their wills (though in most cases the skin is taken from executed criminals). It forms a part of both the RED ROUTE and the SALT ROAD, and as a result its books often find themselves for sale in disparate cities across the INNER SEA REGION and beyond (Pop. c. 7,200).

KACHAN: See. City in the south west of LYRIDIA DHAI, known for its shipyards (Pop. c. 13,700).

KADA SHAN: Rel. Dei. The dominant religion and deity of the nation of KHITAI, characterised by the worship of a large idol signifying material strength and sanctity. The idol takes the form of a great metal pillar – its surface dull, tarnished neither by time nor rust – located in the holy settlement of NALSHEN just 7-miles south west of the capital of GRATH. Scenes and legends from myth and unremembered history are acidetched in the pillar, claiming the entity known as Kada Shan to be one of many creator deities. Though never referenced as such, many claim that Kada Shan is thought to be one of the Two-and-Twenty DEMIURGES. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KADAIAR MADIAL: (B. c. 3900) Pol. Present ruler of SUMA'YA and head of the religious council of the CULT OF SACRIFICE.

KADANT: Set. Fortified city in the south of VALBAR⁽²⁾. It is a major industrial centre and is known for its powdergun production (Pop. c. 36,600).

KADARAN: Set. Small city in the c of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT, west of the JAHADAT STATES (Pop. c. 15,000).

KADDARA: Set. Settlement in the south east of GIBEAH (Pop. c. 6,300).

KADDRAS: Geo. Mountain-range in the south of the territories of ETHISTONITH in RHINOCOLOURA, forming a part of the expansive ETHISTONI HIGHLANDS.

KADHUO: Set. Settlement on the island of VHOPRA, in the BHALASSIAN ARCHIPELAGO^(2.) in the east of the PANTHEON ISLES. Its main industry is the quarrying of silver and sulphur (Pop. c. 3,200).

KADOTA: 1. Set. Large city in the west of the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes. The city is responsible for damming the river SPICIA in c. 2800 RM, resulting in the death of the river beyond its borders. The city is populated by an ancient caste of humans descended from FOURTH AGE aristocracy, who has enslaved DEGENERATES and other minorities. Its people's culture is heavily influenced by its military and its forces have dominated most settlements in the region, and only allow ETHERI nomads to enter its territories because they offer their services as guides to its merchants and armies (Pop. c. 180,000).

2. Lak. Lake near the above city formed from the damming of the river SPICIA. The lake serves as an electrical source to the city, through hydroelectric power.

KADRA HADIK: Set. Settlement in the north of RHEA, south of the AHRAN HIGHLANDS (Pop. c. 8,000).

KAEIAH: Set. Small city in the c north east of ZHARIAH⁽²⁾. Its main industry is the manufacture of poison made from CANKERBLOOMS (Pop. c. 12.600).

KAEM: Set Settlement in HOAMMI territories in the north of SAMMAEA, 25-miles south of SKEIN (Pop. c. 12,600).

KAEL TRANTOR, WITCHBANE: m. Per. (B. 3942 RM) High-ranking member of the AVÉNETHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION. He is a WITCHFINDER GENERAL and his relentless pursuit of WITCHES has made him both feared and respected within the Order. His capture of the infamous witch, SERAPHINE, ended a decade-long hunt.

KAELARA: 1. Pol. Geo. One of the nine kingdoms of ELALLIA, located in the south east of the nation.

2. Pol. Set. Large city and capital of the kingdom of Kaelara^(1,) in the south west of ELALLIA. It borders a large lake that is a major part of the regions' economy (Pop. c. 109,400).

KAELENDRA: Set. Small fortified coastal city in the west of OD MEGINNAS^(1.). Originally a fort on a smaller island, waning sea levels saw it linked to the mainland, and it eventually grew into the city that stands there today (Pop. c. 17,200).

KAELRATH: Set. City that developed around the eponymous KEEP in northern NÁRTHEL towards the end of FIFTH AGE following the silting of the STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL. Trade once moved between THE INNER SEA and the DARK SEA across the strait's waters, though it's silting forced trade to move across land, between the cities of Kaelrath and PHENESH (2-), both of which grew in power and wealth as other regions withered (Pop. c. 73,000).

KAELRATH'S KEEP: Rui. Str. A large rust-coloured iron keep situated halfway along the southern bank of the NÁRTHELI STRAIT. The keep has stood since 97 RM, overlooking LYRIDIA, patrolling the waters of the Strait. Its long-lived ruler is the HALFBLOOD PRINCE, BERITH DRAGOON, also known as the INTIMIDATOR OF KAELRATH.

KAEN-AK: His. Arc. Rui. A shrine in the south of KARGAMA hewn into a cliff face along the western-face of a canyon along the course of the river WOLMASH. It was constructed between c. 520 and 600 R by the small state of KARAMERA to honour its founding ancestors.

KAEPITA: Fau. Meat eating parrot native to WESTERN SURRACH with black feathers, but yellow and red secondary wing feathers. It is primarily a scavenger, though does also hut small creatures, and though solitary they are known to swarm and attack larger wounded or weakened prey. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KAETIST: Mil. Str. Major fort in the far north west of NOAVATUR, guarding its territories that adjoin the south east of KHARKHARADONTIS.

KAEUH: 1. Set. Small fortified city in the far north east of AQUARIIA, guarding one of many passes into the deep BLACK MOUNTAINS, guarding the region from outcast attacks (Pop. c. 20,000).

2. Mil. For. Fortress in the far north east of AQUARIIA, guarding one of many passes into the deep BLACK MOUNTAINS, guarding the region from outcast attacks.

KAFALLET: Set. Major coastal city in the south of Thetis. It is a major harbour and port, and is surrounded by fertile farmlands (Pop. c. 438,200).

KAFANNU: 1. Rvr. Expansive delta of the LAUL EGLEA river, along the border between the south east of KHAMID, and the west of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in the south of MALAN, beyond which lies lake Kafannu^(2.).

2. Lak. Lake along the border between the south east of $\underline{\text{KHAMID}}$ and $\underline{\text{HENDECARCHY}}$ of $\underline{\text{CHLORIS}}$ in the south of $\underline{\text{MALAN}}$, upstream of the delta of the river $\underline{\text{LAUL EGLEA}}$.

3. Sea . Bay in the south east of \underline{KHAMID} , into which the $\underline{LAUL\ EGLEA}$ river flows.

4. also 'the City of Two Nations'. Set. Major city along the border between the south east of KHAMID and the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in the south of MALAN. Both nations share rulership of Kafannu, by royal decree, resulting in a metropolitan city that thrives on trade and travel between the two nations. Though both nations share equal leadership, the north side has a stronger Khamidian identity, while the south side is more Malani (Pop. c. 170,000).

KAGA: Set. City in the south of SAUA, along the banks of the river ACHI. It is an important link along the route of the GREAT ROAD, and leads into the MALANI stretch of the route (Pop. c. 39,750).

KAH: Mil. Str. Coastal fortress in the far west of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR in the south west of MALAN. The fortress is hewn from coastal cliffs and guards entrance into the BAY OF GITHKA. The fort has ancient roots and has been continuously manned since the founding of the FOREST KINGDOMS in 2075 RM.

KAHET: Rel. Rui. Ancient temple-complex on the island of BITHAAT, south of the CARCASS in KHAMID. The temple is a remnant of ancient Khamidian culture, and had been abandoned long before the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID.

 \underline{KAHI} : Mil. Str. Fortress in the c of \underline{KHAMID} , forming a part of the \underline{GREAT} \underline{ROAD} trade-route.

KAHREN: Set. TAMARAN fortress-city built in c. 700 RM. Originally constructed to protect trade-routes into LYRIDIA and AHRISHEN, the fortress became essential in the defence of Tamar from Lyridian attacks following the rise of the CAZHAN SHAPERS. Heavily damaged in a siege in 997 RM, the fortress was enhanced in 1243 RM by the Cazhans and survives to this day, though it is outdated, guarding the KYTHI PASS.

Today it serves as a vital link in the Great Road trade-route and maintains diplomats who are well-versed in Lyridian culture and traditions who travel north with merchants, acting as cultural interpreters and guides during their travels (Pop. c. 37,000).

KAHRIN TA': Set. Settlement in the south west of KHULL (Pop. c. 8,200).

KAIAKAN: Sea. Bay in the north of SAMMAEA, to the west of northern KAZZAR^(2.), forming part of the GULF OF ESHIRON.

KAILA: Set. Small city in the north west of ARKOS^(1.), in the savannahs of ARKAINA. It forms a part of the SALT ROAD and has grown steadily over the past decades and will likely continue over the coming years (Pop. c. 15,800).

KAILIK: Geo. Basin in the c north west of THE SURRACH, north west of the AARRUAM ridge. It is noted for its large rocky formations and the large black fossils that protrude from them. It is considered an accursed region and is shunned my most SAVI people.

KAIONAL: Cal. In the KORACHANI CALENDAR, the fourth DAY OF THE WEEK. See Vol II: Month and Lunar cycle in Elyden: Calendars.

KAIOUDA: Com. Set. Major city in the far north of the UMBRA SOKHAR, in the west of the KAIOUDESH region. It forms a vital stop along the SALT ROAD, and is a source of many goods which are filtered across the rest of the Umbra Sokhar through its own merchants (Pop. c. 83,000).

KAIOUDESH: Geo. Rocky expanse in the far south west of PARAIYA and the north of the UMBRA SOKHAR, to the south of lake ALANCARAC.

KAIRN: Set. City in the north of AZAZEM in the foothills of the CHACTHORNYS Mountains. The city operates an UMBRA extraction facility, with raw umbra piped east to TANTAL, in KORACHAN (Pop. c. 11,500).

KAIROR: Set. Large temple-city funded by KORACHAN 1032 RM in north eastern NÁRTHEL. The city is dominated by a gigantic oratorium, known as the ORATORY OF ST. BARBAS, around which are various districts and lodgings that cater to the many pilgrims that travel to the city along THE SHADOW MARCH. Since the silting of the STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL, the city has formed a land trade-route with the LYRIDIAN city of ALYCTA, linking LLACHATUL and SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 170,000).

KAIROUA: Set. Fishing settlement in VAALK overlooking the SEA OF AHAMA (Pop. c. 6,000).

KAITT: Soc. Law. Tattoos that are worn by STATORS (a hereditary policing force) in the VESPERTINE LEAGUE. A stator received the tattoo upon reaching the age of 18 after 3-years of training, and it is a symbol of the stators duties and responsibilities which continue throughout their lives. The tattoo covers both sides for the head from the temples, to the cheeks, and is added to as an individual achieves new ranks. Veteran stators have kaitt tattoos that encompass so much of their faces that only a central strip of flesh remains visible.

KAJAAHWA: (B. 2285 RM) Oth. Pol. Daughter of the OTHERWORLDER JAHINN^(1.) and 1st generation HALFBLOOD, born in ABACARDAT. Following her birth she became a divine figure, surpassing her father, becoming the main object of veneration of the faith. She sired two daughters, whose descendants would go on to become the ruling Jahinn caste^(2.) in Abacardat, who in 2326 would establish the ruling Sultanate, which ruled Abacardat to this day.

She remains alive, a living relic, in the TEMPLE OF THE JAHINN, in the city of HAMARAN.

KAKAHAL: also 'City of Kings'. Set. Settlement outside the capital city of THE OLD FOREST, GITHILALAN. Contrary to what the name might indicate, the settlement is known for the royal college where viziers are trained before being sent to Githilalan (Pop. c. 6,500).

KAKOPHIS: 1. Sea. Body of water bordering the far north west of MENISCEA, between the Sea of IALCUS and the GULF OF VALUS. The sea is under the control of the CEHOPHELAN empire and its capital, the city of MALADAE, overlooks it.

2. Set. Damp city beneath the sea of the same name, thought to be a major conurbation in the PRISON CARCERI and one of the most distant areas of its expansive reach. The city of Kakophis gave its name to the sea that lies above (Pop. unknown).

KAL ADHI: Lak. Lake in the east of KNAESS in the c west of THE SURRACH, bordering the city of KAMAH, fed by the EMEL SUMI and VAEL SUMI. The damming of the Vael Sumi in 3945 RM led to the dwindling of the sea, leaving it greatly reduced now. The hulks of fishing vessels and ferries lie abandoned in its now empty basin, echoing the trade that was once common there. The lake empties to the north into river EMPUSA (1.), which flows north before emptying in the SEA OF ERET (1.).

KALA: Mil. Str. Mar. Com. Major coastal fortress of the WHITE LEAGUE, located in the far north of the KAZZARAN^(1.) peninsula.

KALAAKE: Set. Coastal city in the east of the PANTHEON ISLES, on the mainland, in the east of LLACHATUL. It is a major trade harbour, and sells trade goods acquired by the city of DAEDARN from the north east of LLACHATUL with the rest of the Pantheon Isles (Pop. c. 18,000).

KALAH: Set. Settlement in the c west of AHKA, known for its apples, grown in lava-rich soil from MT. VRAMATHIS (Pop. c. 6,000).

KALAI: Rui. Set. Abandoned stone city in SAMMAEA, north of the wastes of ELIPHAO 450-miles north of the TROPIC OF RAH. Little is known of the city outside of the legend that it was destroyed by a DEMIURGE eons past.

A small settlement exists on the footsteps of the ruin, catering to caravanserais and explorers passing through the region (Pop. c. 1,050).

KALAIAMA: Rvr. Seasonal endorheic river in the west of ANUBIA, flowing east for 450-miles from sources in the GROWING MOUNTAINS and the HAAGEN Mountains before emptying in the NAAIA basin. Together with the river ATEIGHA, seasonal snowmelt flows into the basin and collects into 1 or 2 seasonal lakes collectively known as Naaia, after the basin. The lakes rarely last more than a few months before they dry up.

KALALAR: Set. Small fortified city in the west of the tribe of SALARNA, in the c north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 15,000).

KALANA: 1. Lak. Major lake in the west of WESTERN SAMMAEA, in the c of the CITIZENRY OF THALI. It collects water from various rivers flowing into the Western Sammaean basin from the north, east, wand south, and drains to the west.

2. Set. City in located in an isthmus in the east of the above lake^(1.) in the west of the CITIZENRY OF THALI (Pop. c. 99,000).

KALAR: Lake in the south west of SUOR.

KALARLI: Geo. Small region of ATRAMENTAL TAINT in the c north of the territories of ETHISTONITH in RHINOCOLOURA. The region has diminished greatly in size, from its peak in c. 1800 RM, when it was estimated to be about 10,000 square-miles in area, and is today under 200 square-miles in area. During its peak, the rate of congenital physical deformities was more common than the norm elsewhere in Ethistonith, though this has decreased today.

KALAUN: Sea. Small sea in the south west of the DARK SEA, surrounding the peninsula of DAAR. The city of MIDAL has controlled its waters since c. -400 RM, though those waters have been polluted from ALCHEMICAL industries since c. 500 RM, its life (where any is present) stunted and grotesque.

KALCHAS: Set. Fortified settlement in the far north west of ATARAXIA overseeing the pass of HARAB into AQUARIIA (Pop. c. 10,000).

KALCHEDON: Set. The remnants of a larger city in the far south east of VENTHIR that appeared c. 150 RM in response to gold found in the region. At its height the city boasted a population of 100,000 people, though it diminished following the exhaustion of its mines in c 1400 RM. It was granted to the AVÉNETHI SANCTIFIED ORDER OF THE INQUISITION in 4006 RM (Pop. c. 18,000).

KALDOR: Set Small city in the c of KARGAMA. It lies along its main inland trade route, and is home to many caravanserais and markets (Pop. c. 18,200).

KALEH: Set. Settlement in the north west of NARTHEL, known for its pomegranate production, much of which is exported (Pop. c. 7,200).

KALELLA: Set. City in the east of TZALLRACH, along the course of the river LIATHAR (Pop. c. 36,000).

KALEM: Set. Settlement in the west of KARGAMA, in the north west of the VIRTIVON Mountains (Pop. c. 5,000).

KALEN PENSETTAR IV: m. Mil. Pol. Atr. Per. (B. 3928 RM) TRIUMVIR of the SINITAS LANGUE^(1.) of the GRIGORIAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION since 3979 RM. Hailing from a prestigious FREE family in Sinitas, Kalen Pensettar IV comes from a long line of military leaders. His early career in the Korachani military honed his skills as a strategist and field commander, and his talents with the Atramenta saw him moving on to the ranks of the SEERS^(3.), before being promoted to a QUAESTOR^(2.) and then HIGH QUAESTOR, where his talents shone brightest, overseeing a large territory of agents and spies.

He is known for his stoic and disciplined demeanour, and commands respect through his unwavering dedication and his ability to remain calm under pressure. His leadership style is hands-on (much to the chagrin of his fellow Triumvirs within the Order), and he is often seen in the field, leading or otherwise delegating missions, setting an example for his KALFA: Mar. Rel. Rnk. Female operatives within the EXECRATOR HOSTS of the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO, who are skilled spies and infiltrators, often working in places where male operatives would be too conspicuous. They originated as consorts of LUMINARIES^(3.), though over the years have become trusted operatives in their own rights, and many go on to become Luminaries of their own Hosts.

KALIHET: Geo. Island in the south east of the MAIDEN ISLES, off the south eastern coast of MENISCEA.

KALIMM: Rvr. Large river that dominates the c of TETHYSIA, its waters fed by various rivers flowing east from the ARGENT Mountains. At its longest, the river is almost 4,000-miles long.

KALISANGELID ISLES: Geo. Major archipelago and associated island chains off the south western coast of SAMMAEA, dividing the south east of the BATHASHAL OCEAN from the west of the SEA OF SAMMAIDU. They are inhabited by the ancient nihilist people known as G'GHARSHANS.

KALISSA: Set. Settlement in the far north of ALTHA^(2.), serving as a crossroads between settlements to the north west, the south east, and CYNA KELL in the north (Pop. c. 3,800).

KALITI: Geo. Region of cooled lava flow in the north west of SABIA, just east of the DESOLATION OF ASTUDAN. The lava, its source unknown, is ancient and weathered, though the undulating folds of its original flow remain clear in many regions. For the most part it is a shattered land, victim of the freezing and thawing cycles of the climate.

The region is largely devoid of flora and fauna, and what does exist there is well-adapted the harsh region.

KALKAN COLOSSI: Mil. Tec. Org. Military regiment renowned for its use of HARDSUITS. Its members are traditionally based in the fortressmanufactory of UMMAPAR in the north of PHYRR, where they patrol its northern borders for long periods against the threat of incursions from HOGGOTHA ISZ, though since the onset of the NACRE WAR many have been employed in the war there.

Members of the Kalkan Colossi are considered elite, and are well equipped and trained, their bodies often augmented with ORTHOSES that replace severe injuries and wounds.

KALKAUR: also 'Kalkaur Depression'. Geo. Part of the expansive rift valley to the west of KHARKHARADONTIS, around 450-miles long, extending south east, between lake LALNT in the north and lake HALAD in the south. The region is riddled with fissures and ridges, with newly-revealed DUSTSTONE common. Sinkholes are also common along the area, as are earthquakes and volcanic tremors.

KALKYDRI: Oth. Form of OTHERWORLDER known for their multiple pairs of disembodied wings, scaly skin and the power to elicit wonder through their voices. They are rarely seen, though thought to be most common in the FAR HEMISPHERE. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KALLAIR PHAER: x. Sup. Per. FIFTH AGE SHIE BASILEAN SHAPER who rose to infamy in NASTAL (2.) for various acts of valour and selflessness, including defeating the TECHNARCANE hordes of the rogue general KEREUGH ENDISH, as well as healing thousands who had suffered at his hand. They were however troubled, and were plagued by dark DREAMS, who their followers attributed to ancient deities. They were attacked in the city of LLAT by followers of the slain general, and in the resultant conflict levelled the city in 3923 RM in a great explosion resulting from an uncontrolled display of the LIGHT UNDYING.

They disappeared for years after, with most authorities believing them dead, though various events since then in WESTERN SAMMAEA have been attributed to them. It is more likely that they fled into the wastes of SPHYRNIDONTIS, though many, particularly from the area surrounding ruins of Llat

Little is known of their history, or their origins or early life, or if they grew up in MENISCEA (which is possible considering their use of FIRMAMENTISM) or SAMMAEA (which some believe is more likely as shie are more common in Sammaea).

KALLAR: Sca. Bay off the coast of KHULL, between the seas of ANIPTERRA and ORRIDA.

KALLAVARA: Set. Vast conurbation in the c of KORACHAN, situated in hills of the northern FATUACH Mountains. Comprising dozens of settlements and mines, the region is a major producer of lead and copper for the KORACHANI EMPIRE, and the STROBILIA hills beneath it are strewn with the slag waste of their operations. The largest city that gives its name to the conurbation houses the relic of ST. PHITHIOT, and is a stop along THE SHADOW MARCH as well as the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 190.000).

KALLIKAN: Set. Small city in the c-south east of TEMUJA. It is known for its large stone library, known as the LIBRARY OF KALLIKAN (Pop. c. 13,700).

KALLIKAN, LIBRARY OF: Edu. Str. Stone library in the city of KALLIKAN, in the c south west of TEMUIA. It is a repository of books and ancient vellum scrolls, from CENTRAL and EASTERN LLACHATUL, providing a written account of the region's history and culture. It is also rumoured to have a vaulted library that is closed off from general access, containing FIRMAMENTAL texts and relics. This is said to be kept secret in the event of a KORACHANI CRUSADE ever reaching it, which has luckily never been the case so far.

Its curators are expert riders and frequently travel outside of Temuja in search of valuable books, maps and artefacts to add to their collections. As a result, many are proficient in languages other than Temujin or Tradetongue, and others are proficient in a range of skills, including bushcraft, combat, and navigation, amongst others. Typically, these curators are the younger sons and daughters of minor noble families from across Temuja.

KALLORA: Set. City in the west of JURRAS^(2.) (Pop. c. 31,600).

KALLUA: Ser. Small city in the north of LYRIDIA, just south of the southern foothills of the CANEM HALAT. The city is divided in two – an old hilltop citadel that houses municipal structures and the local government, and is surrounded by hundreds of farms and miles of paddocks where horses are bred and trained (Pop. c. 11,700).

KALOS: Rel. Str. Monastery of the CHURCH OF THE VOLUTE in the south west of NAARETH. It is one of few producers of banana wine that is consumed by MATRIDULES across the nation.

KALPI: Set. City in the west of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, in the west of the plateau of UNTANA. It serves as a link with the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER^(1.) (Pop. c. 38,000).

KALPIS: Set. City in the c of AHRISHEN. It is situated along the course of the ARESHI⁽³⁾ canal and controls its largest lock. It also forms a vital link for trade that crosses the city along the GREY ROAD (Pop. c. 41,000).

KALPSIA: Set. City in the c of PORPHYR. It is built over a FIRMAMENTAL LACUNA where illusory shaping is more pronounced. Even those who are not sensitive to the MATERIA OMNA may have minor hallucinations or see illusions within a 5-mile radius of the city. The city itself is protected by technarcane machinery that suppress these delusions, though it attracts shapers from across ELYDEN, who come here to study the effects of the Firmament upon mortal perception, and it is home to a college dedicated to those who wish to further their learning (Pop. unknown).

KALSHULL: Sea. Bank off the northern coast of KHULL, between the BAY

OF KALLAR in the west and the MAZARINE SEA in the east.

KALTAK: Set. Small fortified coastal city in the far north of ESHIR^(2.), in the north of the island of GEMARIS (Pop. c. 15,500).

KALUAR: (6,300-ft.) Geo. Highest point of the ARRAPHA hills, in the north east of LYRIDIA. The region is very rugged and there are no present-day paths leading there. At the top weathered ruins of an ancient tower can still be seen, overgrown and scattered for miles around.

KALUK: Set. Small city in the c of KHULL. It is known for its large shrine dedicated to the incarnation of the UNDYING MACHINE that's worshipped by the CHURCH OF THE SHADOW TRIUMPHANT (Pop. c. 12.200).

KALULITTA: Ast. First of three satellites of the PLANET GNIHLAS. See Vol II: Planets and Satellites.

KALUMTUN: Set. Small city and caravanserai in the east of SARASTRO, along the Nathi Road (Pop. c. 12,600).

KALYDON: Geo. Carved isthmus in the far north of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, off the south eastern coast of VALBAR^(2.), forming a fortress island. It is built from rare ice-steel through a FOURTH AGE process now thought lost.

KAMAH: Set. Major city along the southern shores of lake KAL ADHI in THE SURRACH, known for its thriving population of SHIE. Situated in a major crossroads along the IVORY ROAD, the city is renowned for its inns, taverns and brothels which cater to the discerning tastes of travellers from all around the Surrach. (Pop. c. 112,000).

KAMAHL: Geo. Coastal hills in the west of TZALLRACH, north of UNDARRA.

KAMAKU: Rel. Str. Main monastery complex and headquarters of the ORDER OF THE HEART, MIND AND BLADE in eastern VÂRR, in the cliffs of the AKAMM hills.

KAMAN THAT: Set. City in the c south west of KREM, along the course of the river SEBBADDI. It has a long history with the nearby city of NASHT, and the two are considered twins, one with the river flowing east and other with the river facing west, respectively. In c. 3103 RM, the two cities fell to a vicious PLAGUE that left their populations devastated, though they later rebuilt (Pop. c. 20,000).

KAMARKA: m. Leg. Per. (D. c. 3250 RM) A cultural hero in the VESPERTINE LEAGUE who in c. 3220 RM is said to have run hundreds of miles from state-to-state to warn them of an approaching marauder force. His selfless actions allowed the Vespertine cities to mount a defence, successfully defeating the attackers.

His actions were immortalised in the prestigious long distance endurance race known as the HEROES' CROSSING, which spans around 50,000-miles in the League and neighbouring NASTAL.

KAMELLIA: also 'the Wandering City'. Set. Veh. AMBULANT city, its origins unknown. The entire city is a gigantic ambulant that crawls ceaselessly around the SAMMAEAN continent (Pop. c. 3,200).

KAMERIA: Set. City in the c west of TARTAK, in the foothills of the c HETHA Mountains. The city was funded by the KORACHANI EMPIRE in 449 RM, early during the empire's tenure there, due to the rich cobalt and nickel reserves there. The city prospered and reached its peak in c. 1850 RM after which its mines dwindled in size and the city slowly waned until its abandonment in c. 1980 RM. The city was resettled in 3760 RM following the discovery of a new vein of nickel by PARTHISAN prospectors and remains to this day as a prosperous strip-mining and processing settlement (Pop. c. 31,000).

KAMMA GHARADAN: also 'the Silent Spires'. Rui. Geo. Ancient towers and citadels hewn from peaks in the northern face of the MAR SAHIGH Mountains, in the south of METHUMN. They are believed to be AITHAR citadels and aeries from the early FOURTH AGE, but most have collapsed in the ensuing years, their halls and oculi now ruined, their once-colourful frescoes reduced to monochromatic ruin.

KAMMAL: Set. Small city in the north east of TAHALL. It is a stop along THE WAY trade-route (Pop. c. 17,500).

KAMMAR: 1. Lan. Etymologically, a word thought to be linked to the IVORY MOON dating back to the early days of the MORTAL tribes.

2. also 'Moon Temple'. Rui. Ruin in the north east of the HENDECARCHY of CYRENIA, in the north of MALAN. The ruin is commonly associated with the extinct SEITHALAN EMPIRE and the DEMIURGE NEITH(1.).

3. Mil. Str. Fortress in the far south of NARTHEL, overlooking the border with SARASTRO along the ridge of GOR'KHAN. It is built on the site of an ancient moon-tower – where people of the early FIFTH AGE would observe the movements of the IVORY MOON.

KAMON: Geo. Treacherous badlands to the north east of ATARAXIA.
Carved into intricate gullies, slot canyons and gorges by the winter and early summer flood-waters common to the region, the place is inhospitable and dangerous to traverse. The ruins of ancient stone-carved temples can be found here, though for the most part they are weathered and eroded beyond recognition.

KAMRAN: Set. Settlement in the south east of MHAROKK known for its collieries and its penchant for antiquated EXECUTION methods, including favoured use of the cannon (Pop. c. 6,000).

KAMRIAN: Set. Coastal city in the east of TRAKIA, known as its only sizeable harbour (Pop. c. 37,000).

KANAAIR SHOS: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region in the c east of LAASKHA, that is known to corrupt flora and fauna living in it. Creatures sometimes emerge from the region, making their way towards the farming settlements of SABBAYN.

The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

KANAATI: Pol. Soc. Tribe in the c north of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. One of the smaller tribes, it is considered a highland plateau. Its lowest elevation is 2,800-ft. and its highest point is MT. CANDAS, at 15,750-ft. The Mt. is a holy place and is inhabited by a caste of shamen who worship the sky as the origin of the OTHERWORLDER NEPHTHALONT. The people of Kanaati are rich from ancient treasure, which remains in their possession to this day.

KANACH: His. Com. Ancient trade-post, then city-state in what is now the south west of ARKOS⁽¹⁾. The trade-post emerged in c. -1250 RM, subsisting through trade between the UHLSAATI cities to the north east and the GELHANA principalities and the city-state of ACTANORS to the south. The city prospered, though as Uhlsaat found itself at war with AUERENI barbarians from the east, Kanach began to suffer. It sent allies across the SEA OF ERIA to Uhlsaat following the sacking of COLYIS in -1201 RM, and its troops were instrumental in the eventual defeat of the Auereni, with many amongst them fortifying the newly-erected high-tower of MHAQ in-1195 RM, from which counter-attacks were made against the barbarians, who were eventually defeated following the demoralising death of their leader in -1193 RM.

That led to the rise of the CITADEL MOUNTS, and the election of the LORD-MASON MONDL (the man responsible for the construction of the high-tower of Mhaq), whose gratitude of Kanach extended to the signing of diplomatic agreements and trade-pacts which, over the years would become a full alliance. By the time the LORDS OF THE MOUNTS came into control of the Citadel Mounts in c. -925 RM, Kanach had become a powerful city, dominating the west of the Citadel Mounts' territories, controlling trade south into Gelhana and across the BETHET into ACTANORS. The city was home to the champion ELEDT who in -421 RM led a last-stand in the ARAAHT against a DEGENERATE and AANTH incursion form the south west, buying enough time for the rest of the armies to defeat the creatures. That battle led to the founding in DUN SZAS of the KNIGHTS OF SZAS. His actions and those of his successors in the wars against the DEGENERATE EXODUS earnt Kanach the epithet of DUN KANACH in -399 RM, and it became one of the nine cities where the LORDS OF THE MOUNTS held their counsel.

KANASTRA: also 'Arakhamé's Fingers'. Flo. Deadly fungus endemic to moist shady areas of WESTERN and CENTRAL LLACHATUL, in particular c RAONGEN^{2,3}, GNOTH, AQUARIIA, CISNERIA, SKAROS, ALMAGEST, and the OLD FOREST. The fungus takes the form of blood red hands and has a reputation for scaring travellers when its encountered. The fungus is highly toxic, and ingestion causes nausea, vomiting and diarrhoea, and disorientation, and in extreme cases can be deadly. Even touching it has been known to cause a severe reaction. It has been used as a poison, and Cisnerian nobles are famed for using it. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KANAT: 1. Geo. Narrow headland off the eastern coast of ANDILUTH, around 60-miles long. It guards the entrance into the Bay of Kanat⁽²⁾, making the harbour of TABELLIA one of the safest ones in Andiluth.

2. Sea. Long bay in eastern ANDIULTH guarded by the headland of Kanat.

KAND: also 'the White City'. Rui. Once a thriving outpost of the WHITE LEAGUE in TARTAK, built around a spectacular citadel, the place fell into ruin following the corruption of the waters of the upper UGOLOTH. The White League abandoned the citadel and left the city to die in 2384 RM. The exiled DOYEN-KNIGHT ATURALAM returned there in 2753 RM and founded a splinter cult of the White League – the BROTHERS VENGEANT. Kand was attacked by the White League in 3913 RM and was destroyed following a 7-month siege there.

KANDA: Lake in the west of TZALLRACH, within the region of ABUAYA. Its western shore is bordered by steep cliffs that lead to the western-most reaches of the Abuaya basin, while its eastern shore is flat, leading to the Abuaya marshlands.

KANDAKE: 1. Also 'the Red Cliffs'. Geo. Coastal cliffs in the north west of LIDEA, running for 200-miles. The cliffs of Kandake are known for their variety of bird-life. They were the site of a great naval exchange in

2. His. Set. Name of the capital and royal palace of the FOURTH AGE NAAHI empire, situated in present-day north western LIDEA, after which the above cliffs are named.

KANDALANN: Geo. Sparse woodlands in the far east of GRAMMATER in the far south east of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA.

KANDARA: Set. northern-most harbour in SAGITTARIA, overlooking the western-most reaches of THE INNER SEA (Pop. c. 38,000).

KANDHIR: Set. Small city in the south west of ELAT. The countryside surrounding the city is peppered with fortified farms and homesteads whose lands were once famed for their produce (Pop. c. 12,000).

KANDIA: 1. Geo. Mountain, around 260-miles long in northern PARTHIS, partially acting as a border with BISBUT and restricts movement between eastern Bisbut and the north east of PARTHIS.

2. Set. City in the c north east of PARTHIS, along the western-face of the eponymous mountain (Pop. c. 39,000).

KANDIBIA: Set. Settlement in the east of SAGITTARIA, known for its iron mines (Pop. c. 9,000).

KANDON: 1. Geo. Sickle-shaped hills in the west of TZALLRACH, enclosing the ABUAYAN basin. The hills are rocky and cover an area of around 11,000-miles.

2. Set. City in the west of TZALLRACH, in the region of ABUAYA, along the north eastern shore of lake KANDA. Its main industry is agriculture and it is in control of the many smaller settlements in the region that subsist off the marshlands. Recent harvests have failed, leading to a small exodus of people from the city (Pop. c. 29,000).

KANEAH: Set. Settlement in the south west of GIBEAH. Its main industry is nickel mining (Pop. c. 7,800).

KANEKA: Set. Settlement in the south of OTINTH. Like most Otinthian settlements, little is known about it due to the nations' insular nature (Pop. unknown).

KANESH: Com. Set. Major coastal trading city in the north of VAALK. It serves as one of the main links between SAMMAEA and LLACHATUL and is a common port through which pilgrims of THE SHADOW MARCH pass. The city has remained coastal at great effort, due to the slow retreat of THE INNER SEA and construction around its harbour is a constant sight, with a series of locks providing access to the waning sea from its now enclosed harbour. (Pop. c. 290,000).

KANGHOU: Set. City in the c north west of PARAIYA (Pop. c. 33,000).

KANGLIRIT: 1. Geo. Island off the eastern coast of CYHLAGHARR and home to the pirate-city of the same name.

2. Set. Pirate settlement, on the above island off the eastern coast of CYHLAGHARR (Pop. c. 12,000).

KANKARRA: Set. Coastal city along the northern coast of eastern VAALK, overlooking THE INNER SEA (Pop. c. 16,800).

KANOUS: Lake Lake in the east of KHAMID, along the course of the river

KANSOS: Ser. Conurbation in the north of PELASGOS, west of the CALDERAN Mountains. The region was originally made up of seven separate granite quarries, though only two remain operational. The granite is of a remarkable grade and is prized by artisans around THE INNER SEA (Pop. c. 1,500).

KAOBRIDUR: Set. Small city in the north west of the mainland PANTHEON ISLES (Pop. c. 17,000).

KAPAR: His. Pol. One of three successor states to emerge from the collapse of SARASHAN in the south east of the PORPHYRI PENINSULA that emerged in c. 1000 RM, following centuries of anarchy. See Vol III: Extinct States.

KAPHAAR: His. Ntn. Historical kingdom in the AMMASHI^(1,) peninsula in the south west of SAMMAEA, in what is now the nation of KEPHUAAN. It rose in c. 2650 RM in the west of the former territories of Ammash^(3,) and rapidly became one of the more stable states in the region, becoming known for its efficient ruling council and well-established code of laws, that were adopted by its successor state, Kephuaan.

Kaphaar was responsible for the remaking of the MONSTRANCE OF FEALTY, which soon became a symbol of the AMMASHI TREATY, which was devised by an alliance of Kaphaari and TAANALI lawmakers and diplomats who in 3594 RM succeeded in uniting the disparate states of the peninsula under the Ammashi Treaty.

Kaphaar prospered during this time and while the base of the Treaty remained the city of RAMINA, Kaphaar became the heart and soul of the alliance, with its capital city HALAGAA becoming a cultural centre, with people from across the peninsula visiting it.

A change in regime in c. 3780 RM saw its old plutocratic council replaced by a new modern meritocracy in a peaceful revolution, by the end of which the region had taken on the more modern name of Kephuaan in c. 3780 RM. See Vol III: Extinct States.

KAPHEIA: His. Dei. Rel. Ancient idol and deity in the south west of SAMMAEA, in the south of the state of KEPHUAAN, which draws its name from the idol. Worship of the deity is not widespread and it is considered a mystery cult by the majority of the population, which are mostly followers of LAZANISM.

The idol is of grotesque form and takes the shape of an emaciated humanoid with elongated limbs. Its face is featureless save for a single eye in its forehead and in its chest is a gaping hole lined with fingers. It is made of a grey stone that has an almost oxidised skin, the material of which is likely unique though religious doctrine forbids examination of the material. Despite the people who worship the idol, it remains ruined and exposed to the elements, and it is not the subject of pilgrimages or any other reverence. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

KAPIASH: 1. Geo. Island off the southern coast of SABAISA.

2. Law. Coastal fortress prison on the eponymous island where the worst criminals and political prisoners are incarcerated.

KAPPER: Fau. Flat fish common in coastal areas in the north of the Inner Sea. It is a common food in coastal regions of KORACHAN, AZAZEM, LAASKHA and PELASGOS. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

 $\underline{\text{KAPPON}}$ Rvr. River in the west of $\underline{\text{AHOPAH}}$, flowing west to the $\underline{\text{BAYOF}}$ $\underline{\text{AURUM}}^{(1)}$.

KAPURRA: Set. Conservatory-city in the north east of SUOR. It represents the peak of Suori glasswork and ironworking traditions and is famed for its immense conservatory that envelops most of the city. It is part of the EAST ROAD and is a major hub of trade (Pop. c. 50,000).

 \underline{KARA} : Rvr. River in the nation of \underline{TARTAK} . The city of $\underline{KARAKOR}$ is at its mouth.

KARA HADASH: Set. Fortified coastal settlement in the south of the SARASTROAN colony of IPSISSIMA^(1.). Its main industry is whaling and the production of ambergris (Pop. c. 9,000).

KARA ZYAH: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTAL WASTES in the south west of the mainland of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS that emerged in c. 2500 RM, reducing the peninsula to a blackened DUSTSTONE laced with hollows and caverns where the earth has given way.

KARABRAS, THE UNCROWNED: (D. 2809 RM) Pol. His. Ill-fated king of KARGEMMA who ruled for only 2-days before he was assassinated before he could even be crowned.

His death followed years of growing dissatisfaction with the KARGEMMAN MONARCHY amid the seemingly endless waves of KORACHANI forces during the EHRENISIAN CRUSADES, and was the catalyst that led to the collapse of the monarchy and the reinstatement of the JURISPRUDENT as a ruler of the UNITED ASSEMBLY, elected from within the ORDER OF WITNESSES.

KARAEHLA: also 'the Middle Mountains'. Geo. Mountain-range in the west of AHRISHEN, acting as a border with THE OLD FOREST. The mountains run for almost 600-miles along the border and are renowned in the region for their ruggedness and many springs, most of which flow south east, converging as the river SAVEST in the QOCHLAN PLAINS.

KARAETER: Rel. Set. Temple city in the c south east of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR in the south west of MALAN. It is home to the ESHARAN blood priests whose influence in Lonar and surrounding lands is very strong (Pop. c.48,000).

KARAFFAR: For. Scrub forest and ALOARE plains in the south of AZAZEM.

KARAFFARI: Lan. Ancient language, classified as a language isolate, that is spoken by people in the north east of LAASKHA and the south west of AZAZEM (particularly in the cities of BASILEA and NUEREA), and is named after the region of KARAFFAR in Azazem. Karaffari is surrounded by KORACHANI-speaking lands, but surprisingly, has very little in common with the language, as well as other native languages in the region, such as LAASKHAN and the now-extinct AZAZEMI. It is possibly descended from the same root tongue as OLYAMMYAD, though so little is known of the latter that it is difficult to make any pertinent links between the two.

It has survived various efforts at eradication by the KORACHANI EMPIRE, and its speakers are now largely allowed to practice their cultural language, so long as they are well-versed in Korachani and/or Laaskhan. See Vol II: Languages.

KARAFFITE: Ele. An artificially created glass-like element that is found across ELYDEN in small numbers. It was created in past ages, though most likely the THIRD and FOURTH AGES, during acts of extreme magickal pressure, such as explosions or particularly powerful acts of SHAPING. The testing of ATRAMENTAL BOMBS in the UMBRA SOKHAR and other regions has resulted in the more recent creation of Karaffite.

Karaffite is of little material use, though it has been used in the creation of jewellery and ornaments, which are most common in LAASKHA and AZAZEM, though this is now discouraged due it being faintly ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED.

Karaffite is named after the region of KARAFFAR in the south west of Azazem where the element was first examined and described by FIFTH AGE ALCHEMISTS.

KARAFR: Set. City in c north of SARASTRO. It is around 160-miles north west of the capital, ARGEA, and suffered greatly during the VENTHIRI/SARASTROAN WAR, where it was levelled during one of the largest mechanised conflicts in ELYDEN'S history.

It has been rebuilt since then and has grown into a thriving city known for its artificers and their skill at shaping and treating ATRAMENTUM, which is widely used in the manufacture of Sarastroan weaponry and engines of war.

Its people are known for their stoic resilience, and they still observe memorial services in which they remember and pay tribute to the thousands of people who fought in the BATTLE OF KARAFR, which took place on the $12^{th}-13^{th}$ MALICHALEN 3704 RM (Pop. c. 32,000).

KARAFR, BATTLE OF: Mil. His. A major battle in the VENTHIRI/ SARASTROAN WAR that took place in the NORTHERN SARASTROAN CAMPAIGN between the 12th – 13th MALICHALEN 3704 RM.

KORACHAN had not yet entered the conflict at that time (which would later become known as the WAR OF SUNDERING), and it primarily involved VENTHIR as an aggressor against SARASTRO. Fighting reached a stalemate in the SHAMAS SHUGAL by MURDAD 3703 RM, which eventually led to the Battle of Karafr. It was the first major mechanised engagement in the war and left most of the city ruined, its people fighting in the streets against Venthiri invaders.

The battle itself was indecisive and left the Shamas Shugal hotly contested until the end of the war, by which time Korachan had joined the conflict fighting alongside Venthiri forces.

KARAHAT: Set. City in the c east of SEDISIA, in the endorheic basin to the east of VETHRAND. It is a conurbation surrounded by dozens of smaller settlements, which are hotels for their reed and jute cultivation (Pop. c. 38,000).

KARAKA: Set. City and one of five-and-sixty regions, in the east of SAUA, situated along the banks of the northern reaches of the river TAKRE (Pop. c. 50,000).

KARAKAR: Geo. Valley in the city-state of MENATH, along the border between the south west of SARASTRO and the north east of ARKOS⁽¹⁾.

KARAKANAK: Rel. Dei. Wretched deity worshipped by debased SERAPIS in HOGGOTHA ISZ. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

KARAKASHI: Lan. Language spoken in KARAKHAS, KHURAUR and HITTA. It has been used in various ways over the millennia, though was most commonly employed by resistors to the KORACHANI and, later, the SARASTROAN occupations, and is now spoken proudly in the above regions as a sign of their independence to the almost complete exclusion of other languages. Even merchants, who so often communicate with foreign traders in a simple pidgin tongue, insist on using Karakashi.

It is an ancient tongue, and is descended from the FOURTH AGE KARTHANIAN language that was once common in the area. See Vol II: Languages.

KARAKATHARI: Geo. Mountain-range in the north of SAMMAEA, serving as a border between the nations of IZABAL^(1.) and SAGITTARIA for 520-miles. The pass of ALALKRA links Izabal to Sagittaria across the mountain-range.

KARAKHAS: Dem. 'Karakhasid'. Ntn. Nation, and one of the so-called BLOOD STATES, located in the north of SAMMAEA that is built on the ruin of many previous cultures. It is a of a hot-temperate climate, with mild winters and long dry summers, and it is known for its pinkish-red rocks.

It is built atop the ruins of various FOURTH AGE cultures, including: ELLORA, which dominated what are now the south of JURRAS⁽²⁾, and the north of KHURAUR and Karakhas; the KARTHAN empire, whose ruins are to the west of the KATHAN Mountains; and the last known KERATIN nation of FANES, which was situated to the south east.

It was first encountered by KORACHANI explorers in c. 30 RM, when the region was dominated by dozens of blood-cults that shared a common heritage, though saw each other as rivals. Cultural and political unease was rife in the area at the time. This lack of cohesion is what allowed Korachan to so easily secrete itself, but it was not counting on the people of Karakhas to be so vehemently against subjugation, despite their own differences. Imperial immigrants had integrated themselves with the natives by 70 RM, with Korachan becoming the true ruler of Karakhas in 121 RM, following a brutal 4-year war. Water was used as a means of control in these years, forcing the subjugated people to co-operate.

Due to its distance from the central empire and the great many resources needed to control its populace, heathen practices remained common there, as did the rural and some might say barbaric lifestyles of the natives, whose worship of the god KHAR'ILLAE (in truth a scion of the DEMIURGE KHARANI) could not be quelled, and survives today under SARASTROAN control as its primary religion, where its VATICINATOR religious leaders remain a common sight, following centuries of hiding under Korachani rule. The so-called CRUSADES OF BLOOD, originally a religious hunt for sacrifices, became an excuse to capture PARAIYAN slaves under Korachani leadership.

Under Korachani rule, Karakhas served as a stepping-stone of sorts. It was the closest Korachani nation to the deserts of KHARKHARADONTIS, and as such, many ATRAMENTISTS and TECHNARCANE organisations maintained chapters and sects there from which they could more closely examine the effects of the Atramenta on ELYDEN (for instance, the exploration of the UMBRA SOKHAR and the subjugation of the natives of the ALGOL HAREN). Karakhas also became a link between Korachan and its later colony of NOAVATUR in the far south of the SAMMAEAN continent, with a long dangerous route established that winded its way over 2,750-miles across the Umbra Sokhar, linking the two distant regions together. It was through this route that much of the Umbra Sokhar was explored, at great cost.

Despite the vital link that Karakhas served along this trade-route, it was always plagued by inner-turmoil. Its people were passionate by nature and their acceptance of Korachani rule was never placid, even across generations born and raised under the yoke of MALICHAR. The PAIAMALLI ORDER of the Sanctified Inquisition was founded in DEKANA in 1242 RM specifically to deal with this unrest.

Unrest was common and the first millennium of imperial rule there was characterised by intense bouts of conflict, often erupting into full-fledged civil strife. This brought about the period now known as the SABISSILIAN REVOLTS, which culminated in 1248 RM in the region of LATERITIA with massed conflict between dissidents and the Korachani military. This conflict ended with the quelling of the revolts, but the region continued to be hounded by marauders that emerged from the wars over the next centuries. These marauders coalesced into three distinct groups that roamed the hinterlands between Karakhasid cities: in the basin of Lateritia, the volcanic plains of SARGOTH, and the plains of ERITEIA. Known respectively as the LATERITIANS, and Sargothi and the Eritei, these marauders, while far from numerous, continued to worship

Khar'illae throughout Korachani rule, flaunting their practices, disrupting trade and causing chaos.

Unrest returned to Karakhas during the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES (which saw the nation of ALMAGEST splinter from the Korachani empire and become an independent Republic), and the marauder tribes onceagain caused havoc across Karakhas, destabilising the Korachani leadership there. The HEARTLAND was too busy with the war in the north to be able to spare resources in Karakhas, and a fundamentalist group took control in 3012 RM during the period known as the BLOOD HETERODOXIES. This guerilla government struggled to maintain control and lost the nation in 3043 RM following years of bitter war with Korachan, which reinstated its own government. This was not to last though, and in 3112 RM the nation was handed over to a joint force of DOMNITORS and imperial troops, who enacted martial law and oversaw what remained of the region's diamond mines, which eventually fell under the control of PATRICIAN HOUSE SATINA.

The Domnitors struggled to maintain unity in Karakhas and by c. 3250 RM it had begun to fragment into independent demesnes. Most notable was the defecting of a regiment of Steel Legionnaires in 3203 RM. This period ended with the nations' eventual fracture in 3478 RM with the signing of the Covenant of Khuraur, which saw the western portion of the nation break away in a militarised state that became known as Khuraur, which is now a vassal of Parthis. The remaining territories remained unstable, and Korachan only held on to them due to their rich diamond reserves.

The War of Sundering in the east only served to worsen already bubbling tensions in the nation, and in 3704 RM unrest led to open revolt around major cities and industrial areas, with Dekana eventually falling to a militant group two months after the loss of Sarastro, in the 15th of Haelen 3705 RM, with various cities following over the next two years, with it finally being declared lost by Korachan in 3707 RM, after which it would enjoy two years of independence before being absorbed by Sarastro in 3709 RM, under whose iron grip it remains to this day. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KARAKOR: also 'Karagor', lit 'Mouth of Kara'. Set. Coastal city in the west of TARTAK, named after the river at whose mouth it is situated. The city is the western-most large harbour on the southern shore of the SEA OF BYSSOS and trades Tartakhid goods with the north west (Pop. c. 190,000).

KARAKUN: Int. Fau. Mor. Esoteric creatures, thought to be a link between animals and MORTALS, native to the thickest part of the WOLD rainforest, along the peripheries with the INNER WASTES OF SPHYRNIDONTIS. They take the form of gigantic apes of reddish-brown fur, who maintain rudimentary societies, with shamanistic leaders. They can make and wield tools and weapons and craft simple clothing and armour. This, coupled with their prodigious strength and toughness make them formidable foes – possibly the reason why they have not been obliterated by more numerous mortals. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KARAL: Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of LEGEO in the c south west of MULCIBER, in the south western face of the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. It overlooks lake LERIA and is a major skyport, forming the c. of a route between the skyport of GLODONT in the tribe of DATHOA, in the west of Mulciber, and KATTAROCHIA in the tribe of EBURUL in the far east. (Pop. c. 52,000).

KARALAE: Set. Small city in the c east of OKKHAM, in the western foothills of the Okkhami Mountains⁽¹⁾. Its main industry is stone mining (Pop. c. 15,000).

KARALLA: Set. Large fortified city in the north west of BASSORAH^(2.), along the trade-route north into ALMAGEST. It is a major stop along the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 103,000).

KARAM: Set. Settlement in the c south west of KHALHAT. It lies within the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of the DAENED SULRACH^(1.) and little is known about it, even amongst other Khalhish settlements (Pop. unknown).

KARAMAH: 1. Geo. Expansive rocky terrain in the east of ZHARIAH⁽²⁾. It is known for its native CANKERBLOOM plants.

2. Set. Small city in the east of ZHARIAH^(2.). Its main industry is the cultivation of CANKERBLOOM plants for the use in the poison industry (Pop. c. 18,000).

KARAME: Geo. Hills in the c north of TARTAK.

KARAMERA: Rui. Ancient FIFTH AGE city in what is now the south of KARGAMA. It was founded by group of DHEKAARI nomads in c. 25 RM in a canyon along the course of the river WOLMASH. By c. 110 RM its people had dammed the river, providing their industries with a constant source of water power. This allowed the city to rapidly grow into an industrial power, attracting other outsiders and itinerants. Its people became famed for ADI BIEL, which was made from mineral-rich water of the river that was flavoured with herbs and rose water.

The city was assimilated by the state of PHAND^(1.) in c. 350 RM, by which time its nomadic roots were forgotten, though its people retained their individuality and embraced their nomadic ancestry, while not being nomads themselves. CONSANGUINE rule brought with it a renewed faith in KARGAMAN IDOLATRY, though the lack of a nearby idol saw its people revering all the Idols as a pantheon, which was unique in Phand.

The city's great dam was destroyed by an earthquake in 906 RM, leading to the flooding of the city and its eventual abandonment. Its ruins can still be seen today flanking the river Wolmash. Many of its people fled the disaster to surrounding cities, taking their culture with them, and the prevalence of worship of Kargman Idols as a pantheon throughout Kargama today is due to the influence of these refugees.

KARAN SHUR: (D. 3388) Pol. Magnate of PNESSA whose death eventually led to the WAR OF SECESSION, between 3402 – 3409 RM, which in turn led to the independence of the region of ELEKHID in 3409 RM.

KARANDIR: Mil. Str. Fortress in the c of VENTHIR, perched on the south eastern edge of the URIACHIS Mountain, overlooking the SHARA Plains.

KARANOS: (B. 3951 RM) Pol. Present ruler of AHKA, and general of its KARANT: Set. City in c KARAKHAS known for its BLOODSTONE mines. Cut stones are polished and incorporated into jewellery, which is exported across THE INNER SEA (Pop. c. 18,000).

KARAR: Rvr. River in the south of TZALLRACH, flowing for 450-miles from seasonal sources in the KARARTA and ARGENT Mountains before meeting its parent, the river USSAMA. Its waters are rich in mild FIRMAMENTAL properties, possibly from the LODESTONE deposits in the region.

KARARTA: also 'the Forsaken Mountain'. Geo. Mountain-range in the south of TZALLRACH, running for some 250-miles long, between the HEBAT Mountain in the west and the ARGENT Mountains to the east. The mountain is renowned for the severe earthquakes that dominate its lands, all the way to the coast and the BAY OF ATTAS.

KARAT: Lak. Endorheic lake in the c north west of MHAROKK, that over the past centuries has dwindled in size, its shores retreating some miles. The town of AMATA, now some miles from the lake was once located at the shore.

KARATEPPA: Set. City in the south of SUOR (Pop. c. 45,000).

KARAXHANES: Geo. Peninsula in eastern LLACHATUL, forming an extension of the KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA Mountains. The peninsula is today considered a part of the PANTHEON ISLES.

KARAYUN: Set. Fortified city in the south of TARTAK, forming part of the AIOS KATH UMBRA pipeline north to SAHIM^(2.) (Pop. c. 20,000).

KARAZ MIRR: Rui. Ancient ruins in the desert of YARUBDA, in the east of PHYRR. The ruins are believed to have once been a great city, possibly dating to the FOURTH AGE that as swallowed by the desert centuries ago.

Little is known about the people who built Karaz Mirr, but legend speaks of a civilization that thrived in what is now the desert, growing wealthy from trade. The ruins contain once-towering columns and intricate carvings that hint at a culture rich in art and ritual.

Explorers attempting to uncover its secrets have spoken of whispering winds that seem to carry unseen voices, and an inexplicable sense of dread that permeates the area.

KARAZAS: Rui. Sprawling region of open-cast mines in the north east of NÁRTHEL. The mines were once a major source of copper and malachite, though by c. 2900 RM many pits had been abandoned and they were deserted completely by 2960 RM.

KARDAAR: Pol. Soc. Large PATRICIAN HOUSE with interests in logging and woodworking. It controls much of the east of NARTHEL, as well as the AGISTERS that control the region of ILLIAN, and is based in the city of NARMAD. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

KARDAUL: For. Tropical wooded region in the west of CUTH, comprising some 35,000 square-miles of jungles overlooking the coast of the SEA OF BALIMAN. The region contains diverse flora and fauna and is known for its small scattered regions of minor ATRAMENTAL terrain.

KARDEC: Rel. Str. Temple of the ORDER OF TEREBINTH in the far north of OPHIUSSA. The order is a GNOTHI ascetic group that maintains the forests and other natural regions, particularly close to settled areas, and is present in a few regions of Ophiussa. Its members are allowed in Ophiussa as diplomats, though have little political role, and instead spend their time in the wilderness with Ophiussan arborists, maintaining its forests, particularly the ANNEAMAL forest.

KARDEN: Set. City in the east of TULURKRYPH (2.) in the south of WESTERN MENISCEA (Pop. c. 38,000).

KARES: Ind. Set. Mining settlement in the east of THETIS. Its main industry is VIRGIN STONE mining (Pop. c. 5,900).

KARGAL: Set. Settlement in the south west of KARGAMA. The settlement itself only accounts for a small part of the region's population, with most people spread out over many square miles, living in fortified ranches and homesteads. Its main industry is horse breeding (Pop. c. 4,000).

KARGAMA: Dem. 'Kargaman'. Ntn. Nation in the c north of SAMMAEA, south of the SEA OF ORRIDA. It is of a hot climate, with short wet winters and long dry summers, and it is dominated by savannahs, scrubland, and sparse woodlands.

It is composed of many states which vary in composition from singular, largely autonomous, cities, to small states made up of up to a dozen settlements, or alliances between a few cities. Despite their cultural differences and independence from each other, the states are united under a single overarching government based in the capital state of KARGHEMIR(1.), with each entity (be it a single city or an alliance of cities), having a voice in the governing committee, which is known as the UNITED ASSEMBLY.

Its people worship a vast pantheon of heathen gods who are embodied in the form of large stone idols, which some mythographers believe are corruptions of the DEMIURGES of old. The practice is known as KARGAMAN IDOLATRY and remains a widespread practice to this day despite its ancient roots.

The nation was targeted by the EHRENISIAN CRUSADES due to its beliefs, though the crusade was largely unsuccessful despite putting thousands of innocent people to death and toppling dozens of ancient idols. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KARGAMAN IDOLS: Int. Rel. Obj. Divine objects of reverence in the religion of KARGAMA, which is known is KARGAMAN IDOLATRY. The objects take the form of large statues, most of which are made from rare stones (such as granite or marble) or rare colours and patterns, though some are made from an alien stone with a red lattice-like interior that oozes pus-like ichor when broken.

The statues were rediscoverd across the EHRENISIAN COAST by DHEKAARI nomads emerging from the FADING in the early FIFTH AGE, and immediately became objects of reverence, a tradition that remains prevalent today across KARGAMA though which was eradicated from neighbouring KHULL by the KHULLAN INQUISITION.

The original source of the idols is unknown, though they are considered to be ancient – probably dating to the THIRD AGE – and the material that the original divine idols was made from is clearly artificial, possibly organic in nature. In most cases the idol is considered to be the deity and damage to the idol is tantamount to damaging the god itself. An idol that has been destroyed equates the death of a god, which is culturally devastating to those who worship it. The death of a god in this manner usually spells the death of the culture that worshipped it, with its people scattering and either becoming absorbed by neighbouring cultures or dying out.

Due to the divine nature of the idols scientific examination by outsiders is forbidden, so it is unlikely that we will ever learn more about them. See Vol IV: Gods and Pantheons.

KARGAMAN IDOLATRY: Rel. The predominant religion observed within KARGAMA, which was common across the EHRENISIAN COAST in the early FIFTH AGE, where ancient eldritch idols were discovered by people emerging from the FADING of the FOURTH AGE. Though many were simply statues, a few were made from a strange substance that had a stone-like exterior and a soft red lattice-like interior that oozed ichor when broken. Their true origins remain unknown.

The Idols came to be worshipped by the DHEKAARI nomads early in the Fifth Agee, who spread their beliefs to the disparate ELITAGRI people, who came to worship these strange statues as deities. This culture eventually gave way to the nation of Kargama, whose people still revere the idols to this day.

During times of war, the armies of a victorious city-state would destroy the idol of the defeated city, which was tantamount to the deity itself dying, which was effectively the death of the surrounding culture. Such events would either lead to the scattering of the surviving people to neighbouring cities, where they would begin to venerate the idol of that city; or a simulacrum of the conquering idol would be erected in their city, which they would then worship. Due to this, the number of idols, which already numbered in their hundreds, were whittled down to a few dozens, with the destroyed idols being largely replaced by simulacra.

The rise to power of the city of PHAND and its CONSANGUINE DYNASTY in c. -820 RM saw the idol of AGHATYRAELL became the most widely-worshipped of idols, though the idols of other cities that willingly subjugated themselves to Phand continued to be worshipped by their own people, though they came to be considered as secondary to Aghatyraell. A caste of priests known as WITNESSES⁽²⁾ rose independently across various cities in Elitagra, tending to the idols and overseeing rituals in their honour.

In c. 800 RM the ORDER OF WITNESSES was founded in the great temple-complex of LERA. This new centralised governing body allowed the Witnesses to grow more powerful, playing a central role in the homogenisation of culture and religion in Elitagra.

Often of grotesque form, most of these idols are of vaguely humanoid design, with many of them bearing multiple limbs, wings, tentacles and other features. The name 'Kargaman Idols' is a foreign and relatively recent term, with natives having referred to the ancient statues simply as idols or gods.

A common ritual in the religion is the Rite of Baptism, which is a ritual of purification and initiation. There are three such rites, with the First typically taking place once a year during the spring equinox, where children that have celebrated their sixth month have their blood let on the idol of their deity, symbolising them becoming one with their god. The Second takes place when the child comes of age, at the age of fifteen, when they let the blood of their left hand on the statue symbolising their prostration and symbolic servitude when. The Third Rite is only undertaken by those who go on to become witnesses – the high-priests of the idols, and the ritual that accompanies it is unknown to outsiders. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KARGASHEN: Set. City in the south of KARGAMA, along the south eastern bank of lake BELERA. Most of the city is devoted to trade and maintaining the trade network with the VESPERTINE LEAGUE (Pop. c. 7,200).

KARGEMMA: see KARGEMMA, KINGDOM OF.

KARGEMMA, KINGDOM OF: His. Nm. Monarchy that existed in what is now KARGAMA between 1682 and 2809 RM. Its roots lie in the rise of the KARGEMMAN MERCHANT FAMILY between c. 1630 and 1660 RM following a period of increased BRIMSTONE trade. They became powerful plutocrats there, eventually rising to the position of governors of LERA, which became their base. From there they openly opposed the rule of the FEDERATION OF ELITAGRI STATES.

Originally opposed by the Order of Witnesses, who feared this new power would undermine their own, the Witnesses eventually supported them, seeing the value of being their allies. With their support the Kargemman Plutocrats were able to slowly wrest control from the Federation, establishing the $\underline{\text{KARGEMMAN MONARCHY}}$ with the backing of the Witnesses.

In 2534 RM the KORACHANI EMPIRE launched the EHRENISIAN CRUSADES, which devastated the EHRENISIAN COAST for centuries, halting trade and commerce in the region, bringing pressure to the Monarchy. The people of Kargemma slowly grew dissatisfied with the monarchy, leading to the creation of the UNITED ASSEMBLY in 2703 RM. Intended to act as a war council to ease some of the duties of the monarch, the council ended up handling daily matters, effectively ruling on behalf of the monarchs, most of whom dedicated themselves to the war.

King BRAS died in 2809 RM, just 2 days before a ceasefire was signed with Korachan. His son KARABRAS was assassinated by dissenters on the day of the signing of the treaty – a culmination of growing tensions that resulted in the abolition of the Monarchy and the instatement of the of the UNITED ASSEMBLY as the full government, with the title of JURISPRUDENT reintroduced to act as a chairperson and figurehead of the council, which remains in control of the nation, which became known as Kargama.

KARGEMMAN PLUTOCRATS: Pol. His. A rich merchant family in the FEDERATION OF ELITAGRI STATES that rose to power between c. 1630 and 1660 RM following a period of increased BRIMSTONE trade. They became powerful plutocrats there, eventually rising to the position of governors of LERA, which became their base. From there they openly opposed the rule of the FEDERATION OF ELITAGRI STATES, eventually becoming the Kargemman Monarchy in 1682 RM.

KARGEMMAN MONARCHY: Pol. His. The ruling dynasty of the KINGDOM OF KARGEMMA, which emerged from the KARGEMMAN PLUTOCRATS in 1682 RM with the legitimisation of the ORDER OF WITNESSES.

It was eventually deposed in 2809 RM following years of unrest, with king $\underline{KARABRAS}$ assassinated two days after his accession. In his place, a $\underline{JURISPRUDENT}$ was elected from within the ranks of the \underline{UNITED} $\underline{ASSEMBLY}$, leading to the appearance of the nation of $\underline{KARGAMA}$ as it is known today.

KARGEST: Set: Settlement in the c of ETUA. It is known for cultivating a strange breed of gigantic cacti, known as VYNTRA, that are unknown elsewhere. Kargest is believed to be one of few areas where vyntra dye is manufactured, which is then traded north with THE SURRACH, where it eventually finds its way across the INNER SEA REGION, where it reaches high prices at market.

KARGHEMIR: 1. Pol. Geo. One of the many states of KARGAMA, located in the west of the nation, and home to the capital city where the UNITED ASSEMBLY is located.

2. also 'the City of Mirrors'. Pol. Set. City and capital of KARGAMA since 2875 RM, replacing LERA. It is located in the west of the nation, in the north of SAMMAEA and is the home of the UNITED ASSEMBLY, where WITNESSES, lawmakers and elders convene to discuss matters of political, economic, and religious importance to the nation of Kargama. (Pop. c. 450,000).

KARIBAT: also 'the Crawling River'. Rvr. River in the east of JURRAS⁽²⁾ flowing east for 550-miles from sources in the SYNHODOS and INNORADOS Mountains. Its waters are thick and slow, due to ATRAMENTAL TAINTED from the Jurrasi Mountains.

KARIMAHAL: Geo. Badlands region in the south of KHAR NADUL. It is home to the ETERNAL TREE OF DIAOR and an isolated group of people who worship it.

KARINA: Set. Settlement in the c of SABIA, overlooking the GULF OF SZALLOST. It lies along the route of the GÂTHAN ROAD, and offers lodging to merchants passing through the settlement (Pop. c. 6,800).

KARISSINA: Rvr. Wet scrubland in the west of TZALLRACH. The region is noted for its wildlife, though its most characteristic feature is the narrow deep slot-canyons that pepper this expanse, some of which lead deep into fissures that link to the BOILING SEA and eventually the SEA OF VENTHA.

KARKADAN: Dem. & Plr. 'Karkadanni'. Also 'Lord of the Desert'. Mor. Bestial humanoid creatures characterised by a keratinous horn on their faces, thick skin, stubby fingers and large girth. Reclusive and slow of gait, they are pensive, prone to long periods of melancholy and contemplation. Karkadanni are incredibly strong, though lethargic, rarely possessed of the purpose to engage in difficult or lengthy physical pursuits. They are omnivorous, eating anything they come across, from fruits and vegetables and bark, to carcasses, though claims that they consume raw flesh are little more than rumour.

They are known as the Lord of the Desert amongst the ETHERI nomads, and the word is transliterated as Karkadan in KORACHANI, from which its imperial name originates.

Once common throughout much of SAMMAEA, they are only now seen fleetingly along the route of the SALT ROAD in RHINOCOLOURA, ETHISTONITH and AETHIOS, where they dwell in sheltered badlands. Once a proud and haughty race, the karkadanni are now shy amongst other humanoids, wearing crude cowls to cover their features.

The KORACHANI EMPIRE first made contact with karkadanni in the city of ABATH in c. 1050 RM, and they were described as: 'large grey thick-skinned beasts that walk as men, their brows heavy, their faces distorted by keratinous horns.' Original accounts were dismissed as fancy though later contact with the karkadanni and accounts of neighbouring people confirm such stories. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KARKADANNI: Lan. Language spoken by most KARKADANNI in ELYDEN. leading most linguists to believe that the surviving populations of karkadanni, scattered as they may be, are descended from a singular nation or peoples, which was wiped out by colonists and CRUSADERS in the 2nd millennium RM. See Vol II: Languages.

KARKALNA: Geo. Stone formations in the eastern face of the ERESHKIGAL, in the west of KASPIA, where the FIRMAMENT is particularly strong, creating natural arches of stone, some freestanding. The largest of these gives its name to the area, and it is a refuge to a cadre of LITHISTS, whose citadel-monastery, known as BANTELLEN, is located in the region.

KARKAMID: Set. Southern-most city in IZABAL^(1.) with links with THE SURRACH and KHARKHARADONTIS. Though not part of the IVORY ROAD, it does link Izabali trade with the aforementioned SAMMAEAN Trade-route through its own merchant caravans that trade south with IAZKIA in the Surrach (Pop. c. 381,000).

KARKARADREA: Rui. Ancient black PLAGI tower in the far north east of ETUA, to the north west of KHARKHARADONTIS in the c north of SAMMAEA. It is thought to date back to the THIRD AGE and was once part of a far larger defensive network, most of which is now buried beneath the ETUAN WASTES.

KARKARMIS: also 'the World's Sceptre'. Geo. Large mountain-chain in the c of SAMMAEA, which alongside the ACHARKHARAN and SHAKHURAN mountain forms what is commonly known as the GREAT SAMMAEAN TRIAD and serves as a natural border, dividing the central Sammaean continent into three.

The Karkarmis mountains are the northern-most of the Great Sammaean Triad and stretch from the middle of the continent, north west towards the SEA OF ORRIDA and the AIDAN GULF.

KARKATAN: 1. Geo. The south eastern—most regions of THE OLD FOREST, stretching from the limits of the TAMSRAH in the west to the VAERN in the east. This region is the area of the forest most affected by the KORACHANI EMPIRES' tenebrous presence there in past centuries, with its south eastern-most parts often barren, their soil little more than dust peppered with the petrified stumps of trees; the only reminder that the place was once forested. What little flora has managed to cling to life is twisted, broken by the increasing ATRAMENTAL presence in the region. Little fauna survives in this land. Perhaps 175-miles west of the VARRAN and RHAMIAN borders, the land is not quite so bad, though its trees are more stunted and dispersed (the larger, virginal growth removed millennia past by the empire).

The ruins of local settlements fill the region, never repopulated, but sometimes visited by forest nomads who pray for the departed souls of their brethren. The tell-tale signs of conflict and imperial logging lingers with the rusted wrecks of AMBULANTS and land-trains lying forlorn on the landscape, overgrown with weeds and vines.

2. Set. City in the south east of THE OLD FOREST, and the north of the above region and once the largest KORACHANI logging colony in THE OLD FOREST. The city was left to the DOMNITORS in 3042 RM and abandoned finally in 3280 RM following increasing cost of maintaining operations. Gigantic logging machines lie abandoned around the city and the land around it is barren for miles around, with only the rotten lifeless stumps of spent trees indicating what the region once looked like.

The city was repopulated by a range of peoples (RHAMIAN and VÂRRAN outcasts, exiled nomads from the Old Forest, and others) over the last few centuries and is now a healthy community that unites various settlements in the regeneration of the forest, and trades timber south with Vârr and east with RHAMIA (Pop. c. 33,000).

KARKATANI WALL: Mil. Str. Defensive wall in the south east of THE OLD FOREST, originally built by the KORACHANI EMPIRE as part of a trench-system used against the Old Forest in c. 2120 RM. The trenches were left to crumble by the DOMNITORS in 3042 RM and were allowed to further decay after their complete abandonment from the area in 3280 RM after which they were repurposed by the people of KARKATAN.

KARKAUTH: 1. His. Nm. Ancient kingdom in what is now the c and south east of CUTH. It appeared in c. -300 and grew slowly, spreading north and west, clashing with the older and more confident empire of MON KETTRA more than once. Its people were used to the tropical climate and better equipped at travelling across it and it ultimately prevailed, destroying Mon Kettra with the siege of its eponymous capital in 203 RM.

In 232 RM Karkauth came to control the neighbouring kingdom of ARRETOY through an arranged marriage between its High-prince and the Arretoyan crown princess. In 247 RM laws were passed making it divine right for the Karkauthi royal family to rule over what had once been Arretoy. This led to riots in which 3 members of the royal family were killed. This escalated into a civil war that ended in 253 RM, with most of what was once Arretoy declaring secession and becoming independent.

The city would survive the fall of Mon Kettra, but in 2275 RM its palace was stormed by followers of a cult of NERGAAL, and the royal family was killed. Though those responsible for the deaths were killed by KENG, the religion's leader, he nonetheless declared the rule of Karkauth over with the words: "Karkauth is no more. Today we build Cuth, and at its centre will be this church dedicated to my father, Nergaal".

Karkauth was abandoned and the city of ERKALA became the new capital of what would become known as the Dominion of Cuth, and official name that remains in use by Cuth to this day.

2. Set. Present-day settlement built atop the great ancient city of the same name^(1.). Once coastal, it is now almost 30-miles from the coast and much smaller than its ancient namesake (Pop. c. 4,000).

KARKUTHI: His. Lan. Language of the ancient KARKAUTH kingdom.
Today it is largely spoken in SURUTUR as a national tongue, and by a few in CUTH. It is descended from ancient KETTRAN. See Vol II: Languages.

KARME: Geo. A fertile region in the north west of TARTAK, overlooking the SEA OF BYSSOS. Its central expanse is dominated by a thick virginal forest, the peripheries of which have been tamed somewhat over the years, remaining now as little more than scrubland.

KARN: Flo. A hardy fruit grown in many regions of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, possibly the most recognised fruit the nations of LLACHATUL. Though relatively easy to grow, the status of fruit as the food of the rich means that few work-slaves and HELOTS are able to afford such fare. The inflated price is attributed to difficulty in growing the fruit; with fertile soil and untainted water rate commodities to come across, both of which are essential to its successful growth. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KARNAR: Geo. Plains in the south west of mainland KHAMID, characterised by their sparse vegetation and dust bowls. The region was once larger, extending east into the present PHARANX, though the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID in 101 RM left much of the region destroyed.

KARNASSIAL WASTES: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region within the larger wasteland of the EYE OF DARKNESS in KHARKHARADONTIS, to the south of the WRITHING LANDS OF ELLANAD. The region is infested with insects and vermin on account of its terrain being like a gaping open wound, festering and grotesque. Few have the stomach to venture there, though it is rife with animal life, predators, scavengers and their prey, whose lives all revolve around the raw flesh of the region.

The region is categorised as HIGHLY DANGEROUS by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

KARNIFERROUS FOREST: Sup. For. Dre. Nightmarish forest in the south east of KHARKHARADONTIS, to the west of the VRISIAS Mountains. It is thought to be a DREAMSCAPE, for its flora is of such an extreme nature that it is not believed to be the sole product of ATRAMENTAL TAINT. The trees here are an extension of the earth and their wood is more mineral in nature, and their leaves are blade-like.

The region is categorised as DANGEROUS by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

KARNIK: Sup. Set. Oas. FIRMAMENTAL oasis mirage city in the south east of SHAZGIN, in the Wastes of VERMES. It is only visible to those who are Firmamentally-sensitive, and even then, only when the sun is high and the full IVORY MOON is visible during the day. Only when those conditions are met will a few people be able to see it — a ruined city flanked by dozens of narrow minarets and fallen temples whose roofs were once held aloft by hundreds of columns.

KARNOUS: Soc. Rnk. A caste of GIGANRI known for their rust skin-colour. They stand taller than their kin and many find their way into the military or martial arts due to their size, though few amongst them would naturally gravitate towards those roles.

KAROKAN: Set. Small city in the north of ESHIR^(2.). It is built atop the ruin of an early FIFTH AGE tower, predating the arrival of ASSEER exiles. The tower has since been repurposed and rebuilt, becoming an ATRAMENTAL college (Pop. c. 16,100).

KARON: Geo. Badlands region in the south of BA'AKH, bordering ARKOS⁽¹⁾. Many of its mesas are riddled with caverns that serve as homes to SERAPIS and other creatures of the region.

KARONN: Set. Small city in the c of the tribe of DRAKAINA, in the east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 13,000).

KAROU: Set. Settlement in the north of PARAIYA, close to lake KONRA (Pop. c. 3,800).

KARPAROS: also 'Karos'. Geo. Flat-topped, mountain-chain serving as a border between the east of SAUA and the MALANI HENDECARCHY of AONIA. The mountain is around 1,000-miles long and is known for its steep fertile valleys and the few secluded passes offering points of traversal across it, most used of which is the PHANU^(3.) pass.

KARRAC: Set. Large city in the c of TETHYSIA, along the banks of lake KALIMM. The city controls trade in the c north of Tethysia, linking the coastal areas to the inland region almost 3,000-miles distant, as well as the northern cities, some 1,500-miles to the north west. As a result, the city has grown in size and prosperity and is now one or the richest cities in Tethysia (Pop. c. 420,000).

KARRAN: Geo. Equatorial salt-desert in the east of SAMMAEA, west of the OEIKITH mountain and north east of the glass plains of CHUROTH. Records indicate that the region was once rife with ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED rainforest, though this died down or was cut down to make way for open-caste mines, almost all of which have long since been deserted. the remnants of the region are now worked by a people who cultivate salt-crystals in the water-filled basins left over from ancient quarries.

KARRATH: Set. Small fortified city in the north of PHYRR, in lands contested with BASTROS, to which it owes its allegiance (Pop. c. 15,700).

KARRO: His. Ntn. Ancient FIFTH AGE culture that emerged in c. -1000 RM in the present-day east of MHAROKK and much of LIDEA. It built the so-called PYRAMIDS OF KARRO in c. -100 RM, before dying out with barely a trace in c. 150 RM. Its demise was likely exacerbated by the growth of modern cultures in the area.

KARROQ: Geo. Vast area of garigue, situated in the south east of the AHRISHENI BASIN, covering some 5,000 square-miles along the border between AHRISHEN, the HARÉSHK and SAUA, though it is commonly considered to lie within the AHRISHENI border.

The region has been contested between Ahrishen and Saua for many decades and though the two nations are not officially at war, border skirmishes are common and though each nation claims the full contested region as its own, citing cultural and historic reasons, neither state is willing to establish settlements deep within the territory.

KARRON: Geo. Island off the northern coast of KETESH, north east of the SEA OF BASSANDER, and part of the IKUAI DARBOW chain of island.

KARSIGHOR: Geo. Mountain serving as a border between the south of AETHIOS and the north of RHINOCOLOURA.

KARSIMMON VOCH: (D. 3246 RM) Art. LAASKHAN artist who is perhaps most famed for his later works, which adorn many churches and religious edifices, most notably THE MACHINE ASCENDANT, which remains in the BASILICA OF KHADON today.

KARSUS: 1. Sea. Bay in the far west of the SEA OF LYNNAE, between the nation of OBLEVIS in the west and the PARTHISAN colony of EZHIRAYA⁽²⁾ in the east.

2. Set. Small coastal city in the south of the $\underline{PARTHISAN}$ colony of $\underline{EZHIRAYA}^{(2)}$ (Pop. c. 13,500).

KARTAN: Set. Settlement in the south east of LYRIDIA DHAI, in the region of COTHON. The city is the region's only producer of crude UMBRA, which is pumped to COTHON (Pop. c. 5,400).

KARTHAN: Dem. 'Karthan'. His. Ntn. Ancient late FOURTH AGE empire, which at its height occupied the regions of present-day ANDILUTH, TARTAK, west and central KARAKHAS, and southern JURRAS⁽²⁾.

Due to the cataclysmic WAR OF SCOURGING that dominated the last centuries of the FOURTH AGE, little is known of this empire, though it is thought to have been multi-cultural, with various mortal races, including HUMANS, DVERGAI, VAPULIM, SHIE and KERATIN, as well as HALFBLOODS calling the place home. Humans were thought to have been dominant, as the necropolis of SEHSPAR bears testament to.

Rising in c. -4100 RM atop the ruin of the earlier empire of KHE SHERRIB, and peaking just after the onset of the War of Scourging in - 2000 RM, was destroyed by the war in -1700 RM, what few mortals emerged from that cataclysmic period scattering across its lands, where they would become ancestors of the Jurrassi, Tartakhid and Karakhasid people. Despite this, the nation was already in decline, corruption and religious partisanism breaking it apart, at the centre of which was an icon of strange influence known only as the IDOL OF BAPHOMET, which was found on the banks of the river Llira in c. -1850 RM.

Events in the War of Scourging left a large part of the Karthani heartland Atramentally Tainted, and the region is today known as the Cammorean Shadow, and marks the northern-most extent of the Kharkharadontis Wastes.

KARTHANIAN: His. Lan. Now-extinct late FOURTH AGE language that was spoken by the people of the KARTHAN empire. It has some similarities to TARAHAN, indicating a common root, though this debated in some linguists.

The present-day language of KARAKASHI is largely descended from Karthanian, and KERATIN across SAMMAEA and beyond can still be heard speaking regional variants of the ancient tongue. See Vol II: Languages.

KARUHADH: Set. Fortified settlement in the east of KARAKHAS, known for its monitor-mounted troops that guard the TOSLETHI PIPELINE, that runs through it (Pop. c. 10,000).

KARURN: Rvr. Old KHAMIDIAN river flowing through the present-day BROKEN LANDS. Dry canyons now dot some of the island, echoing the great river that once was.

KASA: Set. Settlement in the c of VENTHIR. Its main industry is the cultivation of cotton (Pop. c. 6,000).

KASAALK: Ind. Set. ALUMINIUM mining settlement in the east of VAALK, north of the SICHAAL Mountains (Pop. c. 4,300).

KASABAD: Str. Rvr. Artificial reservoir in the south east of TARTAK, created by the damming of the river AALARAD south of the city of HASSARAK.

KASAIS: Geo. Rocky hills dominating the north east of the PARTHISAN colony of EZHIRAYA^(2.).

KASHAAL: Dem. 'Kashaali'. Ntn. Nation in the north east of BROR^(1.). The SUPPLICANTS OF THE LEVIATHAN appeared here following their appearance in RASTAN. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

KASHAPH: Mil. Sup. Rnk. Warrior SHAPERS commonly found in the north east of the HARÉSHK, SAUA, the HENDECARCHIES of AONIA, LONAR and MYEIN in the west of MALAN, as well as parts of KHAMID. Kashaphs are organised into secluded monastic lodges where they practice their art and meditate. In some regions, or during times of intense strife, they form part of the organised armies of their homes.

KASHTA DRAVYAN: m. Mil. Pol. Per. (B. 3951 – D. 4001 RM) A PHYRRAN general in the WAR OF ECHOES, Dravyan was responsible for various key victories against MAENMISTI forces. Known for his brilliant tactics and unwavering loyalty to the IMPERIARCH, Dravyan's legacy is one of both triumph and tragedy, and he died during the bombing of a subterranean Phyrran command bunker, after which former slave captain SHIRAI NESHAVRA assumed the mantle of Phyrran general.

KASIHAAL: Dem. 'Kasihaali'. Ntn. Large nation dominating the north west of the island-continent of BROR(1.). It is of a dry climate, with scattered rocky deserts along its centre and savannahs to its north and south, with scrub forests to its far south and tropical woodlands to its far north. Its national animal is the MANED WOLF, which also features on its flag. It emerged from the surrounding GESHGHELL STATES in 3863 RM.

The far north east of the nation was invaded by settlers from the $\underline{\text{MENISCEAN}}$ nation of $\underline{\text{LAOD}}$ in the late 38^{th} century, with colonisation attempts being made between c. 3790-3810 RM, when the region was dominated by descendants of the Geshghell States, specifically $\underline{\text{ESOR}}$ in the north and $\underline{\text{ABHA}}$ in the south. These settlers became allies of the locals, trading with them goods imported from $\underline{\text{MENISCEA}}$ at good prices in return for the right to settle and work specific tracts of land, which collectively were called MEKELAOD.

The Discovery of Firmatite in c. 3832 RM made the colony very wealthy and it grew closer with natives, and the growing power of its rapidly-emerging merchant caste led to a homogenisation of culture and the increased influence of Mekelaod, with the introduction of influential trade-house across the Geshghell States.

Perhaps fuelled by hubris, the people of Mekelaod forsook their ties with Laod, eventually seceding in 3867 RM. Laod retaliated by declaring war early the next year. The war ended in c. 3873 RM with the independence of Mekelaod, which took the name Kasihaal, to which it was known to most locals. Its territories continued to expand over the following decades, eventually incorporating the former Geshghell States of Esor, EPITITOKH, VIERMAA, and MOAKKIBET by c. 3922 RM, expanding as far west as the eastern-most reaches of the Lahaed Mountains and as far south as the coast of GHAYATTAN.

Since gaining their independence, the people of Kasihaal have grown more distant from their Laodan ancestors and have embraced their multicultural heritage

The name Kasihaal is a Laodan corruption of neighbouring KASHAAL, and the two are not otherwise linked, despite their roots as descendant nations of the earlier state of Geshghell. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

KASIMMON PUMPING STATION: Ind. Str. Vast network of sewage pumping stations located in the city of KHADON, in KORACHAN. Devised by the engineer ERZHA KASIMMON in 2973 RM, and built between 2981 – 3006 RM, the pumping station was intended to help alleviate the growing problem with disease and filth the burgeoning city was experiencing at the time. Before the construction of the pumping station the river KHAD served as an 'open' sewer – though much of it had by then been vaulted over, most sewage from the city went straight into the river without any treatment, leading to outbreaks of cholera and worse.

Located next to the ERIDETH marshes, construction of the first pumping station was treated with reverence and to this day it is regarded as the pinnacle of ornamental cast iron, and many have compared it to a cathedral.

As the city expanded, so too did the need of the pumping stations, and many more were built since the completion of the first station, and there are 12 different stations to this day, which together have improved the sanitary conditions of the city, and today the river Khad, while still polluted by industry, is far cleaner than it was in the 30th century RM.

KASKEA: Set. Coastal city in the north of IZABAL^(1.) overlooking the east of the SEA OF AAHES. It is known for its shipyards and harbour (Pop. c. 50,000).

KASKEAN TOME, the: Vol. Myt. His. One of three different versions of the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, that through corroborate study have formed the basis for the most accurate modern reconstruction of the Mythologia. The other two versions are the NÁRTHELI CODEX, and the KHOLAMORI MANUSCRIPTS, and together they are known as the EXEMPLAR TRIAD.

It was discovered in a tomb outside the city of KASKEA in IZABAL^(1.) (then the west of SAGITTARIA) in 2788 RM. Despite being water-damaged, this version of the Mythologia Elyden is probably the most-studied version thanks to the relative freedom of religious belief in its country of origin. It has travelled extensively and has been studied in various cities across the INNER SEA REGION, and THE SURRACH, and as such, it has become the basis for most of the extant translations of the Mythologia Elyden. It is thought to date back to the THIRD AGE and is the eldest of the EXEMPLAR TRIAD. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

KASHERA: Set. Settlement in the west of SUOR, along the course of the river ISH DRAPA (Pop. c. 10,000).

KASPIA: Geo. This boreal land is located in the far north of LLACHATUL, just south of the SEA OF DAGGERS, and separated from SABIA by the SEA OF BIELOST, better-known as the WHITE SEA. It is known for its boreal forests and cold, windswept plains, that are home to vast herds of wild beasts and large fortified settlements that provide shelter against the elements.

Kaspia originated with the discovery of the WHITE ANGEL TAHIRA by the peasant girl HULDAH close to a lake in the north of ELDRIA in c. 1500 RM. This brought about a religious and cultural renaissance there, many aspects of which remain common to this day. The rise to power of the controversial ORREX caste in 2185 RM saw Eldria gripped by a civil war that left it sundered in two, with its eastern territories becoming known as ELLIADHA in 2205RM.

What followed were centuries of conflict as Elliadha remained a land divided, with no true power able to unite its people, all while Eldria succumbed to the decadence and tyranny of the Orrex, who eventually let the empire collapse in 2682 RM, allowing the disparate Elliadhan states to expand into its lost territories. By around 3100 RM the state of KASPIA had grown powerful enough to challenge the neighbouring states, leading to decades of conflict in which the other states allied against it, leading to the formation in 3305 RM of the ELLIANDHAN LEAGUE, ruled over by the KASPIAN HEGEMONY, which survive to this day.

Kaspian economy is reliant on the many natural resources common to the region, including ambergris and whale oil, as well as amethyst alcohol that is popular across Llachatul, which has become its largest industry.

The people of Kaspia are devout and hard-working, though are seen as superstitious by outsiders, with their many archaic customs and the ubiquitous use of the so-called WINGS OF TAHIRA in their architecture, fashion, and art. They are also known for the higher-than-average occurrence of HETEROCHROMIA. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

KASPIAL: Set. Southern-most city on the mainland of the SYCHTAN PREFECTURES (Pop. c. 15,000).

KASPIAN HEGEMONY: Pol. Ruling government of KASPIA since 3305 RM, overseeing the ELLIADHAN LEAGUE.

KASPIAN PASS, the: Geo. A mountain-pass linking the south west of KASPIA with the north of TEMUIA, it snakes its way through the c of the ILLIGARHI Mountains, around 55-miles north of the Temujan GREATTOWN of ILLHAN and 50-miles south of the Kaspian fortress of SOMNOR. It is around 50-miles west of the river BHAR in Temuja.

KASSAT: Set. Fortified mining settlement in the north of SARASTRO, known for its high-quality limestone quarries (Pop. c. 8,000).

KASSENTHE: also 'the Abominable Wastes'. Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTAL
WASTELAND in the far east of HOGGOTHA ISZ, in the south east of SAMMAEA. It is known for its fecund nature. Moments after resting ones' hand on a rock, moss- and lichen-like growths appear, only to wither hours later. The air itself is filled with latent spores and pollen, making travel here inadvisable.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{MODERATE THREAT}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}.$

KASSI: Set. Coastal settlement in the north west of KASPIA. Its main industries are fishing and whaling (Pop. c. 9,000). KASTAAR: Set. Fishing city in the east of KETESH, overlooking the SEA OF ADRA, known for the quality of its octopus (Pop c. 3,000).

KASTRA: For. Sparse woodlands dominating the south east of GNOTH and the west of AOUARIIA.

KASTRO-BANMISS CYCLE, the: Ast. Astronomical cycle that measures the combined synodic orbit of both of ELYDEN'S moons (SIELLA and ARAKHAMÉ), with a full cycle being calculated from the time when both moons are full, to the next time both are full again. This cycle lasts 1014.8 days and was detailed with modern mathematical accuracy by the ALMAGESTI astronomers TYRAN KASTRO and ROKON BANMISS in 1366 RM, though it was recognised by ancient Astronomers millennia earlier, even forming the basis of the MALANI LONG-COUNT CALENDAR, which has been dated to the early FIFTH AGE.

KAT ENNA: Sea. Large sea inlet in the c-south east of Thetis, forming an extension of the SEA OF ERUTHEA that stretches inland for over 450-miles. The inlet once stretched much farther to the north, encompassing lake TATHARA, as recently as 2,000 years ago, though it has steadily decreased with the wane of ELYDEN'S seas.

The presence of the inlet allows feeds many settlements that would otherwise have not been able to grow due to the dry climate of the area.

KATALLUANA: Pol. Str. Alabaster-shelled palace, built atop the stump of a gigantic tree, in the north east of the HENDECARCHY of MYEIN, in the north west of MALAN. The palace is the summer retreat of the HENDECARCH of Myein.

KATAMEK: Mys. One of three houses of BLOOD MAGICK, most closely associated with weakening of the body and the infliction of diseases and illnesses. See Vol IV: Other Forms of Mysticism.

KATAPHRANT: Fau. Thick-skinned THEROPS noted for its bony skin and close-sightedness. Once common in the north of SAMMAEA, though their numbers have dwindled through urbanisation and pollution, and they remain most common now in lands south west of CYHLAGHARR. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KATAR: Mil. Rnk. SAUAN foot-troops, usually melee. They are used as both professional and conscripted soldiers (where they are usually called ashakatars). Professional katars typically inherit an ancestral position; the household's honour often resting on the shoulders of those coming into the rank.

KATEKUIL: Geo. Large mountain-range in the c of HOLOLACH⁽¹⁾, and the western-most point of the BLACK MOUNTAINS in Hololach. The mountains are known for the lightning and storms that wrack their north western face.

KATET: Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of ASSAGOS in the c east of MULCIBER, in the eastern face of the GROWING MOUNTAINS. Outside the city walls is an AHHAS exclave, from where they operate a large market. It is also a base for mercantile operations east, with the SOLEYN TERRITORIES (Pop. c. 100,000).

KATHAN: 1. Geo. Region known for its massifs and mesas in the c north of KARAKHAS.

- 2. Rvr. River in the c east of KARAKHAS, flowing for 230-miles east from sources in the Kathan Massif into lake ALANCARAC. The eponymous city is built along its banks on whose banks.
- 3. Set. Small city in the east of KARAKHAS, forming part of THE SHADOW MARCH and a hostelry and caravanserai where pilgrims can rest (Pop. c. 11.500).

KATHAR BYAAT: His. Ntn. Ancient IROTHANI kingdom dominating what is now the east of SAMMAEA in the THIRD AGE OF MORTAL LIFE. Under the guidance of the DEMIURGE NYARLOTH, its domains came to encompass the entirety of the PORPHYRI PENINSULA, including the south east of present-day CHEIRA, SERROK, PORPHYR, ANANTHUL, and SABAISA.

The kingdom and its satellites fragmented after RACHANAEL'S assassination attempt of Nyarloth following their construction of the SOUL-ENGINE, leading to the rise of human domains there in the FOURTH AGE, such as EHLBEZUN.

KATHARA: 1. Geo. Island 4-miles west off the mainland of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS, west of the HELICAR Mountains.

2. Set. City on the eponymous island (Pop. c. 48,000).

KATHAVUR: Geo. Hills in the c-south east of OPHAR. They are covered in sparse brush and scattered trees.

KATHIA: Dem. 'Kathian'. Rel. Dei. Pantheon of deities of the religion of KATHISIS that is common in TETHYSIA. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KATHISIS: 1. Rel. main religion in TETHYSIA, which is made up of the KATHIAN pantheon. Over the years belief in the pantheon has died down to the point that it is almost considered a monotheism cantered around the primary deity Kathisis^(2.), with the more popular of the secondary deities now little different to the patron saints venerated by the THREE CHURCHES OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. Belief in the single god Kathisis became widespread in the decades around 3100 RM. Children taking part in the COMING-OF-AGE RITUAL known as the EMBRACE OF KATHISIS speak the name of a secondary deity, which will serve as a patron. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

2. Rel. Dei. Head deity of the $\underline{\text{KATHIAN}}$ pantheon of the $\underline{\text{TETHYSIAN}}$ religion of Kathisis⁽¹⁾. In life the deity was known as $\underline{\text{KATHISIS}}$, THE $\underline{\text{PROPHET}}$. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

KATHISIS, EMBRACE OF: Soc. COMING-OF-AGE RITUAL in TETHYSIA where a priest of the CHURCH OF KATHISIS blesses those who have reached the age of 16 in the past year. The titular embrace involves the child kneeling before a priest, who dubs them with a BLADED STAFF. Upon standing the child recites a passage from the religion's holy text in which they declare their allegiance to Kathisis and one of the secondary deities from the church, who will from that point onwards act as a patron, who they will serve and pray to in their shrines.

Men who complete the ritual are allowed to grow beards and women to grow their hair out, which until then are practices forbidden to them.

KATHISIS, THE PROPHET: (B. 1549 – D. 1691 RM) Rel. Pol. founder of TETHYSIA. Born in RHEA in 1549 RM to priests of the AURADIAN faith, he grew up amid political unrest in the city of DIONDAWA. He was an apprentice devotee when the main temple of Auradia burnt down during escalating riots. His mother was killed amid the chaos and his father was imprisoned and later executed for defending other priests from attack.

Disillusioned by the events around him, Kathisis forsook the teachings of Auradia and the leadership of Diondawa, and began preaching a new philosophy that espoused peace and freedom.

He amassed a small following of faithful supporters, though grew notorious and was persecuted by the same forces that had killed his father. He fled to the north east with a handful of followers. He settled in the jungles of SISCSAEN for some years though he was hounded there too and was forced out of Rhea in 1552 RM.

He settled in what is today $\underline{\text{THETIS}}$ for some years, but was plagued by visions and $\underline{\text{DREAMS}}$, and finally headed north again with thousands of followers, settling in the lands of $\underline{\text{PHOL EGEDDA}}$ in the Far east of $\underline{\text{EASTERN LLACHATUL}}$, where he founded the city of $\underline{\text{TETHYS}}$ in 1592 RM, from which the nation of Tethysia would later emerge.

For all his adult life he was haunted by the burning of the temple in his home in Rhea, and upon his death he was cremated, his ashes spread upon the ruin of the temple in Diondawa, which had caused him to undertake the pilgrimage that would lead to the founding of Tethysia. He ruled the city of Tethys until his death in 1691 RM, after which a council of priests took over until his return as an otherworldly SPIRIT (1.) in 2137 RM, after which a willing volunteer was found every generation who would be possessed by the spirit and rule as the GOD-KING.

Following his death, he was deified – a slow process that began with reverence and slowly evolved into worship. He became part of the KATHIAN pantheon by c. 1950 RM, and the pantheon slowly became less prevalent as people came to worship him over the other 'true' deities, until by c. 3100 RM the pantheon became secondary to worship of KATHISIS, at which point the religion had become monotheism, with its old pantheon relegated to roles similar to those of saints of other religions, such as the THREE CHURCHES OF THE UNDYING MACHINE.

KATLEGO: Set. City in the east of VENTHIR that rose from a small VENATHI town following destruction at the hands of the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID in 101 RM. It had become a notorious TECHNARCANIST academy by c. 1200 RM, though the academy was subsequently levelled by the forces of HETEPHERES THE STRANGLER in 1921 RM, following her increasing madness and aversion to all things technarcane.

The city dwindled following the destruction of the academy, though its ruin later became the foundation for the palace of the MAPHRAN WALADA in 1925 RM, which in later years would secretly reprise its technarcane research, unbeknownst to Queen Hetepheres. The city is now one of the few major technarcane centres in Venthir (Pop. c. 91.500).

KATOBRAGHA: 1. Lan. Ancient name for what is today more commonly known as the PANTHEON ISLES, in the east of LLACHATUL.

2. Pol. Monarchy in the PANTHEON ISLES that ruled between 1003 – c. 1320 RM. It fell to misappropriation of funds and corruption, and was ultimately deposed by a military coup in the capital of TODRRA. The monarchy originated with the elected emperor BRUI'S refusal to hand over powers back to the Republic. He had his rivals assassinated and ruled until his death in 1021 RM, after which his son SORUI took over, beginning the Katobraghan monarchy.

KATOBGRAGHAN: Lan. Language spoken in the PANTHEON ISLES. It is old, and predates the KATOBRAGHAN monarchy by some centuries, possibly originating from the remnants of a FOURTH AGE language that was once spoken in the region. See Vol II: Languages.

KATONA BASTION CEMETERY: Rel. Str. Garden cemetery in the south of the main peninsula in the city of ALMAGEST, built atop an old decommissioned bastion. Many prominent figures from the city's cultural life are buried here in large family crypts that stretch deep within and below the bastion's walls.

KATOPRACH: Geo. Region in the south east of the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes, known for its oases. These oases were traditionally safe territory, where merchants and nomads could stop and rest and replenish their water without fear of attack or enmity.

Following the founding of the KORACHANI colony of NOAVATUR, Korachani trailblazers forged a route linking northern Korachani territories with the colony. This route passed through the Umbra Sokhar, and utilised the oases of Katoprach, many of which were converted into caravanserais, most of which are now abandoned, allowed to be reclaimed by nature by the etheri nomads who continue to use the oases today.

KATON: Rel. One of five aspects of the PENTATAEL religion of ELAT and AYAD. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KATORAS: Set. City in the c of the tribe of ORIM, in the far west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 28,000).

KATRAN: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the south west of KHURAUR, overlooking the GAP OF ALGOL, leading into the ALGOL HAREN. The forest serves those undertaking THE SHADOW MARCH.

KATRIS: Set. Settlement in the c of the PARTHISAN colony of EZHIRAYA^(2.), in the east of MENISCEA, situated along the course of river STAMMUN^(1.). Its main industry is agriculture (Pop. c. 7,500).

KATTAR: Geo. Mountain-chain in the west of ATARAXIA, forming part of the TOLIASOR mountain-chain.

KATTAROCHIA: Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of BBURUL in the south east of MULCIBER. It is perhaps the most representative city in the region – built over a vast network of ancient catacombs and crypts, it is a place of two halves – blocky stone structures above ground, and cool dwellings below.

The city is a refuge to a large AHHAS community, which forms a ghetto in the upland region and operates airship towers, which are used to transport goods over the south of the GROWING MOUNTAINS, though are forced to close during monsoon season that lasts for 3-months. The skyport is the south eastern-most stop of a large route that crosses Mulciber, from the city of GLODONT in the tribe of DATHOA in the west, and KARAL in the tribe of LEGEO in the c. (Pop. c. 55,000).

KATTIHAN: For. Rainforest in the east of SAMMAEA, comprising the far south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, and much of FLEKHID.

KATTRUTH: Set. Small fortified city in the south west of GNOTH, close to the border with AQUARIIA. It is home to large trade yards as well as large interior market, where goods are imported and exported (Pop. c. 18,000).

KATU: Set. Settlement in the east of the tribe of LEGEO, in the c south of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 4,500).

KATUC: Set. Small city in the c west of TETHYSIA, situated along the river KALIMM. It is renowned in Tethysia for its silversmiths (Pop. c. 32,000).

KAUDOS, BELFRY OF: Mil. Str. Large dome-like tower in the south east of the tribe of ORIM, in the far west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It guards the pass across the BAESIN ridge into the tribe of EATAN, and its monolithic bronze bell, said to date back to the FOURTH AGE, rings out in times of danger.

The bell is considered by some historians to be one of the WONDERS OF THE ANCIENT WORLD, due to the inherent difficulty in casting a bronze bell in such a great size without compromising its quality.

KATURUSH: Set. Fortified city-state in the west of THE SURRACH, in the north west of SAMMAEA, known for its elephant-riding mercenaries and their expert mahouts (Pop. c. 50,000).

KAUIN: Geo. Mountain in the south east of VENTHIR. Around 250-miles long, it stretches from the WORKNAH Mountain in the west to the scrublands of the ERATHA in the north east of Venthir. The mountains are relatively low and very old, with the time-weathered remnants of ancient mines and quarries peppering the region.

KAUKHALD: 1. Geo. northern-most point of TETHYSIA, in the north eastern face of the ARGENT Mountains. Though it lies at around 42° north, the climate there is far colder than it should be, likely due to localised trends in the ARCANE TEMPERS. It is by far the coldest place in Tethysia and one of its least-explored regions, with several strange features – not all of them natural; all of them ancient, nestled in the crumbling foothills of the dying mountains in whose foothills it is found.
2. Mil. Str. A solitary fortress situated along the western-most reaches of the ROTTING MOUNTAINS to the north east of the ARGENT Mountains in the far north of TETHYSIA. The fortress has stood there for many years, with the first known records mentioning it c. 3200 RM.

KAUR: 1. Lak. Lake in the tribal territories of AUEREN in the north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, along the course of river THAUR. The city of KURDA lies along its north eastern banks.

2. Lak. Ephemeral lake in the far west of PARAIYA, in the KAURCAN basin, along the border with KARAKHAS.

KAURCAN: Geo. Expansive dry basin in the north west of PARAIYA. It was once home to the old capital of Paraiya, BAKKOU, and was filled with fertile farmlands, though there were razed close to two centuries ago in the civil war that saw Bakkou razed and the capital moved to SOPORA in 3813 RM and the fields fell into disuse, and have since been reclaimed by nature.

The region is bordered by the URATH and AGOUTRA Mountains, and though it was always somewhat dry, over the past decades it has become increasingly arid, leading some to think that supranatural forces may be contributing to the dryness.

KAURIDIA, BOTUM OF SHERA: (B. 3980) Mil. Pol. TZALLRACHI BOTUM (warrior-princess). *

KAURKHA: Geo. Arid region comprising the eastern-most part of the fold Mountains of HA'DDHOTHAT, in the far north of RHEA, forming a border with the west of THETIS. It is peppered with ancient ACCACINATHI ruins and also serves as the south western-most border of the RTHEI desert.

The region is dry and largely unpopulated, and it is crumbling, making travel across it rare.

KAURNAKAR: Pol. Set. Capital city of NAARETH. One of the major cities along the EAST ROAD trade-route, it is one of only a few truly metropolitan Naarethi cities that hosts foreigners (mostly merchants and travellers) in any significant numbers. Due to this it is most outsiders' source of Naarethi culture.

The city is divided into large walled districts, each of which is ruled by a MATRIARCH who forms part of both the city's' and nations' ruling council. Like in most Naarethi settlements, its males form a lower-caste of workers, labourers and soldiers (Pop. c. 1,800,000).

KAURUSH: Set. Settlement on the island of HAR FARRASH, in the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT, 120-miles north east off the coast of mainland. Its major industry is logging (Pop. c. 7,200).

KAUS: 1. Set. Settlement in the south east of AQUARIIA, known for its cotton production (Pop. c. 6,000).

2. Set. Settlement in the c of GNOTH (Pop. c. 5,000).

KAUTULD: Geo. Dry plains in the north east of SARAGOS covering some 70,000-miles. Originally forming the southern-most part of VENTHIR, the region was settled by TECHNARCANIST exiles in 1939 RM, and became the birthplace of the Technocratic Republic of Saragos, which would expand south over the next centuries.

KAVALOIKA: Set. Coastal city in the far south east of PELASGOS, overlooking the SEA OF SPIRES. It is a major stop along the course of the RED ROUTE and has many hostels and inns where those travelling the road can rest (Pop. c. 1,200).

KAVER: Ser. Small city in the south east of BA'AKH. It was once a metropolis that united the capital city ASISH in the south with other cities around it to the west and north, but by the time the region was abandoned to the DOMNITORS in 2732 RM many surrounding cities had begun to wane and the city also dwindled in influence and size. It remains today as a largely independent city with little contact with the outside world other than Asish (Pop. c. 14,000).

KAVLASS: Ind. Set. Manufactory-settlement in the south west of PELASGOS, and home of ST. KYTHIA (Pop. c. 15,800).

KAVA: Set. Coastal city in the north of AYAD, overlooking the BAY OF ORAT. It was once famed for its lighthouse, which was destroyed in a storm in 3823 RM and never rebuilt. The lighthouse was a repository for ATRAMENTAL relics, which were enfeebled by its proximity to the NULLAMBIT. Many of the relics were lost during the collapse of the lighthouse, though most were relocated to FELATHRI (Pop. c. 40,000).

KAVALOI: Geo. Scrubland in the east of PELASGOS, stretching for 80-miles in a north - south direction and 35-miles west-to-east from the south eastern face of the TEREKION Mountains.

KAVIE: Mil. Str. Coastal fortress in the south west of THE SURRACH, on the headland of BHAADA^(1.), guarding the entrance into the UBIQUA delta.

KAVVANA: Set. Settlement in the c of GNOTH, along the course of the river NEPHOT at the eastern-most shore of lake IMAGA (Pop. c. 6,000).

KAXHANES: Geo. Mountains the PANTHEON ISLES, situated within then KARAXHANES peninsula.

KAYAWON: Set. Settlement in the north of KREM (Pop. c. 4,000).

KAYHIKH: Int. Ind. Geo. Expansive rock-UMBRA quarries in the c south west of CYHLAGHARR. The umbra found here is very rare and noted for its harness, making extraction by machinery difficult. Due to this the quarries are manned by slaves drawn from across the INNER SEA REGION as well as Cyhlagharri convicts sentenced to manual labour. Few workers in Kayhikh last more than a few years (including the infamously resilient OGHURS themselves) due to the harsh conditions and umbra dust filling the air.

The name Kathikh is used for both the larger region, which covers a vast area of some 25,000 square-miles, and also the region specifically dedicated to the quarrying operations. Most of Kayhikh is covered in difficult terrain, and DUSTSTONE formations are not uncommon, making the region very sparsely populated, even by Cyhlagharri standards.

The largest mines in the regtion are EHYN, VYGNAR, and HYNDR.

The region is categorised as a MODERATE THREAT by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES though the dust released from the mining effectively makes this worse.

KAYKOV: Rui. Abandoned city in the north of NARTHEL. Trees grow from the hollow shells of empty buildings and vehicles, as though they were abandoned suddenly. Little is known of the fate that befell this city but it was a thriving centre of trade as recently as 3-decades ago.

KAZARAN: Rui. Abandoned mines in the west of TARTAK, originally used by the KORACHANI occupation.

KAZE'KA: Set. Fortified settlement in the c of the tribe of SUUR'KA, in the north east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 6,000).

KAZIR: Set. Major coastal city in the c north of KAZZAR^(2.), in the north of SAMMAEA. It originated as a PARTHISAN colony in 2148 RM, though broke away from the parent state, eventually growing into the nation of KAZZAR. It was capital until 3465 RM, at which point the GODSLAYERS, rising rapidly in power, moved the capital to AAMINA. Today it is a major industrial centre (Pop. c. 338,000).

KAZIRAN: Lan. Language spoken in KAZZAR⁽²⁾, in the c north west of SAMMAEA. It emerged from SETTARAN in c. 2300 RM following over a century of Parthisan colonialism in KAZIR. The Parthisan influence ended in 2545 RM, following the regions' independence, and it has since become more similar to Settaran. See Vol II: Languages.

KAZZAR: Dem. 'Kazzarar'. 1. Geo. Peninsula in the north of SAMMAEA, protruding north into the SEA OF ORRIDA, separating it into the SEA OF ESCHATA in the east.

2. Nm. A sovereign state in the north west of SAMMAEA, in the eponymous peninsula⁽¹⁾. Its climate varies from hot and dry in the south, to more temperate and wet in the north. Though of varied terrain, it is characterised by undulating hills and rocky massifs.

The history of Kazzar can be traced back to an early FIFTH AGE culture known as the CHIWENOOL, which fragmented in c. 500 RM, paving the way for a more prudent meticulous culture of traders, stone-masons and engineers known as the SETTARS, who, despite the dryness of its climate, managed to water their civilisation through ingenious aqueducts and great wells. The Settars eventually gave way to a sovereignty in c. 1150 RM, which saw dynasties of fickle kings and emperors who ruled to varied effect over the next millennium.

The PARTHISAN colony of Kafir was founded in the c north east of the peninsula in 2148 RM, creating friction with the current dynastic rulers, who viewed this as an act of aggression. War followed, with the superior military might of Parthis securing victory, and allowing its forces to secure the colony, allowing it to spread farther north over the coming decades.

The lands south of the colony of Kazir came under control of the ALCHIARAN DYNASTY in 2417 RM. This newfound unity allowed the Alchiarans to consolidate their forces, and they construct great fortifications to defend their borders from the Parthisan colonies, leading to increased tensions between the two regions, despite attempts from Kazir to open trade.

The colony of Kafir, its name by then corrupted to KAZIR by natives, thrived for centuries, adopting the secular beliefs of its parent state and enjoying foreign trade and relations with the Inner Sea region until the period of conflict known as the TIME OF TWO KINGS wracked Parthis in 2542 RM. Kazir declared its independence during this tumultuous time, and by the time Parthis had emerged as an empire in 2546 RM, Kazir had severed ties with its parent state.

Its culture evolved following its independence, taking on a more notedly Sammaean tone, though it not only retained the secular nature of its parent-nation but became increasingly atheistic, denouncing claims of the DEMIURGES divinity and exposing the falsities of organised religions.

Shorn from its Parthisan roots, the region begins calling itself Kazzar by c. 2800 RM as the established KAZIRAN tongue began to eschew its Parthisan influence.

Kazzar welcomed the GODSLAYERS to its lands in 3148 RM, where they became increasingly influential, exerting their influence over many institutions, and planting their roots, ensuring that the region retained its atheistic beliefs. They launched CRUSADES into neighbouring TATAR, with the hopes of toppling its ancient RELIGION.

In Tatar, the growing power of the Alchiaran Dynasty following their newfound supranatural LONGEVITY, and the cult of personality that they cultivated were never far from the attentions of the Godslayers, and in c. 3250 RM they doubled down on their crusades against the nation, infiltrating its cities and spreading heretical thoughts amongst its people. They gained a sizeable following in the independent region of SYRYSA, whose people became vocal detractors of the Dynasty and its members' deification. In the ensuing battles, Kazzar was able to appropriate much territory from Tatar, and Syrysa crippled the nation in a civil war, that by 3372 RM led to the slaying of the royal family.

Despite their efforts, the Godslayers were never able to get a foothold in Tatar, and its people reverted to worship of their nameless deity.

The growing power of the Godslayers led to them seamlessly assuming power in 3562 RM, taking control of the republic that had controlled Kazzar since its independence. Within a decade the republic had become known as the UNIVERSITY, and was made up exclusively of members of the Godslayers, who in turn recruited from all social classes and ethnicities.

Under the rule of the University, Kazzar became a more militant land under their control, closing its borders to all but its most trusted allies, becoming a base to the Godslayer organisation, which used its cities as recruitment grounds. Followers from across Elyden flocked to Kazzar, bringing trade and new industries with them.

In 3565 RM the Godslayers established their capital in the city of AAMINA (replacing Kazir), which was already a powerful stronghold that had been under their control for centuries. Today it is a great metropolis, and a melting pot of cultures from across Elyden, brought by immigrants who have followed the Godslayers' tenets to Kazzar. This multiculturalism has seeped into the culture of Kazzar itself, and one can hear dozens of languages spoken in most of its cities, with the fashions and architecture of all four continents represented in some form or other.

The people of Kazzar are renowned around the Inner Sea for their disregard of the dead. Though the family they leave behind take part in a ritual of remembrance, the body is burnt to prevent the spread of disease. The ashes are given little heed and are emptied into pits beside the crematoriums. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KEATALL: Set. Settlement in the east of TAHALL (Pop. c. 10,000).

KEBBARA: Set. Small city in the north of PNESSA, along the course of the river DABBARA (Pop. c. 20,000).

KEBBET: Set. Small coastal city in the c of GIBEAH (Pop. c. 7,300).

KEBETT: Lak. Endorheic seasonal lake in the c south of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT that fills periodically following flooding to the south east.

KEBIR: Set. Coastal city in a peninsula in the north of TATAR. It has maintained a feud with the ESHIRAN^(2,) capital AGAIR over control of the entrance into the GULF OF ESHIRON, though recent events have caused it to lose influence in the region; a blow that Tatar is yet to recover from.

Nevertheless, it remains a powerful and influential city in the region, commanding a powerful navy and army (Pop. c. 104,000).

KEBRACHAN: His. Set. Major KORACHANI caravanserai in the region of KATOPRACH, in the south east of the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes, where it formed a part of the NOAVATURI TRAIL. It was abandoned in c. 1040 RM following a wane in contact between Korachan and NOAVATUR, which by then had become an independent nation.

KEDAADA: Ser. Major coastal city on the north of the island of CAMARA in the north east of the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA. It is the largest city on the island and is surrounded by many miles of farmland and their respective settlements and farmsteads. It is also home to one of the few major manufactories in the Baronies (Pop. c. 234,200).

KEELA: Set. Major fortified city in the far south of ADHERA. It is situated high on a headland and commands an impressive view of the SEA OF MERCUVIA. Though not coastal, it is close to the sea and is surrounded by many smaller satellite nations that subsist on fishing and which provide it with much of its food. It was a historical meeting place, and the city of today was built atop a large amphitheatre where early FIFTH AGE people would meet. Known as the PEOPLE'S EAR, it would become the centre of the first united Fifth Age culture in Adhera, becoming the capital of its precursor state, OTHERA (Pop. c. 587,000).

KEENING TOWER, the: Str. Pylon-like tower in the frozen north east of EASTERN THANO, overlooking the sea of SEA OF INGALAT. It is named after the cacophonous wailing that emanates from hollows located along its surface that amplify the sound of the harsh boreal winds that hit it.

The tower is ancient, thought to date to the FOURTH AGE, as its worn edges and smooth wind-polished surface bear testament to. The structure was once hollow, though was sealed off with concrete centuries ago for no known reason. Mariners who pass close to the structure claim to sometimes see unexplained glowing lights around it.

KEEPER OF FABLES: Rel. Edu. Rnk. ETHERI holy figures in the UMBRA SOKHAR who safeguard the oral histories of their people. Most etheri nomadic groups are centred around a Keeper of Fables, who every night tells a tale or parable from their history. This serves to unite the group in its understanding of history. Each group will have favourite tales that it identifies with, giving each group a unique character that may lead to disagreements between groups based on the historical and fantastical figures they follow.

KEEPERS OF THE CITIES: Pol. Org. Order of independent peacekeepers in the VESPERTINE LEAGUE⁽²⁾ that was formed in 2679 RM to uphold the word of the CONCLAVE OF CITIES – the accords that served to unite the hundreds of disparate states and cities of the Vespertine region.

The Keepers of the Cities patrol the expansive territories of the League, making sure that all their cities are ruling in accordance with the Conclave of Cities. They serve many roles including that of tax collectors, police, political watchdogs, lawkeepers, and soldiers. They are funded through the taxes collected by the cities and also receive donations from wealthy benefactors, which has led to no small degree of corruption amongst their ranks, with certain cities afforded certain clemencies that others were not.

They are well-equipped, though funds are not divided evenly across the Vespertine Leagues, with some regions, particularly the south, being underfunded and underrepresented.

Their headquarters are based in the city of MATHIS, though they have various regional fortresses across the Vespertine League, with most major cities at least having an office.

KEEPERS OF THE KEYS: Mil. Pol. Rnk. Rank within the VÁMAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, whose members are experienced agents, drawn from the lesser groups within the Order, including the WARDENS^(1.). Named after the Order's emblem, the Keepers are skilled at tracking and subduing SHAPERS, and many of them are shapers themselves.

KEFRA: Set. Fortified settlement in the far west of ESHIR⁽²⁾. Its main industry is copper mining (Pop. c. 6,000).

KEFSUTH: Set. Settlement in the far east of THETIS (Pop. c. 7,200).

KEGHOK: Rvr. River in ALAM BETHYL, flowing east for over 1,600-miles from sources in the AZAKKALIN Massif, the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains, and the VHUZUNGI Mountains, amongst others, before reaching the coast at the BAY OF OLOTAR. It dominated the Bethylan basin, providing the entire region with water and fertilising its plains with sediment carried from the west.

KEGHUARON: Int. Rel. Obj. Gigantic embalmed heart preserved within a temple in the city of BUTO in the east of SURUTUR. The heart is around 10-ft tall and was discovered by the prophet MAMASUS in the wetlands in the south of the delta of the river ENNOIA in 3486 RM. It rapidly became the subject of veneration in the city of Buto. Since its appearance in Buto, Keghuaron spread across various cities and regions of Surutur, though is secondary to the main faith of KABIRI, which remains the state religion today. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KEHA: Ser. Major city in the north of MHAROKK. Keha remained the only sizeable city in the north of Mharokk following the defection of NUTHACHAN to the HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN. It boasts a sizeable military presence due to its proximity to the Korachani border, and is known for its manufactory where CLONES used in the city's military are incepted (Pop. c. 38,000).

KEHUAGH: 1. Sct. City in the c-south east of AHRISHEN, between lake CRENEISA and MASTI (Pop. c. 36,300).

2. Rvr. Artificial canal in the c-south east of AHRISHEN, measuring some 12-miles long, connecting lake CRENEISA in the west with lake MASTI in the east. It has 9 major locks.

KEHUD THOTH: Sup. Geo. A FIRMAMENTAL environment in the far south of the rocky EIDOGOTATH region that dominates the south east of TETHYSIA. Deep chasms riddle the region, above which float gigantic disks of a FIRMAMENTALLY-SENSITIVE metal-like ore. It is unknown if they are the product of some past civilisation or an as-yet undetermined natural phenomenon due to the region's apparent closeness to the NEHNAXIA.

KEIJIR: Sea. Large bay in the south of HANNAH, to the west of the PHILIAN peninsula. Its waters are quire deep and characterises by many smaller bays, inlets, and natural harbours. The lighthouse of COPTOS has guarded the entrance into harbour for millennia.

KEILA: Set. TEMUJAN enclave in the south of KASPIA. It acts as a trade intermediary between Temuja and Kaspia (Pop. c. 12,000).

KEIMA, the: 1. Geo. Region in the north east of RHEA, leading south east towards the coast along the political border with THETIS. The region is smooth and not densely forested, and is strewn with large dark rugged rocks and boulders, possibly the remnants of an ancient glacier.

2. Set. Small city in the east of above region⁽¹⁾, in the north east of RHEA. Built around a large spring, and along the course of river KERAKOIA.

The city originated from gold panning that was common in the area between c. 1210-1580 RM. The river was dammed, with multiple sluices built in c. 1510 RM, though soon after the yields dwindled, causing the settlement to diminish. It was abandoned in c. 1640 RM though was later resettled in 2743 RM. the city has since been fortified due to its position close to the border with Thetis, and it forms part of a link with the eastern nation (Pop. c. 17,400).

KEINYING: Rvr. River in the north east of the UMBRA SOKHAR, flowing east for 170-miles before it meets lake C'KHAMAR. Its waters are tainted by the ATRAMENTA and flow sluggishly whilst under its influence. By the time the waters reach lake C'khamar, they are relatively clean.

KEKALAKIB: Com. Set. Large trade city in the north east of VAALK, along the course of the river KEKALA (Pop. c. 89,000).

KEKAPHONOS: Rvr. River and seasonal lake in the c north of EZASUH⁽²⁾ flowing for 290-miles from sources in the THABAT Mountains before emptying in the SEA OF LIAKARRA.

KEKEALA: Rvr. River in the north east of VAALK that flows for 165-miles from its source in the SICHAAL Mountains, before reaching the BAY OF ADRA.

KEKELIB: His. Set. Once-capital of the ancient YARAOMIC territories of MHARAKA. Founded by the SHEPHERD KING in c. -20 RM at the mouth of the river FATHA (now 85-miles from the coast), it rapidly became a powerful metropolis by c. 200 RM, its armies defending its borders from KORACHANI incursion.

The Shepherd King was assassinated under mysterious circumstances in 903 RM, leading to chaos in the region, into which Korachan would begin sending missionaries and EXOCRINES between 700 – 950 RM along the eastern coast, and along the mouth of the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.), which helped to further destabilise the region, including Kekelib, which was besieged in 932 RM and sacked the next year.

It was never resettled, though became a haven to bandits for centuries later, though is now largely forgotten, with little remining of its ancient people.

KEKET: Rvr. Small river in the north west of TZALLRACH, flowing west for 110-miles from sources in the MAR ISS and the KANDON Mountains, before meeting the coast.

KEKHEMM: Set. Independent city-state forming an enclave within the far east of the Deep Surrach, to the west of the Aboshathot Mountains. It is populated by Keratin – one of few such settlements remaining in the extant known world – who make little contact with the outside world, other than occasional trade with The Surrach. They are known to scar themselves and sacrifice their own flesh to their mysterious deity. They are fiercely territorial and defend their small part of the Surrach savagely (Pop. c. unknown).

KEKHEMMI: Lan. SAVIUDI dialect spoken in KEKHEMM. See Vol II: Languages.

KEKRACHAN: Set. KORACHANI slaver colony established in NOAVATUR in c. 900 RM. Today it is known as KEKRAKA, and remains a thriving city in Noavatur

KEKRAKA: Set. City in NOAVATUR overlooking the SEA OF RTHAS. The city is situated along the coastal banks of the river DRORMA, perched high in defence of tidal waters. It once dominated trade in Noavatur, receiving goods from across the SEA OF LETHEA, sending them north to the KORACHANI EMPIRE across the Noavaturi Trail, though the increasing dangers via the UMBRA SOKHAR have seen the city dwindle in size. It was greatly damaged in the UPHEAVAL OF LETHEA, though was later rebuilt, almost from scratch (Pop. c. 43,500).

KEKRHITH: Set. Coastal city in the north west of the CITIZENRY OF THALI SAMMAEA, close to the city-state of CADERE. It is known for its harbours, and surrounding settlements are believed to be rich in minerals, and mining is a major industry there.

Over the past half-century ATRAMENTAL CORRUPTION has been on the increase and in 3979 RM a SIPHON ENGINE was installed to help counter its effects (Pop. c. 45,000).

KELACHOT: Geo. Jagged mountain-range in the south west of KARAKHAS, measuring some 600-miles long, parts of which from the west and southern border of the nation. Its southern face is weak, and landslides are common as DUSTSTONE crumbles endlessly from exposure to the ATRAMENTA, particularly in the region of GNATHALLO.

KELAT: (12,045-ft.) Geo. Mount in the GAEFANG Mountain.

KELEDAGAZ: Soc. Rnk. The day-callers of AHRISHEN, who organise the AHRISHENI CALENDAR, deciding on the length and festivals of each given period.

KELL: Pol. Soc. Now-defunct PATRICIAN HOUSE in PARTHIS. It ended with the death of ALIGOR KELL, who died penniless, bequeathing his estate to the KELL HOUSES — orphanages that he established across Parthis, and which he spent his life working for. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

KELL, ALIGOR: see ALIGOR KELL.

KELL HOUSES: Soc. Str. Org. Respite homes for orphaned or mistreated children that are found across PARTHIS and its vassal states. They were founded by the patrician ALIGOR KELL in 3864 RM who, using a loophole in the law, was able to establish a sanctuary for orphaned children in the city of TETHRA. He continued founding more such houses across Parthis and delegated their running to other individuals of upstanding moral character who he could trust, though he continued working with children as he travelled across the republic in the name of his philanthropy. He spent his life and fortune working to give them a solid foundation so that they could return to society as productive members.

Today the houses are responsible for taking in orphans and homeless children from across the republic, educating them and nurturing them. Many republicans and other influential members of society emerged from these institutions, and serve as great advertisements for their work. The houses operate through donations and part of the profits of work placements of residents.

KELLAÉ: Set. Small city in the north west of the BARRIER LANDS (Pop. c. 14,500).

KELLI: Set. Small fortified city in the south of CISNERIA, close to the border with ATARAXIA (Pop. c. 12,000).

KELLOIL: Geo. Massif dominating the c of KULIGALA, in the east of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.) in the east of SAMMAEA. It forms the eastern-most extension of the Carchemishi Mountains^(2.). In many cases the range is divided into two – the Kelloil Mountains in the north and the Kelloil Massif in the south, which is characterised by lower elevations and more rocky terrain that serves as a border between Kuligala and BANT.

KELTAI: Geo. Large shallow valley region in the c south west of ALAM

BETHYL known for its network of ancient stone circles, attributed to the DERUWEID race. Believed to have been made between the THIRD and FOURTH AGE, the circles were once prevalent in the region though today most lie in ruins, unrecognisable to untrained eyes. A few circles remain intact, and coincide with FIRMAMENTAL LEYS, indicating their original use.

KELTH: Com. Set. Mercantile port in the north east of HARITH^(2.), in the north east of EASTERN LLACHATUL. The city is the north eastern-most trade centre along the GREAT ROAD, and trades goods south along the coast to other cities, including TETHYSIA (Pop. c. 140,000).

KELTHYL: Set. Settlement in the south west of ALAM BETHYL, in the territory of BOTHUAR⁽¹⁾. Its main industry is iron mining (Pop. c. 6,200).

KEMAQ: Set. Coastal settlement in the east of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT, in the region of LEHLAV (Pop. c. 7,250).

KEMHAB: Geo. north eastern coast of VENTHIR, forming the south of the DARK SEA. The coast is renowned for its many old towers, numbering around 100, dating back to c. 2000 – 3000 RM, most of which are now disused or in ruin.

KEMISH: Cur. Currency in BANT, originally minted by the nation of CARCHEMISH^(4,) in c. 1155 RM. See Currency and Coinage in Elyden. KEMRUSS: 1. Sea. Narrow gulf between the XEIA delta of the river MARAGA and the south eastern mainland of OPHIUSSA.

2. Set. Major coastal city in the south east of OPHIUSSA, overlooking the XEIA delta. It is a major harbour and the largest port in Ophiussa (Pop. c. 182,000).

KENACHEL: His. Nm. KORACHANI name for the old CITADEL MOUNT of DUN KANACH, which by the time of its arrival there and subjugation of the region in 352 RM, was a ghost town, only the old noble families of its peak-top citadels remaining. The city had unopposed views of the south, stretching far into the lands of GELHANA and the lake of C'DATA, so it was fortified and garrisoned by a small contingent of troops, its ancient markets and caravanserais left to rot. War with the AUERENI barbarians of the GROWING MOUNTAINS reached the fort and in 502 it was taken and sacked by KANAATIAN foot troops and their sorcerer leaders. The place was never resettled during the war, and an earthquake in 720 RM left the mesa toppled, the city below it ruined.

KENEARTH: Set. Settlement in the south east of MHAROKK, 4-miles from the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾. It is known for its large coal exchange and coal port, and it forms part of both the SALTROAD and the RED ROUTE, where it serves as a refuelling point for AMBULANTS and other vehicles. It was originally far larger, but it suffered under months of fighting and bombardments during the WAR OF SUNDERING, and was taken by LIDEAN troops on the 28th of ALGOLEN 3705 RM, but was retaken 2-months later on the 10th LIVIALEN, remaining under Mharokkin rule since then (Pop. c. 10,000).

KENESHUL: Rel. Str. Fortified church on the eastern border of the SAKAR moors in the north east of LAASKHA. The church was abandoned with the death of lake BALA in c. 2740 RM, left to rot. A raised causeway leads into the ruin, elevating it from the surrounding wetlands.

In its zenith, the church was a bastion for pilgrims and merchants in the region, keeping them safe from banditry.

KENG WALIN: (B.2219 - D. 2274 RM). Sup. KARKAUTHI SHAPER and historian who in 2252 RM divined the name of a mummified hand discovered deep in the caves of TILLAYAN as NERGAAL. He founded a new religion that saw the hand moved to a newly-created temple, ERKALA, which was designed specifically to house it. Keng became the leader of the church as a city rapidly grew around the temple, which soon became the capital of a new state, CUTH, that rapidly overlook Karkauth.

He killed himself in 2274 RM, stirring the people of Karkauth into a religious fervour that saw many follow his actions, killing themselves in the name of Nergaal, or flagellating themselves en-masse.

Weeks later he emerged from his sarcophagus, skin blackened. Chaos erupted in the capital as people stormed the palace in 2275 RM, calling for the royal family to step down. The royal family was eventually killed and those loyal to them executed. Keng tricked them into killing each other to punish them and to be rid of them, and spoke to his acolytes for the first time since his rebirth, saying: "Karkauth is no more. Today we built Cuth, and at its centre will be this church dedicated to my father, Nergaal"

Many believed him an otherworlder and came to worship him as the prophet of Nergaal. Keng would never disclose what happened following his death and would move from his simple home to a glass reliquary behind the altar where he had killed himself, where people could venerate him. Starting in c. 2400 RM he began practicing asceticism and began meditating, never drinking or sleeping. This started a movement where many of his faithful would follow his example, dying while meditating. Those who did so were effectively mummified alive, becoming saints of Nergaal.

He would eventually stop displaying signs of consciousness in 3171 RM, and was declared dead by his acolytes, ascended to stand beside Nergaal. The knights of Keng placed themself in control of the nation but they were ousted and their ranks whittled down by the regent's forces, which later declared himself emperor following the ascent of Keng, who the regent argued, no longer had need of a regent on the mortal plane.

His death caused a schism in the CULT OF NERGAAL, which in 3259 RM was officially observed to have been divided into TWO SECTS – those who worshipped Keng as the deity, and Nergaal as his harbinger' and those who continued to observe Nergaal as the true deity and Keng as his prophet.

KENGRAD: Dei. Rel. Singular deity worshipped in GYZHA. It is thought to be a corruption of the PENTATAEL religion that predates it. The religion that surrounds its worship is known as the CHURCH OF KENGRAD, and it emerged in c. 3800 RM following the newfound independence of Gyzha from Elat, where the five aspects of the Pentatael were abandoned in favour of the singular aspect known as Kengrad. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

KENGRAD, CHURCH OF: Rel. Religion whose adherents worship the singular deity known as KENGRAD. A corruption of the PENTATAEL, it emerged in c. 3800 RM following the newfound independence of Gyzha from Elat, where the five aspects of the Pentatael were abandoned in favour of the singular aspect known as Kengrad.

KENNORS: Set. Settlement in the south of AETHIOS. It is a major source of granite in the region (Pop. c. 6,000).

KENOGAN: Set. Settlement in the region of BACALUSIA in the c west of THE SURRACH. Its main industry is cattle-rearing (Pop. c. 15,000).

KENOMA: 1. Sup. Geo. Firmamentally-active region in the south east of GNOTH.

2. Set. Small city to the south of the above region^(1.). The city is home to a FIRMAMENTAL academy, where trainee SHAPERS practice. It also forms a part of THE WAY trade-route (Pop. c. 6,000).

KENOS: Oth. A form of OTHERWORLDER known for its asceticism and selfless pursuit of wisdom. The beings are human-like in appearance, though stand taller, and appear slenderer, their eyes dark orbs. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy if Life.

KENOSIS: Set. Small fortified city in the region of BACALUSIA in the c west of THE SURRACH. Its people are known to worship an aspect of death, though little is known about it by outsiders (Pop. c. 20,000).

KENOTAPHO: Str. A monumental rock-cut tomb in the c south of RHEA, around 180-miles south west of the capital in DHERBA. It is here that the MORTAL bodies of APICES from the COURT OF DREAMS are interred following their rebirth as OTHERWORLDERS. Originally buried beneath the main structure of the Court of Dreams itself, they are relocated to Kenotapho in an elaborate procession that marches from the capital to the tombs, where the body is embalmed and interred in crypts deep beneath the north eastern foothills of the BOKKARIS Mountains.

KENOTHCHA: 1. Geo. Region in the north west of SARASTRO, characterised by a network of crowded desiccated plateaus, often connected by natural bridges. The region is arid, though covered in an indigenous form of strangler-fig that clings almost parasitically to the rocks, its roots slowly destroying the plateaus whilst keeping them tied together. The strangler-figs are the centre of a relatively thriving environment. This region, in the ancient history of Sarastro, was once a verdant river-plain that fed the SAOSTANAN civilisation from which Sarastro would later emerge, the rivers slowly carving the landscape into what it is today.

The northern expanses of the region are a major source of crude UMBRA, and are covered in umbra extraction plants arranged in rows like obscene mechanical forests that pump umbra to pipelines that take it north and east.

2. Ind. Set. MANUFACTORY city that exists purely due to the UMBRA deposits beneath the region of the same name. It is the largest of such processing plants and its ruling PATRICIAN family; HOUSE ETHAKOR, controls the region. It is a stop along the course of the RED ROUTE, and umbra produced there is sold to merchants during their circuit of the route (Pop. c. 134,000).

 $\underline{KENUNIT}{:}\ 1.\ \textit{Geo.}\ Mountain-range\ in\ the\ c\ north\ of\ \underline{EREBETH}{.}$

2. Geo. Pass across the southern part of the Kenunit Mountains.

 $\underline{\text{KEPAESIA}}\text{: }\textit{Set.}$ Major city in the c of $\underline{\text{SABAISA}}$ (Pop. c. 800,000).

KEPHALIS: See. Small city in the c of VAALK. It is a stronghold of HOUSE ATTAR, whose business in the region revolves around the cultivation of wheat and other grains, much of which is sold to merchants travelling along the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 15,200).

KEPHALON: Pol. Rnk. KORACHANI title in PELASGOS given to regional administrators. The title appeared following Korachani dominance in the region and slowly found its way in other regions, most notably $\underline{V}\hat{A}RR$ and V_{AALK} .

KEPHAMISHAI: Geo. Mountain in the south west of TRAKIA, serving as a border with THE SURRACH.

KEPHANICHAN: Set. Major conurbation and coal producer in the east of KORACHAN. The coal deposits were discovered in c. 2700 RM, meaning it is one of the few major collieries that remain in operation close to the HIGH-EMPIRE'S capital city of KHADON. It is heavily guarded and coal is moved south to ETELAN, where it is moved to barges and shipped south west to ZEPHANICHAN and HERESI (Pop. c. 38,000).

KEPHATHAO: Geo. Mountainous region in the north east of KASPIA, close to the DVERG CLADE of VEKEKRTH, forming part of the larger HRIMA Mountains. The region freezes over in winter months, becoming little more than a white sheet. Though largely uninhabited, the Kephathao region is a haven to opportunistic hunters and furriers who stalk and skin the rare creatures of the area for export to the south.

KEPHOR: Geo. Low ridge, around 75-miles long, in the c west of PELASGOS, emerging from the western face of the TEREKION Mountains.

KEPHORAIA: Rui. Abandoned fortress in the c west of PELASGOS, along the KEPHOR ridge.

KEPHOTEKR: Set. A city in the west of TURCAR, situated halfway along the river ARRIRAD and notable as the only major city in the region and a major trading centre along the GREAT ROAD (Pop. c.85,000).

KEPHUAAN: Dem. 'Kephuaani'. Ntn. Nation in the south of SAMMAEA. It is of a dry climate, and is dominated by savannahs in its north west, with humid scrubland and sparse woodlands in the south. The rocky areas and hills in the east of Kephuaan are known for their ancient SOULHAEK altars, which were central to an old FIFTH AGE religion that was observed in the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula.

The state emerged from the earlier Fifth Age nation of $\underline{\text{KAPHAAR}}$ in 3779 RM following a rapid period of relatively bloodless political revolution that ousted its old plutocratic council in the capital city, $\underline{\text{HALAGAA}}$.

Led by ARIS TALMARA, the disillusioned son of a former plutocrat, and ELENDI VARTHA, a prominent philosopher and educator, the revolution was fuelled by widespread discontent among the populace, particularly the emerging merchant middle class and the masses, who were frustrated with the growing corruption and inefficiency of the old council.

Under the guidance of various experts and lawmakers, the pair devised the PROCLAMATION OF MERIT and later established a new meritocracy early in 3780 RM and would go on to become figureheads of the new government, known as the COUNCIL OF MERIT, becoming remembered to this day as the Father and Mother of the new nation of Kephuaan (a modern corruption of the old name Kaphaar, which was itself derived from the name of the ancient idol of KAPHEIA that stands in the south of the nation to this day).

Like most nations in the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula, it owes much of its present culture to that of the Ammashi^(3.) empire that crumbled in c. 1550 RM, though it has established its own identity, particularly following the GREAT TECHNARCANE SYMPOSIUM of 3825 RM, which saw the region develop into a TECHNARCANE powerhouse in the peninsula. As Kephuaan moved into the modern era, it continued to refine its meritocratic system and expand its influence amongst its neighbours.

The state became known for its progressive views and wide-spread educational institutions (with mandated free education coming into effect across most urban centres of the state in 3931 RM), ultimately becoming a centre of innovation and excellence in the Ammashi peninsula. In 3915 RM it entered into a landmark agreement with TAAN AN to collaborate on technarcane research and infrastructure projects.

A cultural revolution took place in Kephuaan between 3940 – 3955 RM, where arts and culture flourished in the region, marked by state patronage of hundreds of artists and scholars, many of whom became influential in the region.

A comprehensive census took place in 4000 RM, that provided valuable demographical data that was put to use in future projects. See Vol III: Extinct States.

KEPHUDAD: 1. Lak. Lake in the south west of SARASTRO, in the far northern reaches of the river MORUL. 2. Set. City in the south west of $\underline{SARASTRO}$, along the northern bank of the above lake^(1,). The city is home to many slave-operated open cast diamond mines, which are heavily guarded, the products of which are sold on the $\underline{SALTROAD}$ (Pop. c. 15,800).

KERAGA: Mil. Str. Major fortification in the far east of PARAIYA, guarding the border east with N'RAKH. Its forces patrol the stretch of border against AANTH incursions.

KERAKOIA: Rvr. River in north east of RHEA, flowing south east through the KEIMA for around 800-miles from sources in the AHRAN HIGHLANDS and highlands in the west of TETHIS, before emptying in the SEA OF ERUTHEA.

KERAL: Set. Small coastal city in the far north of KARGAMA, overlooking the south of the BAY OF VIAMA (Pop. c. 12,750).

KERALL: m. Mil. Pol. Per. (D. 2683 RM) Warlord who united dozens of homesteads and city states by c. 2650 RM, founding the kingdom of HABBOT, becoming its first monarch in 2654 RM and primogenitor of its first royal dynasty. He is remembered to this day in HABOT as the founder of their state and a large statue dedicated to him stands outside the capital of AHEHAFRET.

KERAMA: Ser. Small city in the c east of SUOR. Its main industry is iron mining (Pop. c. 17,500).

KERAMIA: Set. Small city in the east of PARTHIS, famed for its production of cashmere wool (Pop. c. 20,000).

KERAMION: Rui. Ruins of an ancient stargazing culture some 10-miles south of GÂTHA, in the DESOLATION OF ASTUDAN. Specifically, it is the name given to the culture's main surviving pyramid complex.

KERAMION, PYRAMID OF: Int. His. Str. Small stepped pyramid some miles south east of GÂTHA, in the DESOLATION OF ASTUDAN. The pyramid was almost completely buried beneath soil and flood deposits, though was re-discovered by prospectors in c. 2000 RM and unearthed some years later. The pyramids inner chambers were occasionally used by Gâtha as a punishment to severe lawbreakers.

KERAMIT: Ind. Set. Mining settlement in the c of SARASTRO, between the KHO HAGOR and SOKHA Mountains. Its main export is tin (Pop. c. 18,000).

KERAS: 1. Set. Settlement in the south of THE OLD FOREST known for its production of the keras^(2.) contact poison (Pop. c. 8,000).

Obj. Poi. Contact poison manufactured in the above settlement and used by the ATTORI people and also exported south in small quantities at great profit.

KERAS, TREE OF: Flo. Poi. Stunted GEAFIR in the south of THE OLD FOREST, bordering what was once VÂRRAN territory (now abandoned, its natural resources spent), polluted and blackened by the shadow of industry. Its trunk is mishappen, knotted into hornlike shapes from which weep a viscous sap, fragrant and poisonous to the touch and unique to this tree.

The ATTORI people of the area consider the tree sacred, a symbol of the dichotomous nature of life and death, and cultivate its sap for use against its enemies. The poison is refined and often finds itself south in civilised lands, where it is a rare and valued contact poison known as $\underline{KERAS}^{(2)}$.

KERATIN: Plr. 'Keratins'. Mor. One of the original Two-and-Twenty MORTAL PEOPLES, and the children of the DEMIURGE KHARANI. They have many physical differences to humans, with the most distinctive being their lack of eyes. Instead, their upper face is a large bony ridge that grows as the keratin ages, eventually curving backwards like an elaborate crest. The crests are sexually dysmorphic, with males having larger ones, though all individuals are known to decorate their crests in dull psychoactive pigments that other races cannot see, but which keratins view as a kaleidoscope of colours. Males average around 6-ft. tall and weigh 180 – 190 lbs., with powerful bodies and skin that ranges from pale grey to dark brown, with various shades of red and purple in between.

Keratins are intrinsically linked with the BLOOD MOON ARAKHAMÉ, which was created by Kharani. Ancient SAMMAEAN legends claim that the moon was intended to be the eventual home of the IMMORTALS^(1.) that had been bequeathed to Kharani, which, through the hubris of the Demiurges were born prematurely, becoming the keratin. Specifically, the first seven keratins were born when Kharani was shaping the Blood Moon, an act that forged an eternal link between mortal and satellite. Their moods are tied to the phases of the Blood Moon, and they are laconic during the phase of the new moon, and tense during the phase of the full moon, making them quick to anger and passionate, difficult for them to control their emotions.

They are skilled with their hands – something that they commonly apply to the crafting of weapons, tools and architecture, such as cenotaphs and triumphal arches. Their ancient cultures traditionally revolved around a stratocracy or kratocracy, with the strong ruling the weak, commonly under a militaristic regime.

Though a strong and united race, keratins were relatively few in number, particularly when compared with humans. Their numbers were whittled down from fighting in countless battles during the WAR OF SCOURGING, during which they fought on both sides as loyal troops and mercenaries alike.

Today, most keratins remain in the north of SAMMAEA, particularly in KARAKHAS, KHURAUR and other cities of the TWIN EMPIRES, where they often serve as mercenaries and craftspeople. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life: Sicthain.

KERATON: Set. KARKADANNI enclave in the far east of AETHIOS. Individual karkadanni are known to sometimes travel the SALT ROAD, offering their services as guards. It is thought that many such guards originated from the enclave of Keraton, though little else is known of the city, and few are those who know its exact location (Pop. c. unknown).

KERDA: 1. Geo. Region in the far south western reaches of THE OLD FOREST. Its proximity to the iron-rich lands of the ANOMOFERROH leaves its flora relatively sparse, though large and twisted, of unique varieties that seem to thrive in the iron-rich environment.

2. Rvr. River in the south west of THE OLD FOREST that flows north east for 450-miles into lake SAPARATH, which itself empties into river IAGANNATH. Its waters are fed from many sources, including the RHAECHA, CHACTHORNYS, GORRAN, UMBRALA and NELCHA Mountains.

KERELLIT: Geo. Deserted region in the south east of ELALLIA, that is believed to have been depopulated by the LILLITU – vampiric spirits that brough disease and famine to people they visited. The region itself is beauteous, heavily forested, and filled with wildlife, though it remains shunned to this day - as the scattered ruined and abandoned historical structures attest to.

KEREM: Nm. Native name for the nation of KREM, situated south of the KARARTA Mountains in the c-south east of LLACHATUL.

KEREN: Int. Str. LODELITH tower in the TRUE MENISCUS, said to be the home of a long line of IMMORTAL sentinels.

KERES: Leg. In the myths of north western SAMMAEA, including the VESPERTINE LEAGUE, KHULL, and the CITIZENRY OF THALI, monstrous bird-like creatures that drink the blood of fallen soldiers. The people of these lands do not speak much of the keres and there are few written accounts, so little is known of them.

KERETAS: Geo. Highland region in the north of JURRAS^(2.), west of the SEA
OF AHAMA. The coastline is dominated by close to 100-miles of cliffs leading to the deep waters of the Ahama.

KEREUGH ENDISH: His. Pol. Per. (D. 3923 RM) Once-beloved commander of the NASTALI (2.) army, who in 3922 RM overthrew the government within a few bloody weeks of having shown his hand, following years of planning during which he had amassed an army of TECHNARCANE monstrosities (including TECHNACHI and HEART ENGINES); legions of troops, vehicles, and artillery; entire companies of mercenaries from across SAMMAEA; and entire cadres of powerful WARSHAPERS, all of whom had singularly sworn their allegiance to him.

He was eventually defeated and his armies destroyed almost single-handedly by the now-infamous BASILEAN SHAPER KALLAIR PHAER, who later levelled the capital city of LLAT in an uncontrolled display of the LIGHT UNDYING after being attacked by surviving supporters of Endish.

The entire bloody period and its catastrophic conclusion remain raw wounds in Nastal to this day.

KARGEMMAN: Lan. Language spoken by the people of KARGAMA. It emerged between c. 1600 – 1800 RM in the city of LERA and became the dialect of choice spoken by the CONSANGUINE DYNASTIES, and it slowly filtered to their vassal cities, becoming the official language of KARGEMMA, remaining the language of choice when the region fell under the control of the UNITED ASSEMBLY. See Vol II: Languages.

KERIKHAYANTI: Rvr. River in the east of AMMESH flowing south for over 460-miles from sources in the MEL SAGHI, IGUSIGHI and TRETHIGH Mountains before emptying into the BAY OF EMIRIL. A 35-mile stretch of the river west of the city of NUMMARA is known for its rapids and steep flanking valleys, which make navigation of its waters along the entirety of its course impossible.

KERIM: Set. Small city in the c south of SEDISIA, along the course of the MASKHADRA (Pop. c. 20,000).

KERKOPS: Fau. Small creature resembling a cross between a cat and a small monkey. They have opposable thumbs and prehensile tails and are naturally inquisitive and prone to mischief. They are relatively common in GNOTH. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KERLOSH: Ind. Set. Small city in the c north of the emirate of UKOLIST in the north of LIMOTH⁽¹⁾, along the southern shore of lake KULKON. It is a major source of silver, and played a role in the development of silversmithing and jewellery, which are now traditional vocations in neighbouring regions, particularly the city of VARANTHA (Pop. c. 11,500).

KERMES: Set. Large tanning and liming city in the north of KARAKHAS.
The city, though profitable and fulfilling an important role in imperial society is shunned by those who can avoid it, its reputation as base as that of the profession that characterises it. The city's population is comprised mostly of HUMANS and OGHUR slaves, as well as those DEGENERATES with bodies able enough to slave in the tanning pits.

The PATRICIAN HOUSES of Kermes, if financially secure and influential within the city and its many smaller satellite villages (which raise livestock whose hides and waste are crucial to the running of the main city), are shunned and regarded with disdain by other patricians, who see their wealth as uncouth (Pop. c. 160,500).

KERRAN: Geo. Peak in the ancient CITADEL MOUNT of DUN KANACH, renowned during its golden age for its great vaulted caravanserai and the large loggia markets that completely encircled the base of the mesa on which the city was built.

KERRAS PELLN: 1. Dem. 'Kerras Pellni'. Ntn. Small nation, and one of the so-called BLOOD STATES, located in the north of SAMMAEA, between KARAKHAS and the region of UMBRA SOKHAR. It separated from Karakhas in 3714 RM following the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE a decade before. The Sundering brought a sudden end to Korachani rule, which had been tenuous at the best of times, leading to political turmoil that left the nation in shambles, fragmenting before Sarastro took control of Karakhas in 3707 RM.

By then the south had devolved into a lawless region that Sarastro ignored as it concentrated on stabilising the north, which took the better part of a century. After this, it marched south with a large army and erected the great stone fortress of Kerras $Pelln^{(2)}$, after which the region later took its name.

The fortress became the centre of the Sarastroan government in the south, and a city emerged at its feet growing steadily over the years, leading to a permanent link forming between it and the city of SANGATTA to the north.

A flux in the Arcane Tempers in the Umbra Sokhar in c. 3890 RM led to increased barbarian attacks against the region of Kerras Pelln, after which the region grew unstable once more.

The fortress fell to an uprising perpetrated by oppressed keratin from across the region, who stormed it in 3896 RM, ousting the government, and taking up residence. A short conflict with Sarastro followed over the next years, after which the region was declared lost by Sarastro in 3901 RM. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

2. also 'the Scab Fortress'. Mil. Str. Citadel and capital of the eponymous nation^(1.) in the south of KARAKHAS, occupying the basin just south of the KECHALOT Mountains. The fortress originated as a SARASTROAN fortress built to control a lawless region to the south of Karakhas, in c.

3800 RM, but it was stormed and taken by a KERATIN uprising in 3896 RM, after which a war with Sarastro followed, lasting till 3901 RM, at which point the entire region was declared lost by Sarastro, becoming an independent region.

Today it is and is one of the last known remaining keratin strongholds in ELYDEN, and they guard the 14,500 square-mile region fiercely, with the so-called THREE WASTES just visible some 75-miles to the south, over the border in the UMBRA SOKHAR. Local legend tells of a time when the keratin thrived in this area, fending off attacks from PLAGI and SCIONS that spilled out of the KHARKHARADONTID deserts. Though that time has passed, the insular keratin of the fortress maintain their vigil over the region, controlling it with an iron fist (Pop. c. 179,800).

KERRASHI BIT: see BIT, KERRASHI.

KERRET: Set. City in the south east of THE SURRACH, known for its links with the LHAUS of KHALHAT (Pop. c. 29,000).

KERRON: Rui. City in the ancient KERATIN nation of FANES. The ruins of the city can be found just south west of the KATHAN Mountain, close to the city of TIRIX; its ruins now largely buried beneath soil and deposits.

KERRUM: Mil. Str. Fortress in ARKOS^(1.) built in c. 700 RM in the plains of ARAAHT. The fort became an assembly point for Arkosian armies marching against the AANTH threat in the west. In c. 710 RM the fort was base of operations for a CRUSADE, where the creatures were slowly pushed west over the AGRABU Mountain. The fort remained a bulwark of Arkosian defence in the region, though by c. 1400 it had fallen into disrepair. It was restored to working order in 1623 RM following increased banditry in the region though was later abandoned again in c. 1800 RM.

KERUESH: Set. Fortified city in the east of MECHABET. It forms part of the RED ROUTE and is known for its CHAPTER⁽²⁾ of the WHITE LEAGUE, whose FREE COMPANIONS act as guards to caravans (Pop. c. 42,000).

KERVAI: Geo. Large mountain chain in the c north of HARITH, stretching from the north west of the nation to its eastern coast.

KERVETAR: Set. Small city in the c south west of MECHABET (Pop. c. 13.400).

KESH: Set. One of the most prosperous of GREATTOWNS, situated in the south east of TEMUJA which forms a boisterous crossroads along the GREAT ROAD, with only the capital of DUARIAHAHN 125-miles north wealthier (largely due to its direct links with MALAN in the east).

The Greattown is descended from FIREBLOODED families who settled the region in c. 1200 RM and is the source of the KESHIK culture of Temuia (Pop. c. 43,000).

KESHUGHAL: His. Pol. Rnk. Historical political rank in semi-independent PARAIYA, while under the rule of the DOMNITORS. Paraiya had been under KORACHANI rule since 2132 RM and was left to the Domnitors in c. 2700 RM. Left pretty much to their own devices, the Domnitors took on more of the culture of their vassals over various generations, particularly around the city of BELUAN, where they mixed with native nobles.

By c. 2980 RM they were calling themselves Keshughals (PARAIYAN for king), and divided the land between themselves, with each having autonomous control over their own territory. They ruled for around nine centuries, growing more distant from Korachan with every generation, growing rich from growing natural food. They were easily capable of paying their tithe to the HEARTLAND and had more than enough surplus after that to sell to needy imperial governors. As a result of their efficiency, they became effectively autonomous, regents in name if not function, and left their mark on Paraiyan culture and the surrounding region. Over the years they moulded Paraiya in their own image, leaving little memory of the old Korachani occupation.

Though some believe that they had been simply forgotten in the sprawling imperial bureaucracy of a period wracked with strife, the truth is more unfortunate. The Keshughals became arrogant in their fertile demesne, and their sense of worth grew disproportionate to their true power. The relative safety of their lands meant they did not have recourse for large militaries and they knew little of true war. The extent of their military actions lay in curtailing occasional uprisings of the RUNIC TRIBES in the great plains of the south and east of the nations.

When the WAR OF SUNDERING broke out in 3703 RM Paraiya was illequipped to deal with foreign threats. The Keshughals believed they were far-enough from any conflict to be safe in refusing to pledge to the COUNCIL OF SEVEN and so remained neutral in the conflict. When LIDEA, a northern neighbour of Paraiya, entered the conflict as an antagonistic force, the Keshughals were forced to strengthen their borders along the course of the river SHIBBOLETH^(3,). The next two years were characterised by occasional incursions by Lidean armies across the river, causing tension between the various Keshughals who were unable to mount a concerted defence. It was only through the combined actions of individual Keshughal forces and the Runic tribes that Paraiya was able to fend off most attacks.

However, the end of the war brought renewed interest from Korachan and an end to the Keshughals autonomous rule. Tithes were increased threefold, leading to the region' fortunes waning alongside the influence and power of the individual Keshughals. This state of affairs reached a crux in 3792 RM, with the nation descending into a civil war in which the Keshughals fought each other over new lands and resources.

KESHEL: also 'Holy City of Keshel'. Set. Fortified city in the c of SAGITTARIA constructed over the ruin of a small town that once bordered the southern shore of the SEA OF TROIA (1.). Its construction was ordered in c. 3570 by the INTERMINABLE ONE as his palace in anticipation of the transmigration of his soul within an ITERANT body in 3582 RM. It was heavily damaged in an earthquake in 3612 RM destroying the iterant body and most of the city. After this his followers took the body to SOGASSA and interred it within a TECHNARCANE HEART ENGINE the city of Keshel was allowed to dwindle. The fortress remains now as a centre of military activity in the nation (Pop. c. 15,500).

KESHIK: Mil. Rnk. Elite cavalry in TEMUIA, drawn from FIREBLOODED youths. Famed for their feigned flight tactic, in which they pretend to flee and launch arrows at pursuing foes, they are relatively numerous and skilled in combat and diplomacy and in times of peace act as envoys and ambassadors.

Following the appearance and adoption of POWDERGUNS in Temuja the keshiks became masters of their use, largely eschewing their traditional composite bows for the more modern equipment.

KETER: Lak. Lake in the south east of GNOTH along the course of the river MALKUTH.

KETESH: 1. Geo. Dry, rocky peninsula jutting 100-miles north into THE INNER SEA from the east of VAALK, serving as a division between it and the smaller SEA OF BASSANDER.

2. also 'Qetesh', and 'City-kingdom of Ketesh'. Pol Independent region that controls the eponymous peninsula that protrudes from the northern coast of SAMMAEA into the INNER SEA.

To many, Ketesh is a blight upon ELYDEN, a place of sin and vice that most would wish did not exist. To the rest it is a place of wonders, where any pursuit imaginable can be found, for the right price. In truth, it lies somewhere between those extremes.

Located to the east of VAALK, on a rocky peninsula overlooking the INNER SEA, it gained its independence from Vaalk (then VAALTHA) in 1140 RM, an event later said by ICONOCLASTS⁽²⁾ to have been a punishment from the UNDYING MACHINE Himself for the city's sybaritic ways and a prophecy was retroactively fabricated to lend credence to the stories generated by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. Following the eradication of the deep-rooted organised crime in VAALTHA in 2309 RM, it is thought that some members of the crime families fled into Ketesh to seek refuge.

Today it is a bustling metropolis of well over a million bodies, many of which are only there temporarily whilst pursuing some form of entertainment or vice. It is renowned for its restaurants, menageries, museums, brothels, smoking halls, and other businesses offering what may be illegal or frowned upon elsewhere.

It has been largely ignored by other power since gaining its independence and has since gone on to be a haven to the richest and most influential of Elyden's denizens, whose patronage helps to keep it safe from outside interference.

Its only notable city – the capital of Ketesh⁽³⁾ – survives through tourism, gambling, and a thriving blade trade, with all other settlements in the peninsula serving the metropolis, either providing food for its near ceaseless demand, or serving as ports where exotic goods are imported from the antipodes.

The City-kingdom of Ketesh is ruled by a narcissistic byzantine monarchy that resides in the highest palace in the centre of the city, and is infamous for its decadence and adherence to ancient social norms. Tales of rotting finery and decaying riches escape the tongues of gossipmongers, but the truth is unknown to most, for members of the royal family have not left the palace in centuries.

Perhaps in response to the Church of the Undying Machine's forsaking of the city, many pilgrimages of THE SHADOW MARCH travel close to the city-state's borders, hoping to convert its sinful residents. The region responds by attacking such pilgrimages, hoping to collect bounties on important church personages who travel with the Shadow Marches. The nation is also known for its pervasive volunteer organisation, known as the MOST HUMBLE ORDER OF KETESH, whose members fill a variety of different positions of public service, including roles as diverse as civil servants, police, and military. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

3. also 'Qetesh'. Pol. Str. Capital and only major settlement of the eponymous independent region to the north east of VAALK. The city was once part of Vaalk, and became notorious in c. 800 – 1100 RM for its deprivations and licentious ways. Forsaken by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, it was quietly encouraged by to split away from its Vaalkan governance in c. 1140 RM, where it formed its own city-state, controlling the arid peninsula that surrounded it.

Though the nation has little in the form of natural resources or industries, its trade lies in the purveying of pleasure and entertainment, and sale of exotic goods, for which it is renowned across the Inner Sea and beyond, with patricians and other nobles travelling thousands of miles to savour its delights. The city was once coastal, its harbour a jewel in THE INNER SEA, though the sea's slow retreat left the harbour land-locked and after many decades of preventing the inevitable, it was abandoned it c. 3600 RM, with most sea traffic into the city coming either from the cities of IAT or ADIS, both of which are more recent and still coastal. It is a major link of the Red Route and is one if its largest consumers – with expansive caravanserais, purchase yards, and markets, where exotic goods from across the INNER SEA REGION and beyond are sold.

Due to the many influential people and nobles to travel its streets, the city has a relatively large army and policing force, with many smaller privately-funded forces and mercenary groups guarding businesses and establishments (Pop. c. 1,600,000).

KETESH BRIDGE: Arc. Mooted for many years, construction on a bridge spanning the shortest gap across STRAIT OF GATH, linking the south east of PARTHIS with the west of JURRAS^(2.), finally started in 4003 RM.

Funded by merchant houses, business consortiums, as well as the republic itself, all of which stand to profit greatly from the link, construction has been plagued by setbacks since commencing, with various groups opposing the bridge, and erratic funding. Works have been sabotaged at various points, and rumours point to agents of PATRICIAN HOUSES that control ferries and shipping lanes presently linking the nations.

Though construction technically continues to this day, there has been no active work on the bridge since early 4006 RM, and completed works cover little more than a mile on either side.

KETESHI: Lan. Language spoken in the City-kingdom of KETESH. It is old, dating back to a KORACHANI dialect common in the area when it broke away from the EMPIRE in 1140 RM. Today it is a dying language, spoken only by the archaic noble families and few others. See Vol II: Languages.

KETH: Set. Fortified settlement in the far north of ALAM BETHYL, in the west of the territory of RAIGEL⁽¹⁾. It spends close to a full month in darkness in winter, and its people are known for their grim outlook on life, but they are hardy, and honest workers (Pop. c. 3,000).

KETH ARAKODRA: Rvr. River in the c of SERROK, flowing south for 915-miles from various sources, including the HAMAIADON Mountains, before meeting the coast at the SEA OF KHURSA just south of the BAY OF RADABAD.

KETHAR: His. Pol. Geo. One of five distinct political and cultural regions to emerge from the collapse of the THERASHIAN EMPIRE in 902 RM. It was the northern-most of the five territories and occupies what are now the far south of SEPAHAUNAT, and the north west and north east of the VESPERTINE LEAGUE.

It is remembered today for having set up the code of laws known as the STAT, of which an altered version is still observed today in the Vespertine League. See Vol III: Extinct States.

KETHARTA: Set. Major city in the c north of KHULL. It is surrounded by miles upon miles of farmlands, that provide large quantities of food to the nation. In 2843 RM it was traded to the KHULLAN INQUISITION by the SORCERER-KINGS^(3.), who by then had grown desperate in the extermination of their kind. It was a futile gesture, and within a few years their kind would be wiped out and their regime ended.

The city has grown greatly since that time, and is now the largest in Khull, where it is known for its dye manufactories (Pop. c. 840,000).

KETHRA: Pol. Set. Capital of JURRAS^(2.) since 3704 RM, one year after its vassalage to PARTHIS began. The capital prior to this was in HAROSHETH, though it was moved to the west after Parthis took control, to be closer to its parent nation.

Kethra rapidly grew under Parthisan influence, gaining a population of 1-million in c. 3852 RM. It is home to many ambassadors and diplomats, both Parthisan and foreign, and it is a major centre of trade with its parent and is a major stop along the course of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 1,690,000).

KETHREDHI, TEMPLE OF: Int. Rui. Ancient temple in the west of extant KHURAUR. It was discovered by KORACHANI workers in c. 1140 RM, during digging works of a more recent archaeological site in what was the vassal state of KARAKHAS. The temple was found in pristine condition, buried under 20-ft of fine soil that had been covered by large slabs, which themselves had been buried beneath fertile soil to promote growth of endemic vegetation above it.

The temple itself had been sealed with clay to prevent soil or any other debris from despoiling its otherwise pristine interior, which was covered in black marble, gold ornaments, and ancient murals and frescoes of a style otherwise unknown.

The centre of the temple was dominated by a gigantic baroque statue of intricate design in which 22 giants could be seen in combat, standing above cowering MORTAL PEOPLES of all known kind, including HUMANS. Around the statue were the skeletons of 49 robed mortals that are believed to have killed themselves in ritual sacrifice.

Nothing is known of the culture that was responsible for the construction of the temple, its contents, and the events that led to its sealing, and there are no written words anywhere in the temple that may provide clues as to their origins.

Speculations as to the purpose of the temple and the sacrifice vary greatly, and the most commonly-accepted explanation is that the temple was built by a small group of early mortals that splintered from their tribes very early in the history of mortal culture, possibly the SECOND AGE. It is unknown how they survived without the aid of the DEMIURGES (who are commonly accepted to be the subjects of the great statue in the centre of the temple), how they were able to construct such a complex structure, and what made them bury it.

The statue was removed from the temple in 1180 RM and now stands in private viewing chamber deep within the ARAK ABH in DEKANA, outside of public scrutiny.

KETLANDIR: Set. City in the north of ALMAGEST, known for its UMBRA farms and SIPHON ENGINES. The city is close to the ATRAMENTALLY-ACTIVE region of AFFISH, which has polluted the waters of river KETTCHA, which was dammed in 3721 RM, resulting in the creation of lake SYTNA, which is filtered and processed for use in the city (Pop. c. 13,500).

KETRUVA: Sect. Small city in the north of AHKA, once known for its libraries and writing tradition. Today, its southern districts are all but destroyed and it is little-more than a recruiting ground for the Ahkan military (Pop. c. 20,000).

KETTARANG: His. Nm. Predecessor of the present-day nation of KREM in the south east of LLACHATUL. It emerged in c. 600 RM following the fragmentation of the nation of KARKAUTH, whose former northern territories would become a lawless region dominated by anarchy, where entrepreneuring people struggled to make a living. Large fortified farmsteads came to dominate what had once been the region surrounding the ancient city of MON KETTRA. The region came to be known as Kettarang and its people became renowned for their tenacity and skill in defending their home-land from thieves and bandits.

Over the next decades Kettarang would be the target to Venthiri privateers after QUEEN HETEPHERES signed a free charter in 636 RM. This sped up the formation of a coalition amongst the Kettarangi people, which helped protect its lands against banditry and pirate raids.

Coastal fortresses were built and shipyards constructed where fast ships could be rapidly commissioned. These ships would patrol the coast of Kettarang, guarding settlements from attack from Venthiri privateers and SUORI chorsairs, which in turn helped the coalition grow into a republic by 732 RM.

By 1326 RM Kettarang had brought many outlying city-states together under the leadership of the champion YANDAR DASHE, who in 1333 RM founded a new city atop the ruins of Mon Kettra, naming it AM ONKRET.

Kettarang and Karkauth developed a healthy relationship following the founding of Am Onkret, with trade a constant across their borders. Their navies worked together in patrolling their respective coasts from enemy vessels and together the two – Republic and Kingdom – thrived, reinitiating trade with the east.

By c. 2651 RM Kettarang had grown into a large republic that went by the name of would be known as KEREM, but this guise was to be short-lived as in 2703 RM the coming of two individuals claiming to be descendants of the old ACACINNATHI DYNASTY would change the status quo, coming to rule the region, which would take on the more common name of Krem.

KETTCHA: Rvr. River in the north of ALMAGEST, flowing south east for 175-miles from the south western face of the MARMARA massif, before its confluence with the river DANUR. Its waters are polluted by the ATRAMENTAL ACTIVITY of AFFISH in the north. It was dammed by the city of KETLANDIR in 3721 RM, so that it could be refined and filtered before passed through the city.

KETTRAN: His. Lan. Now-extinct language of the MON KETTRAN empire.
Present-day CUTHI is descended from it via KARKUTHI. See Vol II: Languages.

KEUSK'S JELLYFISH: Fau. Gigantic boreal luminescent jellyfish common in the SEA OF IALCUS, the SEA OF DAGGERS, and the GULF OF VALUS. The jellyfish is large, with a bell commonly measuring 7-8 feet wide and tentacles over 150-feet long. The creature is known to produce an eerie violet glow, which has historically been used by seafarers in the region to aid in navigation. The creature is named after the imperial explorer Keusk, who first described it in c. 745 RM. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KEVER: Dem. 'Keveran'. His. Ntn. Historical name adopted by the descendants of the KINGDOM OF THYTHIA, which was destroyed by an alliance of ALMAGEST and the KORACHANI EMPIRE between c. 900 – 1491 RM, at the end of which the royal family was slain and the remaining lands divided between Almagest and Korachan, with the former becoming known as the colony of VALBAR(1.), and latter going on to become DURCHAA. Most of those Keveran people who were not taken as slaves to work Almagesti METEORE mines remained in the hinterlands of Valbar, trying not to draw attention to themselves. Some however began attacking imperial convoys, stealing raw materials and trade commodities, using some and trading the rest east across the SEA OF POLARIS.

This earnt the retribution of the Almagesti armies, which continued to persecute the Keveran people without distinction, leading to the FIRST SCOURING OF KEVER, a genocide that decimated the native population to a point where it no longer offered any resistance.

Over 400-years of subjugation by Almagest saw usage of the word wane with the oppression of the KEVERAN^(2.) language, and it has been largely forgotten today. See Vol III: Extinct States.

KEVERAN: 1. Eth. People native to the VALBARAN PENINSULA. They are directly descended from the early FIFTH AGE kingdom of THYTHIA, though following years or persecution, enslavement, and mixing with their Almagesti oppressors (now their allies) there are few people of pure Keveran lineage remaining. True Keverans are of pale white complexion, with stark black hair and piercing eyes of either grey, green or blue. See Vol II: Peoples and Races of Elyden.

2. His. Lan. The native language of the people of VALBAR⁽²⁾. The ALMAGESTI invasion of the land in the 31st century RM led to the so-called SECOND SCOURING OF KEVER – an extermination of native culture that continued throughout four centuries of subjugation, ending in the effective extinction of the language, which was replaced with ALMAGESTI. Various words survive, either as bastardised place names, or as loanwords, their origins now lost to the Valbaran people. See Vol II: Languages.

KEVERAN GOAT: also 'boother'. Fau. Large ungulate native to the north of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, including DURCHAA, PERGOST, and VALBAR⁽²⁾. They are the size of large ponies, with features akin to those of wild sheep, mountain goats and muskox – with two-toed hooves, long arched noses and large horned heads in both sexes, and shaggy golden coats. There are domesticated varieties, though for the most part they exist in the wild. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KEWKEB: Set. Settlement in the north west of ABACARDAT, along the north western edge of the BITTER SEA. Like many settlements surrounding the UHBATAQI basin it is a major producer of salt (Pop. c. 3,000).

KEYUSH: 1. Geo. Island off the western coast of THE VORANDINE, separated from the mainland by the SEA OF BYRIS. Its western coast is known for its large natural saltpans, and the pinkish salt that is produced in them, which the small population of the island gather and sell. The saltpans are only worked in summer, when harsh storms prevalent throughout the rest of the year subside.

It became a tentative target of KORACHANI colonisation in c. 1550 RM, with a fortress erected on a small atoll, which would alter be appropriated by the Vorandi people. It is known today as CHYRS^(2,).

2. Set. Settlement on the north eastern coast of eponymous island off the western coast of THE VORANDINE. Its economy revolves around the gathering of the pink salt that is produced in natural saltpans on the west of the island, which is gathered along a 100-mile stretch in summer and sold to the mainland (Pop. c. 4,200).

KEZAIR: Mil. Str. major fortress in the far south west of OPHAR, guarding the trade-route west into THE SURRACH.

KEZUAN: Geo. Expansive hills in the south of TAAN AN, forming the northern foothills of the IGUSIGHI Mountains. The region is dry though peppered with sparse scrub.

K'HAT: Rel. Mil. Rnk. Ordained champions in N'RAKH. See also ARDIKHALU.

KHABARA: 1. Geo. Large hilly region in the c-south east of KARAKHAS.
2. Geo. Cave system in the above region^(1.) that stretches far east into PARAIYA, where it is known as QABARRU.

KHABARDINE: Rvr. Fen in the c north east of THE VORANDINE, along the course of the river MANADARAS. The area floods in early summer, as snowmelt from the north causes the river to flood its banks in the level plains of the IGRASIA, bringing silt and nutrients to the region.

KHABATAN: Set. Horse-rearing settlement in the TOGARMAH in the north west of TEMUJA (Pop. c. 5,500).

KHABAUR: Lak. Lake in the c south of TEMUJA, forming part of the course of the river ARILLIEN.

KHABBAQU: (B. c. 3970 RM) TZALLRACH demagogue.

KHABBAR: Set. City in the c west of SEDISIA (Pop. c. 40,000).

KHAD: Rvr. River in KORACHAN flowing west from the FATUACH Mountains into the BAY OF DEOCHAN. The capital city of the HIGHEMPIRE OF KORACHAN straddles its banks. For much of its history it was polluted by the city's industries, though it is now capable of sustaining the city's burgeoning population though no small effort and cost.

KHADAN ROAD: Geo. Major highway in the west of KORACHAN that covers some 150-miles between the cities of KHADON and DEOCHAN. It is named after the river KHAD, which it runs parallel to, and over millennia of continued use it has turned into a deep HOLLOWAY, with side up to 20-ft. deep in some places, making it a prime target of banditry, necessitating the use of road wardens to protect travellers and (more importantly) trade.

KHÁDAN: 1. Rui. FOURTH AGE tower situated on a high promontory in the eastern DUIÁRHI Mountains in TEMUIA, overlooking the SALKHAN Massif. The LEGEND MAGHORA ordered the construction of a great watchtower there in 2520 RM, but the area was too precarious to maintain and was abandoned in 2721 RM, and remains now as a ruin.

2. Set. Small city in the c of TEMUIA, along the course of the river AIHANE and the main trade-route of the nation (Pop. c. 29,000).

KHADDAR: Set. Settlement in the c north west of VAALK (Pop. 8,000).

KHADIJA SUKHARRA: (B. 3958) Pol. FREMEN, and present ruler of KHURAUR.

KHADIMA: Set. Settlement in the c south west of OTINTH. Like most Otinthian settlements, little is known about it due to the nations' insular nature (Pop. unknown).

KHADON: Dem. 'Khadoni'. Ntn. One of the seven original KORACHANI CITY-STATES in Korachan, in the west of the KORACHANI PENINSULA, originally founded atop the river BURAK, and now site of the Imperial Palace, known as the BASTION OF STEEL. The High-citadel of Khadon was constructed outside the city-state proper in -106 RM. The Khadoni royalty ruled from the High-citadel until 9 RM, when the newly-arisen ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR assumed control of the citadel, ejecting the royal family to their palace in Khadon, from which they served as loyal aides and administrators of both the imperial palace (renamed the Bastion of Steel in 2005 RM, upon its completion) and the city of Khadon. The palace has, since its completion, overtaken most of the city and the vast majority of its sprawling populace exists now only to maintain the palace and its vast administrative office. The ARÂTHUAHI SANCTIFIED ORDER OF THE INQUISITION was founded in Khadon in 396 RM, and remained its home throughout the empire's decline. The MINASTERIA of PROGNOSTICARIIN has been based in Khadon since 2166

As capital of the HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN, Khadon boasts an eclectic architectural style, with many exotic treasures and architectural edifices imported from conquered nations throughout the years (Pop. c. 1,500,000).

KHADON, BASILICA OF: Rel. Str. Main BASILICA of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, located in the HOLY PRECINCT within the city of KHADON, capital of the KORACHANI EMPIRE. AS such, it straddles the border between the two distinct jurisdictions and has two main doors—one leading to Khadon, and another into the Holy precinct.

It is known for many wondrous pieces of art, including the ECSTASY OF ST. MALICHAR, a famed marble statue depicting the death of the ARCHPOTENTATE; and THE MACHINE ASCENDANT, a masterpiece created by the genius artist KARSIMMON VOCH. It is commonly believed to have the largest unsupported dome within a religious structure in the Korachani empire.

KHADON MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY: Edu. Str. Historic building in the heart of KHADON, dedicated to the display of items relevant to the study of natural history.

KHADRA: Set. Major coastal city in the west of the BAKHRAN STATES, known for its docks and quayside stores (Pop. c. 92,000).

KHAEMWESED: (B. 3792 – D. 3903 RM) Sup. SHAPER of unknown origins, and explorer of the BROKEN LANDS; his cartographical surveys of the region invaluable to eastern sailors and sea traders. Similarly, his archaeological explorations of the Broken Lands have served to enlighten eastern LLACHATUL to the history of the ancient KHAMIDIANS.

KHAGAN: (B. c. 3953 RM) Pol. Lord Potentate and later king of the FIVE STATES of BAKHRAN. He became King in 4002 RM following decades of arranged marriages and strategic changes to local laws. He stated the divinity of his appointment and through heavily enforced edicts no-one opposed him. Amongst his first political moves was the cessation of trade west with the SIX CITIES, in a move meant to weaken them before a planned invasion west that has not yet taken place. Following this he built the Five States' military and fortified many of its outer settlements, building fortresses across its western borders, which are largely contested with neighbouring states.

KHAKNUD: m. Pol. Per. (D. 3010 RM) PHAROANT of KHAMID whose death in 3010 RM left the kingdom in great debt and its court wracked by conflict. His daughter RI-MENEH inherited the throne, but she too was a weak leader, who ultimately handed the kingdom over the KORACHANI EMPIRE by marrying into THE SEVEN.

KHALAIMON: Rel. Str. Temple-fortress of the ADHERENTS OF THE
REPENTANT in the OTINDHAR mountain in the west of SARASTRO.

KHANADA]: Soc. Org. One of the 17 GRAND HOUSES of the NACRE LEAGUE. Based in QARALAM, it controls all trade in and out of the nation along the NACRE ROAD on behalf of the Qaralami Sultanate. It also specializes in the training and transportation of mercenaries who sell their services to caravans travelling along the Nacre Road. Its warriors are highly sought after as guards for caravans travelling through the more dangerous stretches of the trade-route and also provide security for League delegations acting in more volatile regions, ensuring the safe passage of goods and personnel alike.

KHOLAMORI MANUSCRIPTS, the: Vol. Myr. His. One of three different versions of the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, that through corroborate study have formed the basis for the most accurate modern reconstruction of the Mythologia. The other two versions are the KASKEAN TOME, and the NÁRTHELI CODEX, and together they are known as the EXEMPLAR TRIAD.

The manuscripts were discovered in a sealed lead container by ALMAGESTI explorers in the ill-fated KHOLAMORI EXPEDITION OF 3221 RM. The manuscripts were amongst the last items sent back to the base camp in FORT RONAS, before the expedition went missing.

Meticulously preserved from the middle FOURTH AGE, the Kholamori Manuscripts are printed in three separate manuscripts on leather-bound vellum, all of which are so finely preserved as to defy explanation. As a result, they are the most complete version of the Mythologia Elyden to be found in the NEAR-HEMISPHERE and have been studied extensively by Almagesti scholars, corroborating details from the other two versions to create a stable reckoning of ELYDEN'S cosmogony.

The original Kholamori Manuscripts were stolen sometime in 3571 RM, with no evidence as to the culprits, though many believed that agents of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE were to blame, in which case they were most likely destroyed. Despite this, over 1,000 copies have been made, including faithful reproductions made from direct heliographs of the pages, in some cases. Most are now in private collections around ELYDEN, and many are thought to have been destroyed, though a handful of museums and libraries, most notably in PARTHIS and Almagest itself, own copies that may be perused by appointment upon recommendation from their curators. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

KHALEB: Set. Small fortified city in the north east of TZALLRACH, along the course of the river NAMELLI. It is known for its mercenary tradition, particularly its bodyguards, who are trained to a high level, the services of which are sold across the lands around the DARK SEA and are noted for their loyalty. The city forms part of the GREAT ROAD trade-route (Pop. c. 20,000).

KHALHAI: Geo. Region in THE SURRACH.

KHALHAT: Dem. 'Khalhish'. Ntn. Largest known LHAUS territory, located in the north of SAMMAEA, it forms part of the so-called BYSSIAN STATES, to the south west of the SEA OF BYSSOS. The diminishing of the Sea of Byssos in the first and second Millennia RM left the region itself weakened as a result.

A remnant of a far larger FOURTH AGE nation that spanned much of the lands to the south-west of the Byssos, Khalhat is an autonomous relic of the ancient lhaus tradition of KLADOS, where artificial bodies known as ITERANTS are created from BLOOD and marrow donated from an individual, and which are designed to serve as vessel to the donor's spirit should they die. The most powerful and influential lhaus in Khalhat (rulers, priests, the wealthy) have inhabited generations of iterant bodies, making the ruling classes immeasurably ancient to the eyes of their human neighbours, possibly dating back to the days of the original lhaus empires of the Fourth Age.

Unsurprisingly, its people are insular, and those humans with the dubious honour of interacting with them regard them as alien and aloof, with little effort to learn other mortal tongues or abide by human customs. Indeed, there is little, if any, attempt at forging relations with other mortal nations, though tenuous trade agreements exist with ANDILUTH to the east, and THE SURRACH to the west, where the fruits of their expertise in cloning are traded for much needed food and the resources needed to continue in their obsessive search for immortality.

From their end, the Khalhish people see other mortals as frenetic and chaotic, and too unpredictable to forge lasting alliances with, so they remain at odds with their neighbours. Indeed, the Khalhish people believe that the neighbouring nation of TRAKIA unlawfully appropriated their lands centuries ago. The border remains contested to this day, with Khalhish armies, made up of unliving iterant soldiers known as the PORCELAIN PHALANX, occasionally pushing north. See Vol III: the Nations of Elyden.

KHALIJA: also 'the Red Temple'. Rel. Str. Temple-complex in the c east of KHURAUR, close to the Valley of HELVAN. Hewn from the granite rocks of a steep valley, its face is dominated by gargantuan caryatids carved eons past into images of tortured beings, their spirits being pulled from their bodies. Dozens of hand-carved doorways lead, from various levels of the cliff-face into offering chambers, where in past ages living sacrifices were made to an entity known now in the region as the HIDDEN ONE.

KHALIT: Set. Major mercantile city in the west of KHAR NADUL, situated along the passage of the NACRE ROAD (Pop. c. 208,000).

KHALNÉ: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTAL wasteland in the ETUAN WASTES, in the far north west of KHARKHARDONTIS, to the south west of ETUL. The earth here is fused into hundreds of concentric rippling craters of a glasslike substance, its origins unknown.

KHAMAR: m. Myt. His. Per. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, a SCION of the DEMIURGE DURUTHILHOTEP.

He is said to have brought the art of $\underline{\text{FIRMAMENTISM}}$ to the west, specifically to what is now $\underline{\text{KHAMID}}$, where he is remembered as an important historical figure.

Despite many similarities between his character and that of his halfsister HAVELRA, the Mythologia Elyden paints them as antagonists, with Khamar in particular jealous of her preordained birth directly through the Firmament. See Vol IV: Scions: Children of the Gods.

KHAMEAH: Geo. Mountain range dominating the west of the PHILIAN Peninsula in the c south of HANNAH.

KHAMID: Dem. 'Khamidian'. Ntn. One of the most romanticised nations in LLACHATUL, Khamid is a land that features in popular culture ranging from pulp fiction to high art, most famous of which are the works of the ARTALSCELLIAN artist FLORIAN BARDAS, whose landscapes of stark cliffs and evocative ruins captured the imaginations of many across the INNER SEA in the early 4th millennium RM, and to this day most people aware of Khamid mistakenly believe it is a land of sand and ruins.

An independent nation since 3781 RM, Khamid had been a KORACHANI protectorate since 3021 RM. A dynasty of weak and corrupt PHAROANTS had left the land weakened, its borders at the mercy of SAUAN armies and its people targets of HARÉSHKI and VENTHIRI slavers. The death of Pharoant KHAKNUD in 3010 RM left the kingdom in great debt and its court wracked by conflict. His daughter RI-MENEH was a weak leader and not well-loved. Her reign saw unrest grow in many districts and her lack of action saw public opinion of her suffer. In 3017 RM she visited the Korachani embassy in TEIRA and later travelled to KHADON, where she remained for some months. She eventually returned to Khamid, finding it in a state of chaos. Soon after, Imperial diplomats followed, who she elevated to positions of power within her court. Over the next years these foreigners increased until by 3021 RM all her advisors and councillors were of Korachani blood. A great ceremony later that same year cemented the empire's claim in Khamid, where she married a Korachani 'prince' (now thought to have been a member of THE SEVEN), effectively handing over Khamid to Korachan.

Despite its suzerainty to Korachan, Khamid was ill-exploited and was used primarily as a military base in the DARAK SEA, with its many harbours allowing the construction of naval bases and ports that served the commerce of the Inner Sea as much as supplementing its armies. All the while, Ri-Meneh became a slave to the UMBRA, prolonging her life through its use, though at the expense of her will and sanity. She died of broken mind in 3385 RM after close to four centuries of rule as regent.

In 3721 RM, the region was placed under the control of the DOMNITORS who exploited what resources they could over the next six decades, before abandoning the region back to the Pharoants, who by then had married into Korachani nobility and maintained political and economic ties with the empire.

Korachani rule saw the outlawing of FIRMAMENTISM in Khamid, with an emphasis made instead on the introduction of TECHNARCANA, which the Khamidians were distrustful of from the start.

Most Khamidians remain distrustful of technarcana, as well as SHAPING in general, which is a burden in today's post-industrial landscape, though there is a small but growing interest in the region's ancient links with Firmamentism, with some individuals travelling to MENISCEA to learn the truth behind the Art, bringing their knowledge back with them, cementing Khamid as a new centre of Firmamental research in Llachatul.

Khamid has a strong FIRMAMENTAL tradition, and its people are descended from immigrant SHAPERS from MENISCEA who arrived there early in the FIFTH AGE, mingling with native HARTOUMIANS. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KHAMIDIAN: Lan. Language of KHAMID. It is of ancient roots, dating back to FIRMAMENTAL traditions and languages of the FOURTH AGE and emerged from the early FIFTH AGE language now known as ANCIENT KHAMIDIAN. Following seven centuries of KORACHANI influence it would develop by c. 3700 RM into MODERN KHAMIDIAN. See Vol II: Languages.

KHAMIDIAN, ANCIENT: Lan. Early FIFTH AGE language that was spoken by the people of KHAMID. It emerged from earlier FOURTH AGE languages and borrowed heavily from the FIRMAMENTAL TONGUES of ancient SHAPERS. By c. 800 RM it had developed into KHAMIDIAN. See Vol II: Languages.

KHAMIDIAN FIRMAMENTISM: Edu. Sup. School of FIRMAMENTAL thought that appeared in KHAMID early in the FIFTH AGE. It diminished following the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID in 101 RM and the culture of the region moved away from Firmamental study. Ironically, it remains the most prevalent Firmamental school across the c of LLACHATUL and the north of SAMMAEA to this day. Its study borrowed heavily from ancient FIRMAMENTAL TONGUES.

KHAMIDIAN, MODERN: Lan. Language spoken in present-day KHAMID. It emerged from KHAMIDIAN, though can be considered its own language after seven centuries of KORACHANI occupation and influence from the KORACHANI language. Most of its FIRMAMENTAL influences were slowly whittled down by the Korachani occupiers. Indeed, it is now considered more akin to Korachani than the Khamidian tongue spoken by its ancestors and now, over 220-years after independence, there is little drive from its people to return to its older roots, though some influence from ancient FIRMAMENTAL TONGUES have found their way back into the language. See Vol II: Languages.

KHAMSAL: Lan. See ENCLAVE.

KHANATE: 1. Pol. A form of government that is ruled by a khan. Amongst nations ruled by a Khanate are RHINOCOLOURA⁽¹⁾, and TEMUJA⁽²⁾, amongst others.

- 2. Pol. Government of $\underline{\text{RHINOCOLOURA}},$ instated in 3618 RM by the halfblood invader $\underline{\text{ILLAREGH}}$ after years of war.
- 3. Pol. Head of the PLAINSLEAGUE in TEMUJA. Historically, the name was given to its royal rulers, such as MAKHARA, though today it is an elective title

KHANATE, TEMPLE OF THE: Rui. Ancient temple in TEMUJA dating to the rise of the KHANATE^(1.) and the unification of its tribes by the LEGEND MAGHORA in c. 2600 RM. The temple, carved into the southern-face of the ILLIGARHI Mountains of TEMUJA, bears the hieroglyphic names of past kings, their depictions anthropomorphic patron tutelaries. It fell into disuse in around 2900 RM.

KHANUM: Mil. Rnk. Military rank in TEMUIA bestowed through experience on infantry, elevating them to the rank of leader.

KHAONIC ORBS: Int. Ele. Mys. Obj. Solid spheres of copper, gold, iron etc. often 10 – 100 ft. across, seemingly found at random across ELYDEN. Some of the spheres have designs, carvings or words on their surface, further fuelling the belief that they are artificial in origins, with most scholars believing that they were created by the DEMIURGES or their SCIONS, though what purpose they served, if indeed they ever did, remains unknown. The spheres themselves are otherwise perfect in shape, or at least they were when they were first created what is likely millennia ago.

Their extraction is a costly affair concentrated in a relatively small area, though once the object is revealed, the actual mining is relatively quick, rarely lasting more than a few decades, and then simply abandoned.

There does not appear to be any pattern or rhyme to the location where there sphere are found, though they do seem to be most common in eastern NASTAL and the north west of the HOGGOTHA ISZ, and eastern CEHOPHELA and western IMEAL, though they have been documented in other regions too. Scholars have speculated that a golden khaonic orb was once located in the south east of LYRIDIA, which was where its vast quantities of gold originally emerged from.

KHAR NADUL: Dem. 'Khar Naduli'. Nm. Nation in the south of SAMMAEA, to the north of the SEA OF ETAGIRIA. It is of a temperate climate, and its southern lands are characterised by long wet winters, though its northern lands, bordering the HOGGOTHA ISZ, are drier with long still summers.

The nation was ruled by a dynastic divine monarchy for many centuries, until its overthrowing during a political revolution in 3927 RM, and before then it was a part of the AKHSARAYAN empire. It has been ruled since the revolution by the MUAHHARI regime. Its people worship a pantheon of spirits that are thought to be a corruption of the deities of the FOURTH AGE YASHMINI empire.

In c. 1180 RM what is now Khar Nadul was devastated by the aftermath of the $\underline{\text{MT. KLAUVAKAN CALAMITY}}$, including famine and plage throughout the 12^{th} century RM. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

KHAR'ILLAE: f. Myt. His. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, the first SCION of the DEMIURGE KHARANI. She is highly intelligent and calculating, and embodies both aspects of passion and rage, though tempered by control and restraint, making her a formidable figure. She was worshipped in various ways and guises across MORTAL history until her mortal death in the SECOND AGE, and again more recently in the FIFTH AGE KARAKHAS, KHURAUR and JURRAS⁽²⁾, though scattered MYSTERY CULTS are also known to exist elsewhere. Her worship is commonly associated with BLOOD sacrifices, and offal pits besides her temples are common. A single passage within the Mythologia Elyden states that she had triplet daughters – AZZARA, CHYLE, and RESH – though no other mention is ever made of them.

Her cult was encountered by KORACHANI EXOCRINES beginning in c. 110 RM prior to its occupation of Karakhas. By c. 120 RM, knowledge of Khar'illae was widespread amongst Imperial residents in Karakhas and it soon spread via trade-routes to other nations including VAALK (c. 130), VENTHIR (c. 300 RM), Jurras (c. 405 RM), and other areas of KHARKHARADONTIS. By 140 RM worship of Khar'illae had spread throughout the Korachani empire and was openly challenging the power of the UNDYING MACHINE. This, coupled with the absence of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, stalled the economy and growth of the empire and lasted until his return, whereupon ICONOCLASTIC (1.) campaigns reached full steam in 350 RM. Her worship was declared extinct as a religion within the Empire in 474 RM, though worship remained in secret as Mystery Cults around Imperial cities (particularly in Vaalk and Venthir). Her worship remained open in Karakhas.

Following the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM, the religion became part of a resistance movement to reclaim the region from occupation and it distanced itself from the church. This led to war in 3712 RM between resistances and SARASTROAN forces, though Karakhas would remain part of the Sarastroan Empire.

As the 4th millennium RM drew to a close, rumours arose concerning revisionist cults appearing around Karakhas with the intent of bringing about her rebirth as an otherworlder or otherwise resurrecting her mortal body. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

KHAR'ILLAE, BEAST OF: also 'Eaters of Blood'. Myr. Scionic creatures of the DEMIURGE KHAR'ILLAE known for their love of blood.

KHAR'ILLAE, CULT OF: Rel. Religion common in the north of SAMMAEA, practiced in the states of HITTA, JURRAS⁽²⁾, KARAKHAS, and KHURAUR, amongst other neighbouring states. The adherents of the religion worship the SCION KHAR'ILLAE as a deity, and work towards unearthing her bodily remains so that she can be restored to power.

In general, her worshippers are passionate and do not suffer other gods gladly, going so far as publicly decrying them and their worshippers. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KHAR'ILLAE, TEMPLE OF: Rel. Str. Temple built in VENTHIR by ACHAN, PROPHET OF ARAKHAMÉ in 4005 RM through the labour of thousands of faithful. It is circular and made from red-veined pink granite, and echoes an ancient megalithic stone circle, with a towering keystone in the middle – the altar of KHAR'ILLAE, where the blood of sacrifices was lain.

KHARAD: also 'the Black Marshes'. Rvr. Major river in TARTAK, flowing north form the CAMMOREAN Mountain into the SEA OF GAAN. The seasonal inundations of the river were once the lifeblood of Tartak and its largest cities lived on its banks, though by the 2nd millennium RM, the taint of KHARKHARADONTIS was beginning to increase, and its waters tuned foul, killing crops and sickening those who drank from it. The largest of its cities now lie in ruins, deserted save for the DEGENERATES that lurk in their echoing shells. The wetlands along its banks, known as the black marshes, stretch for many miles inland and are infested with the degenerate descendants of those who once lived along its banks.

KHARAKHARA: Int. Rui. An ancient antediluvian metropolis, thought to lie half-buried in the DUNE SEA of KHARKHARADONTIS. Though rotting and near-fossilised from age, the city remains the last true refuge of the PLAGI, the tribe that the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL forsook with his imprisonment at the end of the FOURTH AGE.

The city is a harsh place, seen by most with knowledge of it as a personification of the bitterness of the plagi and Kharkharadontis. Protruding from the unforgiving wastes of innermost SAMMAEA like a malignant sore, it is beset constantly by the depravations and corruption of the ATRAMENTA, leading to its residents being incredibly resilient. The plagi that live here bear an unconditional hatred of Rachanael, who they have never forgiven for abandoning them in favour of the weaker HUMANS in his quest for power. Few alive today know of the exact location of the city, and no present-day maps are able to accurately place it.

It is unknown if they know of the link between Rachanael and the UNDYING MACHINE (Pop. Unknown).

KHARANA: Geo. Wooded region of the north west of PARAIYA.

KHARANI: 1. also 'the Bloody-Handed One'. m. Myt. His. Per. In the mythology and ancient history of ELYDEN, nineteenth of the Two-and-Twenty DEMIURGES, whose children were KERATIN.

His known SCIONS are: ALLUKAH, BELPHETAR, IKHRA, KHAR'ILLAE, and TU'LAN. See Vol IV: the Two-and-Twenty Demiurges.

2. Rel. Dei. Deity worshipped by the CULT OF KHARANI, which exists almost exclusively in KERRAS PELLN^(1,1) and in small numbers in surrounding nations. The cult is a corruption of the ancient keratin religion that revered the DEMIURGE Kharani^(1,1) though few today know of this link.

The god Kharani is an unknowable entity, a chthonic being that is buried, only accessible by a deep pit beneath the temple of ABOMASSA, into which blood sacrifices are offered in a bid to keep its hunger sated. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

KHARANI ACCEPTS YOUR OFFERING: Soc. Common saying in KERRAS PELLN and parts of KARAKHAS Khuraur, that is spoken by worshippers of KHARANI⁽²⁾ whenever someone is injured and blood is spilled. It originated as a short prayer invoked when warriors were severely injured, though found its way into common talk.

KHARANI, CULT OF: Rel. Religion practised by the people of KERRAS

PELLN⁽¹⁾ and, to a far lesser extent in some surrounding lands. It is an ancient religion, dating to the days of the original MORTAL tribes, when the keratin revered the DEMIURGE KHARANI as their leader and aegis. The present-day Cult of Kharani is a vastly corrupted form of this early religion, and its adherents know little of its roots. Indeed, it is one of the few extant religions that worships a true deity, thought its followers are largely ignorant of this.

To them, Kharani is a deity of offerings and rewards, who demands sacrifice and protestation. As recently as three centuries ago mass was celebrated through the sacrifice of animals or even mortals, though today this takes the form of willing bloodletting into a symbolic pit that honours sacrificial pit of the ABOMASSA, located in the city of Kerras Pelln^(2.), which is replicated in most temples across the nation.

The god Kharani is an unknowable entity, a chthonic being that is buried, only accessible by a deep pit beneath the temple of ABOMASSA, into which blood sacrifices are offered in a bid to keep its hunger sated. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KHARAT: Pol. Set. Capital city of KHALHAT, in the north of SAMMAEA, south of the nation of TRAKIA. The city is the centre of LHAUS culture and is built on the ruins of a far older lhaus enclave, dating back to the THIRD AGE. Its libraries are renowned across ELYDEN for the cloning knowledge they possess, which is implemented in small numbers within the lhaus society there in the form of KLADOS (Pop. c. 113,750).

KHARD ETAB: Set. City in the c of CHEIRA, along the floodplain of the river YAGNOTH PHATHAN (Pop. unknown).

KHARILON SARCARN: (B. 3695 RM) Pol. Current PATERFAMILIA of PATRICIAN HOUSE SARCARN, based in the city of EBERUK in MHAROKK. The house is a major influence in the world of CLONING and FLESHWRIGHTING and has grown incredibly wealthy over the millennia from selling patents and VAT-BORN creatures.

He inherited the role of paterfamilia upon the death of his venerable father Eodorid in 3801 RM, and has proven to be a shrewd businessman and capable head, leading the House into the present-day, making it one of the few extant Patrician Houses that remain affluent and influential. He is renowned for his use of Atramental drugs and harvested organs to maintain his strength and youthfulness and few outside of his personal circles would know that he is over three centuries old.

KHARISUD: Geo. Hills in the west of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, to the north of the ETHITUL Mountains.

KHARKHARADONTID BASIN, the: Geo. Endorheic drainage basin formed by various continental divides in the continent of SAMMAEA, including parts of the KHARKHARADONTID DIVIDE. The basin comprises most of CENTRAL SAMMAEA, and what rivers it contains lead to inland lakes or sinks — either endorheic lakes or simply disappearing underground.

Nations and territories that are at least partially within the Kharkharadontid Basin include: ABACARDAT, BANT, and the JAHADAT STATES, amongst others.

KHARKHARADONTID DIVIDE: Geo. Continental divide named after the great KHARKHARADONTID desert that dominates the c of the continent of SAMMAEA. This continental divide stretches from the far south east of the continent, across the ACHAKHARAN, KARGHEMIR^(2.), and STRAMINEA Mountains, continuing along the CAMMOREAN and MOLOTH KHAMMOTHUL mountains, before reaching south into the PORPHYRI PENINSULA, for over 22,000-miles. It is the longest continental divide in ELYDEN, effectively dividing Sammaea into three parts. Notably, there three geographical distinctions are different to the common delineations of the continent (WESTERN, NORTHERN, and SOUTHERN SAMMAEA).

KHARKHARADONTID EAR-HOUND: Fau. Hyena-like canid with atrophied eyes, bile buboes around its neck and chest, and possessing bat-like ears. Its face is flat, with a complex multi-layered pink nose that is linked to its large frill-like ears, which are its primary navigational tool, similar to a bat.

As their name implies. Kharkharadontid ear-hounds are common in KHARKHARADONTIS, specifically in lands that are not too adversely-affected by the ATRAMENTA. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KHARKHARADONTID DESERT: see KHARKHARADONTIS.

KHARKHARADONTID EXODUS, the: Pol. His. Period between c. -550 RM and c. -350 RM characterised by fauna and mortals alike fleeing the growing Atramental influence known as the Shadow in the Desert in Kharkharadontis. They fled into neighbouring nations to the north, including Paranya, Rhinocoloura, Tartak, and Karakhas. Today, the region that forced these denizens north is known as the Eye OF Darkness.

KHARKHARADONTID HERESIES: Pol. His. Period between 2650 – 2790 RM noted for an increase in the activities of suit-wearing marauding bands operating along the route of the SHADOW MARCH, immediately south of the GAP OF SHADOWS for hundreds of miles south, caused by increased banditry on the road. Thousands of PILGRIMS were killed and taken prisoner during this time, many of them sacrificed to the base deity they worshipped. Increased policing along the road, largely through the actions of the KNIGHTS OF THE MARCH, eventually defeated this threat, destroying their strongholds. This made the KORACHANI government realise the need for added security on the road. This led to the founding of the ill-fated KINGDOM OF THE HOLY LAND OF KHARKHARADONTIS a few years later in c. 2800 RM.

KHARKHARADONTID SCRIPTURES, the: Rel. Vol. Ancient religious texts discovered in a ruined cavern complex in the Tattramanah deserts in 1184 RM by Noavature explorers. The texts were written in an ancient PLAGI script and concern the nature of the ATRAMENTA and certain teachings of the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL from millennia before his adoption of the human race.

The scriptures were confiscated by the Church of the Undying Machine in 1632 RM following centuries during which they were unaccounted for, and they have remained under lock-and-key since then, where they were forgotten until they went missing in c. 2100 RM and copies were made and circulated amongst Atramentist circles across the empire and beyond. The copies were condemned and declared apocryphal and heretical by the Church and the Váman Sanctified Order of the Inquisition launched a crusade to recover the original and expunge all copies. The original was recovered in 2234 RM, though the hunt for what few copies remain in existence continues to this day. See Vol II: Books of Elyden.

KHARKHARADONTID SLUG: see LIMAXON.

KHARKHARADONTID TICK: Fau. Variety of giant tick found in the c of NORTHERN SAMMAEA, primarily in the lesser-corrupted lands of KHARKHARADONTIS. They are a common nuisance to pilgrims undergoing the SHADOW MARCH and though they commonly grow to around 6-inches long when gorged, they are known to reach twice that size when allowed to feed uninterrupted. They are scavengers and opportunists, feeding on fresh corpses of attaching themselves to the soft underbellies of large animals.

They are 'farmed' by wretched tribes in Kharkharadontis, with many basing their rudimentary culture around them. In most cases they keep cattle for the sole purpose of hosting these gigantic ticks, though in some grotesque tribes, people are known to willingly play host to the ticks, which engorge themselves on their blood after which they are removed, cooked and eaten.

They were first documented by KORACHANI naturalists following encounters by PETITIONERS OF THE MACHINE in c. 400 RM. See Vol II: taxonomy and classification of Life.

KHARKHARADONTID UNDERTAKING, the: Pol. His. Monolithic expedition mounted by scholars of the KORACHANI EMPIRE into the lands of KHARKHARADONTIS in inner SAMMAEA. Following months of planning, the expedition set out south in 1261 RM, making landfall in Haddurath in 1262 RM, and lasted for over a decade, eventually fragmenting into various splinter expeditions. The expedition was responsible for discovering many notable Kharkharadontid features, including the glass plains of CHUROTH and the GRAVID WASTES, amongst many others, as well as various flora and fauna.

KHARKHARADONTID WASTES: see KHARKHARADONTIS.

KHARKHARADONTIS: 1. also 'the Crucible of Shadow, the Cradle of Aberrations, Garden of Filth, the Unending Sea of Dust'. Sup. Geo. Main feature of and common name for the continent of SAMMAEA, named after a mythical beast with twenty-two heads⁽²⁾.

Despite its common use in imperial vernacular as a substitute for the word Sammaea, Kharkharadontis is a discernible region within the far larger continent of Sammaea, covering an area no smaller than 27,000,000 square-miles. Often referred to as a desert, Kharkharadontis actually has a wide range of terrains and climates, though they are all heavily influenced by its position within Sammaea – east of the great KARKARMIS and ACHARKHARAN Mountains, and west of the SEA OF LETHEA – and more accurately, the nearby presence of the BLACK FOUNTAIN, whose influence has made the region heavily ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED, leading to various grotesque and nightmarish regions.

2. In the mythology of Kharkharadontid natives, a creature that is said to have twenty-two heads and a singular body. The creature was killed by the twin heroes LOGOSH and SATHANAEL, and its heads were scattered around ELYDEN. Some link is believed to exist between the beast Kharkharadontis and the Two-and-Twenty MORTAL tribes and possibly the DEMIURGES.

KHARAN: 1. Soc. Rune of the WINGED SERPENT in PARAIYA.
2. Pol. Soc. Tribe in PARAIYA.

KHARIBIA: Sec. Coastal settlement in the east of ALTHA⁽²⁾ (Pop. c. 8,500).

KHAROG VÂRR: Int. Myt. Str. An ancient prison, commonly attributed to the DEMIURGE VORROPOHAIAH, found in an inimical region of the SILAEKRA, in the c east of OBLEVIS. The place is located in the middle of a salt flat and is largely devoid of life. The feature is easily recognisable due to its large curved basalt pillars which act as anchors to a large thrumming metallic boulder that hangs suspended by chains between them, giving the hint of ignorance of the laws of gravity. The place has a dark aura and on moonless nights the thrumming boulder appears to moan and sway as of its own volition. The ARCANE TEMPERS in the region are also inimical to SHAPERS, who find SHAPING incredibly difficult, and also suffer great pain. The boulder is believed to act as prison (symbolic, if not literal) to a FORGOTTEN ONE.

KHARON: 1. Geo. Island in the south east of KHAMID, 30-miles west of the coast of TZALLRACH. Before the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID reduced the region to wasted island this was the western-most extent of Khamidian territories, though it was left fractured and uninhabited for millennia, later appropriated by Tzallrach.

2. Set. Small settlement on the above island (Pop. c. 5,000).

KHARR: 1. Rui. Once a shining affluent city, and the capital of ancient KHAMID, Kharr was destroyed by the CATACLYSM that rent a hole in the Khamidian empire, leaving the place a sunken ruin, 30-miles from the present mainland.

2. Set. Present-day city built by the ancestors of Kharran people who survived the CATACLYSM. It is now a major city in KHAMID, and the main city in its eastern territories, bordering the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in MALAN, with which it is a close trade partner (Pop. c. 110,000).

KHARSIGHOR LLABOR: Geo. Gigantic overarching red-stoned cliffface in KARAKHAS, the surface of which is covered with niches and arched caverns, each filled with a mummified body alongside burial offerings, dating back to ancient times.

KHARTEHOGHUA: also 'the Fleshtower'. (4,460-ft) Int. Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTAL feature in the region of LARSHEN, in the c north of VAALK. It takes the form of a flesh-like pillar that rises over 600-ft from the land around it. Eyes blink thoughtlessly in the mass, staring in unison at anything that approaches it. The pillar is thought to remain alive through a process similar to the way carnivorous plants feed – it produces a strong stench that attracts fauna from many miles away. Any that get close enough to it are unlikely to survive long and die close to it. Fleshy 'roots' permeate the earth at its feet for hundreds of feet all around and feed on the many dead bodies that litter the area.

KHARWARYAN: Set. Major coastal city in the south east of PERGOST, overlooking the BAY OF OMONIA. It is home of the TRIFECTATE (Pop. c. 63,200).

KHARZHAGOL: Set. Fortified city in the west of AKACHA. It is the centre of a major line of bastions and fortifications, whose original purpose is now forgotten (Pop. c. 60,000).

KHASGA AUR: Lak. Lake in the c-south east of TEMUJA, along the course of the river AIHANE. The capital of DUARIAHAHN is situated close to its southern shore.

KHASSETH: His. Pol. Ancient PHAROANT in KHAMID, who ruled in c. - 100 RM and had a peak of the SNJEMET Mountains carved into his image.

KHASSETH'S PEAK: (13,150-ft.) Geo. Peak in north west of the SNJEMET Mountains in c KHAMID. It was carved into the visage of the PHAROANT

- KHASSETH in c. -100 RM, and the stern crowned face of the ancient ruler can still be seen from miles around.
- KHASSIA: 1. Flo. Tree native to the ASCENSION ISLES known for producing a spice^(2.) similar to cinnamon.
 - 2. Cui. Spice that is made from the bark of the khassia tree, which grows almost exclusively on the ASCENSION ISLES and which is similar to cinnamon, being darker and richer in flavour.
 - 3. Geo. Island in the ASCENSION ISLES, to the north of $\underline{BROR}^{(1)}$. The island is known for its production of the spice khassia, which is rare and difficult to grow.
- KHASSIBAH: Set. City in the c south west of BASSORAH⁽²⁾. It forms a part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 11,000).
- KHASU AMEN: Set. Major city in the east of THETIS, along the course of the river LACHOTECH (Pop. 83,700).
- KHATAIYA: Rvr. River in the south west of PARAIYA, flowing south for 185-miles from sources in the AKATA and URAYA mountains, before meeting its parent, the river NOTHIYA.
- KHATAM: Geo. One of many highland regions in the south east of WESTERN MENISCEA, forming part of the MENEFIR mountain-chains. It serves as a border between the nations of southern IMELKOT, western AURUM (2.), and northern TAES. The region is known for its treacherous rocks and narrow passes, and it is populated by dangerous scavenging birds
- KHATH: Set. Traditional TROGLODYTE settlement in the c south of LYRIDIA, with dwellings hewn in the rock face of the north eastern HELIOPARNASSUS Mountains (Pop. c. 2,200).
- KHATOQ: Sca. Bay in the north east of CHEIRA, forming a south western extension of the larger ROILING SEA. Its waters are gentler and shallower than the larger body of water, making navigation easier.
- KHATOQ VAND: Set. Major coastal city in the north east of CHEIRA, overlooking the ROILING SEA. It is one of the larger harbours in Cheira, and is the main point-of-contact with the outside world (Pop. c. 175,000).
- KHATU: Set. GARRARU in the south of PARAIYA that in c. 2400 RM was settled by Paraiyan nomads of the BELLN tribe. The city is now a hub of trade and is one of the largest permanent settlements in the region, and forms a part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 235,000).
- KHATUFAH: Sct. Settlement in the south of the JAHADAT STATES, under the control of the city of LOQTUSH (Pop. c. 6,000).
- KHAURE: His. Pol. PHAROANT in ancient KHAMID. Was responsible for the PILLARS OF KHAURE, which remain now on the south eastern coast of the Khamidian mainland, overlooking the sea of PHARANX.
- KHAVRII: Set. Major coastal city in the south west of PNESSA, in the north east of the GULF OF SAURIAR (Pop. c. 80,000).
- KHE SHERRIB: His. Nm. Early FOURTH AGE empire that dominated the north of SAMMAEA. It is thought to have been the largest KERATIN culture of the Fourth Age, before its demise led to the rise of the KARTHAN empire. See Vol III: Extinct States.
- KHEBOU: Rvr. River in the west of GIBEAH, flowing north for some 210-miles from sources in the ZOIQUAGO Mountains before reaching the coast at the BAY OF KHATOQ.
- $\underline{\textbf{KHEDIVE}} : \textit{Pol. Rnk.} \ \textbf{Title in} \ \underline{\textbf{TAHALL}}; \ \textbf{equivalent to a prince}.$
- KHEDRA: Geo. Heavily vegetated valley in the rainforest of WAELMIGH in the c north east of CHEIRA.
- KHEGUDKORR: native name for TULURKRYPH (2.).
- KHELAH: Geo. Rugged fields of oxidised metal in the south east of NAARETH. They are pitted and rusted into a landscape that is peppered with distorted flaked knolls and buttes. The waters of the VEGATETH off the coast of Khelah are brown from the runoff. The river ABASHERA flows just south of this hellish landscape, which is inimical to most life, though rust slugs are common here, and are a pest to surrounding settlements.
 - The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.
- KHELEAF: Rui. Rel. Dei. Obj. A white stone idol in the south east of AKACHA, in south eastern SAMMAEA. It dates back to a predecessor culture that predates the extant and direct ancestral Akachan cultures.

- It depicts a naked woman with both arms outstretched, one holding a moon in one hand and a cornucopia in the other. She has one breast, and the second is depicted as having being removed, with a visible scar. These all indicate a figure of fertility, which is revered in various rural areas of Akacha, most predominantly amongst the eremitic ORDER OF KHELAEF, whose sisters surgically remove their right breast as a sign of devotion to the deity.
- It is believed that this idol is a corruption of a far earlier, now forsaken deity that was often depicted breastfeeding. A Kheleafean monastery was built around the idol in c. 3472 RM, and its sisters unearthed it, restored it and care for it to this day. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.
- KHELEAF, ORDER OF: also 'Kheleafans'. Rel. Org. Eremitic order of sisters found in southern AKACHA, whose members revere the idol KHELEAF, around which their headquarters was constructed in c. 3472 RM. The Order is not pervasive, and though many of its members are insular, some amongst them engage in sexual acts of fertility with members of the laity, with the resultant children becoming servants of Kheleaf, who might rise to become sisters or priests and priestesses as they come of age.

KHELEAFANS: see KHELEAF, ORDER OF.

- KHELT: Set. City in the c of the TEMPLAR STATES. It was once a port, at the south western edge of the BAY OF DORRA, though retreating sea levels have seen it move over 100-miles from the coast. It is famed for the archaic TECHNARCANE engine at its centre, that still provides power to most of the city (Pop. c. 32,000).
- $\underline{\text{KHEMAK}}$: 1. Sea. Bay in the south of $\underline{\text{THETIS}}$, to the north east of the $\underline{\text{SEA}}$ OF ERUTHEA.
 - 2. Edu. Set. Coastal city in the south of THETIS, overlooking the above bay⁽¹⁾. It is home to a large college of EMPYREALOGY, and FIRMAMENTISTS from across EASTERN LLACHATUL come here to study (Pop. c.47,200).
- KHEMDIS: Ind. Set. Settlement in the south west of KHAMID, south of the northern NEFERATH Mountains. Its main industry is the mining of iron, some of which is sold to merchants passing by along their circuit of the GREAT ROAD trade-route (Pop. c. 4,900).
- KHEMET: 1. Geo. Large island in the DARK SEA and remnant of the ancient KHAMIDIAN nation. The island was created during the CATACLYSM of 101 RM that destroyed the Khamidian landmass and decimated its small but thriving kingdom. Other than the mainland remnant of Khamidi, the island of Khemet is one of the more densely populated Khamidian regions, with the eponymous town surviving as a relatively sizeable city.
 - 2. Set. Main settlement of the island of Khemet^(1.), in eastern KHAMID. The city appeared after the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID and is perched on the stepped coastal cliffs, overlooking the ESH PHARAS. Below it is a large harbour and port that sees vessels from all across the DARK SEA and the BROKEN LANDS (Pop. c. 34,100).
- KHEMRA: Rvr. River on the isle of KHEMET, KHAMID, flowing some 70-miles east, before emptying into the ESH ETEK, in the DARK SEA.
 - The Khemra is the largest river on the island and is a remnant of a larger river.
- KHEMRINTH: Geo. Badlands in the c north east of XYRPHAAT, known for its ancient fossilised animal bones.
- KHEMUN: Set. Coastal settlement in the north east of the BARRIER LANDS, overlooking the far south east of the SEA OF ESCHATA (Pop. c. 4,750).
- KHENEM-MMATH: m. Myt. His. Per. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, the son and SCION of the DEMIURGE VORROPOHAIAH. Little is known about his life though he is believed to be buried somewhere under the VARRACHON, possibly contributing to the various supranatural activity in the region. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.
- KHENSA: Rvr. River in the north of HARAPPA (3.), flowing north from the Harappa Mountains for 190-miles before emptying in the SEA OF LISASSA.
- KHER: 1. Soc. His. Original settlers of SAOSTANA. In c. -1450 RM the settlers of the region divided into two groups; the SHAOS KHER (after which Saostana is named), and the KHERI nomads, who by c. -1300 would be pushed south, where they settled the region known as $\underline{KRAONA} - a$ badlands. These nomads would later mingle with \underline{SVATHI} immigrants from the north and by c. -300 would move west into \underline{IO} following opposition form the $\underline{TWILIGHT}$ $\underline{DYNASTY}$, where they would slowly integrate with the natives.

2. Mor. Corrupted AIKLAHS common around the sepulchral palace in DAEKYN, KHARKHARADONTIS. See Vol II: Classifications and Taxonomy of Life: Asicthain.

KHER NEL: Set. Settlement on the isle of KHEMET, in KHAMID. The town is made famous from an older far more populous incarnation of the settlement that is common in TZALLRACHI and Khamidian legends, where it is supposedly the site where an otherworlder sermonised its beliefs (Pop. unknown).

KHERAN: Set. Settlement in the north of KOLCHIS, in the northern foothills of the KULL DARGA Mountains (Pop. c. 4,000).

KHERI: 1. Eth. The indigenous people of ANUBIA, today used almost exclusively in reference to its nomads, who are descended from the KHER people who originally settled SAOSTANA. See Vol II: the Nomads of Elyden.

2. Lan. Language spoken by the people of ANUBIA. It is thought to be descended from a mix of the ancient ABERANNI tongue and the more recent FOURTH AGE NATHI language. See Vol II: Languages.

KHERKOUM: also 'the Throbbing Stone'. Int. Geo. This oddity is situated atop the CLIFFS OF BERDEN, in the south east of SAMMAEA. It is shaped like any other solitary peak, the earth at its base cracked and barren. On its southern face, overlooking the SEA OF LETHEA is a fissure that reveals a core from which weeps what can only be described as blood, pooling at its base. This blood attracts barbarians of the region, who travel for to sup from and bathe in the pools.

The waters of the LETHEA at its base are renowned for their bloodthirsty carnivores, which are attracted to the foul ichor.

KHETHATARR: His. Arc. Ancient colossi carved into the cliffs of the south eastern BLACK MOUNTAINS in the SKAROSIAN territories in ADAMATI. Little is known of their origins, but they are thought to date to the FOURTH AGE.

KHII: Set. City in the south of PNESSA appearing around a stone idol revealed through the disappearance of the SEA OF SUPPA in c. 3240 RM. People slowly flocked to the region and within 100-years it was a thriving town, becoming a centre of pharmaceutical research, and is renowned today for its research hospital (Pop. c. 30,000).

KHIIG: Set. Settlement in the south east of PNESSA, close to the border of the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of ASKIA. It is home to a small ATRAMENTAL college and expeditions into the tainted wasteland to the north are often mounted from here (Pop. c. 7,000).

KHINCHIR: Geo. Labyrinthine rocky region dominating the eastern foothills of the SHAROOK Highlands in the west of ZHARIAH⁽²⁾.

KHING: Set. Fishing settlement in the south of SAUA, along the coast of the BAY OF GITHKA (Pop. c. 4,800).

KHIORRER: Rvr. River in the c north of GIBEAH, flowing north for 330-miles from sources in the BERDERAN Mountains.

KHIPKA: Set. Small city in the south west of the HENDECARCHY of NHORA, in the north east of MALAN. It has a rich history and was once the foremost manufacturer of traditional Malani medicines, though this practice was culled centuries ago as more modern proven medicines came to the fore (Pop. c. 14,000).

KHIR: Ser. Small coastal city in the south of SEDISIA. It is the region's main exporter of plum wine, shipping wines produced in the south of Sedisia across the SEA OF SERPENTS (Pop. c. 18,000).

KHIRABDA: Set. Fortified city-manufactory in the c south west of PHYRR (Pop. c. 43,000).

KHIRITT: Pol. Ser. Capital of PHYRR, located in the south west of the nation, along the course of the river URRABANA. The city has steadily grown around the expansive manufactory ADMACHADAN that stands at its core, whose workers rarely see the light of day. The rest of the city is perched on a series of ledge-like plateaus that face the east and which are a maze of narrow alleys and winding streets, many of which lie above the roofs of lower structures.

Khiritt is also famed for the gigantic amphitheatre that sits in its western districts, that seats over 500,000 people. Known as the GREAT MISRAH, It is used by the IMPERIARCH to conduct great public addresses, with workers and slaves herded into the great structure and forced to listen (Pop. c. 1,400,000).

KHIRR DA: Set. Settlement in the south west of PHYRR, in the east of MOROSIGHI Mountains. Its main industry is iron mining (Pop. c. 6,000).

KHIT: Sca. Bay in the north of KHAMID, separating the SEBAN peninsula in the west from the ELISIAN peninsula in LONAR, MALAN.

KHITAI: 1. Geo. Headland off the south eastern coast of NAARETH. In antiquity it was known as an island though the slow lowering of ELYDEN'S seas and the growth of the surrounding mountains left it landlocked sometime in the early FOURTH AGE. Today it is connected to the Naarethi peninsula by a narrow isthmus, no more than 7-miles wide, and is guarded by the so-called SHALE FORTRESS.

2. Dem. 'Khitaian'. Ntn. Small nation off the south eastern coast of NAARETH, noted for the large deposits of oxidised ores that cover much of its southern-lands, which are a pitted place, worn by the elements into a harsh landscape of rusted knife-edges and twisted shapes. Tropical forests cover the rest of the south of Khitai, where the landscape is not so harsh, and the north is rocky, dominated by the RILLATAIA Mountains. north of which is dry coastal region overlooking the IAPETAN SEA. The land is also noted for its high tides that move as far inland as 60-miles in places. Coastal settlements have adapted to these tides by using stilts that support communities of 20 - 40 families, though following the establishment of Naarethi rule there in 3336 RM, more cosmopolitan stone cities have become the norm farther inland. In the north, rocky coastal settlements were traditionally connected by seaweed rope bridges, and individuals would travel from community to community with the use of large poles that were used to vault from creek to creek over the harsh cliffy rocks. Today, its main industry is salt, which is produced in great quantities in the south, where sea-water is allowed to dry in expansive pans seasonal low tides.

It became a KORACHANI colony in c. 2430 RM as imperial prospectors searched for new resources to exploit. Its large areas of oxidised fields were thought to have potential for new mines and quarries, and 3 colonies were established there - ARASHAN in the south west, CAMECHAN in the east and KIBE in the south east. The native populace was very resistant to this, and skirmishes were common, often resulting in outright battles, which left the native populace decimated, forcing the imperial colonisers to repopulate major settled areas with immigrants from the Korachani HEARTLAND. Korachan eventually abandoned the region to self-rule in 2793 RM, following 43-years of strife and the ruination of its ruling PATRICIAN HOUSES. Its efforts in using Khitai to gain more natural resources was never as successful as hoped, due to the rusted nature of its ore reserves and the difficulty in keeping water out of its mines. After Korachan left NAARETH in 2995 RM the two regions would become close allies, with Naareth exerting a great degree of influence on Khitai, which would, in 3132 RM, become a vassal to Naareth.

Its people were traditionally very xenophobic, a trait that was exacerbated by their subjugation by Korachan, though it has lessened since becoming a vassal to Naareth, and some of its customs spread. The people have however retained some of their ancient customs that place great value on material health and wealth – bodies are taken extreme care of, medicine is highly-esteemed, wealth and objects are valued. The main religion practiced here, known as KADA SHAN, takes the form of willing ritual bodily scarification and sacrifice – a form of counter-culture, in a land where the physical body is prized, those willing to scar it and live with the consequences are seen as holy. Murder and the physical mutilation of others is seen as particularly horrific here.

Traditional warfare is ritualised and of a low attrition: prisoners are taken, weapons are designed to subdue rather than kill, and ritual duels would often determine the outcome of battles. With the introduction of modern technology with imperial rule, these antiquated forms of warfare would be almost forgotten, remaining today as cultural relics. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KHITUL: Rui. Ruin in the dunes of GULDUND in the south of KHULL. It was a major stronghold of SORCERER-KINGS but was destroyed by the KHULLAN INQUISITION in 2824 RM. It was razed, alongside a nearby monastery of the ORDER OF EPISTEMIC ESOTERY, and the contents of its library destroyed.

KHLASH: also 'the Weeping Plains'. Geo. Wetlands in the east of RHINOCOLOURA, along the northern shore of lake NOHEHUN, known for its wildlife.

KHMMAR: Set. Large city in KHAMID, one of the few unaffected by the CATACLYSM. Following the destruction of most of Khamid, the city became a hub for trade, maintaining routes with the south of MALAN, SAUA and some of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOMS via the GREAT ROAD.

Despite its affluence it has diminished greatly over the last centuries, its population reduced by more than half due to worsening climate (Pop. c. 160,000).

KHO HAGAR: Geo. Massif dominating the south of SARASTRO, covering some 35,000 square-miles of area, just north of the HAAGEN Mountain. The highlands of the Kho Hagar are the source of the river MORUL, which flows north and then west, before emptying in the DAARKEN GULF. The Kho Hagar are home to many granite quarries and, in antiquity, their eastern face was the site of lodestone mines, which fell into disuse following a civil war that ended -263 RM when the mines were destroyed and lost.

KHO INNOR: lit. 'Mountain of Light'. Geo. Mountain—chain in the east of SARASTRO, bordering VENTHIR, TARATI⁽¹⁾ and ANUBIA. The tombs of PRE-IMPERIAL SAOSHYANTS are found here.

KHOBEKH'TSI III: (B. 3965 RM) Pol. King, and one of three current rulers of the I'THANAN Triarchy.

KHOHER: Geo. Island in KHAMID, south east of PHARANX, and west of the RED ISLES, known to be home of the ancient burial grounds of ILOTEPHO.

KHOLAMOR: lit. 'White Sheet'. See WHITE SHEET, THE.

KHOLAMORI EXPEDITION OF 3221 RM: Int. His. Ill-fated ALMAGESTI-led expedition to the WHITE SHEET that went missing late in the summer of 3221 RM. The expedition is famed for carrying out work on the gigantic SCION corpse known as ASEREUSYM before contact with it was lost, though it is also responsible for one of the three so-call EXEMPLAR TRIAD copies of the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, known today as the KHOLAMORI MANUSCRIPTS. The expedition went missing at around 88°21'N, 127°18'E late in the summer of 3221 RM, with all contact lost with it. The expedition has been the subject of many unfounded theories over the years, and has been the subject of stories and songs, further popularising it, particularly in the CITY OF ALMAGEST.

KHONS: Rvr. River in the east of THETIS, flowing west for some 190-miles from sources in the EPHIREN Mountains before meeting the coast at the Bay of ENDETH^(1.).

KHOPELL: Set. Coastal city in the south of THETIS (Pop. c. 31,800).

 $\underline{\text{KHOR}}$: Set. Horse-breeding settlement in the region of $\underline{\text{TOGARMAH}}$ in $\underline{\text{TEMUIA}}$ (Pop. c. 6,000).

KHORATRA: Set. City in the south east of JURRAS⁽²⁾, in the south of the plains of HURA (Pop. c. 14,500).

KHORAZ: Pol. Rnk. Noble title in VAALK used as an honorific for those who have risen to positions of status or power from humble origins. It is a mark of respect amongst those who bear it, though some born into their stations look down on them.

KHORKHOI: Fau. see HARHAI.

KHOROR: Geo. Extinct volcano in the northern reaches of the SAHODOM Mountains. Regional legends and histories place its last eruption at approximately -2000 RM, as evidenced by the lava flows and ash-stone in the PHYLON region of eastern TARTAK.

KHORRAN: Set. Major fortified coastal city in the far north west of KARAKHAS. Its main industry is shipbuilding (Pop. c. 68,000).

KHOTH: Set. Fortified settlement in the west of KOLCHIS. It is the southern-most of its METEORE mines, and the only one of note south of the KULL DARGA Mountains (Pop. c. 5,200). KHRAAK: Set. City in the c east of TARTAK, along the course of the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED river KHARAD. The city survives thanks to ancient SIPHON ENGINES that work ceaselessly to purify air, land and water (Pop. c. 42,400).

KHRAMAS: Set. Settlement in the c north of VAALK, in the delta and mouth of the river RIPARIS. It is largely a rural community, producing food that's distributed south, to the capital in ANAKARRA (Pop. c. 3,300).

KHRIEN: Rel. His. Geo. Holy site in the north west of KHAMID. Khrien was a major area where, in the early days of KORACHANI tenure there, people continued worshipping their old gods in secret despite attempts by EXOCRINES and the ICONOCLASTS to instate the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE as the official religion, Korachan had little success in establishing its church and locals were begrudgingly allowed to continue in their heathen beliefs as long as it did not interfere with their tithes to the empire.

Khrien is remembered to this day as the place where that small cultural victory took place.

KHSHEPOR: Set. Small city in the c of KHAMID known for the quality of its jewellery, using predominantly lapis lazuli and ruby (Pop. c. 16,000).

KHUARANT: Pol. Set. Capital and major coastal city in the south west of MEHDRA. It was a major SYNCHTHONITHAN city prior to the regions' fragmentation in 3817 RM (Pop. c. 169,000).

KHUDAR: His. Eth. Culture that emerged in the TEMUJAN basin in the early FIFTH AGE following the FADING of the FOURTH AGE. They were pastoral and lived in close-knit communities, ranging as far south as the ARESHI^(1.) plains. They brought with them many traditions and cultures, including horse-riding and a nomadic lifestyle, with family groups carrying their own tents that they would set up for weeks at a time in a specific area before moving on.

At the height of its power the LEVANTINE^(2.) culture expanded far north, pushing the Khudari people north, after which the ARESHI people and other cultural groups became more prevalent, pushing the Khudari yet farther north, where they settled finally in what is present-day Temuja.

Today, most people in BAATAN, the south of TEMUJAN, and VIRAHAN are thought to be descended from these ancient Khudari people.

KHUDARAN: His. Lan. Now-extinct language that was spoken by the early FIFTH AGE KHUDARI people. TEMUIIN, BAATANISH and VIRAHANI all emerged from it throughout the middle of the Fifth Age.

KHUDEA: Set. Major city in the north west of GIBEAH, situated at a fork between the rivers KHEBOU and FOULA (Pop. c. 60,000).

KHUSH'HLLA, LIBRARY OF: His. Edu. Str. Ancient library and palace in the VENATHI EMPIRE now buried in the north eastern reaches of the GO BISAMMAM desert. Legends of its opulence and the knowledge its books once contained have fuelled many expeditions into its ruined halls over the years, some of which have actually yielded results of financial and historical value.

KHUK: also 'the Dark Star'. Ast. Named after the dark halo that surrounds it, it is commonly identified with the SCION KHAR'ILLAE. It is the brightest star in the SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE.

KHULAD: Sup. Geo. Mildly ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region in SOUTHERN SAMMAEA, serving as a border between the east of AKANTHRA and the west of KHAR NADUL. It is known for its electrical storms and stifling climate, and those travelling there claim the air has a particular sweet, pungent smell. The region was once a haven to outlaws, though an instability in Atramental activity has seen most move away some decades ago.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{MODERATE THREAT}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}$.

KHULL: Dem. 'Khullan'. Geo. An independent nation in the north west of SAMMAEA, to the north of the TROPIC OF RAH and the south of the SEA OF ORRIDA. Khull is of warm temperate climate with short winters of relatively little rain and long dry summers. It is bordered to the west by the ALITTU highlands, and the east by the IMRARKHAL Plateau and the THALLEI Mountains. It is characterised by dry plains that are peppered with scrubland and sparse woodlands, that become more verdant in the north. Many of its larger cities are sustained by wells that tap into deep aquifers.

The nation as it is known today was christened as Khull in 2851 RM by the KHULLAN INQUISITION, replacing its older incarnation, which was known as INGHULL. The Inquisition first appeared as a group of rebels in the city of EMEK TA* in 2702 RM, who opposed the tyrannical rule of the SORCERER-KINGS(3) who had been ruling Inghull since 1521 RM. Their rebellion slowly grew into a powerful force that tasked itself with the extermination of the Sorcerer-kings – an act it accomplished in 2851 RM with the dissolving of their council, known as the SOPHIC CONCLAVE.

A new government was established in its place two years later, made up of people from all walks of life and social ranks. It is named the ETERNAL ASSEMBLY, in the hope that it rules over Khull unchallenged forever.

The Eternal Assembly continues to rule Khull to this day, though it has since become a corrupt entity with elected officials in the pockets of either the Khullan Inquisition or the KOPHIC HOUSES – descendants of the ancient INGHULLAN MONARCHY that was itself eradicated by the Sorcerer-kings centuries ago. Thusly, these two monolithic entities have the Assembly divided in two, with councillors competing against each other and their opposing faction, leading to little progress or change. This corruption is rampant throughout Khull and is an open secret – a part of everyday life that is neither challenged not derided.

Its people are known for their porcelain work and the facades of most homes are adorned with intricate tiles and mosaics. They are likewise famed stonemasons, skilled at constructing elaborate arches and deep cisterns that are akin to cathedrals. Amongst its main industries is the mining of gems and ores which are used in the making of pigments, with most of the work done by slaves from the inner wastes in the south.

Its north western lands are dominated by fertile farmlands, where various crops, and TSAMMA in particular, are grown. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KHULLAN: Lan. Language of KHULL. See Vol II: Languages of Elyden.

KHULLAN INQUISITION: Rel. Pol. Org. Powerful and influential militant religious organisation within KHULL.

The group emerged as a rebellious uprising in the south east of INGHULL, in 2702 RM due to the harsh treatment of labourers in the region of NAXAR. Over the next decades the group spread and conducted a guerrilla war on the SORCERER-KINGS⁽³⁾ that ruled the land, preying on members of the SOPHIC CONCLAVE. They were calling themselves the Khullan Inquisition by c. 2730 RM, with Khull being the word in their regional dialect for Inghull.

By the end of the 28^{th} century RM the Khullan Inquisition had risen to become an insurgent state that dominated the south east of Khull, still hunting the Sorcerer-kings and disrupting trade and commerce across the nation. In this time the Inquisition also took a stance against the KARGAMAN IDOLS that were scattered in the east of the nation, destroying them without abandon.

Amid the backdrop of the EHRENISIAN CRUSADES, the Khullan Inquisition allied itself with PARTHIS and continued fighting its war against the Sorcerer-kings, with its troops, the CLAVESIGNATI, marching against strongholds of the Sorcerer-kings.

By the mid-29th century RM most of the Sorcerer-kings had been slain, and their lands were dwindling, with most of Inghull controlled by the Khullan Inquisition. The name Khull became more common in this time, replacing the older Inghull. It was during this time that the Sorcerer-king TAL fled persecution. In 2851 RM the Sorcerer-kings were declared extinct and the Sophic Conclave was dissolved. Two years later a new government, known as the ETERNAL ASSEMBLY was introduced to EMEK TA', beginning a new age for Khull, which became the official name of the new state.

Though not the governing force in Khull, the Inquisition remained powerful, eventually becoming so powerful that it earnt the ire of the Eternal Assembly, and in 3012 RM the Assembly voted to have the Inquisition's headquarters moved away from the capital to $\underline{\text{NEKIR}}$, to keep them from meddling in the day-to-day governance of Khull.

Following years of resistance, changing cultural and religious attitudes across Khull saw the Inquisition adopt the CHURCH OF THE SHADOW TRIUMPHANT as its official religion, with its members becoming more fervent in its worship over the coming centuries.

In 3613 RM the Inquisition attacked an estate of the powerful merchant house of KOPH. This was seen by many as the turning point that began a long period of corruption within the Eternal Assembly that continues to this day, with half the councillors in the pockets of the Inquisition, and the rest beholden to the Kophic houses.

Today the Khullan Inquisition is a common sight within Khull as well as neighbouring states, and its members can be found crusading against what it considers to be paganism and occultism that are contrary to its established beliefs.

KHULLAN: Lan. Language of the people of KHULL, which emerged from the earlier EHRENI⁽²⁾. See Vol II: Languages

KHUN: 1. Geo. A rugged highland region in the north of TZALLRACH, covering some 45,000-square-miles of area and forming an extension of the ARGENT Mountains in the north of Tzallrach. Its brownish-red rocks are a geological protrusion of the Argent Mountains and are noted amongst natives for the near-labyrinthine winding of its valleys and canyons.

2. Geo. northern-most of the four $\underline{ONARCHIES}$ of $\underline{TZALLRACH}$. Its capital is the city of $\underline{SOROUDE}$.

KHUNRATH: Geo. Arid highland plateau in the north east of RHINOCOLOURA, stretching across the border into the south east of AETHIOS. The plateau is expansive, measuring some 250-miles from west to east, and ends in various shallow escarpments that taper in the north at the AROMUR. The region is peppered with the ruins of the ancient FOURTH AGE city-state of TIAMAT that dominated the region, close to the present-day mud-fortress of THIAMIT.

KHURAO: Set. Settlement in the far west of PARAIYA, close to the ephemeral lake KAUR⁽²⁾. It was once a major city though it dwindled following the abandonment of the old capital of BAKKOU (Pop. c. 4,800).

KHURAUR: Dem. 'Khurauri'. Ntn. Small nation, and one of the so-called BLOOD STATES, located in the north of NORTHERN SAMMAEA that rose from a civil war in KARAKHAS known as the BLOOD HETERODOXIES that culminated in 3478 RM with the signing of the COVENANT OF KHURAUR. Originally founded by a defecting regiment of the STEEL LEGION known as the 'Anvil of Steel' in 3103 RM, Khuraur was centred around the $\underline{\text{MANUFACTORY}}\ \underline{\text{LHORAEX}}$ in the city of $\underline{\text{AHOKAI}}^{(3)},$ where the defecting Legionnaires set up their headquarters, fortifying the already wellconstructed manufactory. Supporting ATELIERS with STEEL WOMBS capable of growing CLONES, the manufactory became a stronghold from which the Anvil of Steel could rule and replenish its numbers. Securing the surrounding lands, the legion was able to gain the support of many disenfranchised Karakhasid people who answered to the General of the Anvil, Bram Elo. By c. 3200 the Anvil had earned the support of LATERITIAN barbarians, whose manual labour and guerrilla attacks on IMPERIAL caravans aided in the construction of fortifications in the east of Khuraur even as they supported small forays into Tartak, where new territories were secured.

It was in c. 3285 RM that the manufactory of Lhoraex, by then elevated into a well-defended citadel, began producing clones that were capable of breeding true, the so-called 'freeborn' who would become a caste apart from the indigenous people and would come to rule them, their shadowfed bloodline something to inspire awe amongst the indigenous people. They were given the strongest and most beautiful local women as mateslaves, from which was born their first generation of offspring, who became known as freemen. The Freeborn and their descendants, the freemen (amongst whom women were treated as the equal of men) were educated to the highest of Khuraur's capabilities, trained in the art of war by the remaining true Legionnaires, as well as being instructed in politics, economics and philosophy. The foundations of Khuraur would be strong under their leadership, and their descendants would continue to be its rulers, known as the Freemen of Khuraur.

Under the leadership of Bram Elo, Khuraur came to dominate the region for over 300-miles in all directions, its lands worked to provide true sustenance, resources managed rather than plundered, and diplomacy established with Tartak and JURRAS⁽²⁾. During this time, its armies were bolstered and defences constructed for the inevitable imperial retribution that was to follow. And so, it did in 3243 RM, when Korachan dispatched three full STEEL LEGIONS south, which clashed in Khuraur, engulfing it in a war in which PARTHIS aided Khuraur. Finally, in 3478, Korachan withdrew after signing the Covenant of Khuraur, which left the remnants of KARAKHAS sundered in two, with Khuraur in control of the west. Khuraur would later enter into willing vassalage to Parthis in 3752 RM, in which it was allowed to self-govern in exchange for a yearly tithe of its natural resources and vat-grown reinforcements for its armies – an agreement that remains in force to this day.

Though trade with Korachan was forbidden, Khuraur prospered under the rule of the Fremen, who would become known as Fremen, and the alliance forged with Parthis during the war only grew until in 3752 RM Khuraur became its willing vassal, under condition that the Fremen maintained their power, which they do to this day.

With its roots in the Steel Legion of Korachan, the UNDYING MACHINE remains the supreme deity of Khuraur (indeed, THE SHADOW MARCH still passes through the nation), though other saints have since been elevated to the rank of true deity since that time, particularly Khar'illae, which remains the nations' patron. Worship of HURD increased towards the end of the FIFTH AGE. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KHURAURA: Pol. Set. Fortified capital-city of the nation of KHURAUR, built specifically to fulfil the purpose in 3386 RM, upon completion of which the capital was moved there from AHOKAI. The city guards the route of THE SHADOW MARCH, flanking the main pass through the KELACHOT Mountain south into ALGOL HAREN in the UMBRA SOKHAR, through which the Shadow March passes on its way south west into KHARKHARADONTIS. The city's FREMEN troops maintain the pass and guard the route from scavengers and degenerates. The city has grown rich from the taxation of constant passage of pilgrims through its gates and is rapidly approaching Ahokaj in size (Pop. c. 624,500).

KHURKHALL'KHAD: m. Per. SERAPI tyrant who controls a large territory in the south of HOGGOTHA ISZ. He is expansionist, sending raids into the hinterlands of neighbouring MORTAL lands in NORTHERN SIMBARA and AKANTHRA, increasing instability in those lands.

KHURSA: Sea. Sea off the western-coast of SERROK, to the north east of the SEA OF LETHEA. The name is a corruption of the ancient AKSARAN word for life, and the sea reflects this in its fertile ecosystem, which is generally attributed to the sediment carried into it by the many rivers flowing west into it from across Serrok. Its waters are only mildly afflicted by the amnesic qualities of the Sea of Lethea, and its coastline is home to many settlements, unlike the larger body of water.

KHURSABAD: Ser. City on the western coast of SERROK, overlooking the SEA OF KHURSA, which is a likely source of the city's name. It was once coastal, though following centuries of lowering sea levels, it is now some miles from the water's edge (Pop. 60,000).

KHURSIM: north. 'Khursid'. Sup. Traditional name for the LIGHT UNDYING, derived from the ancient KHAMIDIAN word for the term. It is still used amongst those shapers who adhere to the laws of the KHAMIDIAN FIRMAMENTISM.

KHURSUMBRA: lit. 'shadow horse'. Fau. Mil. A rare, expensive breed of UMBRAN, created through complex technarcane rituals that meld a skin of umbra-like substance over a VAT-BORN foetus. The steeds are incredibly powerful and used as mounts by elite units and generals.

KHURTAE: Geo. The south eastern-most tip of the OKKHAMI peninsula^(2,), presently covering some 1,000 square-miles. Originally an island, it became linked to the mainland via the Okkhami peninsula in c. 3000 RM.

KHUS: Mil. Str. Large fortress in the south west of MHAROKK, guarding the surrounding lands, which include a portion of THE RED ROUTE, as well as the SHADOW MARCH across the NATJAL plains. Its design is typical of Mharokkin structures and its high minarets are garrisoned by a powerful standing army of FUSILIERS.

KHUSARA: Sec. Small city in the c south of ALTHA⁽²⁾. It is the main producer of honeycomb and beeswax in Altha (Pop. c. 13,500). KHUSSA: Set. Major city in the c south of BASSORAH⁽²⁾ it forms a part of the RED ROUTE and is home to many offices and warehouses belonging to various trade-houses across the INNER SEA REGION (Pop. c. 255,000).

KHUSSAN: Geo. Mountain-range in the south of BASSORAH (2.).

KHUSSAN PASS: Geo. Valley to the south west of the eponymous mountain, north of the UNTA hills in the west of THE OLD FOREST.

KHYFATAH: Com. Set. Fortified trade city in the east of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT. It is home to trade houses that conduct business across the border with the JAHADAT STATES (Pop. c. 37,200).

KHYLARA: Set. Fortified city in the east of KHULL, close to the border with TAL ZHAAN⁽¹⁾. It trades with the sorcerers of the small state and maintains relations with them (Pop. c. 43,000).

KHYTER: also 'the Crawling Shadows'. 1. Int. His. Art. Gigantic carved rocky monoliths in the c of THETIS, largely located to the south of the KOTHATYRAL Mountains, dating back to the time of the early FIFTH AGE culture of RTHEI⁽²⁾.

Thoroughfares and rock-carved walkways surround the base of most Khyter monoliths, indicating that structures now long-gone once existed there. The places are often home to travellers and NEMIS nomads in the region, who take shelter in the shade cast by the monoliths (which lends the feature its local name).

2. Set. City in the c-south east of THETIS that appeared around the eponymous ancient monuments. It was the first settlement in the newly founded MINTHA in c. 1590 RM and served as a capital to both it and the Kingdom of Mintha, and has been continuously settled for over 2400-years (Pop. c. 32,000).

KHYZOTTRA: Dre. Geo. Expansive DREAMSCAPE in the c south east of HOLOLACH⁽¹⁾, known for its peculiar trees with symmetrical geometric bifurcating branches, as though they were artificially grown. This trait is imparted to any woody tree that grows there with seeds of particular trees planted within the affected area growing into trees that eschew their normal properties, taking on those of the dreamscape. Any trees that germinated and grew within the dreamscape will not survive outside, though their wood remains usable.

Indeed, the particular shape of the trees lend themselves well to husbandry and logging, and the peripheral parts of the forest have been exploited by mortals at various times, with the settlement of NOCHRIS, located in the west of the region, known for its logging.

KHYLAL: Pol. Set. Capital of EIKARTHYEA, in the east of MENISCEA. It is a stone city hanging over the high limestone cliffs of YSALLEA. It once overlooked the ERTHYDEAN SEA, though the retreat of ELYDEN'S oceans left it on the doorstep of a salty lake that took the cliff's name. It has since diminished greatly though continues to be ruled by a merciless race of FIRMAMENTISTS (Pop. unknown).

KHYMER: Set. City in MHAROKK, renowned for the manufacture of large UMBRANS and SHADOW-HORSES. It is known for its large ATRAMENTAL college, which was established there in 523 RM. It also forms part of the SALT ROAD trade-route (Pop. c. 72,000).

KIAAMAT: (12,100-ft.) Geo. Rusted peak of the LAASATHEA Mountain.

KIAPHORA: His. Eth. Early FIFITH AGE nomads who settled in the c north of SAMMAEA, in the plateau of VANNAKORDOR. Little is known of them today as they have died out, but they are thought to have been responsible for the construction of the TOWERS OF AVARANOM.

KIASH: Set. Fortified coastal capital city of SUOR. For many years it was thought to be a hub of chorsair activity. The city is home to the ship on which the explorer NAVAH BERDEN sailed into Suor, in 598 RM. It is kept in a large temple behind thick glass, where it is visited by members of the SUORI CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, which also has its headquarters in the city (Pop. c. 1,350,000).

KIBE: 1. Sea. Bay in the south east of KHITAI.

2. Set. Coastal city in the south east of KHITAI. It is a harbour and the only known major shipyard in Khitai. It was founded as a KORACHANI colony in c. 2430 RM though was abandoned when the empire was driven out of Khitai in 2793 RM (Pop. c. 108,500).

KIEDA: Set. Settlement in the c north of TZALLRACH, east of the KANDON Mountains (Pop. c. 6,200). KIERYLA: His. Art. Ancient soft white stone bust in the north of SOTHRA^(1.), in the DHERKAZ hills. The bust takes a humanoid form and is thought to date back to the THIRD AGE and is commonly attributed to a DEMIURGE.

KIFAII: Set. Major city in the south of PNESSA in the region of SIMEANAGH (Pop. c. 70,000).

KIFANIAH: Set. Small city in the c west of ZHARIAH^(2.). It is a crossroads of trade and culture and is known for its large market and theatre (Pop. c. 18.500).

KIFAYA: Set. Small city in the north of PNESSA (Pop. c. 17,000).

KIFFAL: Flo. Small citrus tree that is endemic to the island of ULLMECH^(1.), which is famed for its fruit, which was an intense sweet taste with sour undertones. The fruit is small and green and naturally has many seeds, though these have slowly been bred out of them over millennia of cultivation.

Kiffals form the backbone of the Ullmech economy and are highly prized elsewhere, where seedless cultivars are sold at great profit, being famously more expensive than their weight in gold. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KIGARAD: 1. Pol. Geo. Centremost of the five political states of VALBAR⁽²⁾. It has the most varied climate and terrain, with wetlands, geothermal regions, permafrost, sparse woodlands, rocky hills, and rivers.
 Set. Fortified settlement in the c of VALBAR⁽²⁾, in the eponymous state⁽¹⁾ (Pop. c. 7,600).

KIGATHAL: Pol. Set. Current capital of VALBAR⁽²⁾ since 4006 RM. The capital of Valbar moves every 7-years, when elections are held to determine the next LORDS AND LADIES OF THE CABINET. It is expected that the capital will next move in 4013 RM, following the results of the next elections.

As of the time of writing, Kigathal has only been capital for around 4-months, and it is still adjusting to its new role, with its administrative centre undergoing renovations and restorations to accommodate the newly-appointed Lords and Ladies and the deluge of administrators and diplomats that followed them. Records show that the population of the new capital can more than double within the first year of housing the Cabinet and the population is expected to further burgeon as people continue flocking to the administrative centre of Valbar... at least for the next 7 years. Once the seat of THE CABINET moves elsewhere, the city will begin to dwindle to its pre-capital population (Pop. c. 48,000).

KIGOA: Geo. Rocky region in the north of the KORACHANI colony of CRASSULA, in the far north west of MENISCEA. The region crosses the northern POLAR CIRCLE and is home to one of the most abundant gold reserves in ELYDEN and has been exploited, on-and-off, for over 13-centuries. It remains a major producer of gold to this day. The entire region is heavily guarded against attack by natives and other entities.

KIHI: Set. Small city in the c of the tribe of KORIND in the north west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is along the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 12,500).

KIHOTA: His. Rel. ancient religion of the city-state of AASHA (later known as ASISH), in the east of BA'AKH. The religion emerged in the wake of a period of insularity following increased ATRAMENTAL TAINT in c. -490 RM. The city closed its doors to outside trade and politics and remained so for around 50-years.

By the time the city had opened its doors to the world once more, it was a changed place. Even before its self-imposed isolation, the city had advocated an extreme form of THE VOID that had emerged in IO some years earlier, with unwilling sacrifices made to the demon TASHATARAS (a symbolic embodiment of the source of the regions' taint, some 175-miles south west of the city). Though what emerged from those 5-decades of brooding isolation was wholly different. The city-state had become ruled by a fetishist dervish cult known as the Kihota; a matriarchal religion whose young neophytes would be sent into the wildernesses outside the city, naked and defenceless, tempting fate and inviting the touch of the ATRAMENTA. Most would undertake a pilgrimage of sorts to Tashataras or even the RUATHA in DHAMATEA. Most perished, either consumed by Atramental afflictions or losing their minds to the deranged DREAMS that would visit them, leaving them to wander the wastes until their bodies faltered. Those few who survived untouched following a year of exile were invited back into the city, where they became acolytes and priestesses of the Kihota and citizens who held various political power.

The government was ousted in c. 284, where merchants took control of the city, allowing it to become part of the united nation of Ba'akh, though the Kihota continued to thrive until the appearance of KORACHAN in the city in 469 RM, after which it became corrupted into a branch of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE and its acolytes slowly turned into assassins and exocrines. The cult of Kihota remained strong in the region, even after the empire's abandonment of Ba'akh in 3097 RM. Under the patronage of SATHEP THE RISEN, the branch of the church remained strong in Asish.

KIHOTA, TEMPLE OF: Rel. Str. Following the establishment of the KORACHANI EMPIRE in the city of AASHA (which later became known as ASISH), the then dominant religion known as KIHOTA, became corrupted by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, becoming by c. 900 RM a branch of the Church, its acolyte-dervishes enjoying popularity as assassins and exocrines. Their temple and base of operations was erected atop the site of the old high-temple of Kihota in c. 820 RM and dominates the skyline of the city, remaining a prominent structure to this day.

KILAIOS: Set. City on the south western mainland of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS (Pop. c. 32,800).

KILAWADA: Geo. The largest island in the SHIELD ISLES archipelago in the south east of SAMMAEA, west of the MANNAL ITRUSH. It is the largest island of the ISLAND KINGDOM of FALLAROUR, and is home to most of its people.

KILLING OF THE LINE, the: Pol. His. Night following IMPERIAL reconquest of PELASGOS in 228 RM where all Pelasgosi nobility was slain.

KILLOS: 1. Geo. Island off the western coast of the Free-Isles of PELASGOS.

2. Set. City on the eponymous island. It is known for its chalcedony mines (Pop. c. 35,000).

KILMASTA: Ind. Set. City in the south east of the emirate of OTHOTEL^(1.), in the south west of LIMOTH^(1.). It is a major industrial centre and producer of vehicles, including ambulants and conveyors (Pop. c. 47,200).

KILOGHER: Geo. Small mountain range in the north west of SAMMAEA, serving as a border between the small state of TAL ZHAAN^(L) in the west and the TEMPLAR STATES in the east.

KILTEA: Set. Coastal settlement in the east of VALBAR^(2.). Its main industry is whaling (Pop. c. 4,750).

KIMARIS, THE ERRANT: Leg. Mil. Great warrior of legend common throughout many CENTRAL LLACHATULI legends. In most tales he is a wanderer who teaches wisdom and martial strength to those who would listen. Various epic deeds are attributed to him, differing by region and country.

In THE OLD FOREST he is a rogue, living in the trees, helping those against whom nature turns, using powerful magick to turn the forest on itself.

In PELASGOS and LYRIDIA he is a KSHITI, a warrior-lord, who guards his homeland and people against all threats.

In the free lands east of the KORACHANI EMPIRE he is a martial FIRMAMENTIST of great power.

In $\underline{\text{TEMUJA}}$ he is regarded as a $\underline{\text{FIREBLOODED}}$.

In SAUA, he is known as a BAGHATUR.

See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

KIMMERA: Set. City in the c north of JURRAS⁽²⁾, where SHAPERS (both FIRMAMENTISTS and ATRAMENTA) are trained. Orphans or children of the lower classes are taken from across Jurras and beyond, and unceremoniously given basic training before being sent to the capital in SAMARIS, where they are used to protect the city from the effects of the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED waters of the river KARIBAT. Those who excel and those whose families can afford it graduate as TECHNARCANISTS, government officials, or foreign dignitaries (Pop. c. 50,000).

KIMYON: 1. Geo. Small island in the north west of the KORACHANI colony of MALETH.

2. $\it Mil. Str.$ Fort on a small island in the north of $\it \underline{MALETHI}$ archipelago in $\it THE INNER SEA.$

KINATHAT: Rel. Arc. Idol to the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR carved from the metal face of the OEIKITH Mountain in the far north west of NOAVATUR. It was left to rot following the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S diminishing in the area, and is now weathered, pitted and scabrous with rust, the land around it poisoned, the river that flow close by tainted by its presence.

KING OF THE HEAVENS: Rel. One of two deities of the BETHYLAN religion of SABIANISM, with the other being the QUEEN OF CONSTELLATIONS. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

KING OF KINGS, the: Myt. His. Epithet bestowed upon the DEMIURGE

ARIMASPI by THE SHAPER, following the thwarting of the construction of the BRIDGE OF ETERNITIES, leaving him as the most powerful of Demiurges, closest amongst all his brethren to the original Demiurges that The Shaper placed on the MORTAL PLANE.

KING WARS, the: see PAPAL WARS, THE.

KING-WHO-WASN'T, the: Leg. His. Soc. Mythic figure in the lore of the YARAOMIC PEOPLE of northern SAMMAEA that is prophesised to emerge to unite the remnants of their culture and reclaim the city of KEKELIB, which was the last ancestral city to fall to KORACHANI invaders.

Millennia of subjugation and persecution under the Korachani empire effectively ended their culture in the modern age, and it was only the efforts of the their lorekeepers known as IARAOM GRABBA that were able to keep certain traditions alive, including the legend of the King-Who-Wasn't, which had been lost for centuries, but which resurfaced in 1340 RM within the lost journals of the MHAROKKIN exile SUDERA, who spent over 50-years living with the Yaraom in around 950 RM. It was one of the oldest second-hand accounts of their customs that survives to this day, under lock and key within their fortress library in IARSHUGGATH.

Amongst various other aspects of Yaraomic life, the journal went into great detail describing the myth, which detailed the figure as a distant descendant of the SHEPHERD KING who founded Kekelib long ago, and whose line was scattered with the persecution of the Yaraomic People. Though believed broken, the legend says that the line survived through an isolated kindred, and many in the Yaraom community believe that this holds true to this day.

The legend has become a beacon to an ancient people forced into a life if itinerancy. It unifies them across vast distances and gives them hope in a world that is increasingly without any.

KINGDOM OF THE HOLY LAND OF KHARKHARADONTIS: Pol. His. An expansive and ultimately futile attempt by the KORACHANI EMPIRE to fund a vassal kingdom in KHARKHARADONTIS, along the path of the SHADOW MARCH, between c 2800 – 3060 RM.

Billions of bits were spent by HOUSE AMBTOR and the empire in constructing a great number of SIPHON ENGINES to make the road there and back manageable to mortals travelling it. Some remain functional to this day and serve as a reprieve for those travelling the Shadow March, though most have been reappropriated by independent entities – be they outcasts, bandit towns, or fledgeling settlements – which now control the surrounding lands, and may or may not be a boon or obstacle to PETITIONERS OF THE MACHINE taking part in the SHADOW MARCH.

The kingdom once stretched from the city of ATLEAS in the north to the city of HILLACHAN to the south, and it controlled the full length of the Shadow March through its lands – over 1,000-miles or road and land 50-miles in either direction. Travel through its territories were taxed, and in return its forces were tasked with safeguarding the passage of the many pilgrims heading south.

Mismanagement of funds and difficulty in communicating between the empire and the vassal kingdom ultimately led to many of its settlements being abandoned to ATRAMENTAL TAINT. Most notable amongst such settlements was the city of Hillachan, which was founded but 15-miles north of the SEPULCHRAL PALACE in 3036 RM, though it lasted barely 20-years, and was abandoned in 3055 RM after an Atramental disaster left most of its protective siphon engines destroyed, its people corrupted beyond chance of rescue. This was to be the final blow to the venture, and House Ambtor abandoned the region in c. 3060 RM. Some branches of the House remained there, and their descendants can still be found there, prospecting for rare ores or providing services along the Shadow March.

KINGDOM OF KARGEMMA: see KARGEMMA, KINGDOM OF.

KINGDOM OF OPHAM: Dem. 'Ophami'. Ntn. Sovereign nation appearing in 853 RM following the abolition of the ruling council of the TERRITORIES OF OPHAM and the election to regent of the charismatic OTHERWORLDER known as THE STEWARD, who since 608 RM has influenced the history of the region. The Kingdom was united by its central prophetic religion known as the CHILD'S ADVENTISM, that believed in the coming of a child emperor who would, on the passing of its 7th year unite Opham and all surrounding regions as one glorious nation Despite its popularity the religion was not universally accepted by the kingdom's people, and the city of NAAL, who years earlier had grown closer with the KORACHANI EMPIRE (who had forced Opham into vassalage in 757 RM), opposed what it considered a foolish religion. This schism grew until in 867 RM its armies marched into Opham, declaring its independence; an act the Steward accepted, leaving Naal an independent city-state.

Korachani abandonment of the region in 967 RM saw the Kingdom of Ophram benefit greatly; with taxes and tithes once handed over to its occupier now retained for its own use. The nation flourished, expanding its borders to the south and north, with culling parties sent into the old lands of OPRET to halt the spread of their misshapen people. In 1121 RM the northern FREE CITY OF ERUTO became its vassal, and by then Opham was trading with most influential cities in the region, including the OGHURS of CYHLAGHARR. The purchase of the city-state of ROAH in 1274 RM cemented the Ophami Kingdoms dominance of the region. The Child's Adventism remained a dominant force, with hundreds of children elected to the position of emperor, only to be deposed once their 8th birthday brought no change to the regions' borders.

Though despite its best intentions, Opham could not keep its cities together. By c, 1250 RM, two cities emerged as powerful influences in the region; OLNNAD to the south east and HOLOTHAN to the west. The capital in TENTAEL diminished, losing power to the two emerging cities, which in 1462 purchased trade-rights in the nation, effectively privatising the trade-routes of Opham. The child's court was relocated to Holothan (by then known as Ophram) in 1462 RM, leaving Tentael a shadow of its former self. Three years later Olnnad and Ophram divided the trade-route between them and the land was sundered, effectively ending the Kingdom of Opham. The resultant lands were known as the CHILD'S REALM OF OPHRAM and OLNNAD, respectively. See Vol III: Extinct States.

KINGROUP: Pol. Soc. Traditional family groups in KULIGALA and BANT are known to live in communal groups within a single KINTOWER. Most kingroups are made up of 2 – 4 extended families, though larger and smaller ones also exist. Many kingroups are related to each other, if only distantly, as most kingroups were founded by young families sent out from existing kingroups that grew too large for their kintowers to accommodate. Due to this, many kingroups maintain good relations with each other, though over time some previously close groups may lose contact with each other.

KINGS' PATH, the: Com. Trade-route in the west of SAMMAEA. named after ancient rulers that established it in c. 800 RM. It was famed for its trade of AMBER, incense and iron, though has since grown to trade far more items. See Vol II: Major Trade Routes.

KINGSFRIEND: Pol. Rnk. Political title granted to the closest confidante and advisor of the MONARCH of INGHULL, which ruled from 1131 RM until its eradication at the hands of the SORCERER-KINGS^(3.) in 2136 RM.

The first Kingsfriend was a man called MASTRON KOPH, who was a close friend and lieutenant of the warlord ASIPHYAL when he was crowned king in 1131 RM. Following the coronation Asiphyal I chose Mastron to become a confidant and attendant, choosing the title Kingsfriend.

Following the death of Asiphyal I, Mastron remained Kingsfriend to his son until his own death in 1174 RM, at which point another Kingsfriend was chosen by Asiphyal II. The tradition continued throughout the rise of the SUPHETS (a caste of royal advisers descended from monks of the ORDER OF EPISTEMIC ESOTERY) serving as advisors to the monarch, though not all Kingsfriends were drawn from the house of KOPH.

Typically, a lieutenant or close friend of the Monarch upon their coronation, the Kingsfriend held no military or court titles beyond what the individual may have held before, but did have the potential to wield immense influence as the person most able to sway the mind of the ruler.

The title and its rank were dissolved by the Sorcerer-kings in 2136 RM, though by then it had already been weakened by the dominance of the suphets and, later the Sorcerer-kings themselves.

KINKHANATE: Pol. Rnk. Ruling title in TEMUJA.

KINTOWER: Mil. Str. Large circular tower commonly found in the lands of KULIGALA and BANT. The towers originated as ancient wells that had access to deep groundwater that was free of the influence of Lethean amnesia. The towers are large and commonly home to 2–4 extended families that live most of their lives inside them. The towers have a single fortified doorway leading to a central courtyard surrounded by businesses and dwellings that overlook it. The kintowers are of multiple levels that are accessible from wooden scaffolds that overlook the courtyard. The roofs are fortified and provide a vantage point to riflemen, who guard the tower whilst most of the extended families work the farmlands that surround the kintowers or ply their trades in the central courtyard.

The extended families that live in the kintowers are known as KINGROUPS, and when a kingroup becomes too large for a single tower to sustain its elders appoint a pair of young families to leave and begin their own kintower with the support of their family members, allowing the newly-established kintower to eventually become an ally to the parent tower. In this way, relations slowly spread, leading to a network where goods are traded and allies are fostered.

All towers have ancestral masters who are knowledgeable in the familytrees and relationships between as many as hundreds of towers, many of which have lost contact with what are regarded as ancestral kintowers.

KIOLTHA, the: Mys. Soc. Mystics from the deserts of c MENISCEA who claim to commune with ancient worker gods, who they refer to as THE AUTHORS. They are reclusive and reticent of sharing their traditions with outsiders, and little is known of the manner through which they receive their visions, though some scholars postulate they may be tribal shapers with a limited understanding of the art they wield.

They are loners who travel across the $\underline{SHAZGIN}$, the Wastes of \underline{VERMES} , and parts of \underline{SABAEA} , seeking locations and ruins that are of value to their beliefs. During their travels, they make contact with various peoples and states – from nomadic family groups to fully-fledged nations – where they enjoy a level of political immunity and freedom of movement in return for the role they play in spreading knowledge, news and trade goods as they travel, particularly amongst smaller settlements.

They custodians of the words of the Authors, and interpret the words of The Authors as law, which many nomadic groups of Meniscea follow and to which the Kioltha serve as jury, judge and EXECUTIONS, in matters of law.

KIPAH: Set. Snaking city in the south west of AHOPAH. It is famed for its long and narrow plan, which snakes across a steep valley, with the river KAPPON snaking through its entire length. There is no main road, but various bridges crossing the river, and most people move from one side of the city to the other by barge and river boat. Traditionally its people have subsisted by fishing along the river, though today the city has changed to one of craftsmen (Pop. c. 15,000).

KIR MALYGOTH: Rui. Ancient ruined city in the south east of KARGAMA, thought to date back to the FOURTH AGE.

KIRATU: Geo. Arc. Series of qanats (subterranean aqueducts that are made by digging a series of vertical shafts that are connected by horizontal tunnels that guide water to the desired point by gravity) that link to the CREPHITHISS aqueduct system in TAAN AN, in the AMMASHI(L) peninsula in the south west of SAMMAEA.

They are expansive despite them being hidden from view, and boast a remarkable architectural awareness, with many geometric designs, but they contain no writing or record of those who created them. In places the qanats widen into large reservoirs and underground chambers, whose purpose is now forgotten. For the most part these chambers and secret rooms are abandoned, though some, particularly those close to the surface near overhead cities are still in use.

KIRESEK: Set. Major coastal city in the north of Iseseth. It is the largest port in the nation and is also known for its clone manufactories (Pop. c. 325,000). KIRI: Plr. 'Kiri'. Rel. Metaphysical nature deities that form the KIRIASTRIAN pantheon that is worshipped by the KOLCHISI people. The deities are said to be ancient, predating even the creation of ELYDEN, at which point they slumbered in the Long Dark. Following the creation of Elyden (an otherwise important event in most cosmogonies that Kiriastrianism ignores) the individual Kiri became forever tied to the terrain in which they found themselves, becoming known for certain characteristics or emotions.

The ASARLAI – SHAPER priests who became powerful in the region — were said to control the emanations of the Kiri, interpreting their energies as prophecy, which saw their influence grow until they became politically powerful, rivalling the first LORD-CONSTELLAR LANAYASH I in power. They were culled following a short but bloody war in 3167 RM, which ended with their numbers lessened and the Lord-constellar as the head of both church and state. Despite this, the status of the Kiri as nature deities that manifest in the natural world was not changed, and the Asarlai remain their interpreters.

KIRIASTRIANISM: Adj. 'Kiriastrian' Rel. Major religion that is practiced in KOLCHIS. It has ancient roots that date back to the early FIFTH AGE, when primitive shapers (now known as ASARLAI) became powerful personalities said to channel the powers of ancient deities that were trapped in the natural world.

KIRIYA: Set. Coastal settlement in the north of ESHIR^(2.) (Pop. c. 6,000).

KIRKAL: Set. Fortified settlement in the region of NUCTEMERA in the north of EREBETH, known for its wines (Pop. c. 2,800).

KIRRATH: Set. Settlement in the south of PHYRR. It serves as a crucial waypoint along the only highway of note that connects the populous south with the more barren north. Situated just southeast of the ANTHAR desert, Kirrath is a hub for traders, travellers, and military convoys, making it more important to Phyrr than its small size might indicate (Pop. c. 4,000).

KIRRUS: Flo. Hardy citrus shrub common to latitudes between 40° and 60° in c LLACHATUL. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KIRVITH: Set. Settlement in the c south west of OTINTH. Like most Otinthian settlements, little is known about it due to the nations' insular nature (Pop. unknown).

KISENTH: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the south east of the TEMPLAR STATES. Its troops guard its south eastern territories, and patrol its border against unauthorised entry from the neighbouring KARGAMA.

KISH: Rvr. River in the c south of LIDEA, flowing south for 115-miles from sources in the south east of the ORIAN Mountains before joining up with the river SICERAN, which is its parent.

KISH, LIBRARY OF: Edu. Str. Fortified library in the c-south east of LIDEA, hidden in a steep-sided valley in the foothills of the ORIAN Mountains along the course of the river KISH. The library is a relic from a previous age, the steel-based ruins of which were used as foundations for an imperial fortress constructed in c. 1010 RM as primarily a repository of administrative archives pertaining to KORACHANI territories south of the INNER SEA, as well as general archival codices and treatises. The fortress was heavily fortified and garrisoned by two STEEL LEGIONS and various artillery regiments, and its many side-temples were visited by pilgrims undertaking THE SHADOW MARCH.

Following the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM the library and its contents remained under the control of the HIGH-EMPIRE until 3741 RM when tensions in the region forced them to leave, after which it was occupied by SAMMAEAN scholars and troops.

The large garrison throughout its existence has led some to believe that it is more than just a library, though the truth remains unknown.

KISHARIS: Ind. Set. Small city in the north east of the PARTHISAN colony of IBANNEM^(1.). Its main industry is the mining of LODESTONE (Pop. c. 14,800).

KISRA: 1. Geo. Island off the southern coast of LANTUA in the far south of WESTERN MENISCEA and home to the island-nation of THUNE.

2. Set. City on the eponymous island^(1.) in the island-nation of THUNE. It was the first major DREAMSTONE mine, though it is said that these have since run dry, so industry has moved on, leaving the city to dwindle, yet its old noble families remain in control, clinging to their decadent lifestyles even as their doffers run dry.

Its palaces echo with the music of masked balls that the mouldering nobility distract themselves with (Pop. unknown).

KISSAMAYHA: Sea. Veh. Fortress ship of the pirate king HAYREDHOSS UYHAVEN. It is thought to be the largest and most infamous modern pirate-ship, and is comparable in size to a KORACHANI POTENTATE (3.) class WARSHIP, and has been escribed as a literal floating fortress by those unfortunate enough to have come across her.

KISTRA: Set. Major city in the c south of CISNERIA, along the course of the river ATYSESH (Pop. c. 87,000).

KISUNU: (B, 3932 RM) Pol. Current emperor of CUTH.

KITH: Set. Coastal settlement in the south of the emirate of DEITHO^(1.) in the south west of LIMOTH^(1.). Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 7,000).

KITHALOI: Set. southern-most major city in KARAKHAS, in the south west of the nation on the foothills of the KELACHOT crags. Under KORACHANI rule, Kithaloi was often the starting point for expeditions into KHARKHARADONTIS, and for centuries has been a bustling city that caters to such ventures, attracting mercenaries, archaeologists, misfits and explorers alike. At one point it was a major trade hub, catering to the vast caravans and landships that made the long journey to NOAVATUR in the south east of KHARKHARADONTIS (Pop. c. 36,000).

KITHAMAR: also 'the Sunken City'. Rui. Ghost-city in the wilderness of far western VENTHIR, east of the AHSET Mountains. It was claimed by the GO BISAMMAM desert in c. 2821 RM, dunes sweeping over the city in a matter of years, leaving it half-buried and sterile, its people abandoning it and settling the city of SYRAKASH, 150-miles to the north.

The city was famed for its cloning workshops and the $\underline{\text{MKISIH}}$ that it once produced there.

KITARA: 1. Pol. ruling HOUSE of the STATE of UTO in SAUA.

2. Set. City in SAUA and base of the House of Kitara^(1.). It is a manufacturer of firearms, and is home to many barracks of the Sauan army. It is also a major stop along the GREAT ROAD trade-route, and many of its weapons are sold along the road (Pop. c. 121,000).

KITTA: Sea. Bay in the south of the headland of KHITAI in NAARETH. The bay grows in size periodically due to the high tides in the region, engulfing much of the region of HOTHAGOL, and is responsible for the rusted appearance of the area. Few settlements are able to survive in the region around the bay and most of those that do are either constructed on stilts or built on floating platforms that rise and lower with the sea level.

KIVAR: Set. City in the north of KARGAMA, to the north of the ONCETHMUS Hills. It has a long history, and was once one of three major ELITAGRI cities (the other two being DROM and PLYSIANE^(1.)) that rose in what is now Kargama in the north of the EHRENISIAN COAST between c. -700 and -400 RM, growing wealthy from selling BRIMSTONE over the next centuries.

It is home to the oldest continuously operating brimstone industries in Kargama, with quarries dating back some 45 centuries, and its plutocrats have similarly prestigious histories, with dynasties measured in the centuries whose present members remain highly influential and extremely powerful.

Its brimstone quarries are greatly diminished today, and the ruin of past quarries surround the city, marring the landscape, though most have now been reclaimed by nature and are unrecognisable as quarries (Pop. c. 43,200).

KIZA: 1. Pol. Geo. One of nine political territories in the east of ALAM BETHYL, overlooking the SEA OF ADAM.

2. Set. Fortified coastal city in the c east of ALAM BETHYL, and capital of the eponymous⁽¹⁾ territory. The settlement originated as a coastal fortress, which served as an excellent deterrent against piracy, and it managed to attract people to it who established a small settlement at its base in c. 3820 RM, which grew rapidly into a city (Pop. c. 42,000).

KIZED: Set. Settlement in the c of the tribe of USAR, in the west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is known for its nitratine mines, from which saltpetre is extracted (Pop. c. 8,000).

KIURRA: Geo. Endorheic region of iron-rich soil in the south east of SKAROS, to the west of the ANOMOFERROH, characterised by the many KIRRUS bushes that pepper its rocky expanse. The greater Kiurra region is renowned as the region where SKAROSIAN GIANTS are the most common. It is the termination of the river ARRAMUS^(2,).

KLADA: Plr. 'kladai'. Med. Tec. Those who perform the art of KLADOS.

KLADAST: Set. Settlement in the HORSCH territories of northern ALMAGEST. The settlement appeared relatively recently, in c 2740 RM following expansions north into the BAND Mountains and is a producer of iron ore and other metals (Pop. c. 6,000).

KLADOS: Med. Tec. Sup. The art of creating and sustaining CLONED ITERANT bodies in LHAUS culture. The iterant bodies are made from donated blood and marrow from specific individuals and are kept alive in a torpid state of half-life until the individual to whom they are keyed (often a CLADE LORD) died. The individual's spirit would be transferred to the iterant in a costly and lengthy process, in which the spirit of the deceased is transferred to the iterant. This can be done multiple times, though each such iteration would strip part of the donor's essence and characteristics, and those who have inhabited multiple generations of iterants become even more aloof than other lhaus.

The same methods are used to create the elite force known as the PORCELAIN PHALANX – a small army of around 1,000 iterant warriors. Though they are individually less sophisticated than iterants, they remain potent warriors – silent, fearless and tough. They serve as an echo of what the armies of the ancient lhaus empires might have looked like.

The art originated with the DEMIURGE IALDABAOTH who crafted six iterant bodies for themselves and who spread the art to their children, the lhaus. Today the art of klados is mostly restricted to lhaus lands, generally the Republic of KHALHAT, in the north of SAMMAEA, west of the SEA OF BYSSOS, and they guard their secrets well.

KLAUA: Set. Fortified settlement in the south west of KHALHAT (Pop. c. 8,000).

KLAVIEN: Set. City in the south west of KULIGALA, in the east of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.) in the east of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 42,000).

KLESINIA: Set. Small fortified city in the pass of CALLANDRA in the south west of CISNERIA (Pop. c. 12,000).

KLIBAN: Set. City built inside a steep-sided cleft along the LIDEAN coast, overlooking the BAY OF MHARKA (1.). It is known for its noble district, that hugs the side of a sheer pinnacle-isle, with mercantile districts along the shore and others above. Promontories and peninsulas are connected by iron bridges. Its main industry is the production of PHYYRHOUAN PURPLE dye from PHYYRHOUAN SNAILS (Pop. c. 33,000).

KLIPHA: Pol. Set. The capital city of SATARIEL, located along the western coast of the nation. It is the north western-most stop along the EGETAKHAN ROAD and has a bustling portside market (Pop. c. 820,000).

KLIROS: His. Set. Already a powerful city-state of the NÁRTHELI kingdom by the time of the abandonment of NICATH and TAMESIS, Kliros became the home of the Nártheli militorcracy in 76 RM. KORACHAN'S blockade of NÁRTHEL in 81 RM and its subsequent invasion over the next few years led to the fall of Kliros in 84 RM. The city was abandoned by the Korachani empire and moved to the newer city of MULCIBER in the north east in 504 RM, where their new administrative offices had been relocated.

Kliros suffered after that point, diminishing in strength and size. For a while it was the centre of Korachani agriculture in Nárthel, though gross mismanagement led to the surrounding plains and farmlands becoming barren, leading to the abandonment of the once-proud city.

KLONA: Set. Settlement in the north east of PELASGOS, to the south east of the BULOS Massif. Its main industry is the mining of SERPENTINE and the manufacture of objects from it, including turned cups (Pop. c. 3,700).

KNAESS: 1. Geo. Region in the c. of THE SURRACH, east of the BAKHRAN Mountains. It is fertile and known for its picturesque farmlands.

2. Set. City in the eponymous region in THE SURRACH. It is famed for the sizeable aquifer beneath the city that's accessible by as many as a few dozen wide shafts that are carved from the granite on which the city stands. It is an open secret that these shafts are used for various activities, mostly illicit (40,000).

KNAESSI: Eth. HUMAN ethnicity common in the west of THE SURRACH, specifically in the areas surrounding the BAKHRAN STATES. Its people are known for their green eyes, dark hair and dark OLIVE skin, comparable to the people of NORTHERN SAMMAEA along the southern coast of THE INNER SEA, though past relations with KORACHANI colonists in c. 2300 RM and SAMMAEANS from the south in the more distant past mean there is a variety of differing skin-tones.

KNAGHTA: Sea. Once a large bay along the western coast of THE SURRACH. Following the diminishing of ELYDEN'S seas, the bay was cut off from the SEA OF BHAAD and remains now as an endorheic lake that is slowly dwindling. The lake is extremely salty and is bordered by miles of briny salt flats known as the KNAGHTA BRINE FLATS. The ancient coastline, as much as 280-miles east of the present coastline, is peppered with the dry ruins of ancient harbours and the rusted hulks of abandoned ships.

KNAGHTA BRINE FLATS: Geo. Salt and brine flats covering 6,500-square-miles in the west of THE SURRACH, around the eponymous lake.

KNAVE: 1. Rel. Mil. Rnk. Female holy-warriors, akin to knights, who are native to NAARETH. Knaves have passed the RITE OF THE VOLUTE and choose to dedicate their lives to THE VOLUTE as knaves instead of becoming MATRIDULES.

Knaves are military agents of the Church of the Volute, and undertake various roles, including serving as bodyguards to Matriarchs and Hierodules, diplomats, and spies, amongst others. When a Matriarch dies, her body is protected by household knaves until a new Matriarch is appointed.

They are forbidden from bearing children and are chemically castrated, which would otherwise be considered a shame on their household.

KNIGHT PURIFIER: Mil. Rnk. Org. High ranking combatant members of the ARÂTHUAHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, who are drafted from the ranks of the lesser PURIFIERS. They serve as the elite militant arm of the Order. They are stoic and implacable, and are prepared to raze cities and eradicate entire populations during their work, if need be. They are known for their heavy black long coats and gold trim.

KNIGHT UNSHACKLED: Mar. Rnk. First full rank within the ORDER OF THE SUNDERED SHACKLE, reached only by prospects who succeed in rigorous trials following years of study. These trials do not only involve various feats of strength and endurance, but also more pragmatic tests designed to elevate Knights from their lowly beginnings as SLAVES and helots.

KNIGHT OF VULTURES, the: Leg. Myt. In the myths and legends of c LLACHATUL (primarily AZAZEM, KORACHAN, LAASKHA, PELASGOS and VÂRR), a figure that is said to follow the destitute and downtrodden, though whether as a helpful or hindering force is open to interpretation. The figure is often the intent of the various tales surrounding him. See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

KNIGHT-WARDER: Mil. Soc. Knightly caste in TETHYSIA.

KNIGHTS AENEOUS: Org. Mil. Knightly order in THE SURRACH dedicated to protecting trade and travel along the IVORY ROAD. They have fortresses along the road which charge a small toll for safe passage, and serve as hostels to weary travellers. They have branches in most major cities along the trade-route, including ROMOREA⁽²⁾, though are based in the city of ROBAT, in the c. of the Surrach.

Little is known of their history and their name, if it means anything, has lost any connotation.

KNIGHTS OF THE BUDDING ORCHID: Org. Knightly order that had its roots in NOAVATUR in c. 3120 RM. The order was opposed to the teachings of the UNCHANGING GOD and dedicated itself to protecting those who were disregarded by the church and persecuted by its adherents. They set up hospices and hostels in Noavatur between c. – 3153 RM, though as they grew in influence the CHURCH OF THE UNCHANGING GOD saw its position threatened and they were discouraged from aiding those who the Unchanging God had deemed unworthy.

The tenets of the Knights of the Budding Orchid were challenged and in $3154 \, \text{RM}$ an edict was passed outlawing outside assistance towards the pariah castes that the Church had ostracised. The intent was clear – to diminish the influence of the Knights.

The Knights defied the order and continued aiding those who needed it most, until in 3155 RM the Church moved against them. Skirmishes broke out in major cities as church troops and mercenaries clashed with the knights. Eventually the Noavaturi army intervened and by the end of 3155 RM many knights were dead, with the rest pushed out of their holdings, forced into exile.

They scattered, with most settling in the west of WAELMIGH⁽²⁾ and OKKHAM, where they established a base in the lands of KRIC in the west of Okkham, from where their influence would spread. Over the years they would become indoctrinated into the CULT OF THE DREAMING GOD, becoming a militant arm of its church by c. 3400 RM. Though they still provided succour to the needy, they became campaigners and missionaries of the church, travelling south across the SEA OF LETHEA, where they would spread word of the religion to lands such as ABACARDAT, the JAHADAT STATES, and ZHARIAH⁽²⁾, where their military campaigns brought them much wealth despite the relative lack of successes in spreading their faith.

Their newfound wealth gave them the power with which to operate independently of church funding, allowing them to spread to most cities across Okkham, where they remain to this day as hospitaliers. Nurses and doctors of the order are granted the title of knight, though largely gone are the days of crusading and campaigning abroad. The order still maintains troops in its largest fortresses and hospitals across Okkham, which can be called upon to bear arms in times of need.

Their largest stronghold is now in the city of $\underline{EBATURA}$, though they also maintain a large coastal fortress in $\underline{RATEDOS}$.

KNIGHTS-EXILE: 1. Org. Knightly order based in the south of SAGITTARIA and IZABAL⁽¹⁾ entrusted with protecting merchants travelling across the IVORY ROAD. They possess fortresses along the road, which act as caravanserais and hostels to travellers and merchants.

2. Pol. His. Historically, the leaders of a caste of people exiled from ancient KORACHAN in 13 RM following their refusal to accept the UNDYING MACHINE as their deity in place of the ASP GOD they had been worshipping for centuries.

The Knights-exile led the SAGITTAARI people west, settling the lands around the GATE OF ERBETH, though in 76 RM their land was gripped by civil war which led to the creation of TAHALL in the north and SAGITTARIA in the south, the latter of which they continued ruling until the appearance of the MEROVICHI DYNASTY in 129 RM. After this they remained as a knightly order that defended merchants travelling across the Ivory Road.

After the fall of the Merovichi Dynasty and the rise to power of the AUTOCRAT OF SAGITTARIA the Knights-exile began plotting against him, eventually succeeding in 2163 RM. Believing the Autocrat dead, they took control of Sagittaria, marrying into the merchant houses. Over the years the Knights-exile came to worship a new god, known as the INTERMINABLE ONE, and became corrupt. Unbeknownst to them this was the body of the Autocrat, who had slowly been manipulating them through his sorcerer-priests.

A civil war started in the city of Izabal saw them grow weak, and upon the signing of a peace treaty in 3159 RM they were deposed by the sorcerer-priests of the Interminable One, remaining as advisors. By 3236 RM they had been excised from government completely and had returned to their old role as guardians of the Ivory Road.

KNIGHTS FERROUS, the: also 'Crusader-Iords'. Org. Most elite of the KORACHANIEMPIRE'S troops; and autonomous from the once-ubiquitous STEEL LEGIONS and other imperial armies. The Knights Ferrous are not bred in STEEL WOMBS, coming instead from noble households within the Korachani empire, with no small amount of competition between the larger PATRICIAN HOUSES. As befits men of their station, Knights Ferrous receive the best in training and spiritual guidance the empire can offer. They receive any and all equipment that their House can afford, all of which are at the height of TECHNARCANE and BIOMECHANICAL innovation. They are the crusader-lords, leaders and most trusted shock troops within the imperial armies acting as elite units or as leaders to lesser regiments and formations. Most General-patricians served at least some years as Knights Ferrous.

The Knights Ferrous originated during the days of the early empire in CLOTHO, as guards to the vast fields that came to be the chief food-producers of the Korachani empire. From there they rapidly rose, becoming a common-enough sight alongside the ATROPOS Houses, where they served as body-guards and elite caravan guards, before their formations became more standardised and part of the Imperial military might in $c.\ 1400\ RM.$

KNIGHTS OF KENG: Law. Org. Policing force in CUTH that emerged in c. 2300 RM, after the toppling of the old KARKAUTHI monarchy, which was replaced by a religious state, where the prophet KENG became religious and state leader, with regents ruling on his behalf. The knights acted as guards to the faithful, though had the more insidious role of acting as spies for the capital in ERKALA, searching for would-be dissenters and eliminating any threats before they became a problem.

Following the final death of Keng in 3171 RM, the Knights of Keng placed themself in control of the nation but were ousted, and their ranks whittled down by the ruling regent, who maintained control of the nation.

Nevertheless, the knights of Keng remain a constant presence in Cuth, fulfilling the role of army, police force and hospitaliers across Cuth and beyond, where they are recognised by their black hooded cassocks, emblazoned with the three-pointed star of NERGAAL.

KNIGHTS OF ST. MALICHAR: Rel. Org. Order of knights who rose in the nation of KORACHAN in c. 800 RM to serve the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR. The order thrived over the next centuries, and went on CRUSADE in 1434 RM, travelling to the EHRENISIAN COAST in the north west of SAMMAEA with hundreds of EXOCRINES, missionaries and ICONOCLASTS (2) and thousands of faithful conscripts.

Their crusade in Sammaea lasted for 7 years, where they focused their attentions on KHULL (then known as INGHULL), KARGAMA (then the ELITAGRAI FEDERATION) and the coastal regions of the VESPERTINE LEAGUE (then known as VESPER), until 1441 RM, when the army was effectively wiped out by a suicide force of SASHELLAN^(2.) BERSERKER-MAGES.

The survivors were granted the leniency of taking their dead back to KORACHAN and the knights were mummified and interred within the church of ST. GERBAH in KHADON. They are displayed upright, in full armour and regalia, in expansive crypts beneath the church.

The order survives to this day, though it never recovered from the failed crusade, and only has around 300-members at any time, most of which are scattered across the empire, though many prefer to remain in Khadon, close to the Steel Bastion, should the Archpotentate emerge from isolation. Members are drawn from Patrician Houses from across the empire, and swear an oath to protect the Archpotentate from any form of harm – be it physical or intangible.

KNIGHTS OF THE MARCH: Rel. Org. Knightly order appearing in KORACHAN in c. 950 RM, overseeing and guarding the passage of PETITIONERS OF THE MACHINE undertaking the pilgrimage of THE SHADOW MARCH. The order remains to this day, its members noted for the softsuits they wear as they travel with pilgrims, particularly along the MARTYRS' ROAD, in KHARKHARADONTIS.

Their headquarters are based in the ENTONIAN FORTRESS.

KNIGHTS OF MALETH: see MALETH, KNIGHTS OF.

KNIGHTS MARTYRED, the: Com. Mil. Org. Knights of the WHITE LEAGUE that are deemed to have died a heroic death in battle. Typically, those of high-enough standing within the League are honoured with the erection of an alabaster statue in the League's Hall of Remembrances in the WHITE FORTRESS.

KNIGHTS OF SET: see KNIGHTS OF SETH.

KNIGHTS OF SETH: also 'Knights of Seth'. Org. Secretive group originating in the RHEA, and now based in TETHYSIA, who believe that SETH, first son of the DEMIURGE NEITH^(1.), had a pure divine link with THE SHAPER. Seth is worshipped as a deity by the knights (and a demigod in most of Tethysia, where they operate openly), who believe in gnosis and the divinity of seven, yet disclaim the divinity of the Demiurges, saying that any they once had was lost with The Shaper's chastisement of their actions.

The Knights of Seth believe that Neith told her son about his Divine grandfather, which was the fuel for his legendary abilities. The knights think his abilities stem from knowledge of his roots, which is why they strive to learn more about The Shaper.

KNIGHTS OF THE SUNDERED SHACKLE: Int. Org. Knightly common in the INNER SEA REGION that draws its members from SLAVES.

Members of the order search within manufactories and other industries for individuals who display various traits they find favourable – tenacity, force of character, a strong will, goodness of heart, and above all, hope. Wherever the order finds someone matching these characteristics, a request is made to buy their freedom. If successful, and the individual accepts, the order will feed and house them until they are of sound body and spirit, whereupon they will be trained in the ways of the order.

The order's base is situated in the city of COTIA⁽²⁾, in PARTHIS, where attitudes to slavery align with those of the order, though it does maintain lodges across various states and territories around the Inner Sea Region. These lodges are often at odds with PATRICIANS and governments that would prefer the status quo remain unchanged.

Knights of the Sundered Shackle defend slaves and helots, fighting for better working conditions where possible, or lobbying for the abolishing of slavery entirely where they believe such beliefs may take root. They were partially responsible for the abolishing of slavery in Parthis, supporting the COTIAN MUTINY of 3790 RM, which ultimately led to the abolition of slavery in PARTHIS, and hope that this cultural revolution may spread elsewhere.

Individual knights travel across the trade routes and shipping lanes of the Inner Sea Region (often reaching much farther west or east than that), protecting slaves and helots, ensuring that they are not mistreated, and spreading word of their order. This attitude has led to the order clashing with various powers, including the TWIN EMPIRES of the INNER SEA as well as CYHLAGHARRI slavers, though they have also made some powerful allies, including the Parthisan empire and various influential patrician Houses.

The ruler of the order is the KNIGHT GRAND SHACKLE, who at the moment is CHANDAN TODROS.

KNIGHTS OF SZAS: Org. Ancient militant order founded in the CITADEL MOUNT of SZAS in -421 RM in response to the increased DEGENERATE and AANTH incursions into the plains of ARAAHT, which intensified in c. -550 RM. The knights were the product of the changing attitudes of the city, which originally opened its doors to those fleeing the SHADOW INTHE DESERT, offering them refuge and solace, though as their numbers increased and their maladies became more pronounced and infectious, the city and its people became insular, closing their doors to the savage degenerate refugees in -490 RM, sending its militia to aid outlying towns and settlements against the incursions.

The Knights of Szas were founded following a particularly brutal cleansing operation in which hundreds of troops were lost. As the disfigured bodies of the intruders were burnt on pyres a group of survivors returning to DUN SZAS (including volunteers from DUN KANACH) took vows of servitude, becoming the first knights of the order. Its members were composed mostly of volunteers, though orphans also served the order as serfs and retainers before being granted permission to seek the knightly vocation. Volunteers were many and the order thrived, sallying out of Dun Szas to keep the Araaht clean of the taint of degenerates. A large cliff-side fortress was constructed outside the city in -352 RM from which the order conducted its business and its members became influential within the city itself, leading some 50-years later to the foundation of the CHURCH OF CLEANSING - a fundamental religion admonishing the ATRAMENTA and physical corruption. Their influence continued to grow over the years and by 55 RM the lords of the order were leaders of both city and church, commanding great respect, though in their growing misanthropy they sundered the city from the Citadel Mounts, claiming independence in return for their military aid should the need arise; an act that went largely unopposed by the LORDS OF THE MOUNTS.

The order remained powerful for many years and faltered only with the arrival of the KORACHANI EMPIRE to the Citadel Mounts. Its ICONOCLASTS⁽¹⁾ waged a short bloody war against the Knights of Szas, and their fortress was toppled, their members executed when they failed to convert to the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. A great Idol dedicated to the UNDYING MACHINE was erected on the site of their old fortress in 412 RM, as a sign to other so-called heathen faiths in the region.

KNIGHTS OF THE THRONE: Org. A crusading knightly order originating in the city of KHADON, KORACHAN in c. 1725 RM as an offshoot of the KNIGHT OF THE MARCH. They were originally guardians of the LEADEN THRONE and other holy sites in KHARKHARADONTIS, though have since widened their reach to any site or relic that is prized by the churches of the TWIN EMPIRES.

Given their history of travelling through tainted lands, the Knights of the Throne were pioneers in the development and construction of HARD and SOFTSUITS designed to stall the effects of the ATRAMENTA and their artificers remain on the forefront of such design.

KNOSS: Set. City in the south east of IO (Pop. c. 14,000).

KNOSSOR: Geo. Site of great pitched battle in SARASTRO in 339 RM where the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR returned. The site was later turned into a great city, in honour of Malichar, named MALICHARA.

KNOWER, the: Leg. Legend common in VAALK that originated in the ancient ULLUASHI culture. At the end of time, when all civilisations have died and all mortal life is extinguished, only the Knower will remain. The Knower is not alive and neither is it dead. It is a SPIRIT, a soul, left surveying the end of things. It alone will witness the seas of ELYDEN disappear as the sun slowly flickers out. It has memory of all. It is the teller of stories, the rememberer; it is through its eyes that many of the stories of Elyden are told. See Vol II: Legends and Folktales.

KO-ORHAZ: Geo. Rocky hills in the west of THE SURRACH to the north of the river ESSRA.

KOAN: PATRICIAN HOUSE with a major influence in VAALK. It used to operate the iron mines of RUZASHAALK, which were abandoned by c. 3000, leading to the house losing power. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

KOBAL: Mor. Diminutive humanoid creature common to the hills and scrubland of SKAROS, LAASKHA and ALMAGEST. Standing no more than 3-feet tall, these grotesque creatures are attracted to metal, which they hoard without purpose. They are believed to be descended from DVERG corrupted by the ATRAMENTA in distant times, though have since degenerated, becoming bestial and primitive.

They are of little use and cannot be trained, though few of their numbers remain now due to the industry and pollution of modern civilisations, though may be find in sewers and abandoned manufactories, or searching for scrap in the hinterlands between settlements. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KOBESH: Set. Major city in the north east of HABOT, along the course of the river VAIAUANTI. It is the largest city in the VAIAMMESHI valley and controls most surrounding settlements (Pop. c. 118,000).

KOBBI: Set. Settlement in the c of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR in the south west of MALAN (Pop. c. 7,200).

KOBIAN: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region in the c south west of THE SURRACH, to the south east of the BROCHITTER Mountain. The air here is thick and light does not penetrate it easily, leaving it in nearconstant twilight.

The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

KOBIAROS: Set. Small city in the c north of the tribe of ATEVEGOS in the c west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 13,000).

KOCHA: Rvr. River in the c south of ALMAGEST, flowing west from the ANATOLA Mountains into the river ANDHOR.

KOCHAB: Com. Set. Major trade city in the south west of SAGITTARIA. The city is the most prominent stop along the IVORY ROAD within Sagittaria, before its termination at the capital city of CAMACA. It is incredibly wealthy and metropolitan, redistributing exotic goods from THE SURRACH farther north and east (Pop. c. 280,000).

KOCHI: Lak. Lake in the c south of ALMAGEST, close to the border with THE OLD FOREST. The lake is a source of the river KOCHA.

KOCHINA: Set. Relatively small, yet densely-populated settlement in the south east of ALMAGEST. The town was, until c. 3200 RM, far larger, serving as an iron-processing facility, though with most of the iron deposits around the GAEFANG Mountain depleted, the city lost most of its trade and began to dwindle. What remains is the original city-centre, its peripheries allowed to rot, looted for what materials were useable by the remaining populace.

The city is built along the banks of river KOCHA, nested in the foothills of the Gaefang. It is a place of walkways, skywalks, gantries and multiple levels; labyrinthine streets on the ground, the sides of buildings and the rooftops; and houses built atop other houses. Today it is famed for its master watchmakers (Pop. c. 34,000).

KODULD: Mil. Str. One of two coastal fortresses guarding the BAY OF BASILEA in southern AZAZEM from the sea.

KOGILIR: Geo. Highland plateau in the south west of GREST in the south west of the island-continent of BROR^(L), forming the western-most extension of the LAHAED Mountains.

KOHLSCITRA: also 'the Shadow Pillars'. Sup. Arc. Rui. Ancient pillars in the far north east of the ETUAN WASTES in ETUA, with strange hieroglyphlike symbols on their surface. There are dozens of pillars in all, and they are known for their ephemeral nature – some claim that on nights when both moons are new the pillars take on a smoke-like consistency. When they solidify once more the symbols on their surface are different. Some expeditions have been mounted to the region to examine the symbols, but their nature changes with each 'cycle', as though they belong to a different language entirely, causing true scholarly examination to fail.

KOHNOR: Geo. Highland region in the far south east of LLACHATUL, at the border between the east of RHEA and north of SURUTUR. Its peaks are low and barren, and FIRMAMENTALLY-TAINTED, radiating a fierce heat that can be felt as far south as the ancient monument of MOND EAYID. Closer to the spine of the feature, the effects are more pronounced, and little life can survive in the region, and the region is arid. The FIRMAMENT manifests here in the form of an intense heat that blinds and burns all living things that enter it. Prolonged exposure kills, leaving the corpse a charred desiccated husk. The central peripheries were once used as a form of ritual punishment.

Closer to the foothills, the land is fused into warped glass that is said to be replete with minerals and gems that are untouched due to the heat that pervades the region. The region was once used as a place of punishment known as ZILPA, in which heretics were banished and forced to enter the tainted region until they died in agony from exposure.

KOHOD: Geo. Ancient and native name for the EHBOT Mountain (also known in antiquity as the CITADEL MOUNTS; a term which is sometimes still used in parts of SAMMAEA, particularly BA'AKH, SUMA'YA and IO).

KOIOS, HIGHBORN LESSOR OF MALAN: Oth. Pol. HALFBLOODED descendant of the LADY AEGIS who is seen as favoured in many ways. He serves as a MALANI envoy to other nations and in the rare times when he is not travelling on behalf of the FOREST KINGDOMS, he makes his home in the HENDECARCHY of HATON.

KOKHOSH: Set. Major coastal city in the north west of the BARRIER LANDS in the north west of NORTHERN SAMMAEA, on the edge of the delta of the river AMMENT (Pop. c. 48,000).

KOKORO: Geo. Mountain in the east of SAUA, part of the RED MOUNTAIN-chain. It is home to many mystics and philosophers.

KOLACHIS: Set. Small fortified city in the north east of VÂRR. It lies close to the DREAMSCAPE of PANOPLY. During the KORACHANI and, later INTERREGES rule of the nation, the city was part of the eastern defences of the nation, though following the eventual abandonment of the nation of 3791 RM the region was left to dwindle, though it remains today as a largely-independent region unconcerned with the politicking of the rest of Vârr (Pop. c. 13,000).

KOLAR: Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of SALARNA in the c of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 98,000).

KOLCHIS: also 'the Grey Forest' and 'Kolchis'. Dem. 'Kolchisi'. Ntn. Located to the north of the SEA OF SEKHEM at the link between WESTERN and CENTRAL LLACHATUL, Kolchis is situated east of the BAND mountains and west of the SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF ALMAGEST. Mostly positioned north of the POLAR CIRCLE, it is a land of harsh beauty and biting northerly winds blowing from the distant SEA OF POLARIS, and is characterised by two major rivers – the wide slow-moving VANDAHAR and fast DOERIA, around which its major settlements have appeared – and the AESILIAN hills between them, from which the native name for the region is derived.

Kolchis is the north western-most remnant of the ancient extent of the OLD FOREST, and remnants of this woodland can be found in the boreal forest of MARINVYAAL, which is made up largely of pines, spruce and firs.

In the early FIFTH AGE, the people of Kolchis made contact with the ancestors of the Almagesti people, from whom they learnt astronomy and mathematics, both of which would go on to become integral parts of their culture. Taking root in their homeland, these traditions encountered native mysticism and spiritual beliefs, giving birth to an astrological tradition that had become widespread by around 50 RM, and which became the basis for the state religion of SABIANISM, which appeared in around 700 RM, and the present Kolchisi calendar can be traced back to this time. Though it has remained secondary to the more widespread Kiriastrianism, it remains popular amongst the CONSTELLAR caste. These astrologers became so famous that by the height of the age of exploration in between 1500 - 2000 RM, royal courts across the INNER SEA were clamouring to have a Kolchisi astrologer amongst them, and though the tradition has since waned, Kolchisi astrologers can still be found in foreign lands, notably THE HARÉSHK, SAUA, MALAN, HOAMM, and IO, amongst others.

In around 800 RM Kolchisi explorers moved west across the Band headland, with some settling there in small rural communities, and others going on across the SEA OF ADUM, settling what would become ALAM BETHYL. At the time Kolchis was a far smaller land south of the northern Polar Circle, dominated by a multitude of small states, each sharing a common culture and trading with each other. At various points, war would break out between states over resources or simply to uphold their honour against their neighbours. The longest continuous period of such warfare was between 1325 – 1513 RM, during which time foreign powers such as Almagest took advantage of the instability to raid its coast for slaves. This time is known as the SUMMER WARS.

Though its southern lands were fortified against foreign threats, the fractured nature of the Kolchisi states was detrimental to their defence against the predation of Almagest and its parent empire, KORACHAN.

In around 1500 RM a Constellar of the region of SYCHR began uniting people under his banner. He died before his work was complete but by 1580 RM his followers had completed the task, forging a united Kolchis. Its border with Almagest was fortified against the incessant slave raids and its coastline was guarded by a large navy. Small pirate raids still managed to siphon people and resources from Kolchis, but the new defensive efforts showed how vulnerable a divided Kolchis was to attack, and the commonwealth of people came to be readily accepted and has become ingrained in Kolchisi culture.

Despite this, war came to Kolchis in 2953 RM, and Almagest, with the full support of Korachan attacked it en-masse, across land and Sea. The war dragged on for many decades, though the Kolchisi slowly saw their home taken away from them, inch-by-inch. Almagest slowed its offensive in the early years of the Fourth Millennium as events leading to the War of the Artifexes began to unfold. Despite this, it left a large defensive force in its newly-acquired territory, which still guards the land to this day.

Today the people of Kolchis practice a CITIZEN LEVY that sees all people who come of age drafted into a well-trained and funded militia, where they spend 3-years patrolling the border with Almagest and the extensive fortifications that have appeared there since the end of the war.

In 3164 RM the Republic of the Kolchisi Commonwealth was dissolved as the ruling body, with its last ruler taking on the mantle of LORD-CONSTELLAR, beginning the house of HORÚK, which remains the ruling house to this day. Though Kolchis is ruled by a Lord-constellar, the republic remains an important part of government, and since reformations in 3654 RM, it wields as much power, if not more-so, than the Lord-constellar, and its regional lords, known as TUDLORDS, are influential.

The first Lord-constellar, Lanayash I, feared the power that the ASARLAI – an influential religious caste of SHAPERS – had amassed across Kolchis, and proposed reforms to the KIRIASTRIAN religion that would have had him rise to the chief power within the mortal echelon of the church. The Asarlai refused, beginning a religious schism that saw the Kiriastrian church sundered in two, its members embroiled in a bloody war that ended in 3167 RM with the new orthodox sect triumphant. The Asarlai who remained swore fealty to Lanayash I and all future Lord-Constellars, who from then on became the heads of the religion (making them both the head of church and state), keeping ultimate power from the Asarlai. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KOLCHISI BIT: see BIT, KOLCHISI.

KOLIA: Set. Settlement in the north west of PELASGOS in the region of CHIREA. It's a producer of food for the larger cities in the region (Pop. c. 1,500).

KOLIAN: Lake in the south east of MALAN, along the course of the river NENA, forming part of the border between the HENDECARCHIES of ATALLUA and STHAMAN.

KOLIAS: Ser. City in the south west of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR, in the south west of MALAN, at the mouth of the river TAKRE across the border from southern SAUA. It is known for its vast wetland fields, which lie atop the delta of the river Takre, and it is also a major mercantile centre whose merchants travel across all of Malan, selling food and buying wares from great INDRIK-hauled caravans (Pop. c. 76,000).

KOLIK: Set. Fortified city in the west of IPANAH⁽²⁾. It is home to many of its mounted troops (Pop. c. 25,000).

KOLLREA: Set. Settlement in the c north east of KASPIA (Pop. unknown).

KOLO: 1. Geo. Escarpment in the north of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS, emerging from the south west of the TEREKION Mountains.

2. Geo. Pillar of rock in the above region.

KOLRAUTELIOCH: Geo. Rocky region in the c of THE OLD FOREST, just south of the EPITRACHON Mountains known to be rich in granite. The region was heavily quarried in the FOURTH AGE and the remnants of great crater-like quarries remain, worn by the elements, rendered into large artificial lake, the larger of which is UTLATH.

KOLRIS, BASILICA OF: Rel. Set. BASILICA of the ALMAGESTI TEMPLE in the south of ALMAGEST, built in 1853 RM, when it was a part of Skaros, falling to Almagest during the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES. A large city has appeared around it since then. Originally populated by pilgrims and their descendants, the place remains a major stopping point on THE SHADOW MARCH as well as the RED ROUTE, and most of the trade and commerce there revolves around visiting pilgrims (Pop. c. 31,000).

KOLROKH HANNO: m. Mil. Pol. Atr. Per. (B. 3919 RM) TRIUMVIR of the KHADON LANGUE^(1.) of the GRIGORIAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION since 3972 RM. Rising through the ranks of the Order through his deeds and meticulous judgement from a humble background outside the Order, he is feared and respected in equal measure by his lessers, with his powers of FARSIGHT in particular being respected with the Order.

A powerful SEER⁽³⁾, Kolrokh is everywhere at once, his magickal eye surveying the empire like a bird from afar. Known for his near unnumbered agents and underlings, many of which have contradictory orders, his is the unenviable role of offering the first line of defence to any and all threats against the empire. He has a close if terse relation with the GRANDMASTERS of the other Orders, though conversely thinks little of his fellow Triumvirs, perhaps seeing them as superfluous to his plans. Indeed, he is commonly regarded as the first amongst equals and even his fellow Triumvirs would likely defer to his rule should the need ever arise.

He is the only 'grandmaster' (his title of Triumvir being seen as analogous to that of Grandmaster) to presently sit in the COUNCIL OF SEVEN, since 4001 RM, which has led to some enmity and friction with other Grandmasters of similar aspiration, including MACHAEUS ZIDEON and KOMAN: Soc. District in the south eastern reaches of the CITY OF ALMAGEST. The area was an ancient ALAKHI burial ground, dating back to many centuries before the appearance of the city or the surrounding nations' eventual subjugation to the KORACHANI EMPIRE.

Though most of the graves were destroyed as part of the city's growth, some remained untouched forming a 'park' of sorts. A caste of ascetic al akhi came to guard the area, ensuring that the memory of the dead lives on and that the relatively small remaining area of tombs and granite monuments is not desecrated any further than it already has been.

These al akhi form a small ghetto in the area and were granted legal protection in 2285 RM after many years petitioning, though they often still clash with the local law enforcement and censors of the city, with their idealistic differences being the cause of much friction.

KOMANA: Set. City in the c north of ALLASAN, along the course of the river CTHONA, built over FOURTH AGE ruins and catacombs. It forms a part of the RED ROUTE and is renowned for its tower bridge that is busy with caravans crossing the Cthona (Pop. c. 15,300).

KOMAREL: Set. Small fortified coastal city in the north west of DACIA, to the east of the STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL. The city appeared in c. 3880 RM, taking advantage of the silting of the Strait, which closed finally in 3757 RM. It takes sea trade from the west and moves it overland south east into NÁRTHEL, where it is moved to PHENESH⁽²⁾. It is a stop along the SHADOW MARCH (Pop. c. 16,000).

KOMMAREAR: lit. 'hammerer'. Soc. Rnk. In NÁRTHEL, name given to the male children of wealthy families during their traditional 3-years of service (beginning at the age of sixteen) where they labour in manufactories or poppy fields, or serving as soldiers, before returning to their families. Many decide to remain in the military as elite warriors who undergo harsh training and ATRAMENTAL augmentation. To have a kommarear in ones' family is considered an honour. Today most kommarear do little work during this time of servitude, and it is rare form them to do manual work as was the tradition centuries ago.

KOMMEA: Dem. 'Kommean'. Ntn. Kingdom to the north east of EASTERN LLACHATUL, situated to the east of LOEGRESS⁽¹⁾. It is of a temperate climate, with warm summers and mild winters, and is dominated by a rocky and jagged north eastern coast overlooking the SEA OF AKRY. It has been a vassal-state of TETHYSIA since 3883 RM.

It has a long and convoluted monarchic history, with various dynasties and regimes ruling over different times, which are commonly divided into nine distinct periods known as the KOMMEAN DYNASTIES, beginning with the reign of king ABBARUD. Originally the Royal Consort of Queen ARLEIE, granddaughter of the exiled Loegrean king TRIDUAN, he became king in 3172 RM following her death, establishing a royal tradition that lasts to this day. He entered the MYMEREAN ACCORDS in 3189 RM, bringing prosperity to his nascent kingdom. The fifth and current Dynasty was established in 3883 RM, with the ascension of prince LLYIM to kingship, ushering in a new period of vassalage to Tethysia due to his arranged marriage to the DEMIGODDESS SURHET in 3871 RM.

The kingdom is divided into duchies that are ruled by DEMIGODS (children of the GOD-KING of Tethysia) who are exempt from the normal law that forces their kind to be slain when a new God-king is chosen. This makes the posting in Kommea a popular one amongst demigods, who do not live with the shadow of their impending death, and are allowed to rule with relative autonomy under the royal house of Kommea, who continues to marry into Tethysian nobility to this day. The present queen-steward is SISHRA II, whose eldest child, prince Abbarud IV has shown little respect for their dynasty's vassalage to Tethysia and has openly displayed nationalist tendencies, leading to unrest in the capital.

Prior to the Dynastic period, Kommea had been ruled by a line of autocrats known as the CUNOMAGLIANS for close to two millennia. Emerging in c. 1250 RM, they claimed to be ordained by gods, and the first of their kind, CUNOMAGLIO, is now thought to have been of SCIONIC descent. The last of their kind were defeated and slain in a massive rebellion in c. 2920 RM after which most of their legacy was destroyed by a people who fractured once their common goal had been achieved.

The people of Kommea are descended from ancient KASPIAN explorers that travelled south across the SEA OF IALCUS, and TETHYSIAN immigrants, the first of whom arrived there in c. 900 RM, mingling with natives. Their original nobility were known as the DONAGERS, and their descendants can still be found, albeit much diminished in social hierarchy, though some serve as minor nobles beneath the demigod governors. Today, they are famed as expert engineers and builders of bridges and tunnels, which are a relatively common sight in their mountainous homeland.

Its lands are famed abroad for being rich in FIRMAMENTAL flora, and its very soil is made up of the remnants of ancient Firmamentally-infused rocks, and FIRMATITE is relatively common there, and formed the backbone of the economy of most of its regimes, including its vassalage to Tethysia. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

KOMMEAN: Lan. Language spoken in KOMMEA. It has roots in the ancient tongue of GALABRIA, which was spoken until c. 1250 RM by the people of its descendant state GHAL RIMMA, though was altered by the coming of the autocrat CUNOMAGLIO, who established a powerful cult of personality and had all traces of the previous culture eradicated.

It was under his regime that the traditional Kommean tongue was established, though this too underwent various changed following alliances with KHAMID and, later, subjugation to TETHYSIA, with various loanwords entering its lexicon. See Vol II: Languages.

KOMMEAN DYNASTIES: Pol. His. Series of five monarchic houses in KOMMEA that have ruled since 3172 RM, to the present day. They arose amid the power vacuum left by the overthrowing of the tyrannical the CUNOMAGLIANS, following over 150-years of political tensions.

Below is a list of the full dynasties and their rulers in chronological order. The CODEX ELDORIA lists each monarch and records their reign in detail, is followed by the length of their rule in years.

— The Abbarudian Dynasty. The first of the Kommean Dynasties. It was founded by the royal consort (later king) ABBARUD of KHAMID in 3172 RM following his marriage to queen ARLEIE. He became king in 3177 RM following her death, and was advised by 4 mute shapers who had travelled with him from Khamid. He established the HALYAR KHO-MENET, a college of shaping in the Khamidian tradition in 3191 RM and maintained close ties with his homeland, though these links lessened throughout Abbarudian Dynasty, ultimately petering out during the Vardylian Dynasty. He entered the MYMEREAN ACCORDS in 3189 RM, bringing prosperity to his nascent kingdom.

The Dynasty lasted until 3408 RM, when queen Vishyali died without heir and the line passed to her nephew Sydd Vardyl. The name Abbarudian Dynasty was retroactively applied to the house following his ascension to the throne: Abbarud I (69), Abbarud II (61), Sishra (35), Abbarud III (29), Vishyali (42).

– The Vardylian Dynasty. Often regarded as the Forgotten Dynasty, this line of rulers is noted for its unremarkable legacy and its many uninspired monarchs. This dynasty accomplished little and allowed the last vestiges of unity with Khamid to slip away as they concentrated on trade and relations across the SEA OF AKRY. They did maintain a stable kingdom that the more famous Elsyian Kings would later inherit.

Their line ended in 3652 RM with the death of king Talyen, after which his two daughters vied for the throne, with the youngest, Caelwyr, ultimately acceding in 3654 RM. Sydd (41), Sydd II (28), Taralaene the Shrewd (30), Selene the Shaper (12), Erynnar (8), Virrodan (43), Moryna, the Seventh (33), Simyrad (27), Talyen (22).

- The Elsyian Kings. Queen Caelwyr ultimately suffered under a domineering husband who assumed most of her duties after having her removed from public life. The line of Elsyian Kings was known for its inbreeding, and it ended after 168 years with the death of Fiorentyn III. Unnaturally long-lived and heirless after a string of stillbirths and sickly children with his consort and cousin, was secede by his cousin, the aspirational Vishyali II Cynia in 3822 RM. Fiorentyn III's rule was marked by economic downturn and stagnation of industry, leading to Kommea faltering on the political stage.

The Dynasty was named after its ancestral homes, ELSYIA, where it moved the capital for the duration of its reign. Fiorentyn I (43), Fiorentyn II (21), Gyldor of the Horn (36), Fiorentyn III (68).

- The Cerynian Dynasty. Vishyali II was burdened by a weakened kingdom and had to search abroad for allies. She was a schemer with aspirations that outweighed her competence, and entered into deals with Tethysia that she did not fully understand. She invited its nobility and merchants into Kommea, where they established a new consulate. From there they began to exert their influence on the kingdom.

Her daughter queen Myrina of the Flame continued the tradition, inviting Tethysia military forces into Kommea where they established various bases, and her grandson Cerydan the Watchful was able to complete the union of nations, promising his own son LLYIM in marriage to the new Tethysian DEMIGODDESS SURHET for wealth and political stability in return for vassalage to Tethysia. The two were married in 3871 RM, and Llyim became king after Cerydan's death in 3883 RM, beginning the Autumn Dynasty. Vishyali II (13), Myrina of the Flame (32), Cerydan the Watchful (11).

 The Autumn Dynasty. The present dynasty of Kommea, whose monarchs rule as stewards to Tethysia came to power in 3883 RM with the ascension of Llyim to the throne. They marry into Tethysian nobility to maintain ties between the two nations, though they remain subservient to the Tethysian $\underline{GOD\text{-}KING}$, caring more about appeasing him and his demigods, who now serve as regional rulers, than the Kommean people. The present queen-steward is $\underline{SISHRA\ II}$, who took power in 4004 RM. Llyim (68), Liradwyn (9), Thalyron (44), Sishra II (3 \geq).

KONAK: Soc. Str. Abode common in the south of SAUA, commonly of grand design and home to officials and land-princes.

KONDERGOR: Rvr. River flowing for 250-miles east from the ADMANATI hills in the far east of the BLACK MOUNTAINS before emptying in the GULF OF SKAROS. Its waters are clear and keep the city of EDUASIA alive.

KONRA: Lake in the north of PARAIYA, and part of the border with LIDEA. The river is situated along the course of the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.).

KONSANT: Set. Settlement in the west of KAZZAR^(2,). Its main industry is coal mining (Pop. c. 6,200).

KOPH: also 'Kophic Houses'. Pol. Rnk. Noble family made up of four separate houses that dominate culture, politics and commerce in KHULL, whose individuals can claim their ancestry to the days of the INGHULLAN MONARCHY.

The name of Koph is an old one that genealogists have been able to trace back to c. 900 RM, a time before the rise of the first INGHULLAN king ASIPHYAL I in 1131 RM. During this time, MASTRON KOPH was a lieutenant of Asiphyal, enjoying a close relationship with the warlord, eventually becoming the first KINGSFRIEND, a title that brought with it great responsibility and privilege, and which would cement the house of Koph as a powerhouse in local commerce and politics.

The house grew in influence throughout the rule of the Inghullan Monarchy, and in 1877 RM the minor lord UBÉR married princess EREPHYANA III, becoming king consort, effectively making the house of Koph royalty.

The prestige was not to be indefinite though, and the monarchy as well as its immediate family, including the house of Koph, suffered under the tenure of the SORCERER-KINGS^(3.), whose eventual deposing of the royal house in 2136 RM also led to the downfall of the house of Koph. Within a few generations, it had been all but forgotten by the common folk, yet it persisted, its members gravitating towards clerical work, with a few becoming minor businessmen or serving as intermediaries between the nobility and the SOPHIC COUNCIL, even after the eventual eradication of the Sorcerer-kings by the KHULLAN INQUISITION.

Centuries after its fall from grace a descendant with the name of Koph was studying her genealogy in SUDRUM and discovered the family's royal heritage. Though no claim was made at the time to rekindle the Inghullan royal dynasty, likely out of fear of retaliation from the authorities, the revelation nonetheless garnered notoriety. By c. 3500 RM, the extended Kophic family had solidified into four distinct houses that were positioned in the upper echelons of the Khullan (as Inghull had become known by then) society, with some members having served in its government, the Eternal Assembly, despite opposition to their collective power by the Khullan Inquisition.

Decades of hostility by the Khullan Inquisition led to a short siege of a Kophic estate outside VYNAR TA' in 3613 RM, which ended in the family disappearing and the Inquisition leaders standing trial before the Eternal Assembly. Despite the many charges brought against them, the Khullan Inquisition was released with minimal punishment to the disbelief of the Kophic houses.

This began a fractured time in Khull, with the Inquisition on one side, and the Kophic houses on the other, yearning for their ancestors' power. They were able to buy the allegiance of some councillors from the Assembly, which in turn allowed them to form a monopoly over commerce, trade, industry and construction. By 3778 RM, the Assembly was openly in the employ of the Kophic houses and the Inquisition, split roughly down the middle. This led to a prolonged period characterised by political intrigue between the two factions. Poisonings, kidnappings, and assassinations were not unheard of.

The Kophic houses have grown to become incredibly wealthy and just as influential, and were it not for the bipartisan system that they share with the Khullan Inquisition, they would likely have made an attempt to reclaim the throne.

KOPHIC HOUSES: see KOPH.

KOPHIS: Set. Small city in the south of the HENDECARCHY of DERAEIA in the east of MALAN. It is the largest of many communities bordering lake HÂT, and is insular, making little contact with people outside the ARGENT Mountains (Pop. c. 13,800).

KOPHARAD: Mil. Edu. Sup. Str. ATRAMENTAL-research post in the east of the REALM OF THE MARKED PALL, overlooking the EYE OF DARKNESS region. Little is otherwise known of it, but it is thought to be a centre of ALCHEMICAL and Atramental research.

KOR: Lan. The number '7' in the KORACHANI tongue.

KORGOD: His. Str. Ancient MULL sepulchre in the c-south east of the MULL CITY-STATES. The sepulchre is gigantic and takes the form of a great pink marble monument at a crossroads of different districts and major cities, the roads of which pass beneath its great vaulted structure.

KORAAS: Set. Settlement in the west of ROMOREA (2.). Its main industry is iron mining (Pop. c.,500).

KORA: Set. Settlement in the north west of ARKOS (1.) (Pop. c. 7,500).

KORACHA-SVATHI: Lan. Language spoken in present-day NÁRTHEL and DACIA. It is descended from the earlier FIFTH AGE SVATHI, though has since adopted many aspects of the Korachani language from millennia of subjugation. See Vol II: Languages.

KORACHAN: (km:xa:n) Lit. 'seven places'. 1. His. Ntn. Extinct culture that once dominated the KORACHANI PENINSULA prior to the rise to power of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR.

Originally ruled by the sorcerous caste known as the CHEIROAHIN, Korachan was divided into 7 major TERRITORIES, each ruled by its own capital — DEOCHAN, KHADON, BACHAN, CALDERA, KORACHAN, MAKHARA, and ZEPHANICHAN, which rose in c. -700 RM with the discovery of iron and their abandonment of the ancient neolithic religion of LIBOR, in favour of the CULT OF LIFE AND DEATH. By c. -300 RM its people were minting coins, and by c. -200 RM there was a thriving tradenetwork between the seven city-states.

Culturally it was dominated by the cult of Life and Death CULT OF LIFE AND DEATH, which formed a major part of daily life, with its priests becoming very influential, and it was only the strength of character of the Archpotentate Malichar that saw the cult falter, to be replaced by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE and the city-states united as a single entity under his control in 1 RM. See Vol III: Extinct Nations.

2. Dem. 'Korachani'. Ntn. Extant nation in the INNER SEA, dominating the KORACHANI PENINSULA and, for most of the FIFTH AGE, a major imperial presence around the same sea.

It has existed in its present from since 1 RM and was funded by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR following his shipwrecking on the isle of MALETH and subsequent reading of the SCRIPTURE OF SHADOW. He returned to the Korachani Peninsula and united its SEVEN CITY-STATES, admonishing the merchant-lords of Korachan and toppling the temple of the CULT OF LIFE AND DEATH, destroying the religion's heart in Korachan, paving the way for the rise of the UNDYING MACHINE there and founding of the KORACHANI EMPIRE.

Since then it went on to subjugate most of the nations around the Inner Sea, though its influence has been waning since it lost its ALMAGESTI territories in 3014 RM and the subsequent SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM, which saw most of the territories south of the Inner Sea lost to the LOW-EMPIRE OF SARASTRO.

Since then, Korachan has founded new colonies across ELYDEN, including CRASSULA, MELHUMBRA, TAVVADRA, and UKOBACHAN, amongst others, though its influence across the Inner Sea continues to wane. See Vol III: Extinct Nations.

KORACHAN, CITY OF: also 'the Holy City'. (kpra:xa:n) Set. Major coastal city in the nation of KORACHAN, looking west to the INNER SEA. It is one of the oldest cities in Korachan, and predates the rise to power of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR by many centuries and was one of the original SEVEN CITY-STATES of the KORACHANI PENINSULA.

It has been regraded multiple times since its first appearance to maintain its coastal presence, and it has become well-known for its undercity, which is a fetid place filled with DEGENERATES and other outcasts. Its moniker of Holy City is derived from the sermons of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, who deposed the CULT OF LIFE AND

DEATH there, paving the way for the rise of the UNDYING MACHINE and ultimately the appearance of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE.

Today it is a major port and its harbours are constantly busy with ships moving trade and pilgrims to and from the city (Pop. c. 900,000).

KORACHAN DHAI: Set. City in OBLEVIS in the south east of EASTERN MENISCEA. It was renamed Korachan Dhai from its original name in c. 920 RM by followers of the DESPOSYNI DYNASTY which came to rule there. Following the revolution of 3199 RM, the capital was moved to MADDIS, though Korachan Dhai remains a productive industrial centre to this day. Originally coastal, it is now some distance from the coast (Pop. c. 220,800).

KORACHAN, THE HIGH-EMPIRE OF: see HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN.

KORACHANI: Lan. Main language spoken in KORACHAN and other territories and colonies within the KORACHANI EMPIRE, that emerged in between c. 300 – 350 RM from EARLY KORACHANI.

It is probably the most widely-spoken language in ELYDEN thanks to a combination of imperial colonialism, the wide reach of its economy, and the widespread influence of the Church of the Undying Machine across Elyden. And even those who do not directly speak it are likely fluent in a language that has been influenced by it.

The language exists in two forms – the official version known as HIGH KORACHANI, which is regulated and controlled by the LEXICOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY OF KORACHAN, which has changed little since its establishment in c. 350 RM; and LOW KORACHANI, which is spoken by the lower classes, with little enforcement, which means it more mutable and varies more from region to region.

Like many languages from the south of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, it is descended from a common tongue, known as GORRHASHI. See Vol II: Languages.

KORACHANI BIT: see BIT, KORACHANI.

KORACHANI DISPATCH, the: Int. Vol. Soc. Broadsheet newspaper with the widest known circulation, shipping to all KORACHANI territories across ELYDEN. It has sections on news, the arts, sciences, high society, as well as dispatches from the LEAGUE OF EXPLORERS and others organisations from across Elyden. It is criticised by other nations for its blatant propaganda, though this is largely unknown or ignored by its own people.

KORACHANI DVERGR: Lan. Early FIFTH AGE language spoken by the DVERG of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, which borrowed heavily from the earlier DVERGR and KORACHANI. It became the basis for the later CHTHYRIAN tongue. See Vol II: Languages.

KORACHANI, EARLY: His. Lan. Language spoken by the people of the KORACHANI PENINSULA following the unification of the SEVEN TERRITORIES by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, based on the late FOURTH AGE language of GORRHASHI.

It emerged between c. 0-50 RM as the dialect of the old city-state of KHADON gained prominence over other dialects, due to the new capital being located there. By c. 300-350 RM the language had evolved into 'modern' KORACHANI, which has changed little since then, See Vol II: Languages.

KORACHANI EMPIRE: also 'the Heartland', and 'HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN'. Pol. Ntn. Empire that controls most of the northern coast of the INNER SEA, including the nations of AZAZEM, KORACHAN, LAASKHA, PELASGOS, and SKAROS, as well as MHAROKK in SAMMAEA, and various colonies across ELYDEN (including CRASSULA, MELHUMBRA, TAVVADRA, and UKOBACHAN, amongst others). Throughout its history the Korachani empire has subjugated many territories, and at the height of its power was in possession of lands including ALMAGEST, JURRAS^(2.), KETESH, LIDEA, LYRIDIA, NÁRTHEL, SARASTRO, VAALK, VÂRR, VENTHIR and IO, amongst others.

The empire has existed since 11 RM, when the nation of KORACHAN, under the leadership of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, conquered the demesne of Azazem, and remains to this day. Unlike other empires and civilisations, Korachan has endured for so many years largely due to the cyclopean attitude of its ruler, the Archpotentate Malichar, an OTHERWORLDER of vast power, whose will has shaped the course of history within the empire. Despite this, he is prone to long periods of insularity and ennui, during which Korachan often wavers to the politicking of its mortal government – $\underline{\text{THE SEVEN}}$.

Major historical events within the Korachani empire include:

- The REIGN OF THE EMPTY THRONE, a period starting in 84 RM when the Archpotentate Malichar disappeared for over 250-years, during which he was reborn as an otherworlder and restored the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL to life as the UNDYING MACHINE.
- the SCHISM WARS, which gripped the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING
 MACHINE between 196 367 RM, following the actions of ARREKAN
 THE BETRAYER.
- THE CULLING, which took place in 339 RM following Malichar's return to Korachan as an OTHERWORLDER, where he culled many of his Desposyni descendants.
- the PAPAL HERESY, when between 1191 1217 RM the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE gave away large swathes of its northern territories to DVERG and other fey beings in a misconceived act, which resulted in the birth of the nation of CHTHYRID.
- the REIGN OF THE APOSTATE POPE, during which a secondary religion rose in PELASGOS, bringing chaos to the empire between free-isles.
- the RULE OF THE DESPOSYNI, where between 2517 3012 RM, Korachan was ruled by a royal line of DESPOSYNI, beginning with king TAKIYAH, who ruled until 2693 RM.
- the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES, which saw Korachan gripped by a civil war that saw Almagest and a large part of northern Skaros break free as an independent state in 3014 RM.
- the BLOOD HETERODOXIES, which lasted for 500-years in KARAKHAS and ended in the signing of the COVENANT OF KHURAUR in 3478 RM which saw the nation fractured in two separate states Karakhas and Khuraur the latter of which became independent.
- the WAR OF SUNDERING, which saw a civil war grip the empire from 3703 to 3705 RM, at the end of which Korachan was forced to sign the SARASTROAN TREATY.
- the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE, which in 3705 RM saw Korachan divided in two – the High-empire north of the Inner Sea, and the LOW-EMPIRE OF SARASTRO to the south.

Since the Sundering of the Empire, Korachan also lost Venthir in 3781 RM, after which its territories have changed little, though it did reacquire Mharokk in 3930 RM following political upheavals there.

Today Korachan clings to the shadow of its golden age, The Seven and its Patrician caste largely in denial of their waning resources and wealth. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

KORACHANI GUILD OF CHYMYSTERS: Bus. His. Org. Ancient KORACHANI guild, whose members were chymysters and ALCHYMISTS, serving as the precursors to modern CHEMISTERS. The guild was founded in the city of KHADON in 57 RM, moving to DEOCHAN in 114 RM, though within a century its influence had expanded to most Korachani cities in which there was an established alchymical tradition.

The guild came to control the supply of most alchymical materials into Korachan by c. 250 RM, and, with the blessing of THE COUNCIL OF SEVEN, in 312 RM alchymists had to become paid members of the guild in order to practise their trade in imperial cities. This monopoly in trade materials related to the craft, and revenues collected from members had made the Guild very rich and powerful, and by c. 375 RM it had expanded its sphere of influence to incorporate other nascent fields, such as FLESHWRIGHTING and, eventually, CLONING.

The first successful industrial-scale production of HAEMONCULI by the IMPERIAL COLLEGE OF FABRICATED INCEPTION in c. 740 RM led to a revolution in the art of cloning, with various ATELIERS, guilds, and groups reverse-engineering techniques to effectively steal the secrets of the procedure. This led to the CHEMISTERS WAR, in which the Imperial College of Fabricated Inception used strong-arm tactics to retrieve what it considered its property. The period lasted until 823 RM, when the Council of Seven granted the College exclusive rights to licence its techniques for 100-years, which saw the influence of the Korachani Guild of Chymysters wane. Even after the 100-year moratorium ended, the Guild was unable to claim any considerable market share from the College of Fabricated Inception, and it began to wane.

In 1567 RM it was absorbed by the more modern and forward-thinking ORDER OF CHEMISTERS, with its ateliers and guildhalls formally taken over by the larger organisation.

KORACHANI GYRE: Sea. Sea gyre in the c east of the INNER SEA, off the western coast of KORACHAN.

KORACHANI, HIGH: Lan. Official administrative language of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, emerging in c. 350 RM, and overseen by the LEXICOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY OF KORACHAN, whose members are unyielding and largely unwilling to allow the Korachani language to develop. As a result, High Korachani has changed very little in its over three millennia existence, despite the many different territories and influence it has been exposed to in that time.

Conversely, LOW KORACHANI, also known as Guttertalk, is the language of the masses, and is highly mutable.

KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES: Edu. Sup. Str. Org. An annex of the VÁMAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION that is devoted to researching and studying the ATRAMENTA and the effects of ATRAMENTAL CORRUPTION on the MATERIAL PLANE. Its ATRAMENTISTS and PENUMBRISTS travel extensively around the NEAR HEMISPHERE studying the many regions of Atramental taint and local ARCANE TEMPERS, in the hopes of better understanding what causes them.

The Institute was founded in the city of UVILLA in the south east of SKAROS in 581 RM as an independent institution by Atramentists from various MINASTERIA with the common goal of better-understanding the MATERIA OMNA and, more specifically, the Atramenta and its LACUNAE, whose fickle nature had come to dictate many aspects of KORACHANI life.

The Korachani government took control in 695 RM, providing it with more support and funds than it ever could have received as a private venture. Since then, it has become important in shaping industry, exploration, colonisation attempts within the empire, with its experts forming a part of most expeditions and colonisation attempts. In 2780 RM it was folded into the Váman Order, where it continues its work to this day.

In 1733 RM the Institute created the popular system of categorisation through which regions of Atramental taint are labelled to this day. It lists all regions of Atramental taint on a scale, ranging from LEAST CONCERN, to MODERATE THREAT, DANGEROUS, and EXTREMELY DANGEROUS, respectively.

KORACHANI, LOW: also 'Guttertalk'. Lan. The language of the common people across the KORACHANI EMPIRE, spoken in markets, manufactories, slums, shanties, tenements, harbours, and anywhere else where HELOTS and SLAVES are found.

It is far more mutable than the official language of the empire, HIGH KORACHANI, readily adapting to cultural and political changes, leading to hundreds of different dialects across the empire, with many more accents and slang terms, sometimes within the same city. See Vol II: Languages.

KORACHANI LLACHATUL: common name around the Inner Sea Region for CENTRAL LLACHATUL.

KORACHANI MEAN TIME: also 'KMT'. Soc. KORACHANI-centric system of keeping time that appeared in 3980 RM, replacing the previous standard, which had originated in PARTHIS in 3962 RM.

Originally proposed by a symposium of Parthisan PATRICIANS and magnates headed by the Archpatrician DIAPANU ASHIA, ELYDEN was divided into 24 longitudinal zones of 15°, or 1 hour, each, corresponding with the commonly-accepted longitudinal measurements, with Parthis at the centre. The political choice to have the centre in Parthis rather than the PRIME MERIDIAN, led to confusion and the eventual change to the present Korachani-centric system.

Zones east of the Prime Meridian are numbered negatively up to -12, and zones west of this are numbered positively, also up to +12. Together there 24 zones each correspond with an hour in the commonly-accepted 24-hour system.

Most other regions measure time based on KMT, or at the very least acknowledge it So, for instance, Parthis would be KMT+2, and so-on. The 12th zone lies along what is called the International Date line, and is divided along the 180^{th} meridian, and both prefixes (+) and (–) appear in this zone, dependent on the Date Line. When crossing the International Date Line, any time-keeping devices need to have their date reset – a day back if moving east over the Date Line, or a day ahead when moving west over the Date Line, though the exact time may vary based on the territories one is moving from and to.

The boundaries between these Time Zones are arbitrarily designated every 15° , though vary based on the international boundaries of different nations and political regions. In general, each nation has chosen a specific Time Zone, typically based on which of the 24 zones its area most occupies, and applies that Time Zone to its entire contiguous territory. For instance, Korachan lies along the +1, 0, and -1 time zone, so chose to apply the 0 time (KMT) to all these areas, irrespective of their actual position related to a specific Time Zone.

This system spread rapidly across the Inner Sea, replacing most solar time-keeping methods, and through its use at sea, is also spreading to other regions outside of its area of origin and is soon expected to overtake all other local time-keeping methods, though some regions (such as GNOTH, THE SURRACH, XYRPHAAT⁽³⁾, and ARERAQTH), persist in using their own methods instead of the more commonly-accepted 24-hour system.

KORACHANI PENINSULA: Geo. Peninsula jutting south from the c of LLACHATUL into the INNER SEA. It encompasses the capital nation of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, as well as the nations of HOAMM and ARTALSCELLIA.

KORACHANI PLAINS: Geo. Plains dominating lands west of the FATUACH Mountains in the KORACHANI PENINSULA. The plains were once fertile, known for their sparse woodlands, scrub forests and shrublands. Today they are largely barren, with scattered trees and shrubs.

KORACHANI SPINE, the: Geo. Common name for the mountains that form the central highlands of the KORACHANI PENINSULA. The Spine is comprised of the FATUACH and AKAGHA Mountains.

KORACHANI ROYALTY: see 'DESPOSYNI, RULE OF THE'.

KORACHANI WARSHIPS: Mil. Veh. Class of modern steel-clad warships used by the KORACHANI EMPIRE, since c. 3910 RM, namely the POTENTATE⁽³⁾, PATRIARCH⁽²⁾, PATRICIAN⁽²⁾, PRINCEPS⁽²⁾, and PRINCE class imperial warships, which are classed as battleships, cruisers, frigates, gunships and corvettes, respectively. They share various design elements, primarily, a double-layered lower-deck made up of several independent water-tight compartments to minimise the chance of sinking, as well as multiple batteries of turreted artillery – an innovation that grants them an unparalleled field of view, replacing antiquated broadside batteries that had extremely limited arcs of fire.

Originally it was proposed that a battleship named the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR be constructed to act as a capital ship, though this was rapidly shot down, with the reasoning that there is only one Archpotentate, and that it would be uncouth to name a ship after him.

KORAHALEN: Cal. In the KORACHANI CALENDAR, the seventh month of twelve, comprising 30-days. It is named after the nation of KORACHAN and is considered the first of three months of summer. See Vol II: Months and Lunar Cycle in Elyden.

KORANTH: Rui. Once a major city and diamond mine in the DELOMIG region of the c north of SARASTRO. The city was abandoned in c. 2800 RM following the collapse of its open-cast mine and the destruction of half the city.

KORAR: Geo. Highland region acting as a natural border between the tropical nation of PNESSA and the SEA OF SUPPA.

KORAYEN: 1. Geo. Salt flatlands in the west of AHRISHEN, in the region of DEMERAL. The area is a remnant of the shallow lagoons left behind through the retreat of the SEA OF PYREA over the past 1,000-years.

2. Rui. MERILL ruins in old coastal shelf in western AHRISHEN, in the region of DEMERAL.

KORCHANA: Set. City in the c east of EREBETH. Until c. 3920 RM the city was little more than a farming settlement, but as the war with CYHLAGHARR escalated, it began to receive refugees from eastern cities. It continues to grow to this day (Pop. c. 50,000).

KORDA: Geo. Mud-flats in the c north of SAMMAEA, just west of the KALKAUR rift valley. the mud-flats are strangely fertile, with various mosses and lichens surviving there alongside small animals, which tribal natives feed on.

KORDIR: Geo. Island off the north eastern coast of VENTHIR, around 75-miles long and 30-miles wide at its widest point. The island is largely uninhabited, though boasts a few rural communities and a fortified military outpost on its northern-most point.

KORDRIN: Set. Small city in the north west of CYHLAGHARR (Pop. c. 12,000).

KORIA: Set. Small fortified city in the far east of SEDISIA, close to the border with GNOTH. It is a major link between the two nations and has a small giganri population (Pop. c. 12,000).

KORIN: 1. Geo. Island off the western coast of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS.

2. Set. Port-settlement on the eponymous island, protecting the SOULSTONE mine of ADARAR in south west of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS (Pop. c. 15,500).

KORINAT: Geo. Great monolithic overhang in the north of the RTHEI desert in the north of THETIS.

KORIND: 1. Pol. Soc. Tribe in the north west of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. It borders the north east of AETHIOS, as well as territories contested between Aethios and AUEREN, which is politically unstable. Due to this, its northern border is heavily fortified against barbarian incursion.

2. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of Korind (Pop. c. 78,000).

KORINT: Pol. Set. Capital city of HANNAH and seat of power of THE CABAL (Pop. unknown).

KORINTIA: Ind. Set. Major city in the far south of PARTHIS. It was once coastal, but is now many miles from the coast. It was originally a port, but slowly changed to an industrial city with engine manufactories and refineries. It is known for the many ancient early FIFTH AGE ruins and ancient temples that stand just a few miles outside its borders today, which are popular with young PATRICIANS undertaking the GRAND TOUR (Pop. c. 80,000).

KORIR: Set. Settlement in the north of KORACHAN, about 35-miles south east of the TEMPLE OF EPHESUS. The settlement was once along THE SHADOW MARCH, though changes in terrain moved the March farther west and the city suffered as a result (8,500).

KORNA: 1. Rvr. River in the west of TAMAR, flowing over 150-miles south into the HARMACHIS from its source in the TISTAR hills. Sediment from the hills give its waters a faint reddish tint.

2. Lak. Lake situated along the midspan of the eponymous river^(1.). The lake is round 200-square miles in size and finds various settlements along its shores.

KORNELIUS MAGRIZAAR: m. Arc. Alc. Per. (D. 2102 RM) Legendary polymath who is most famed as an architect and civil engineer. Born in the city of BASSORAH(4) in PELASGOS, to HELOT parents, he later bought his freedom and became famed for designing large structures – primarily cast iron bridges – across the KORACHANIEMPIRE, including the MAGNABRIDGE in KHADON, the JURISI BRIDGE near the mouth of the river KHAD, and the SMYRNIA BRIDGE over the river SAMAPAR in LAASKHA, amongst many others. He is also known to have lived for over three centuries, though his dabblings with ALCHEMY.

KORO: Set. Abandoned settlement in the c-south east of THE SURRACH, in the ATRAMENTAL REGION of HARAT CHLO. Little is left of the settlement other than a grey mound – the remnants of clay brick structures that were left to rot over 300-years-ago.

KORODILLAH: Fau. Nimble reptilian creature with long upright legs and a crocodilian head and tail. They can grow to around 5-ft. long and are excellent sprinters and swimmers, where they chase down slower prey in short bursts of speed designed to wear down them down before breaking their necks with powerful jaws. They are native to the savannahs of WESTERN SAMMAEA, along peripheries whey meet wetlands and scrubland, including MACELLARIA, EPHATTA, and western ADHERA. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KOROR: Geo. Brown mountain forming the border between the north east of SARASTRO and the west of VENTHIR, situated between the JAELA mountain to the north west and the KHO INNOR to the south west. The mountains are rich in iron and other ores.

KOROSH: 1. Geo. Rocky region in the west of the SYNHODOS Plateau rich in mineral and ore.

2. Set. Mining settlement in the south of the above region, known for its granite and hardstone quarries (Pop. c. 5,800).

KOROTA: Cui. Sweetened hard biscuits made in KORACHAN during the spring equinox festival celebrated between the months of CYKRANALEN and LIVIALEN.

KORU-CHBON: Set. Fortified city in the far north of SERROK, overlooking the border with CHEIRA (Pop. c. 42,000).

KORVANT: 1. Geo. Rocky region in the north west of GNOTH and home to an outcast caste of GIGANRI who lost themselves to the temptation of their research.

2. Set. Small city in the north west of the above region in GNOTH. It is known as the main city to be occupied by a caste of giganri philosophers who, some 1200-years ago, studied ancient texts originally discovered in the KHARKHARADONTID wastes. The texts corrupted their leaders and eventually the entire population, which began taking part in decadent rituals. They were eventually exiled to the uninhabited region of Korvant (which at the time was considered beyond the borders of Gnoth) following two nights of fighting.

Since then, the borders of Gnoth have expanded to encompass the city and its satellites, which are now considered a part of Gnoth, though they maintain some of their more unsavoury traditions (Pop. c.16,000).

KORVAS: Set. Settlement in the c south west of ETUA, deep in the GIGGERAGH desert (Pop. unknown).

KORZDA: Sup. Flo. Cut. Root system in the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED lands covering around 150-square-miles of land in the north of the BRAHANI WASTES, in KORACHAN. The area is covered in thick knotted brown roots, some of which are as thick as trunks. The roots, thought to be a single organism, are extremely tough, though their sap, when filtered and used in sparing quantities has anticoagulant qualities.

When eaten raw or not cooked properly its flesh causes vomiting and diarrhoea and any exposure to the ATRAMENTA during growth may have effects that are exacerbated. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

KOSH: Set. Small fortified city in the south west of the tribe of JACITTA, in the c of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 13,000).

KOSI: Set. Coastal city on the island of LATRAS, in the MAIDEN ISLES, off the south eastern coast of MENISCEA. It is the largest extant permanent settlement in the Maiden Isles and originated as a harbour fortress of the UMMALLARID MERCHANTS. Its main industry is the manufacture of camphor from SEA CAMPHOR trees (Pop. c. 28,400).

KOSSAS: Set. Settlement in the c north west of SARASTRO, along the north western shore of lake SILEB. It is located in the LAXARTHA region, which is the only major source of coal in Sarastro, and as a result its main industry is coal mining (Pop. c. 6,300).

KOSSHAMON: Set. Small city in the north of METHUMN, located at the confluence between the rivers HELAGHILRA and MIRILLIRA (Pop. c. 18,000).

KOSSUS: Sec. Small city in the south west of SARASTRO, along the course of the river MORUL. The city appeared after gem prospectors found well-preserved fossil deposits there which became popular curios amongst the nobility of the SARASTROAN empire. Many of these fossils are sold on the Salt Road, and find their way across the INNER SEA REGION (Pop. c. 11,000).

KOTCHARA: Geo. Tropical grasslands in north west of SUOR. It is home to many FIRE LIZARDS.

KOTESES: Rvr. Wetlands in the north east of PELASGOS, along the route of the river ACHELOS, covering some 700-square miles of land. The course of the river Achelos is disrupted there, branching into many shallow slow-moving streams that prevent the passage of vessels other than flat-bottomed barges.

KOTH IGORDH: Rui. Ancient TIKBALAN ruin in the south east of MHAROKK. It includes horse-headed colossi that are crumbled beside a funerary complex.

KOTH ISHADH: Rui. Ancient TIKBALAN ruin in the south east of MHAROKK. Little remains of this ruin but for the crumbled remains of horse-headed colossi that strewn across a square mile.

KOTHA: Lan. The NEMISHI word for mountain, and is used in THETIS.

KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA: also 'the Golden Mountain'. Geo. Mountain-range in EASTERN LLACHATUL that forms a natural border between the TURCAR desert and LIMOTH^(1.). The range also forms the northern edge of the THETAN border with the Turcar desert. The mountain-range measures some 1,500-miles long and extends off the MYMEREAN coast in the form of a dense scattering of islands known as the PANTHEON ISLES. The range is extremely rough and craggy and is known for its frequent earthquakes, though the rich metal deposits on its southern face and the lodeliths that float above its northern peaks are more attractive features.

KOTHA INNACHARL: Geo. Mountain-range in the east of LLACHATUL. It's eastern-most reaches serve as a partial border between the west of TETHYSIA and the north of THETIS.

KOTHA ORIT: lit. 'Mountain of Light'. Geo. Solitary mountain in the far south east of KREM. The mountain is named after its white rocks, which gleam in the tropical light. The mountains' southern-face is noted for its rich aimant⁽²⁾ deposits, which are mined.

KOTHA TYRAL: Geo. Highlands in the west of THETIS.

KOTHALIK: Set. Fortified city in the west of RHINOCOLOURA, along the border with ETHISTONITH. Before Ethistonith became a vassal of Rhinocoloura, Kothalik was known for its embassies and diplomats, who are said to have had a hand in planting seeds of dissent amongst Ethistoni natives that would facilitate their capitulation to Rhinocoloura in 3703 RM. (Pop. c. 98,000).

KOTHYL: (D. 2617 RM) KORACHANI explorer from the city of DEOCHAN, who led the expedition that first 'discovered' and eventually founded the colony of CRASSULA. He became the governor of the settlement of KOTHYL'S LANDING, until his accidental death in 2617 RM.

KOTHYL'S LANDING: Set. Coastal settlement in the KORACHANI colony of CRASSULA. It was the point in which the first Korachani colonists landed in. 2606 RM, and is named after that first EXPEDITIONS' LEADER.

KOTRIS: Set. Fishing settlement in far west of JURRAS^(2.). In 4002 RM a bauxite mine outside the settlement collapsed after hitting a hollow, leading to the formation of a large sinkhole, whose bottom tapers into a 30-ft. wide opening beyond which is deep void of impenetrable darkness, from which emanates a distressful stench.

Dozens of lives were lost in the event and the settlement has since dwindled in size as some families have moved away, fearful that the hole may continue to grow. Indeed, in the years since the collapse, the void has increased somewhat in size (Pop. c. 5,000).

KOTIO: Mil. Str. One of three major fortresses in the east of SAUA (the other two being the HASHI and the NAITO), serving as a defence along its eastern border with the MALANI HENDECARCHY of AONIA. Built during a time of unease between the two states, the fortresses are still manned though they have not been modernised to the most recent theories of military engineering.

KOTOR: Set. Settlement in the c of TAMAR, forming a part of the GREAT ROAD. It has many hostels and inns to cater to travellers and merchants passing through it (Pop. c. 8,200).

KOUKON: Int. Geo. Expansive region of petrified silk cocoons in the south of the UMBRA SOKHAR, in SAMMAEA. The cocoons contain the fossilised remains of grotesque beings thought to have been the prey of some ancient creature. The once-silk strands are now hard and calcified, partially buried and broken, but where dense they are strong, covering an area of about half a square-mile, bordered by jagged rocks to the east and honeycombed basalt mesas to the south.

KOULA AMYOUN: Geo. Rough hills in the north of NOAVATUR, forming its northern border with KHARKHARADONTIS.

KOURIA: 1. Sea. Bay in the north eastern coast of KHITAI, to the east of the SMOKING COAST, and forming part of the IAPETAN SEA. Its waters are patrolled by ships stationed in the military harbour fort of TESAHUN against piracy.

2. Set. Major coastal settlement in the north of KHITAI. The city is famed for its bustling vaulted harbours, which are tailored for the high tides in the region, which can fluctuate by as much as 20-ft. at times. It is one of the major mercantile ports in Khitai and is particularly metropolitan. It is a major producer of medicines and anti-ageing products that are eagerly consumed by those with the means. (Pop. c. 125,000).

KOWUCHAN: Pol. Set. An autonomous city-state in the centre of LLACHATUL, situated along the border between the SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF ALMAGEST and the vassal state of SKAROS, at the southern edge of lake ANDHOR. Kowuchan was given to Almagest for 500-years as part of the peace agreement that decided the outcome of the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES in 3014 RM, at the end of which it was to be returned to KORACHAN.

In the decades leading up to the handover the city was purposefully neglected by Almagest, with exiles and reprobates being sent there, with the intent of being rid of them when Korachan was to take control of the city and its surroundings in 3514 RM. Seeing the state of the city, Korachan simply ignored it, allowing it to self-rule in return for a yearly token tithe in the form of a bloodhound, for which the region was a known breeder.

The city is a dense vertical concrete-and-steel conurbation that is ruled by warring gangs and criminal cartels that deal in contraband acquired by raiding cross-border trade in Almagesti soil

Though it is regarded as a protectorate of Skaros within the Imperial administration, Skarosian leadership effectively ignores the city and its territories so long as the tithe to \underline{KHADON} is paid on time and the region can provide enough troops to defend itself in times of need (Pop. c. 48,000).

KOYEE: For. Small private woodlands in the south east of the HENDECARCHY of MYEIN, within the larger ARUFON forest, in the c north west of MALAN. The woodlands overlook lake SISSET and are filled with ancient trees, some millennia old, including venerable oaks and HELIX TREES, and CORPSE ORCHIDS are also common there. The woodlands are protected by royal decree and are a popular haunt of the brooding HENDECARCH GALLATRIS EBUL, who seeks the solitude of the woods.

KOYEN: Set. Settlement in the c west of AHRISHEN, known for its sheep rearing (Pop. c. 8,000).

KOZAN: Set. Fortified city in the north west of the tribe of NINIR in the south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 30,000).

KOZOCH: Set. City in the south west of SEDISIA. Its name is a corruption of a KORACHANI city that once stood there during the time of the colony of OHDURTAR, and many of its buildings are built from the ruins of ancient Korachani structures (Pop. c. 42,400).

KRAETOR: Mar. Sup. Rnk. Warrior-SHAPERS in THE OLD FOREST, who are renowned for their use of wooden CREANTS as mounts, servants and shock troops in battle. They form a caste apart from others in the Old Forest, and undergo ritualistic trials to advance within their order, and are known to augment their bodies with parts of the very creants they manufacture.

KRAGHT ORS: Set. City in the c of the MULL CITY-STATES. It is known for its authoritarian council (Pop. c. 33,000).

 \underline{KRAJA} : 1. Geo. Island off the north coast of the island-continent of $\underline{BROR}^{(1)}$, overlooking the \underline{SEA} OF ASEER.

Geo. Pol. Ntn. Island-state off the north western coast of the island-continent of BROR^(1.). The island is thought to form the north western-most part of the VERTAEIA Mountains. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

KRAKAS: Rui. An ancient bronze idol on the west of the island of EPEHET in the MAIDEN ISLES. It stands around 10-ft. high and depicts a crouched humanoid form, with small wings, gangly limbs, and a head not unlike that of a squid. Its makers are unknown though it is likely to date back at least the THIRD AGE. Strange inscriptions on the plinth were worn when the idol was discovered by western explorers and are completely illegible today.

KRAKEA: Sea. Sea to the north of the SEA OF AKRY, off the southern coast of MEHITIEL and SEDALLIA.

KRAKYR: Pol. Soc. Rnk. One of seven ruling CLANS in CISNERIA, whose emblem is the white wolf, who embodies community and patience, and is a guardian to soldiers. The other clans are BERMION, DISLMA, GYSTAR, HOMMAL, KRISLOR, SKULFUR.

KRALVISSRA: Geo. Valley in the south west of SERROK, noted for its rainforests, many of which are dwindling due to overlogging, and coal deposits, which have been quarried for centuries. It is the main drainage channel for the river KETH ARAKODRA.

KRANAT: Mys. Org. Sect of KARKADANNI ascetics native to certain territories in RHINOCOLOURA, who live in small monastic groups in the arid roughlands of the region. They are known for scrimshawing their nose horns, and they prepare the skulls of their dead, entombing them in niches constructed in the cliffs of their homelands.

This practice is most common in the north eastern-face of the DOTHEGAR Mountains overlooking the ZELET badlands, and comes from the ancient belief amongst karkadanni that the designs bestow power upon them. This may be true, as evidenced from runic magick and runic tattooing, which utilise the power inherent in leylines, but is a largely unexplored facet of karkadanni culture.

KRAONA: Geo. Badlands region in the east of SARASTRO, noted for its fine dust-like sands and grey rocky knolls and pinnacles. The area is riddled with wide low caves that carry the echoes of past inhabitants.

KRASATOSH: also 'the Amber City'. Int. His. Set. City encased in an AMBER-like substance, located in the c south of NALARDIL, along the foothills of the LENELLAN Mountain, in the west of MENISCEA.

The city is largely hidden beneath dunes of fine sand that is thought to have collected there over time, from the mountain to its east. Where wind blows the sand away a layer of reddish-brown resin is visible, exposing part of a great ritual where thousands of cultists were frozen in mid ritual by that strange resin. The resin has been eroded in parts by the harsh winds of the region, exposing the ruin of the city and the now-rotted skeletal remains of those who were once entombed beneath.

The nature of the resin and the reason behind its appearance there remain mysteries, and there are no known accounts of a culture matching the archaeological remains preserved so perfectly beneath the surface.

KRASHBAT: Mil. Org. Penal corps in ALMAGEST that are recruited directly from within prison gangs. Gang members are assigned to regiments corresponding with their gangs, whose heraldry and banners bear symbols inspired from the gangs themselves. The scope for advancement within the corps is the main motivating factor to recruits, as is the republic pardon that is presented to those who survive three years in the corps, though most remain enlisted after this day comes.

KRASIA: Set. City in the c south of SABIA (Pop. c. 17,000).

KRATAR: Geo. Plains, scrubland and sparse woodland in the c north west of SKAROS.

KRATH: Geo. Hills in the north of KHURAUR, noted for its endemic rural clans that exist outside KARAKHASID culture and the hewn cliff-temples where they gather in prayer.

KRATHAN: Geo. Basin dominating the north west of SABAISA, between the OHRAM, HERE, and US'HUT Mountains.

KRATIS: Com. Set. Caravanserai in the west of THETIS, in the RTHEI desert. It is built on the site of an ancient FOURTH AGE temple, and is a vital link in the trade-route between the western territories of TETHYSIA and Thetis. The route is only maintained in winter months, when the heat of the desert is at its weakest, and its population diminishes greatly in summer as merchants and workers travel south to more hospitable lands in EPESTIS.

KRATON'S PALACE: Str. Block-like fortified manor along the SKAROSIAN coast, and home to the regional government. It is named after the ARCHPATRICIAN who oversaw its construction between 2810 –

2832 RM. The region surrounding the manor is known for the many UMBRAPTERS that live in the area.

KRATRUSH: Sec. Fishing settlement in the north of JURRAS⁽²⁾ (Pop. c. 9.000).

KRAURTHAT: Sup. Geo. Mildly FIRMAMENTALLY-TAINTED region in the north east of the island-continent of BROR^(1.), serving as a border between the nations of KASIHAAL and RASTAN It is known as the region where MARROWINE is made.

KREAS: Geo. Earthen plains in the east of KARAKHAS, known for their flatness and lack of features, which birthed many local legends regarding their creation, most of which claim the region to be part of an immense trade-network created by the DEMIURGES in years past.

KREASSEUI: 1. Set. City in the west of the region of CARNAT in the north east of the BARRIER LANDS in the north west of NORTHERN SAMMAEA, forming part of the IVORY ROAD, where it trades opals and other gemstones from the south (Pop. c. 62,000).

2. \it{Rui} . Ruins just outside the eponymous city^(L) in the region of $\it{\underline{CARNAT}}$ in the north east of the $\it{\underline{BARRIER\ LANDS}}$ in the north west of $\it{\underline{NORTHERN}}$ SAMMAEA.

The ruins are situated in a desert vale, with only the peaks of certain structures visible. The ruins' proximity to the IVORY ROAD have seen travellers stumble upon them from time-to-time, and they report a trio of strange figures, no more than 5-feet tall, wrapped in strange leather cloaks that obscure all parts of their body save a single gigantic eye that crowns their head. Little is known of this legend or of any truth behind it (Pop. 3). See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

KREM: Dem. 'Kremi'. Ntn. Located to the south east of the continent of LLACHATUL, KREM lives in the shadow of the great ARGENT Mountains with the inland desert of TURCAR to its north east, and the expansive fold Mountains of the MO-ORASSIM to its south. Nestled between these natural boundaries are a hardy people descended from farmers and herders that spent centuries fending off attacks from VENTHIRI privateers and bandits prowling the lawless lands between fortified farmsteads.

The latest iteration of Krem rose in 2703 RM, with the arrival of a man and woman with elongated faces and red skin, claiming to be the descendants of an ancient dynasty of rulers who became powerful shapers through the use of an ATRAMENTAL drug. Displaying those same powers, they rapidly gained a following and usurped the ruling republic, restoring the ACACINNATHI DYNASTY to power.

Today their descendants thorough incestuous marriages control the cinnabar mines, doling out the dust to their closest allies who rule the land, with all thoughts of the ancient republic forgotten.

Their subjects practice a form of spiritualism known as the WAY OF MEGILLAR, that dictates how their lives are lived so that they may be reborn as OTHERWORLDERS in the fastest manner possible. They are also experts at crafting a steel-like glass that originated in a small region in the north west of Krem, where sand with silica with strange properties is mined. This 'GLASTEEL' is used to make beautiful bladed weapons that are sold as valuable ornamental weapons, that nevertheless holds a razor-sharp blade. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KRENN: Dem. 'Krenni'. Ntn. Coastal nation in the west of the island continent of BROR(1.). It is known for its flat southern coast that overlooks the GHAYATTANI sea. It is known for its vast cotton fields. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

KRETCH: Lan. Soc. Derogatory term used within the KORACHANI EMPIRE and some neighbouring regions, towards mortals who are not human.

KREUS: Set. Settlement in the northern mainland of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS. It is a major textile manufacturer (Pop. c. 7,000).

KRIA: His. Rel. The old ELDRIAN pantheon, worshipped now only as regional tutelaries or by the DYEIN nomads, having been supplanted by worship of the WHITE ANGEL in KASPIA. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KRIAN PANTHEON: Rel. Dei. Ancient LLACHATULI gods still worshipped by the DYEIN nomads in KASPIA. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

KRIC: Geo. Region in the north of OKKHAM, known for its sloping plains and, farther to the north east, hills, that lead to the rocky foothills of the Okkhami Mountains. KRIESHTAN: Set. Settlement in the north west of the island of MALETH, named after the many ancient salt pans found there. Today it is home to many steelworkers (Pop. c. 5,000).

KRIHIEK: Sea. Inner Sea in the south of SAMMAEA, surrounded by the empire of SIMBARA.

KRILYIE: Int. Geo. Gigantic monolith, the size of a small nation, in the c south east of EASTERN MENISCEA, where it serves as a border between the south east of EASTERN LARISH and the north of OBLEVIS. The object was once a LODELITH, though it collapsed to the ground in 3752 RM, devastating the region and destroying hundreds of settlements. Originally far larger, it has since crumbled into dozens of parts, most of which have since eroded, leaving Krilyie as the largest remnant, cracked into many parts, with many small caverns leading into its old hollows, where inert lodestones remain.

No reason for its collapse has been found, though many think it presages a slow collapse of other lodeliths in the region. Should this prove to be true it will be the undoing of most civilisations and cultures in southern MENISCEA.

KRISHTUL: Rvr. Expansive wetlands in the c west of TZALLRACH covering some 50,000-square-miles. It is fed by the river BAELLI and is noted for the varying saltiness of its waters, which range from salty in the far west to fresh-water in the east, close to the river.

Historically the region was large lake though the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID in 101 RM destroyed the western-most rim that separated the lake from the SEA OF VENTHA, leading to the lake draining into the Sea of Ventha, through the GAP OF SHUL.

The river Baelli sees enough water and silt deposited in the region to keep it wet and fertile, and it is a haven to wildlife, though the soft earth has rendered useless to support cities.

KRISOBAL: Pol. Geo. One of the nine kingdoms of ELALLIA, located in the north west of the nation. It is known for its many inlets and creeks and their many fishing villages.

KRISRA: Set. Settlement in the north of ALAM BETHYL, in the south of the territory of RAIGEL⁽¹⁾ (Pop. c. 5,000).

KRISLOR: Pol. Soc. One of seven ruling CLANS in CISNERIA, whose emblem is the hog, who embodies resourcefulness, and is the guardian of workers. The other clans are BERMION, DISLMA, GYSTAR, HOMMAL, KRAKYR, SKIII FIIR.

KRISM: Set. Settlement in the Haréshki City-kingdom of Caria (4.). The settlement overlooks the cliffs of the Carian gulf^(1.), and is characterised by steep hewn rocks that lead down to a small harbour at the water's edge (Pop. c. 5,500).

KRIUS: (B. 3973 RM) Pol. HARÉSHKI nobleman and diplomat, from PALUS⁽²⁾. His loyalty was bought by KORACHANI agents, his family given land in.

KRNAT: Geo. Rocky coastal plains in the south west of KHAMID, overlooking the steep treacherous cave-riddled cliffs north of the PHARESES.

KRNAT, CAVES of: Geo. Series of limestone caves covering 50-miles of coastline overlooking the PHARESES, in KHAMID.

KROANNA: Set. Settlement in the c west of KARAKHAS. Its main industry is the cultivation of CENTURY PLANTS, which are used in the production of a local perfume called ASSIR which is valued for its heady smell and rarity (Pop. c. 10,000).

KRODIA: Set. Fortified city in the north of KORACHAN, west of the border with CHTHYRID. It is a major trade centre, with links to the DVERGAI territories of Chthyrid (Pop. c. 43,600).

KRODUS: m. Int. Myt. Leg. His. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, the crazed SCION and child of the DEMIURGES VORROPOHAIAH and SYNCHTHONITH who was infamous in what is now WESTERN SAMMAEA for his deranged crusade against the natural world. He was obsessed with undoing the Material Plane to its constituent parts and remaking it in his own twisted image.

He wielded powers of SHAPING that rivalled those of the Demiurges themselves and was capable of feats that unimaginable by most other scions, married with an irrational broken mind. He travelled across ELYDEN corrupting the works of the Demiurges, twisting great monuments into piles of ash and robbing landscapes of their form and function, turning them into discordant realms that would shred a MORTALS sanity and body alike. He is believed to have sired hundreds of children over the years, most of which he had killed out of fear and paranoia, though some – including * and * are known to have survived.

He was a sadist and a tyrant, and subjugated hundreds of poor mortal communities, enslaving them under his yoke in a reign of terror that lasted for centuries during the THIRD AGE during which he depleted entire nations of all their resources, disintegrated their geographies and vapourised their people, using the constituent parts to create grotesque monuments of semi-sentient flesh, non-Euclidian landscaped that defied mortal comprehension, and indescribable realms of raw chaos, reminiscent of the SEA OF CHAOS from which the Demiurges once created the Material Plane.

He were only stopped through the combined actions of 3 Demiurges (believed to be TALANTEHUT, AVRAHAM, and her mother Synchthonith) and legions of mortal shapers, most of whom died in a great ritual of binding. Yet even with such sacrifice, the ritual was not able to fully destroy Krodus.

No mention is made of him following this event in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, and none know where his body is today. Some claim that he was banished to the skies and now takes the form of an asteroid that passes by Elyden every 77-years, and others say that he is imprisoned in the deepest reaches of the BENTHIC TRENCH, while others say his body was interred within the great PRISON CARCERI by his distraught mother where it remains today, buried beneath a sarcophagus made from a single solid metallic stone a million tonnes in weight.

His story has been corrupted by time and ignorance into various myths and legends across Elyden, which deal with eschatological themes, and various death entities, spirits of destruction and apocalyptic manifestations are believed to be in part inspired by his obsession with undoing Elyden and her denizens. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

KROKUD: Ser. Settlement in the c west of THE SURRACH, known for its hyena handlers, who operate across the Surrach as bodyguards and intimidators (Pop. c. 9,200).

 \underline{KROS} : Geo. Cliffy grasslands in \underline{MEDES} , the $\underline{HAR\acute{E}SHK}$.

KROSIS: Rui. Buried ancient city in the MOLACHARI DESERT in the east of ANUBIA.

KRURSTA: Set. City in the far south east of AETHIOS (Pop. c. 18,200).

KRUSOTTAE: Set. Settlement in the c north of KASPIA. Its main industry is coal mining (Pop. c. 4,700).

KRYHA: Rui THYMI ruins in the north west of N'RAKH. The ruins are weathered and little remains of them but for their foundations and toppled columns. Tales of hidden treasure saw centuries of KORACHANI looting in the region, which died down by c. 1800 RM.

KRYMEA: Sea. Sea off the eastern coast of EASTERN LLACHATUL, to the north of the SEA OF MIROVEA, and the west of the PANTHEON ISLES.

KRYSA: Dem. 'Krysan'. His. Ntn. Extinct nation in the east of MENISCEA founded late in the 3rd millennium RM, in 2684 RM after the king URSUN united three warring people together. The nation prospered under his leadership, though its growth was stunted by his obsession with death and research into cheating it. His death, after uncounted cost, in 3002 RM left the place without his charismatic influence for the first time in 3-centuries, though his influence could be felt – his descendants and sycophants continued to rule in his stead, channelling funds into their continued research into ways to restore life to the dead and in maintaining Ursun's machine tomb in BELLEN.

In 3592 RM Krysa forged a vassalage treaty with LARISH^(2.), which protects it in return for resources and medical aid. Its people and culture were effectively exterminated by PARTHISAN forces, who landed there in 4001 RM. Larish failed to come to the aid of its supposed allies, leading to the establishment of the colony off EZHIRAYA^(2.), which was founded on the ruin of Krysa. Its people were forced into vassalage, though they remain proud and have fought against their oppressors over the last decade. See Vol III: Extinct States.

KRYSANTER: Set. Coastal city in the south of AKACHA, overlooking the BAY OF UMMIAH. It is known for its drydocks and port (Pop. c. 38,000). KRYSI: Ind. Set. Mining conurbation in the south of mainland FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS, concerned primarily with gold. As a result, it is heavily guarded (Pop. c. 7,400).

KRYSIDRIN: Mil. Str. Fortress in the south of CYHLAGHARR, in the northern face of the NGHALLEAL Mountains.

KRYTA: Geo. Hilly area in the c north west of OPHIUSSA.

KRYTHEA: 1. Sea. Small bay in the south west of PELASGOS, forming part of the SEA OF SPIRES.

2. Set. Settlement in the west of PELASGOS, along the river KRYTHOS. It forms a part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 3,800).

KRYTHOS: Rvr. River in the west of PELASGOS, flowing for 160-miles south east from the south western foothills of the BATHAKOL Mountains before emptying in the BAY OF KRYTHEA⁽¹⁾.

KSHITI: lit. 'strong lord'. Mil. Rnk. Historically, in PELASGOS and VAALK; martial-lords, though the tradition died out with KORACHANI influence, replaced by the COGNATENSIA and PATRICIAN dynasties by c. 700 RM.

KTHONBHRU: Myt. Geo. Ancient mythical natural bridge linking TAHALL in LLACHATUL to SAGITTARIA in SAMMAEA, across the GATE OF EREBETH. Ancient independent accounts mention this, though the postulated length of such a bridge (some 50-miles) leads scholars to believe such tales are apocryphal at best.

KU AYUM: Set. Settlement in the c south west of VENTHIR. Its main industry is goat rearing and the production of vellum (Pop. c. 6,000).

KUKHOR: Rvr. River in the s south east of AMMESH. Its midspan is dominated by the wetlands of SHALAL, which are a tangle of braided rivers, oxbow lakes, and interconnected freshwater marshlands

KU'KU NAL WRESTLING: Int. Gam. Soc. Named after a PEAK in the south of BA'AKH, Ku'ku Nal is a long-standing wrestling tradition that is thought to have originated in early FIFTH AGE Ba'akh, as a form of martial display that was employed by rival clans to settle disputes in lieu of resorting to bloodshed.

KORACHANI EMPIRE'S arrival to Ba'akh in 634 RM saw the sport banned as a means of suppressing local culture, though underground events became popular with PATRICIANS and other influential individuals, and it eventually spread along the passage of the RED ROUTE and the SALT ROAD to other regions, where it became even more popular, its wide-reach evading further suppression.

It has since become ingrained in many northern SAMMAEAN cultures, including LIDEA, PARAIYA, MHAROKK, SARASTRO, and IO, amongst others, including PELASGOS. VAALK, which has its own national sport in the form of DUST WRESTLING is one of few Sarastroan territories in which Ku'ku Nal is not widely practiced.

It borrows heavily from ancient gladiatorial combat, though has become more theatrical over the years, with combats becoming closer to performances, to the point that many outsiders unfamiliar with the ritualised combat accuse the performers of pulling their punches and the outcomes being fixed. Indeed, many practitioners of foreign martial arts look down on this sport, thinking its performers to be little more than just that – performers, yet in truth they are highly skilled, of razor sharp reflexes, and with bodies that are capable of withstanding a battering.

The sport is pervasive in the nations where it is popular, and permeates many aspects of culture, from the lowliest of HELOTS – who find solace and hope in the performances – to the highest of ARCHPATRICIANS – who gamble their fortune on the outcomes of matches. Most settlements of note are home to at least one arena, with larger cities often having multiple arenas, training compounds, and ongoing local tournaments, with winners and crowd favourites travelling to the capital of the SARASTROAN EMPIRE in ARGEA to compete in the IMPERIAL INVITATIONAL at the IMPERIAL INVITATIONAL at the IMPERIAL INVITATIONAL at the IMPERIAL Empire, that includes hospitality, catering, manufacture of merchandise, not to mention the sale of performance tickets. Popular performers are freemen whose exploits in the arena have made them rich and famous across the Reformed Empire.

Prospects wishing to take part in Ku'ku Nal must first prove themselves as physically capable by ascending to the peak of Mt. Ku'ku and entering the HALL OF THE CHAMPIONS, where they retrieve a leather cowl that they must return to their arena of choice, which will earn them a position in the training halls. Upon completion of their training, they must return to the Hall to give up the cowl, after which they adopt a persona in which guise they will perform. Only mortals are allowed to compete and any halfbloods or SCION-BORN found to be competing are immediately disqualified and banned. In some rare instances, a HALFBLOOD or scionborn might be allowed to compete as part of the show, though such runs are unlikely to last long.

Some cities have underground circuits where there are less rules and traditions revolving around race. Though traditionally only wrestlers who have completed their ascent of Mt. Ku'ku Nal fight each other, at times prospects who have amassed a loyal fanbase will be allowed to compete in matches against those who have given up their cowls, in a bid to increase spectacle.

Growing displeasure at the increased theatricality has led to offshoots of the sport emerging that are bloodier, more akin to ancient gladiatorial matches. See Vol II: Games and Pastimes.

KUAIONAL: Cal. In the KORACHANI CALENDAR, the sixth DAY OF THE WEEK. See Vol II: Month and Lunar cycle in Elyden: Calendars.

KUARU: Set. Large fortified city in the south west of SIRIPHAGOS, forming a major stop along the SALT ROAD. It is known for its many inns that cater to merchants and their large crews (Pop. c. 77,000).

KUDUR TA': Set. Major coastal city in KHULL, overlooking the BAY OF

TIR^(1.). It has an expansive port and harbour and is a major centre of the CHURCH OF THE SHADOW TRIUMPHANT (Pop. 800,000).

KUELLA'S BASIN: Geo. Endorheic basin in the south west of KAZZAR⁽²⁾ in the north of SAMMAEA. It is of dry-temperate climate and what rain it receives is largely absorbed by the ground into aquifers.

KUIASH: Pol. Geo. Political region in the south of historical ZHARIAH⁽²⁾, where the future WARLORD RHOZHADEN was born. The region is now located in SHEZALIAH. Over the past decades the region has been exploited for its iron reserves and has become an industrial wasteland of open caste mines, refineries and forges.

KUL: Geo. Small mountain in the north of KHARKHARADONTIS, mostly buried beneath the DUNE SEA.

KULIGALA: Dem. 'Kuligalan'. Ntn. Situated in the east of SAMMAEA, in subtropical climate to the north west of the infamous SEA OF LETHEA, Kuligala is a land that has known much conflict over its existence as an independent state.

Founded in 1305 RM, after the fragmentation of the earlier nation of CARCHEMISH⁽³⁾ following major destruction in the wake of the UPHEAVALOF LETHEA, Kuligala had the unfortunate honour of being the land where the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR was reborn as an OTHERWORLDER around a thousand years earlier, in 231 RM.

The KORACHANI EMPIRE colonised the land following his return to KHADON and erected a great temple there in the name of the Archpotentate. It became a site of pilgrimage to many Korachani people, though natives of HADDURATHI descent remained devout to an ancient and misunderstood religion despite persecution. This faith would go on to become the CHURCH OF THE NEPHILIM, and its priests opposed the Korachani colonists at every juncture, killing thousands of pilgrims over the years. This, coupled with the harsh DREAMSCAPES and the amnesic qualities of the Sea of Lethea led to the abandonment of the Korachani colony, and the eventual establishment of the short-lived nation of Carchemish in its wake.

The fragmentation of Carchemish into \underline{BANT} in the west and Kuligala in the east brought with it new problems. Kuligala inherited both the smaller area and the eastern-most portion of the peninsula, which more greatly suffered the effects of the Sea of Lethea and the monarchy that emerged became target of $\underline{NOAVATURI}$ attacks as attempts were made to retake the holy land of the prophet Malichar's rebirth. Each attack was repelled, though at great loss to Kuligala, which between 1500-2500 RM spent every effort fortifying tis bays and harbours against attack, and established a large naval presence in the Lethea, despite the negative effects of its waters.

The monarchy was overthrown in 3182 RM, following years of corruption surrounding the use of deepwells that left thousands of people bereft of untainted water. The region fragmented after this, though was quick to stabilise, with the thousands of wells becoming centres to individual settlements that by c. 3320 RM had formed the \underline{ONYX} $\underline{CONCLAVE}$ – a representative council based in $\underline{EPHUORI}$, where diplomats convene seasonally to speak of matters of importance to the entire coalition.

Traditionally, Kuligalan settlements are known as KINTOWERS, which are made up of 2–4 extended families that live in a single hollow tower that is surrounded by farmlands and pastures that are tended to by members of the so-called KINGROUP. In the centre of the tower is a large well with access to deep groundwater that is free of the influence of Lethean taint. When the kingroup outgrows its tower, young families are sent out to found a new tower, that will have the parent tower as a close ally. Today, many kintowers have become obsolete, becoming cities instead, though most rural areas retain the old social structure of the kintowers.

It is also known for scattered ruins of a FOURTH AGE dverg nation of which very little is known today. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

KULIGALAN: Lan. Language spoken in KULIGALA. It is descended from CARCHEMISHI and bears many aspects of KORACHANI, which was spoken there by KORACHANI colonists for around a century before the regions' abandonment. Despite their divergence over the centuries, Kuligalan and BANTISH, which emerged in the peninsula at the same time, remain quite similar to this day and it is not difficult for a native speaker of one to understand the other, given time and patience. See Vol II: Languages.

KULIGALAZAH: Set. One of the largest known DVERG CLADES in the SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE; in the south west of SYNCHTHONITHA. Its name is etymologically linked with the CARCHEMISHI nation of KULIGALA, which is thought to be built atop the ruin of a dverg nation (Pop. c. 190,000).

KULIKAN: Cur. Currency of KULIGALA, first minted in 2740 RM. See Currency and Coinage in Elyden.

KULKON: Lak. Lake in the north of the emirate of UKOLIST in the north of LIMOTH^(1.).

KULL DARGA: Geo. Mountain chain in the north of ALAM BETHYL. The mountains serve as a cultural and political border of sorts, with few settlements of note existing north of its west – east spread, with most of those them serving purely industrial purposes.

KULLAETH: also 'the Sand Gardens'. Geo. Sandstone rock formations in the c of NAARETH, along the course of the river TULAR, south of the IROTHA Mountains.

KULOMIRAL: Geo. Plains dominating the east of KASPIA, more commonly known as the UNCLAIMED LANDS.

KUMAYAN: Set. Small city in the north of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, to the east of the HASHATH Mountains. It is known for its falconers and ROC-mounted messengers, which operate an efficient mail and courier service across Soleyn and SUOR (Pop. c. 18,000).

KUMBRAYA: Set. Settlement in the north of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, to the east of the HASHATH Mountains (Pop. c. 8,500).

KUMDAR: Set. City in the c east of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, famed as the manufacturer of pristine POWDERGUNS that are prized across the INNER SEA (Pop. c. 38,200).

KUMMAR: Set. Small city in the region of NAGARHI, in the west of AMMESH. Its main industry is the cultivation of cotton (Pop. c. 13,000).

KUMYAN: Set. City in the c-south east of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES (Pop. c. 27,300).

 \underline{KUN} : 1. Geo. Rugged highland area in the east of \underline{VAALK} , to the west of the \underline{ARAKK} peninsula.

2. Set. City-state in the east of the $\underline{\text{HENDECARCHY}}$ of $\underline{\text{DERAEIA}}$, in the east of $\underline{\text{MALAN}}$. It lies within a plateau in the $\underline{\text{ARGENT}}$ Mountains, and like many such settlements, is relatively isolated from the rest of Malan (Pop. c. 80,000).

KURABEI: (B. 3957 RM) Pol. Present ruler of the RHINOCOLOURAN KHANATE.

KURAG: His. Soc. Tomb-mound dating back to the Neolithic-age in the c-south east of AHRISHEN.

KURANOG: Geo. Main volcano in the KURNUGIA mountain in the c of SAMMAEA. Major eruptions occurred in c. 760 and 2100 RM, the former of which devastated an entire nation, causing it to fragment.

KURASOU: Set. Settlement in the c of PARAIYA, to the north of the URATH Mountains. Its main industry is the mining of iron (Pop. c. 7,000).

KURATH: 1. Nm. Apocryphal demesne in HOGGOTHA ISZ where HUMAN/SERAPI crosses thought to exist. The humans are believed to be the distant descendants of ancient FIFTH AGE OPHIUSSAN explorers. It is the prime region where the SERPENT MOTHER is worshipped and its militant proselytisers have spread the cult to surrounding lands, where it has also become dominant amongst the more barbaric serapis of Hoggotha Isz.

2. Set. The main city in the above region, which is believed to have been founded by ancient OPHIUSSAN explorers in c. 1200 RM (Pop. unknown).

KURATI: Set. Small city in the north east of the tribe of AUEREN in the far north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 14,500).

KURBAN: Set. Settlement in the c of KARAKHAS that makes fine jewellery from BLOODSTONES mined in nearby KARANT, which are sold to merchants travelling the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 5,800).

KURDA: 1. Geo. Pass in the far north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, linking SIRIPHAGOS in the west with Mulciber in the east.

2. Pol. Ser. Ruling settlement in the tribe of AUEREN in the far north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. Though considered to be the capital of Aueren by outsiders, the region is not unified-enough to justify such a term – there is little centralisation of leadership, for instance. The city is ruled by a kratocracy made up of respected elders from the major tribes and families from across Aueren

The city is a major hub of trade, where trade goods stolen by raiders are resold to caravans heading south along the SALT ROAD. (Pop. c. 230,000).

KURDAQ: Set. Settlement in the south east of the region of HANNASTER in the c of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 5,000).

KURGAN: His. Soc. Arc. Ancient burial mounds in the north of SAMMAEA, common in the north west of KARAKHAS and eastern JURRAS (2), though to date back to an early FIFTH AGE culture. They are noted for their narrow-corbelled stone doorways, though most of their contents — treasure and bodies — were looked centuries ago. However, due to the often-secluded nature of the kurgan sites, may are thought to remain undiscovered, particularly in the north of the LLURAN WASTES in the south east of Jurras.

KURGAUSS, the: Leg. Legendary figure common across most of c LLACHATUL. The Kurgauss is a monstrous humanoid figure that stalks the wintry landscapes of LLACHATUL, searching for the lost and forsaken. Some he helps and others he kills, seemingly at random. It is said that he can be appeased by a hot drink made from rosemary and thyme, the latter of which is relatively rare in the cold north where he is more-commonly mentioned. See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

KURHETTANE: Set. Major city in the north of CEGANE. It forms a part of the ISHMMARRAN TRAIL and serves as a crossroads of commerce, linking Cegane with VAUN in the north, SIMBARA in the east, and the SYCHTAN PREFECTURES in the west, and is known for its large basin-like market that is guarded by nine lion-headed stone towers (Pop. c. 108,000).

KURIL: Set. Fortified settlement in the far south west of KHULL. Its main industry is the mining of low grade iron, which is primarily used for making ochre pigment (Pop. c. 3,900).

KURKAL: Sca. Small sea in the north west of the SEA OF LETHEA. The sea divides the GOJAN Highlands in the north, from the CARCHEMISHI headland to the south.

KURMA: Fau. Lumbering reptilian creature common in c SAMMAEA, particularly KHARKHARADONTIS and the DUNE SEA, where they are amongst the few creatures whose bodies are acclimated to life in ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED areas. Their bodies are covered in thick scales, and they have glands that absorb ambient UMBRA and store it in the form of a gall stone, much as a clam creates a pearl. Much like a pearl the gall stone is iridescent, though dark, like a solid sphere of oil. These spheres are carried inside the kurmas until they die, and they remain following decomposition as spheres that can be up to 6-inches in diameter, which are saturated in Atramental taint and can be seen littering their homelands alongside their bleached skeletons.

They can grow up to 30-ft. long and have different morphologies, though little research has been conducted into their forms due to the inimical nature of their habitats. They were first documented by Korachani explorers during the great expedition that provided our earliest impressions of Kharkharadontis in 1261 RM, now known as the KHARKHARADONTID UNDERTAKING. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

- KURNUGIA: 1. Geo. Mountain in the east of SAMMAEA, to the south east of KHARKHARADONTIS. It is volcanically active, with lava-flows emptying into the FLAMING SEA, where the large lava fields of HUAEZON have gathered, slowly encroaching on the sea.
 - Geo. Caverns beneath the eponymous mountain, said to link to the caverns of DAEKYN.

KURRITTIS: Geo. Valley in the south east of METHUMN, between UKHORR Mountains in the north and the MAR SAHIGH Mountains in the south. Its easternmost reaches give way to the ANTHAR Desert.

KURT BALLS: Cui. Goat and sheep curd balls rolled in salt and spices and dried. They are eaten on the saddle and can be used a stock cube – dropped into a meagre soup to imbue it with flavour. Common in TEMUJA, BAATAN, VIRAHAN, northern AHRISHEN, SABIA, KASPIA, and parts of western MALAN.

KURTA: 1. Geo. Pass in the north of SAMMAEA, across the east of the NGHALLEAL Mountains.

2. See. Major city and regional capital in the north east of $\underline{\text{THE SURRACH}}$. It forms part of the $\underline{\text{PARTHISAN ROAD}}$ (Pop. c. 19,600).

KURTATH: Set. Small city in the north of SEDISIA. It is a small trade centre, and its merchants hold business relations with southern RAONGEN^(2.) (Pop. c. 17,500).

KUSTER: Geo. island in the SEA OF SAMMAIDU, below the southern POLAR CIRCLE.

KUTRA: 1. Geo. Island in the SEA OF BALIMAN, belonging to GIBEAH, partway between Gibeah and CUTH.

2. Set. Settlement on the above island $^{(1)}$, belonging to $\underline{\text{GIBEAH}}$ (Pop. c. 6,000).

KUUDRII: Mil. Str. Large fortress in the c east of PNESSA, just north of the AANTH-occupied jungles of AAQU.

KVIT: Also 'the Copper Garden'. Rui. Ruins in the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of ASKIA in the south of PNESSA. The region is named for the plethora of verdigris idols that fill the area like a densely packed graveyard of simulacra and statues. Little is known of its history, but the ruins predate the appearance of the tainted lands of Askia, and the present Pnessian culture.

KWARA: Sea. Bay in the north of KASPIA, just north of the settlement of KWARUG.

KWARUG: Sct. Coastal settlement in the north west of KASPIA, overlooking the bay of KWARA. Its main industries are fishing and whaling (Pop. c. 8,000).

KWAZOKI: Mil. Rnk. Raongen noble warriors drawn from the firstborn children (male and female) of all citizens, who must serve in the military for seven years, only after which they are seen as true citizens. Most abandon the role once their seven years are up, but those with an affinity for it may continue s soldiers, rising through the ranks into positions of civilian leadership. Indeed, many settlements in Raongen are ruled by Kwazoki.

KWEI: Phil. Rel. Soc. A cultural philosophy and religion amongst the people of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES. It dominates many aspects of their lives and extols the use of pain and physical suffering as a means of reaching enlightenment. Many rituals (including COMING-OF-AGE, weddings, religious feasts etc.) include ceremonies designed to test pain thresholds. It is believed that these may stem from a form of redemption through suffering or a means of seeking perfection, though the object of their admonishments (be it deity or ideal) is oddly distant, never mentioned or depicted, save for one GREAT IDOL outside the city of IMYRI that is shaped like a great four-winged angel. The idol is nameless and venerated only on nights when the Ivory Moon SIELLA is in dominance and a cold rain (said to be the moon's tears) falls. This link with Siella is otherwise unrecognised.

In a more pragmatic sense, the concept of Kwei takes the form of willing labour — only through hard work can you learn who you are or find joy. Solyeni settlements tend to dedicate themselves to a particular trade or craft, and most of its craftsmen or labourers take up that craft that, under the philosophy of Kwei, consumes their lives. The settlements are connected in an intricate trade-web that serve each other, with a pariah caste of nomadic merchants, known as NOAMAS, selling and buying goods, keeping the settlements working.

The philosophy emerged in c. 2400 RM, following the discovery of clay tablets in a cave in the northern face of the ETHITUL Mountains in 2200 RM. Before then the region was largely secular, with lose worship of elemental forces that were once the focus of worship in the extinct ABERANNI empire.

There are some who take the inflicting of pain to extremes, and these are the individuals who make the PAIN-HOUSES, for which the nation is most-known to outsiders, commercially viable. In truth most settlements only have one pain-den and its largest city, ANSA, which boast a population of around 1-million, only has around a dozen. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

KWEI TABLETS: Phil. Rel. Obj. Clay tablets discovered in a cave in the northern face of the ETHITUL Mountains in 2200 RM, which later became the basis of the KWEI philosophy that dominates life in the SOLEYN TERRITORIES.

KYAALAK: Geo. Temperate-dry scrubland in the c east of VAALK.

KYAL: His Set. Ancient CITADEL MOUNT city now occupied by the fortified city of DUN KHARR. Following the defeat of barbarian incursions with the death of their leader in –1193 RM, the people of UHLSAAT emerged from their refuge in the KOHOD Mountain (now known as the EHBOT mountain) and began erecting high-towers to safeguard their lands. Kyal was fortified against the open expanse of the north, becoming a strong fortress by c. –900 RM.

Despite its defences, the city saw little threat from outside forces and became a centre for art and architecture, its gilded domes and red minarets visible for miles around. The security that Kyal offered its populace saw it grow in power and influence and it continued growing, until in c. –600 RM it had become the largest of the Citadel Mounts and was the first of the Citadel Mounts to take on the epithet Dun, meaning 'great city', in –606 RM. It became a major cultural influence in the region, with the Citadel Mounts' distinctive domed and spired architecture and red stucco emerging there. It remained a potent force until the arrival of KORACHAN to the region in 352 RM, where it was renamed Dun Kharr and became part of its administration there until the empires' abandonment of the region in 527 RM.

KYATA: Set. Fortified settlement in the far north east of TZALLRACH, just north of the river NAMELLI, close to the border with MALAN (Pop. c. 8,200).

KYAVEA: Set. Coastal city in the north of VAEVECTA^(2.) that forms a part of the VAEVECTAN TRAIL (Pop. c. 90,000).

KYBAN: Geo. Mountain in the south west of NAARETH.

KYCEOLAN: 1. also 'the Green Well'. Set. A powerful FIRMAMENTAL LEY in the east of the HENDECARCHY of NHORA in the north east of MALAN.

2. Set. Major city in the east of the HENDECARCHY of NHORA in the north east of MALAN. It is known for its alleys and labyrinthine streets, many of which lie upon the roofs of underlying structures, as well as its expansive slums, where the bulk of its unskilled workforce lives (Pop. c. 1,900,000).

KYDONIA: 1. Geo. Rocky upland region in the east of VAALK, overlooking the SEA OF NUTHEN.

- 2. Geo. Pass in the east of \underline{VAALK} , between the rugged hills of \underline{KUN} in the north and Kydonia^(1.) in the south, linking the city of $\underline{AZI'IA}$ in the east and $\underline{KANKARRA}$ in the west.
- 3. Set. City in the east of VAALK, its street pattern built according to the undulations and cliffs of the land, giving it a multi-tiered appearance.

It was one of a handful of cities that followed ANAKARRA, defecting to SARASTRO during the WAR OF SUNDERING. It suffered against KORACHANI blockades and was reclaimed by KORACHANI just before the war ended. It remained a Korachani centre after the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM, and the next decades were characterised by civil conflict that led to the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO claiming it as a vassal state in 3737 RM. Indeed, Kydonia was the site for the final treaty signing that saw Vaaltha bend the knee to Sarastro.

Today it is a hub of cloning industries with many incubator-manufactories making up its most profitable industries (Pop. c. 50,000).

KYDOR: Pol. Com. Bus. Soc. Mercantile PATRICIAN HOUSE that, alongside the houses of LYCTUS, MELIA and HIMERAN, was a major political presence in TARATI^(1.), originating as a puppet of the governing body in c. 1100 RM and becoming part of the ruling TETRAN by c. 1300 RM. The Tetran was overthrown by dissidents called THE AVATARS in 3013 RM, with their leaders executed and their followers expelled from the small nation. The house remained active in the west of KORACHAN and southern AZAZEM following the fall of the Tetran. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

KYLASS: Geo. Region in the west of PNESSA, known for the petrified sloughed skins of ancient SERAPIS that look like twisted hollow statues. A few scattered remnants of a civilisation persist, mostly ruins, though they are rare and largely buried in the wastes. What few hospitable regions exist here are either ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED or infested by degenerate serapis.

KYLB: Set. Twin city in the north east of SIRIPHAGOS that is fed by a spring that disappears into a cave beneath the city (Pop. c. 50,000).

KYMSIGIES: Rui. Ancient ruins in the c south west of the WAELMIGH rainforest in the south west of CHEIRA. The ruins are overgrown and little remains of them today, though accounts from the early FIFTH AGE mention distinct architectural features and tombs in which bones thought to have once belonged to SPHINXES were found. It is thought that the ruins form part of a larger area that was, until as recently as the Fifth Age, home to what may have been the last sphinx stronghold in ELYDEN.

KYNTHA: Rvr. River in the west of NAARETH, flowing south for 245-miles from sources in the highlands of SIRDAIRA and the DYLPHIRA and AYALA Mountains before meeting the BAY OF KYUN.

KYONI ORDER: Pol. Org. In the KORACHANI EMPIRE, one of the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION, tasked with protecting its cities. It is now famed for its military engineers, who were responsible for the design and construction of many great bastions and fortified cities across the empire.

It was the first of the Sanctified Orders to be founded, and in many ways served as the blueprint to others that followed. It was named after its founder, NARAH OF KYON, who founded the Order in DEOCHAN, KORACHAN in 96 RM in response to increasing threats to the Korachani Empire's cities both from within and without its borders in the years of uncertainty that followed the disappearance and supposed death of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR in 84 RM. The goal was to create a dedicated force to safeguard both urban and rural areas, and its formation led to the founding of a unified empire-wide policing force, that would go on to become the IRON GUARD. Since then, the cities of BUACHAN and CANATH, as well as fort DIMASHK have become major strongholds of the Order.

Today, the Order's main role is to safeguard cities and to form a wellorganised civil defence force, with individuals being knowledgeable in a variety of subjects including communicable diseases, fires, floods and earthquakes; or have received specialist training as engineers, sappers, linguists, culturalists, scouts, cartographers, or even as shapers (with TEMPESTARIIN being somewhat common amongst the Order.

The Order is organised into a strict hierarchy, beginning with the rank of Initiate, leading into Squire, Knight, Engineer, Captain, and finally GRANDMASTER. As part of their indoctrination, Initiates must undertake a solitary night vigil, typically on the ramparts of a fortress or city wall.

The Order proved its worth early in its history, when in 129 RM its forces helped to defend various northern $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ cities (including $\underline{\text{VIRANUL}}$ and $\underline{\text{KRODIA}}$) from separatist forces, which had allied with heathens from outside its borders. This showed the necessity of an order tasked with protecting the empire's cities, particularly those close to heathen lands. The order was also instrumental in safeguarding the population of Khadon during the infamous PLAGUE OF SHADOW that wracked central Korachan in 966 RM.

The order's emblem is the iron fist; with gauntlets and manifers being staple weapons and symbols within the Order. Indeed, so prevalent is the fist in the Order's iconography that the FISTS OF KYON – the Order's main fighting force – are named after it. Other prevalent branches of the order include the GATEWATCH and the PALADINS OF THE WALL.

The Order's present grandmaster is BELTSAR KOAN.

KYONKHER: also 'the Black Stone Desert'. Geo. Dry region in the west of CUTH, in the foothills of the c MO-ORASSIM Mountains. The dry climate is unnatural for the area, despite it being leeward of the great deserts of RTHEI, which is commonly attributed to local legends that maintain the SCION VRITRA is buried there.

KYRA: Mil. Str. Major coastal fort in the north of KARGAMA, overlooking the SEA OF ORRIDA.

KYRASEA: Ind. Set. Major conurbation in the east of KARGAMA, to the north east of the SEMENTINE Plains. Its main industry is the mining of BRIMSTONE, and its quarries are amongst the most expansive in Kargama today, and they are responsible for almost half of the nation's total yearly brimstone yield by volume.

It has a storied history, and was made capital of the fledgeling FEDERATION OF ELITAGRI STATES in 1142 RM as the remnants of the CONSANGUINE DYNASTIES were being persecuted. It remained capital until the fall of the Federation in 1682 RM, whereupon the capital was moved to LERA.

It is home to the largest hippodrome in Kargama, which was constructed in c. 1000 RM as a venue for the bareback horse riding races, which remain extremely popular to this day (Pop. c. 58,400).

KYRNA: Set. Coastal settlement in the region of SÛR GHATH in the west of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 10,000).

KYSTRAN: Rvr. River in the tribal territories of ORIM in the west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It flows west for 325-miles from sources in the BAESIN Mountains before meeting its parent, the river APENA.

KYTALI: Geo. Extraordinary cave system of immense size, on the eastern face of the KYBAN Mountains in the c south of NAARETH. The caves are characterised by the artificial form that the rock-formations above the caverns take – as though thousands of polyhedrons of varying sizes were just dropped from a great height and allowed to rest there, with the negative space between them becoming the geometric caverns. The caverns feature flowing water, as well as vertical waterfalls, and some of the cavern walls are inscribed with weathered and unrecognizable text.

Many believe Kytali to be the work of a DEMIURGE, possibly SYNCHTHONITH, though there is little proof supporting this.

KYTHEA: Ind. Set. Manufactory-city in the south east of PELASGOS, along the course of the river OMITOS. The city was founded over the ruins of an ancient PRE-IMPERIAL PELASGOSI TEMPLE that was toppled in 120 RM (Pop. c. 38,000).

KYTHEA, TEMPLE OF: His. Rel. Str. Ancient PRE-IMPERIAL temple in the south east of PELASGOS, along the course of the river OMITOS. It was first encountered by KORACHANI cartographers in 85 RM, and was found to be the centre of a nation-wide artificer-cult, whose craftsmen-priests were well-regarded. The religion was quelled, and its leaders executed in 120 RM, and the manufactory of KYTHEA founded on its ruin later the same year.

KYTHI: 1. Geo. Rugged mountain in the south east of LYRIDIA, running west-to-east for 450-miles. The mountain is famed for its gold reserves, which have been exploited by the Lyridian rulers for centuries. It also holds great religious significance amongst the Lyridian people and, in particular, the TROGLODYTES and the AUGURS, and is home to the nine catatonic semi-divine seers known as the ABULIA, who live in VISSIL. The south western reaches of the mountain have become ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED over the past centuries.

- 2. Sec. City in the far south east of LYRIDIA, and one if its less xenophobic ones, trading south with TAMAR and SOTHRA⁽²⁾. Though the older parts of the city are built into the side of the steep banks of the river KORNA, in classical style, the more recent districts (particularly the mercantile districts around the river) are built in newer style that is more accepting by visiting merchants. The city is located close to the growing ATRAMENTAL REGION of RASSAPTREX and there is concern that the taint which is weakening rocks in the area will reach the city in coming decades (Pop. c. 31,500).
- KYTHI PASS: Geo. Pass, some 45-miles wide between the southern-arm of the CARTIGA Mountains and the eastern-most extent of the KYTHI Mountains in TAMAR. The pass sees much traffic and trade pass through it
- KYUN: 1. Sca. Bay in the far west of NAARETH, forming the northern-most part of the SEA OF ORMA.
 - 2. $\it Mil. Str.$ Coastal fortress guarding the entrance into the above bay from the $\underline{\sf SEA}$ OF $\underline{\sf ORMA}$.
- KZANADEM: 1. Geo. Jungle-valley in the south west of NOAVATUR.
 - 2. Sea. Narrow bay 135-miles long, in the south west of NOAVATUR, forming the western-most part of the SEA OF RTHAS.
 - 3. His. Ntm. Now-extinct FIFTH AGE tropical nation in the east of SAMMAEA, along the equinoctial line, cosseted from the SEA OF LETHEA by the GOIAN HIGHLANDS. The region was populated by pacifists who embraced the arts and were students of ELYDEN'S mythohistory, and they were first encountered by KORACHANI colonists in c. 795 RM, whose slavers virtually wiped out the native population over the next centuries. The survivors are thought to have travelled north in the ensuing decades, resettling in RHINOCOLOURA, bringing with them their love of the arts history to the locals, with whom they would mingle. By the time the imperial colony of NOAVATUR was established in 983 RM little remained of Kzanadem other than empty cities and Korachani slaver outposts.

Kzanadem was a nation of simple beauty, with stepped stone cities peppering dense jungles that its people were experienced at handling.

- Imperial colonists would slowly whittle down the jungles through clear cutting for logging and farming. Today, lifeless soils and barren dust remain where once one jungle dominated. The lands are now officially part of Noavatur, though they are of little worth and are largely ignored. See Vol III: Extinct States.
- 4. His. Pol. Set. The capital city of the eponymous nation^(1.) and its largest stronghold. The city was attacked and sacked by Korachani armies in 845 RM, its populace killed in the name of the UNDYING MACHINE or taken north as slaves, and its riches plundered. The city was allowed to fall into ruin and remains now miles from the shore it once straddled, crumbled beyond recognition, its silver-topped temples decayed.
- 5. Set. Fortified city in the south west of NOAVATUR, along the course of the river HATHSHATHIID, in the eponymous valley. It received raw UMBRA extracted to the south west in the city of ZHETATA, and ships it north to the capital from which it is redistributed (Pop. c. 39,000).
- KZANADEMI: Lan. Language spoken in RHINOCOLOURA, and by minorities in NOAVATUR. It arrived in Rhinocoloura between c. 850 1000 RM and was spoken by KZANADEMI exiles following their exile by KORACHANI invaders. The language was simple and spread throughout the land and was adopted by the newly-emerged nation of ERINAKH LAUR, going on to become the national language of Rhinocoloura upon its founding in 3470 RM. See Vol II: Languages.
- KZANADEMI POLYTHEISM: Rel. Religion of RHINOCOLOURA.

 Brought north by KZANADEMI⁽³⁾ immigrants following the genocide of their people by KORACHANI settlers in the c east of SAMMAEA. The religion is known for its many deities, and its priests wear veils over their faces, which are revealed only when in communion with their patron god. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.
- KZANADI: Set. City in the c of RHINOCOLOURA. It is named after the KZANADEMI migrants that first appeared in the region between 850 – 1000 RM. Though most scattered into existing settlements, a few founded a new settlement that would go on to become Kzanadi (Pop. c. 35,000).

LA'ARNAKIA: Set. Small city in the east of BA'AKH. It is a major source of SOUL PEARLS for the SARASTROAN EMPIRE and is the eastern-most populated city in the nation. The region around the city is heavily guarded and patrolled against banditry (Pop. c. 17,000).

LAABOU KENNATH: Geo. Fertile hills in the west of LAASKHA, likely rendered so by the ash and volcanic pumice of the now-extinct MT. ARCANA and MT. ELDRAA in the ARCANTHEA Mountains.

LAACHOM: Mil. Str. Citadel in ALLASAN overlooking the SEA OF AZAM. The citadel was heavily fortified during its tenure under the KORACHANI EMPIRE, guarding the largest, safest passage across the THONAMIG canyon, close to the coast.

The citadel became more influential during the 37th century, as Korachani interest in the region began to wane, leading to the WAR OF SUNDERING, during which contact with Korachan was effectively lost. The SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM and the subsequent emergence of the HIGH- and LOW-EMPIRES, saw the citadel's garrison forced into self-sufficiency. Over the years the garrison became little more than marauders, pillaging the surrounding area, and terrorising natives and pilgrims undergoing THE SHADOW MARCH with what remained of its UMBRAN CAVALRY. Under the control of the tyrant Benett, Laachomi troops attacked the small demesne of ALLASAN in 3831 RM. The attack was successful, leading to the execution of Alabas Azer II. Benett took his wife as his own, uniting Laachom and Allasan.

The citadel remains a stronghold of Allasan to this day, and is known for its crude ATELIERS and birthing crypts, where enhanced cavalry is incepted. Tales of mutants and creatures born with birth-defects remain common, despite the destruction of the ateliers.

LAAGROTH: Set. Major coastal city in the west of LAASKHA, overlooking the STRAIT OF SKAROS. Its main industry is fishing, and it has vast fishing fleets that trawl up and down the Strait of Skaros. In 3496 RM its main market became the site of the rebirth of 22 otherworlders, an event which became known as the MANIFESTATION IN LAAGROTH. The event led to the city becoming a major religious site, and the otherworlders were canonised by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE in an act of propaganda, to avoid the risk of its people forsaking the church.

The city is also home to the $\underline{\text{MINASTERIA}}^{(2.)}$ of $\underline{\text{MEDELIARIIN}}$ as well as $\underline{\text{HOUSE BRATON}}$, whose shipbuilding and shipbreaking industries are the backbone of its economy (Pop. c. 708,800).

LAAME: Set. Major city in the c of LAASKHA, in a stable part of the region of THAZAKHA. It is a renowned manufacturer of powderguns and cannons and is home to academies where military engineering is taught (Pop. c. 112,000).

LAANA: Set. Fortified city in the east of LAASKHA. Its main industry is the manufacturing of REVOLVERS known as IRONBACKS. The city is controlled by PATRICIAN HOUSE SOUAD (Pop. c. 38,000).

LAANAH: (B. Tethysia 3321 RM) Rel. LUMINARY of the ORDER OF THE
FLAMING ROSE who in 3362 RM rediscovered the lost MONASTERY OF

THE FLAMING ROSE, becoming Luminary c. 3400 RM after years of austere asceticism and study. In 3737 RM, following decades of austerities, she underwent the ritual of self-mummification, becoming truly incorruptible, a creature of dichotomy, neither dead nor truly alive. She travels across eastern LLACHATUL, advocating the teachings of the SHUNNED ONE.

LAANAHIEL: Edu. Sup. Ancient LASCAR^(2.) structure, situated along an ATRAMENTAL LEYLINE, believed to date back to the FOURTH AGE. The structure, displaying brutalist design, was abandoned for many centuries, but was reappropriated by imperial ATRAMENTISTS in 1900 RM and remains to this day as an unaffiliated college of the Atramental arts. Its location along a leyline makes it easy for novice Atramentists to practice their art.

LAAOS: 1. Lak. Lake in the north of LAASKHA along the course of the river LLORTHA.

2. Set. City in the north of LAASKHA, along the course of the river LLORTHA and the southern bank of lake LAAOS. The city is a centre of trade north into SKAROS (Pop. c. 9,500).

LAAS: Mil. Str. Modern fortress in the west of SKAROS, along the course of the river ULAARA, built over the ruin of an ancient LASCAR castle.

LAASATHEA: Geo. Mountains in the north west of LAASKHA.

LAASAYN: Set. Settlement in the south of LAASKHA (Pop. c. 5,200).

LAASKHA: Dem. 'Laaskhan'. Nm. Located in the south west of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, overlooking the STRAIT OF SKAROS to the west and the INNER SEA to the south, Laaskha is a temperate-cool land known for its cold winters, particularly in the south, where rain is more common. Ancient accounts describe it as forested, though any major woodland were felled long ago to make way for farmland that was reclaimed by nature long ago. Today Laaskha is a land of shrublands, sparse stunted woodlands and rocky highlands, particularly in the north.

A vassal state of the KORACHANI EMPIRE since 15 RM, Laaskha was handed over to the TYRANT OF BALAAM, who was granted autonomous rule subject to the meeting of tithes imposed on the region by the Korachani government. He was instrumental in dealing with civil unrest in the north eastern territory of ARPAROH⁽²⁾ by granting its people citizenship in 41 RM, and later folding it over into Laaskha, ending its independent status.

Following his assassination in 96 RM it fell under the control of a dynasty of regents known as the ANEID KINGS, who would rule until its collapse 1008 RM, after which leadership would fall to a series of successive puppets appointed by THE COUNCIL OF SEVEN.

Even in its earliest pre-imperial incarnation, its people respected martial values and this trait persists to this day, with the imperial army having a major presence in Laaskha, which is today famed for its arms and ammunition manufactories and military colleges.

Descended from a seafaring people known as the LASCAR⁽²⁾, Laaskhans were devout worshippers of a martial deity known as SETHENYN, which was known for having seven arms, each of which held a different weapon, representing a different aspect. Like many places taken by KORACHAN, the native religion was corrupted by imperial CENSORS and ICONOCLASTS⁽²⁾, turned into a saint and champion of the UNDYING MACHINE, and is still worshipped as a patron of Laaskha to this day, alongside RACHANAEL.

Decadent cities in the north of Laaskha became targets of the RENAISSANCE CRUSADES between 1050 and 1100 RM, with armies descending on its artistic institutions, persecuting artists, sculptors, musicians, philosophers and theosophists taking part in the DEMIURGE RENAISSANCE, many of whom were executed, with others fleeing to the north, including HRIDAN and ALMAGEST. This left a dearth of artistic expression in Korachan, from which Laaskha is yet to recover, known to most outsiders as a bleak realm characterised by its DUSTSTONE interior.

Laaskhans are hard-working and loyal to the empire, explaining perhaps the nations' long and relatively stable history under its vassalage. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

LAASKHAN: Lan. Language spoken by native minorities in LAASKHA, mostly of LASCAR⁽⁴⁾ descent. The language has been officially supplanted by KORACHANI, which is spoken in an official capacity and amongst the nobility, but Laaskhan is still spoken in harbours, marketplaces and ghettoes across the nation.

Its roots lie in the early FIFTH AGE LASCAR^(3,) tongue, though it has borrowed much from Korachani in the ensuing millennia. See Vol II: Languages.

LAASKHAN CRUSADE: see CRUSADE, LAASKHAN.

LAASKHITE: Org. Order of LAASKHAN knights resurrected to help keep order in Laaskha amid the chaos following SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM. They remained strong and thrive to this day, serving as a policing force that in 3800 absorbed the IRON GUARD.

LAATAND: Set. City in the south east of LAASKHA, controlled by PATRICIAN HOUSE MELANA. It was once a ship breaker city, though the wane ion sea level has left it landlocked, its past industries abandoned in favour of tanning – the hides of various animals are dried along the giant stepped of the old dry docks before exporting to other cities where they are worked (Pop. c. 20,000).

LAAURTH: Geo. Rocky region in the c of LAASKHA, and the west of SUUTRA, noted for its natural land-bridges connecting rocky peaks and its green-blue water, which is the result of ATRAMENTAL CORRUPTION in the region and runoff from the UMBRA pipelines running east of there).

LABACHAN: Set. Coastal settlement in the north of EREBETH (Pop. c. 4.500).

LABAISINGH THE STRONG: (B. c. 80 – D. 151 RM) also 'the Lion King'. His. Pol. Mil. Hero figure of ancient VENTHIRI history. He rode a chariot drawn by five lions, said to be symbolic of his strength, and was the last of the Venthiri ASANATE rulers, and under his control Venthir became an empire. At its largest, his empire stretched west into present-day NARTHEL following victories there in 132 RM, south to present day SARASTRO and east into present-day NAARETH. Labaisingh's true prize was always CHARAMA (present-day TZALLRACH), which had since the rise of Venthiri civilisation been seen as a sister-land to Venthir. Never resting, he followed his victories in Narthel with an assault into Tzallrach. A terrible war of attrition ensued, lasting two decades till 151 RM, when pressure from the growing KORACHANI EMPIRE in the west and Labaisingh's mortal defeat against the Tzallrachi HALFBLOODED champion FICHIM ended Venthiri dreams of empire.

Following his death, Korachan was quick to action, annexing most of Venthiri land for itself, leaving it an embittered place, at least until the rise of HETEPHERES THE STRANGLER in 361 RM.

LABAISINGIA: 1. Geo. Plains in the c-south east of VENTHIR.

2. Set. City in the south east of $\underline{\text{VENTHIR}}$, after which the $\underline{\text{LION KING}}$ of Venthiri legend is named (Pop. c. 120,000).

LABAK: Geo. Geometric red rock formations in ERITEIA.

LABALETH: Sea. The waters off the eastern coast of CYAE, to the east of MENISCEA, overlooking the SEA OF LYNNAE. The region is characterised by the small, often crystalline LODELITHS that float some miles off the coast, easily visible to those observing them from the land.

LABAON: Rvr. River in the c of SARASTRO, flowing east for 375-miles from various sources in the OTINDHAR Mountains before meeting its parent, the river SOLONA.

LABAR: Geo. Island off the north eastern coast of VENTHIR.

LABASH: 1. Geo. Small chain of islands some 900-miles west of the western coast of SABAEA. Many of the islands were formed in c. 3650 RM following the lowering of sea levels, though the largest three (Labash^(2.), ST. ASPIRIA^(2.), and ST. DUMIA^(2.)) were described by the explorer BOHMIUS in 1525 RM.

2. Geo. Island forming a part of the $\underline{LABASHI}^{(2)}$ chain, off the coast of \underline{SABAEA} , 'discovered' and named by the explorer $\underline{BOHMIUS}$ in 1525 RM.

LABASHI: Set. Major fortified coastal city in the far north east of LIDEA. It is known to trade with BA'AKH via the RED ROUTE, which passes through it. It is noted for its large ports, which are busy with merchant vessels that cross the SHADOW SEA, linking the Red Route to and from the city of TARISA in SALOROC, where the Route continues overland in its eastern-most stretch (Pop. c. 16,000).

LABATAR: Rui. Ruined city in the deserts of the c south of THE SURRACH. It was a place of opulence, its rulers and nobility decadent and uncaring of their subjects. At the height of its power in c. 2900 RM, it boasted a population of c. 500,000, fed by deep wells that were maintained at great cost, and aqueducts that stretched for a hundred miles to the STRAMINEA Mountains in the south.

It began to decline when its gold mines ran dry in c. 3100 RM. Unable to maintain its infrastructure, it was slowly reclaimed by the deserts around it and abandoned within a decade. It remains now as a ruin out of time and place, its stone buildings howling in the wind that claims the region.

LABDAKATH: Com. Set. Fortified city in the south of ALTHA⁽²⁾. It is a mercantile centre, trading goods across the PASS OF HEDDA with the east of SAGITTARIA⁽²⁾ (Pop. c. 38,000).

LABOAEM: Set. Conurbation made up of three separate cities in the north of AZAZEM, all of which are major extractors of ALUMINIUM and garnet (Pop. c. 19,500).

LABORIS: Set. Settlement in the c north west of the TEMPLAR STATES. It is a major producer of cotton (Pop. c. 8,800).

LABR-AGHTUL: Geo. Mountains dominating the c north of CHEIRA, which descend steadily to the south west. The massif region of Labr-Aghtul, known as HODABR-AGHTUL are riddled with rock-hewn necropolises, inside one of which was found the body of the otherworlder HAR-RSI.

LABRAID: Set. Coastal settlement in the east of KOMMEA, in the HOLLOW COASTLINE, overlooking a deep fjord (Pop. c. 8,000).

LABRAR: Set. Coastal settlement in the south east of TATAR. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 7,200).

LABRAS: Sca. Bay along the eastern coast of PORPHYR, to the west of the GREAT SEA OF MIROVEA. In 2102 RM the bay was used to launch 3 gigantic ARKS OF PORPHYR, the only documented instance of such Arks being launched. They were never to return.

LABRASSA: Set. Fortified coastal city in the east of ALTHA^(2.), overlooking the SEA OF DANAEL. It is a major industrial centre (Pop. c. 132,000).

LABRYS: Set. Major city in the c south west of NAARETH. It is known for its manufactories, though in antiquity it was famed for its caste of warrior women, many traditions of which are carried over into the culture of the city (Pop. c. 100,000).

LABYRINTH OF JAINKAUROS: Int. His. Rui. Ancient FOURTH AGE prison constructed by the infamous shaper-king JAINKAUROS, who found an ancient forsaken THIRD AGE subterranean necropolis of great size in the deserts of northern YASHMIN. Over decades, he used slave labour to alter the design, turning it into a vast labyrinth filled with deadly traps, dead-ends and starved aberrations captured from the inner wastes of KHARKHARADONTIS. Once complete he had the labourers imprisoned within its depths and began to use it as a prison where his empire's worst criminals would be exiled to.

The last words they would hear before being lowered down a steep smooth-sided shaft were: 'to the depths of Jainkauros I condemn you. Cast aside your hope, for in Jainkauros it is worse than despair. If you have wits-enough to survive and escape, consider your sentence revoked. The free people of Yashmin wish you luck, for you will need it.' The saying has somehow survived the FADING of the Fourth Age, and is well-known through ancient tales and folklore across the south east of SAMMAEA and beyond.

The true location of the Labyrinth, if indeed it is real, is unknown, though it thought to be in the south east of HOGGOTHA ISZ, buried in sand and DUSTSTONE collapses. If ancient accounts are to be believed, it is sprawling, covering many hundreds of square miles, with large caverns, secret passages, and monolithic mechanical walls, and corridors, deep pits and stairwells spread across multiple levels, which some believe may link to the PRISON CARCERI.

LABYRINTH OF KAMAHL: Int. His. Rui. Large stone-hewn maze in the west of TZALLRACH, in the plains of KAMAHL. It was once a part of the east of KHAMID, though following the CATACLYSM in 101 RM, remained attached to the Tzallrach mainland, and was appropriated as such. Its purpose, if any, is unknown, though it was once connected to three pyramids (swallowed by the SEA OF VENTHA during the Cataclysm).

LABYRINTH OF MAATABABRA: Int. His. Rui. Ancient stone labyrinth on the island of SKOGALA, off the northern coast of KULIGALA in the SEA OF LETHEA. It was first encountered by KORACHANI explorers in 793 RM during the voyage of NAVAH BERDEN and it is here that mention of the nameless otherworlder that guards the labyrinth first appears in western accounts. Described as a large ominous being crowned by a halo of darkness, it hovers motionless above the abandoned maze, descending when someone is thought to have penetrated the maze and reached the interior.

The otherworlder appears in EASTERN SAMMAEAN accounts millennia before Korachani accounts, and to this day sailors approach the island in the hopes of seeing it.

Legends surrounding the labyrinth claim that the OTHERWORLDER guards great treasure, only serving to draw more people to the island in the hopes of becoming rich. Those who do are lost, either dying in the maze or at the hands of the ruthless otherworlder.

Recent reports by sailors claim that the otherworlder is nowhere to be seen, leading to a great number of people leaving the Kuligalan city of TOKORORI, seeking adventure.

LABYRINTH OF SAN DARTH: see SAN DARTH, LABYRINTH OF.

LABYRINTH OF SHURLIKOLANA: Leg. Mys. Geo. Str. Legendary labyrinth in the c west of the HOGGOTHA ISZ said to be the home of the twisted OTHERWORLDER SHURLIKOLANA, who is believed to be able to see the DREAMS of all beings in ELYDEN and is able to grant their wishes.

LACARCH: Pol. Ruling matriarchal title in THETIS, possessed by the highest-ranking member of each tribal family, which could comprise anything from 50 to thousands of individuals.

There are hundreds of Lacarchs who individually serve as rulers of Thetishi cities. They also convene as a council in the capital of $\frac{\text{ITHITOTH}}{\text{to act on matters of concern to the nation as a whole. In many cases their rule is by proxy – ambassadors and diplomats known as <math display="block">\frac{\text{VIZIERS}^{(2)}}{\text{visually drawn from their own tribal group, who are trained since childhood to serve their Lacarch. Together, the viziers and Lacarchs rule Thetis, with an eye towards the dichotomy of its culture (the sedentary populace of the cities, contrasted with the mobile <math display="block">\frac{\text{NEMIS}}{\text{visually order}}$ who retain their nomadic ways) and tackle the growing concerns that industrialisation and technology pose to their particular way of life.

LACCIFER: 1. Oth. Breed of HALFBLOOD, whose already tough skin excretes a resin-like substance that further hardens it, making it rock-hard. They typically stand between 6 – 7-ft. tall and weigh between 250 – 320 lbs. and have grey to dark brown skin. See Vol II: Anthropeidos..

2. Pol. Soc. Oth. HALFBLOOD HOUSE that prides itself of its genealogical charts and family trees through which it can trace its roots to its PRIMOGENITOR the eponymous Laccifer, who is still alive and PATRIARCH of the House. The House is based in ALMAGEST though has branches in many KORACHANI. The Laccifers enjoy relative wealth and renown, its members serving as bodyguards and servants to powerful individuals in urban areas.

3. PRIMOGENITOR of the HALFBLOOD HOUSE of the same name, appeared in the region of ALMAGEST c. 100 RM, sired the first generation of halfblooded Laccifers between 150 – 170 RM.

LACEAISCARRA, TEMPLE OF: His. Str. Rui. Ancient late FOURTH AGE stone SHIE temple in the south west of the present-day TEMPLAR STATES. It is badly weathered and there is no trace of the city that was once said to have stood in its shadow.

LACER: Plr. 'lacer'. Mor. Reptilian MORTALS, descended from ancient SERAPIS. They are most commonly found in the hinterlands of BA'AKH, SUMA'YA and the east of LIDEA, though can be found in small scattered enclaves across northern SAMMAEA. Unlike their more barbaric reptilian brethren, the lacer still maintain a semblance of an ancestral glory that the original serapis once had, and are more civilised and less likely to attack other mortals.

Their skin colour ranges greatly, though is most common bright green or deep red, with paler stomachs and palms. They are slender, with long torsos, and delicate fingers. They are quick-footed, with humanoid faces that bear a great resemblance to those of snakes. Most lacers have vestigial tails, but these are rarely longer thana few inches and are missing altogether in some. They are proud beings, and though they are fully aware of their dwindling numbers and the expected reactions from other mortals, most of them strive to seen in a positive light, and as such are convivial and gregarious.

The lacer are thought to have been in possession of a large SAMMAEAN domain in the FOURTH AGE, though it disappeared following the events of the WAR OF SCOURGING. Today they live in close-knit communities, referred to as enclaves, the largest concentration of which in the east of LIDEA.

They are rarely seen outside their own lands, though a few adventurous individuals have made their way to human lands surrounding their homelands. Most notable was the 21st century explorer ESEKSHI NORNA, who travelled extensively across NORTHERN SAMMAEA. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LACER ENCLAVES: Pol. Geo. A series of loosely-connected LACER tribes in the western-face of the SHIBOTHA Mountain, most notable amongst them SESTAMEOCH, AIMALEOCH, and TENELOCH in the east of LIDEA. The enclaves are a remnant of a larger far more powerful lacer domain that existed in what are now the east of Lidea and the north west of BA'AKH, and they were a notable presence in the area as recently as the FOURTH AGE. They were renowned for their slave-raids against ASADEA, NAAH and THYM. The WAR OF SCOURGING brought devastation to ELYDEN and left the lacer lands in ruin, its kingdoms shattered.

A series of wars with the nations that inherited the territories of Asadea and Thym – DHEA and DHAMATEA – between c. -450 to c. -300 RM left the lacer weakened, their numbers meagre. Occasional forays into their enclaves by Ba'akhi knights and the Lidean military kept the enclaves in a state of wane.

The enclaves became targets of slavers following the SARASTROAN SANCTION of 3103 RM, a practice that escalated during the WAR OF SUNDERING, which led to their dwindling, until only the three aforementioned enclaves remained.

Today the enclaves are less hostile and do, at times, trade with Lidea and Ba'akh, though they are reticent of allowing outsiders into their settlements, knowing that other mortals are fickle and as likely to attack them as they are to trade with them.

LACHESIS: Mys. Sup. Rnk. Shamen common in the UMBRA SOKHAR and scattered parts of KHARKHARADONTIS. They are known to cast lots as means of divination, and they are commonly employed as advisors by ruling classes across the Umbra Sokhar.

LACHOTECH: Rvr. River in the east of THETIS flowing west for 475-miles from sources in the ISSA, before meeting the coast at the KAT ENNA inlet.

LACHRYMISTS: Org. Order of martyrs common throughout THE SURRACH. Members are rarely seen outside their hilltop monasteries and when they are, their faces are concealed beneath featureless masks and burlap cowls. Little else is known of them outside of the Surrach.

LACTH: Set. Settlement in the far north of the UMBRA SOKHAR, 35-miles south of the border with PARAIYA. The majority of its populace is human, though it is also home to many PLAGI and ETHERI. and it is known to trade with the Paraiyan settlement of TOMBALTOU (Pop. c. 13,800).

LACUNA: 1. Sup. Mys. Myt. Geo. Specifically, the PRIME LACUNAE – the fonts of the ATRAMENTA and FIRMAMENT at the BLACK FOUNTAIN and the TRUE MENISCUS, respectively.

2. PIr. 'Lacunae'. Sup. Mys. Geo. In the study of the MATERIA OMNA, regions in ELYDEN, where the physical properties of the MATERIAL PLANE diminish, commonly leading to increased ATRAMENTAL or FIRMAMENTAL activities. Though technically all regions where the Atramenta and Firmament can be felt are considered lacunae, it is only those of particular strength that are generally regarded as such. Compare with LEYS, which act similarly to lacunae, though which are linked, with the effects usually felt along geometric patterns, such as a series of lines or a web between a series of linked leys.

In such regions, shapers with the corresponding abilities are more easily able to shape, often leading to more powerful displays of shaping, which can be dangerous to both the shaper and those around them.

Regions surrounding lacunae are often subject to ATRAMENTAL or FIRMAMENTAL-TAINT, and in the case of Atramentally Tainted regions, SIPHON ENGINES can be used to filter the area of ambient Atramental forces, and processing them into UMBRA, which can be used as fuel.

Other Lacunae also exist, bringing the Material Plane closer to other planes such as the OTHERWORLD or even the DREAMS of the DEMIURGES.

LACYSILWA, TREE OF: Leg. Flo. Overarching tree in the THAGRINN forest in the north east of CYHLAGHARR. The tree is recognised by the OGHURS of Cyhlagharr as being the largest and oldest of the forest, and many myths and legends surround it.

LADDHER: Sup. Geo. FIRMAMENTALLY ACTIVE region in the far north west of CEHOPHELA. The region became unstable in c. 3860 RM, with geographical features breaking up and softening, liquefying under the winter dark.

LADDOS: Rvr. River in the northern mainland of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS, flowing for 68-miles west from the TEREKION Mountains into the BROKEN SEA.

LADON: 1. also 'the Hundred Towers'. Mil. Str. Defensive wall stretching over 110-miles along the south of the JURRASI^(1.) Mountains. Built by the KORACHANI EMPIRE following its dominance in the land in 403 RM, the wall has over 20 towers along its length, many of which are now in ruin. The wall crosses the GAP OF HURA that divides the Jurrasi Mountains in the west from the INNORADOS Mountains in the east. Parts of the wall are maintained by Jurrasi guards to this day, guarding the southern border of the pation.

2. Fau. Giant sun-lizard that lives in sandy or dusty areas, largely in SAMMAEA; the small grit believed to be an intrinsic supplement to its diet or digestive aid. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LADRAOLAN III: m. Pol. His. Per. (D. 2021 RM) The last emperor of LARAM⁽¹⁾, whose rule was characterised by wanton spending, and a disregard for trade routes and the economy, which led to the collapse of the empire following his assassination in 2021 RM. Some believe that separatists who wanted Laram to become a part of AMILLAERE⁽³⁾ were responsible for the death.

LADY AEGIS OF THE WOODLAND, CERYS IN-FAÇOIN: Oth. Pol.

Otherworldly ruler of MALAN. She died late in the FOURTH AGE following the devastation wrought by the WAR OF SCOURGING that brought about the age's end. It is unknown when her spirit (1.1) was reborn as an OTHERWORLDER, but the first recoded mention of her reborn incarnation is in c. -100 RM in what is now the HENDECARCHY of AMILLAERE (1.1), prior to which it is now known that she undertook a century-long quest during which she retrieved the legendary LANCE OF SALA, which she wields to this day. Over the next 50 years she would rise to become an influential leader, uncharacteristically erudite for an otherworlder, uniting various warring states that had inherited the ruins of the Fourth Age empire of NAHORIA into the kingdom of Amillaere (3.), which stalled the expansion of the rival state of LARAM (1.1) in the south. She guided Amillaere (3.3) over the next millennia until the collapse of Laram in 2021 saw her annex its territories over the next decades, leading to the founding of Malan in 2075 RM.

She is regarded with awe by most outsiders, though in truth she is a relic of an ancient time, an otherworlder that has slowly grown out of touch with the modern world. She remains as a powerful figurehead, a symbol of a united Malan, but in truth over the millennia the Hendecarchs have slowly usurped her power. Many secretly want her ousted, but they are outnumbered by those who see the importance of her use as a living figurehead, rather than the uncertainty that martyrdom might bring. She is surrounded by sycophants and cronies, who cosset her – a far cry from her original noble self. Nevertheless, she remains beloved by the populace, who know little of the machinations behind the throne.

She retains memories of her mortal life, which is uncommon for most otherworlders, who slowly lose all sense of their past selves following their rebirth. Her mortal tomb, known as the TOMB OF THE LADY, is an important religious site in Malan, and she often visits it to meditate over her mortal remains.

LADY IN THE CAVE, the: Rel. Religion common in TATAR. The Lady is a patron of maidens and in a more generic sense is a guardian of all those born her lands, which are considered to border the IGUZZEN lagoon, particularly on the barrier island of JERR. Her worship started in c. 3197 RM following an apparition in front of a girl facing persecution from JERRENI pirates which lead to her salvation. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

LADY, CULT OF THE: Rel. Predominant religion in MALAN, based around its ruler, the OTHERWORLDER known as the LADY AEGIS. With her own accomplishments so great, her age near-timeless, her presence so awe-inspiring; the Lady has garnered a devout following around herself, despite her reluctance. Those in the cult, strive to live like her, eschewing needless emotion, concentrating on perfecting themselves through inner and outer understanding.

She remains an inspirational figure, despite her becoming little more than a figurehead of the kingdoms over the past centuries, and the true power coming to lie within the Hendecarchs. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

LADY MAELARTA: (B. 1315 RM – D. 1361 RM) Rel. Prophetess of the UNDYING MACHINE, born in DEOCHAN into fiercely devout freeman parents. At the age of 5 she started having seizures and at 15 she had her first vision during a seizure, which the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE interpreted as prophecies. She became very famous in her lifetime and would travel with the SHADOW MARCH across the nation of KORACHAN, where she was used by the church to attract followers to the March. She was gifted the CIRCLET OF THE LADY by the church in 1342 RM, after which she travelled farther with the March until her death in KHARKHARADONTIS in 1361 RM. She was canonised in 1522 RM and is now a patron to those undertaking the Shadow March.

LADY OF ROAAKEN, the: f. (D. 3879 RM) Int. Sup. Pol. Per. Famed TEMPESTARII SHAPER native to the city of ASSORA in VAALK. She was skilled, spending many years working in agriculture before becoming a councillor in the STATE COUNCIL of agriculture. She became outspoken towards workers' rights after attaining her new role — sentiments that were stymied by her superiors. In 3876 RM she became involved in a dissident movement that supported workers' rights and sabotaged the industries of PATRICIAN HOUSES. Over the next years she became more hands on, rising to a position of leadership in the group, working in the field, using her powers to attack Patrician convoys and forces to liberate goods to be redistributed amongst escaped and freed SLAVES. She became infamous during this time through an image captured by HELIOGRAPH of her floating, her robes billowing about her as she blasted armoured ambulants with bolts of lightning.

She was eventually killed in a bloody conflict outside Assora where slaves revolted against the workers of a large manufactory. Though the SARASTROAN government took great lengths to cover up her actions, she remains today as a saviour figure to slaves, with reproductions of that heliograph being distributed with dissident pamphlets across Sarastro.

LADY AND THE SPHINX, the: Leg. Nursery rhyme and folktale common in MALAN in which the LADY AEGIS has a battle of wits with a SPHINX that results in the sphinx and all its kind leaving the forest, never to be seen again. Many today assume that the sphinx is queen

HETEPHERES of VENTHIR, and in some versions she is explicitly named, but early version of the tale do not name the sphinx which appears as a symbol of the sphinxes that were once said to inhabit central Malan millennia ago. See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

LADY, TEMPLE OF THE: Rui. Ancient temple erected to celebrate the coming of the LADY AEGIS in what is now MALAN in c. 100 RM. It lies in the north of the HENDECARCHY of AMILLAERE^(1.) and is a popular pilgrimage site.

LADY'S PALACE, the: also 'Aegisan'. Pol. Str. Clifftop palace in the southern face of the FATHMMA mountain in the north of the HENDECARCHY of AMILLAERE (1.), in MALAN. It is the private residence of the LADY AEGIS, and she is known to spend a great deal of time here in isolation. The structure itself is millennia old and few have been in its inner-most chambers, which are believed to stretch deep into the roots of the mountain.

LAEDAN: Geo. Seasonal endorheic lake in the north east of Krem, in the BERASSIM BASIN, to the north of the MO-ORASSIM Mountains. Many seasonal rivers are known to flow into it in early to mid-summer.

LAEGRCALL: also 'Tower of Windows'. His. Arc. Large weathered basaltic pylon in the c north of CYHLAGHARR, in the southern-face of the GRCAUTHAIRM massif. It is 80-ft high and characterised by many niches in all its faces, each of which contains gilded mummified non-oghur remains. The monuments' origins are unknown, and clearly date back to the early FOURTH AGE, if not earlier, due to the bodies it contains.

 $\underline{LAEGRO}: \textit{Set. Major coastal city in the far south of } \underline{CYAE}, overlooking the north west of the $\underline{SEA OF LYNNAE}$ (Pop. c. 120,000).$

LAEKLA: Rui. Ancient ruined city 325-miles west of the BITTER SEA, along the border between the far west of ABACARDAT and the south east of KHARKHARADONTIS. Though little remains of the city save massive toppled domes strewn like gigantic egg shards around its foundations, evidence points to the remnants of docks and ports, indicating that the SEA OF LETHEA once extended almost 1,000-miles west of its current coastline.

LAELLA: Set. Settlement in the south west of AZAZEM, in the plains of KARAFFAR. The settlement is one of many producers of ALOARE in the region (Pop. c. 4,500).

LAES: Int. Geo. Plains of fused glass in the east of TEMUJA, where the crystal used in the construction of the palace of DUARIAHAHN was carefully quarried and worked. The region is mostly untouched save for some small quarries that still operate there. The extraction of the crystal is time consuming and expensive and the operations there are well-guarded and funded, in part, by MALANI entrepreneurs, where much of the glass is exported for use as FIRMAMENTAL FOCI.

LAESHU: Geo. Highland massif dominating the south west of TISARA, forming an extension of the ARGENT Mountains. It is the main source of the river TAIHA.

LAET: Dem. 'Lactian'. His. Ntn. Ancient mid FOURTH AGE empire that occupied much of the present-day territories of the west of THE SURRACH, including ERET⁽²⁾ to the north and the north west of ROMOREA⁽²⁾ in the south. It is thought to have fragmented in c. -3000 RM, with the cultures of ERASHA and GAETARA emerging from its ruin.

Its ruins still dot the landscape of the Surrach today, and many cities in the region are built atop its ancient cities, with ancient blocks reused in the construction of newer buildings over the centuries. See Vol III: Extinct States.

LAETA: Set. Major coastal city in the east of VAEVECTA⁽²⁾. It is known for its bustling port and is the eastern-most city of the VAEVECTAN TRAIL, making it a hub of trade (Pop. c. 77,200).

LAETIAN: His. Lan. Now-extinct language that was spoken by the FOURTH
AGE empire of LAET, in what is now THE SURRACH. The extant language of SAVIUDI is distantly descended from it, via CHEGRINTISH. See Vol II:
Languages.

LAEUSCA: Geo. Flat plains in the south of SKAROS, covering around 6,500 square miles north of lake SAKAR along the border with northern LAASKHA. The region is relatively featureless and renowned for its levelness, though this is broken, particularly in the south, by rocky outcrops and harsh scrub closer to the EKALSCA Mountains.

LAEVYN: Pol. Set. Capital city of CYAE, in the south east of EASTERN MENISCEA. The city is coastal and has a large port (Pop. c. 175,000).

LAGASH: Set. Major coastal city in the west of DANU. It is a stop along the EGETAKHAN ROAD (Pop. unknown).

LAGOT: 1. Set. Settlement in the south east of AHRISHEN controlling a small canal⁽²⁾ that links lake MASTI with the smaller endorheic river system that is made up of lakes HIQOL and ASHIZ.

2. Rvr. Canal in the south east of AHRISHEN, forming part of the AHRISHENI WATERWAYS. It is around 8-miles long and contains 9 locks.

LAHAED: also 'The Great Bror Mountains'. Geo. Expansive Mountain-range dominating the geographical features in the continent of BROR(1), dividing it in half, lengthways, running from its north eastern coast to the south west for over 4,000-miles. The formations within the mountain vary greatly by location, and its south western-most reaches are low and crumbling, forming the great MAHURIN massif of eastern GREST(1); and its northern-most reaches are geologically more recent and higher, more rugged and harder to traverse, such as the peaks of northern Ghrond and southern Bror(2).

The mountain serves as a natural border between many of the nations of Bror^(1,), effectively isolating the north (Grest, ISESETH, SABOMOR, CANNOS, and Bror^(2,)) from the south (the DOMAINS OF SHAUATAS, EMENRIST, EDELARY, GHROND, and KRENN).

LAHANNA: Rui. Abandoned sulphur MANUFACTORY in the c of VÂRR, which until c. 2500 RM was the largest sulphur producer in the KORACHANI EMPIRE. Though as supply dwindled so did the need for the manufactory. It remained in use by the INTERREGES until their departure from Vârr in 3791 RM after which point it was allowed to day. It remains now as a reminder of the region's industrial roots, the land stained yellow for a half-mile around.

LAHARAR: Set. Settlement in the c of BANT, in the c of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.), in the east of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 3,900).

LAHKEL: 1. Geo. Ancient island-port north west of the CARCASS in the south of KHAMID. It originated in the decades following the CATACLYSM (before which it was part of the mainland) as the nation struggled to rebuild itself, taking advantage of the economic void at the time, growing rich from trade.

The city and its famous lighthouse diminished greatly with the lowering of ELYDEN'S seas and has been abandoned for centuries, the remnants of its lighthouse still distinct along the horizon, about 5-miles from the coast (Pop. c. 2,000).

2. Rui. Ancient lighthouse constructed in the city of Lahkel^(1.) in c. 650 RM as a navigational aid to ships approaching the city's large port. The lighthouse is now ruined, its walls crumbling.

LAHLAN: Set. Settlement in the south west of THE OLD FOREST (Pop. c. 4,300).

LAHMON, OBSERVATORY OF: Ast. Str. Mountain-top observatory in the c south of PELASGOS, east of the BATHAKOL Mountains. It is ancient, dating back to the early centuries of the FIFTH AGE, though its ideal location, coupling high elevation with its remoteness, has seen it renovated and expanded by the KORACHANI EMPIRE since then. It is now known for its large rotating copper dome and the large refracting telescope situated within, and the astronomical college beside it.

LAHOSHUR: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region in the c north of AQUARIIA.

The region is categorised as $\underline{\text{LEAST CONCERN}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}$.

LAHUL: Set. City in the south west of LANTUA, in the MENEFIR Mountains. It is famed for the beauty of its CLOUD SCULPTING, with many locals claiming that it was the originator of the custom around 1,000 years ago. Statues are sold across MENISCEA, with some examples reaching exclusive markets as far afield as the INNER SEA REGION (Pop. c. 57,000).

LAHZUL: His. Ntn. One of many early FIFTH AGE cultures that emerged in the north of the PORPHYRI PENINSULA, in what is now the north west of Porphyr, between c. -1000 – 290 RM. Its people made use of a large offering pit, the ruin of which remains to this day in the north of Porphyr. See Vol III: Extinct States.

LAHZUL, THE OFFERING PIT: Rel. Rui. Ancient temple-complex in the north west of present-day PORPHYR, built over a narrow pit that descends deep into the heart of ELYDEN. Bodies of the recently dead were consigned to the pit by priests of a short-lived culture that followed in the wake of the ancient EHLBEZUNI empire in the early FIFTH AGE, but which later dwindled with the growth of the Porphyri empire, leaving the pit abandoned.

The place is said to be physically close to the otherworld, making the act of animism and ASTRAL PROJECTION easier there than in other places, also infusing the DREAMS of those who are ATRAMENTALLY-sensitive with visions and whispers, thought to be messages from the dead.

LAIKHE: Sea. Large bay off the south eastern coast of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA. It is known for its many creeks and inlets, and is home to hundreds of islands.

LAILLA: Pol. Set. Major fortified city and capital in the c south west ABATTUR, along the course of the river ADSULLA, dominating the eastern bank of lake ILLURBED. It is the centre of the region's main religion of ISRAPHAISM, and the incorruptible body of its deity, the OTHERWORLDER ISRAPHAEL, is held in a great reliquary in a monolithic temple where the city's faithful can observe their faith.

It is an industrial centre and one of the more profitable territories during the nearly two centuries of TISARAN occupation, but by 2905 RM it had become the epicentre of a growing UTTRANI rebellion that led to a more widespread uprising that spread across Abattur. Eventually, enough land was taken to force Tisara into agreeing to terms, leaving Abattur free once more, and Lailla its new capital.

Since then, it has been heavily fortified and remains home to nations' government (Pop. c. 385,800).

LAKARTHA: Set. City in the north west of RHINOCOLOURA. Its origins date back to the ancient SOKHARAN empire, and it was once the capital of the LIEGELANDS OF LAKERTHA, which were attacked by the OTHERWORLDER NEANDER in 3298 RM, leading to their destruction and eventual absorption into the empire of NEANDARA. Today it remains as a healthy city along a tributary of the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.) (Pop. c. 33,000).

LAKELANDS, the: Geo. Rvr. Lak. Expansive region dominating the plains of southern AHRISHEN, encompassing the major lakes NAIDA, RANAGA, AMATIDA, PANOIDA⁽¹⁾, CRENEISA and MASTI, amongst hundreds of smaller lakes and their interconnecting rivers and canals, which form part of the expansive AHRISHENI WATERWAYS.

LAKERTHA: also 'the Liegelands of Lakertha'. Dem. 'Lakerthan'. His. Ntn. Early FIFTH AGE north eastern SAMMAEAN nation founded by descendants of the SOKHARAN dynastic family in what is now the east of the UMBRA SOKHAR and the west of RHINOCOLOURA. Members of the Sokharan dynastic family fled east in the century following the crumbling of the Sokharan empire in 348 RM, leaving the politicking that dominated the power vacuum left by the collapse of Sokhara behind.

They slowly expanded, building a road network and expanding their military, securing what resources they could by around 500 – 550 RM, by which time they had made contact with the state of ERINAT, whose people were moving west due to increased hostilities with the KORACHANI colony of MARCHOSIA. The Lakerthans, still bearing an enmity towards Korachan, became allies of the Erinati, and became part of a flourishing trade network.

The empire of NEANDARA declared its independence from the nation of ERINAKH LAUR in 2483 RM and it soon expanded to the west, clashing with Lakerthan border forces. This escalated into outright war in 2521 RM, though open hostilities did not last long. By 3211 RM, Neandara had subjugated the cities of SARDONYX and ERIVAUR, reuniting the original three prefectures of Erinolh Laur, after which it set its sights on Lakertha, which in 3298 RM fell to its armies after a year-long siege, becoming part of the empire. Neandara collapsed with the death of its OTHERWORLDER ruler in 3462 RM, and after some years of conflict, the region restabilised by 3469 RM, becoming RHINOCOLOURA. See Vol II: Extinct Nations.

LAKHAL: Med. Tec. Str. Fortified atelier in the west of KHALHAT, thought to be a major MANUFACTORY for ITERANTS.

LAKK: Geo. Region in the east of ARKOS^(1.) characterised by sheer acclivities and buttes of dark red granite and tiered waterfalls and table lakes. The region is relatively fertile and is home to many aeries and moss farms. Following war with SARASTRO and its subsequent occupation of Arkos in 2326 RM, Lakk became a refuge to retreating CUSTODES and their allies, though as Sarastroan influence waned, leading to its abandonment of Arkos in 2412 RM, Lakk was itself abandoned by the Custodes, who repopulated their old capital in the city of Arkos, though the region remains a farming centre to this day.

LAKOSH: Rvr. Major river in the HENDECARCHY of CYRENIA, in the north west of MALAN. It flows north for 750-miles from lake SEHUTH before meeting its mouth at the BAY OF ENIGOST^(1.). It is fed by various rivers, including the ARILLIEN in the west, and the ELRATH in the south. At its southernmost reaches it acts as a border between the south of Cyrenia and the west of HATON.

LALAUG: Geo. Hills forming the southern-most part of the BAND Mountains.

LALAUN: Set. Fortified coastal city-state in the southern-most isle of SEBUND. At the time of the CATACLYSM, the Venathi empire was at its height, ruling the DARK SEA. Many colonies were lost in the disaster, but one survived on Sebund, Lalaun.

In c. 200 RM Lalaun splintered from the remnants of the VENATHI EMPIRE and struggled for about 300-years before slowly crumbling by c. 560 RM, after which the city and its island home of Sebund were largely deserted.

It was eventually resettled by VENTHIRI nobles exiled by QUEEN HETEPHERES in c. 1200 RM and slowly grew into a hub of trade, and its fleet patrolling the waters of the STRAIT OF SAOR (Pop. c. 180,000). See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

LALEH: Rvr. River in the east of NARTHEL, flowing for over 200-miles from sources in the north east of the UEFIR Highlands before emptying in the ABYSS OF ENESH.

LALI: Rel. Str. Major monastery of the Order of the Heart, Mind and Blade, in the rugged hills in the far south of the Varrachon Mountains, along the LARACHON hills.

LALIA: Set. fortified settlement in the west of TZALLRACH, 30-miles north of LUCCITARIA. It is known for its clams and pearls, and lies along the route of the GREAT ROAD (Pop. c. 6,000).

LALK: Sea. Bay in the south west of EZASUH^(2.).

LALKORUH: Sea. Coastal settlement in the south west of EZASUH^(2.) (Pop. c. 10,000).

LALLA: Set. Coastal settlement in the north west of the BARRIER LANDS (Pop. c. 6,000).

LALNT: (-90-ft.) Geo. Depression in the c east of ROMOREA^(2.), forming a part of the much larger Romorea^(1.) rift valley formation.

LALOARA: Sea. Agricultural conurbation in the c east of TAMAR⁽²⁾, along the course of the river Tamar⁽¹⁾. It is a major agricultural centre and is a producer of grain and OLIVES, much of which are sold to travellers passing through it while travelling along the Great Road (Pop. c. 7,500).

LALLEH: Sea. Bay in the north of KORACHAN. Its waters are relatively fertile, and there are quite a few fishing villages along its coast. Overfishing is controlled by the Korachani administration, though many varieties of large fish are now extinct there.

LALLITH: Sea. Small coastal city in the west of TZALLRACH (Pop. c. 13,750).

LAMAGHINE: Geo. Rocky plains in the c west of KARGAMA. They were the site of many battles and sieges between 1122 and 1126 RM, when the FEDERATION OF ELITAGRI STATES marched against the CONSANGUINE DYNASTIES of PHAND.

The ruins of many cities and KARGAMAN IDOLS litter the region today, and it is considered to be haunted by many people. Despite this, the region remains healthy, and it is a centre of horse breeding in Kargama.

LAMASERY OF CASSIA: Rel. Str. Monastery in the south east of LAASKHA, to the north west of the peninsula of RAAHEN. It is home to an order of ascetes and survivors of THE SHADOW MARCH whose bodies were broken by the ATRAMENTA though whose minds remain keen. They are theologians and scholars and advisors to powerful men and women who seek to undertake the Shadow March and not martyr themselves.

LAMAYA: Geo. Sulphuric wasteland in the north of PORPHYR, to the north of the RYKK Mountains.

LAMBAR: Sea. Settlement in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of PALUS^(1.). The city is situated along the western shore of lake MARA, controlling regional traffic along the river SARA (Pop. c. 4,000).

LAMBITIA: Sea. Coastal settlement in the south west of KHITAI. It is known for its stilt-architecture, designed to protect its people from the extreme tides in the area. Its main industry is salt panning, which is collected in gigantic pans outside the settlement (Pop. c. 8,000).

LAMEA: Sea. Settlement in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of CARIA⁽⁴⁾, noted for its FIRMAMENTAL college, which appeared there in 1162 RM, funded by descendants of the city's KHAMIDIAN founders (Pop. c. 38,000). The city overlooks the SEA OF DERAEA. It used to be coastal (under a previous incarnation as the HARAN city of LANNEAS), and its fine natural harbour is now a terraced ravine where goats are reared amid the ruins of its once thriving port.

LAMECH: 1. Sca. City in the c of SARASTRO noted for its copper mines and the brass foundries that elevated what was originally a town into a thriving city. Its location along the path of the SALT ROAD means that it sees many merchants travelling across its borders. It was once famed for its CAMPANOLOGY, and the BELL OF MARTYRS, once considered the largest bell in pre-SUNDERING KORACHAN, was found here, before the destruction of its housing church during the civil war that led to Korachan BREAKING IN TWO. (Pop. c. 130,000).

2. Pol. Soc. The ruling patrician family of the city of the same name. HOUSE Lamech wields considerable power in SARASTRO and, to a lesser extent, in surrounding cities. The House's wealth is mostly attributed to its copper mines and two manufactories that specialise in the foundry of brass and making of brass parts. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

LAMEDA: Mys. Soc. Obj. Old totemic idol in the south east of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR, in MALAN. The totem was once the centre of an animistic cult though the cult was quelled not long after the unification of the FOREST KINGDOMS, replaced by more modern ideals.

Though a relic of ancient times, the idol and the beliefs that surround it have, under the reign of the HENDECARCH MIALAD, seen a resurgence in popularity, though more out of curiosity than a desire to return to the ways of its people.

LAMEDUA: 1. Geo. Dry plains in the north of VÂRR. Unlike the LAMEDUAN BADLANDS that lie to the south west, region is not entirely barren, and sparse woodlands and scrub can be found here. It was once a thriving plain with many cities and industrial centres, most of which are now abandoned.

Early 14th century RM the east of the region was plagued by massed spontaneous appearances of inimical DREAMSCAPES that persisted for close to a century before the SOMNIARECHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION was able to quell it. The period would alter become known as the ONEIRIC SCOURGE.

2. See. Small city in the c north west of VÂRR, in the far south of the Lamedua^(1,) plains, after which it was named. It was once a major industrial centre with a population close to a million and covered with sprawling chemical plants, manufactories, refineries, mills and foundries. Today, most of these expansive structures lie abandoned and ruined, with only a small part of the settlement still being inhabited. It is a hub of crime, and is run by criminal families, who are said to make use of some of the manufactories for their own illicit purposes and control much of the surrounding landscape (Pop. c. 13,200).

LAMEDUAN BADLANDS: Geo. Arid dead region in the west of VÂRR, covering some 60,000 square-miles. Vârran records dating back to before the KORACHANI occupation of Vârr depict the region as a natural dry plain and scrub forest, already in decline from what was, in the latter days of the FOURTH AGE a verdant plain and home to various fauna.

The diminishing of ELYDEN and overmining during the Imperial occupancy between c. 1000 – 3412 RM have left the place barren, lifeless; characterised now by a myriad open-cast mines, quarries, canyon-like passageways and corridors, surrounded by mesa and plateau-like formations – the remnants of the original plains that were ignored by mining.

To make matters worse, in 3977 RM the far north of the region was documented as displaying signs of emerging Atramental taint, and the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES is keeping a close eye on its development.

LAMENT OF SHIBBOLETH, the: Vol. Mys. Tale from the MYTHOLOGIA
ELYDEN wherein the DEMIURGE SHIBBOLETH learnt of the eventual decline of the MERILL civilisation, causing her to weep uncontrollably. This is commonly maintained to have had the effect of a great deluge that covered ELYDEN in a great flood that thinned out the numbers of the MORTAL RACES.

Though there is little physical evidence to support this, the nearuniversal appearance of this myth (or effectively identical myths that substitute names, characters and minor details for regional equivalents) lends weight to a singular event that the common ancestors of nowdisparate cultures witnessed or survived. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

LAMENT OF ST. EARTA, the: Art. famed work of RENAISSANCE sculpture by AUXITUS BARADAS completed in 1623 RM. It depicts the SAINT moments before her martyrdom, her face cast to the heavens, her face showing a mix of serenity, fear and acceptance, which has captivated audiences for millennia since its completion. Today it is located inside the HALL OF PATRICIANS⁽²⁾ in AGLAIA⁽²⁾, AZAZEM.

LAMESSA: Sea. Settlement in the far southern mainland of the FREE-ISLES
OF PELASGOS. It adheres to the Sect of the BURNING SHADOW, so technarcana and machinery are strictly forbidden. It is a rural community, producing food for nearby cities (Pop. c. 1,800).

LAMETAN: Rui. Series of half-sunken monoliths covering 30-mile stretch of the western coast of HOLOLACH⁽¹⁾, to the north of the BAY OF TOLAR. There are 35 known monoliths in all, in varying states of disrepair. Some are completely sunken, where others are revealed by tides. Others are wholly on land, stretching for 50-ft into the sky. All but two are badly damaged or broken. Their purpose, if any, is unknown, and they are thought to date to the FOURTH AGE.

LAMIA: 1. Oth. Pol. Soc. Type of HALFBLOOD HOUSE whose members are adept at inflicting pain and death. Some are said to subsist on blood, while in lands outside the KORACHANI EMPIRE, people speak of creatures who drain spirits rather than blood, though whom are otherwise similar to lamia. Though the house itself is not as organised and centralised as some other halfblood houses, the lamia are often seen working as mercenaries and assassins. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

2. Sup. Geo. Region of heavy ATRAMENTAL TAINT in the north of the UMBRA SOKHAR, just south of the border with KARAKHAS, where the land is said to bleed a thick poisonous ichor.

The region is categorised as $\underline{\text{DANGEROUS}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}.$

LAMIAH: Mil. Rnk. Elite unit in the VENTHIRI army. Composed of female soldiers, they are proud and carry beacons as banner bearers would once have carried banners. They originated as a melee unit, though today they carry ranged weapons – rifles or gunblades.

LAMMA: Set. Settlement in the south west of AMMESH (Pop. c. 6,000).

LAMMACCID: Sea. City in the west of ACHRABAL, in the south west of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA, notable for its FIRMAMENTIST caste (Pop. c. 50.000).

LAMMARA: Set. Small coastal city in the south of AMMESH, overlooking SEA OF AMMASH^(2.) (Pop. c. 12,000).

LAMMASHTU: also 'Lammasu'. Fau. Haghor that takes the form of a winged bull, with a humanoid face, reminiscent of a baby's, though with eyes that betray their age and wisdom. They are thought to be linked in some way to the cultural symbol known largely as HAAGENTI. The creatures are believed to have been native to IO and lands around the ARID TRIPTYCH, though are accepted by scholars as being either extinct or so insular as to never be encountered by the mortal races. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LAMMDOR: Set. Small city in the south west of Ammesh, in the foothills of the BORRAGHI Mountains. Its main industry is the mining of quarry, and it controls vast tracts of land that have been dedicated to its extraction on an industrial scale (Pop. c. 19,800).

LAMMUSSA: Rel. Str. Shrine in the far east of SARASTRO, in the western foothills of the KOROR Mountains. The shrine houses the mummified remains of an ancient LAMMASHTU that dates back to PRE-IMPERIAL times. It went missing in 339 RM, shortly after imperial ICONOCLASTS^(1.) began scouring the nation following the KORACHANI subjugation of Sarastro. It later resurfaced in 3705 RM, following Sarastro's newfound independence, though claims that it is a lesser simulacrum abound. It is now encased a glass reliquary in a stone temple built over a dormant ATRAMENTAL LEYLINE of ancient significance and remains an important symbol of Sarastroan independence.

LAMPREY: Fau. Parasitic aquatic creature similar in appearance to a short snake. They have sucking mouths lined with multiple rows of teeth that they use to cling on to larger hosts, whose blood they suck. They are farmed for food though are also considered as pests in many regions, where they have proven to be less susceptible to ATRAMENTAL TAINT than other creatures.

LAMPREY STEW: Cui. Common dish in the LLACHATUL, around the STRAIT OF SKAROS particularly in the nations of SKAROS, southern ALMAGEST, LAASKHA, AZAZEM, AHKA and ATARAXIA. The LAMPREYS are cooked in blood and served with rice or legumes. It has been compared with slow-cooked beef and is eaten by middle to upper classes.

LAMYA UMUT, LIVING SAINT: Rel. Powerful demagogue of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, who willingly locked herself away in CARCERI in 3893 RM. She ministered to prisoners to turn their minds away from their own beliefs towards those of the Church of the Undying Machine. Towards the beginning of the 5th millennium, she was wracked by visions of a new power on the LEADEN THRONE.

LAN-THALL: His. Ntn. Extinct nation in the west of WESTERN SAMMAEA, in what are today the north east of the CITIZENRY OF THALI and the c north west of the VESPERTINE LEAGUE. It emerged from the earlier nation of AELOR in c. 2400 RM and would itself be consumed by the Citizenry of Thali in c. 1900 RM. See Vol III: Extinct States.

LANAEST: Rvr. River in the c north east of AHRISHEN, flowing south west for 275-miles from sources in the TEN PRINCES mountain range, before meeting lake QASHEN^(1,).

LANAYASH I: (D. 3183 RM) Pol. His. the first LORD-CONSTELLAR of KOLCHIS who in 3164 RM dissolved the Republic of the Kolchisi Commonwealth, taking on the mantle of Lord-Constellar, beginning a tradition that remains to this day and forming the house of HORÚK, which remains the ruling house to this day.

LANCA: Sea. Small fortified city in the c of the tribe of THLOLOT, in the north east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 13,000).

LANCE OF SALA, the: Leg. Obj. Legendary lance wielded by the champion SESHA, demigoddess of MALAN. The lance is said to have been crafted from a single piece of FIRMAMENTALLY-treated ivory by a SCION long before it came into her possession, and it is an incredibly powerful FOCUS⁽²⁾, greatly amplifying the powers of any SHAPERS who wield it.

The lance was lost for millennia though continued to feature in legends and myths of the region, until it was rediscovered by Sesha in the early FIFTH AGE following a century long quest.

LANCHOL: Set. Fortified settlement in the far west of the HENDECARCHY of DERAEIA in the east of MALAN. It serves as a major stopping point along the trade route that links Malan with TISARA (Pop. c. 8,500).

LAND OF DUST: see TUL I'GMIH.

LAND OF FIRE AND ICE: see TUL I'SICH-AHUR.

LANDAMAN: Sea. Reef in the north of the MAIDEN ISLES, off the northern coast of the island of LATRAS and the west coast of the island of VURIRIN. The people of this region are known to fish with sleek catamarans.

LANDSHIP: Veh. Tec. Common name given to gigantic CONVEYORS, such as shipping AMBULANTS, transport crawlers, or military vehicles. They are characterised by their caterpillar tracks and/or heavy artillery-like wheels and are often composed of multiple carriages, each with multiple storeys and rooms.

LANDSKIFF: Veh. Wind-powered vehicles that were common in the VAEVECTAN nation and its predecessors in the east of MENISCEA. Their large sails harness the strong winds that wrack the relatively flat peninsula allowing rapid travel. Most landskiffs accommodate between 1 – 3 people though some larger vehicles exist that can seat up to a dozen people.

LANETOS: Sea. Small settlement in the west of VENTHIR, situated along THE RED ROUTE, leading into TARATI^(1.) (Pop. c. 8,000).

LANGAHA: Sea. Settlement in the east of OPHIUSSA. Its main industry is copper mining (Pop. c. 8,000).

LANGUE: 1. Org. Str. The headquarters of the individual SANCTIFIED

ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION that operate within and without the KORACHANI EMPIRE. Typically, the area surrounding each Langue is closely tied with the respective Order, with its people often supplying it with food and other resources as well as new recruits. In many cases the respective Order becomes an important political power in these regions, exerting more influence that the Korachani government itself.

Arranged in order of their founding, the major Langues are: the KYONI Langue, which was founded in the city of DEOCHAN in 96 RM; the AIWAHAN Langue, which was founded in the SEPULCHRAL PALACE in 341 RM, but which was later moved to MALICHARICHAN in 1106 RM; the GRIGORIAN Langue, which was founded the city of TAHIL in 358 RM (the Order was later divided into three distinct Langues in 3705 RM, which are now located in KHADON, SINITAS and TAVVADRA (2.); the ARÂTHUAHI Langue, which was founded in the city of Khadon in 396 RM; the AVÉNETHI Langue, which was founded in the city of $\underline{\text{MULCIBER}}^{(2.)}$ in 458 RM, and moved multiple times throughout its history until settling somewhere undisclosed in north eastern PELASGOS following the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES; the MORÉHAN Langue, which was founded in the city of NOUVAR in VÂRR in 498 RM, but which later relocated to CALDERA in 2963 RM; the SOMNIARECHI Langue, which was founded in LIDEA in 1189 RM, but which was forced to move to BAAYN in 3710 RM following the SUNDERING OF THE EMPIRE; the VÁMAN Langue, which was founded in the city of TEREKON in 1196 RM; and finally the CONCORDANTIST Langue, which was founded in the city of Khadon in 3037 RM.

2. Org. Mil. Rel. Bases of the BRIAR KNIGHTS found across TETHYSIA, within various cities. They serve as hostels and clubhouses of sorts to the normally itinerant knights of the order.

LANKRA: For. Sparse woodlands dominating the north of THE SURRACHI region of MARACHA and the nation of ERET⁽²⁾. Once virgin woodlands covering over 50,000-square miles, it has been reduced to around 18,000-square miles by changes in climate and over-exploitation by the aforementioned regions.

LANNEAS: His. Set. In ancient HARA, and later the Kingdom of HARÉ SHKA, a city along the southern DERAEAN coast, its harbours attracting trade from as far as field as KHAMID and TZALLRACH. The city was greatly damaged in a prolonged siege against MELAYAN barbarians and their FIRMAMENTIST leaders in 991 RM, though survived intact, thanks to Khamidian intervention. The city diminished following the slow withdrawal of the Sea of Deraea, which left it land-locked, though survives under the name of LAMEA, retaining its Khamidian links to this day.

LANOS: Sea. Settlement in the c north west of LAASKHA in the east of the region of IMMERUTH. It was once a large trade city, with ships bringing goods into its harbours from around THE INNER SEA, though since the retreat of the STRAIT OF SKAROS, it has become landlocked, 160-miles from the coast. It once formed part of THE SHADOW MARCH, though the March's route drifted west with the coastline, leaving the city ignored by the processions (Pop. c. 2,200).

LANRA: Sea. Reef in the west of the MAIDEN ISLES, off the eastern coast of the island of SIAREHET.

LANTHANEIN: Str. Two-mile long corridor-archives of the KORACHANI EMPIRE beneath the BASTION OF STEEL in the capital of KHADON. This is where records of all edicts, tax testimonies, tithes and other documents are stored, many of them forgotten beneath the weight of ages, all memory of their existence lost. It is usually frequented by clerks of the MINASTERIA OF ANNALS and MINASTERIA OF TITHES These corridors and offices are largely deserted, crewed by mindless automatons that move rotting treatises around in an antiquated system that belies belief.

LANTUA: Dem. 'Lantuan'. Ntm. Nation in the south east of MENISCEA. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

LAOCESA: Sea. Fortified settlement in the south west of EREBETH (Pop. c. 5.200).

LAOD: Dem. 'Laodan'. Ntn. Nation in the c of MENISCEA, to the north of the SEA OF LARISH^(1.). The nation established a major colony in the north of BROR^(1.), in what was once the region of KASIHAAL, in the 39th century, and it now serves as a major link between the continents, and a source of various exotic resources from the far continent. Laod was christened an empire in 3873, decades after the colony was established.

Its people are renowned across ELYDEN for their dark braided hair, which they wear extremely long, wrapping it around their necks like scarves; and for their practice of self-tattooing – a major cultural practice that serves to distinguish classes and families. It is typical for more affluent and influential families and people to tattoo their emblem in prominent areas such as the face or hands, with those from the lower classes either eschewing the practice entirely or selecting smaller tattoos or less prominent places. It is a criminal offence to fraudulently use another family's tattoo, and the practice is considered a major taboo across all social ranks. The Laodan people are also known for their 'inventive' curses, which typically feature the OTHERWORLD and OTHERWORLDERS, though the reason for this is unknown, for its people otherwise have no particular dislike of otherworlders and their realm.

In the 38^{th} century Laod embarked on a widespread colonisation of the GESHGHELL STATES in the north east of Bror^(1,), ultimately resulting in the formation of extant KASIHAAL. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

LAODDANAN: Geo. Mountain-range in the c of EASTERN MENISCEA, to the south east of the PTHOSTOTH Mountains, serving as a natural border between the south west of XYRPHAAT^(3,) and north eastern LAOD and northern ENDUI.

LAOMEDA: 1. Lak. Lake in the north west of AHRISHEN, whose waters flow into lake EURADA, which itself flows into river PELADA, which is a tributary of the larger river SAVEST.

2. Rvr. River that flows for 65-miles from lake MAEDA, to lake EURADA, through lake LAOMEDA.

LAPITH: Sea. City in the c north west of TARTAK controlled since 3204 RM by the WHITE LEAGUE. The city is heavily fortified and guarded against the aggressive DEGENERATES that dwell to the north west of the city, haunting the BLACK MARSHES along the banks of the river KHARAD (Pop. c. 135,000).

LAQANESH: Sea. City in the c of AHRISHEN in the southern flood-plains of lake ACTAEA. The city was once a major producer of peat and much of the wetlands surrounding the city came about through over production of peat. The city is now surrounded by a fetid peat bog and part of the city has been built over this with dank vaulted sewers, with waste falling directly into the fens to stagnate. Sometimes high floodwaters bring waste into city, with cisterns and manholes overflowing.

It is a stop along the GREY ROAD, and sells peat to merchant caravans travelling along the road (Pop. c. 41,000).

LAR: Sea. Settlement in the c of ELAT. Its main industry is the production of cork (Pop. c. 6,200).

LARA: (B. unknown – D. -831 RM) Rel. Oth. HALFBLOOD of unknown origin, who popularised and united the CULT OF THE WHITE MOON in DHEA, following her penning of the BOOK OF TERATHA in -943 RM. Until then the cult had fragmented into several different sects which had come to oppose one-another in several ways. The popularity of the Book of Teratha restored THE TERATHA into a single faith, which coalesced in c. -905 RM with the construction of the HIGH-TEMPLE OF TERATHA in ORA⁽³⁾, of which Lara became head (with many believing her to be a direct descendant of the DEMIURGE NEITH⁽¹⁾ through her daughter TERATHA). Her body was interred in the High-temple following her death in -831 RM, where it became a powerful relic amongst the faithful, though the body was lost following the CONTHIAN attack of Ora in -813 RM, in which the city was looted and razed.

LARABO: Sca. Fortified city in the south of SURUTUR. It is known for its vast archives, with records dating back thousands of years (Pop. c. 42,000).

LARACE: Sea. Major city in the c of SKAROS. It is an industrial centre and is known for its many manufactories and its large population or HELOTS, most of which are owned by said manufactories. It has also been home to the MINASTERIA^(2.) of SULRACHARIIN since 2347 RM, due to its vicinity to the region of SO'ULDUR (Pop. c. 180,000).

LARACH: Pol. Set. Capital city of DANU, located in the south of the nation, overlooking the entrance into the GULF OF JOLASH and is heavily fortified. It is the southernmost stop along the EGETAKHAN ROAD, and has a large port where goods are traded (Pop. c. 280,200).

LARACH THIRI: Rui. FOURTH AGE AIKLAH ruin in the c south west of the tribe of ILLPHAGOS in the west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER.

LARACHON: Geo. Hills in the far south of the VARRACHON Mountain, in VÂRR, and part of the artificial construction that covered up the ancient valley and river of NATRAI^(1.).

LARAGA: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the south east of TATAR, guarding the border east with KAZZAR⁽²⁾. It sees much trade and traves pass by and it is the main link between the two nations.

LARALAL: Rvr. Wetlands in the south west of SAMMAEA, in the AMMASHI^(1.) Peninsula along the border between KEPHUAAN and AMMESH and the course of the river TAMANTI.

LARAM: 1. Dem. 'Larami'. His. Ntn. A now-extinct FIFTH AGE state that rose in the wake of the fall of NAHORIA in the west of EASTERN LLACHATUL in c. 100 RM following centuries of strife dominated by warring city states.

Laram originated as such a state in c. -1000 RM, in what is now the border between the HENDECARCHIES of LONAR, CHLORIS and STHAMAN. It slowly grew, assimilating neighbouring states, growing into a major power in the area by c. 0 RM. Its spread across the old Nahorian territories stalled with the rise of the LADY AEGIS in AMILLAERE in c. -80 RM, and the two found a form of equilibrium, which lasted over the next two millennia.

The Larami monarchy, which had seen the rule of three distinct dynasties, was overthrown in 1013 RM, to be replaced by a republic that slowly dwindled to corruption, to be finally replaced by an empire in 1675 RM. The Larami empire remained corrupt throughout it remaining centuries, and it finally collapsed in 2021 RM following the decay of its economy and the assassination of emperor LADRAOLAN III.

The empire fractured following this, with many members of the old government wishing to seek an alliance with Amillaere, and the others adamant on finding a warrior leader to secure the territories. Already influenced by its close contact with Amillaere and its culture, the former camp won and in 2023 RM half the empire allied itself with the Lady Aegis, who began a war on the unwilling territories to unite the descendant territories of Nahoria into one state.

This state of war drew on for decades of guerilla fighting, espionage and sabotage that ended finally in 2075 with the taking of AGLABHA – the final imperial stronghold. This signified the reunification of the old Nahorian territories and the end of Laram. Later the same year the unified territories were rechristened as MALAN. See Vol III: Extinct States. 2. Geo. Region in the south of MALAN – occupying the east of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR and most of CHLORIS. It is known for its many overgrown ruins, most of which are now little more than gigantic scattered blocks of marble, some of which still bear the echoes of delicate stonemasonry.

3. Set. City in the above region^(2,) of MALAN, in the east of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR. Many of its oldest and most important structures are made from the ruined blocks of ancient NAHORIAN edifices. It is a major industrial centre in Malan, and its factories manufacture various engines and machinery used across the FOREST KINGDOMS (Pop. c. 60,800).

LARANZA: Set. Settlement in the c north west of BARATHEA^(1.) (Pop. c. 9,000).

LARAPH: Geo. Small mountain in the c north west of AMMESH in the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula.

LARATHA: Rui. Abandoned manufactory city in the west of AZAZEM, along the course of the river HRIDANEM. It was abandoned in c. 3600 RM following the spread of DUSTSTONE formations beneath its foundations, causing part of it to collapse. Today, part of it remain intact, though its precariously located on the edge of a crumbling duststone cliff. It is the ancestral home of HOUSE STEFANIA, which has since become one of the ATROPI HOUSES.

LARATHUKH: 1. Geo. Geographical and political region in the far east of AZAZEM, west of the OTHACHA Mountains The name originated in the early days of the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S subjugation over the Azazemi people, and comes from a now lost city in the region that existed to the east of the river ZEMEN.

2. His. Ntn. Short-lived rogue state that appeared in the east of Azazem in 243 RM. In the early centuries of KORACHANI rule over AZAZEM the region of Larathukh⁽¹⁾ became known for its husbandry – goats and sheep herding, and the growing of crops such as artichokes, aubergines, barley, various, cabbages, garlic, nuts, onions, peas, pumpkins, and turnips. It became one of the first regions in Azazem dedicated to husbandry and would go on to feed the burgeoning empire. Its PATRICIAN HOUSES grew wealthy, and arrogant. In 243 RM, after years of secretive conspiring six Houses – ALLARIS, HERCULE, LENTIS, HIRINA, MELANA, and RUSINA – based in the region united and overthrew the Korachani oppression, setting up their own government and a new rogue state – the Republic of Larathukh. The ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR had been absent for over 150-years at that point, and empire was deep in a period of tumult known as the REIGN OF THE EMPTY THRONE. Korachan did not have the resources to fight yet another dissenting region.

Rather than march against the upstart state, Korachan funded the private armies of neighbouring Patricians and allowed them to apply pressure from west and east. Following close to three decades of conflict the citadel of NUMESEA was taken in 269 RM, ending the rule of House Hercule in the region and destabilising the autonomy of Larathukh. This led to the collapse of Larathukh in 271 RM, and its eventual reabsorption by Azazem. Four of the Patrician Houses – Hercule, Lentis, Hirina, and Rusina – were brought low during the conflict. See Vol III: Extinct States.

3. Rui. Ruined city in the east of AZAZEM, east of the river ZEMEN. It was a harbour of the short-lived Larathukhi Republic (2.) though dwindled following the republic's collapse in 271 RM.

LARCIA: His Dei. Ancient FOURTH AGE deity that was worshipped by the ancestors of the ESHIRAN⁽²⁾ people, specifically a coastal culture in what is today the north of Eshir. The name was later used to describe the COASTAL SHELF that was revealed through the retreat of the GULF OF ESHIRON and, eventually, the wetlands that formed along its easternmost edges – the LARCIA CARA in the north and the LARCIA TARAN in the east.

LARCIA CARA: Rvr. Vast coastal salt marsh in the north east of ESHIR⁽²⁾ that was revealed between c. 3000 – 3300 RM following the retreat of the waters of the GULF OF ESHIRON. Originally known as the Ledge of Larcia, the region was a salty coastal plain that attracted little light. Over the centuries, as the waters continued to diminish, they reached the edge of the coastal shelf, where they settled into two distinct salty wetlands – Cara in the north and TARAN in the east.

The region has been largely ignored by the people of Eshir, and it is now rich in wildlife.

LARCIA, LEDGE OF: Geo. Vast coastal shelf dominating the north east of ESHIR⁽²⁾. The shelf was revealed between c. 3000 – 3300 RM following the retreat of the waters of the GULF OF ESHIRON, and remained for centuries later as a barren region.

The coastal regions would eventually form the distinct wetlands of CARA and TARAN in the north and east respectively, which are now rich in wildlife, though the old coastal area – as much as 150-miles from the present coastline in some areas – remains as a large salty wasteland.

LARCIA TARAN: Rvr. Vast coastal salt marsh in the north east of ESHIR⁽²⁾ that was revealed between c. 3000 – 3300 RM following the retreat of the waters of the GULF OF ESHIRON. Originally known as the Ledge of Larcia, the region was a salty coastal plain that attracted little light. Over the centuries, as the waters continued to diminish, they reached the edge of the coastal shelf, where they settled into two distinct salty wetlands – \underline{CARA} in the north and Taran in the east.

The region has been largely ignored by the people of Eshir, and it is now rich in wildlife.

LARES: Plr. 'Laresin'. Soc. Urban areas in the Korachani empire that are said to be haunted. The term is used primarily in ALMAGEST, AZAZEM, and KORACHAN, and other specific areas across the empire.

In its 4 millennia history, the empire has seen many cities built atop the ruin of far older settlements, some going back to the dawn of the FIFTH or even FOURTH AGES. With such history come legends of genocides, ancient wars and mythological confrontations, all of which have left their imprint on such areas. Lares were shunned by those who could afford better accommodation, being the worst slums in any city imaginable with crime, death and other more sinister crimes passing relatively unchecked. OCCULTISTS, SHAPERS and other detestable figures make their homes in lares to take advantage of the apparent closeness with the OTHERWORLD that exists there.

LARETHYL: Set. Fortified city in the east of ALAM BETHYL, and capital of the territory if MAHEN. It is built atop a vast sandstone formation and its bedrock is riddled with an intricate system of caves. Many catacombs, basements, and tunnels leading to different reaches of the caverns (Pop. c. 39,300).

LARIA: Sea. Settlement in the west of AZAZEM, in the south of the region of ATROPHY. It is a major DROSS manufactory, and is the ancestral home of HOUSE NOTHIYA, which is one of the ATROPI HOUSES (Pop. c. 8,200).

LARIEL: Set. City in the south west of SATARIEL. In c. 3670 RM the city became the centre of an 'epidemic' of abuse of the drug AISLING, causing it to be outlawed in the city and, later, the nation as a whole. Despite this, the drug is still manufactured in the city, intended for export, though it is believed that much of the product finds its way to local black-markets and traffickers (Pop. c. 49,000).

LARIS: Sea. Coastal fortress in the east of JURRAS^(2.), overlooking the SEA OF AZAM.

LARISH: 1. Sea. Body of water in c of MENISCEA that, alongside the SEA OF SIPARIA, divides the continent in two, with LAOD to its north, WESTERN LARISH and FATH to its west, and PHUT, ENDUI, EASTERN LARISH, and CAMAU to its east.

2. Dem. 'Larishi'. Ntn. Powerful nation in the east of MENISCEA between the Sea of Larish^(1.) in the west and SEA OF LYNNAE in the east. It is wealthy and enjoys a warm temperate climate, which is conducive to the growth of various crops. It is ruled by a diarchy, commonly known as the TWIN CROWN, and the nation is divided into two as a result – WESTERN LARISH, to the north west of the Sea of Larish^(1.); and EASTERN LARISH, to the south east of the Sea of Larish. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

LARISH, EASTERN: Geo. One of two territories of the nation of $\underline{LARISH}^{(2)}$, situated to the south east of the Sea of Larish⁽¹⁾.

LARISH, WESTERN: Geo. One of two territories of the nation of LARISH^(2.), situated to the north west of the Sea of Larish^(1.). Its people follow the philosophy known as the ALEMBIC PATH.

LARISHI: Wea. Prevailing winds over the SEA OF LARISH^(1.), blowing north into the valleys of INDIRILL and LAOD.

LARISHI CURRENT: Sea. Surface ocean current in the SEA OF SIPARIA, flowing north west into the SEA OF LARISH^(1.).

LARISSA: Set. Settlement in the north east of TAMAR (Pop. c. 8,000).

LARRA: Rui. Ruin in the south east of LAASKHA, along the route of the river LARRAN. The city was abandoned following the diminishing coastline in the fourth millennium RM.

LARRAN: Rvr. River in the south of LAASKHA, flowing south west for 240-miles from sources in the ARCANTHEA Mountains, before emptying in the SEA OF TYRSIS.

LARRAS: Set. City in the north of ADHERA. It was known as the last stronghold of the KORACHANI FAITH there, though it was supplanted by c. 3020 RM, with the last of the imperial-influenced structures there toppled in a rebellion in 3023 RM. Today it is the centre of a secretive religion that dominates Adhera, that honours the PERCURSORS (Pop. unknown).

LARRIAN: Geo. Large reef in the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA, in the southern waters of the BAY OF LEPHET.

LARSH: Set. Settlement in the c of THE SURRACH, in the SURRACHI
PLAINS. It is known for its goat herders and its simple goat CHEESES that have been made in the same way for millennia (Pop. c. 2,800).

LARSHEN: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY-ACTIVE region in the c north of VAALK, located between the river STORAGH and the ARIS Mountains. The region is notorious for the severity of Atramental influence there. Flora that germinate there become one with the earth around them, their roots becoming indistinguishable from the soil and rocks. All but the most Atramentally-adapted of fauna that wander into its lands die, and their bodies impact the land around them similarly, fusing with the earth, though never quite dying. It is shunned by most, including many Atramental scholars, though parts of it have been exploited by the Vaalkans, and many umbra siphon engines are located along the periphery of the territory, in the north of the region. It's most distinctive feature is the KHARTEHOGHUA, or the fleshtower as it's more commonly known.

The region is categorised as HIGHLY DANGEROUS by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

LARSIS: Geo. Flat basin in the south west of LAASKHA, that, until c. 3500 RM, was a sea. The sea disappeared slowly during the 4th millennium RM leaving in its place a saline dusty basin.

LARSUSS: Rui. Ancient ruins in the south west of HARITH^(2.). Once a large coastal city, the site is now landlocked, some miles east off the coast of HASOTLEPH.

LARTOSH: Sea. Fortified coastal settlement in the north of the nation of DURCHAA^(1.). Its main industry is whaling (Pop. c. 800).

LARVA: Plr. 'larvae'. Med. Tec. Name given to CLONED and artificially-grown inert bodies, which are sensitive to the MATERIA OMNA and which are commonly used as the fleshy 'heart' within a HEART ENGINE that grant it a modicum of sentience. The first commercially-viable larvae were incepted in c. 2120 RM, allowing for great advances in the field of TECHNARCANA in the following decades.

The term is also used to describe the grubs that are selectively bred for their size and ease of feeding, which are used in the creation of DROSS.

LASAR: Sea. City in the north of the CITIZENRY OF THALI, and cultural twin to TARAB (Pop. c. 79,000).

LASCAR: 1. Sea. Bay on the eastern shore of the GULF OF SKAROS.

2. Eth. People of the south west of CENTRAL LLACHATUL that emerged east of the GULF OF SKAROS late in the FOURTH AGE, eventually forming the nation of ALAAS that occupied what are today the most of LAASKHA, the west of AZAZEM, and the south of SKAROS. Their facial characteristics – long faces, wide-set eyes, high foreheads and pallid skinare typical of the region to this day.

3. Dem. 'Lascari'. His. Ntn. Early FIFTH AGE kingdom that emerged in the south west of CENTRAL LLACHATUL in what is now the north of LAASKHA and the south of SKAROS in c. –420 RM from the ruin of the earlier nation of ALAAS. They clashed with totem-animal worshipping 'barbarians who would be pushed east, going on to become the ancestors of the people of the OLD FOREST.

The kingdom grew over the next centuries, reaching the west of present-day AZAZEM, pausing largely due to pressure from the newly-risen KORACHANI city-states farther east. A three-decade war ending in c. –68 RM led to Lascar fragmenting into scattered settlements with no central government.

These settlements would eventually coalesce into various powers, including LAASKHA in the west, AZAZEM in the east, and ASIBAIA in the north east. Both Laaskha and Azazem would be consumed by the more powerful KORACHANI EMPIRE early in their existence, and Asibaia would falter much later due to the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES. See Vol III: Extinct

4. His. Lan. Now-extinct language that dominated the south west of CENTRAL LLACHATUL in the early FIFTH AGE. It emerged from the tongue of the FOURTH AGE nation of ALAAS, and was the basis for the nascent LAASKHAN, AZAZEMI and SKAROSIAN tongues that followed, though the rapid dominance of the KORACHANI EMPIRE over those nations saw the emerging languages stymied, with only Laaskhan developing into a full language that is still spoken to this day. See Vol II: Languages.

LASCAR BASIN: Geo. Flat land dominating most of BASSORAH^(2.) and far eastern SKAROS in the c of LLACHATUL. It is named after the ANCIENT PEOPLE^(1.) who populated it, and whose ruins still pepper the region.

LASCAR FISH: Cui. Fish that is preserved by being covered in a particular clay that is common to the western coast of LAASKHA. The clay is noted for its antibacterial properties and is perfect for preserving the fish for many years without any adverse conditions to the flesh, which is eventually cooked with the time-hardened clay still covering it. The clay cracks and falls off while cooking, and the fish is commonly consumed with bare fingers, picking moist flesh from bones. There have been documented instances of fish preserved in this way still being edible after 3 – 4 centuries, though they are typically preserved for no more than a few years.

It was popularised by $\underline{LASCAR}^{(2.)}$ merchants early in the \underline{FIFTH} \underline{AGE} , and the practice still used today in smaller coastal areas of western Laaskha and \underline{SKAROS} , with the tradition passed down hundreds of generations and surviving shifting of coastlines.

LASCH: also 'the Stone'. Ast. Con. Constellation in the NORTHERN HEMISPHERE. See Vol II: Constellations.

LASCHACHAN: Set. Settlement in the c of AZAZEM, to the north of the ALLARIS⁽¹⁾ Ridge. Its main industry is stone quarrying, and it lies along the course of the Red Route (Pop. c. 6,750).

LASCHARII: see TELLURARII.

LASHA: Sea. Bay off the western coast of THE VORANDINE forming the south east of the SEA OF BYRIS, and the mouth of the river DIYADA.

LASHANN: Sea. Settlement in the c north of LIDEA, along the canyon of GOLET. Its main industry is garnet prospecting when the river is dry, and gems acquired this way are often sold to merchants travelling the SALT ROAD which passes farther north in ZERED (Pop. c. 6,200).

LASHESI: 1. Ind. Cui Rnk. VENTHIRI counterparts to the ATROPI; responsible for distribution of DROSS and maintenance of pipelines leading into cities. The Lashesi (most of which are high-ranking patricians) are wealthy, and own large processing-plants and employ great numbers of teamsters and ACATERS whose role is to ensure DROSS reaches its intended storage and sales outlets.

2. Soc. Rnk. More commonly; those involved in the profession of distributing DROSS, usually applied to all levels of the profession, from offal-disposers to the PATRICIAN-lords of the processing-plants.

LASHMAR: Sea. City in SAGITTARIA. Once a major port in the west of the SEA OF TROIA⁽¹⁾, its harbours were ruined by the disappearance of the sea, though the city thrived, thanks to natural aquifers and seasonal rivers. It would receive a steady stream of refugees fleeing other waning coastal cities over the next centuries, making it the largest city in the nation. It is a major stop along the course of the IVORY ROAD (Pop. c. 250,000).

LASIQ: Rvr. River in the c-south east of KHAR NADUL.

LASAKH SWORD, the: A common symbol in the form of a sword that originated in ancient LAASKHA amongst followers of the deity SETHENYN that was appropriated by the KORACHANI EMPIRE in the centuries following its subjugation of the region. Today, the Lasakh Sword is used across HIGH and LOW-EMPIRES, as well as in ALMAGEST as a rallying point for militias in times of need. Most settlements will have a square or an open area in the centre of which is a stone (or more commonly wrought iron in recent years) sword in the form of a column, around which troops will amass in times of war or conflict. The origin of the sword as a Laaskhan religious symbol is now largely forgotten, and most people assume it has to do with the SWORD TARTARUCH, which is itself a strong Korachani symbol.

LASSENA: Rvr. Wetlands in the north of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of ALAMUT, along the southern shore of lake MASTI.

LASSIEL: For. Valley forest along the border between the HARÉSHK, TAMAR, AHRISHEN, and LYRIDIA. LASSITOR: also 'the Sleeping God'. Rel. Dei. God of the TWILIGHT STATES.
Its worship has been corrupted from its original form into senseless rituals of excess that include willing ritual sacrifice and convoluted traditions, the origins of which few people can trace. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

LAST MULE, the: Leg. A KORACHANI legend with VÂRRAN roots. The story differs from region to region, though in its most universal form it follows this structure:

It is the time of year where animals are blessed and all animals are brought outside the church to be blessed. First the steeds of nobility are blessed. Following them, military animals are blessed then beasts of burden, then farm animals, and eventually those bred solely for food. Last in the line is a poor mule, but it is too late and there is not enough holy water left for it, and the other animals make fun of it, saying that it has been forsaken by the UNDYING MACHINE.

The mule goes on to join a SHADOW MARCH and lives a life of misery and toil, only to be killed in old age to feed the PILGRIMS undergoing the March.

The moral of the story is that even the unblessed can live virtuous lives and be chosen by the Undying Machine to have purpose. See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

LAST ORREX, the: (B. 3604) Pol. Last ruler of PERGOST, and last member of the ORREX dynasty. The Orrex lived a life of utter debauchery, rarely leaving its grey brutalist palace in GOIIDHU, and he was largely oblivious to the civil war that had engulfed the empire over the past years. He was dragged out of the palace killed by an angry mob, an action that ultimately ended the civil war, leading to the collapse of the ELDRIAN empire.

In 3843 RM a spirit possessed three sibling shamen in the region of MENNOM, claiming to be the spirit of the Last Orrex, becoming known as the TRIFECTATE. They have garnered a sizeable following in the south east of Pergost, which has grown increasingly independent over the last decades, leading many to think it will renounce the Federation completely soon.

LAST SHAIWWAL, the: Leg. His. Per. A common legend in the south west of the GOLDEN CRESCENT region, particularly in the east of ZAKRON, that dates back to the mid-FIFTH AGE AKHSARAYAN empire and the last days of the period now known as the SILENCING OF THE SONG, where SHAIWWALS – bards, poets and travelling historians – were ruthlessly persecuted.

The Last Shaiwwal became a legendary figure in the dying days of this conflict in c. 1890 RM, leading to a figure (now believed to be a scapegoat) being captured and executed and named as the Last Shaiwwal by the emperor, leading to the figure becoming an underground figure of resistance and freedom, who remains a symbol to the downtrodden of Zakron to this day.

LAST TREE, the: Flo. Name for an oak tree in ALMAGEST that is claimed by many to be the last naturally grown tree in the city of ALMAGEST. Though the city has many trees, some of them millennia old, this is believed by scholars and historians to be the only surviving tree to have grown naturally from a seed within the entirety of the city.

With records dating back to 3267 RM, the tree's pedigree is not in doubt. The Last Tree is huge, with a girth of 39 ft. and standing over 100-ft. high. Its base is a knot of tangled roots, that are hard as iron. The tree itself has been protected by the government since 3894 RM due to the love people have for it, and has been enclosed within a glasshouse since 3933 RM, and is constantly guarded by armed troops. The tree is open to citizens against payment on festival days, though is otherwise restricted. In 3993 RM fires were started around the glasshouse in a possible attempt to harm the tree, though these were stopped before any true damage could be caused.

LATARA: Geo. Expansive lava flow in c KARAKHAS, flowing north from Mt. OROROTH towards the ruins of LIDDA, which was destroyed by the flow. The flow is ancient and has crumbled in places and has been reduced to dust, which is blown north into the plains of SARGOTH.

LATER: Lak. Lake in the c south of KARAKHAS forming part of the course of the river NEGHIRREN. LATERITIA: 1. Geo. Valley in the south west of KARAKHAS, known for its many tombs and the ritual sacrifices that happen there in the ALTAR OF THE SORAKHEI.

2. Sea. Lateritian city and centre of their activity in the c of KARAKHAS. They control the area around the peak of ASANATH, making travel in the region difficult (Pop. unknown).

LATERITIANS: Soc. Pol. One of three marauder tribes in KARAKHAS, dominating the region of LATERITIA in the c south west of Karakhas. Their culture of blood-sacrifice is likely responsible for the commonly held conception of Karakhasid culture by outsiders. Their structures are commonly topped in red stucco.

LATHAKEGT: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED land in SARASTRO, in which the city of ARASTARA is located. The area appeared between 3650 – 3670 RM and was first documented by the city in 3652 RM, after it was discovered that it was affecting the health of its residents. Though not severe, the taint there leads to bodies ageing more rapidly than would naturally be the case, leaving people weak and more susceptible to other diseases or ailments.

The installation of various SIPHON ENGINES have stalled the increase in this taint, though they have not stymied its effects. Were it not for the rich mineral wealth around the city it would likely have been abandoned decades ago, though the region is so rich that the people of Arastara have worked around this, finding a way to use the dead as labourers whilst the living live in what comfort they can before their inevitable death at the hands of the Atramenta following which the bodies of those not wealthy enough to buy their way out of it are animated as servants.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{MODERATE THREAT}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ Institute of Atramental Studies.

LATHAKSE: Sea. City in the west of EGINAZ, in the south of EASTERN

MENISCEA. It acts as a base to the assassin cadre known as the CHIMERAE

(Pop. c. 58,000).

LATHLOS: Geo. Island off the north eastern coast of VENTHIR. It has been a CROWN DEPENDENCY of Venthir since 3712 RM.

LATHLOS CHA: Set. Major city and shipyards situated on the island of LATHLOS in the south west of the DARK SEA off the northern coast of VENTHIR. An ASANATE exiled from Venthir in 318 RM migrated there with his retinue and subjugated the islands small population. In c. 900 RM it was plagued by the same corsairs that were preying on the HARÉSHK and Venthir, and its population diminished greatly. In c. 1300 RM it was annexed by Venthir but was largely ignored over later centuries as long as it honoured its yearly tithe was paid.

Between 3452 – 3463 RM extremist militant groups and their families were excommunicated from the Church of the Undying Machine and exiled and settled Lathlos Cha, taking over the government. By 3690 RM Venthiri diplomats had infiltrated the government, rendering it a puppet of Venthir. It would later become a Crown Dependency of Venthir in 3703 RM, along with the rest of the island (Pop. c. 78,000).

LATHMM: Geo. Plateau-like highland region in the north east of NAARETH, up to 200-feet higher than surrounding area in places. It is home to the HEART OF THE VOLUTE – the main church and headquarters of the CHURCH OF THE VOLUTE, the main religion in Naareth, and is also the resting place of THE VOLUTE⁽²⁾.

LATIAN: Set. Small city in the north west of IO. It is built atop the ruin of a far older coastal settlement that was abandoned following the retreat of the SEA OF ETHA (Pop. c. 17,300).

LATIBULA: Rel. Str. A form of hermitage that emerged within the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO following the SUNDERING OF THE EMPIRE, which attracted hermits who now spend their days pondering the nature of the UNDYING MACHINE and their role in the great mystery of life. Many search for an enigmatic epiphany, which can take years to achieve, if ever. Those who attain this epiphany leave their hermitages and travel purposefully to a distant place – thought by many to have been revealed to them in a DREAM or vision by the Undying Machine. They always do so alone, and none have ever returned and their fates have never been documented.

Their hermitages are scattered around the Sarastroan empire though are most common in Sarastro and Io.

LATIMA: Sea. Coastal settlement in the north west of SAGITTARIA. The skyline of the settlement is dominated by three SIPHON ENGINES that lie disused, abandoned for centuries following the natural regression of ATRAMENTAL TAINT in the area left them no longer needed (Pop. c. 8,000).

LATIMAR COAST: Geo. 150-mile stretch of steep coast in the north of SAGITTARIA, known for its variety of flora and fauna.

LATMARA: Sea. Small city in the c of SAGITTARIA, in the salt flats of TROJA^(2.). Its main industry is the gathering and exportation of salt (Pop. c. 17,400).

LATNAT: Sea. Settlement in the south of DACIA. It is a major agricultural centre there, and its markets are famed for their sweet lizard meat, which is roasted on skewers (Pop. c. 10,000).

LATOL: Sea. Small city in the region of HITHRA in the far north of THE SURRACH, overlooking the south of EREBETH. It is a major producer of food in the region (Pop. c. 11,800).

LATRAS: Geo. Northernmost and largest of the MAIDEN ISLES off the south eastern coast of MENISCEA, between the SEA OF NARANOR and the BATHASHAL OCEAN. It was first documented by the explorer BOHMIUS in 1527 RM.

LATUAR: Sea. City in the north of VENTHIR. It originated in 928 RM as a coastal city, where it was built over the ruins of an earlier ALRASI settlement that was an important harbour until the LION HERESIES brought civil war to NATH, leading to its abandonment in c. -170 RM.

Its harbours were repaired by KORACHANI administrators but it was eventually abandoned as the retreat of the SEA OF SHAIB left the settlement 85-miles from land. It now subsists by harvesting salt from the expansive shallow plains left in the wake of the sea's retreat (Pop. c. 23,500).

LATUROLL: 1. Rvr. River in the north east of THE SURRACH, flowing from sources in the NGHALLEAL Mountains for 110-miles before ending in an endorheic lake⁽²⁾ around which is situated the city of Laturoll⁽³⁾. The river once continued south east for some miles before drying up, though the city dammed it and now uses enough to keep its level uniform.

2. Lak. Endorheic lake in the north east of THE SURRACH, forming the end of the eponymous river^(1,). The lake was artificially-created by the people of the city of Laturoll^(3,), to serve its needs, ultimately halting the course of the river.

3. Sca. City surrounding a small crater in the north east of THE SURRACH. The city is built around the edge of an ancient crater that once served as the banks of lake Laturoll⁽²⁾. The lake was dammed in c. 3800 RM and the lake now forms the c of the city, its level fluctuating by season but rarely drying completely. It is known for its small surrounding hamlets and their wine-production (Pop. c. 28,000).

LATUSS: Rvr. River in the c west of PORPHYR, flowing west for 500-miles from sources in the south east of the RYKK Mountains before meeting its parent, the river SCATURIAS.

LAUGHING GOD, the: Rel. Dei. Symbol of the MASQUERADE OF THE LAUGHING GOD that emerged in c. 3960 RM when the political and cultural movement developed into a religious cult. It is most commonly represented by a white grinning mask with painted red lips, and it has become the defacto mascot of most playhouses in SIMBARA. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

LAUGHING GOD, MASQUERADE OF THE: Rel. Org. An anarchic religion and philosophy that has rapidly spread across the empire of SIMBARA between c. 3920 – 3970 RM. It has much in common with the CARNIVALS OF RUST of the INNER SEA REGION, embracing anarchy and promoting disestablishmentarianism, toppling religious and political monuments and structures across hundreds of cities.

Originating in the city of ENNERA in c. 3880 RM as a social movement that opposed the power and ubiquity of the upper classes and the widespread LAZANIST faith, it slowly grew, particularly amongst the lower classes and the downtrodden, with new cells appearing within other cities over the next decades. During that time, it came into control of various theatres and auditoriums, that served as secret bases, putting on productions that openly mocked the religion and Simbara's rulers. This led to multiple clashes with law enforcement, propagating increased acts of vandalism, agitation, insurrection, and revolution that targeted the church of \underline{LAZAN} and the Simbaran government. By c. 3940 RM it had spread into other lands where Lazanism is prevalent, including $\underline{LHACCIDA}$ and \underline{HABOT} , though it never gained as strong of a foothold there.

Despite its public acts of anarchy and mockery, in secret the movement was doing far worse. Members were conducting depraved bacchanals of humiliation, kidnapping influential people for ransom. These acts slowly escalated in number and frequency, culminating in the public humiliation, torture, and eventual execution of a high-ranking member of the church in 3956 RM, which marked a point of no return for the movement.

By this time, the movement was regarding itself as a religion at the centre of which was a figure known as the LAUGHING GOD – an embodiment of what the movement, which was calling itself the Masquerade of the Laughing God – represented. Slowly, politicians, magnates, priests of Lazan, and industrialists had all become members, and new cells were founded, excluding the lower classes, subverting the masquerades' initial purpose, turning it into mockery of itself. The helots and slaves who had been the backbone of the movement were themselves reduced to objects of ridicule, with many still thinking that they were the true congregation.

In truth, the Masquerade of the Laughing God is now little more than a social club for the depraved and powerful. Acts of insurrection continue to be conducted by those in power, though only as a means of keeping the hope of revolution alive in amongst the masses. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

LAUL EGLEA: Rvr. Major river in MALAN flowing west and south for over 2,800 miles from various sources in the HENDECARCHY of AMILLAERE^(1.), including the FATHMMA, NIYAN, and CARCAENT Mountains, before emptying into the BAY OF KAFANNU^(3.), where it serves as a border between KHAMID and Malan. The river has an expansive delta in which lies the so-called CITY OF TWO NATIONS (Kafannu^(4.)), which is joint owned by Malan and Khamid.

LAULAR: Geo. Plains in the north east of TRAKIA.

LAUK: Mil. Str. One of three fortresses in ESHIR^(2.) associated with the SABRIYAN STONE (the other two being AKROL and AVIRAR), restored and expanded by c. 3311 RM after the reacquisition of the Stone in 3203 RM following its rediscovery by the Atramentist Aliqur who used it subjugate part of the south east off Eshir.

The fort is located in the south west of Eshir, close to the border with the VESPERTINE LEAGUE and guards one of the main links between the two nation. It is home to a large contingent of border guards and offices, who are meticulous with checking the documents of any foreigners seeking to enter the nation.

LAURINAR: Set. Major city in the south east of KAZZAR^(2.), along the course of the river ARAGAME. It is amongst the largest industrial centres in the nation (Pop. c. 7,00,000).

LAUTANAAH: Ind. Sea. Isolated mining settlement in the far north of GNOTH, beyond the northern POLAR CIRCLE. It is a major producer of silver (Pop. c. 3,000).

LAVAL: Geo. Cavern in the STOLAS VALLEYS in the c south of STOLAS. The cavern leads into a vast complex that stretches beneath the ANATOLA Mountains and is populated by AL AKHI.

LAVANAS: Rel. Rnk. A controversial priestly caste in MALAN, whose teachings are most prevalent in the HENDECARCHY of CYRENIA. They advocate learning through experimentation and exploration, and no not denounce materialism as evil in and of itself, though they do admonish full hedonism.

LAVI: Rui. Ancient pylon in the south west of TZALLRACH, thought to date back to the FOURTH AGE. It is famed for the tangle of thick desiccated vine-like roots that wind around it, protruding from the ground at its base.

LAVIID DISSOLUTION: Pol. His. Originally centred around the fortress of ARIEH, its many slaves rising against their occupiers in -599 RM, the conflict spread rapidly, encompassing all occupied TZALLRACH lands by -597 RM, where it eventually became known as the Laviid Dissolution; so-called after the leader of the revolt – a Tzallrach priest-turned-slave. - 597 – -559 RM.

LAVIYAT: f. His. Mus. Per. (D. 1775/6) SHAIWWAL in the AKHSARAYAN empire who in c. 1730 became an advisor to the imperial court, setting into motion events that would, over 100-years later, end with the period known as the SILENCING OF THE SONG, in which shaiwwals were persecuted from Akhsaray, leading to their extermination.

LAX PORAR: Rel. Religion observed in the nation of ANANTHUL. It is secretive and little is known about it to outsiders. It is not practiced openly, and most houses are thought to have a shrine that families pray in front of. What is known is that it is a monotheism, whose deity is thought to be a chthonic entity. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

LAXARTHA: Geo. Rocky region in the c of SARASTRO, situated between the OTINDHAR Mountains and lake SILEB. It is one of the few known sources of coal within Sarastro itself and the only one to be exploited on an industrial scale.

LAZACZHAE: Sea. Small city in the east of OKKHAM, on the eastern face of the Okkhammi peninsula^(2.) (Pop. c. 15,750).

LAZAH: Ser. settlement in the south west of the small state of TAL
ZHAAN^(1.). It is a major source of copper (Pop. c. 6,200).

LAZAN: (D. 2434 RM) Rel. Prophet and founder of the faith known as LAZANISM, in SIMBARA in c. 2420 RM.

LAZANISM: Rel. Major religion in the south west of SAMMAEA, and amongst the most widespread religions in ELYDEN. It is worshipped in SIMBARA, the SYCHTAN PREFECTURES, AMMESH, HABOT, KEPHUAAN, LHACCIDA⁽²⁾ and TAAN AN, amongst many others where it exists as a minor, if well-recognised, faith.

It originated in Simbara in c. 2420 RM following the teachings of the prophet LAZAN. The religion seeks to bring order from chaos and believes that the world will come when its founder, the prophet Lazan, is reborn as an OTHERWORLDER who will bear a halo of fire that will cleanse the world of the sin and suffering caused by the DEMIURGES' hubris.

In stark contrast to the religions of the INNER SEA, Lazanism teaches its followers the early religious history of Elyden, including the origins of the Demiurges and passages directly from the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN. It has sometimes been criticised for its critical appraisal of the lower classes, which was indirectly responsible for the SHERRI CIVIL WAR and the eventual exile of the SHERRI PEOPLE people from Simbara. Though otherwise it seeks to educate all people, particularly in matters of the MORTALS origins. Some view this as ultimately nihilistic (with the mortals having come into being prematurely, through the Demiurges' hubris, and being ultimately without purpose or design).

Its temples are typically white and spacious, with many windows (often of stained glass), and are open-topped in places where the climate permits. Otherwise, they are enclosed in large domes that are renowned for their verdigris-green cladding.

It is amongst the most abhorred religions by the Three Churches of The Undying Machine, and their clergy are quick to denounce the religions as a perversion of mortal history and its priests as spreaders of lies and propaganda. It is very likely that the worshippers of the Undying Machine would have launched widespread crusades against Lazanist territories, were they only a bit closer to the Inner Sea Region. So deeply-rooted is this hatred that most people indoctrinated in the ways of the Undying Machine would likely react with acrimony if not outright violence. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

LAZAROM: Geo. Island off the northern coast of KETESH, north east of the SEA OF BASSANDER, and part of the IKUAI DARBOW chain of island.

LAZAWA: Dem. 'Lazawan'. Pol. Geo. Province in KHAMID, is amongst the largest deposits of lapis lazuli in LLACHATUL outside of TETHYSIA. The LAZAWAN merchant-lords that control its extraction and distribution stockpile large amounts of the stuff and sell only the best examples at inflated prices. The rest is used to create the finest blue pigment, which is exported across Llachatul and northern SAMMAEA.

LAZAWAN: Soc. Pol. The caste of thirteen merchant houses that control the province of LAZAWA in KHAMID.

LAZIN: Mil. Str. Fortress of the KNIGHTS AENEOUS in the north west of ROMOREA^(2.), guarding those travelling along the IVORY ROAD.

LDUN: Sea. Bay off the east coast of ARERAQTH in the north east of MENISCEA, between the mainland and the YULIAN^(2.) peninsula.

LEA: Mil. Str. Fortress in the far south east of LIDEA, west of the ENRATON Mountains. The fort is one of several in the region that guard against possible incursion from the south. It has suffered at the slow growth of the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED lands of MHAAVA over the past centuries, though remains operational.

LEABOSK: Set. Small city in the c of the HENDECARCHY of HATON in the north of MALAN, in the western face of the JHALOSS Mountains. Its main industry is the mining of jade (Pop. c. 14,300).

LEADEN FORTRESS, the: Mil. Str. Fortress 1-2-miles away from the SEPULCHRAL PALACE in a strategic location that affords a good defensive point for the Palace. As its name indicates, the fortress is constructed from lead, though this is only a sheath covering a heavily fortified structure whose foundations are largely underground.

LEADEN SCRIPTURES, the: Int. Rel. Vol. Religious texts set down by then-bishop ADEREN ON BASSORAN between 421 and 437 RM, serving as an analysis and argument of various beliefs, ritual practices, and conduct within the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. Popular amongst the laity, the texts never gained traction amongst the clergy, and went largely ignored. It was only decades after Bassoran's death, in 501 RM, that the texts were re-evaluated by the then ARCHBISHOP MAGNUS, granting them a new lease of life. The final endorsement came in 511 RM when the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR himself cited them during a public address, after which they were quickly ratified by the Church of the Undying Machine, becoming doctrine soon after.

Millennia of changes to the tenets of the faith and the rapid growth of the religion into the monolithic institution of today led to the Leaden Scriptures slowly becoming perceived as naive and overly-simplistic, being replaced by more fanatical and fundamentalist beliefs. Despite this, some within the clergy yearn to return to the simpler vision espoused by the Leaden Scriptures, but they are just a vocal minority, and the bureaucratic establishment that is the Church of the Undying Machine sees little need to return to what it might call provincial beliefs.

LEADEN THRONE, the: Rel. Tec. Str. Obj. Seat on which the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL sits, within the SEPULCHRAL PALACE atop the hill of TOPHEL in DAEKYN, KHARKHARADONTIS. He was interred within the throne, an archaic life-sustaining TECHNARCANE engine, in 331 RM after the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, himself recently reborn as an OTHERWORLDER, freed Rachanael from the prison in Daekyn.

The order of DEMIURNES arose to guard the powers of the Throne, which sustains the UNDYING MACHINE. Before its construction was even completed, work began on the monolithic structure designed to house the Throne; the Sepulchral Palace.

The throne itself is known across the empire and beyond, and has become a powerful symbol of the Three Churches of the Undying Machine, and is worn as an icon by their followers. It has also found its way into the common lexicon of many languages, becoming a common curse word across the Inner Sea Region, despite the protestations of the closer.

LEADWOOD TREE: Flo. Termite-resistant trees common to regions along the coast of NORTHERN SAMMAEA, stretching to its north east. Their wood is used to make ornaments, and industrial construction that requires tough wood, though is fairly expensive due to the difficulty in working it. KORACHANI colonies in Sammaea once traded in it, leading to leadwood ornaments finding themselves around LLACHATUL. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

RM by members of various PHRONTISTERY groups around the INNER SEA REGION, that funds expeditions to far-flung parts of ELYDEN, with an eye towards discovering forgotten or hidden wealth and knowledge. It is based in the city of BAAYN, and has many chapters around the Inner Sea Region, largely in KORACHANI cities. Though it is not a government entity, many believe that most of its funding comes from the coffers of the KORACHANI GOVERNMENT to further its own purposes. The League maintains a periodical for members, known as the JOURNAL OF THE LEAGUE OF EXPLORERS, where the Leagues' latest discoveries are detailed.

LEAGUE OF EXPLORERS, JOURNAL OF THE: Vol. Org. Periodical published roughly every 3-months by the LEAGUE OF EXPLORERS, detailing discoveries made across ELYDEN. The periodical is available to paying members of the League and is fully illustrated, with maps, diagrams, and HELIOGRAPHS emphasising the text. The League claims to publish unbiased articles of scientific worth, though some outsiders believe some articles may be tainted by KORACHANI propaganda, though this is denied by the League.

LEAGUE HOUSES: also 'Grand Houses'. Soc. Com. Pol. Seventeen highly influential merchant houses in operation in the south of SAMMAEA, specifically along the route of the NACRE ROAD.

They emerged in the form we know them today throughout the 3rd millennium RM following the formation of the NACRE LEAGUE in c. 1820 RM from an alliances of hundreds of merchant houses and coalitions that pooled their resources to combine dozens of individual trade routes into a single route that would become the Nacre Road. Over the years most of these merchant houses married into each other to strengthen their holdings and expand into new territories, until hundreds of separate houses had become a few dozen, closer in size, influence and number to the Houses of today.

The homogenisation of the Houses allowed the League to gain control of the entirety of the Nacre Road, allowing them to grow extremely wealthy and influential within a matter of generations. Some members of the Houses went on to become economic advisors to the courts and councils of governments surrounding the Road, beginning the first VAKKILS – a tradition that remains strong to this day, linking the Houses in an incredibly influential network that trades sensitive state information with each other.

By c. 2600 RM the League Houses had coalesced into the so-called Grand Houses -17 major dynasties, most of which had genealogical ties with the others. Others minor merchant houses remain active, though for the most part they are vassals of the Grand Houses.

The 17 Grand Houses formalised the League's leadership in c. 2840 RM, establishing a council of 17 seats – one for each of the Grand Houses. This cemented their power in the south of Sammaea, and they ruled in this way for a millennium, making pacts and free trade agreements with various nations and states in return for exclusive commercial rights. The council was deposed by a triad of external merchant lords (now known as the TISRAHANS) in 3966 RM through corruption, who siphoned much of the Grand Houses influence across the Nacre Road.

Despite this, the League Houses remain powerful, wealthy and influential beyond compare, with even the more renowned Patrician Houses of the Inner Sea Region paling in comparison to the reach of their dominion. They spend a great deal of effort and resources into maintaining the status quo and preventing smaller houses from rising too high within the League hierarchy, even absorbing upcoming houses to keep them under control.

The seventeen Houses are: AILAVON, BEL QAMMAR, DRAZZAN, GALADRAT, ISKANDAR, KHANADAI, MARCINATE, MEDINNAR, ORYSAI, QADIR, RATHAAN, SACRAMAD, TEREVAS, VAKKELAR, VALANTE, VILARUS, and ZARQON.

LEAGUE OF PATRICIANS: Pol. Org. Association of PATRICIAN HOUSES that have a presence in the KORACHANI EMPIRE. The League is overseen by an elected chair and together its members represent the needs of the empire's Patricians. It has earnt a reputation amongst HELOTS and SLAVES for being greedy, concerned only with the wellbeing of the upper classes at the expense of those below them.

Typically, the League has a representative amongst the COUNCIL OF SEVEN, who speaks on behalf of Patricians.

The League was founded in 92 RM as a direct result of the formation of the Council of Seven, and operated as a form of parliament below the Council of Seven, meeting in the Parliament Chambers in the BASTION OF STEEL, with major matters passed on to the Seven for their attention. Members of the League were sources from across the empire, and many were forced to travel for months to reach Khadon to present their views, though for the most part they spend their days in their homelands and family estates receiving petitioners.

The League was dissolved during the WAR OF SUNDERING following the ARKHATEN REBELLION, that saw a massed vote of no confidence made towards the League's leadership. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

LEAGUE OF XETEAN STATES: Pol. Nan. Alliance of city-states in the far south east of SAMMAEA.

LEAH: Set. Small conurbation of Turaan whalers, on the southern tip of Mennom, in the south east of Pergost, in the north of Llachatul. Around twelve separate settlements exist within an area of roughly 100-square-miles, with the largest (comprising some 140-people) built around the monolithic half-exposed fossilised bones of an ancient beast Their vessels ply the frigid waters of the Sea of Daggers, Usolea, the Ialcus Sea, and the south of the Sea of Polaris (Pop. c. 1,000).

LEAP YEAR: Cal. A year containing an additional day to keep the calendar year synchronized with the astronomical year. Given ELYDEN'S orbital rotational period of 365.8572 days, an extra day is added to the KORACHANI CALENDAR every 7-years to maintain this synchronicity. Other calendars may have different definitions of the leap year.

LEAR: Rvr. Seasonal river in the north east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, flowing east for c. 350-miles into ANUBIA, from sources in the JOLA Mountains.

LEAS: Set. Fortified coastal settlement in the east of SARAGOS (Pop. c. 8.000).

INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES to categorise regions of ATRAMENTALLY TAINT. MORTALS can travel across such regions of without any concern, and are only at risk following decades of continuous contact. Wealthy settlements found near such areas might make use of a simple siphon engine to keep the ambient safe, though others without the funds or means to do so eventually suffer minor generational issues such as congenital defects like aepathy.

LEAT: Mil. Str. Fort on the island of ALASAEL in the north east of TAHALL.

LEATHERMAN: also 'mountainman', 'frontiersman', and 'hinterlander'.

Rnk. Soc. Mor. Outdoorsmen common to CENTRAL LLACHATUL and particularly c ALMAGEST. Named for the rugged hides/leathers that they wear, they live outside of society in rural and unsettled areas and are largely self-sufficient, surviving by trapping and hunting and living off the land. They are typically experts on wildlife, recycling, and living in a dying world. Those most likely to gravitate to this lifestyle are freemen, escaped slaves, and deserters, who seek to escape the hardships of the world.

LECHAT: Set. Major city in the north east of MECHABET. It is a major centre of industry (Pop. c. 901,880).

LECHER: Fau. Scaly quadrupedal THEROPSIN endemic to the AMMASHI⁽¹⁾ peninsula in the south west of SAMMAEA. Females grow to around 14-ft. long (they are sexually dimorphic, with males reaching lengths of only around 10 – 11-ft.), around half of which is made up of their thick prehensile tails, that help them climb trees. They are sinuous creatures, with disproportionately long limbs, narrow waists, and snake-like heads with sharp teeth. They move with a gangly gait, but their long limbs give them an extremely fast pace and reach that often catches mortals that encounter them unawares.

Though they are often seen in arid and savannah regions, they are most at home in sparse woodlands, where they excel at chasing prey into isolated trees, which they can climb to good effect.

They are most common in TAAN AN and METHUMN, where they are trained as attack animals for use in the military and private security. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LECNE: Set. Settlement in the c north of TAL ZHAAN^(1.). It has been ruled by a fifth generation descendant of the sorcerer-lord TAL since 3903 RM, who has taken an unhealthy fascination with the idol of EZROKAHAELL, so far as locking herself in with the statue for days on end, preventing the worshippers from seeing it (Pop. c. 8,000).

LECTOR: Rel. Rnk. Title within the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, as well as the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO. Lectors are charged with reading sermons, in mass, as well to the masses in the streets of larger cities. They are often VOTARIES.

LEDENEAS: Sup. Drc. Geo. DREAMSCAPE in the north east of the HENDECARCHY of MYEIN in the west of MALAN, within a far greater area of woodlands known as the ARUFON. The dreamscape twists the trees of the forest into impossible shapes, making tunnels and mountains out of trunks and branches. It is relatively small, no more than 100 square-miles but its extreme nature makes it quite dangerous and difficult to leave once caught within it.

LEDGE OF LARCIA: see LARCIA, LEDGE OF.

LEDGER ARCANA, the: Mys. Sup. Vol. Ancient ATRAMENTAL texts unearthed and studied by SARASTROAN SHAPERS in c. 1160 RM. The scholars were executed by the LICHKING SATHEP, who confiscated the writings. They were thought lost until he used them in 3705 RM to perform the SEGARRAN RITUALS.

LEDHEA: Mil. Str. Fort in the south of LIDEA, at the confluence of the river SICERAN and TLISEA, in the badlands of EICLON. The fortress faces upstream, south, towards N'RAKH, guarding against possible aanth incursion LEDRA: Set. Major coastal city in the south of ACHAA^(2.) (Pop. c. 110,000).

LEECH WURM: Int. Fau. Aberrant creatures found in ATRAMENTALLY
TAINTED wetlands in SAMMAEA, leech wurms resemble oversized leeches, and can reach lengths of as much as 10-ft., though most are much smaller than that.

Leech wurms are usually a shiny black colour, though other colourings and markings have been documented.

Leech wurms live and feed in much the same way as normal leeches, seeking out prey, latching onto them and sucking them dry as they struggle. They live in groups and are as likely to gang up on larger prey as they are to feed alone, and can be quite dangerous if undetected. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LEGED: Geo. Region in the east of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT in the north west of SAMMAEA. It is located along the southern bank of the river NEPHILA and is a major producer of opiates, which are used in rituals of the SYBARRI religion.

LEGANORS: Set. City in the c east of AETHIOS, in the eastern foothills of the ARAM Mountains (Pop. c. 32,800).

LEGEO: Pol. Soc. Tribe in the c south of MULCIBER, in the GROWING

MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. Its people are notable ROCtamers, though the tradition is not as prevalent as it once was. Most of its borders with other tribes are along the peaks of the Growing Mountains, many of which are volcanic in nature.

LEGIO ARGENTUM: Mil. Org. Renowned regiment of the STEEL LEGIONS, active between 3712 and 4008 RM.

LEGIO EPHEMERA: also 'Lords Temporal. Org. Long-lived secretive society of powerbrokers and philosophers based in an otherwise uninhabited island off the south western coast of MENISCEA. They are known across Meniscea as the Lords Temporal and are believed to have played a role in the emergence of many governments and regimes over the FIFTH AGE. Many also believe that individual members of the Legio Ephemera are gifted with long lives, far more so than even the umbra-addicted members of ELYDEN'S nobility. They are said to understand the ephemeral nature of the world and that they are merely custodians, not lords (despite their common name), of the so-called TEMPORAL KINGDOM.

LEGIO METALLICUM: Mil. Org. Renowned regiment of the STEEL LEGION, active between 6 – 132 RM. Its actions were at the forefront of the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S expansions. Though its LEGIONNAIRES were amongst the most primitive of their kind, they remain highly commended to this day.

LEGION OF THE SPHINX: see CROSS POTENT, LEGION OF THE.

LEGOG: Set. Settlement in the north east of the tribe of RAOSI, in the north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 7,000).

LEHACHAN: His. Abandoned KORACHANI colony on the island of IKYRIA, 315-miles north west of TAVVADRA off the north western coast of SAMMAEA. It was settled in 2405 RM and was a profitable source of iron for many years before PLAGUE wiped out its population in 2763 RM. It has been abandoned since then.

LEHANN: (15,800-ft.) Geo. One of and highest of ten peaks (colloquially known as the TEN PRINCES) in the south east of the A SAVI Mountains, in the north of AHRISHEN, named after an ancient prince.

LEHIOK: Ser. Capital city of VECTIS, in the south east of MENISCEA. Its founding is detailed in the myth of the CURSED KING, and it is heavily fortified, with entrance forbidden to those who are not of VAEVECTAN^(L) descent, which is commonly determined by their violet irises. Other individuals (most commonly merchants travelling the VAEVECTAN TRAIL) are granted access to particular districts, though there are still districts that remain closed to anyone who was not born in them. Due to this very little is known of the city (Pop. unknown).

LEHLAV: Geo. Region in the east of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT, in which the capital city of TAZAYIL is located. It is one of the more densely-populated regions of the nation outside of the NEPHILA delta.

LEINDREJ LEDGER, the: Vol. A ledger maintained by the AVÉNETHI SANCTIFIED ORDER OF THE INQUISITION, in which the names, confessions, and other details of WITCHES slain by its agents are listed.

It is named after ASSESSOR-GENERAL ERZEI LEINDREI, who first started keeping a ledger of witches put to death starting in 1616 RM. The tradition was continued by his successors, who added new pages and rebound it over time, and it became an integral part of the order by the $2^{\rm nd}$ millennium, almost being treated as a relic.

The ledger is voluminous, and is now split into seven volumes, each over a thousand pages long and far too heavy to be carried by a single person. A shrine was built to house within the headquarters of the order in CARCERI in 2377 RM (at which point it had already been divided into three volumes), at which point an order of celibate scribes was entrusted with filling its pages with the witches slain by the order's many agents, who carry their own ledgers that are handed to the scribes upon their return from active duty so that their contents can be transcribed.

The order of scribes is small, and contains only a handful of individuals, who spend their days illuminating the pages of the ledger, repairing it and filling its pages with new transcriptions. The shrine is also home to a TECHNARCANE engine that records the contents of the ledger allowing for ease of reference.

LEITH: Set. Small city in the c west of the emirate of UKOLIST in the north of LIMOTH^(1.). It is a centre of trade and has links with the Tethysian city of GANEM KASSAB (Pop. c. 18,200).

LEKAR TA': Set. Settlement in the c of KHULL, along the course of the river UPINIS (Pop. c. 3,500).

LEKAZA: Sect. Small city in the north west of the tribe of EATAN, in the c of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 13,500).

LEKOLL: Set. Mining settlement in the east of KHULL. Its main industry is quarrying of hematite and azurite, which are used to make red and blue pigments, respectively. The industry has been working continuously since the time of the SORCERER-KINGS^(3.) (Pop. c. 6,300).

LEKHERYX: Mil. Str. One of two major fortifications built in the empire of NEANDARA (present-day RHINOCOLOURA) in 3280 RM, the other being the tower of DENERYX. The towers were constructed to defend the northern borders of Neandara from possible attack from the north, specifically from the KORACHANI EMPIRE, though they were never used and fell into ruin after the collapse of Neandara in 3470 RM.

LEKKHUA: His. Ntn. Ancient FIFTH AGE territory once belonging to native Yaraomic People. It was situated in the north of Sammaea, forming the south east of their ancestral lands in what is today the north of LIDEA. It was amongst the last Yaraomic territories to be taken by Korachan, and was slowly overrun between 850 – 920 RM, during which time native Yaraomic People taken as slaves or driven out, forced into ever-dwindling territories.

Like most of Yaraomic history, very little remains of its people's culture today, and the caste of lorekeepers known as the IARAOM GRABBA travel across northern Sammaea searching for ancient artefacts to take to their fortress-library in IARSHUGGAH.

LEKKUK: Geo. Highlands in the north of PNESSA, east of RHINOCOLOURA.

LEKUINA: Rvr. River in the north west of VÂRR and tributary of the river ICHORIA. Its waters flow from the tainted slopes of the VARRACHON and are foul-tasting.

LELAKIG: Rel. Str. Mountain-monastery in UCHRON founded in 3763 RM by exiled scholars of the SLEEPING QUEEN.

- LELARTH: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the north of the emirate of UKOLIST in the north of LIMOTH^(I.), guarding a relatively-open 100-miles stretch of the border with the south of TETHYSIA.
- LELECHIS: Set. Settlement in the prefecture of $\underline{SONTADRIS}$ in the south of $\underline{HOLOLACH}^{(l.)}$ (Pop. c. 6,400).
- LELOANA: Rvr. River in the north of ALAM BETHYL, flowing south for 550-miles from sources in the GEYISH STERKEM Mountains, before meeting its parent, the river HESSRIL south of the city of QRED.
- LEMAS: Sca. Shallow bay in the north of KORACHAN that once served as a border between it and PELASGOS. Overfishing of larger fauna and polluted waters from the river ICHORIA have left its waters largely bereft of significant aquatic life.
- LEMEGETHAS: Set. Metropolis in the east of PORPHYR, overlooking the valley of PLAGIOCLAS, around 13-miles from the BAY OF LABRAS, where in 2102 RM three ARKS OF PORPHYR set sail east. The city is governed by a rigid technocracy that strictly regulates the use slaves, with hefty taxes placed on the ownership of large numbers laws the manufactories of the region are forced to obey.
 - It is also the centre of a large region that stretches up and down the eastern coast of Porphyr, where construction of Arks of Porphyr is at its most fervent (Pop. 80,000).
- LEMNISCEA: Set. Small city in MOAH, known for its opal mining. The city has been known to trade south with the independent city of AKRB (Pop. c. 15,200).
- LEMURIA: Mys. In eastern mysticism, the homeland of the SERAPIS, often equated with SHA MORAKHY in KHARKHARADONTIS. Though most think this legend grounded in myth, there is some degree of truth to it, as the domain of the Demiurge ASHTERATH (whose descendants are the above creatures), was called AHLEM ARIS, and Lemuria may be a corruption of this word.
- LEMUSTA: Sct. City in the c east of SKAROS along the southern shore of lake ULAROS (Pop. c. 15,000).
- LEN: Set. Small coastal city in the c east of LOEGRESS^(1.). Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 8,000).
- LENALAT: 1. Geo. Pass to the south of the ANCHIAUS Mountains that leads from AETHIOS west into the UMBRA SOKHAR. The pass is guarded by a large fort⁽²⁾.
 - 2. Mil. Str. Major fort in the south west of AETHIOS, at the edge of the ATHAPEN badlands, overlooking the Lenalati pass⁽¹⁾ west into the UMBRA SOKHAR. The fort home to troops that patrol the border atop well-trained monitors.
- LENCZHSYL: Set. Small coastal city in the east of OKKHAM, on the eastern face of the Okkhammi peninsula. Its main industry is clamming (12,000).
- LENELLA: Geo. Small mountain in the west of WESTERN MENISCEA, forming an extension of the EGETAKH Mountains along the border between NALARDIL in the north and SABAEA in the south.
- LENG: Sup. Geo. Plateau in deep SHAZGIN famed for the DREAMSCAPE of ATANEEDUSH. *
- LENITA: Set. City in the east of KULIGALA, in the east of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.) in the east of SAMMAEA. Its major industry is iron mining (Pop. c. 29,000).
- LENTA: Set. Trade settlement in the east of VENTHIR (Pop. c. 3,200).
- LENTIS: Pol. Soc. One of the earliest PATRICIAN HOUSES that appeared around the INNER SEA, in c. 100 RM, in AZAZEM. It was one of six Patrician Houses that in 243 RM seceded from the KORACHANI EMPIRE and formed the REPUBLIC OF LARATHUKH^(2.). The republic was attacked by Patrician Houses that had remained loyal to the empire, and it was toppled in 271 RM, and four of the six Patrician Houses died with it, including House Lentis. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.
- LEOAHAR: Set. Coastal city in the north east of TATAR (Pop. c. 34,200). LEOGIDH: Set. Small fortified city in the west of CALBIA^(1.), along the course of the river GOIRATH. Its adult populace all receive training as militia at the fortress of VIROTUTH, and are well-equipped, always at ready for an incursion from the north. It is a major agricultural centre, with large herds of cattle and miles of fields surrounding it (Pop. c. 9,000).

- LEONTA: Geo. Mountain in the west of SARAGOS, known for its rich ore reserves.
- LEONTINE MARTYRS: Org. Knightly order in TZALLRACH.
- LEPER MESSIAH, the: see SHEPHERD OF ROT.
- LEPHAINA: Sea. Bay to the south of KEPHUAAN, forming a northern extension of the BAY OF LEPHET.
- LEPHET: Sea. Bay off the south western coast of SAMMAEA, to the south of KEPHUAAN, east of the CORAL BARONIES, and the west of AMMESH. Its waters were relatively deep though the waning of ELYDEN'S seas has seen it turn shallower, its coastal waters becoming a haven for marine life.
- LEPHUSIAT: Pol. Set. Capital city of THANO, located in the south east of the nation in the territories of EASTERN THANO, along the banks of the river HYTIOEN. It is located just south of the northern POLAR CIRCLE and is thought to be the largest permanently-settled city in Thano (Pop. c. 1,300,000).
- LEQA: Set. Settlement in BARATHEA^(1.) known for its breeding and training of MONITORS and MANTRAS, which are common beasts of burden in the area (Pop. c. 8,000).
- LEQHADA: Set. City in the south of CHEIRA, close to the border with SERROK (Pop. c. 43,200).
- LERA: Set. City in the c east of KARGAMA, along the course of the river WOLMASH. The ORDER OF WITNESSES was founded here in c. 800 RM, after which it became an influential city and was home to the KARGEMMAN PLUTOCRACY and later the KARGEMMAN MONARCHY, replacing the previous capital of KYRSEA, which by then was seen as uncouth and antiquated.
 - King BATTUZ spent huge sums of money expanding the palace of Lera, adding entire wings and hundreds of rooms that were lavishly decorated, only to lie disused for centuries.
- The capital was eventually moved to KARGHEMIR^(2.) in 2875 RM, following years of worsening living conditions due to the vicinity of the wetland of FENDOR. Despite this loss, Lera remains a home to many plutocratic houses, as well as the Order of Witnesses, and is a religious centre to the nation of Kargama.
- LERAJE: Leg. Common mythic figure amongst the people of TAHALL and SAGITTARIA, suggesting an older legend dating back to the days of their SAGITTAARI ancestors in pre-imperial KORACHAN. Leraje was an archer and leader of a persecuted people whose arrows were said to cause gangrene. He died after cutting himself on one of his own arrows.
- LERAH: Set. City in the c of BA'AKH along the main working UMBRA pipelines leading north from the city of BAALBETH. It is the only major industrial city that remains in Ba'akh following its depopulation and is a manufacturer of ATRAMENTAL STEEL. It forms part of the SHADOW MARCH as well as the SALT ROAD, so sees much foreign traffic (Pop. c. 18,000).
- LERAHA: Pol. Sct. Capital city of TAHALL, located in the north east of the nation along the banks of the river GATHAMED, just west of its delta.
- The city was named after an ancient SAGITTARIAN leader. Very rarely, the city has been known to trade with imperial vessels exploring the region, trading with them jade, wood and vegetables in return for metal goods and machinery, which is highly valued due to the lack of metal resources in the area. It forms a part of THE WAY trade-route (Pop. c. 180,000).
- LERAMENS' CLOUDS: Sup. Picturesque iridescent clouds common in the skies above the MODEL BELT in the FAR HEMISPHERE. The phenomenon is named after the VENTHIRI scholar who first posited and proved the relationship between the clouds and the relative distance from the NULLAMBIT.
- LERAMUGH: Sea. Southern sea, flanked to the west by the south east of SAMMAEA, to the west by the island of ISEA and to the south by the SAMMAIDU.
- LERASA: Geo. Rocky mountains in the south west of WESTERN LLACHATUL, serving as a border between the nations of AYAD and RAONGEN⁽²⁾, and forming part of the west of the nation of OTINTH. Is it source of many tributaries that form the drainage basin of the river DOROPHONOS.

LEREMAN: m. Edu. Med. His. Per. (D. 2237 RM) SIMBARAN naturalist who discovered and documented the lifecycle of the eponymous LEREMAN'S BEETLE, which led to medical breakthroughs involving CLONING and stalling the effects of ageing.

LEREMAN'S BEETLE: Int. Fau. Large beetles native to the humid marshlands in the south of the HOGGOTHA ISZ, with individuals growing to around 8" long. They are famed amongst naturalist circles for their unique life-cycle.

Adult beetles moult every 2-years and revert into a larval state, effectively regenerating. They spend around a month in the larval state, eating until they are ready to pupate, after which they emerge as imagos – adult beetles, ready to undergo the transformation again.

The beetles were documented by the Simbaran naturalist LEREMAN in c. 2210 RM, who took individuals back to * with him, and he spent the rest of his life studying them. He was able to observe adult beetles undertaking the cycle of rebirth for a maximum of 13-times before his own death, and his acolytes continued the experiment. A single beetle was observed undergoing no less than 790 cycles this way before dying in 3797 RM Expeditions have been made to its habitat by Simbaran and other researchers to unlock its secrets. These forays have led to breakthroughs in CLONING, FLESHWRIGHTING and other fields, and Is partially responsible for the life-prolonging drugs taken by the wealthy and influential of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA and beyond. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LERIA: Lake in the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, along the border between the tribes of ESSENIA and LEGEO. It forms part of the course of the river PADDAS, which flows south west before meeting its parent, the river BESYL.

LERIVAE: Pol. Set. Capital of AKANTHRA, in the south of SAMMAEA (Pop. unknown).

LERNIS: Set. Fortified city in the north west of the PARTHISAN colony of SOTHRA^(1.), to the west of TAMAR. It is home to the region's military forces (Pop. c. 24,500).

LERO: Set. Small city in the c north west of KOMMEA, along the eastern bank of the river LUGHBRAEN. Directly opposite it on the other side of the river is the city of CALETOS. Together, they are known as the TWIN CITIES (Pop. c. 10,500).

LEROR MAEL: Sup. Geo. Region of ATRAMENTAL CORRUPTION characterised by hundreds of pools of black ichor, ranging in size from puddles to large lakes, in SOUTHERN SAMMAEA, straddling the border between MAENMIST and HOGGOTHA ISZ. The pools are thought to be linked through porous stone and an intricate network of caverns.

The region is categorised as $\underline{\text{DANGEROUS}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}$.

LESEDI: Geo. An island, 85-miles long, in the south of the BOILING SEA, bordering the TORRENT OF KARROCK, noted for the natural displays of FIRMAMENTAL ACTIVITY there. The FIRMAMENTAL displays itself as intense heat and searing light, so-much-so that it bleaches everything beneath it. Also, individuals with FIRMAMENTAL abilities experience an exponential increase in their powers there, to the extent that acts of shaping are uncontrolled and are accompanied with great pain, both physical and mentally, with many going insane from the searing heat within them. The ruins of Firmamental academies litter the southern coastline, indicating that the place was once inhabited by SHAPERS, perhaps in a time when the effects of the Firmament were not as pronounced.

LESIA: 1. Set. northern-most city in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of PALUS^(1.). The city is renowned for its large church, in the crypts of which is the mummified form of the angel Lesia, after which the settlement is named (Pop. c. 10,000).

2. Oth. Angelic OTHERWORLDER, the mummified body of which is interred in the crypts of a church in the settlement of Lesia in PALUS^(1,).

LESORIT ALKA: also 'Lesorit Alka' Mys. Geo. Monolithic solid block of pure iron deep in the wastes of ORZOC, in the west of SHAZGIN. It is impossibly large – miles long, rising into the sky, its flat pinnacle hazy in the distance. Its surface is oxidised, pitted and worn by millennia of exposure to the elements, though one can still make out the tell-tale evidence of the relief carvings that once covered its surface, though few of these details can now be made out.

One can easily see signs of past MORTAL greed from over the centuries – abandoned camps and settlements, and large sections where the surface has been hacked at, sometimes extensively, over time. But these attempts to exploit the feature are comparatively minimal, doing little to spoil the structure's overall grandeur.

As is the case with many such structures, little is known of its origins or purpose, if it even had one. It is commonly attributed to an ancient deity by locals, whilst scholars have proclaimed it the opus of an unknown SCION or possibly DEMIURGE.

LESOS: Mil. Str. Fort in the north west of PELASGOS, overlooking the SEA OF CYPRIA^(1.). The fort guards the entrance into the sea, protecting the capital in OCTIRA from the sea.

LESSER NICODEMIUS: Geo. Smallest of three islands making part of the ISLES OF NICODEMIUS, around 300-miles off the southern coast of OKKHAM.

LESSOS: Set. Settlement in the c north of LIDEA. Its main industry is the cultivation and exportation of spices (Pop. c. 4,750).

LEST: Set. Settlement in the north east of AETHIOS (Pop. c. 8,500).

LETH: Med. Drug manufactured by many cities along the coastline of the SEA OF LETHEA. It is derived from the far more potent drug nepenthé, and has become more common, largely due to its decreased potency and less-severe side-effects.

It is distilled from various coastal waters from across the SEA OF LETHEA. It is a narcotic, and is used as a mild analgesic, and also induces stupor, though overuse can cause longer bouts of amnesia, which renders its use in most regions illegal. See Vol II: Drugs and Addictions.

LETHADA: Geo. Island in the c of the SHIBBOTHA ISLES off the south western coast of SAMMAEA. It is part of territories contested between FALLARAUR and the CORAL BARONIES.

LETHE: Set. City in the Prison Carceri beneath the north of the territories of Ethistonith in Rhinocoloura, just east of the Anialla Mountains. The city has a surface exit built around an ancient sinkhole. The mouth of the hole is heavily fortified and has an open-air market where goods from the deep are sold to the surface world. It is one of few Carceran settlements to trade so openly with the surface (Pop. Unknown).

LETHEA: also 'the Hidden Sea'. Sea. A large body of water in the east of SAMMAEA, bordered by the lands of KHARKHARADONTIS, BANT, KULIGALA, NOAVATUR, PNESSA, CHEIRA, WAELMIGH, SERROK, PORPHYR and ANANTHUL.

The sea is largely enclosed, with a narrow strait leading into it from the larger SEA OF ERENEA, and due to this its waters are relatively calm. Despite this, it remains infamous due to the distinct amnesiac blight that afflicts it, though this corruption varies from region to region. Throughout history, MORTALS and their civilisations have shunned the coasts of this great sea, though some industrious cities have appeared over the years, largely to exploit the very sea that causes so much grief—distilling most afflicted waters of Lethea into amnesiac drugs, most common of which are LETH and NEPENTHÉ.

As a result of lessened mortal activity across its waters, the Lethea remains largely pristine, though recent industrialisation of its coastlines has led to some of its waters becoming polluted.

LETHEAN BASIN, the: Geo. Drainage basin formed by various continental divides in the continent of SAMMAEA, including parts of the KHARKHARADONTID DIVIDE. The basin comprises part of EASTERN SAMMAEA, and all rivers within it drain directly into the SEA OF LETHEA.

Nations and territories that are at least partially within the Lethean Basin include: ABACARDAT, ANANTHUL, BANT, CHEIRA, the JAHADAT STATES, KULIGALA, NOAVATUR, OKKHAM, PNESSA, PORPHYR, SABAISA, and SERROK, amongst others.

LETHEAN CURRENT: Sea. Warm surface ocean current in the east of Sammaea, entering the SEA OF LETHEA from the PORPHYRI CURRENT. This current is the primary reason why the amnesic qualities of the Lethea are self-contained, and do not leech into the surrounding waters.

LETHEAN: Med. Soc. Those under the thrall of the drug LETH or who were unfortunate enough to become affected by the SEA OF LETHEA. Over-exposure to the amnesiac drug leaves users hollow and without memory or knowledge of the self. They wander the world in a fugue-state between life and death, barely able to talk or feed themselves. Many find their way into SLAVERY as labourers.

LETHEAN HOSPITAL AND COLLEGE: Edu. Str. College in the east of ABACARDAT in the east of SAMMAEA, where the amnesic effects of the SEA OF LETHEA are studied. It also serves as a hospital where those afflicted by it are treated, to varying results.

LETHEII: Nou. 'Lethear'. Plr. 'Letheiin'. Sup. Org. Mil. Rnk. An order of SHAPERS in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, whose MINASTERIA(2.) has been based in the city of MAKHARA in KORACHAN since 1221 RM. Its members are ATRAMENTAL shapers whose SPHERE of influence grants them access to memories, which they can extract, alter or otherwise manipulate. These shapers are named after the SEA OF LETHEA, and in order to attain the higher ranks within the Minasteria individual shapers are expected to travel to the sea and drink from its waters. Only the most accomplished of Letheiin are able to overcome the amnesic water, and those who are not simply lose themselves to its effects, forgetting their history and becoming LETHEANS.

Letheiin can be highly effective therapists, delving into repressed memories and either excising them completely or discussing it with their patients. They also operate as entertainers implanting false memories into the minds of people, who remember them vividly as though they had experienced them themselves. They can help to retrieve specific memories, anchoring them so that they remain fresh, and can also restore or slow loss of memory, becoming a lifeline to people suffering from illnesses affecting their memories, and they can also restore memories to those who have been affected by the amnesic curse of the SEA OF LETHEA.

Their knack for delving into people's memories makes Letheiin skilled diplomats and negotiators. By delving into the memories of conflicting parties, they can uncover the causes of disputes, fostering a resolution. In times of war, they play vital roles as peacemakers, understanding the motives and fears of adversaries, facilitating dialogue and compromise.

Letheiin are also used in a more aggressive fashion by the military and law enforcement, such as the IRON GUARD or the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION, where they excavate through the memories of captives, looking for secrets and other information, avoiding the need for interrogation or torture. They can also do the opposite, implanting false memories as a form of counterintelligence.

Of great use to the empire is their skill at memory and retrieving specific memories. They often work as archivists, usually pairing with a HEART ENGINE that is used to store bulk information and data, and they can interact with the memories of the LARVA interred within the engine. This gives them access to large volumes of information relatively quickly. See Vol IV: Spheres and types of Shaping.

LETHEON: Rvr. Expansive subterranean river deep in the PRISON CARCERI, its source said to be a deep-sea funnel deep in the SEA OF LETHEA. It flows for some 4,400-miles north through various tunnels and chambers before disappearing in the deepest reaches of Carceri, where some think its tainted waters are consumed by the heat of ELYDEN'S deep interior.

LETIRICA: Fau. Giant moth-like creature with large reflective eyes and a sword-like proboscis. It feeds on blood, using its rapier-like proboscis so piece its prey and suck on their fluids. Though injured this way and not killed are afflicted by amnesia. The degree of memory-loss varies, and it is thought to be linked to the amount of blood lost, with the more blood drained the worse the effects. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LETRIHET: Geo. Island in the west of the MAIDEN ISLES, off the south eastern coast of MENISCEA.

LETTRA: Sec. Settlement and surrounding farmsteads and villages spread over a wide area in the central north of JURRAS⁽²⁾. Its main industry is the cultivation of grapes for wine production and it is controlled by PATRICIAN HOUSE SYNOD⁽²⁾ (Pop. c. 7,000).

LETUS: Rvr. River in the east of PORPHYR, along the course of river GOTOROS.

LEUCAIA: Set. Settlement in the north west of SAGITTARIA, overlooking the BAY OF EDESRA. It is a humble fishing community with the unfortunate honour of having been founded by pirates, which its present people work hard to distance themselves from (Pop. c. 5,600).

LEUFER CYNAN: m. Per. (B. 3961 RM) Mil. Pol. High-templar of the ABYSSAL TEMPLARS.

LEUITTA: Set. Small fortified city in the south east of the tribe of JACITTA, in the c of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 13,500).

LEUL: Str. Hidden pirate fort in the north east of KHITAI, with CHORSAIRS that prey on coastal settlements across the BAY OF KOURIA (Pop. unknown).

LEUSIT: Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of NINIR on the south east of MULCIBER, in the south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS (Pop. c. 215.000).

LEVANT: Set. Major city and regional centre of the LEVANTINE in the south of AHRISHEN. The city plays a crucial part of INDRIK domestication in the region and is known for its manufactories, though none are to the scale of those of south west (Pop. c. 33,800).

LEVANTINE: 1. Geo. Area dominating the south east of AHRISHEN, characterised by its hard unbroken rocky terrain and steep crater-like depressions and bordering badlands. The area is relatively dry and barren, particularly to its north west, just north of the border with LYRIDIA in the RALIEL badlands.

Some postulate that the entire region is a gigantic monolith (a singular rock of gigantic proportions) of incredible hardness, which explains the relative barrenness and impermeability of its rocks. Of course, the flow of river in many areas and erosion and a topsoil that can sustain life make this difficult to prove. It is named after the below cultural group, which once dominated most of south eastern Ahrishen.

2. Eth. Soc. Cultural group now limited to the above region, but which at the height of its influence between c. 500 - 1230 RM encompassed most of the south east of AHRISHEN. Its influence slowly waned, and its territories were lost to an emergent Ahrishen, with its people forced into the wide valley between LYRIDIA and the HARÉSHK, where most of its descendants can be found to this day. Its main influence today can be felt in the Levantine language⁽³⁾ that is now spoken by its descendants.

3. Lan. Language spoken in the above region $^{(1.)}$, and the west of the $\underline{\text{HAR\acute{E}SHK}}$

LEVAR: Set. Settlement in the south of TZALLRACH, situated along a fork in the river CHIEN. It's crest is a pair of lions (Pop. c. 19,000).

LEVIAN: Ind. Sct. Mining settlement in the north west of GNOTH, south of Mt. AESHMESAREPH. It is noted for its mines, which produce sulphur of the highest quality, used for the manufacture of gunpowder and ALCHEMICAL research (Pop. c. 2,000).

LEVIATHAN: Veh. Large form of AMBULANT used by the military forces of the KORACHANI EMPIRE. Land crawler, troop transport.

LEVUN: Mil. Str. Coastal fortress in the south of the PARTHISAN colony of EZHIRAYA^(2.), in the east of MENISCEA.

LEWAASH SOCIETY, the: Int. Mys. Org. Secret society in the CITY OF ALMAGEST, founded by the influential Patrician mystic Lewaash in c. 3780 RM. After his death his heart was mummified and placed in a gilded bell jar as a reliquary that rested in its large circular vaulted meeting hall, deep in the ALMAGESTI PENINSULA.

The heart was stolen in 3922 RM, after which the Society fragmented as accusations escalated and its members struggled to find a common purpose.

The fate of the mummified heart remains unknown to this day, though former members of the society believe it was taken by one of their own for use in a blood ritual.

LEY: Sup. Mys. Geo. An area of FIRMAMENTAL or ATRAMENTA activity, often in a general line or circle, along which the Firmament or Atramenta are more easily felt, similar to a LACUNA. Unlike lacunae, leys manifest as a network of lines between various leys, forming a network, often shaped like a circle or web. Leys can be artificially-created at great effort through rituals, the results of which can lead to leys lasting as long as centuries, before they require strengthening.

Acts of SHAPING of the relevant kind are strengthened when performed along leys: making the act both easier to accomplish, and allowing amplified effects with less effort. Such areas are prized by Firmamental and Atramenta Institutions, with institutions, settlements, monuments or technarcane engines built over them to take advantage of them. See Vol IV: the Materia Omna.

LEY CAIRN: Sup. Mys. Arc. Monuments built over LEYS to filter and guide the flow of the FIRMAMENT to aid SHAPERS in their acts nearby. They are most common in AHRISHEN and MALAN and many of them are ancient, dating to the FOURTH AGE.

LEYLINE: see LEY.

LEYLINE OF THE ACQUIESCENT: Sup. Mys. Arc. ATRAMENTAL LEY in the south of ELEKHID, atop which is built the city of ACQUIESCA.

LEXICOGRAPHICAL COMPENDUM OF THE KORACHANI TONGUE, the: Vol. Lan. Official dictionary of the KORACHANI language, amendments of which are overseen by the LEXICOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY OF KORACHAN.

LEXICOGRAHICAL SOCIETY OF KORACHAN, the: Org. Lan.

Lexicographical organisation based in the city of KHADON in KORACHAN that oversees the development and spread of the KORACHANI language, specifically HIGH KORACHANI.

It was established in c. 350 RM and enforces rules of grammar and style and any changes to the lexicon must be approved by its members before any updates are made to the 'LEXICOGRAPHICAL COMPENDIUM OF THE KORACHANI TONGUE'.

Throughout its existence, the Society has shown an unwillingness to allow the Korachani language to develop, and its members are fiercely rigid in their interpretation of the Compendium. As a result, High Korachani has changed very little in its over three millennia existence.

Conversely, LOW KORACHANI, which is the language of the common people across Korachani territories, is far more mutable, readily adapting to cultural and political changes, leading to hundreds of different dialects across the empire, with many more accents and slang terms, sometimes in the same city. The Society largely ignores Low Korachani, allowing it to exist outside of its sphere of influence.

LHACCIDA: 1. Geo. North western-most part of the ISHMMARRAN peninsula in the south west of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA on which are located the nations of ACHRABAL, Lhaccida^(2.), and VAUN, as well as the western-most parts of CEGANE, and the SYCHTAN PREFECTURES.

2. Dem. 'Lhaccidan'. Ntn. Nation in the far south of $\underline{SAMMAEA}$, to the south east of the $\underline{SEA OF AMMASH}^{(2)}$.

The nation is relatively small though has densely-populated cities dominated by guilds and strict hierarchies. It was once known across the north eastern coast of the Sea of Ammash and the north west of the $\underline{\text{SEA}}$ $\underline{\text{OF KRIHIEK}}$ for its privateers, with this period reaching its peak between 3200-3350 RM.

A civil war in 3692 RM saw it sundered in two, with its western territories fracturing into the independent state of ACHRABAL. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

LHAERHAT: Med. Str. Large complex in the c south east KHALHAT, along the edge of the DAENED SULRACH^(1.), where experiments are conducted on creatures, many of them MORTALS, who are either prisoners of war from the north, or travellers that strayed too far into LHAUS territories.

LHAM ASHTA: Set. City in the far north of LLACHATUL, overlooking the sea of SUDUNIR. The city forms part of a loosely allied people who populate the region around the arctic circle north of THE VORANDINE (Pop. c. 32,000).

LHAMACTHOI, the: Int. Myt. His. Ancient beings recorded in THIRD AGE neolithic cave paintings discovered in the east of AZAZEM, the north of KORACHAN, and the west of VÂRR. They are thought to be equitable with the MESOCHTHONS, of the FORGOTTEN ONES.

LHANA: Geo. Highlands dominating the c south of TISARA. Their southern face, forming a valley between them and the north west of the VOULLOR Mountains, were once home to many sulphur and gypsum quarries, as well as pyrite mines, but the SEISM OF ASMARATH left the region devastated in 3201 RM, many of its people dead and its mines collapsed. There was a mass exodus of people from the region in the decades following the earthquake, though people eventually returned centuries later, opening new mines.

LHARKA: Ser. Ancient KHALHISH port situated along the shore of the VALGRAD salt plains. The dwindling of the SEA OF BYSSOS saw the city lose wealth and influence, though it survives today as a much-diminished trading city and caravanserai, its old harbour a dry ruin on the edge of the saltplain of Valgrad.

The settlement now forms part of ANDILUTH and is largely populated by humans, though a small number of LHAUS and other races can be found there, making it quite cosmopolitan. (Pop. c. 14,300).

LHASHA: Set. Small city in the east of KHALHAT (Pop. c. 15,000).

LHAUS: Plr. 'Ihaus'. Mor. One of the original Two-and-Twenty MORTAL PEOPLES, and the children of the DEMIURGE IALDABAOTH. Their ancestral lands were known as ELARIA. Their original forms were unassuming, standing around 5-ft. tall and with dark skin and hair, and slender frames. They have large pale eyes and indistinct noses, though their main distinguishing features are their hands and feet, which only have four digits each, with two thumbs and 2 fingers on each hand.

The lhaus adopted their father's obsession with seeking eternal life, and became acolytes of the art of KLADOS. They became consumed with this obsession with klados, becoming a changed race, their goal of prolonged life achieved yet not without its costs. Those with the purpose and means to, created artificial bodies known as ITERANTS in which they would transfer their SPIRITS (1.) upon the death of their mortal VESSELS as a means of achieving prolonged life, or a semblance of it, at least. Each such iteration would strip away a layer of the individual's personality and encase its spirit in a new body of porcelain-like skin and sinewy muscles. Iteration by iteration, the individual would become lost beneath the iterant, until little of the original person remained.

By the early days of the THIRD AGE, the leaders and upper echelons of lhaus society had become so embroiled in maintaining the mysteries of klados that their society broke down. The tribes' lesser social classes unable to follow the costly pursuits of their masters and began a diaspora across ELYDEN, where they slowly dwindled without the protection of their father, and they eventually died out, though not before sharing their surgical knowledge with various other mortals.

Those amongst them who achieved false immortality through the art of klados became miserable secular creatures, their time spent researching better ways of maintaining their longevity, ruling over legions of slaves, followers, and retainers whose sole purpose was to serve their rulers. Their solitary city-states warred against each other in the pursuit of the resources needed for their timeless compulsions.

By the latter days of the Third Age, the lhaus had been reduced to a few mirthless totalitarian city-states, hidden from the rest of the world to the north west of KHARKHARADONTIS. Memory of their tribe was almost lost by the dawn of the FOURTH AGE and it was only the actions of the aggressive lhaus city-state of THAMAAZ (over a thousand miles south of what is now known as EREBETH) and its ruler, Leontoeida, Lord of the Clades, in the Fourth Age (c. -4500 RM), who scoured the lands around his city for miles around, searching for further secrets to immortality.

As the WAR OF SCOURGING consumed ELYDEN the clades hid themselves away and took little further part in world events, surviving the FADING of the Fourth Age. They emerged to search for more resources but the increase of the SHADOW IN THE DESERT forced them back into isolation as the rest of Elyden rebuilt.

The art of klados survived in THRACIAN legends and the YOTHSHAMMANEI TABLETS, found in c. 750 RM in a temple in the north east of the DAENED SULRACH that is believed to be a mortuary complex to the wasted iterant of an unnamed CLADE LORD.

Today, the lhaus survive in corrupted from in the small nation of KHALHAT, in the north west of Sammaea. They are an insular people and trade little with the outside world, using human mediators to buy the resources they need to continue their obsessive search for immortality. They maintain an army of iterant-like CREANTS, known as the PORCELAIN PHALANX, which guards their lands from incursion. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life: Sicthain.

LHAUAPARAN: Int. Mys. Sup. Tec. Med. Soc. Form of OTHERWORLDER created artificially at great cost and effort. Though lhauaparans have been created independently across Elyden at different times, they were first manufactured in the KORACHANI EMPIRE in c. 3000 RM, in the ATELIERS of MHAROKK. A lhauaparan was created in the TRISKETHIAN DOMAINS in 2852 RM, leading to the regions' downfall.

The thought behind their creation was simple – the act of death causes the SPIRIT to separate from the VESSEL, whereafter it gestates in the OTHERWORLD until it is reborn as an otherworlder.

TECHNARCANISTS, SHAPERS and BIOMECHANISTS worked together for close to 100 years to create an artificial otherworlder. Beginning in c. 2850 they worked under the supervision of spiritualists of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, aggregating their knowledge of the creation of UMBRANS, SICTHAINEN TECHNA and HAEMONCULI with the study of the IMMATERIA. An artificial body was given life through the use of complex SOHBAL FERROLLI. In the head of the VAT-BORN being was a perfect SOULSTONE that was married to the body by a CHOIR of sacrificial SHAPERS, whose actions finally brought life to the being – the first artificially-created otherworlder.

Other lhauaparans were created since then, but the drive to do so died down with the successful inception of the first such being.

Theirs bodies resemble those of humans, though tend to be taller, of more exotic proportions. Though the similarities end with a cursory look at their head, for in place of a cranium they each possess a single perfect soul stone, suspended in mid-air, where a brain should be. That soul pearl is the link to the otherworld, the spirit, that makes a lhauaparan more than simply another vat-born creature, elevating it to the status of otherworlder. Without that soul-pearl, the Lhauaparan would cease to exist, and would revert to being little more than a slab of meat, alive yet without consciousness.

Despite their physical differences to other mortals, the true difference lies in their mannerisms and character. It is well-known that otherworlders are aloof and alien beings, and the longer they exist in the MATERIAL PLANE the more distant they grow. Lhauaparans are doubly so, their manufactured eyes gazing through any mortal they look at, penetrating deep into their soul in a manner that is quite indescribable and unlike the ability of any other creature, mortal, or otherwise. They can go for years without stirring, their minds – such as they are – existing on both the material plane and the otherworld simultaneously, sometimes losing themselves in one world at the expense of the other. They are anathema to their naturally-born kin, who are nauseated in their presence and bear an unnatural rancour towards them.

Though successful, the creation of the Lhauaparans was met with little boon that justified the difficulty and sheer expense of their creation. Though it proved that the goal was possible, the overall costs and opposition from various groups proved to be a death knell, not to mention the uselessness of the creations which, despite their myriad talents and physical strengths and potential to tap into the absoluteness of the otherworld, remained near catatonic or, at best, torpid.

Their creation is regarded as somewhat of a victory by the KORACHANI EMPIRE as well as some members of the Church of the Undying Machine, though a major schism was formed when the news was originally announced as few at the time believed that mortals should wield the power to bring back to ELYDEN the dead in the form of otherworlders. The schism resulted in an indolent war between opposing factions of the Church of the Undying Machine, who for 3 years between 3015 – 3018 RM clashed in political and martial arenas across the Korachani empire before the intervention of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, who spoke in favour of the act of unnatural creation, a sign of the wisdom and strength of the Korachani people. Since then, a handful of other lhauaparans have been incepted, largely for research purposes, with the last known one incepted in 3842 RM in KHADON and thought to be in the employ of THE SEVEN.

LHIBOR IKAL: lit. 'large tome'. Also, the 'Arechi Codex'. Vol, Mys. Large manuscript found in a ruined BARRATORS office in the town of ARECHI in the south east of KORACHAN in 3782 RM. The Codex is believed to date back approximately 2700 years to early imperial history. Found in an air-tight vault, it details many subjects including herbalism, astronomy, ALCHEMY, biology, cosmogony, FIRMAMENTISM and ATRAMENTISM.

LHORAEX: Ind. Manufactory in the KHURAURI city of AHOKAI, which is famed as a major producer of CLONES.

LHOTEKIL: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTAL feature in the c of KORACHAN, north of the GULF OF LEMAS.

LHOUA: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the north east of KHALHAT, and home to many legions of the PORCELAIN PHALANX, which guard the contested border with TRAKIA.

THRAL: Geo. Highland plateau to the north of the RHAECHA Mountains in CENTRAL LLACHATUL, on which lies the DVERG nation of CHTHYRID.

LHUKH, TOWER OF: Rui. Ancient tower south of the STRAMINEA Mountains in the north of ROMOREA^(2.). The tower is made of a strangely pale porcelain-like substance and is believed to be a relic of ancient LHAUS domains that dominated the region west of here in the THIRD AGE.

LIACHA: Mil. LIDEAN natives that, prior to the arrival of the KORACHANI EMPIRE there in 911 RM, formed part of a hierarchal militaristic caste. With the integration of imperial politics and cultural structures, the remaining Liachani populace integrated themselves into that culture, many of their noble families becoming leaders of the IRON GUARD and other militarised institutions. Some continued to oppose imperial rule though their families were mostly eradicated in the centuries following imperial dominance in the region.

LIACHAN: Set. Conurbation in the north west of KORACHAN. It has been famed for its OLIVE oil since antiquity and boasts the oldest surviving olive-press in Korachan, dating back to c. 1100 RM. Its olive groves are similarly amongst the oldest in the empire and are the pride of their people, who work hard to keep them alive against adverse conditions. IT is a stop along the RED ROUTE and its olive oil is bought by merchants travelling the trade-route, who in turn sell it at great profit in distant lands along the route (Pop. c. 11,000).

LIAKARRA: Sea. Narrow gulf in the far north west of THE INNER SEA, separating the peninsula of EZASUH⁽²⁾ from GNOTH and AQUARIIA. The gulf was once much larger though its west and northern reaches diminished greatly with the lowering of sea levels over the past few millennia.

LIÁR: Sea. Lagoon in the west of the MAIDEN ISLES, between the islands of EPEHET in the west and, LETRIHET in the north, and VEREIN in the east. Its waters are shallow and the people of the surrounding coasts fish its waters on sleek narrow-hulled catamarans.

LIARA: Set. Settlement in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of UCHRON. It lies along the route of the GREAT ROAD (Pop. c. 6,000).

LIARD TOMBS, the: Hi. Str. Ancient rock-hewn tombs in the c north of the VESPERTINE LEAGUE, scattered across some 100,000 square-miles, attributed to a long line of THIRD AGE kings. Most of the tombs are either destroyed or looted, though it is believed that many remain undiscovered or otherwise sealed behind cave-ins.

LIARDA: Set. Small city in the DESOLATION OF ASTUDAN, to the north west of GÂTHA, to which it belongs. It forms a part of the GÂTHAN ROAD, and serves as a link to the northern route leading into FARIS and SABIA (Pop. c. 12,700).

LIATT: Rui. EHLBEZUNI ruins, dating back to the FOURTH AGE. The ruin is thought to have once been a great stone city, much of which was hewn from the bedrock, and many chambers and crypts are believed to lie undiscovered.

LIBAN: Set. Small city in the south of KOMMEA, relatively close to the border with CALBIA^(1.). It is home to military rangers who spend months in the wild, patrolling the two nations' shared borders (Pop. c. 20,000).

LIBRAMIA: His. Myt. Geo. Ntn. Ancient historical territories belonging to the DEMIURGE TALANTEHUT and her tribe, the VALTHAS. It is unknown where those territories were in relation to today's borders.

LIBOR: His Rel. Neolithic religion that dominated the KORACHANI PENINSULA following the re-emergence of civilisation after the FADING of the FOURTH AGE. Rising in c. -1500 RM amongst the scattered pastoral tribes that appeared in the HURACHI and BRAHAN plains to the west and east of the FATUACH Mountains, respectively; Libor was a fertility goddess that also had associations with wine, agriculture and warfare; all traits important to the Korachani people, even in those neolithic times (wine, in particular, was important to religious rituals, as was ritualised combat to solve tribal quarrels).

The fertility cult was prevalent over the next centuries and survived beyond the neolithic age of Korachan, well into its copper-age and only began to suffer with the rise of the merchant-classes c. -750 RM. The perfection of iron smelting in c. -700 RM brought the city-states of Korachan together, burying many ideals that Libor extolled, leading to the rise of the so-called CULT OF LIFE AND DEATH which replaced Libor as chief religion of Korachan by -600 RM, though worship of Libor remained in small pockets in the south of the peninsula, where they survived until c. -350 RM, remaining strongest in the city of MAMMON, where it was abolished by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR in 5 RM. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

LIBRAN: Geo. Reef in the north of the territorial waters of FALLAROUR in the south east of the SEA OF MERCUVIA off the south western coast of SAMMAEA.

LIBRARY OF BABAEA: see BABAEA, LIBRARY OF.

LIBRARY OF CARULA: see CARULA, LIBRARY OF.

LIBRARY OF CATHOLICON: see CATHOLICON, LIBRARY OF.

LIBRARY OF HEMMARASHEL: see HEMMARASHEL, LIBRARY OF.

LIBRARY OF IND: see IND, LIBRARY OF.

LIBRARY OF KHUSH'HLLA: see KHUSH'HLLA, LIBRARY OF.

LIBRARY OF KISH: see KISH, LIBRARY OF.

LIBRARY OF METHED: see METHED, LIBRARY OF.

LIBRARY OF SAROSS: see SAROSS, LIBRARY OF.

LIBRARY OF ZODD: see ZODD, LIBRARY OF.

LICEA: Set. Fortified settlement in the c of the BAKHRAN STATES in the c north west of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 8,200).

LICH: 1. Sup. Rnk. Title in the KORACHANI EMPIRE (rose in c. 2300 RM) for SHAPERS (typically ATRAMENTISTS) who are able to manipulate the Atramenta to prolong their lives. Their bodies commonly take on a corpse-like appearance as they slowly dry out.

2. Set. Settlement in the south of the $\underline{\text{HAR\acute{E}SHKI CITY-KINGDOM}}$ of $\underline{\text{ALAMUT}}$ (Pop. c. 4,800).

LICHASSA: Set. Settlement in the c of SARASTRO, just 15-miles north of the capital. Indeed, it is a major producer of food for ARGEA as well as the RED ROUTE, which passes through it (Pop. c. 4,500).

LICHENWOOD, the: also 'Peligran'. For. Exotic forest in the north of EIKARTHYEA in the east of EASTERN MENISCEA, known for its large fungal woodlands, made up of thousands of individual fungal growths that each grow 6 - 10 ft. tall. Each such growth is characterised by a large sickly orange coloured cap shaped like an inverted bowl or sky-facing trumpet, with thin sturdy wood-like gills tapering down to the base of the stem. In truth, these gigantic fungi are a single organism that overran a much older virginal forest in the early FIFTH AGE, subsisting on its felled trees and roots, replacing them almost entirely, today the lichenwood survives on the deep roots of ancient trees that have long-since passed, growing and dying in a 2 – 3-year cycle.

LICHFORT, the: Pol. Str. Monolithic fortified palace that crowns the EXCIAN HILL on which the city of Argea was built, in the c north east of SARASTRO. It is the home of SATHEP THE RISEN, and the government of the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO.

LICHKIN MONKS: Soc. Derogatory nickname for monks of the SODALITY OF THE SOUL'S APERTURE.

LICHKING: Pol. Rnk. Common epithet by which the autocrat SATHEP
THE RISEN is known, particularly within the REFORMED EMPIRE OF
SARASTRO.

LICTOR: 1. Pol. Rnk. Political agents within the HIGH- and LOW-EMPIRES, enforced with carrying out the needs of their respective governments. The ORDER OF LICTORS was founded in 377 RM and its members are assassins and spies of the highest order, and are often HALFBLOODS, whose racial traits can often aid in their dangerous work, or ATRAMENTALLY-augmented. In rare occasions, lictors have been known to work as bodyguards, though their craft is mainly that of death.

Many Lictors were blamed for the events leading up to the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM, which ultimately led to the disbanding of their Order two years later.

2. also 'the Assassin'. Ast. Con. Constellation in the NORTHERN HEMISPHERE. See Vol II: Constellations.

LICTORS, ORDER OF: Mil. Org. Military order founded in KORACHAN in 377 RM to act on behalf of the empire across ELYDEN and formally disbanded in 3707 RM due to their treasonous involvement with the events leading up to the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE.

They were regarded as assassins, diplomats, infiltrators, spies, and warriors and were considered amongst the most elite of all the imperial orders. They had a level of autonomy surpassed only by that of the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION, and often worked together on missions. They were responsible for major world events such as the deposing of warlords, defection of cities and nations to Korachan, assassinations of enemies hostile to the empire, and maintaining the dominance of the Church of the Undying Machine across The Inner Sea.

Despite their official disbanding, it is rumoured by many that they continue to operate in secret at the direct behest of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR and the HIGH-CONSULITE.

LIDARMELAN: Geo. Savannah dominating the c of PNESSA, much of which once under the SEA OF SUPPA until c. 2500 – 3500 RM. The savannah is dominated by scrubland and sparse woodland and is too recent to be home to dense rainforest. The area is naturally becoming afforested over time, though the process is slowed by the mortal influence in the area.

LIDDA: Lan. Native name for LIDEA.

LIDDAIA: Set. Settlement in the north east of HABOT, in the foothills of the EKAGHI Mountains, in the VIAMMESHI Valley (Pop. c. 5,800).

LIDEA: Dem. 'Lidean'. Ntn. Situated in the north of SAMMAEA, Lidea is characterised by dry hot summers and cool winters with little rain, most of which would be around the coast, where cool air off the INNER SEA meets warm air from the south.

Descended from the ruined cultures of CONTH, NAAH and THYM, and populated by the more recent YARAOMIC PEOPLE, it was eventually occupied by the KORACHANI EMPIRE in 911 RM after a long period of unrest, after which it became a vassal state to the larger empire.

Exocrines rapidly spread the word of Rachanael and within a few years the CHURCH OFTHE UNDYING MACHINE had set down roots. In 941 RM, together with the imperial army, the exocrines decimated one of the last remaining Fifth Age lacer territories, in the east of Lidea, though a few minor enclaves would survive this attack.

A kratocracy was introduced in c. 950 RM to help in quelling unrest, and it would go on to be the reigning government there until its independence centuries later.

It became a military power in the Inner Sea following its toppling of the rebel fortress of TELRAASA in c. 1200 RM. It would remain a stable imperial outpost until the death of the ATRAMENTIST SAECHIN in ARTALSCELLI led to unrest, culminating in its independence in 1282 RM. This was short-lived, and Korachan returned in 1421 RM, though the region was changed by its more-recent subjugation. Local customs were quelled and the native religion replaced with the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. Cultural structures were toppled, replaced with the iron statues of MALICHAR and the UNDYING MACHINE.

The damming of the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.) in 2943 RM saw its southern industries devastated, leading to the empire's regard for the dependency diminishing, which remained only as a source of rapidly waning resources. By c. 3450 RM SATHEP, ruler of SARASTRO, had taken note of this, and began employing subtle acts of propaganda to influence the people of Lidea. Soon Sathep himself was sharing secrets with the Lidean governors, slowly corrupting generations of Patricians to his cause.

The WAR OF SUNDERING saw Lidea willingly join forces with Sarastro on the 11^{th} of RACHALEN 3704 RM following the destruction of the frigate THE INDEFATIGABLE led to Korachan join the fray. It became a protectorate of Sarastro following the SUNDERING OF THE EMPIRE, and remains so to this day.

By 3973 RM a freed slave known as the True King had garnered a sizeable following, threatening to undermine the rule of the SARASTROAN governor there. Envoys from SATHEP met with the True King, and days later the governor had been replaced by the True King, who was bestowed with the rank of REGENT-KING. This started a line of regents, whose descendants rule Lidea in the name of Sarastro to this day under relative autonomy, so long as yearly tithes to the imperial coffers are met

The Lidean proverb "If a man has no tea in him, he is incapable of understanding truth and beauty" sums up Lidean culture as it is perceived by most outsiders. Its settlements revolve around tea-houses, and many political and business deals are made around a table with a long-spouted pot of tea at its heart. Indeed, tea is its main export, and a major industry in the north of the territory.

Religious See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

LIDEAN: Lan. Language spoken in LIDEA, and parts of the south east of HARAPPA(3.). It emerged from the earlier SUTHI language, though has largely been supplanted by KORACHANI and, later, SARASTROAN. It remains in use in rural areas and amongst the uneducated in cities. See Vol II: Languages.

LIDII: Set. KHAMIDIAN city situated at a 100-ft. waterfall along the course of the river LAUL EGLEA, overlooking the border with the MALANI HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS. The city is a major trade city, was once a caravanseral serving traffic going up and down the river along its now destroyed 500-mile course downstream across Khamid. Miraculously spared during the CATACLYSM, the city survived (Pop. c. 51,000).

LIDIR: Set. City in the c north west of the TEMPLAR STATES. It is a vital part of the textile and clothing industry of the States (Pop. c. 32,000).

LIDONUSAN PLAINS: Geo. Expansive plains dominating the north of AETHIOS, to the east of the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾. The plains are dry, but not arid, covered in sparse vegetation and scattered scrub woodlands that increase in density to the north.

LIDURNIA: Geo. Large valley dominating the c and east of AYAD, forming part of the drainage basin of the river DOROPHONOS.

LIENE: Geo. Valley in the south west of CISNERIA, in the BLACK MOUNTAINS. It leads into the north of ATARAXIA, and was shaped by the flow of the river NAMESH, which flows south to its parent river, the ARASTA, which itself flows south into Ataraxia.

The valley is known for its rock-cut tombs in which were interred generations of ancient humans, their bodies mummified by the cold and placed in high hewn niches along cliff-faces and treacherous positions, away from the reach of scavengers. The tombs are believed to be related to the cave-necropolises of ABIECE.

LIEVTHRA: Dem. 'Lievthran'. Ntn. Nation in the south west of SAMMAEA, to the east of the SEA OF AXONIN. It is known around the INNER SEA as a place of alien forests, with trees with long straight trunks and high clusters of branches that make them look like upside down plates, that provide plenty of shade beneath them as well as habitats to a variety of creatures that dwell upon them and rarely touch the ground.

Its people are dour and take pride in hard work, and of skin paler than the norm, considering the latitude of Lievthra, indicating a period in history with prolonged contact and mingling with other people, likely from farther south.

The nation is also noted for its monolithic colossi, which are thought to date to a FOURTH AGE culture. The faces on these colossi, known collectively as the LIEVTHRAN ANCIENTS, were rediscovered in the FIFTH AGE with their faces destroyed. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

LIEVTHRAN ANCIENTS, the: His. Arc. Ancient FOURTH AGE colossi that dominate the hinterlands of LIEVTHRA and part of eastern BELEGOR and western SYNCHTHONITH in the south of Sammaea. They are attributed to an otherwise unknown culture, and were rediscovered in the early FIFTH AGE with their faces defaced through an ancient act of vandalism that was likely culturally-significant, but the reason for which can only be guessed-at.

LIFBRAM: Set. Fortified settlement the in the south of KASPIA (Pop. c. 19,000).

LIFE AND DEATH, CULT OF: His. Rel. Religion of PRE-IMPERIAL KORACHAN and natural progression of ancient Neolithic fertility deity known as LIBOR that died out c. -700 RM.

The Cult of Life and Death rose around the same time that Korachani craftsmen were regularly smelting iron ore; a revolution that led to increased contact between the city-states, the establishment of traderoutes and the rise of what would later be recognised as the SEVEN CITY-STATES and regular commerce between them. This renaissance of sorts led to the diminishing of the antiquated cult of Libor, the priestesses of which lost favour and disappeared by c. -600 RM (remaining in small pockets in the south of the peninsula, where they survived for some centuries).

In their place appeared a cult extolling the dichotomous state of Life and Death, the rise of which is difficult to pinpoint, and many factors are responsible for its rise, though most commonly, the cult is seen as being a metaphor for the progress and advancement of Korachan (life) and the abandonment of its antiquated ways (death).

The Cult of Life and Death thrived throughout the rise of the city-states, despite the rise of the CHEIROAHIN; its main temple in the southern reaches of the HURACHI plains, from where it exerted much influence on the growing city-states, particularly the independent state of NEKODA. The temple was destroyed by the usurper MALICHAR and his followers in -2 RM, with the loyal followers of the church executed as traitors to the new EMPIRE and the newly-established CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. A few minority groups remained, amongst them the DHANUSII, who were persecuted and exiled from Korachan in 13 RM, who took the faith with them to AQUARIIA, and a corruption of the faith remains popular there to this day,

The Cult of Life and Death was resurrected by the Arch-cardinal ARREKAN (later known as Arrekan the Betrayer), following his banishment to the prison-isle of HOAMM in 108 RM. From Hoamm, missionaries of the Cult of Life and Death were sent north into Korachan and south to the SAMMAEAN nations and the cult spread in the time of conflict that emerged in the absence of the Archpotentate Malichar, later known as the REIGN OF THE EMPTY THRONE. A cathedral of the faith was erected in the city of Hoamm around 312 RM, though with the rise of the Hoammi monarchy in 1284 RM, the cult diminished, becoming little more than a mystery-cult amongst the merchant-lords by c. 1350 RM, replaced by the pantheon of demigods known as the HOAMANA. The tradition of TAROKKA cards emerged from Hoamm in c. 600 RM, where they were originally used as a simplistic way of depicting parables and mystical teachings. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

LIFE AND DEATH, TEMPLE OF: Rui. Ancient ruin in the west of KORACHAN where once the main temple of the CULT OF LIFE AND DEATH once stood.

LIFE PAIRING: see YRANNAI.

LIGERNA: Pol. Set. Capital of splinter nation of ELAT since the fracture of its parent empire in 3762 RM (Pop. c. 450,000).

LIGHT BEYOND: Oth. The light part of the OTHERWORLD, where many ILLITHAMÉ are said to dwell. Its opposite is the DARK BEYOND.

LIGHT AND THE DARK, the: see THE SHAPER.

LIGHT, TEMPLE OF THE: also 'the Illaha'. Rel. Str. Pylon-like temple constructed on the back of a large lodelith over the SEA OF OGYGIA in TULURKRYPH^(2,), in the south of WESTERN MENISCEA. The temple is ancient and remains guarded to this day by the IMMORTAL^(2,) children of DURUTHILHOTEP, whose bodies are largely inured to the effects of the FIRMAMENT.

LIGHT'S TOMB: see 'DOR ILL'.

LIGHT UNDYING, the: Sup. An aspect of FIRMAMENTISM that is well-known in the FAR HEMISPHERE, which is not as common as it is perhaps believed to be by non-SHAPERS. Some Firmamental shapers are able to manifest the Firmament as a mane of white flames that envelops their bodies – the so-called Light Undying. Their skin glows red, as though illuminated from within and their eyes not only turn white, as is the case with all acts of Firmamental shaping, but also glow from within. Their bodies emanate great heat, though the flames themselves do not burn objects as mundane flames do. Shapers able to manifest the Light Undying can use it to accomplish a myriad of different effects, including levitating, most devastating of which is unleashing it as a blast of energy that can blind eyes, sear skin and topple buildings. It is most common amongst THAUMATURGES.

Though it is considered to be a SPHERE by many, it does not quite meet the commonly-accepted requirements of this. Any firmamental shaper is able to tap into the part of the Firmament that grants the Light Undying, though not all shapers are equally adept at doing this. Some may have a natural talent for doing so, where others might only be able to following years of training. Shapers who do not learn to control their powers pose a great danger to those around them, and agents from the MINARET OF LIGHT spend lifetimes scouring ELYDEN for those who show an affinity for the Light Undying, so that they can be sent to the Minaret for training, so that their powers can be adequately channelled.

The Atramental equivalent of the Light Undying is thought to be the SHADOW INCARNATE.

LIGHTHOUSE OF AARU: see AARU, LIGHTHOUSE OF.

LIGHTHOUSE OF ALTAN: see ALTAN, LIGHTHOUSE OF.

LIGHTHOUSE, AMENARKHON'S: see AMENARKHON'S LIGHTHOUSE.

LIGHTHOUSE OF ASTUR: see ASTUR, LIGHTHOUSE OF.

LIGHTHOUSE OF AQARA PHAT: see AQARA PHAT.

LIGHTHOUSE OF THE BLUE EYE: see BLUE EYE, THE.

LIGHTHOUSE OF BREGA: see BREGA.

LIGHTHOUSE OF CORRIA: see CORRIA.

LIGHTHOUSE OF ERAKON: see ERAKON.

LIGHTHOUSE OF IND: see IND, LIBRARY OF.

LIGHTHOUSE OF IRAT: see IRAT.

LIGHTHOUSE OF KAVA: see KAVA.

LIGHTHOUSE OF LAHKEL: see LAHKEL^(2.).

LIGHTHOUSE OF LUTAN: see LUTAN.

LIGHTHOUSE OF NEON: see NEON.

LIGHTHOUSE OF NERIKA: see NERIKA.

LIGHTHOUSE OF PHAROLA: see PHAROLA (2.).

LIGHTHOUSE OF RALCZHET: see RALCZHET.

LIGHTHOUSE OF RUODONT: see RUODONT.

LIGHTHOUSE OF SEBHET: SEBHET.

LIGHTHOUSE OF SHURU: see SHURU(2.).

LIGHTHOUSE OF THAGOT: see THAGOT.

LIGHTHOUSE OF TIRZA: see $\underline{\text{TIRZA}}^{(4.)}$.

LIGHTHOUSE OF TLAROTH: see TLAROTH.

LIGHTHOUSE OF UNASTESEES: see UNASTESEES, LIGHTHOUSE OF.

LIGHTNING DESERT, the: see UTUARA.

LIGISH: Set. Settlement in the c south of the SARASTROAN colony of IPSISSIMA^(1.). Its main industry is the mining of SOULSTONES, for which the colony is famed (Pop. c. 8,000).

LIHATORR: Set. City in the c of MIRALUL (Pop. c. 38,000).

LIHEM: Sct. City in the c north west of the TEMPLAR STATES. It acts as a distribution point for the textiles and fabric industries of the surrounding area, moving goods east to the port of OMERA (Pop. c. 43,000).

LIJAMMIR: Mil. Str. Fortress-manufactory in the south east of PHYRR. Troops are trained here before being sent east to the NACRE WAR to fight against MAENMISTI forces.

LIILTH: also 'the Witches' City'. Set. Major city in the west of the HENDECARCHY of AONIA, in the west of MALAN. It is was once a hub of SHAMANISM and OCCULTISM, and though occultists still practice their art here the tradition has waned over the centuries (Pop. c. 175,000).

LILIAMOCH: also 'THE BLACK COAST'. Stretch of coast, 175-miles long, forming the north eastern shore of lake IAGANNATH in the c of the OLD FOREST, known for its black sands and, farther inland, the hexagonal basaltic pillars that make up cliffs leading to the western-face of the ERAECHON Ridge.

LILLAIA: Set. Fortified settlement in the south of PNESSA, in the region of SIMEANAGH. Its main industry is logging (Pop. c. 8,000).

LILLI: Rui. Ancient coastal city in the TRISKETHIAN DOMAINS that was abandoned in 1908 RM following years of extreme tides that eventually left it landlocked as the BAY OF DORRA diminished. The port of MELLAGO was established in its place 190-miles to the north east. The city is now a ruin, reclaimed by the land, its ancient engines and manufactories rusted beyond recognition.

LILLIA: Set. Coastal city in the south east of SEDALLIA, overlooking a shallow lagoon that is linked to the far east of the SEA OF AKRY. It is a major stop along the EGETAKHAN ROAD (Pop. c. 62,000).

LILLITU: Leg. Myt. Sup. Ancient vampiric spirits in what is now the empty region of KERELLIT in the south east of ELALLIA. Local legends claim that the region was once populated but the people were slowly whittled down by evil spirits that would bring disease and death whenever they descended on the MATERIAL PLANE. The area is now shunned and the Lillitu are feared though outsiders doubt they are real, believing them to be creatures of myth and legend. The people of Elallia however swear that the lillitu are real, with some local scholars claiming they are manifestations of the ATRAMENTA, possibly comparable to the SHADES of KHARKHARADONTIS.

LILLOU: Set. Fortified city in the east of the BARRIER LANDS. The city is known for the baroque burial traditions of its rulers (Pop. c. 40,000).

LILO: Set. Fortified settlement in the north of VENTHIR. It lies along the course of the RED ROUTE and it emerged from a large caravanserai and is known for its expansive market (Pop. c. 4,000).

LILTH YGNOTH: Geo. Highland region in KHARKHARADONTIS; known for its cracked earth and intense purplish ATRAMENTAL forces seeping through from beneath the surface.

LILTHAOST: For. Expansive boreal forest that dominates the south of KASPIA. It is home to various nomadic groups of VISUNDS who claim at as their ancestral lands and prey on humans who venture too deep into its depths.

LIMAXON: also 'Kharkharadontid Slug'. Fau. Giant land slug relatively common in KHARKHARADONTIS, and resilient to ATRAMENTAL TAINT. Individuals grow throughout their life, and specimens have been encountered measuring over 20-ft. long. They feed on any organic matter they encounter and may even attack prone living prey. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LIMBAS: Set. City in the PRISON CARCERI, thought to lie somewhere beneath the Mountains of BAND, in the north of LLACHATUL, in the CHAMBER OF WOES. The city is composed of exiles, DEGENERATES and other diaspora of the sunless realm (Pop. Unknown).

LIMIEN: Set. Small city in the north west of PARTHIS, in the southern foothills of DUMACHA (Pop. c. 19,500).

LIMIN: Geo. Hexagonal basalt-field in the west of MECHABET.

LIMNAL: Oth. Common term in MENISCEA for OTHERWORLDER or HALFBLOOD, if there is no need for distinction.

LIMINAL SHORES, the: Mys. Sup. A transitional place between the MATERIAL PLANE and the OTHERWORLD, situated in the c east of AEONAS. GHOST sightings are common here, though the region is largely shunned by MORTALS, with few settlements situated within.

It is however visited by researchers of the otherworld, as well as ANIMISTS and other SHAPERS. Scholars studying the link between the Material Plane and the otherworld established a research station here in 3943 RM, where the GARROS-PISTOME HORIZON – a hypothesis where mortals might traverse from the Material Plane to the Otherworld through mundane means – is studied.

LIMOGEN: Set. City in the east of AZAZEM, leading to the EDEN NU pass across the OTHACHA Mountains into KORACHAN. Outside the city are many UMBRA refineries that process umbra piped from KAIRN in the north before piping east to TANTAL, in Korachan. It also lies along the course of the RED ROUTE, and many merchants take the opportunity to refuel their AMBULANTS here (Pop. c. 17,200).

LIMOTH: 1. Dem. 'Limothan'. Ntn. Independent nation in the east of EASTERN LLACHATUL, between THETIS in the west, the PANTHEON ISLES in the east, and TETHYSIA in the north. It is of a largely subtropical climate, with its southern-most coastlines lined in tropical forests, which give way to sparse woodlands in its c and dry scrubland in the rain shadow of the KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA Mountains in the far north. Though its coast is humid, its northern-most reaches rapidly become dry, but are prone to severe storms at the onset of Autumn, which lead to flooding and the inundation of the rivers of the VOTH Valley.

Its culture emerged along the fertile Voth Valley in c. 1400 RM from a largely nomadic ancestral people, who were themselves descended from the earlier HADEAN kingdom, which had collapsed by 1154 RM in the wake of the Iron Catastrophies. These nomads spread steadily from the Voth Valley to the west and east over the ensuing centuries and established a stronghold in the city of LIMOTH^(2.) (which would eventually lend its name to the surrounding region), which by c. 1500 RM came to be ruled by plutocrats.

Conflict with the GHAZHARID AUTOCRACY (in the present-day PANTHEON ISLES) dominated the early centuries of Limothan rule, ending with the downfall of the Ghazharid Autocracy in c. 1580 RM, allowing LIMOTH to expand, with a new capital established in the city of LIMOTHEA in c. 1820 RM. The rise in the west of the Kingdom of MINTHA necessitated a strong centralised leadership in Limoth, leading to the rise of its noble class and the eventual unification through marriage and other political wrangling of its noble families, leading to the rise of the LIMOTHAN DYNASTY, with the first King (DATHAE I) crowned in 2471 RM. This Dynasty would expand east over the coming centuries, establishing colonies in the Katobraghan archipelago, which were ultimately lost in 2825 RM to AGUBBRA ESCHA, who established the ESCHAN DYNASTY, which controls the Pantheon Isles to this day.

The Limothan monarchy was overthrown in the wake of its territorial losses, with a new PLUTOCRATIC REPUBLIC being established in 2829 RM. The new republic took a secularist stance and following a bloody religious civil war, worship of the so-called 'OLD GODS' was finally abolished in 2895 RM, with all traces of the old religion removed, and its few remaining worshippers fleeing north to the Kotha Icholligha Mountains.

The signing of the MYMEREAN ACCORDS in 2996 RM brought prosperity to the nations bordering the west of the KRYMEA and MYMEREA, with increased sea trade and relations between the member states. Though the withdrawal of TETHYSIA in 3523 RM led to a greater burden on Limoth. The pressures of almost single-handedly having to defend the Accords led to a faction within the Republic secretly working to undermine the government. It succeeded in electing a Supreme Leader in 3573 RM, who ratified the division of its territories into five EMIRATES⁽²⁾, which to this day are ruled by an EMIR⁽⁴⁾. Together the five Emirs form an electoral college to elect a new SUPREME LEADER.

Its people are hard-working and distrustful of large organised religions, following centuries of indoctrination. Extended families living together are the norm, though its larger cities are seeing a change to smaller nuclear family structures. There exists a social divide between the south, which is a more modern in its outlook, and the north, whose people are seen as backwards isolationists by their southern kin. There are few major cities in the north, by unnumbered small secluded settlements made up of rural folk who care rumoured to cling to the practices of the 'OLD RELIGION', which are outlawed in the south. The government has little desire in enforcing its laws in the north and generally leaves the region to self-rule. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Pol. Geo. One of five emirates of the SECULAR EMIRATES OF LIMOTH, located in the c south of the nation. It is also home to the capital city of LIMOTHEA⁽²⁾. It is the most densely populated state and is the heart of its agricultural industries, centred around the floodplains of the river Atrotha⁽¹⁾.

The other states are $\underline{DEITHO}^{(1.)}$, $\underline{NIMALO}^{(1.)}$, $\underline{OTHOTEL}^{(1.)}$, and UKOLIST.

3. Set. Small city in the c of LIMOTH, just south of the river ATROTHA⁽¹⁾. It was the capital of the first Limothan culture, appearing in c. 1380 RM, and becoming the most influential city in the area by c. 1463 RM. A change in the course of the river altered its fate, and it diminished following c. 1800 RM, and a new capital, called Limotha, was founded along the coast to the south. It remains today, though is of little consequence (Pop. c. 11,300).

LIMOTHAN: Lan. Primary language spoken in LIMOTH^(1.), originating in c. 1500 RM. It has much in common with the language of the HADEAN culture that predated the Limothan people who claimed its old territories, and used its alphabet, but the language has changed considerably since then, taking on many loan words from TETHYSIAN and NEMISHI.

LIMOTHAN DYNASTY: His. Soc. Pol. Org. Line of royal rulers of historical LIMOTH⁽¹⁾, which rose in 2471 RM, with the crowning of its first king DATHAE I. This followed decades of political machinations in the region that slowly unified its noble families via marriages, treaties and alliances until Dathae I achieved full hierarchical power.

His household ruled Limoth until 2829 RM, when political unrest following the loss of its eastern territories in the PANTHEON ISLES in 2825 RM led to a civil war that saw the entire royal family and line of succession persecuted, with many individuals, including queen ATHILIA II, executed by republican forces. A PLUTOCRATIC REPUBLIC was instated in place of the monarchy, which lasted until 3573 RM, collapsing after decades of almost single-handedly carrying the burden of the MYMEREAN ACCORDS, following TETHYSIAN withdrawal in 3523 RM. It was replaced by the SECULAR EMIRATES OF LIMOTH, which rules to this day.

LIMOTHEA: 1. Sea. Bay in the north west of THE CONSTELLATIONS, to the south of LIMOTH^(1.).

2. Pol. Set. Capital city in the emirate of LIMOTH⁽¹⁾, in LLACHATUL. It was founded in c. 1820 RM with the intent of being a new capital due to the waning of the pervious Limothan⁽²⁾ capital. It was originally a coastal city, with streets built in a grid pattern, and large fortresses facing north against potential land attack, it is now some miles from the coast, though remains linked to Elyden's seas through the course of the river TUTHA. It is known for its vast granaries and storage yards, where grains and legumes from farther north are stored before being exported (Pop. c. 268,000).

LIMOTHAN CHANNEL: Sca. Narrow strait in the east of LLACHATUL, that divides LIMOTH^(1.) in the west from the PANTHEON ISLES in the east.

LIN GOOL: His. Ntn. Early FIFTH AGE nation that dominated the west of EHRENISIAN COAST, in what are today the far north of the VESPERTINE LEAGUE, and the north west of KHULL, between c. -800 and c. 130 RM.

The nation was subjugated by the forces of the tyrant SONI-VAPHRA, which besieged its cities, taking control of them between c. 125 - 130 RM, after which the nation became a vassal, though it was officially dissolved in 338 RM, becoming a part of the THERASHIAN EMPIRE. This act would eventually see the culture and customs of Lin Gool disappear over the coming centuries, as they became supplanted by those of THERASH. See Vol III: Extinct States.

LIN-LII CYRIC, THE CORRUPTED: (B. 3932 RM) Pol. Ruler of UAMEKI, one the FIVE-AND-SIXTY FEUDAL STATES of. The state has, over the last 800 years or-so, been subjected to the subtle corrupting influence of the ATRAMENTA. This corruption is most apparent in the physical appearance of Lin-Lii, who, despite his malady strives to maintain the credibility of his state and fights the abjurations of his fellow feudal-lords.

LINA: Geo. Dry coastal-shelf in the south west of ELAT, in western-most LLACHATUL. The region was submerged until c. 1500 – 2000 RM and remnants of its now-bleached coastal flora remain there.

LINARIS: Pol. Soc. Tribe in the south of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. Its west, south and eastern borders are shared with the north east of PNESSA, and as such it maintains some degree of contact with the tropical nation.

LINCAUR: Rui. Blasted vine-encrusted tower in the mountains in the far north of WESTERN LARISH, its debris held aloft by FIRMAMENTAL forces, vines holding onto chunks of the ancient tower. The place is lifeless for miles around, but is rich in flora.

LINDA: Set. Settlement on the island of LINDESS in the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS (Pop. c. 11,200).

LINDESS: 1. Geo. Island off the western-coast of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS.

2. Set. City-fortress on the eponymous island^(1.). It is an industrial city and is famed for its typewriters, which are produced by HOUSE APAZETTO, and they are used across the INNER SEA REGION (Pop. c. 33,000).

LINEANDAR: Geo. Smooth rocks dominating the south western coast of AZAZEM for 160-miles. Though many claim it is the result of the diminishing of THE INNER SEA, scholars know that is not the case and that its smooth rocks are wind-carved.

LINEARCH: Int. Soc. Voc. Vocation and common pastime in IO, SALOROC, western SARASTRO and over the past decades increasingly in other parts of the LOW-EMPIRE, in which people attempt to trace their ancestry or the ancestry of their employers to an OTHERWORLDER. This could take one of two forms – either lineage to the otherworlder's MORTAL antecedent, with no links to their eventual rebirth as an otherworlder; or, more commonly, ancestry from the otherworlder itself, making their descendants HALFBLOODS.

The act of tracing such a lineage is difficult, far more so in the case of the former, and is only made possible through the diligent records of previous generations of linearchs who meticulously record any otherworlder sightings and who also travel extensively, interviewing people researching previous records. By their very nature, most otherworlders have at best a tenuous link to their mortal life, and most typically have no direct link other than what their rapidly degenerating memories may betray, and many otherworlders encountered upon the MATERIAL PLANE are centuries of millennia old, with no recollection whatsoever of their mortal life, making the last of tracing their mortal lineage tedious and largely thankless.

Those few linearchs who fulfil their dream of successfully tracing their bloodline to a mortal who later became an otherworlder lose themselves in the discovery and spend their lives attempting to chronicle the travels and exploits of the otherworlders. Fewer still meet the otherworlder, as they may be born on the other side of ELYDEN. At this point, those who are not already employed by the OFFICE OF LINEARCHS may be recruited, after which they will spend their days researching said otherworlder in an attempt to fill in as many blanks as possible.

LINEARCHS, OFFICE OF: Voc. Org. Extra-governmental organisation based in the city of BAESHA in IO, whose members are known as LINEARCHS. They spend their days cataloguing OTHERWORLDER sightings and listing their lineages – both OTHERWORLDLY and MORTAL – in a great directory – known as 'THE OTHERWORLDERS' LISTING' – that goes back millennia to c. 800 RM and which has been added to over the years as new discoveries are made.

The Office maintains branches in various region across ELYDEN, including the HIGH- and LOW-EMPIRES, PARTHIS, ALMAGEST, and other regions, in particular GÂTHA, whose large HALFBLOODED population is an asset in their search.

Office agents attempt to catalogue the lineages of as many otherworlders as possible, listing both their mortal and otherworldly bloodlines, and, in the case of the latter, the idiosyncrasies and abilities that their halfblooded progeny can be expected to show with each passing generation. When news of an otherworlder rebirth emerges the Office of Linearchs is quick to act on it, sending agents to investigate the event in the hopes of meeting the otherworlder itself, whose nascent form may yet remember details of its mortal life.

Their work is invaluable to civilisations across Elyden, though despite their diligent work, the linearchs' work is largely thankless, with most otherworlders remaining unidentified and even those whose lineages are traced remaining mysterious figures with large gaps in their histories.

LINHEN: Set. Major city in the far south west of RAONGEN (2.), just upstream of the mouth of the river GARAILI. It is a major port, and various vessels pass through its excise gates on the way to the capital, bringing all manner of goods to the city. It is also the centre of exports – with produce from across Raongen being moved to the city before being shipped to major ports across ELYDEN (Pop. c. 218,000).

LINTASOU: Set. Small city in the west of PARAIYA (Pop. c. 17,200).

LINTEA: Rui. Cyclopean ruins on the edge of the shelf of ISTHA in SOUTHERN SAMMAEA, overlooking the west of the SEA OF KRIHIEK. It is thought to have been a mausoleum, carved from the submerged rock millennia past by possibly MERILLS or another subaquatic race.

LINYOON: Set. City in the c south west of KREM. It is known as a centre of manufacturing (Pop. c. 40,000).

LIOMA: Rvr. Coastal wetlands in the c-south east of ELAT.

LION HERESIES, the: Pol. His. Civil war that shook the ancient NATHI KINGDOM that dominated the region surrounding the TORRENT OF KARROCK (encompassing what are now VENTHIR, the east of NARTHEL, east of SARASTRO, west of CUTH, and most of TZALLRACH and the lands that made up what is now the east of the DARK SEA and the BROKEN LANDS, which at the time was all land).

The Nathi kingdom was one of the first large civilisations to rise in the wake of the WAR OF SCOURGING that marked the end of the FOURTH AGE and the FADING that followed. The nation rose quickly, and dominated the shores of the IAPETAN and the Dark Sea, but the land became the target of a charismatic self-professed 'Lion Prophet' in c. -300 RM, who created a schism in the kingdom, empowering slaves and serfs, which revolted in the north. This led to a powerful civil war now known as the Lion Heresies, which eventually caused the shattering of NATH in -190 RM. The nations of VENATH (now Venthir) and Tzallrach would eventually rise from its ruin.

LION KING, the: see LABAISINGH THE STRONG.

LION'S MAW, the: Mil. Str. Fortress carved from the pinkish granite of a natural mesa in BA'AKH overlooking the strait between the SEA OF ETHA and the DAARKEN GULE. The Lion's Maw area was settled as far back as c. -1500 RM, when ASADEAN slaves fleeing the LACER ENCLAVES in the SHIBOTHA Mountain settled the caves of the region. The caverndwelling culture that emerged there had largely died out by c. -1400 RM, their descendants instead populating the region around the mesa known now as the Lion's Maw. Over the next centuries they hollowed out the mesa, adding intricate citadels to it later, though the people are thought to have disappeared around the same time that SVATHI migrations south from AMNATH began arriving in the region in c. -1250 RM.

The Maw is riddled with hewn passages and chambers, and part of it now serves a monastery to the UNDYING MACHINE. It is famous amongst the literati for the ancient bas-carvings known as the ASADEAN MURALS that depict what is interpreted to be the Undying Machine and the LEADEN THRONE, some almost 1,400-years before the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR constructed the throne in DAEKYN.

In 446 RM the empty passages were appropriated by a knightly order; an offshoot of the ADUMBRAESKI of Ba'akh who combatted abuse of the ATRAMENTA from the fortress they built there.

LIONHOME: Lan. Soc. Common name for TZALLRACH (native name CHAR MÂTHI) in LLACHATULI lands outside of the KORACHANI EMPIRE. The name honours of the lands' strong history with lions and its heavy use of leonine iconography in its art, though is considered derogatory by most Tzallrachi.

LIONHUNT: Soc. COMING-OF-AGE RITUAL in TZALLRACH, where young men would traditionally leave their tribe and spend a week in the wild. Together, they would hunt a lion to prove that they can work together and serve their tribe. As numbers of wild lions have dwindled in the region this tradition has fallen out of favour, and has been replaced by a longer trek that teaches self-sufficiency, and cooperation. The trek ends with the hunt of a large herbivore, which will feed them for the return home.

LIORA DATHEN: f. Pol. Edu. Per. (B. 3955 RM) Prominent educator and polymath, and currently chair of the COUNCIL OF MERIT, the governing body of KEPHUAAN.

LIORNIS: Pol. Soc. Ind. PATRICIAN HOUSE with a large presence in financial institutions across the INNER SEA REGION. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

LIOT: Rui. Ancient city in what is now the west of IO, thought to date back to the earliest days of mortal dominance in ELYDEN, possibly as far back as the SECOND AGE. Little remains now of the ancient city and what ruins can protrude from the earth have been stripped of any echo of civilisation or culture.

LIP OF ALLIS: Geo. Rocky feature in the west of the ILLIGARHI Mountains, in TEMUIA, west of the GREATTOWN of VALGHAR.

LIR: Rui. ENAELLISH ruins in the east of extant LOEGRESS^(1.). The settlement was abandoned in c. 2710 RM following the BATTLE FOR BRYNFAEL after Enaellon was absorbed by Loegress and shifting interior trade routes left the settlement isolated. Its shell has been largely reclaimed by nature and little remains now of its structures save vine-strangled foundations and moss-covered arches.

LIRACHAN: Ind. Set. MANUFACTORY settlement in the south of SUMA'YA^(1.) specialising in the production of food and DROSS that's pumped east to the capital in Suma'ya $^{(2)}$. The settlement was once one of the largest cities in KORACHANI-controlled BA'AKH, though dwindled in size following a large earthquake there in 2699 RM. It was abandoned fully following the DOMNITORS' departure in 3097 RM, though was repopulated in 3326 RM, its only manufactories restored to working use. Today it forms a part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 10,000).

LIRAET: Pol. Set. The capital of TARTAK since 2064 RM, following a decade of strife after the abandonment of SHER in 2053 RM. Liraet was a small town that began to receive many refugees from across Tartak following the corruption of its land due to the ATRAMENTA and the poisoning of the river KHARAD. This was due to its waters, fed by the river LLIRA, remaining pure. It steadily grew over the years until it became the largest city in Tartak and the centre of its great temple tradition, which was culled in the wake of Parthisan subjugation in 2032 RM.

Today it is home to the Parthisan administration — a sprawling conurbation made up of the residences of governors and diplomats at the centre of which is the great hall from which Parthisan administrators rule the vassal state.

In 3772 RM the city was successfully linked to the city of \underline{VRENA} via the complicated technarcane engine known as the $\underline{SPATIAL}$ GATEWAY, and within a few decades mortals were able to use it for near-instantaneous travel between the two settlements, revolutionising travel and trade between the parent state and Tartak. It also forms a major stop along the \underline{SALT} ROAD, serving as the last major city before the route continues west into the Free Land of TRINITANIA^(1.) (Pop. c. 1,800,000).

LIRAM: Set. City in the east of VENTHIR, north of the SHANA Highlands⁽²⁾, along the banks of the river HESAS. It is home to a major CHAPTER⁽²⁾ of the WHITE LEAGUE (Pop. c. 18,200).

LIRAQAM: Geo. Rocky mountains in the north of PNESSA, east of the TATRASAN Mountains and the border with RHINOCOLOURA. The mountains are noted for their crumbly surface and loose boulders.

LIRIN: Set. Fortified city in the c south west of ESHIR^(2.), to the south of river GHATA. It was the stronghold of the FARISÛN kindred and later became the centre of the ancient ASSERIAN culture from which Eshir would later emerge, and was for many centuries home to a prized GODSTONE, which was responsible for the unification of the various kindred states of Asseer under the banner of DRERLLATAR FARISÛN in c. 1620 RM. The city prospered under his control, becoming rich by taxing its vassal cities. An intricate system of fortifications, bastions and redoubts were erected around the city, and a well-trained cadre of ATRAMENTIST—paladins were entrusted with its defence.

Following his assassination in 2175 RM and the eventual loss of the godstone, Lirin experienced a time of waning, with its fortresses falling into disrepair. It remains a thriving city today, though it never regained the heights of its time as throne city of Asseer. Today it is a major producer of ADI BIEL (Pop. c. 33,000).

LIRREI: Set. Settlement in the north of the TEMPLAR STATES, in the region of AVVIRAM. Its main industry is agriculture, specifically the growing of the TSAMMA plant. It has a long history, and dated back at least 2500 years, when it originated as a fishing village, though it is now many miles from the present coastline, due to the lowering of sea levels (Pop. c. 4,700).

LIRUNGA: Set. Settlement in the west of RHEA, known for its aluminium mines, which are the main industry of the nation (Pop. c. 5,000).

LISA: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the far south east of LYRIDIA. The fortress has grown since the encroachment north of TAMARAN territories and now serves as a hub to troops who main task is now to provide safe passage to the many merchants that travel north into eastern Lyridia along the western-most reaches of the GREAT ROAD.

LISASSA: Sea. Sea dividing the KORACHANI PENINSULA from PELASGOS.
Though largely sterile, some regions, particularly along the eastern coast of Korachan still support marine life.

LISC: Int. Geo. Fantastical region in the east of OKKHAM, characterised by gigantic geometric stone and metal shapes, as though they were dropped from a height and allowed to rest for millennia. Today many are weathered and collapsed, and all are overgrown, in many cases with dozens of feet of earth and soil above them, above which are trees and epiphytes obscuring cavern-like entrances to the negative spaces between the blocks.

The region is rife with wildlife, both flora and fauna though it is otherwise uninhabited by large mortal settlements.

Little is known of the origins of the region though it is largely unanimously accepted that it is the product of a DEMIURGE'S actions.

LISEDI: 1. Geo. Island off the western-coast of TZALLRACH. It is the western-most territory of Tzallrach.

2. Mil. Str. Island-fortress in the far west of TZALLRACH, guarding the waters of the SEA OF VENTA. It is the western-most inhabited area in Tzallrach.

LISITHAR: Rui. Abandoned KORACHANI nickel mine and refinery in the west of TARTAK, along the southern banks of the river KHARAD, abandoned in c 965 RM.

LISQI: Sec. Small city in the south of RAONGEN^(2.). It has the remains of ancient fortresses though these are antiquated and no longer of any use—indeed, most have been repurposed. Today, many people live in small structures that have been built into these old bastion walls, and various businesses are not located on the old ramparts. Its main industry is the cultivation of wyrdwort, which is used in funerary rites across Raongen, and fields of the herb surround the city for miles around (Pop. c. 13,800).

LISRA: Mil. Str. Hill fort in the c of PELASGOS that guards the capital of OCTIRA, 55-miles to its north west.

LISS: Rui. Buried city located in a fen in the north west of KHULL, thought to have been founded by witches in the early FIFTH AGE. It lies ruined today, rotting and abandoned, half eaten by the surrounding land.

LISSA: Rvr. River in the south west of ALLASAN, flowing for 300-miles west from sources in the south of the SOLON HIGHLANDS before emptying in the SEA OF AZAM.

LISSUS: Set. Fortified city in the south of ALLASAN, along the course of the river LISSA, 50-miles from the coast. It is one of the oldest permanently settled places known. Its history goes back to at least -2000 RM, where it was a coastal city and satellite of a larger, now ruined citystate, SITHIA. Today it is far from the coast but it forms a part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 33,500).

LISTRAN: Set. Coastal settlement on the island of ESTHET in the west of the MAIDEN ISLES (Pop. c. 5,000).

LITACZH AESAMAY: Geo. The south western-most coastline of OKKHAM, overlooking the SEA OF LETHEA. The coastline stretches for some 250-miles and is renowned for the algae that infest its waves and shore, glowing a deep purple. What little research that has been made into the nature of the algae has indicated the source of their natural luminescence is the amnesic waters of the Sea of Lethea.

LITANI: also 'the Ghost Mounts'. Geo. Rough mountain peak in the south of TZALLRACH, north of the HEBAT Mountains. It is base is known for its strange root stacks, created through wind erosion and the roots of long-dead dead plants that hold together pillars of soil, after which ancient Tzallrachi burial mounds are fashioned.

LITARGIS: Alc. Set. Settlement in the south west of SKAROS. Once coastal, now land-locked for 2-miles, the settlement was once a major centre of ALCHEMICAL research in the early days of the FIFITH AGE and is thought to have been built over the ruins of a far older FOURTH AGE alchemical college. It remains a presence of Skarosian alchemy to this day (Pop. c. 3,900).

LITAVIE: Set. Settlement in the c of KOMMEA, between the AREDUINN forest in the north and the ALUSIDAE plains in the south (Pop. c. 6,000).

LITERATI: Sing. 'Literato'. Edu. Soc. Rnk. Learned folk, scholars, academics and intellectuals of the KORACHANI EMPIRE and other regions around the INNER SEA. Though the unschooled slaves and HELOT masses make up the vast majority of the imperial population (c. 90%), those that are born into PATRICIAN families or who overcome the odds and work their way up from the filth of common life may be considered Literati, depending on their vocation – for instance; a helot who runs errands for a scribe may, over the years, learn to read and write, and if conscious enough of the workings of freedom, may save enough bits to buy himself out of employment. Though a literate FREEMAN, he would not be considered a literato unless he later becomes a scholar or sage.

LITH: Set. Settlement in the far north of LLACHATUL, forming part of a loosely allied people who populate the region around the northern POLAR CIRCLE in THE VORANDINE (Pop. c. 5,800).

LITHIC PERIOD: Pol. His. Period in the history of IO, between c. -500 – 128 RM. it is characterised by troglodyte settlements, its people were ruled by a caste of mystics known as DIAKONIKS.

LITHIST: Sup. Rnk. SPHERE of FIRMAMENTISM. Such SHAPERS have mastery over the earth and rocks. See Vol IV: the Materia Omna.

LITHOGLYPH: Art. Soc. form of stone art, akin to hieroglyphs though more elaborate and artistic, found in the east of THE OLD FOREST, and in the west of VÂRR. It is descended from early FIFTH AGE neolithic cultures, usually found in caves or standing stones.

LITHOZOA: also 'stone jellyfish'. Fau. Floating jellyfish-like creature, native and tethered to lands in MENISCEA where gravity has been altered by the FIRMAMENT. Their bodies are adapted to this phenomenon and float in the air. Their heads are calcified and lack the pulsating motion of their seaborne, though they possess long slender fleshy tendrils covered in a sticky substance that's used to trap insects and, in some cases, even small birds that are slowly digested. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life

LITHRAS: Set. Small fortified settlement in the north of the tribe of TATRAS, in the c south of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 4,000).

LITHUROVEA: For. Expansive area of lush rainforest dominating the southern coastline of LIMOTH(1.). The rainforest has been whittled down over the millennia, and is less dense than it once was, though its overall area has not been greatly impacted through conservation efforts and 'ethical' logging, though the increased sparsity of its tree-cover has resulted in settlements and workers encountering various fauna that would otherwise have only been rarely encountered.

LITHODONT: Sup. Geo. Gigantic teeth-like formations that are common in the region of LITHODONTEA and, less commonly, in other FIRMAMENTALLY TAINTED regions in TULURKRYPH^(2.).

LITODONTHIL WASTES: also 'Lithodontea'. Int. Sup. Geo.

FIRMAMENTALLY TAINTED region in the c south west of MENISCEA, in the c west of TULURKRYPH^(2.), overlooking the northern-most reaches of the SEA OF IPERIA. It is famed amongst explorers for being a region similar to the FLAESCUS of KHARKHARADONTIS, yet inherently different, as one would expect of the FIRMAMENTAL HEMISPHERE.

It is most renowned for its sun-bleached rocks and bleached sandy landscape that is broken up by mesas made up of a porcelain-like stone that gives them the appearance of gigantic teeth, for that is what they are. These so-called LITHODONTS are tough but can be broken, and over time are prone to decay, growing dark and brittle, slowly eroding and emanating a foul stench that attracts vermin and scavengers. As old lithodonts crumble away, new ones are slowly pushed out from under ground over decades in an endless cycle. There is evidence that ancient mortals used the lithodonts as resources, but the Firmamental taint of the region is now too severe for anyone to spend any degree of time there without artificial or MAGICKAL protection.

There is no explanation for the strange growths, and the inimical atmosphere surrounding the region has prevented any major study or examination from taking place in the FIFTH AGE, though it is postulated that the region may lie atop a DREAMSCAPE of otherwise unknown nature.

LIVIAD: also 'Livyad. Ast. The fourth of seven known PLANETS orbiting the star SOR. Its mean orbital distance from Sor is 140,000,000-miles and has an estimated diameter of 9,200 miles.

It is considered the fourth of the INNER PLANETS. We have discovered much of this planet over the years through the use of aided FARSIGHT and powerful telescopes, including an atmosphere covered in vaporous clouds and a surface that is covered in continents and oceans, much like Elyden. It has one known satellite, TANA.

Some scholars believe that its atmosphere is capable of supporting MORTAL life and many astronomers, SHAPERS, and TECHNARCANISTS alike have dedicated their lives to studying this planet, with the hopes of one day being able to observe it from much closer. See Vol II: Planets and Satellites.

LIVIALEN: Cal. In the KORACHANI CALENDAR, the fourth month of twelve, comprising 30-days. It is named after the PLANET LIVIAD and is considered the first of three months of spring. See Vol II: Months and Lunar Cycle in Elyden.

LIVING NIGHTMARE: Rel. Dei. Deity worshipped by the people of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA (1.) between c. 500 – 1800 RM. The entire world and all its contents were considered the nightmare of this deity, which was otherwise utterly indifferent and uncaring of the denizens of the mortal plane, and whose purpose, if indeed it had one, was unknowable and wholly alien.

A schism within the cult after c. 1500 RM would eventually lead to its downfall and the rise of another religion that survives to this day as the main faith of the people of \underline{BANT} and $\underline{KULIGALA}$, known as the \underline{CHURCH} OF THE NEPHILIM. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

LIVING NIGHTMARE, CULT OF THE: Rel. Dre. Religion prevalent in the Carchemishi Peninsula(1.) between c. 500 - 1800 RM, and eventually superseded by the Church of the Nephilim. Members of the cult believed that Elyden and all of existence was the nightmare of a dying deity, and that mortals and all that they had created were just a part of that nightmare. They believed that there was no such thing as free-will, that all actions were just a minute part of the nightmare being played out, in a deterministic way.

DREAMSCAPES, then less common than they are today, were regarded as glimpses into the thoughts of the LIVING NIGHTMARE, who was otherwise regarded as unknowable. Fanatics of the cult would seek out such lands, sometimes travelling across Elyden in the hopes of gaining some form of insight or gnosis.

The emergence of the PHOBIAN WASTES in the far south east of KULIGALA in c. 1500 RM led to a schism within the cult, with many believing that the newly-emerged wastes were the Living Nightmare trying to make contact with the mortals. Others refuted this, claiming it was an overly-romanticized view of a deity that was utterly indifferent to mortals and wholly unknowable to them.

Many travelled to the wastes with the goal of subjugating themselves to its conditions in the hopes of receiving visions, which they interpreted as messages from the Living Nightmare. These would be disseminated across the Carchemishi peninsula, eventually becoming the backbone of a new religion that recategorised the Living Nightmare as a pantheon of ancient incorporeal beings known as the MEPHILIM. This new religion would eventually supplant the Cult of the Living Nightmare and by c. 1800 the latter would be regarded as extinct by most theologians. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

LIVING PSALMS: Flo. The trees of the FOREST OF PSALMS. The bark of these trees is carved with psalms from the BOOK OF RACHANAEL, serving as living prayers.

LIVYAD: see LIVIAD.

LIVYATHA: Rui. Ruin on the island of IANESS off the western-coast of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS. It was capital of the Free-Isles until an earthquake caused by MT. METHOSS destroyed it in 3708 RM, after which the capital was moved to HELLOS.

LIVYATHAN: Mil. Rnk. Class of warship active within the KORACHANI navy.

LIZASH: Geo. Uninhabited island around 70–miles off the southern coast of NAARETH.

LKONAL: Rel. Set. Temple-city in AHOPAH. It is known for its large stepped minareted temples with stepped causeway leading down coastal cliffs to water. In recent years the water's retreat has necessitated the restoration and construction of new stairs (Pop. c. 8,000).

LKOR: Sea. Deep narrow creek in the east of the HENDECARCHY of HATON in the north of MALAN, forming an extension of the BAY OF UROSA. The creek penetrates some 150-miles deep into the Hendecarchy, at the end of which now lies is the city of VALA⁽²⁾. The river METIGLEA empties into the creek.

LLACHATRA: 1. m. Myr. His. Per. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, a SCION and son of SHIBBOLETH and AVRAHAM, and halfbrother of ENNEI, after whom the continent of LLACHATUL is named. Little is now remembered of him, but the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN mentions him as a prodigious traveller who greatly enjoyed the company of MORTALKIND and is believed to have sired many dozens of children across Llachatul and beyond, many of whom, including *, are documented as having accompanied on many of his travels. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

2. Pol. Set. Capital of THE VORANDINE (Pop. c. 400,000).

LLACHATRAN: Lan. Language widely spoken in THE VORANDINE. It is a more recent language to appear in the region than the older ENARRENDI tongues, and is thought to be heavily influenced by RAONGEN⁽²⁾ as well as having taken on some technical KORACHANI words from colonists that failed to settle in the region in c. 1550 RM. Following the rise to power of the UNITED VORANDI COUNCIL, Llachatran was pushed as the only official language, with the older ENARRENDI tongues discouraged from being used in a bid to render them extinct. See Vol II: Languages.

LLACHATUL: Dem. 'Llachatuli', lit. 'land of the north'. Geo. One of four main continents in ELYDEN, named after the scion LLACHATRA, dominating the north of the NEAR HEMISPHERE. The continent is the second-largest in Elyden (after SAMMAEA) and is home the KORACHANI EMPIRE, RAONGEN⁽²⁾, GNOTH, MALAN, and the SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF ALMAGEST, amongst others. Alongside the north of SAMMAEA it is considered as the cradle of the civilised world in the FIFTH AGE OF MORTAL LIFE.

Llachatul is often divided into three by geographers — WESTERN LLACHATUL (also Gnothi Llachatul), CENTRAL LLACHATUL (also Korachani Llachatul), and EASTERN LLACHATUL (also Tethysian Llachatul), with the divisions occurring along the STRAIT OF SKAROS and the ARGENT Mountains respectively.

LLACHATUL, CENTRAL: also 'Central Llachatul'. Geo. So large is the continent of LLACHATUL that it is often divided in three subcontinents by geographers, WESTERN LLACHATUL, Korachani Llachatul and EASTERN LLACHATUL. Though the borders of these three divisions differ (geographers and politicians have different interpretations, for instances), Korachani Llachatul is most commonly considered to encompass nations that lie east of the STRAIT OF SKAROS and west of the ARGENT Mountains.

LLACHATUL, EASTERN: also 'Tethysian Llachatul'. Geo. So large is the continent of LLACHATUL that it is often divided in three subcontinents by geographers, WESTERN LLACHATUL, KORACHANI LLACHATUL and Eastern Llachatul. Though the borders of these three divisions differ (geographers and politicians have different interpretations, for instances), Eastern Llachatul is most commonly considered to encompass nations that lie east of the ARGENT Mountains.

LLACHATUL, WESTERN: also 'Gnothi Llachatul'. Geo. So large is the continent of LLACHATUL that it is often divided in three subcontinents by geographers, Western Llachatul, KORACHANI LLACHATUL and EASTERN LLACHATUL. Though the borders of these three divisions differ (geographers and politicians have different interpretations, for instances), Western Llachatul is most commonly considered to encompass nations that lie west of the STRAIT OF SKAROS and the SEA OF APHOTIS.

LLACHATULI DIVIDE: Geo. Continental divide dominating most of the south of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, this continental divide stretches from the far south west of the continent, for over 15,000-miles to the northern coast of the IAPETAN SEA.

LLAITORR: Set. Major coastal city in the west of ALBASSITA. It is home to a large monastery (Pop. c. 68,000).

LLAL: Set. City in the north east of AETHIOS, known for its many granite quarries. It has many master sculptors and stonemasons, who pass-on time-honoured methods and expertise to their children. Statues and carvings of their design find their way across Aethios and beyond (Pop. c. 16.500).

LLAMI: Geo. Cave-system in the c south of the Kritarchy of SERROK, with tunnels that lead to the PRISON CARCERI.

LLAT: Int. Rui. Expansive ruined city in the c north west of NASTAL⁽²⁾. It was a thriving metropolis and the capital of Nastal, its lush terraced gardens watered by the legendary CISTERNS OF CONSANIS, that were regarded as a wonder of MORTAL engineering. The city was destroyed in 3923 RM by the BASILEAN SHAPER KALLAIR PHAER who unleashed an uncontrolled blast through the LIGHT UNDYING that tore through the city like a monolithic explosion that is said to have lit the night sky like midday. The city was levelled, collapsing into its deep wells and cisterns, leaving a deep crater filled with fused glass and the debris and remnants of its once wondrous gardens and tiered tower blocks. The city's population at the time was over a million, almost all of which died in the tragedy, which left a horrible scar on the nations' collective memories, from which the nation is yet to recover.

Though some have proposed rebuilding the city or erecting a monument to the many who died there, it remains untouched to this day, an open wound on the surface of ELYDEN, the FIRMAMENTAL energies unleashed by Phaer still too strong for mortal life to survive there.

LLANA: Pol. Soc. Bus. PATRICIAN HOUSE with many UMBRA extraction plants across the KORACHANI EMPIRE, including PELASGOS and LYRIDIA DHAI, amongst others. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

LLAR: Mil. Str. Fortress in the far south of ERET^(2.), protecting its southern border with the BAKHRAN STATES.

LLARON: Set. Fortified city along the IVORY ROAD in the c north west of THE SURRACH. It is known for its large enamelled tin urns which are filled with water and used by the many caravans stopping there (Pop. c. 33.500).

LLAVA: Mil. Str. Fortress in the west of the TEMPLAR STATES, guarding the border west with KHULL. Most traffic between the two states passes under its wide double gates, which tax trade moving into its territories.

LLAZGQUR: Pol. Set. Capital city of ARERAQTH, in the far north east of EASTERN LLACHATUL. It has a huge footprint and is located along an area of badlands, with districts and structures occupying various mesas and formations, which are linked by many parge bridges. The highest mesas are reserved for temples, statues and homes to the rich, which are decorated with lush hanging gardens. The canyons and valleys between them are slums and homes to the lower classes. Its dominant feature is a statue of (Pop. c. 3,000,000).

LLCYSHIS: Geo. 75-mile-long depression in the north east of KHURAUR, close to the border with TARTAK. The whole region lays on DUSTSTONE foundation, resulting in many small sinkholes and slot canyons, of which this is by far the largest. The area is shunned.

LLIQUITH: Set. Major city and region in the north west of SAMMAEA, to the north west of the SANTOREAN Mountains. The lands it controls are rich in mineral ores and their main industries are mining and rearing of livestock (Pop. c. 120,000).

LLIRA: Rvr. River in TARTAK flowing south and then east for 455-miles from sources in the south of the HETHA Massif and the north of the Numanean Mountains, before meeting its parent, the river KHARAD. It is largely free of pollution or ATRAMENTAL TAINT, and is home to the WHITE FORTRESS of Tasalagor, headquarters of the WHITE LEAGUE. The land surrounding the rivers is densely populated with many settlements, mostly rural.

LLMAR: Set. City in the region of GOROR in the east of MULCIBER.

LLORTHA: Rvr. Large river, 550-miles long, flowing west from the EKALSCA Mountains in the east of LAASKHA. It is the longest river in Laaskha and also its least polluted. There are many small settlements along its banks, the largest of which is ALAAN.

LLURAN WASTES: Also 'Llura'. Geo. Badlands in the south of JURRAS⁽²⁾, bordering the north west of KARAKHAS and the north of KHURAUR. The region is largely uninhabited.

LLYIM: m. Sup. Pol. His. Per. (B. 3849 – D. 3951 RM) King of KOMMEA from 3883 RM. He was married to the DEMIGODESS (Daughter of the incumbent GOD-KING) SURHET of TETHYSIA in 3871 RM, cementing a political union between the two nations that had been decades in the making. His crowning of king marked the culmination of this period, with Kommea becoming a vassal of Tethysia.

LLYSHIS: Geo. Geological depression in the north of KHURAUR.

LO BARACH: Lake in the prefecture of $\underline{\text{TERECHANT}}^{(1)}$ in the c of $\underline{\text{HOLOLACH}}^{(1)}$, along the course of the river $\underline{\text{RUAVAR}}$.

LO FARRAVAN: Lak. Lake in the prefecture of SONTADRIS in the south of HOLOLACH^(L).

 $\underline{\text{LO HAIVAN}}$: Lake in the prefecture of $\underline{\text{SONTADRIS}}$ in the south of $\underline{\text{HOLOLACH}}^{(1.)}$.

LO HOLVAN: Lak. Lake in the prefecture of HOLICHRIS, in the c east of HOLOLACH^(1.). The lake is fed by the river HOLAVAR.

LO RATAR: Lak. Lake in the prefecture of HOLOLACH⁽²⁾ in the north of Hololach⁽¹⁾, along the course of the river FATAAR.

LO SAVAN: Geo. Salty endorheic lake in the c south of HOLOLACH^(1.), fed by the river SAMMAVAR. Some centuries ago, the lake was fed by more rivers, which allowed it to flow south west into the SEA OF MARDEN, though following the death of many of those tributaries, the flow of water was became too weak, and it became endorheic, ending far from the coast. Its shores are now lined in saline mud and saltpans which rises in summer.

 ${\color{red} \underline{LO}}$ STAR: Lake in the prefecture of ${\color{red} \underline{SONTADRIS}}$ in the south of ${\color{red} \underline{HOLOLACH}^{(L)}}.$

LO TARACH: Lake in the prefecture of TERECHANT^(1.) in the c of HOLOLACH^(1.), along the course of the river RUAVAR.

LO TRAVAN: Lak. Lake in the prefecture of SONTADRIS in the south of HOLOLACH^(1.).

LOAMMI; PROCONSUL OF BAMOTH: (B. 3891 RM) Oth. Sup. HALFBLOOD, FIRMAMENTIST overseer of the ALMAGESTI council of Patricians. He is disdainful of true mortals, though understands their worth.

LOANA: Pol. Set. Large city and capital of the kingdom of TOTER in the west of ELALLIA (Pop. c. 78,000).

LOBAHAN: Set. Settlement in the c south of Vârr (Pop. c. 8,100).

LOBKIR: Rvr. Major river dominating the west of NÁRTHEL, flowing for 620-miles from sources in the ZAQEN, UEFIR and NACHI Mountains into the STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL. Its course is situated close to many cities and settlements to whom its waters mean life.

LOCUM: PIr. 'locumn' Med. Rnk. Medics and surgeons of the KORACHANI EMPIRE. There are many subcategories, but most concern themselves with grafts and ORTHOSES. Very few care for the common ailments of the under-classes. Normal surgeons who do not concern themselves with the BIOMECHANICAL are called CHIRURGEONS and their patients are drawn almost exclusively from the ranks of the empire's patricians.

LODESTONE: Ele. Crystalline rock that is notable for its magnetic qualities, most common across MENISCEA as the Firmament has an effect in the formation of the stones. GÁTHA was once a centre for its excavation in LLACHATUL.

LODELITH: also 'airberg'. Sup. Geo. Floating mountains common across MENISCEA, particularly close to the TRUE MENISCUS.

LODGE OF THE FIRMAMENTIANS: see FIRMAMENTIAN, LODGE OF THE.

LOEGREAN LUGH: see LUGH, LOEGREAN.

LOEGRESS: 1. Dem 'Loegrean'. Ntn. Autocratic theocracy in the far north east of EASTERN LLACHATUL, situated between the nations ABATTUR, MEHITIEL, KOMMEA, HARITH, and TETHYSIA. It is of a temperate climate, with hot summers and cold winters with short bursts of intense rain, and is of rugged hills and rocky peaks divided by verdant valleys, plains and woodlands, with an undulating coastline dominated by the SEA OF AKRY.

It emerged from the culturally isolated region of PRAETTANIA in c. 2500 RM and has remained relatively isolated since then, drenched in its own myths and legends, paying little heed to the outside world beyond what trade its neighbours might provide.

It was an autocratic hereditary monarchy for over 500 years, from 2612 RM, following the rise to power of the warlord TORRVAN and his unification in 2588 RM of the territories of ENAELLON⁽²⁾, GLYNNED⁽²⁾, and MOTTANIA⁽²⁾; remaining so until the exile of king TRIDUAN in 3142 RM following the divine transmutation of his chief advisor and ARCHSHAPER into the OTHERWORLDER TAELLANNIR three years before. A cult of personality had rapidly grown around her and her followers, who came from all walks of life, began to decry the monarchy for falsely gatekeeping her ascent to living god-queen of Loegress. Sensing the political landscape would only worsen, king Triduan abdicated his position and signed a treaty to pre-emptively nullify any future claims to the throne by anyone of his bloodline. He oversaw the handing over of feudal lands to the new church – the ORDER OF THE TAELLANNIR – ensuring the nobility were not affected. After this he fled east with his family, into unstable lands following the rebellion that had overthrown the CUNOMAGLIAN tyrants over a century earlier. His granddaughter ARLEIE would go on to establish the nation of Kommea, becoming its first queen.

The enigmatic Taellannir has ruled since king Triduan's exile. Her whose unique transmutation from living MORTAL to glass-like otherworlder quickly saw her rise to status of living deity amongst her subjects. Loegress prospered under her aegis, though its people remained insular (some might say becoming increasingly-so over time), with an influential theocracy forming around the worship of the Taellannir.

In 3919 RM (the 777^{th} year of the Loegrean calendar) the Taellannir abandoned her duties and flew northeast across the Sea of Akry, never to be seen again. Her final words to her court were 'guide my people until the coming of the pale sun'. Some believe that she went north to the White Sheet, though to what purpose remains unguessed at. Expeditions are mounted there every three years to search for signs of her and to make offerings, but all attempts have thus far proven fruitless.

Since then, a line of elected HIEROPHANT regents has ruled in her stead, her AETHERIAL THRONE remaining empty until her expected return. Her people remain hopeful of her return, but as the centenary of her disappearance approaches, fewer and fewer people remain alive to remember her as she once was, and the fevered devotion with which people once worshipped her is also dying out.

The hierophants of Loegress have been close allies of neighbouring Abattur since c. 3920 RM. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Myt. Leg. Mythical land in PRAETTANIAN legend, after which the nation of LOEGRESS^(1.) was named following the unification of the territories of ENAELLON^(2.), GLYNNED^(2.), and MOTTANIA^(2.) in 2588 RM by the warlord (later king) TORRVAN.

COGOMAMUS: also 'Revenant'. Int. Sup. Fau. Rare vengeful spirit-beasts that manifest in areas of ELYDEN where the OVERLAY between the MATERIAL PLANE and the OTHERWORLD is strong that are formed from the SPIRITS (1.) of those who died amid great bloodshed, massacre and conflict. They are forever bound to that area through their shared tragedies where they slowly amalgamate into a singular bitter creature over centuries or millennia as their negative emotions fester, making the very land they haunt wretched and ill-fated.

They are often attributed with ONEIRIC mastery and are able to terrify nearby MORTALS in their dreams, leaving injuries and traumas that manifest on their physical bodies upon waking.

Various myths and legends surround the Logomamus, who go by many names in different places, and they are even mentioned in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, where they are referred to as revenants or varakolaks – both of which are restless spirits, sometimes of multiple individuals married together in one vengeful entity. Various passages of the Mythologia Elyden refer to the scion ALLUKAH as being the mistress to varakolaks, with power over them and the ability, should she desire, to put them to rest or agitate them. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LOGOAICA: His. Str. FOURTH AGE citadel in the south west of LOEGRESS^(1,), guarding a now-ruined bridge that once crossed the LOGAR canyon. Acting as capital of the citadel is a hand-polished LODELITH that hovers above the structure, its purpose, if any, unknown. the structure is now ruined, though the lodelith remains in place.

LOGON: 1. Geo. Mountain-range in the c north west of GNOTH, forming the south eastern-most part of the VAGNOSTAN Mountains. It's eastern face is peppered with ancient hewn temples, all ruined, predating the current Gnothi Republic.

2. See MT. LOGON.

LOGOSH: 1. Rvr. River in IO flowing west from the GHOLA Mountains for around 75-miles before emptying into the DAARKEN GULF. The city of ETHRA is built around its banks, around a mile from the coast.

- 2. Leg. Myt. One of two heroes in $\underline{KHARKHARADONTID}$ myth which together are said to have defeated the beast Kharkharadontis⁽²⁾.
- LOGOTHAN: Arc. Arc. Rui. Gigantic granite hand, half-buried in the south of the Wastes of VERMES in the south east of SHAZGIN. The hand is thought to be a remnant of a far larger colossus from ancient times.
- LOGRASH: Set. City in the c north of CHEIRA. Its main industry is the mining and refining of silver (Pop. c. 40,000).
- LOHIEL: Sec. City in the c north west of OSSIEL. It is a major stop along the EGETAKHAN ROAD (Pop. c. 72,000). *
- \underline{LOI} : Set. Settlement in the east of \underline{CUTH} . Its main industry is silver and lead mining (Pop. c. 5,000). *
- LOKERIM: Set. Major city in the north of the tribe of ORIM, in the far west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is located along the SALT ROAD and is known for its hostels and caravanserais (Pop. c. 54,500).
- LOMATHAA: Pol. His. Relatively short-lived human nation appearing in the middle of the FOURTH AGE OF MORTAL LIFE, in c. -6000 RM around the SALOROCAN peninsula in the present-day north west of Io. Little is known of the civilisation, largely due to the lack of physical remains attributed largely to the many millennia that span its height and the modern age.

The most complete evidence of these people is the ruin of SYMENIA⁽²⁾, which suggests that the people were largely insular and were to eventually disappear through the slavery of PLAGI, though the remnants of its people would eventually become the ancestors of the HAAGENI people who would populate Io and the CITADEL MOUNTS. See Vol III: Extinct States.

- LOMBIDRA: Set. Small city in the c west of SERROK, at the foot of the ASARODON Mountains (Pop. c. 14,000).
- LOMHARI: also 'Port-talk'. Lan. Trade tongue spoken by merchants and travellers across THE INNER SEA. It is a pidgin of Korachani and Sarastroan. See Vol II: Languages.
- LOMUN: Set. Settlement in the north of VAALK, south of the VORRUN hills located in a fertile region with soil nourished by silt carried north east from the river STORAGH. It is known for its earthy red wines (Pop. c. 1,000).
- LONAR: Pol. Soc. Fourth of the HENDECARCHIES of the FOREST KINGDOMS, located in the south west of MALAN. Its capital is the city of AGLABHA, and it is ruled by the HENDECARCH MIALAD.

It is very rugged and noted for its southern rocky slopes, known as the EGEAHAR. It is the most isolated of the Malani Kingdoms, and is shorn from other kingdoms by the MEMNID highlands. It has seen itself undergo a transition back to a more classical, somewhat feral existence, forgoing modern cultural ideal and structures, much to the consternation of the other Hendecarchies. It is known for its mounted warrior-caste and its ritualised attacks on KHAMID, that are conducted more for sport than any political or economic reasons.

- LONDRA: Set. City in the c of CHEIRA (Pop. unknown).
- LONGARLN: Geo. Expansive cavern-system in the south of THE OLD FOREST, along the western-face of the ETMECH'HAD Mountains. There are 3-known cave mouths, with the central one being the largest, known throughout the region for its wide gaping maw.
- LONGEVITY: Int. Med. Soc. Though ELYDEN itself is dying and the FIRMAMENT and ATRAMENTA often have a detrimental on health, instances of longevity are not uncommon, particularly amongst the ruling classes, OTHERWORLDERS and HALFBLOODS.

Some beings, such as otherworlders, SCIONS and halfbloods, tend to have lifespans far longer than those of mortals. Many otherworlders have lives that can be measured in millennia, rather than decades and unless killed can live eternally. Halfbloods are known to live centuries if not millennia, though they do die of old age. With each passing generation and the thinning of its otherworldly ancestors' blood, a halfblood will have a shorter lifespan, and being closer in physical appearance and character to the dominant mortal race in its ancestry.

Mortals born of unions between such creatures (children of scions, for instance) may find their lifespans prolonged in unique ways. More common are those who extend their lives through artificial means, such as drugs, ORTHOSES, SHAPING or TECHNARCANA. Such individuals can find themselves living lives measured in centuries rather than decades, though their humanity is often for saken as a result, as is touched upon in the $\underline{\mbox{ELLUNUR PARADOX}}.$

The effects of such long lives are difficult to quantify, though it is known that otherworlders and many halfbloods are melancholic creatures. It is not known, however if there is a correlation. Some who live so long seek out their descendants, many of which have no knowledge of their timeless ancestor, though being able to trace ones future relatives is no easy task.

- LONIA: Set. City in the west of SARASTRO, at the mouth of the BLACK RIVER. The city is relatively small due to the ATRAMENTAL TAINTED of the river water, through it maintains siphon engines to purify what it can (Pop. c. 19,000).
- LONIYAN: Set. Fortified city in the west of RAONGEN⁽²⁾. It is close to the border with THE VORANDINE and commonly trades with its people via the administrative fortress of JUIYA (Pop. c. 48,000).
- LOOSE KINGDOMS, the: see RHAMIA.
- LOQ TOO: Set. City in the c north west of CHEIRA, overlooking the border with GIBEAH. It is thought to be heavily militarised, though few details are known (Pop. unknown).
- LOQTUSH: Set. City in the north of the JAHADAT STATES, in the east of SAMMAEA, and capital of one of the twelve States (Pop. c. 50,000).
- LORAGHI: Geo. Mountain in the south west of AMMESH in the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula.
- LORAN: Rui. Abandoned overgrown city in the HENDECARCHY of STHAMAN, in MALAN, thought to date back to the SEITHALAN empire.
- LORD OF THE ACCORD: Pol. Rnk. Chairperson of the government of YSACYITHAIA, whose symbol and instrument of office is the SWORD OF PREPOTENCY.
- LORD-AGRICULTURALIST: Soc. Rnk. Caste in THAMAR from which the CAZHANS would emerge in c. 750 RM.
- LORD-AGRICULTURALIST SETAR MEN: His. Pol. Autocrat of TAMAR from -9 RM until 21 RM, where he was killed outside FULIGIA in eastern PELASGOS en route to KORACHAN, where he sought an audience with the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR.
- LORD PATERFAMILIA ANTITHEOS: (B. 2919 D. 3062 RM) Pol. Leader of the ALMAGESTI UNION who in 3014 RM signed the ALMAGESTI TREATY with the IMPERIAL HIGH CONSULITE, ending the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES. He became its first ruler, though organised the creation of the republic council, over which he became its consul.
- LORD ANAPAEST, THE FOUR-FINGERED: (B. 3949 RM) Pol. Despot of MYRA (capital of LYRIDIA) following the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR'S annexation of Lyridia in 4006 RM. He was a powerful SET and respected ARCHPATRICIAN, whose origins lie in MAKHARA, KORACHAN. His proud epithet is attributed to a genetic mutation that he makes no effort to conceal.
- LORD-CONSTELLAR: Pol. Rnk. Title used by the ruler of KOLCHIS since 3164 RM. The present Lord-Constellar is SEGUSIANA AMANTA.
- LORD-MASON: His. Pol. Soc. Rnk. In the early days of the CITADEL MOUNTS, the title bestowed upon the mason MONDL, whose construction of the High-towers was pivotal in defeating barbarian attacks in -1193 RM.
- LORD OF FANG AND CLAW, the: Myt. His. Common epithet by which the DEMIURGE ASHTERATH was once known.
- LORDS AND LADIES OF THE CABINET: Pol. Rnk. The five rulers of VALBAR⁽²⁾, who together form the government known as THE CABINET. The Lords and Ladies hail from the five states of Valbar with one honorary member, who typically serves as chairperson, hailing from ALMAGEST, occupying the 6th seat. Together, they serve a term of seven years, and an election is held to determine the new Lords and Ladies as well as a new location for the capital a few months before their term draws to an end

The current Lords and Ladies are: Lord Brouvid Sutt II, of Olbri^(1.); Lady Nomobel Risha, of Odarul^(1.); Lord Jalmour Fouca, of Ablatia^(1.); Lady Hordri of Elmiad, of Vedoter; Lady Bariarda Hozza, of Kigarad; and Archpatrician Siloeisia Eratramea, of Almagest, filling out the 6th seat.

LORDS OF THE MOUNTS: His. Pol. Rnk. The ruling council of the CITADEL MOUNTS, comprised of men and women from each of the nine main cities of the region, who together spoke on behalf of the people. Rising in the wake of the failed line of LORD-MASONS in c. -925 RM, history remembers the Lords of the Mounts as a just institution, largely enacting the will of the people as intended, though records relate that towards the end of its rule (under the shadow of KORACHANI invasion) the council faltered, with many members falling into corruption.

LORD'S PRAYER, the: Rel. The most ubiquitous and well-known prayer of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, which is uttered at the beginning and ends of masses and also by the faithful when praying alone. The Prayer goes thusly:

Our Lord, the Machine Undying, On His Throne of Lead; Our bodies, his mortal flock, In His cities great; Our bodies, our lame flesh, Under skies black: His hand, the guiding influence, Of our unworthy thoughts. By His grace do we live, By His grace do we thrive. His Will, the iron heart, Of our mighty homeland. By His grace do we survive, By His grace do we live, By His grace so we thrive, His providence, the source of life, Of our great cities. Rachanael, The Machine Undying.

This version of the prayer is abridged, with references to the Two-and-Twenty-Demiurges removed in c. 700 RM, and references to the original version excised, where possible, from records.

LORD OF PROPHECY: Myt. His. Common epithet by which the DEMIURGE S'HITH was once known.

LORDS TEMPORAL: see LEGIO EPHEMERA.

LORE, ORDER OF: Org. Group of loremasters based in the BROKEN
LANDS of KHAMID, that chronicles the passing of ages. Their knowledge spans the entirety of mortal life on ELYDEN, though none outside the order know of them. Its scholars are known as the CHRONICLERS OF
EPOCHS.

LOREH: Set. Fortified coastal city in the north east of SAELEH^(1.). It is known for its port, which is responsible for exporting most of the AHUREDH wine that is produced in the island-nation (Pop. c. 43,000).

LORESSA: Set. Fortified settlement in the south of the tribe of OURANASSA, in the far south west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 3,000).

LOROD: Set. One of 5 isolated self-sufficient city-states in the south of DURCHAA^(1.) whose people revere the so-called Dark Despair – an entity believed to be hidden in the darkest reaches of the MAW OF DORMORRO. They clash with rival cults, each of which is based in another city-state near the Maw, and has its own beliefs surrounding the Maw (Pop. c. 3,000).

LOSA: Set. Settlement in the far east of ABATTUR, in the region of VRESSELA. Its main industry is the mining of SUNSTONE, which are highly FIRMAMENTALLY-active, making their extraction extremely dangerous. The sunstones are refined in the manufactories of AINE⁽³⁾, to the west (Pop. c. 5,000).

LOSH: Lak. Endorheic lake in the Wastes of HEHABAAN in the west of THE SURRACH in north western SAMMAEA.

LOSHAYA: Set. Settlement in the c south west of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, in the middle of the tropical forest of ALLAHADAL. Its main industry is logging (Pop. c. 10,000).

LOSHIGH: Geo. Low mountain in the c of AMMESH in the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula.

LOSHKAL: Set. Small city in the south west of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, forming part of the IMYRI TRADE-ZONE. It has a relatively large SHIE population, which is distributed evenly across the various districts and classes (Pop. c. 18,000).

LOST ANCESTORS, the: also 'Norei'. His. Eth. In TEMUJAN history, BLOOD MOON-worshiping cannibals that were said to reside in the LONELY PEAK, often misidentified as ALMAS. They have since been hunted to near-extinction, though lone travellers moving under the light of the Blood Moon claim to see flitting shadows in the foothills of the Lonely Peak, leading to a widespread belief that the mountain is still populated by them.

LOST DEMESNE, the: also 'the Callow Hordes'. Pol. His. The remnant of the late 3rd millennium ALMAGESTI colony of AGNERIST, more commonly known as the CALLOW HORDES, located in the east of RAONGEN^(2.), in the north of Llachatul, north of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains. It was originally colonised by an alliance of PATRICIAN HOUSES and the Almagesti government, headed by House ARTIFEX in c. 2800 RM. The region was not as cold as today, and it was seen as a fruitful land in which to expand. Within a few decades it had become a major source of ore and other resources, and the land was turned to heavy industries as a result.

House Artifex became a major controlling power in the region, gaining great prestige, wealth, and influence. However, by c. 2900 RM a change in weather was noticed, with every winter becoming colder than the last, and snows and sub-zero temperatures were lasting longer and longer every year, making the extraction of raw materials costlier with every passing season. This, coupled with increased barbarian attacks along the peripheries of the colony's borders caused large tracts of land to be abandoned.

Following the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES, the newly-independent Almagest advanced north east into the VALBARAN PENINSULA, though at the same time it began struggling to maintain the colony of Agnerist as native aggression increased as the worsening climate pushed them south. The region was eventually abandoned in 3092 RM following decades of failed attempts at maintaining it.

Despite the abandonment, some – prospectors or freemen who had invested too much into the venture to leave – remained behind. Over the years they were either neutralised by the barbarians or mixed with natives and RAONGEN^(2.) migrants from the west. Others clung to the memory of the manufactories, ambulants, birthing vats and workhouses of Almagest and House Artifex, though their knowledge of these technologies has dwindled, becoming instead a twisted form of idolatry, where machinery is now revered as divine objects, not to be used but instead worshipped. Ancient mountain passes are now blocked by glaciers or otherwise rendered inaccessible, cutting off the region from its old parent.

In the millennium following its abandonment the region continued to regress, its people ignoring prospects for peaceful contact with neighbouring nations, instead becoming more insular, descending into what has become known as techno-barbarism. Only a few people – a caste known as MACHINE-MONKS – are actually allowed to operate the old manufactories and engines, though even so, their understanding of their operation, purpose and function has become skewed, warped by centuries of ignorance and blind idolatry.

Prior to their abandonment most of the Almagesti people left behind had been thralls and helots of House Artifex, and in their regression the people of the Lost Demesne forgot the true nature of their old rulers, and began worshipping them: its long-since dead patriarch becoming a deity and his direct family from the time of the colony's abandonment being elevated to the status of demigods.

Most people of the Lost Demesne are semi-nomadic, moving to where the weather allows them to live, largely unaware of the wealth of resources or the true technology that lies beneath the permafrost and ice of their home. Conflict between warbands is common, with scavenged and repurposed weapons and armour being used. A few groups with competent machine-monks may have access to run-down ambulants, giving them an edge in battle.

It is now thought that an outside power (possibly KORACHAN, SARASTRO or ALMAGEST itself) secretly supports a culture of internecine conflict amidst the disparate people of the Lost Demesne, preventing its people from rising above the shackles of their backward religion and ignorance, which is where the term Callow Hordes originated.

Today the Almagesti heritage and history of the region has been forgotten by all but the most learned of loremasters or the wariest of politicians and even its original name has been lost (thought expunged by a bitter Ahrishen who was unwilling to admit its loss) and the lands are known as the Lost Demesne, if indeed they are ever even referred to. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

LOST ONES, the: Soc. Ancestral race and culture in ANUBIA that is thought to have reached its cultural peak in c. – 1000 RM, leaving behind a legacy of dog-headed statues and buried tombs in the south west of the region, after which the present desert known as the DOG SEA is named.

The fate of the Lost Ones is unknown, but they disappeared in c. –200 RM, leaving in their wake the nomads of Anubia, from whom the present urban Anubian populace is descended. Many nomads of Anubia worship rogue MKISIHS from ATELIERS in the west of VENTHIR as descendants of the Lost Ones, which are referred to by others as MKISIH IDOLS.

LOST PHAR: Set. Settlement in the c north east of CHEIRA. Little is known of this city, as it is located in the KHEDRA valley, which has is isolated from outsiders (Pop. unknown).

LOSTIS: His. Edu. Str. Ancient library that was said to house all of MORTAL knowledge, from the time of the first mortals to the years leading to its demise, in the late FOURTH AGE. At this point in time the library's existence may even be apocryphal but many scholars cite that references to it appear in too many disparate places and times for it to be merely legend. Most place it somewhere in the greater SAMMAEAN continent, likely in a terrain or climate that is now inhospitable to mortal life. Perhaps the greatest evidence for the ancient library is the crossroads town of SANI, which possesses many millennia-old books, which are said by their keepers to have been rescued from Lostis during its last days. See Vol II: Legends and Folktales.

LOSTUTH: Lak. Lake in the north west of CHEIRA, forming a part of the flow of the far larger river YAHNOTH PHTHAN.

LOT: Rvr. River in the west of the HENDECARCHY of MYEIN in the west of MALAN that flows south and east for 280 miles, before meeting its parent, the river LAUL EGLEA.

LOTAN: Rvr. Major river in the west of SUOR, flowing for 745-miles south west into the BRINE SEA. it is the main river in Suor, and many of its cities and settlements lie along its banks.

LOTHAL: Geo. Rocky hills in the south east of the TARAHID ANNEXES.

LOTHYAN: Set. Settlement in the c east of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES. It is a major producer of firearms (Pop. c. 8,400).

LOTRA: Sect. Small settlement in the prefecture of SONTADRIS, in the far south of HOLOLACH^(1.) (Pop. c. 7,000).

LOTTRA SA: Geo. Cave system in the west of SKAROS, south of the NASSAGO escarpment. The caverns are old and snaking and likely far larger than [resent attempts at exploration have revealed.

LOUARA: Set. City in the north east of PARAIYA, along the course of the river DOKTANDIYA. It was taken by LIDEAN forces on the 22nd of RACHALEN 3705 RM during the WAR OF SUNDERING, becoming a major stronghold to Sarastroan forces, until it was retaken by Korachani forces moving up the SHIBBOLETH^(3.) months later (Pop. c. 39,000).

LOUDHA: Eth. SKAROSIAN and LAASKHAN nomads, descended from ancient LASCAR⁽²⁾ settlers. They move from town-to-town, making a living as tinkers, repairing things, collecting scrap to sell, and salvaging lead and other metals from discarded machinery. Small bands and families can be seen travelling lands east of the STRAIT OF SKAROS, and the SEA OF APHOTIS. See Vol II: Peoples and Races of Elyden.

LOUSA: Set. Settlement in the south of PARAIYA, in the region of BAAYN. Its main industry is animal husbandry (Pop. c. 5,300).

LOVER AND THE TREE, the: Leg. Fairy tale common in the c of LLACHATUL, particularly AZAZEM and LAASKHA, as well as BASSORAH⁽²⁾. It is likely a corruption of the passage from the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN concerning the DEMIURGES ACHAIAH and ASHTERATH. See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

LOVUNNA: Geo. The south westernmost part of the island of LATRAS in the north of the MAIDEN ISLES. The entire region is made of limestone and is known for its coastal caves and cenotes, which are home to a variety of flora and fauna. Locals free dive into the cenotes, spearing fish.

LOW-EMPIRE OF SARASTRO, the: see the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO.

LOW KORACHANI: see KORACHANI, LOW.

LOWER ALMAGEST: see ALMAGEST, LOWER.

LOWER CITIES, the: Soc. Geo. Term used within CEHOPHELA for the many rural cities in its central plains and valleys, whose people are considered to be the lowest class of free people in the empire. Despite their importance in producing food for the rest of the empire they are derided by most outsiders and regarded as pariahs.

LOZATHA: Set. Harbour-city in the north east of KARAKHAS 4-miles north west of the city of LOZOTHUS. The harbour appeared in c. 3200 RM following the retreat of the coast, leaving the city of Lozothus landlocked (Pop. c. 20,000).

LOZOTHUS: Set. Sprawling stone metropolis in the north east of KARAKHAS. It is situated along a main passage of the RED ROUTE, and offers mercantile, money changing and lodging services to the many travellers it sees (Pop. c. 385,000).

LPAAZASASHAT: also 'the Gods' Graveyard. Geo. Expansive desert wilderness and badlands dominating the c of SAMMAEA, located in the rain-shadow of the KARKARMIS and SHAKHURAN Mountains in the c north west of HOGGOTHA ISZ. In Sammaean myth, the region is believed to be the birthplace of the DEMIURGES and, as such is recognised as being the eldest-shaped part of ELYDEN.

The region's name is derived from the many gigantic bones and weathered ruins that pepper the region, most of which are inexplicable.

LRIR: Rui. Ruin in the west of BA'AKH. It was originally a DHAMATEAN settlement that appeared in c. -1000 RM, though by c. -700 RM it was facing regular attacks by LACER, which were being pushed south by CONTHIAN and DHEAN slave-raids and counter-attacks, respectively. By c. -600 RM the town was facing a long bloody war with the creatures, and it was finally abandoned to them in -586 RM. From there the lacer settled the abandoned city of Dhamatea by c. -550 RM and used the strongholds to harry Dhamatean trade. The DHAMATEANS brought their armies against Lrir, winning back the two cities by c. -510 RM, at which point it was resettled, though a massive outbreak of ATRAMENTAL TAINT in -491 RM left the city diseased and corrupted, and it was finally abandoned in c. -450 RM.

LRITHA: Sea. Bay in the south west of SAMMAEA off the southern coast of ADHERA and the north western coast of METHUMN. It forms the easternmost part of the SEA OF MERCUVIA.

LUADINE: Set. Major city in the c south of the VESPERTINE LEAGUE, along the north western shore of lake NASTAL^(1.) (Pop. c. 108,000).

LUANILTH: Ind. Set. Major MANUFACTORY city in the c-south east of SYNCHTHONITHA. It is expansive and the foundations of all its structures are partially hewn from the pink hardstone of the region, with many industrial buildings having sprawling vaults and subterranean (Pop. c. 340,000).

LUASSRA: Set. Settlement in the south west of SERROK, at the fertile delta of the river BEREKODRA. It is a major producer of rice and legumes (Pop. c. 2,400).

LUBANA: Geo. Cavern in the south west of NÁRTHEL, forming part of the greater YGGDARASA system of caverns.

LUCAENUS MANUFACTURING: Ind. Bus. Major manufacturer of POWDERGUNS and ammunition, based in the city of ELMIAD in VALBAR⁽²⁾, the company trades far east across the SEA OF POLARIS, with PERGOST, THANO, and CEHOPHELA, amongst others. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

LUCCITARIA: also 'the City of Light'. Ser. Capital of TZALLRACH, and one of few notable settlements in the region of KRISHTUL. It is situated on the steep hills east of the river BAELLI, though a considerable wooden stilt district has emerged to the west of the river over recent decades, where the majority of its farmers and fishers live. The city forms part of the trade-route known as the GREAT ROAD, and has three major markets where wares are sold and traded by foreign merchants (Pop. c. 950,000).

LUCH: Mil. Str. Large fortress in the south east of LOEGRESS^(1,), whose troops patrol the nations' sparsely-populated south east from foreign attention.

LUCID BEACONS: Drc. Tec. TECHNARCANE engines developed by the SOMNIARECHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION following its work in nullifying the ONEIRIC SCOURGE that wracked central VÂRR in 1305 RM. The beacons work similarly to syphon engines, though affect DREAMSCAPES instead of ATRAMENTAL TAINT. They safeguard regions that are susceptible to dreamscape activity, lessening the changes of new dreamscapes appearing and slowly nullifying the effects of existing dreamscapes, possibly even able to remove them completely over long spans of time.

LUCID DREAMS: see DREAMS, LUCID.

LUCID JEZAIL: sup. Tec. Wea. Rare TECHNARCANE weapons wielded by the militant members of the SOMNIARECHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, that are tailor-made to deal with ONEIROI (more commonly known as dream creatures), which they flense and eventually obliterate.

They typically take the form of advanced rifles, though larger varieties are made, rivalling more common artillery in size. These latter versions are used to bombard DREAMSCAPES to lessen their hold on the MATERIAL PLANE, eventually shrinking them in size.

LUCIDIA: Geo. Plains and pastures in the south west of RAONGEN (2.).

LUCINDOR: Fau. Hulking felids that live in the depths of the OCTHURAAN cavern-forest. They are incredibly strong jumpers and subdue their prey by raking them with their large clawed front paws. They are famed for their amber bioluminescent stripes, the brightness of which they can control. See Vol III: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

LUCULANT: also 'the Burning City'. Rui. Once thriving metropolis in the c of ATARAXIA that was abandoned in c 3890 RM following a disaster in its extensive coal-mines caused the mines to catch fire. The fire spread through fissures and caverns to the catacombs beneath the city, which were a repository for centuries-old mummies, causing the city to be evacuated. Part of the city collapsed in 3968 RM and the red glow of distant subterranean fires can be seen in the sinkhole. Destitute individuals are said to dwell in the ruins, scavenging for valuable items in the ruins.

LUDH: Set. City in the far north west of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT, overlooking the BAY OF QAM. Through various events over recent years, it has degenerated into a lawless place that has become forgotten by the government at large and has been self-ruling for the past 3-decades (Pop. c. 40,000).

LUDRON: Set. Fortified settlement in the PARTHISAN colony of VARTA^(1.), almost 108-miles south of the main city (Pop. c. 8,200).

LUGAL: 1. Pol. Rnk. Royal title in DYNASTIC SAOSTANA, in what is present-day SARASTRO and NÁRTHEL.

2. Pol. Puppet ruler before the rise of the KORACHANI EMPIRE in SARASTRO, under the sway of the SAOSHYANTS.

LUGATAN: Set. Major city in the c-south east of TEMUJA, along the course of the river AIHANE. It is a major stop along the GREAT ROAD trade-route, and is known for its hostels and caravanserais (Pop. c. 118.000).

LUGDCHAN: Set. City in the west of KORACHAN. It is an industrial centre and is home to eight major manufactories, and gang warfare between manufactory members is rife. The city lies along the banks of the river TURGLI, which is heavily polluted from chemical runoff from the manufactories (Pop. c. 160,000).

LUGEAS: Set. Settlement in the c south of TISARA, in the LHANA highlands. Its main industry is mining, specifically sulphur and gypsum, and two large pit mines surround the settlement (Pop. c. 6,000).

LUGENT: also 'the Weeping Forest'. For. Boreal forest in the north east of the VORANDINE, just to the south of the northern POLAR CIRCLE, and to the west of the lake TAHONG. It is known for its sap-weeping trees, which are the source of its unofficial name. The forest is mildly ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED, and much of the fauna that lives there is corrupted in some form. Those that live close to the forest are vigilant, and hunt its peripheries for the worst of aberrations.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{LEAST CONCERN}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}.$

LUGH: Cur. Common currency found in the north east of EASTERN
LLACHATUL, with various regions having their own versions, particularly in ABATTUR, LOEGRESS and TISARA. The word was first used in the first millennium RM of the FIFTH AGE in the region of PRAETTANIA and it was adopted by its descendant states following the region's collapse in c. 2450 RM. See Vol II: Currency and Coinage in Elyden.

LUGH, ABATTURI: Cur. Main currency used in the nation of ABATTURI. It has its roots in the LUGH of the earlier nation of PRAETTANIA. See Vol II: Currency and Coinage in Elyden.

LUGH, LOEGREAN: Cur. Main currency used in the nation of LOEGRESS. It has its roots in the LUGH of the earlier nation of PRAETTANIA. See Vol II: Currency and Coinage in Elyden.

LUGH, TISARAN: Cur. Main currency used in the nation of TISARA. It has its roots in the LUGH of the earlier nation of PRAETTANIA. See Vol II: Currency and Coinage in Elyden.

LUGHBRAEN: Rvr. River in the north west of KOMMEA, flowing south east for over 220-miles from sources in the VAELDRAN, CINDATH, and THUILOR Mountains, before meeting its parent, the river Goirath at lake ATHUIN.

LUGHRAÉN: Set. City in the east of KOMMEA, along the western shore of lake ETAINE^(1.) (Pop. c. 30,000).

LUHUQ TOO: Sect. Small fortified city in the north east of CHEIRA. It is thought to be a centre of military recruitment and training (Pop. c. 20,000).

LUKAEN: Geo. Expansive stone formations in the c south of SHOTHA known for their tall narrow stone pillars that once served as a border between Shotha and the now-conquered FAEAMUN.

LUKAS USHAR: (B. 3961 RM) Pol. ARCHPATRICIAN of HOUSE USHAR and first son of MARIUS USHAR.

LUKHRAN: Geo. Reef in the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA, between the SPHYNIA ITRUSH and the BAY OF LEPHET.

LUKKA: Set. Small city in the north of IZABAL (1.) (Pop. c. 8,500). *

LULABIAH: Set. Settlement in the south east of ZHARIAH^(2.). Its main industry is the cultivation of cotton, which is used in the textile industries in INGASAR and SALIAH (Pop. c. 6,700).

LULLABIES OF SARASTRO. Vol. Early FIFTH AGE book collecting folktales and mythologies from the post-FOURTH AGE Fading period in the east of the INNER SEA REGION.

Famously, some copies had an additional appendix detailing ancient deities and idols. These pages were excised from most surviving copies by religious and political authorities, though some extant copies are rumoured to still contain these pages, in which lie the secrets linked to the tales of the Demiurges, many of which are corrupted versions of parables and anecdotes from the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN. See Vol II: Books of Elyden.

LULLASAN: Set. Settlement in the c of ZHARIAH⁽²⁾. It is a trade centre and is home to a large caravanserai where travelling merchants stop while transporting wares across the nation (Pop. c. 7,500).

LUM: 1. Geo. Small island off the far south western coast of RAONGEN^(2.), in the far north of the ORAT. It lies close to the delta of the river GARAILI and is home to a large fortress^(2.) that guards the only way to reach the capital in GAVADA.

2. Mil. Str. Coastal fortress on the above island^(1.) guarding the delta of the river GARAILI into the capital in GAVADA. Ships stationed at the fort patrol the waters of the northern BAYOF ORAT and conduct random spot checks on passing ships to curtail smuggling and piracy.

LUMINAR SAIL: also 'solar sail'. Tec. Veh. A relatively common method of locomotion used in vessels in MENISCEA. They are made from PHOTOLITHS that have been hammered into a thin sheet of sun-sensitive metal that provide power to engines, allowing them to move. Sails are usually affixed to port and starboard sides of vehicles. These sails can be expanded or contracted through the use of rigging, allowing the vehicle to be steered by increasing and decreasing the power output, respectively.

They are most commonly seen on sea vessels, though are also common in air vessels in regions closer to the TRUE MENISCUS, where the ARCANE TEMPERS are more stable. Luminar sails are used on air vessels that do not make use of GRAVITIC WAVES (such as SKYSKIFFS) as their main form of propulsion and are coupled with lodeliths and other technologies to keep them airborne.

- LUMINARY: 1. Edu. Rnk. Respected librarian-scholars in TEMUJA.
 - 2. Pol. Rnk. Ruling title amongst members of the $\underline{\textsc{ORDER OF THE FLAMING}}$ ROSE.
 - 3. Mar. Rel. Rnk. Operatives within the EXECRATOR HOSTS of the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO. They have ascended farther along the Church hierarchy and are higher-ranking than other operatives, and serve as hunt leaders and the spiritual heart of the Hosts.
- LUNARCHY: Noun. 'Lunarch'. Mys. Rnk. A form of non-SHAPING

 MYSTICISM that draws energy from ELYDEN'S two moons ARAKHAMÉ and SIELLA. Much like shaping is divided into FIRMAMENTISM and ATRAMENTISM, lunarchs may draw upon one or both moons to power their acts. See Vol IV: Other Forms of Mysticism.

- LUNTEV: (B. 3597 D. 3669 RM) Edu. CEHOPHELAN polymath who is most famed for his 17-volume historical masterpiece "A NEW HISTORY OF ELYDEN" which was published posthumously in 3670 RM to much acclaim.
- LUQARAH: Geo. Wasted region in the c of NÁRTHEL where the majority of the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S open-cast mines were located. Nothing is left now but ruin and dust and the scars of ancient industries. It's not unknown for entrepreneuring family groups and gangs to appropriate some of the smaller mines from time-to-time, but few such endeavours last long.
- LUQI: Set. Settlement in the north west of MELAIS, in the north of AZAZEM. It is known for its many fortified farmsteads and chateaus and plentiful fields (Pop. c.8,000).
- LURA: 1. Ind. Set. Logging settlement in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of ALAMUT Wooden products such as furniture and ornaments are sold to merchants who pass through the settlement while en route along the GREAT ROAD, many of which later find themselves traded to other merchants, making their way south west along the RED ROUTE and other trade-routes (Pop. c. 6,000).
 - 2. Ind. Set. Expansive zinc mines in the north of the nation of ENITH. The mines, alongside those of MAURRA, once formed the major industry of the region, while it remained under KORACHANI control, and was in operation for over 400-years, being abandoned finally in c. 1420 RM after it was exhausted through over-exploitation. Today the open-cast mines remain, as a scar in the surface of the region.
- LURAIEL: 1. For. Sparse forest in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of ALAMUT.
 - 2. Pol. Duchy of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of ALAMUT. The duchy is dominated by the eponymous forest Luraiel and is a major logging centre in the Haréshk.
- LURION TED ASTERIS: m. Tec. Per. (B. 3859 RM) High-ranking member of the AIWAHAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, where he serves as an Excavator-general, often found at the forefront of expeditions and digs into hostile environments.

Asteris has led numerous successful expeditions into ancient ruins, including three separate forays into KHARKHARADONTIS. His second expedition there spent five seasons in the GHARUM desert, culminating in the discovery of the legendary MECHANISED COLOSSUS in 1900 RM, the secrets of which were researched over the next decades, leading to the rediscovery of archaic TECHNARCANE processes that were reverse engineered and employed by the Order.

His discovery remains one of the more significant archaeological and technarcane finds in the recent history of KORACHAN and Asteris was celebrated and commended for his efforts. Though he no longer works in the field, he remains at the forefront of technarcane research.

LURIUM: 1. Geo. Dry savannah and scrublands dominating the southern part of TZALLRACH. It is home to various flora and fauna.

- 2. Pol. One of the four $\underline{ONARCHIES}$ of $\underline{TZALLRACH}$, occupying its southern-most territories. The state capital is located in the city of $\underline{BALBETH}^{(2)}$.
- LURUHA: Set. Fortified city in the south east of TAHALL (Pop. c. 41,750).
- LUSA: Sea. Gulf off the western-coast of TZALLRACH, covering some 2,200-square miles. It is the mouth of the river BAELLI, and is known for its bountiful waters.
- LUSET: Mil. Str. Fort in the north west of PELASGOS, overlooking the SEA OF CYPRIA^(1.) and guarding the cities of CYPRIA^(3.) and OCTIRA from the sea.
- LUSIAVILLAR: Soc. Phil. Monastery in the south west of GNOTH, crowning the top of the hill of ELAMIZ. It is isolated and its monks refrain from contact with neighbouring settlements.
- LUSTHIS: Geo. Large area of dry scrubland in the south west of THE SURRACH, in the north of SAMMAEA. It is known in northern legends as the home of ancient artificer's workshops, that some accounts claim to be the place of origin of the IDOL OF RIDERA.
- LUTAN: Sea. Str. Lighthouse in the north of the KAZZARAN peninsula^(1.), overlooking the narrow straight between it and the island of GOZZA. It is built atop the remnants of a late FOURTH AGE ruin, and rumours abound of deep catacombs that link the mainland to the island.
- LUTEA: Set. City in ALMAGEST, noted for the vast network of catacombs and disused quarries beneath its streets (Pop. c. 41,000).
- LUTO: 1. Set. Once-prosperous trade-city in the north of LYRIDIA DHAI. Under the rule of the KORACHANI INTERREGES it was the main port and imperial entrance into Lyridia Dhai from the west, though following the decline of the Interreges it was allowed to dwindle, becoming little more than a port and ship-yard serving what vessels plied the waters of the PROPONTIS. By the time the Interreges left Lyridia Dhai in 3742 RM, the city was landlocked and is now around 5-miles from the coast.

At its height the city boasted close to half-a-million bodies, many of whom dwelt in ancestral caverns on the peripheries of the city. Now the old caverns lie empty, used as tombs and wasteyards by the city that survives, though a small harbour (known as LUTODO) remains along the coastline, moving essential trade to and from the city across the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 28,000).

- LUTODO: Set. Small harbour to the north of the city of LUTO in the north of LYRIDIA DHAI, linking the city with sea trade that's mostly run by house. It forms a part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 6,000).
- LUTRA: Set. Coastal settlement in the north of ANDILUTH. The settlement, like all other along its northern coast with the SEA OF BYSSOS is abandoned in winter months due to the massive storms that wrack the entire region, bringing waves as far inland as 75 miles (Pop. c. 6,000).
- LUVAOLOS: Ind. Set. City in the east of the TEMPLAR STATES. It is a major industrial city and an important part of the SOULSTONE trade, cleaning and refining soulstones mined in TRISKETHIA, before they find uses in the technarcane industries or exported (Pop. c. 48,000).
- LUVELL: (D. 1573 RM) Art. Deviant artist who was executed during the DEMIURGE RENAISSANCE for harbouring treasonous and heretical beliefs. His art, which until then was highly regarded was later reassessed and removed from various public spaces and destroyed. The painting known as THE ETERNAL RALLY was attributed to him, though there is no hard evidence supporting this.
- LUVI: Sea. Large bay in the c south east of LANTUA in the south of WESTERN MENISCEA. The capital city, OROTUAN is situated on a round promontory that dominates the bay.
- LWELLEN: Set. Settlement in the c of CALBIA^(1.), along the course of the river GOIRATH. Its main industry is agricultural, and it grows rice and legumes (Pop. c. 6,200).
- LYARES MADRANI: (B. 3973 RM) Pol. Present speaker of the island nation of SUCHARIIT.
- LYBAEC: Sup. For. Tainted bayou (more accurately the delta of the river ARESH^(2.)) comprising the northern-most part of the QORRIN^(1.) delta in western AHRISHEN, protruding into the SEA OF PYREA^(2.). The waters of Lybaec are mildly ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED. Its trees are twisted and gnarled and a thick fog lies heavily across the still waters of the region that renders the air around it difficult to breathe.

The region is categorised as LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

LYBAEC REDOUBT: Mil. Str. Korachani coastal fortification constructed in the QORRIN^(1.) delta between 1183 and 1191 RM as part of the FIRST WAR OF FAITH. It was abandoned in 1211 RM and has since been reclaimed by the growing delta of the river ARESH^(2.) where it has been allowed to rot.

LYBIC SANDS, the: Geo. Expansive area in the c north of NARTHEL, known for its iridescent sands and flood-carved canyons that have been dry for millennia. In the time of NARTHELI independence, the region was known as the Lybic Plains, and it was a fertile agricultural centre, though was harvested to barrenness by KORACHAN by c. 3600 RM. The creation of lake NACHAN by damming the river LOBKIR in 3690 RM worsened the situation, bringing the Lybic Sands farther west.

LYCEA: Rvr. River in the c of LYRIDIA, flowing north for 540-miles from the northern face of the KYTHI Mountains before meeting its parent, the river BINI.

LYCEUM: Edu. Pol. Soc. Main educational institutions within the cities of the Korachani empire. Most sizeable imperial cities are home to at least one Lyceum, where FREEMEN and PATRICIANS send their children to be educated. Though it is typically boys who are sent to the lyceums, girls are not unknown, particularly in the case of the first-born children of patricians, who are natural heirs to the HOUSE.

The lyceums teach reading and writing, arithmetic, history, and economics, amongst other lesser subjects, against a small fee paid per semester, which is considered a tax on education – part of this is taken by the empire, with the rest kept by the lyceum. Education typically lasts for five years, though there is no set starting age, so there can be a disparity of ages within the same classes.

An education, even a simple one provided by the lyceums, will be a great asset to free children as they come of age and seek their way in the world. Even the 'simple' ability to read and write sets such individuals apart from the hordes of illiterate SLAVES and HELOTS that populate the lower classes of imperial society. Those who are fluent in two or more tongues are virtually guaranteed a lifetime of work within the embassies and trade-houses that can be found in most cities. Those who develop a knack for mathematics may wind up working with the MINASTERIA OF TITHES or for merchant-houses or patricians, where they become book-keepers.

LYCEUM INTERREGNUM: Edu. Pol. Soc. The colleges and institution in which PATRICIANS elected to act as caretakers of nations and city's left behind by the empire were originally raised and taught. Located in the foothills of the SOLON HIGHLANDS in central MHAROKK overlooking the IPOTANE wastelands, the Lyceum was constructed in 374 RM following the placement of the first generation of the INTERREGES and DOMNITORS in LYRIDIA DHAI in 219 RM, the best of which would progress to that land and, later, others, as caretakers.

The fortress was attacked by KARAKHASID marauders in 3184 RM, resulting in a large battle with many of the students and their guards giving their lives defending the building. It remains in use to this day and is now fortified.

LYCTAR: Set. Coastal settlement on the c of the island of CYNCER^(1.) in the south of the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 6,800).

LYCTIAN: Geo. Reef in the north of the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA, in the south east of the SEA OF MERCUVIA.

LYCTON: Geo. series of islands and sandbars in the south east of the SHIBBOTHA ISLES, in the north of the CORAL BARONIES. Most of the islands originated as sandbars and atolls that grew in size, becoming connected as sea levels across ELYDEN dwindled over the past millennium.

LYCTUS: Pol. Soc. Ind. Industrialist PATRICIAN HOUSE that, alongside the houses of KYDOR, MELIA and HIMERAN, was a major political presence in TARATI^(1.), originating as a puppet of the governing body in c. 1100 RM and becoming part of the ruling TETRAN by c. 1300 RM. The Tetran was overthrown by dissidents called THE AVATARS in 3013 RM, with their leaders executed and their followers expelled from the small nation. The house remained active in KORACHAN and ALMAGEST following the fall of the Tetran. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

LYKEA: also 'the High city of Lykea'. Set. City in the north west of the HENDECARCHY of MYEIN, MALAN. The city is built atop the apex of an old crater, the old mostly-crumbled crater rim now serving as a natural wall some distance from the city proper. A heavily guarded tunnel leads into the city, the streets of which are heavily patrolled by the private forces of the HENDECARCH GALLATRIS EBUL. The city is governed by a council of nine elected nobles, each of which oversees a particular facet of city life and commands a retinue of administrators who enforce their laws with a harsh attitude (Pop. c. 120,000).

LYLEUS: (B. 2799 – D. ?) Car. KORACHANI explorer from SEDOS who explored the NACRE ROAD in southern SAMMAEA in 2816 RM.

LYMISA: Geo. Soc. Ancient BASSORAH^(1.) in the north west of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS. It is now a crossroads along the major trade-route known as the RED ROUTE, which passes through in the region.

LYNASHA: Sup. For. FIRMAMENTALLY INFLUENCED forest in the far south west of ACHAA^(2.), in the CHORHYST PHENOMENON. It is dense and unlike any other region of woodland in ELYDEN due to the effects of the FIRMAMENT, which cause gravity to warp. This means that trees grow in various directions, with some situated on gigantic Lodeliths, and other growing sideways out of cliffs. The region is shunned by the people of Achaa due to its instability, and it is guarded by a group of SHAPERS known as EXCUBANTS, who turn people away from the region as much as they ensure lodeliths do not drift towards more civilised lands.

Lynasha is thought to have been a religiously important place prior to the dominance of the Firmament over the region in the early FIFTH AGE, as the many ruined temples attest to. However, very few of them are intact and most are shattered due to the folding of the land under the sway of the Firmament.

LYNNAE: Sea. Temperate sea between the east of MENISCEA and the west of SAMMAEA. The sea is renowned for the floating LODELITHS that gather above its western waters, off the coast of CYAE. The lodeliths are ripped from the sea-floor by FIRMAMENTAL action, and remain in the air, drifting until they escape the area, at which point they crash down to the surface. It was considered one of the FIVE SEAS of the pirate lore of the FIVE SAILS.

LYNNAEAN CURRENT: Sea. Surface ocean current in the SEA OF
LYNNAE that flows north between EASTERN MENISCEA and WESTERN SAMMAEA, joining the WESTERN ERTHYDEAN CURRENT.

LYNNFAEL: Rvr. Major river in the north east of EASTERN LLACHATUL, flowing east for 1,270-miles from various sources, including the DONN and MIACH Mountains in LOEGRESS^(1.) and the KERVAI Mountains in HARITH, before meeting the coast at the north of the SEA OF UDANILLA. It serves as the main border between Loegress and Harith and there are only a few crossings – largely by choice – with the main one being in the fortress of MIDDIR, which serves as a political melting pot between the two nations.

LYPREA: Pol. Sct. Capital of LIEVTHRA. It is a stone city of ancient design, with intricate vaults and hand-hewn catacombs beneath it, and many of its larger buildings have foundations carved from the bedrock. It is ancient and is built atop the ruin of a major Fourth Age city, and is uniquely isolationist within Lievthra (Pop. unknown).

LYRA: Mil. Str. Major fortress and 60-mile-long wall guarding the border between J'THANA and SIRIPHAGOS, though much of the wall is now antiquated and in disrepair. It taxes trade west and east and is controlled by both nations.

LYRA SHAMON: also 'City of Refuge'. Set. City in the c of LYRIDIA, in the region of ESTIA. It is a prison settlement where those condemned by the WHITE ROBES are sent in exile. The city is isolated (the closest settlement of note is over 100-miles to the south), and heavily guarded against escape and though the residents are left to their own devices. Interestingly, a mockery of government has formed, and though crime remains common, the people there tend to live by a common code of honour that is largely respected (Pop. c. 5,100).

LYRADEA: 1. Geo. Plains in what is now the nation of LYRIDIA DHAI.

2. Oth. Ancient OTHERWORLDER and deity to an ancient culture native to what are today the north of LYRIDIA, south of AHRISHEN and the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOMS, that existed sometime during the FOURTH AGE. The descendants of her worshippers were known as LYRADEANS and moved south into the rising AMNATHI KINGDOM c. -2300 RM, where they became rulers and religious leaders. LYRADEA was a deity of wisdom and foresight and her followers were renowned for the white robes they wore (a trait that would survive in Lyridia centuries later, amongst its law enforcement), their congregations meeting in a great amphitheatre outside the city of AMNATH, where the rule of the Lyradean priestesses' sway was at its strongest. Their visions were the basis of many decisions made in the Amnathi kingdom, and it is said that the sundering of the kingdom into nine states and the rise of Lyridia from the roots of Amnath were known to them. The nation of Lyridia owes the roots of this deity's name, which became known as the name of the Amnathi state following the sundering of the Amnathi regions into nine states.

Though the worship of Lyradea dominated the rise of the Lyradean nation which had formed from Amnath and AMAYMON by c. -300 RM, the deity had fallen out of favour by c. -100 RM, being replaced, in most part by the mystical ABULIA and their caste of followers, the AUGURS; which rose around c. -200 - -125 RM as a cult that worshipped the mummified remains of the nine most potent of Lyradean seers that had been interred millennia past in the necropolis of AMYLR, some miles outside Amnath.

3. His. Ntn. Native name for the state of LYRIDIA. See Vol III: Extinct States. LYRADEAN: Lan. Language spoken in extant LYRIDIA. It is descended from the ancient FIFTH AGE language spoken by the people of the AMNATHI KINGDOM. See Vol II: Languages.

LYRADEANS: Pol. His. Soc. Descendants of the worshippers of the ancient and largely forsaken deity LYRADEA (2.) They are believed to have originated north of LYRIDIA, in what is now the south of AHRISHEN and south west of the HARÉSHK, from which they migrated south into the nascent AMNATHI KINGDOM c. -2300 RM, where they became its rulers and religious leaders. By c. -1200 RM they had divided into separate castes, forming a matriarchal society where women filled political, religious and mercantile positions and men dominated industry and crafts. Under their rule, AMNATH was allowed to flourish, expanding to dominate the region now occupied by the south of Lyridia and most of NÁRTHEL. Bringing their old faith with them, their abilities of farsight served Amnath well, though they could not prevent its fragmentation in -589 RM into nine states. They remained in control of the state that grew around the old capital of Amnath, overseeing its rise and eventual assimilation with AMAYMON, which by c. -300 led to the rise of the Lyradean nation and, subsequently, Lyridia.

Though they remained in control of Lyradea after its rise and expansion north, their numbers dwindled throughout the early days of the first millennium RM, and from their slow decline did the augurs of Lyridia rise. Though the worship of Lyradean goddess dominated the rise of eponymous nation, the deity had fallen out of favour by c. -100 RM, being replaced, in most part by the mystical ABULIA and their caste of followers, the AUGURS; which rose around c. -200 – -125 RM as a cult offshoot of the LYRADEANS that worshipped the mummified remains of the nine most potent of Lyradean seers.

LYRATH: Set. Rural community in the north east of LYRIDIA, in the CANNAM plains. Its main industry is farming and horse training and breeding (Pop. c. 10,000).

LYRCA: Set. City in the north west of LYRIDIA, known across THE INNER
SEA for its dog trainers and the REXCANIS breed that it trains into guard and attack dogs (Pop. c. 9,000).

LYRIDIA: Dem. 'Lyridian'. Ntn. Insular nation in the south of CENTRAL
LLACHATUL, north of the STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL. It is of a temperate climate, with cold wet winters and short mild summers.

Nestled between the tainted lands of AHOPSEH and the KYTHI, CARTIGA, and HARBIDA Mountains, dominating the plains of IBLIS, Lyridia is a strange land. Originally populated by cave-dwelling TROGLODYTES, its people today remain insular, only now embracing modern industries and technologies, with large swathes of the nation still living rural or troglodytic lives.

Lyridia is an ancient land, ruled by a Divine SIBYL – an accomplished SHAPER who has existed in different guises over many millennia. She rules on behalf of the NINE ABULIA – seers of unrivalled power who are kept in stasis within an amphitheatre-like TECHNARCANE engine. They are brought to life with a concoction of drugs, allowing the Sibyl and her augurs to interpret their DREAMS as prophecies. Nations have fallen and kings have risen to power and faltered on the strength of the Sibyls' words, which may be the reason for the region's apparent invulnerability.

The nation as it is known today emerged in 87 RM, after the KORACHANI annexation of its western territories, which later became known as LYRIDIA DHAI, Lyridia is one of few regions around the INNER SEA to remain wholly unconquered since its formation, making it a subject of various myths and legends, many of which have a kernel of truth to them.

Folktales from around the Inner Sea claim the Lyridian capital is made of gold, or that the Kythi Mountains, on whose spine the Abulia dream, lies on foundations of pure gold. This wealth is often considered the reason why Lyridians are xenophobic. Despite this wealth, many of its people dwell in caves and are subjects of draconian laws that are enforced by a vigilant white-robed policing force.

Little is known of its cities or their inner workings, other than that each settlement is ruled by an augur, who herself is a member of a great council that answers to the Sibyl. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

LYRIDIA DHAI: Nm. Nation in the south of CENTRAL LLACHATUL to the east of the SEA OF PROPONTIS. It is of a temperate climate, with cold wet winters and mild summers.

Lyridia Dhai was first claimed by KORACHANI armies in 87 RM who were attempting to subjugate LYRADEA (extant LYRIDIA) itself following their victories in NÁRTHEL. The forces of the ABULIA provided a dogged defence and the Korachani armies were only able to penetrate a few hundred mile east from its western coast, though were successful in keeping those lands, and divided the old nation, annexing its western lands, which became known as Lyridia Dhai.

Often used as a staging post for CRUSADES north into AHRISHEN, Lyridia Dhai became a militarized nation, particularly its north, where many military bases were erected.

Following the depletion of its natural resources, much of Lyridia Dhai was left to the INTERREGES in 1704 RM, with the north remaining an important military asset to Korachan, though it too would be abandoned to them by 2185 RM.

By then Lyridia Dhai was little more than a wasted wilderness, its disparate city-states forsaking the empire that had abandoned them. The INTERREGES learnt to rule in the absence of Korachan, which had all but forgotten about the region. Their line dwindled over many years and the death of the Arch-patrician Noluch in 2838 RM left a single Interreges in control – a tyrannical umbraphage whose influence was said to reach as far as RHAMIA and ARMAGH.

The city of VEPAR grew under his rule, and regions that had become autonomous were brought under his banner. By around 3000 RM, his influence was felt around all of Lyridia Dhai as a small web of trade stretching west and south.

His disappearance in 3742 RM ended the little vestige of Korachani influence that remained in Lyridia Dhai. Vepar was by then a metropolis, the only city of note in all of Lyridia Dhai. However, with the loss of its tyrant, the city would diminish, losing contact with many old allies. Contact with Rhamia and Ahrishen was lost by 3750 RM and the trade web dwindled, and by around 3800 RM, only the cities of TERARA, Vepar, and COTHON remained. Over the next 100 years, the three cities expanded in power, coming to an agreement that divided Lyridia Dhaian territories amongst themselves, with the Idol of MALICHAR OZHA recognised as a marker denoting the extent of their boundaries.

The Tripartite Union of Lyridia Dhai was first recognised in 3848 RM and remains the governing body of the three territories to this day. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

LYRIDIAN KER: Cur. Currency of LYRIDIA, minted under great protection in MYRA. It is only used internally, and has no presence outside of Lyridia. For foreign trade Lyridian merchants use KORACHANI BITS. See Vol II: Currency and Coinage in Elyden.

LYRLDRAN: Geo. Mountains in the north west of KOMMEA, forming a part of the greater HOLLOW COASTLINE chain.

LYRNAS: Set. Coastal city along the western coast of the BAKHRAN STATES, in north western SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 20,000).

LYRNICA: Geo. Island off the north western coast of SAMMAEA, west of the KORACHANI colony of TAVVARDA.

LYRSID: Wea. Katabatic winds in the c of KHARKHARADONTIS flowing south from c highlands, into the BORALAKH valley.

LYSANDRA MELIX: f. Per. (B. 3874 RM) High-ranking member of the MORÉHAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION. Coming from a rich family in CLOTHO, she is officially a High-Censor within the KORACHANI BUREAU OF CENSORS, she has been on loan to the Moréhan Order for most of her professional life.

She is renowned for her strict adherence to doctrine and her role in curtailing the expansion of the CHURCH OF THE DISCORDANT DEITY, and was instrumental in uncovering a hidden base in the city of DEOCHAN in 3935 RM. She was gravely injured during the attack storming it. Many believed she would die of her wounds, but she is apocryphally noted as having said 'I cannot die, I have much work to do', after which she commissioned the manufacture of a sophisticated TECHNARCANE rig into which she was interred. This not only kept her alive, but also prolonged her life, granting her greater mobility even as she approaches her 14th decade of life.

LYSARA: Set. City in the west of OD MEGINNAS. Its main industry is copper mining, and it has many foundries where copper is refined (Pop. c. 42,000).

LYSERITH ONÉSIMUS, SECOND OF THE ELEVEN: f. Pol. Per. (B. 3837 RM) Second of the HENDECARCHS of MALAN and ruler of the HENDECARCHY of STHAMAN. Her government is known as the FLOATING COURT, on account of that it is constantly in motion as part of a great caravan made up of thousands of followers, sycophants, courtiers, warriors, and advisors.

LYSIMACH: Set. Small city in the north of EREBETH (Pop. c. 19,200).

LYSINGR: Rvr. Major river whose many distributaries dominate the north of CYHLAGHARR. It flows north west for 525-miles from sources in RGWEROTHA Mountains and the ESCYRAD massif, before emptying in the BAY OF SCENEA.

LYSITEAS: Pol. Set. Capital of TETHYSIA. It rings the base of a great hill upon which stands the DAWN PALACE and the TEMPLE OF THE NEVERDYING (Pop. c. 250,000).

LYSSA: f. Myr. His. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, the daughter and SCION of the DEMIURGE VORROPOHAIAH and the scion TALLAS (son of NERGAAL). She is mother to twins VAMMATAR and VAM ATTAR, and at least one unnamed daughter.

Her mummified remains are worshiped as an idol by the people of QALMUTRA, in western TURCAR, whose influence is said to be corrupting them. It is said that many people in the region still carry the scionic blood of Lyssas daughter who remains unnamed in most accounts. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

LYTARAS: Set. Large coastal city in the west of CARNYNGA, situated at the mouth of the river MALMOR (Pop. c. 86,200).

LYTRASADRA: Int. Rui. Monolithic idol in the south east of LYRIDIA, built on a small peninsula in its SAMMAEAN territories, less than 10-miles from the border with TAMAR, jutting out into the BAY OF DETH (formerly the far east of the STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL).

The idol stands close to 180-feet tall and is partially hewn from the rock-face of its foundations, with the rest built from large blocks of granite quarried in TYRATH, over 200-miles west in c. 800 RM as a political statement to any travellers crossing the Strait of Nárthel. It was originally located on an island in the middle of the far east of the Strait, though the withdrawal of the sea in the region found it landlocked in c. 3250 RM. The idol takes the form of the ARCH ABULIA, her head raised to the havens, her arms gesturing to the lands beyond the strait. Though a wondrous structure, signs of neglect are clear to those looking upon it, and one of its arms broke off in a small earthquake in c 2100 RM and parts of it are cracked.

LYVAR: Set. Settlement in the c of KARGAMA. It is an unassuming settlement, covering few miles along the northern bank of the river TENELLA, though is infamous in regional history for being the site where a Dhekaari nomad was killed c. -890 RM, leading to a decade of conflict between the ancient ELITAGRI city-states and the nomads, ending in the genocide of the Dhekaari culture.

It is of little economical value and its amin industry is reed gathering (Pop. c. 4,200).

LYZEA: His. Town in the capital of KHADON in KORACHAN, famous throughout the first two millennia of the empire's existence for its nobles' college. It was razed in 2043 RM to accommodate extensions to the Imperial Palace complex.

LZASHAEM: Mil. Str. Expansive fortification erected by NOAVATUR in the south west of the LOWER DANOSOTH Mountains following its destroying of the NOAVATURI Trail in 1299 RM after the PRECEPTORS were overthrown by PATRICIANS seeking independence. Today it is abandoned and situated in the east of the KHARKHARADONTID wastes.

LZHUGUG: Int. Rui. Weathered monolith in the UNCLAIMED LANDS in the east of KASPIA, its singularity dwarfed by its immense size. Though a single rock, Lzhugug dominates the landscape for miles around, its sheer grey walls unassailable. The monolith was sacred to ancient people of what is now the Unclaimed Lands, though little of their cultures remain save faded wall-paintings and offering-totems.

M

M'JHABA: Ind. Set. Pumice mines in the west of N'RAKH (Pop. c. 6,300).

M'KORRO: Set. Slaver city in the west of N'RAKH. K'HAT travel west into the UMBRA SOKHAR and beyond in search of ETHERI slaves to take back into N'rakh (Pop. Unknown).

M'SADDA: Rui. Ruined N'RAKHI fortress in present-day BARATHEA^(1.). Its resin-silk walls are crumbled and overgrown with hardy semi-arid shrubs.

M'SADE: Set. Settlement in the c north west of N'RAKH (Pop. c. 13,200).

M'SATTRA'KH II: (B. 3958 RM) King, and one of three current rulers of the J'THANAN Triarchy.

M'SETTA: Set. Island-settlement in lake C'KHAMAR in the south of N'RAKH. It is known for its resinous silk produce, which is traded south with AMHAD in AETHIOS (Pop. c. 7,400).

MA'YUAMMEALLI: Geo. Series of around 1,200 granite pillars in the EPITRACHON Mountains in the c of THE OLD FOREST. It is unknown whether these are natural features or remnants of the time of creation, though their symmetry and obelisk-like formation have convinced scholars they are the latter.

MA-AHURA: Set. Settlement in the far north of TZALLRACH, in the southern foothills of the MASIKA Mountains. Its main industry is the quarrying of phosphate salts (Pop. c. 5,400).

MAA: Set. Small city in the c of the small state of TAL ZHAAN^(1.). Its people have been working copper for millennia and the city is renowned for its expert craftsmen, who are commissioned from across the SEA OF ORRIDA to construct wondrous copper statues (Pop. c. 17,800).

MAA GATTAR'S FORGE: Int. Rui. Leg. Arc. Ind. Ancient forge in the north of AQUARIIA, in the southern foothills of the NUNAKI^(1.) Mountains. It is thought to date back to the THIRD AGE, and is now corroded and calcified, its original purpose unknown. Some hewn chambers have been found beneath the forge, though they are largely caved in, anything they once contained of value either looted, hidden, or decayed beyond use or recognition. It is shunned by the people of Aquariia, though old legends do speak of it as being a gate to the underworld.

MAAD: 1. Geo. Island in the AMAARI WATERS in the south of Pergost, belonging to the MAADANI people.

2. Set. Main settlement on the eponymous island (Pop. 12,000).

MAADAN ISLES, the: Geo. Chain of over 100-islands in then of the AMAARI WATERS, south of the PERGOSTI peninsula, forming a submerged mountain-chain. The isles are home to a tribal people known as the MAADANI.

MAADANI: Dem. 'Maadani. Eth. Tribal people native to the MAADAN ISLES in the AMAARI WATERS, north of the SEA OF DAGGERS, considered by most to be a part of PERGOST. It is thought that the people of Pergost are descended from them and migrants from the south.

MAAEL: Set. Small coastal city in the north west of LIDEA, south of the mouth of the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 17.100).

MAALKAT: 1. Geo. Region of dense scrub and sparse forest in the far east of N'RAKH, north east of the pass of TAMAR ILLIDU. Its many caverns and hollows have, since human prehistory, been home to many AANTHA and their birthing goddess, Maalkat. Following ARKOSIAN (1.) revelations of the birthing pits in 995 RM the region became embroiled in a long period of warfare that saw aanth territories move east by 1150 RM, beyond lake C'DATA, which saw them grow in confidence in the region. By that time the region around Maalkat had become one of the most revered holy sites of aanth culture, and it grew rapidly following the appearance of the first pilgrims there in c. 1550 RM, as reported by AETHIOSI and Arkosian chroniclers. Since then, human supplicants of Maalkat from J'THANA as well as other lands have travelled there.

2. also 'the Queen's City'. Set. Largely subterranean AANTH city that emerged in c. 1600 RM following aanth pilgrimages to the birthing pits of TAMAR ILLIDU, where their birthing goddess MAALKAT was interred. The bulk of the city is located deep beneath the surface of the region, with potentially hundreds of thousands of aanth scuttling in its passages which are believed to converge with other pits in central N'RAKH. The only evidence of this great chaotic city are the scattered gossamer forts of their kind which guard its many entrances and a small fortified 'enclave' that serves as one of the few N'rakhi trade centres where select merchants of the Salt Road (mostly BARATHEAN(1.) and J'THANAN) are allowed to buy and sell certain wares (Pop. unknown).

3. Rel. Dei. The birthing goddess of the AANTH and chief divinity and ruler of N'RAKH and parts of J'THANA. Little is known of this entity, or even if the few legends to emerge from J'thana claiming that MAALKAT (often referred to as the Maalkat) is a living creature are real. It is commonly accepted (though largely unproven) that the deity is a being of mortal flesh; a corpulent creature that is some kind of primogenitor to the aanth race (and possibly, by extension a SCIONIC creature or OTHERWORLDER of sorts). The first modern human record of this creature emerges in 995 RM, when Arkosian explorers venturing into the pass of TAMAR ILLIDU revealed the birthing-pits of the goddess Maalkat, effectively bringing about a long period of conflict between the two regions. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MAALKOU: also 'City of the Prince'. Set. City in PARAIYA, along the banks of the river NOTHIYA and lake NOTHA, settled by the tribe of the ARENA. It is claimed to be the home of the ancestral prince of the Arena and is a place of pilgrimage to nomads of his tribe (Pop. c. 37,300).

MAAR: Rvr. River in in the prefecture of EROSENEA^(1.) in the north of HOLOLACH^(1.). The river flows for 305-miles from the SABASSOR Mountains to its parent, the river ALLAMAR.

MAARCH: Sec. City in the north of NAARETH. Originating in c. 2540 RM as an IMPERIAL port where raw materials gathered in Naareth could be shipped north to KORACHAN by the occupancy in Naareth, it remained a large city following imperial abandonment of the region in 2993 RM, though has diminished in size. It remains a centre of trade and is part of the \underline{EAST} ROAD (Pop. c. 72,000).

MAAT: 1. Set. Settlement in the south west of MECHABET, in the northern foothills of the DUMACHA Mountains. Its main industry is the mining of iron (Pop. c. 9,000).

2. Myt. Sup. His. In the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN and studies of the MATERIA OMNA, the so-called heart of the FIRMAMENT in the material plane, known better today as the TRUE MENISCUS. It is the c-most point of THE MENISCUS and is the closest thing to absolute light one can imagine and is the most inhospitable part of the Meniscus, comparable to the APOPHIS of the BLACK FOUNTAIN. See Vol IV: the Materia Omna.

MAATHLAT: Geo. Rocky, dry region in the north west of NAARETH, south of the SIRDAIRA highlands.

MAATHORA: Pol. Rnk. Ruling sect of HAZOR in the state of ERINAKH LAUR. They rose in c. 1830 RM and were responsible for the economic and military growth of Hazor, which in 2483 RM declared its independence from Erinakh Laur. They ruled the new nation of Hazor until they were ousted by the OTHERWORLDER NEANDER in 2965 RM.

MAATHYL: 1. Geo. Region in the c of ALAM BETHYL known for its plains and sparse woodlands. The area is unique for the higher-than average instances of STAR IELLY that appear there, leading to a cottage industry in the region, with collected samples being sold south for a not inconsiderable sum.

2. Set. Small city in the c south of ALAM BETHYL, in the south of the territory of $\underline{ESAUN}^{(1.)}$ (Pop. c. 17,000).

MAAVA: Sec. Settlement and province in the far north of KORACHAN, on the northern face of the RHAECHA Mountains, overlooking CHTHYRID. It is named after the MAAVANDA that were once common in the area (Pop. c. 6,800).

MAAVANDA: Fau. Bestial earth-giants native to lands north of THE INNER SEA, driven to the brink of extinction by the spread of FIFTH AGE civilizations and KORACHANI industrialisation between c. 1000 – 2000 RM.

Though all but destroyed in the wild, they are bred as slaves in captivity within CHTHYRID, where they are used as manual labourers within mines in the RHAECHA Mountains, though can also be found in scattered areas of CENTRAL LLACHATUL (particularly eastern ALMAGEST and SKAROS, and northern AZAZEM).

They are believed to be corrupted forms of GIGANRI. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life: Asicthain.

MA'AT, THE FLY: Rel. Myr. In the RELIGION AND MYSTICISM of TEMUJA, the TUTELARY SPIRIT of disease, PLAGUE and lepers. Those affected by the above offer him gifts so that they may be spared. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MABAN: Ele. A form of quartz used by BA'AKHI sorcerers during rituals. Its use has diminished with the advent of TECHNARCANA, though it is used as a focus in technarcane machinery.

MACAR: Set. City in the north east of PELASGOS. It has changed hands many times throughout history, and originated as an ancient COMMAGENE settlement before being taken by KORACHANI forces following their annexation of GERICIA (now Pelasgos), though its relative proximity to the VÂRRAN border means it has a diverse culture, and it is now a centre of trade between the two regions (Pop. c. 25,500).

MACATAT: Geo. Expansive valley in the west of KHARKHARADONTIS, stretching north east for over 1,000 miles from the eastern face of the ACHARKHARAN Mountains. The valley is uninhabited and ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED and riddled with duststone formations and caerns, most of which have been unexplored.

MACCABEAN CALENDAR: also 'the Korachani Calendar'. Cal. Calendar system devised by the scholar MACCABEUS OF NEKODA in what is now 6 RM, superseding the older seasonal calendar of the region and eventually supplanting the calendars of most nations subsequently conquered by the KORACHANI EMPIRE.

The calendar discards lunar yardsticks that were used by other more complex calendars, and was instead designed for simplicity and ease of record-keeping, which was becoming increasingly important in the growing empire. With the 366-day year divided into twelve months of thirty days each and 7-day WEEKS. Every three months are separated by a solstice or equinox festival of 2 or 1 day each, respectively. Every 7 years have a cut day, removing a day from the Winter Solstice festival, keeping the calendar in line with the astronomical year, which is 365.8571 days long.

The calendar was devised in 6 RM (the $\underline{\text{REIGN OF MALICHAR}}$), though was retroactively applied to the previous years to begin at 1 RM, with the birth of the Korachani empire.

Beginning with the feast of the spring equinox, the months are: MALICHALEN (March), ALGOLEN (April), CYKRANALEN (May), LIVIALEN (June), RACHALEN (July), <a href="MURDAD (August), <a hr

MACCABEUS OF NEKODA: (B. –31 RM – D. 28 RM) Edu. KORACHANI scholar who pioneered the KORACHANI CALENDAR (RM) system in 6 RM, retroactively applying it to start 6-years earlier, to the birth of the Korachani empire.

MACELLARIA: Dem. 'Macellarian'. Ntn. Nation in the far south west of SAMMAEA. Its people are insular and famed practitioners of FLESHWRIGHTING and cloning, undertaking procedures and techniques considered grotesque and untouchable by other people. These industries are only possible through its peoples' understanding of the ATRAMENTA. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

MACERATA: 1. Geo. Region in the far north west of SKAROS, west of the SEA OF APHOTIS, known for its many earthquakes.

2. Set. Small fortified city in the far north west of SKAROS, west of the SEA OF APHOTIS, overlooking the border with ATARAXIA. It is home to a CHAPTER⁽²⁾ of the WHITE LEAGUE, who mostly work as personal guards to individuals travelling in Ataraxia, or for caravans moving west along the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 11,800).

MACHAEUS ZIDEON: m. Mil. Pol. Per. (B. 3883 RM) Grandmaster of the AIWAHAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION since 3968 RM. Little is known of his early life, and most records surrounding his upbringing begin with him as an early teen apprenticed to a freeman technologist, whereupon he was recruited by the Order as a Neophyte. He rapidly progressed through the ranks over the years, finding himself giving over more and more of his body to orthoses and technarcane enhancements, which are at least partially responsible for his long life.

More machine now than man, he looms over his Order as a largely unseen force, yet his presence is deeply felt by its agents, who are forced to study his teachings as part of their training. The core of his beliefs and ideologies have been translated into the Technocratic Oath, that new recruits must swear to upon their indoctrination, and which have shaped the actions of the Order since their introduction in 3971 RM.

It is no secret that Machaeus has aspirations of sitting at the COUNCIL OF SEVEN, and the appointment of his fellow Grandmaster KOLROKH HANNO to that same title has caused no small amount of friction between their respective Orders over the years.

MACHAL: Geo. Glacier in the far north of GNOTH, in the SOLUN HIGHLANDS.

MACHALAT: Set. Coastal city in the north of LIDEA, where the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾ meets the SEA OF MHARKA^(1.). The city has undergone a tumultuous history, though has, since its appearance in c. 960 RM following the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S subjugation of the region in 911 RM, been a popular destination with mariners and the spoilt children of nobility alike.

It has always been associated with music and the musical arts, and was once home to travelling minstrels who served as bearers of news across Lidea. As the river Shibboleth has shifted over the millennia, the city has found itself away from her banks 3-times, and has remained a coastal city since c. 3580 RM. It has however diminished since its heyday in c. 2100 RM, where it was a metropolis numbering no less than 200,000 bodies, and many of its old districts have been eaten by the steady flow of the river (Pop. c. 20,000).

MACHALLA: Set. Settlement in the south west of ABATTUR (Pop. c. 9 000)

MACHARUAH: Set. City in the c north east of THE OLD FOREST, along the eastern shore of lake SETTRON. It is located within the region of GUTHAOCH, which is known to be the home of the TREE OF AGEN. The city falls within the influence of the DREAMSCAPE of Guthaoch, which influences the growth of vegetation the spread of life (Pop. c. 36,500).

MACHINE ARCHIVIST: Tec. Rnk. A civilian rank within the AIWAHAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION. Amongst the most numerous of ranks within the Order, Machine archivists keep meticulous records of any technologies, including technarcana and archaeotech that are used or encountered by the field agents of the Order. These records include blueprints, schematics, lists of parts and detailed engineering records, to prevent loss of any technologies.

MACHINE ASCENDANT, the: Art. Grotesque panoramic oil painting painted by the artist KARSIMMON VOCH between 3232 and 3233 RM. It was hung in the BASILICA OF KHADON in 3234 RM.

The painting depicts a machine that is symbolic of the UNDYING MACHINE Rachanael, surrounded by enemies of the KORACHANI EMPIRE suffering various torments and degrading tortures as it rises triumphantly to an overcost sky.

The painting was removed in 3773 RM for restoration works, revealing an older painting of treasonous intent and unknown origins, known now as THE ETERNAL RALLY.

MACHINE ASCENDANT, TEMPLE OF THE: Rel. Str. Temple dedicated to the UNDYING MACHINE, situated in the north east of AETHIOS. The temple was constructed by Korachani missionaries in 549 RM and was intended to serve immigrants from the north who were expected to colonise and work in the area, but the plans never materialised. Instead, the temple came to be a major religious location in Aethios, where the Church the Undying Machine took hold over the net decades.

The monolithic structure is partially hewn from the red granite of the BETHET foothills, with the rest built from off-cut granite from the site itself. Inside is a sprawling labyrinth of catacombs and vaulted crypts that reach deep into the hills. Some chambers are filled with centuries-old machinery, a few of which are still maintained and guarded by DEMIURNE adepts and their DVERGAI servants, that remained in the temple even after Aethios abandoned its worship of the Undying Machine following the end of its war with Korachan in 3017 RM.

The temple is cited by many as being worthy of inclusion amongst the WONDERS OF THE ANCIENT WORLD.

MACHINE DESERT, the: Geo. Expansive wasteland in the c of SAMMAEA, west of the KARKARMIS Mountains, crossing the border between the east of NASTAL⁽²⁾ and the north west of HOGGOTHA ISZ. First documented by KORACHANI explorers in 1923 RM, the region is now famed for its composition – the entire area is composed of rusted and near-fossilised machinery, now half-buried in dunes that are composed of rust from its own broken peripheries. Nothing is known of its origins, or the culture that created it, and it has never been returned to in an official expedition since its first documenting, though various private ventures have made their way there.

MACHINE-MONK: Pol. Rel. Soc. Rnk. Untouchable caste within the LOST DEMESNE to the east of RAONGEN⁽²⁾ in the north of LLACHATUL who 'maintain' the rusted machinery that the people of the CALLOW HORDES worship. They fulfil the role of a noble priestly caste and are the sole bearers of the secrets of technology, though over the centuries they have lost the true knowledge of how to manufacture and repair the machinery and manufactories, and have come to revere them as idols of their twisted deities — corruptions of the individuals of HOUSE ARTIFEX who over 1,000-years ago established a colony in north of Almagest which would, following its abandonment, become known as the LOST DEMESNE.

MACHINEDEAD: Lan. Med. Tec. Colloquial term for those who are interred within TECHNARCANE engines, or whose orthoses are so many they outweigh their flesh.

MACHINEHEAD, the: Int. His. Rel. Obj. Giant fossilised hand in the c east of the nation of DURCHAA⁽¹⁾. Discovered by KORACHANI explorers in 1631, over 10-years after its conquest of the region from the kingdom of THYTHIA, though it is believed to have been known to the natives for centuries before that time.

The hand forms the centre of a corrupt cult of the UNDYING MACHINE that serves as the national religion of Durchaa, evolving slowly following its isolation from the empire in the wake of the fracture of ALMAGEST from Korachan in 3014 RM. A hereditary order of militant monks has guarded the site since c. 3200 RM. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MACHORA: Ind. Set. Major coastal settlement in the east of VÂRR. Its main industry is the manufacture of CONVEYORS and AMBULANTS, and it is one of the nation's few cities that remain economically productive, allowing NOUVATAI to remain politically and economically strong. It forms a part of the RED ROUTE and its workshops service vehicles travelling with the merchant caravans. Over the years it has also served as a mounting point for CRUSADES to the east, and as a result it has a large AVÉNETHI fortress (Pop. c. 72,000).

MADAIBIMAR: Mil. Str. Major border fortress in the north east of NOAVATUR, guarding the trade-route linking it with the west of PNESSA. Many troops are stationed there, and patrol the border.

MACHINE APOSTASIES, THE: His. Rel. Pol. Tumultuous period in KORACHANI history, that took place between 2581 and c. 2600 RM during a period when the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR had retreated from his office. During this time, the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE persecuted and dissolved dozens of sects, denominations, and offshoots that had emerged from its religion over the past centuries, killing thousands and exiling many more from its territories across all of ELYDEN.

This caused a great exodus as people from the Korachani empire fled persecution. Some settled in neighbouring lands, though many from the Korachani heartland (including AZAZEM, LAASKHA, SKAROS, and KORACHAN itself) fled north, settling lands that would eventually become known as BASSORAH^(2,).

MACILENT: Set. Stilt-city in the c west of AHRISHEN, along the western shore of lake DOIDA^(1.). During the wet seasons and early summer, the lake expands and reaches the city limits, whereas at other times it retreats, sometimes as far as 4-miles from the city limits. The city is built atop the remnants of an island-settlement that existed before the region was dried by the waning of the SEA OF PYREA c 1,000 years ago (Pop. c. 27,000).

MACYNAR: Set. Settlement on the island of KILAWADA in FALLAROUR, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA. Its people's main diet consists of soft-shelled shrimp that lives in the waters around the SHIBBOTHA and SHIELD ISLES. These are boiled and eaten whole, usually in stews or with legumes, and as a result locals are known for the slight orange-pink tint to their skin (Pop. c. 7,000).

MADA: Sca. Bay along the south western coast of the PARTHISAN colony of $\underline{NISSA}^{(1)}$.

MADARAL: Set. City in the far north west of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, and home to many military forces that patrol the north western borders there with MULCIBER and ANUBIA (Pop. c. 10,000).

MADARASH: Rui. Old monastery located on a large mesa in the east of MENISCEA, now ruined and buried beneath the city of MEDINAE.

MADDENING ABYSS, the: see CARCERI, THE PRISON.

MADACH: Ind. Set. Mining settlement in the south east of MECHABET (Pop. c. 4,600).

MADANAN: For. Mangrove forest in the MAIDEN ISLES, on the island of LATRAS.

MADDIS: Pol. Ser. Capital of OBLEVIS, in the south east of EASTERN MENISCEA, since the revolution of 3199 RM deposed the ruling DESPOSYNI DYNASTY and moved the capital there from KORACHAN DHAI. It is a major stop along the BROKERS' ROAD trade route, though is insular, barely tolerating the presence of foreign traders and diplomats in its streets. Others are forbidden (Pop. unknown).

MADDRA: Set. Settlement in the north of PNESSA (Pop. c. 8,000).

MADHARA: Geo. Mountain in the south east of SUOR.

MADIKAT: Set. City in the c of AYAD. It is a crossroads of local trade and culture (Pop. c. 34,000).

MADOARA: Set. Small city in the south east of TAAN AN. It is situated along the course of the AQUEDUCT OF CREPHITHISS (Pop. c. 16,000).

MADOUN: Pol. Mil. Rnk. Military rank in the FOREST KINGDOMS of MALAN whose bearers also serve as regional caretakers, often ruling small settlements, outposts, or caring for large sparsely inhabited tracts of land. They make sure that both professional soldiers and citizen militias are well trained and equipped, and in times of conflict rally them to action.

The role is different in larger settlements, and rather being a ruler, they instead serve as an advisor, remaining the chief military rank in the city. Major cities may have multiple madouns, each in charge of a particular aspect and/or district of the city.

MADOUR: 1. Pol. KORACHANI colony in the c of LLACHATUL, between VÂRR and RHAMIA. See Vol III: the Nations of Elyden.

2. Pol. Set. City and capital of the eponymous region⁽¹⁾. It was abandoned early in the fourth millennium RM, though the KORACHANI EMPIRE reappropriated it in 3989 RM, rapidly taking surrounding lands. The old city was found abandoned, a particularly deep mine collapsed, leading into an upper chamber of the PRISON CARCERI.

The mines were sealed with reinforced concrete by imperial engineers, the high walls levelled and the city rebuilt. Now landlocked following the retreat of the SEA OF PROPONTIS, a harbour was constructed along the coastline, and it now sees many slaves arrive from the north east (Pop. c. 174,000).

MADRA: Geo. Mountain forming a border between the north of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES and ANUBIA, itself an extension of the HASHATH Mountain.

MAEDA: Lake in the north west of AHRISHEN, fed by streams and rivers from the PELADA outcrops. The lake flows into the river LAOMEDA, which itself flows into lake EURADA, which empties into the river PELADA, a tributary of the river SAVEST.

MAEG, CULT OF: Rel. Extremist religious cult in the ARID TRIPTYCH that emerged in the city of ANUBIS in c. 3810 RM and quickly travelled to surrounding lands, its growth propagated by a figure calling itself the OVATE. The cult operates as a cult of personality surrounding the Ovate, which advocates hostility & assertiveness of character and faith in machines over the UNDYING MACHINE.

It clashed with the Church of the Undying Machine and its regional sects many times over the next century over idealistic differences and its effective press-ganging of members, many of which were already members of other religions.

The cult had been largely quelled by 3912 RM through aggressive actions by the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO and the CULT OF THE SPHINX, which were the two religions most affected by it. The repeated reappearances of the Ovate over coming decades caused some to believe that the Ovate might be something more than human (perhaps a HALFBLOOD, OTHERWORLDER OF SCION), renewing interest in the cult. Others, particularly within competing churches, argued that it simply meat the Ovate was a mantle carried by multiple individuals over the years. This attempt to discredit the founder of the cult backfired and over the cult has seen a slight resurgence over the past decade, particularly in the city of Anubis. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MAEIAL: Set. Harbour in the south west of the island of ANDRATHIS off the eastern coast of the PARTHISAN colony of EZHIRAYA (2.).

MAELER: Sca. Bay off the south eastern coast of SAMMAEA, that serves to divide the SEA OF MIROVEA, in the north, from the LERAMUGH, in the south. The bay also lies along the border between ZHARIAH^(2.) in the north and SHEZALIAH in the south.

MAEN: For. Large jungle dominating the west of SURUTUR. It is known for its many vines, creepers, and epiphytes, and in many cases, they have overtaken old coastal ruins making them unnavigable.

MAEN TOO: Set. Coastal city in the north east of CHEIRA (Pop. c. 40,000).

MAENDA: Rvr. Endorheic river flowing south for 775-miles, across the c south of SAGITTARIA and c EREBETH, before collecting into lake TROJA in the c of Sagittaria, which fluctuates in size throughout the year.

MAENMIST: Dem. 'Maenmisti'. Ntn. Nation in the c south west of SAMMAEA, overlooking the SEA OF AMMASH⁽²⁾. The nation is descended from the earlier state of MEHMUTH, whose people lied lives of fear and hiding to defend against voracious slavers from the north. When Mehmuth collapsed in c. 2700 RM these traits were carried over into its fractured child state, over which the state of Maenmist became the dominant one by c. 3150 RM.

The region was embroiled in an intense century-long war with PHYRR that erupted after decades of rising tensions between the two states. The catalyst for this was the construction of a great line of fortifications that became known as the BASTION OF SIN NASSIR that encircled the entire nation, which put Phyrr on edge, leading to the outbreak of hostilities in c. 3700 RM. The war would escalate to encompass over a century of the region's history and is remembered now as the WAROF ECHOES. It caused the deaths of millions and ruined both nations' economies and standing with other states, ending only through the efforts of foreign merchants (whose business along the NACRE ROAD had taken a hit), and a handful of individuals from both sides of the conflict who decried the wanton waste of lives and resources. An uneasy armistice was signed in 3815 RM, ending the war, and drawing up a new common border with a 1-miles wide neutral zone between the two that remains patrolled by both sides to this day.

Maenmisti culture changed after this horrific period of warfare, with its people becoming increasingly insular and distrustful of outsiders. Starting in c. 3960 RM it stopped trading with the outside world completely, and even closed contact with the NACRE ROAD, effectively sundering the trade-route in half, devastating the economy of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA. This act was opposed by the NACRE LEAGUE and by neighbouring nations, most notably SIMBARA and Phyrr, who together attacked it in 3972 RM beginning what is now known as the ongoing NACRE WAR. Maenmist retaliated by bombarding the city of OTHAMA with ATRAMENTAL BOMBS, causing a stalemate and cementing its misanthropy amongst its neighbours. Its southern borders have been a constant warzone since then as allied forces made up of trade conglomerates and consortiums, as well as other nations' governments attempt to reestablish a land trade route.

Its people are incredibly insular and are sundered from the outside world by a totalitarian regime that controls all aspects of life and devotes most of its resources to its military, including the maintenance of the Sin Nassir lines and their garrisons. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

MAEUAT: Set. City in SYNCRASIA in the c north west of THE SURRACH. It is known for its leather and vellum industries (Pop. c. 33,000).

MAES DENT: Geo. Rocky region in the c north east of KAZZAR^(2.).

MAESAN: Geo. 75-mile-long ridge in the c of TARTAK linking the HETHA and NUMANEAN Mountains in the north and south, respectively.

MAESTIX: Set. Small fortified city in the c of ALMAGEST, in the c of the ARTUL AKAEL rust wastelands. Its walls are high to protect it against the rust storms that erupt in winter, and it is a haven to travellers crossing the wastes (Pop. c. 2,800).

MAFURMA: Geo. Cave system in the south west of ALAM BETHYL, in the north west of the territory of BOTHUAR⁽¹⁾. There are two major caves that lead to a series of interconnected tunnels that form a labyrinth that wind for dozens of miles before descending steeply into a large central chamber. Though near-impossible to reach, it is said to have been penetrated once in c. 3620 RM by the intrepid rogue Mafur, who is the only known person to return from the chamber, and who describes it as a large hollow filled with gigantic crystals that each refracted the light of his lantern in hundreds of directions. The cavern, though never officially documented, is now named after the explorer.

MAGA: Mil. Str. Major fort in the west of the small state of TAL ZHAAN^(1.), whose troops protect its exposed north and western borders.

MAGARRAN MAW: Geo. Large cave-system in the south of ARKOS(L.), along the northern face of the NAKARRAN Mountains. The water-carved caves stretch for no less than 40-miles south and west beneath the mountains into the north of SIRIPHAGOS. Their lower reaches are flooded and home to pale eyeless salamanders that feature in the area's myths and superstitions.

MAGDAM: Phil. Ancient FIFTH AGE sage who lived in what is now Aeonas, who is famed for having written the epic MAGDAM ILAN poem.

MAGDAM IIAN EPIC, THE: Vol. Myt. Ancient epic dictated by the sage MAGDAM in a cavern in ancient AEONAS. It comprises over 120,000 couplets and chronicles in exacting detail the story of the DEMIURGES. It is now considered apocryphal by most scholars, with most of the stories acting as anecdotes or parables. The stories were originally collected in c -200 RM and included myths and stories from across west and SOUTHERN SAMMAEA, and served to corroborate various other tales and stories from Elyden's ancient history, many of which would later find their way into various versions of the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN.

The most well-preserved extant example was found in CARNYNGA in 1384 RM, from which various copies were made, one of which was commissioned by the MUSEUM OF CURIOSITIES in DEOCHAN, which was later confiscated by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE due to its subject matter. Other copies are in circulation across Elyden, some of which are considered priceless artefacts in their own right. See vol II: Books of Elyden.

MAGG: Plr. 'maggi'. Mys. Soc. Keepers of oral traditions, fulfilling role of leader, storyteller and keepers of history. They are common in many inner SAMMAEAN cultures, particularly the more hospitable parts of KHARKHARADONTIS.

MAGGOT: Com. See SKUD.

MAGHAN: His. Ancient prophet of the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL, who first began preaching the word of Rachanael around a decade before the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, writing the so-called APOCRYPHA OF SOSTIS.

Since Malichar's rise to power and the spread of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, the APOCRYPHA OF SOSTIS has been declared false, all known instances of it destroyed.

MAGHANA: Set. City in the north east of ANANTHUL, known for petrified TECHNARCANE canopic tombs less than a mile outside its reach. The tombs are subterranean, hewn from the living rock of the region in a great catacomb. Each tomb is home to a mummified mortal, and has an archaic technarcane machine built into it, the purpose of which is now forgotten. These ancient tombs are shunned by the people of Maghana, though there have been various unsuccessful attempts over the years to learn more of the tombs (Pop. c. 170,000).

MAGHORA: 1. Lak. Lake in the south east of TEMUJA.

2. (B. c. 2400 RM – D. 2601 RM) Leg. Legendary figure from the FIFTH AGE who united the many TEMUJAN tribes that dwelt in the Temujan basin throughout his life, most of which was spent on campaign. His death in 2601 RM marked the beginning the current Temujan calendar.

MAGHORATE WOOD: For. eastern-most reaches of the AL FARAN forest in the south east of TEMUJA. Named after the Legend MAGHORA, who is said to have slain the great boar GOLAN here.

MAGICK: Sup. Mys. Common term with analogues in dozens of languages across ELYDEN with a variety of meanings in relation to supranatural events, beings, abilities and objects. It is the most common colloquial term to describe the acts of SHAPERS and, though it is not a technical word, has even permeated the world of academia, though many scholars deride its usage, preferring to use more technical terms instead. See Vol IV: the Materia Omna.

MAGICKAL SPA: Sup. Bus. Str. Similar to mundane spas but with more specialised treatments that are performed by specialised SHAPERS with healing or relaxing powers, or which might use MAGICKALLY-active paraphernalia (mud, stones, herbs, oils). Typically, such spas are prohibitively-expensive for most people and are reserved for the rich and powerful, with deals and alliances forged and broken within their walls.

They are common in ALMAGEST, where they are often geothermally heated, but are relatively common, in various guises, across the INNER SEA REGION. In LLACHATUL, steam rooms and mud baths are more common, whereas communal baths and massages are more popular in SAMMAEA.

MAGISTER: Sup. Org. Rnk. High-ranking members of the OCCULTARIUM

— the governing body of SHAPERS in PARTHIS. The Occultarium is divided into separate offices, each of which oversees the running of a particular sphere of shaping in the republic. Each such office is run by a High magister and various magisters who are the ultimate authorities on that sphere within the republic.

MAGNA BRIDGE: Arc. Cast iron bridge with a span of 120 ft. that crosses the river KHAD in the city of KHADON, KORACHAN. When constructed in 1881 RM it the largest cast iron bridge of its king and it stood outside the city limits, though has since become surrounded by the city, which has grown to encompass it.

It was designed by the famed engineer KORNELIUS MAGRIZAAR and remains standing to this day, though all parts have been replaced at one time or another multiple times over the last two millennia.

MAGNIHEN: Set. Small fortified city in the west of RAONGEN^(2.). Its main industry is the quarrying of fine granite, but recent conflict with the people of ANAGAR has seen it become fortified, with most able-bodied men being forced into military service for a minimum of one year, where they largely patrol the contested border against further incursions (Pop. c. 15,000).

MAGOTHAURTHA: Set. Small city in MOAH known for its opal mining (Pop. c. 17,000).

MAGOTTAL: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region dominating the north western waters and coast of the SEA OF APHOTIS, in the west of ALMAGEST. The taint is moderate and can be kept at bay from populated areas by SIPHON ENGINES. The cities of ESSEVERA and MEHOTHATI are in its western and eastern peripheries.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{MODERATE THREAT}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ Institute of Atramental Studies.

MAGRLIR: Set. Settlement in the south of CYHLAGHARR, in the region of YGRALLA, known for its GYPS trainers (Pop. c. 1,500).

MAGSAM: Set. Small city in the west of the BARRIER LANDS to the south west of the SILMA Mountains, along the course of the Ivory Road. on the edge of the delta of the river AMMENT (Pop. c. 48,000).

MAGTA: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the south west of ANDILUTH, overlooking the PASS OF MAGTA into KHARKHARADONTIS against sporadic attacks by beast-men that congregate around the tainted sinkhole of DHOMAAL.

MAGTA, PASS OF: Geo. Mountain pass in the CAMMOREAN Mountains linking ANDILUTH with KHARKHARADONTIS, though it is rarely used for there is little of value south of the mountains.

MAGTA ZASAAR: His. Rui. Fragment of a FOURTH AGE aqueduct in the south east of ANDILUTH. Little remains of the original aqueduct now, save a wide column and parts of arches on either side, measuring some 200 ft. tall. The aqueduct is thought to have once led to the ruin of BARASH KATAAR.

MAGURAS: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the west of SKAROSIAN territories in the BLACK MOUNTAINS south of the region of ADAMATI.

MAHAII: Sec. Small fortified city in the north east of KHALHAT. It lies close to the lands contested with TRAKIA and is home to permanent regiments of the PORCELAIN PHALANX (Pop. c. 18,000).

MAHAKHIS: Set. Fortified coastal city in the north of KHAMID. It is known for its markets and storage yards and lies along the course of the GREAT ROAD, and sees many merchant caravans and vessels crossing its borders (Pop. c. 47,200).

MAHAJSHITH: Geo. Mountain-range in the south east of NOAVATUR. Its eastern face is red, and was rich in iron deposits, most of which were wasted by KORACHANI and early Noavaturi industries.

MAHAN: Set. Settlement in the west of ALAM BETHYL, in the west of the territory of GELAH^(1.). It is made up of dozens of sheep farming communities, and collectively its people are known as expert shearers makers of wool products (Pop. c. 6,000).

MAHAN, SANCTUARY OF: Phil. Str. Monastery of the UNION OF THE FIERY HAND, situated in the north eastern foothills of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains in the west of ALAM BETHYL. It is relatively close to the settlement of MAHAN, though is accessible by a seasonal path from the city of VALORA.

MAHANTKHAI: lit: 'Supreme King'. Pol. The ruler of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES. The first Mahantkhaj, RAHANKHEN I, rose to power in 1328 RM after defeating the demon sultan AMENABAST. Soleyn is still ruled by a Mahantkhaj to this day, the title of which is appointed by a spiritual leader known as a GHASH. The present Mahantkhaj is CHADARATI.

MAHASTA: Lak. Large lake in the c of the emirate of UKOLIST in the north east of LIMOTH^(1.). It is prone to flooding in early Autumn from floodwaters carried from its various tributaries and as a result few major settlements are built along its shores, with the exception of the city of NERETHI, part of which is built on large pylons.

MAHEN: Pol. Geo. One of nine political territories in the north east of ALAM BETHYL.

MAHEZEAL: Rvr. Major river in the west of ELEKHID flowing south for 950-miles from sources in the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, and the YANAVASH and ZHUREDDIL Mountains before meeting its parent, the river YAGNOTH PHTHAN at lake ADATAD.

MAHHRIB: Pol. Set. Capital of QARALAM, in the south east of SAMMAEA since 3320 RM, when the old capital of ECUMENA was abandoned by the IAQRASHAN SULTANATE in favour of a rising west (Pop. c. 372,000).

MAHIR: His. Pol. Rnk. Ruler of the XYRPHANI EMPIRE, roughly analogous to emperor or sultan. The title was lost following the fragmentation of the empire into the extant states of XYRPHAAT though some regional rulers have taken on the mantle as a form of self-aggrandisement.

MAHMIT: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the west of LYRIDIA, protecting the border from LYRIDIA DHAI.

MAHNE: Set. Settlement in the east of the small state of TAL ZHAAN^(1.). Its main industry is copper mining (Pop. c. 8,200).

MAHORM: Set. Settlement in the south west of PORPHYR. It is known for its copper mines (Pop. c. 7,400).

MAHRIB: Set. Large city in the north west of ZAKRON. This city is the origin of the nations' strict banning of MAGICKAL arts, which came as a result of a FIRMAMENTAL calamity so dire it is forbidden to speak of it today (Pop. c. 182,000).

MAHROUB: Set. Major city in the south west of SABAEA. It is one of the largest industrial centres of WESTERN MENISCEA and stands atop a great vaulted cistern that provides water to its people (Pop. c. 433,000).

MAHRUF: Set. Fortified city in the south west of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT (Pop. c. 40,000).

MAHSE: Rvr. River in eastern ANDILUTH flowing north east for 125-miles from sources in the north eastern CAMMOREAN Mountains. It is possibly the only major river in Andiluth that is known to flow year-round.

MAHSERTH: also 'the Citadel'. Pol. Set. The capital of AHRISHEN and home to its ruling bodies and universities. The city has been used as a capital since the time of the FLUN-SANDRA SOVEREIGNTY in 2770 RM Though called a citadel, the city is like most others in Ahrishen, made up of various districts and wards, some of which are built on stone vaults or stilts, with the IVORY CITADEL itself rising above most other structures in the middle of the city. The tower itself is a relic of an older tower that was restored in c. 2100 RM as a means of guarding the GREAT ROAD traderoute which still passes through the city to this day. The tower slowly grew into a caravanserai and waypoint, eventually becoming the centre of trade in Ahrishen, later becoming a major city.

Though most trade has since moved north to ACHERUSA and QASHEN, Mahserth remains a major trading power in the south and the centre of most education in Ahrishen (Pop. c. 2,415,000).

MAIASHAR: Rvr. River in IRUGNA^(1.) flowing 245-miles from sources in the UTHAANI Mountains, before meeting the coast at the city of DOOR.

MAIATAN: Set. Major city in the north west of Tisara (Pop. c. 272,000).

MAHURIN: Geo. Massif in the west of the island-continent of Bror^(1.), located in the east of Grest^(1.) and the far south west of the DOMAINS OF SHAUATAS in the west of the island continent of Bror^(1.). The massif forms the western-most part of the LAHAED Mountains.

MAIDEN ISLES: also 'Marurin'. Geo. Series of islands off the south eastern coast of MENISCEA, between the SEA OF NARANOR and the BATHASHAL OCEAN, that are named for their beauty, untarnished nature and their isolation from ELYDEN'S great continents. They comprise hundreds of small islands, though the largest are EPEHET, LATRAS, BOHMIUS ISLE, and RAH.

The Isles are sparsely populated though each of the major islands has at least one permanently-settled area, with Latras having 2 major population centres, in the cities of \underline{FALO} and \underline{KOSI} .

They were described by the VENTHIRI explorer BOHMIUS in 1527 RM, during which time they were uninhabited and much smaller than they are today, due to the subsequent lowering of ELYDEN'S sea levels.

They were later settled in c. 2920 RM by the UMMALLARID MERCHANTS, who established fortified harbours there that served as outposts where their fleets could resupply. More settlements appeared over the next centuries and the islands became headquarters to the Merchants, but a plague carried there from TAES in c. 3270 RM devastated the population, forcing the Merchants back to the Meniscean mainland. They never resettled the islands, which never recovered from the plague, remaining sparsely populated to this day.

MAIDENHEAD: Flo. Woody herb found in the north of CENTRAL
LLACHATUL, most commonly found in STOLAS. It has oneiric properties and is consumed by ONEIROMANCERS and other SHAPERS who work with DREAMS to help in their SHAPING. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MAIDENS, the: see ADHARA.

MAIDENS OF THE MACHINE, the: Int. Rel. Tec. Org. Sisterhood of devotional mechanics who are active in the KORACHANI EMPIRE. They begin their journey much like any nuns, by studying in convents scattered across the empire, and those who show desirable traits (a simple mind that is capable of understanding the workings of TECHNARCANE engines and a malleability to accept indoctrination into their order) are selected for training in the sisterhood at a young age.

They follow a warped doctrine of the Church of the Undying Machine, and consider the Leaden Throne – the great archaic technarcane engine that sustains the Demiurge Rachanael in the Sepulchral Palace in Kharkharadontis – to be a divine object, as much worthy of their adulation as the slumbering deity that sits upon it. Their beliefs are considered a sect of the true religion of Korachan, and their doctrine was made official during a conclave in 2137 RM.

They are dispatched as part of their training to one of the many places of worship across the domains of the Church of the Undying Machine, where they spend years in study and practicum, where they assist with the maintenance and devotions of the InvoCATION ENGINES. Upon completing their studies, they are assigned to a parish, where they tend to the Invocation Engine in small groups of between 1 and 3 sisters, depending on the size and complexity of the engine. There, they serve beneath the parish priest, though ultimately they are beholden to the engine itself, spending their days cleaning and maintaining it, and tending to the needs of the LARVA interred within it.

They are highly skilled but any true knowledge of machinery they might possess is marred by the level of indoctrination they receive. They have little contact with the outside world and are considered naive by those who take the time to talk with them, for they learn little of the world at large beyond the tenets of their faith and the workings of the Invocation Engines that their lives revolve around. Though most people simply ignore them, unaware of the important role that they play in the maintenance of the churches and their link with the Sepulchral Palace.

MAJAIM: Geo. Shallow rocky hills in the c north of ESHIR⁽²⁾, forming the northern-most part of the HIGA Mountains. The entire region is filled with splintered rocks and has little of value, and is sparsely-populated.

MAJALAD: also 'the Market City'. Pol. Set. Major city and capital of NASTAL⁽²⁾, in the c west of SAMMAEA. It became capital in 3923 RM following the annihilation of the old capital, LLAT, by the BASILEAN SHAPER KALLAIR PHAER.

It is a major trading city and is said to be the only place in Elyden where one can procure any service or goods (Pop. c. 704,900).

MAJOR STAR: see STAR, MAJOR.

MAKAL: Set. Rural area in the region of SAKETHI in the east of PARTHIS, known for its sheep (Pop. c. 8,800).

MAKARIAH, GRANDMASTER AND HIGH-PRIEST OF THE KNIGHTS OF SETH: (B. 3612 RM) Oth. HALFBLOOD and present grandmaster and high-priest of the KNIGHTS OF SETH.

MAKATAR: Rui. Ancient metallic structure in the west of NÁRTHEL, thought to date back to the THIRD AGE. MAKELLA: Set. Small city in the c west of TZALLRACH. It is home to the CIRCLE SQUIRES, a military order common in Tzallrach (Pop. c. 20,000).

MAKHANATE: hand-maidens of the PRAEDICATE of NYARLOTH in PORPHYR, acting as priestesses and keepers of the NYARALA philosophy and proxies. Their order dates back to the THIRD AGE irothani kingdoms of KATHAR BYAAT, and died out with the wane of their people, but it was later revived in the FIFTH AGE by the SCION TELEANYARA APEXEIDE herself prior to the founding of Porphyr. Today they form a council of rulers beneath the Praedicate, and are regional rulers, in her name.

MAKHARA: also 'Mahkara'. Set. Metropolis in the far north of KORACHAN, recognised as one of the great cities of the EMPIRE, otherwise known as THE GEMS. It is one of the oldest and most densely-populated cities in the nation, and was also the heart of one of the SEVEN CITY-STATES of early Korachan.

Though a powerful trade-city with most of the major imperial merchant HOUSES present there, it is corrupt in all senses, physically falling apart from age and neglect, with merchant-gangers rounding up the many homeless wretches for slave work in the warehouses and LANDSHIP ports. Its Merchant Houses form part of the SIRIPHAGAN ALLIANCE and control the city, and many members are also part of the organised crime syndicate known as the HOUSEHOLD.

It is famed for its popular concert hall, known as the HERITAGE ASSEMBLY HALL, which is frequented by the merchant lords and their families, as well as members of the Household, who are said to make deals in the balconies during shows (Pop. c. 1,020,000).

MAKHUR: Set. Settlement in the west of RHINOCOLOURA, west of the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.) (Pop. c. 6,000).

MAKIS: Set. Settlement in the north of MECHABET, known for its gold-reserves (Pop. c. 8,000).

MAKTOU: Mil. Str. major fortress in the west of PARAIYA, in the KAURCANI basin, guarding the route south into UKHARTH^(2.).

MALACHAI: also 'the Barren One'. m. Myt. His. Per. In the mythology and ancient history of ELYDEN, seventeenth of the Two-and-Twenty DEMIURGES, whose children were the AITHAR, from which the AL AKHI are descended.

Malachi is, alongside VORROPOHAIAH, one of the Demiurges whose knowledge is most widespread amongst the imperial populace and is known as being a dead Demiurge, his body buried in the TOMB OF THE GODS, in STOLAS.

In life, Malachai was a weak Demiurge with little interest in his tribe or in SHAPING after his castigation alongside his siblings. He became subservient to a string of other Demiurges; an act which left him an object of ridicule amongst his siblings, weakened and broken as his own tribe withered and died. Angered by this abandonment, Malachai's only known SCION, AKACHI, killed him as he lay prone, taking the mantle of leadership in his place even as the body of the Demiurge rotted and corrupted the landscape around it. Some say this was out of kindness, others out desire. Most of the other Demiurges thought the latter and shunned her, turning her and her children into pariahs that were soon forgotten from ancient history, weakening her.

It is said that Malachai's' soul survives as a gigantic SOUL STONE buried deep beneath the wastes of Stolas, his influence still felt on the landscape, his restless DREAMS affecting the al akhi that survive there. Some scholars maintain that the totemic figure the al akhi worship is a corruption of al akhi and that their devotions are what keep his essence from truly dying.

His known SCIONS are AKACHI, who is famed for having slain her father, assuming his domains; and RAPIRACH. See Vol IV: the Two-and-Twenty Demiurges.

MALADAE: Pol. Str. Capital city of CEHOPHELA, located in the west of the empire, along the course of the river MISED. The city is located at the mouth of the MALADAEAN gulf, overlooking the sea of KAKOPHIS. The city was and remains a mercantile hub, controlling trade along the Maladaean gulf, after which it was named. Until c. 3500 RM the city's ports were seen as a marvel of engineering with drydocks constructed deep into the natural caverns of the gulf, though the dwindling of ELYDEN'S seas found them landlocked, and they now serve as warehouses.

The city's harbours suffered though were regraded to accommodate the new sea-levels and they remain operational to this day. The city itself is the most urbane region of CEHOPHELA, controlling trade across the IALCUS, and north through the GULF OF VALUS. It is famed as the location of the legendary HALLOWED CITY – the forbidden imperial palace that was built by the TAQUELLANE EMPEROR in 1272 RM (Pop. c. 170,000).

MALADAEAN GULF: Sea. Narrow strait in the western coast of MENISCEA, in the far west of CEHOPHELA. The strait is around 130-miles long and no more than 8-miles at its widest. The strait was once wider, though narrowed with the decline of ELYDEN'S seas over the past millennia.

MALAEGAN VALLEY: Geo. Large valley stretching for some 450-miles around the river NARRATI in the c of AETHIOS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. The valley is sparsely populated and is home to thriving wildlife, ranging from KATAPHRANTS, BROMAA, CHEIROPTERS, HAYAVARS, SUNBASKERS, and DIPHDAS, amongst many others.

MALAIA: Lake that appears seasonally in the east of SEDISIA in late summer, when a combination of warm weather and the first autumn rains bring flood-waters to the endorheic basin that dominates the east of the plains of VETHRAND, via the VETHRANDAN RIVER SYSTEM.

MALAKA: Sea. South western most waters of the BATHASHAL OCEAN, off the south eastern coast of BROR(1.). The waters of the Malaka are known to be very high in oxygen and have a thick quality that makes swimming remarkably easy. The region is populated by vast numbers of bioluminescent jellyfish and the creatures that prey on them.

Its deep waters are illuminated by the bioluminescence of the gigantic Firmamental jellyfish that dwell there, known as MALAKANI JELLYFISH.

MALAKAH: Rvr. Major river flowing east for 1,218-miles across most of ATARAXIA from sources in the TOLIASOR, TABIT, and KATTAR Mountains before meeting the coast of the STRAIT OF SKAROS.

MALAKANI JELLYFISH: Fau. Jellyfish that live exclusively in the waters of MALAKA, off the south eastern coast of BROR^(1.). They are huge, and their thick hair-like tentacles often stretching for hundreds of feet. Most spectacular are the blue bioluminescent dots that line each tentacle, slowly blinking as the creatures move. The tentacles emanate a fierce heat, leading some scientists to believe that the jellyfish share a link with the FIRMAMENT.

MALAKANI PENINSULA: Geo. Peninsula, around 200-miles long emerging north from the far south east of BROR⁽¹⁾.

MALAKHA: Ind. Set. Manufactory city in the east of AZAZEM. It sustains its workforce with large subterranean moss and fungi farms, the excess of which is used to supply DROSS factories in the south east of Azazem (Pop. c. 40,000).

MALAN: Dem. 'Malani'. Ntn. The third largest nation in LLACHATUL, dominating the east of sub-continent of EASTERN LLACHATUL, west of the ARGENT Mountains. It stretches from around 33° north to 56° north and 40° east to 72° east, and encompasses a wide range of climates from warm temperate in the south to cool temperate in the north, with various biomes that are influenced by the ARCANE TEMPERS to make them warmer and wetter than they otherwise would be. This has promoted the spread of near-tropical woodlands in the south, with many varieties of FIRMAMENTALLY-sensitive trees that are not found elsewhere, such as such as HELIX TREES, NEAGARI^(2.), and RANAWYRT, amongst others.

Malan is not a single nation, but rather a federation of eleven kingdoms, known as HENDECARCHIES, or <a href="FOREST KINGDOMS. Each kingdom is allowed to rule autonomously the HENDECARCHS are beholden to a supreme leader – the so-called LADY AEGIS, an OTHERWORLDER of great age, wisdom and power, believed by many to be more potent even than the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR himself.

The south easternmost Kingdoms (ATALLUA and DERAEIA) are both rocky and mountainous, for they are largely situated in the western expanse of the Argent Mountains. The former is mostly noted for its many gigantic vines and creepers, and the latter is situated along a warm temperate area that is far warmer than would otherwise be the case at such latitudes, with much of its northern territories dry and hot. A large cracked chasm known as SARANTHIA dominated the north eastern region of Deraeia and is where noble children go for age trials and war training.

The central kingdoms of AMILLAERE and STHAMAN are also rocky, though are of average far lower elevation and remain covered in various woodlands, with Sthaman in particular noted as a land of rivers.

The south westernmost kingdoms of \underline{LONAR} and $\underline{CHLORIS}$ are characterised by their low elevations, vast woodlands (many of which are old growth), and rivers. They are also the only kingdoms to have coastlines bordering the $\underline{DARKSEA}$.

MYEIN and AONIA are the driest of the kingdoms, with the former being bordered to the west by mountains and having sparse inland woodlands. The latter has the flatter terrain and is the most outgoing of kingdoms, with close relations with SAUA and TEMUJA.

HATON and NHORA have the longest coastlines of Malan and have its strongest naval traditions. Both are rocky, with coastal mountains and clear woodland cover, particularly in the case of Nhora.

The northern kingdom of Cyrenia has sparser woodland, and has the coolest climate. Many notable structures and settlements are constructed over Ley lines and the ruins of ley cairns from the dawn of Malani history pepper its groves.

Malan was founded in 2075 RM following decades of war with the nation of LARAM^(1,). Both had emerged from the ruins of an ancient late FOURTH AGE empire known as NAHORIA, itself a remnant of an even older late THIRD AGE civilisation known as SEITHAL, of which little is now known other than it was home to the IVORY MOON worshipping pale-skinned MORTAL PEOPLE known as the SEITHIN.

Nahoria collapsed c. -2400 RM, leaving the region populated by a multitude of warring human nations (some people of which bore hints of ancient unions between humans and seithin) and various city-states that rose and fell over the next two millennia. Nahoria was spared of the worst fighting from the WAR OF SCOURGING, though parts of the Malani forest were burnt down, and the FADING saw various remnant cultures of Nahoria resettling the region in c. -1000 RM.

Invading armies from SAEDISH (present-day SAUA) settled the western-most regions what are now Myein and Lonar), leaving their people culturally and physically linked with those of Saua, though those bonds have since diminished.

This multitude of city-states coalesced into more stable states between c. -750 and -50 RM, at which point the Lady Aegis is first recorded as appearing, settling in the centre of extant Malan, founding the feudal kingdom of Amillaere $^{(3)}$, whose armies slowly united the region's disparate people over the next centuries. At the same time the states of $\underline{LARAM}^{(1)}$ had grown in power in the south, becoming a powerful monarchy, and later an empire.

By c. 150 RM the remnants of Nahoria was divided in two — Amillaere⁽³⁾ in the north, ruled by the Lady Aegis and her feudal lords, and the Larami monarchy in the south, whose people were closer culturally to Saedish than Amillaere. In c. 1050 RM debased sensate cults began appearing in Amillaere, leading to a century-long scouring that saw many people arrested, and thousands killed in fighting. This time led to cultural instability and many fled the region, settling north east of the Argent Mountains into TISHANNA (present day western TISARA).

The assassination of emperor LADRAOLAN III in 2021 RM, following decades of economic decline, saw the empire fragment into two main camps – those who sought an alliance with Amillaere⁽³⁾, and those who did not want to lose their independence. The first camp brokered an alliance with the Lady Aegis and in 2023 RM her armies marched on the imperialists, leading to decades of brutal city fighting that ended finally in 2075 RM with the formation of the Forest Kingdoms of Malan.

Over the next decades, the Lady Aegis restructured the nation into eleven territories, known as Hendecarchies, which are today: Amillaere, Aonia, Atallua, Chloris, Cyrenia, Deraeia, Haton, Lonar, Myein, Nhora, and Sthaman.

Malan is feared and distrusted by people from the more industrialised nations, and is the subject of many erroneous beliefs, the main one being that it is a singular large forest and that its people live symbiotically with it. The truth is more complex. Though the Malani people understand the importance of forests more than other places like ALMAGEST or the Korachani empire, many of its old growth forests have been cut down throughout the Fifth Age, to be replace with inferior planted woodlands, though this differs from region to region, with some places respecting the virginal forests more than others. Its ruler, the Lady Aegis, is regarded with awe by most outsiders, though in truth she is now little more than a figurehead, with the Hendecarchs wielding the true power. Outsiders are largely unaware of this, and instead the image of a fearless competent ruler is deliberately cultured by propaganda.

The passing of the dead is honoured through the tradition of HEART VENERATION as well as the building of ANCESTRAL TOKENS known as CAYIYTHS: statues erected in the extended family homes in honour of the dead. Hunting is also an honoured tradition and is part of most COMING-OF-AGE RITUALS, and is a pastime followed by most nobility, who maintain hunting lodges. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

MALAN RESPLENDENT: Arc. Gigantic monument in the far west of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR, in south western MALAN, representing the FOREST KINGDOMS of Malan and their unity. The monument is made of THAENILLAR crystal with BRANCHBRAIDED wood surrounding it, giving the impression of a large tree with a crystalline core. It overlooks the entrance into the SEA OF GITHKA, and is the first thing most people arriving to Malan by sea witness.

MALANI: Language spoken in MALAN. See Vol II: Languages.

MALANI LONG-COUNT: Cal. MALANI Calendar, based on the cycle of both MOONS. The measure is 1014.8 days long, and matches the CONTIGUOUS LUNAR CYCLE, and includes a four-day FESTIVAL OF THE LADY equals eleven solar years, each year being the duration of a HENDECARCH'S reign beneath the LADY. Each full moon (68 in all – 47 BLOOD MOON and 21 IVORY MOON) in the long-count is celebrated as a holiday, which collectively are known as the FEASTS OF A HUNDRED-AND-THIRTY-EIGHT.

Despite its name the calendar system has been in use for millennia, long before the rise of Malan, and dates back to the NAHORIAN EMPIRE.

MALANI MACAQUE: (change name to something geographic) also 'Malani Apc'. Fau. A form of macaque (small monkeys characterised by long tails, expressive faces, and diverse habitats) native to the woodlands of southern MALAN (specifically the HENDECARCHIES of LONAR and CHLORIS), eastern KHAMID, and northern TZALLRACH. They are known for their dark manes, matriarchal societies and for their gregarious and commensal natures with regards to mortals, particularly in Malan, where they are often regarded as pests at best and a menace to civilised life at worst. There is a healthy black trade for Malani Macaques, with individuals, often separated from their parents at a young age, being sold in markets across the INNER SEA and DARK SEA Regions. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MALANI TREE RAT: also 'Gerant'. Fau. Arboreal theropsin (animals) native to CENTRAL LLACHATUL known for their prehensile tails and mischevious natures. They are most common in temperate regions of MALAN, there they are abundant to the point of being considered as pests in settled areas. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MALAT THE FAIR: (B. 2162 RM) Soc. PATRICIAN named, not after his deeds, but his alabaster skin and snowy hair. He was third generation descendant of DIABALL,SCION OF DEITIES, though his ancestry preceded him and he was feared throughout his life. Born in MHAROKK, the son of a patrician, rapidly rose through ranks, becoming chief-administrator of Mharokk in 2543 but, sensing a NUTHEN revolt, he departed for VENTHIR, settling in TEIRA, again achieving great notoriety and acclaim, where he became Patron of the Arts in 2590, chief consul to HETRANGLER in 2631, and Arch DEMIHIER in 2891. He disappeared in 3721 RM, without explanation.

MALAUR: Geo. Mountain range, covering 16,000 square-miles. It forms the northern-most reaches of the BALAUR Mountains, in the c PARTHIS.

MALBOR: Geo. Mountain pass in the east of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains, linking the BETHYLAN territory of BOTHUAR^(1.) with GELAH^(1.).

MALDA: Set. Settlement in the far east of PNESSA, overlooking lake FORII (Pop. c. 8,000).

MALEFACTOR: also 'the Lawbreaker'. Ast. Con. Constellation in the NORTHERN HEMISPHERE. See Vol II: Constellations.

MALEFACTOR HORDES: Pol. Soc. Barbarian tribes in the south west of the isle of IRUGNA^(1.). They have plagued trade and travel in Irugna^(2.) for decades, though following the signing of a peace treaty between the PARTHISAN colony of ABDAKROS and the government of Irugna⁽²⁾, the two have worked together to patrol the hinterlands between the hordes' territories in the south west and the settled lands in the north and east, keeping their actions in check.

MALEHATOY: Set. Settlement in the south west of IACIO. It is known for its MASTODON herds (Pop. c. 24,000).

MALETH: 1. Geo. 35-miles long island in the middle of THE INNER SEA. The island was once known for its honey production, though the industry died out long ago. Today it is most famous as the home of the SCRIPTURE OF SHADOW, which the merchant prince MALICHAR read, allowing him to unite the tribes of KORACHAN, after which he would subjugate much of the INNER SEA as Archpotentate.

Following the rise of the Korachani Empire, the strategic position of Maleth, as well as its natural harbours turned it into a fortress-island. Maleth was fortified and fitted with shipyards, drydocks, manufactories and other military institutions, where it remains a naval powerhouse under control of the HIGH-EMPIRE, securing it sea routes. It also served as a stopping-point along THE SHADOW MARCH, where steamers and ships transporting pilgrims could resupply and refuel before returning to LAASKHA from VAALK.

- Ind. Fortified shipyards in the above island that service both naval and commercial vessels travelling the waters of THE INNER SEA.
- 3. Myr. Rel. In the mythology and religion of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, the island in the middle of the INNER SEA where the future ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR found the SCRIPTURE OF SHADOW, propagating the rise of the empire and the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. During Malichar's sojourn there, the island was largely uninhabited save for a few waring city-states and half-buried neolithic temples.
- Pol. Soc. KORACHANI patrician-set who overtook the OTHERWORLDER ARCHON in 140 RM.

MALETH, KNIGHTS OF: Rel. Mil. Org. Templars entrusted with the defence of the TEMPLE OF THE SHADOW on the island of MALETH^(1.). They are only seven in number but they are ATRAMENTALLY enhanced to be the epitome of mortal design, rivalling the STEEL LEGIONNAIRES of old in strength, resilience and agility. They are not vat-born but are rather womb-born nobles with lineages that are believed to be linked to the DEMIURGE TALANTEHUT (who penned the prophetic SCRIPTURE OF SHADOW aeons ago), who subject their bodies to years of surgery and experiments to prepare themselves for a life of service to the Temple.

MALETH, SIEGE OF: Mil. His. Theatre of war that took place within the greater WAR OF SUNDERING, where forces from the SARASTROAN COALITION (primarily made up of LIDEAN forces) blockaded and bombarded the island's main fortresses and settlements, beginning on the 17th MURDAD 3703 RM.

MALETHI GYRE: Sea. Sea gyre surrounding the island of MALETH in the c of the INNER SEA, formed by currents moving south of the STRAIT OF SKAROS along the western coast of LAASKHA, west from the c Inner Sea, along the southern coast of AZAZEM, and east along the northern coast of VAALK. The island suffered greatly against the SARASTROAN attack and by ASHTALEN 3705 RM, most of its settlements were starving, unable to receive supplies from the rest of the empire. KORACHANI reinforcements fought through the blockade the next month to successfully deliver reinforcements, and much needed supplies to the island.

The siege lasted for 16-months, and was only lifted with the signing of the $\underline{\mathsf{SARASTROAN}}$ TREATY.

MALGAIR: Set. Military industrial city in the south east of PHYRR.
Originally a typical Phyrran city-manufactory, it was converted to the manufacture of tanks and other heavy military equipment for use in the NACRE WAR in c. 3970 RM, before Phyrr officially declared war on neighbouring MAENMIST (Pop. c. 40,000).

MALGRA: his. Soc. One of two brothers, the other being DUGRN, who together founded the ancient oghur nation of FALLDRG.

MALGRANA: Wea. Winter easterly winds that blow from the BATHASHAL

OCEAN to the north east of BROR^(1.), bringing cold winds and rains to AKHELIZ, KASHAAL and the south of KASIHAAL.

MALIAL: Set. fortified coastal city in the west of GREST^(1.) in the island-continent of BROR^(1.). The city was originally built along the MELADIUS fortifications, and much of its foundations are made from the same reinforced concrete as nearby colossi-bunkers (Pop. c. 45,000).

MALICH: Set. City in Tartak, ruled since 1843 RM by the Obeah
Asker, a deathless Sorcerer who is responsible for the construction of SIPHON ENGINES in the south of Tartak (Pop. c. 50,000).

MALICHALEN: Cal. In the KORACHANI CALENDAR, the first month of twelve, comprising 30-days. It is named after the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR and is considered the first of three months of winter. See Vol II: Months and Lunar Cycle in Elyden.

MALICHAR: 1. Pol. Rel. His. Myt. OTHERWORLDER, and ruler of the KORACHANI EMPIRE. See ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, RULER OF THE HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN AND DIVINE HAND OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, STEWARD OF THE SEVEN NATIONS OF THE INNER SEA, HEAD OF THE CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, GENERAL OF THE STEEL LEGIONS, HARBINGER OF THE SHADOW, WIELDER OF, AND BLESSED BY, THE UMBRA, THE.

2. also 'the Archpotentate'. Ast. Con. Constellation in the NORTHERN HEMISPHERE. See Vol II: Constellations.

MALICHAR, BELLS OF: see BELLS OF MALICHAR.

MALICHAR, RELICS OF: Rel. Obj. Per. Throughout the history of the KORACHANI EMPIRE various objects have gained prominence that are purported to be relics associated the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR – be they items he owned (the sword TARTARUCH, or the shield AEGIS, for instance), objects he touched or blessed (the BELL OF ST. MALICHAR, the statue of MALICHAR RISEN, the body of ST. VALENS, the MAST of THE SERAPH), and his MORTAL body (in the BASILICA OF THE HOLY RELIQUARY).

Other so-called 'relics' have emerged over the years, including shrouds bearing his blood and/or sweat (the EBON SHROUD being the only verified example), and various body parts (despite his entire body being on display in the Basilica of the Holy Reliquary), amongst many others, though the authenticity of these is questioned by most scholars.

Despite this, there exists a healthy business in the displaying and, in some cases, selling, of these relics to the faithful. Many are put on display along the passage of the SHADOW MARCH, where they charge pilgrims to view and venerate them. Many of these disingenuous relics and displays are hunted down and destroyed (or confiscated, in cases where there is a possibility of authenticity) by agents of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE and the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION.

There are some cases of a singular relic being claimed by multiple shrines and individuals, leading to disputes regarding authenticity of claims. In many cases there is little the Church can do about these claims other than informing the laity of the possibility of 'misidentified' relics scattered across the empire and beyond, and which one, if any, it considers to be genuine (or most likely to be genuine).

MALICHAR TRIUMPHANT: Arc. Soc. Idol in the KORACHANI PENINSULA in the west of KORACHAN, less than 10-miles outside the city of KORACHAN, looking south to the BLACK FOUNTAIN. The statue depicts the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, and is huge, standing 470-feet tall including its base, and is impossible for approaching vessels to ignore.

MALICHAR MARTYRED, SANCTUARY OF: Rel. Str. Chapel in the settlement of IRVEA in the south west of AZAZEM, famed for its miraculous statue of MALICHAR MARTYRED that is said to bleed blood. Though the blood is in truth an oily liquid tainted with rust from the statue, its source is still unverified and was, in 3388 RM, verified as a miraculous event by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. Since then, it has been a site of pilgrimage to many people in Azazem, and the surrounding settlement has grown considerably to cater to the pilgrims.

MALICHAR OZHA: Arc. Soc. Great iron idol erected in LYRIDIA DHAI, some 90-miles north east of the city of TERARA to commemorate the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR'S arrival into the nation in 348 RM. The idol remains to this day, where for many years it served as a marker denoting the boundaries of the three Lyridia Dhaian states of COTHON, TERARA and VEPAR. Since the growth of Terara's borders it became part of its own territories.

MALICHAR RISEN: Art. Arc. White marble statue of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR that was built outside the city-state of EKATON in c. 250 RM following a vision that a young girl had of MALICHAR risen astride a pale horse few decades before. At the time, his whereabouts were unknown after his disappearance in NARTHEL in 84 RM, and the vision was considered prophetic by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE.

The statue stands around 20-ft. high and depicts Malichar astride the pale horse of the vision, with one foreleg up. At his feet are the mangled bodies and banners of his enemies, representing the nations he had subjugated before his disappearance.

The statue drew many pilgrims to it and it became a popular destination. Its popularity increased exponentially after 340 RM, when the Archpotentate, newly reborn as an OTHERWORLDER, passed through Ekaton on his way back to KHADON, riding a white horse, just as the vision had shown. He saw the statue and blessed it, stopping to celebrate an impromptu mass, during which various miracles were reported in the region immediately surrounding the states, including healings and visions.

The site was declared holy by the Church of the Undying Machine in 347 RM and a church was constructed around the statue. Completed in 382 RM, the church was named the church of Malichar risen and was marked as a shrine and became a site of pilgrimage to devotees of the UNDYING MACHINE, and it was gradually expanded, with a monastery added to it in 732 RM. Over the years it was replaced twice, once in 1277 RM following an earthquake in which the first incarnation was severely damaged; and again in 2262 RM, when the growth of the surrounding city (by then known as MORACHI) necessitated a new church, which became as a BASILICA.

MALICHAR RISEN, BASILICA OF: see MALICHAR RISEN.

MALICHARI DESERT: see MOLACHARI DESERT.

MALICHARA: see SATHEPRA.

MALICHARIAN SISTERS, ORDER OF: Rel. Org. Religious order founded by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR in ARGEA, SARASTRO, following his victory there in 339 RM. Following the instatement of the KORACHANI regime there, Malichar performed the MIRACLE OF THE MASSES, restoring life to 66 anchorites who had been killed by Sarastroan guerrillas after the surrender of the nation to Korachan. Following the act, he stated that that place would forevermore be a haven to those who dedicated their life to him.

Soon, a priory was established on the site, and the healed anchorites were given individual cells away from the attentions of the masses. The priory attracted many devotees – many who sought out the anchorites to revere them, though others sought to become sisters, dedicating their lives to Malichar, spreading word of his teachings across the burgeoning empire.

The priory rapidly grew in size, and by 980 RM a new wing was added, becoming a seminary where ENDOCRINES and EXOCRINES were trained.

Following the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM, the order was granted safe passage to Korachan, where the priory and seminary were relocated to the city of HIALIA, where they remain to this day.

MALICHARICHAN: lit. 'City of Malichar'. Set. City in the north east of PELASGOS. It has a long history dating back to c. -1000 RM. By c. -600 RM it had become a powerful city-state, taking surrounding lands as vassals. It was known as PEONA before the arrival of the KORACHANI EMPIRE to Pelasgos in 73 RM, after which attempts were made to rename it in honour of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, though the populace objected to Korachani rule, rising against their occupiers in 95 RM, leading a rebellion that disrupted the imperial settlements of north eastern Pelasgos. The city was finally returned to Korachani rule in 138 RM, and its influential families and institutions were disbanded, taken south as SLAVES, and imperial immigrants instated in their place.

The city is known for its vast coastal scrappards, where ancient hulks are brought to be scrapped, the remnants sold to metal merchants and foundries. It also forms part of THE SHADOW MARCH, serving pilgrims moving north into VARR. In 986 RM it gained independence, becoming a city-state of its own, trading with Korachan and the east, particularly AHRISHEN, though it was later reabsorbed by the parent state of Pelasgos.

Today, Malicharichan is a major industrial centre and is a primary stop along the RED ROUTE. It is also home to the MINASTERIA^(2.) of ONAGOGIN, and as a result it is home to a large population of young PATRICIANS from across the empire who are studying to become Onagogin (Pop. c. 1,420,000).

MALICHAR'S GRIMACE: Rel. Obj. Holy icon, said to depict the face of the Archpotentate Malichar following his death at the hands of the Demiurge Rachanael in 212 RM. The imprinting of his face was declared a miracle at the conclave of Khadon in 253 RM.

It became a powerful artefact that changed hands many times over the ensuing years, never making it to the capital. Following a long tenure in OCTIRA in PELASGOS, it was believed to have gone missing in c. 1300 RM and its present whereabouts are unknown.

MALICHUL: Rvr. River in the west of SARASTRO, flowing west for 450-miles from the KRAONA badlands, before meeting its parent, the river MORUL.

MALIHAE IO SGIROUT: m. (B. 3777 – D. 3904 RM) Pol. Per. Historic king of ROMOREA^(2.) who ascended the throne following his FATHER'S death in 3859 RM. He is remembered today for having erected the great COLOSSI OF ROMOREA, which overlook the STRAIT OF FATA.

MALIK: 1. Pol. Rnk. Ruling title in CAMMEA.

2. KORACHANI scholar, famous for writing MALIK'S TREATISE ON THE UNHOLY WRITINGS OF THE BLOOD-CULTISTS OF KARAKHAS.

MALIK'S TREATISE ON THE UNHOLY WRITINGS OF THE BLOOD-CULTISTS OF KARAKHAS: Vol. Treatise written in 2532 RM by the scholar MALIK⁽²⁾. The treatise is an IMPERIAL textbook, intended for use by EXOCRINES and other church members operating in the lands of KARAKHAS. A largely informative text, this work is important for its many depictions of everyday life during the decades preceding the books' printing; an invaluable tool to historians looking back at that period.

MALIKAN OF DHERBA, FIRST HIEROMONARCH: (B. 3138 – D. 3207 RM) Pol. First of the HIEROMONARCHS to rule RHEA after they overtook the AUDARIAN DYNASTIES and took over ARRETOY, changing its name to Rhea, in 3192 RM. He is considered a national hero in IACIO, where the Hieromonarchs still reign to this day.

MALIKHAT: 1. Sea. Bay off the southern coast of EZASUH⁽²⁾, forming a part of the Sea of Ezasuh⁽¹⁾. Its waters are relatively deep and its narrow inlet was the chosen as the landing point for SAGITTAARI exiles.

- 2. Geo. Original landing point^(2,) and settlement of $\underline{SAGITTAARI}$ exiles in $\underline{EZASUH}^{(2,)}$. The original settlement is now around 2 miles from the present coastline and is abandoned.
- 3. Set. Extant city and shipyards in EZASUH^(2,) situated close to original landing point above (Pop. c. 15,500).

MALITET: Sct. One of three cities in the ESHELI region of ETUL, with the other two being ALIKAHKAT and ENERKHAT. Together they form a loose confederacy and trade network, with little links to the outside world other than occasional trade with Etul. Sundered from Etul proper in 3529 RM following an edict and excommunication, Malitet has since become is a place shaped by its ruler – a twin-winged angelic OTHERWORLDER whose rule is harsh and heavy-handed to safeguard the liberties of its citizens (Pop. c. 105,000).

MALKARRA: 1. Sea. Sea strait in the north of VAALK, between the mainland and the island of EDARA.

2. Set. Settlement on the island of EDARA in the north of VAALK, providing the forts there with food and other supplies (Pop. c. 9,000).

MALKATH: Set. Small city and surrounding tin and lead mining settlements in the c south of ATARAXIA, just west of the OSOMATHIA forest (Pop. c. 14,200).

MALKUTH: Rvr. River in the south east of GNOTH, flowing for 700-miles south from sources in the CROSLET and GRYPHOSS Mountains before meeting its parent, the river ACHAMOTH.

MALL: For. Large wooded wetland region in the c north of VAALK, along the course of the river RAANA and its sources. The region is purportedly populated by a quatically-adapted $\underline{\mbox{GRUAIMIN}}$ who live in nests built in the low trees.

MALLAR: Set. Major city in KARAKHAS, forming part of THE SHADOW MARCH. It existed prior to the KORACHANI occupation of 121 RM, after which its name was changed to MALLARACHAN, though this name never became popular and remained unused outside an official capacity, which was itself abandoned by c. 1100 RM.

The city is renowned for the large stylised copper statue within the Shrine of the Penumbral Miracle depicting the Triptych as a three-headed chimera, with the empire in the middle, the Archpotentate Malichar on the left, and the Undying Machine on the right. that exists within a church depicting the Triptych. The statue is an object of veneration for it is said to have been visited and touched by Malichar himself on a rare sojourn to Karakhas in 3622 RM. As a result, the statue is touched by all those who visit it, leading to its feet being polished copper while the rest of the statue is stained green from verdigris (Pop. c. 238,000).

MALLARACHAN: see MALLAR.

MALLAREON: Set. City in the c east of SABAISA, to the east of US'HUT Mountains, overlooking the BAY OF BERITH, at a distance of 15-miles. It is known for its large ARKS OF PORPHYR, which dominate the land surrounding the city (Pop. c. 28,000).

MALL VORAKAN: see VORAKAN HIGHLANDS.

MALMOR: Rvr. Major river in the south west of SAMMAEA, flowing north from sources in the north west of the TALENTARI Mountains through the south of BELEGOR and west into c CARNYNGA before emptying into the VOORMIN SEA.

MALOLUR: Set. Fortified city in the south west of ELEKHID, along the course of the river YAGNOTH PHTHAN (Pop. c. 38,000).

MALOMUN: 1. Sea. Long and narrow sea inlet in the north east of PARTHIS, over 115-miles long. It divides the mainland in the west from the headland of CETECIA in the east.

2. Rvr. Stream in the north east of PARTHIS, flowing north for over 35-miles, emptying into the eponymous⁽¹⁾ Bay.

MALPHAS: his. Set. In TEMUIA, place originally called NEW VALGHAR. The settlement was founded by the seer OTHEOTOKOS over the ruins of VALGHAR. The place quickly became known to locals and outsiders alike as Malphas, which in Otheotokos's vision was an OTHERWORLDER who told him to build the city.

MALRA: Rui. Largest of the AHRAMANI pyramids in the UMBRA SOKHAR, believed to be over 1,000-ft. high.

MALU: For. Dense CENTURY PLANT forest filling the south eastern expanses of I'THANA. The place is dense to the point of inaccessibility and few are those who brave its dangerous heart; said to be hide various ruins of ancient days.

MAMARACE: Set. City in the c of ELAT, along the course of the river NYISUS, at the sharp bend where it turns south, just north of the wetlands of LIOMA (Pop. c. 37,000).

MAMASUS: (B. 3457 RM) Mys. Prophet in SURUTUR who in 3486 RM discovered the ancient embalmed heart known as KEGHUARON, which is now worshipped in the nation.

MAMITA: Set. Major open-cast diamond mine in the DELOMIG region of SARASTRO (Pop. c. 17,800).

MAMLUK: Mil. Rnk. Professional soldier caste in NAARETH and KHITAI that is drafted from male electives converted to the worship of THE VOLUTE. Following seven years' service, mamluks retire and become citizens; the most widespread method through which a man can attain certain rights in Naareth. Despite this reputation, very few live longenough to be granted this luxury due to the rigours of the position.

MAMMAR PALAN: (B. 3957 RM) Pol. Current Archminister of ELAT, elected to power in 4003 RM.

MAMMEN: Geo. Expansive roughlands forming a natural border between the UMBRA SOKHAR, AETHIOS, and RHINOCOLOURA.

MAMMON: Set. Coastal city in the south west of KORACHAN. It was once a rich trade port where many pilgrims congregated in the hopes of seeking passage south to KHARKHARADONTIS, though is now landlocked. Many of the Imperial wars into Kharkharadontis would originate in this city, making it very wealthy, though it is now little more than an agricultural centre (Pop. c. 8,000).

MAMMOTH: 1. Fau. Gigantic shaggy THEROPSIN common to the lands north of the POLAR CIRCLE in the northern hemisphere. There are two distinct kinds – the larger darker Llachatuli mammoth that lives in the north of RAONGEN⁽²⁾, VALBAR and PERGOST, and the smaller more hunched russet Meniscean mammoth that lives in the north of EASTERN MENISCEA, in northern THANO, IMEAL, and ARERAQTH. WESTERN LLACHATUL.

They are similar to elephants but are larger and covered in a thick mane of shaggy fur that protects them from the cold. Traditionally, they were hunted and used as mounts or beasts of burden by indigenous people, though their numbers have waned in recent centuries, with their numbers restricted to the wildernesses where mortals do not dwell. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

2. Geo. Large coastal mountain range in the north west of PERGOST, overlooking the SEA OF BAEFIR.

3. Set. City in PERGOST, overlooking the SEA OF BAEFIR. When polar ice diminishes in summer, the city sees much increased sea traffic as vessels from other settlements (normally cut off from Mammoth) make their way there to trade.

Vessels also head north west from Mammoth following the retreat of sea ice, exploring and gathering resources along the northern-most coasts of LLACHATUL. This includes whaling. Which is a major resource (Pop. c. 26,000).

MAMMOTH, LLACHATULI: see MAMMOTH.

MAMMOTH, MENISCEAN: see MAMMOTH.

MAMMUTON: Set. Settlement in the c south of SUMA'YA, close to the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of RUATHA. The settlement was, during the height of KORACHANI occupancy, a major metropolis, boasting a population in excess of 500,000, though a period of increased Atramental activity in the region in c. c. 2680 RM saw much of the population killed and the city later abandoned, though the ATRAMENTAL TAINTED later receded to previous levels. Within a few decades the city was repopulated, with most people scavenging from the ruins of the old city. It remains a ghost town compared with its previous height though is slowly growing (Pop. c. 10,000).

MAMOT IKH: also 'the White Palace'. Rui. Ruined citadel in the south east of PERGOST, predating the grey brutalist architecture of the ELDRIAN empire, and thought to date back to the early FIFTH AGE. It is surrounded by miles of ruined foundations, indicating that the citadel was surrounded by a large settlement, little of which survives today.

MANADARAS: Rvr. Major river in the east of THE VORANDINE, flowing east for 995-miles from sources in the SMYURMA Mountains, IAPEGRAN Massif, and the IGRASIAN BASIN, before meeting the coast at lake TAHONG.

MANAKOU: Com. Set. Fortified city in the north west of PARAIYA. It is a commercial centre in the region, and has links to KARAKHAS (Pop. c. 40,000).

MANAN: Set. City in the north west of HOAMM, on the western coast of the HOANALLI peninsula. The city was once a source of much trade though it has dwindled in recent years (Pop. c. 47,000).

MANARAGON: Sup. Rnk. Rank of ATRAMENTIST in PARTHIS, forming an important part of most settlements' leadership and serving as aides or confidentes to governors. Their abilities are usually tied to TELEPATHY, AMANUENSIS or similar spheres that are helpful in their governmental roles.

MANARAT, HEART OF THE MENISCUS: Int. Mys. Sup. Str. Monolithic structure in the heart of the TRUE MENISCUS, in TULURKRYPH^(1.), its origins unknown.

MANATTOY: Sec. Small city in the c east of RHEA, around 25-miles south of the capital of DHERBA. It is a major source of grains and food for the capital (Pop. c. 12,000).

MANCHR: Rel. Cult, established c. 750 in SARASTRO. Little else is known about it, though it was eradicated within a few hundred years of its first appearance.

MANDIBULA: Pol. Ser. Metropolis and capital of the TWILIGHT STATES. Once coastal, it is now linked to the sea through a series of massive canals and boat lifts that stretch 7-miles to the coast and are maintained at great coast. The city itself is sprawling and dominated by spire-like city-blocks, interspersed with grand opera houses, public halls, stadia, and other places of entertainment for its decadent denizens (Pop. c. 220,000).

MANDEFAHR: Pol. Str. PALACE^(1.) of the ATALLUAN HENDECARCH in the DAURAENT Mountains.

MANDRAKE: Fau. KORACHANI name for a form of androgynous-looking HALFBLOODS known for their shricking voices and gnarled scabrous appearances. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MANED WOLF: Fau. large canine native to the western-coast and north of Brorg(1.), known for its long stilt-like legs, and fox-like colouration. They are native to KASIHAAL, RASTAN, north eastern Bror^(2.), and KASHAAL, though are now only common in Kasihaal, where lack of mortal spread in the SOLFERIN PLAINS has allowed them to thrive. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MANES: Plr. 'Manesi', also 'sewercreep'. Sup. Mor. Atramentally Tainted mortals commonly likened to DEGENERATES or AL GHULS, who live in dark shunned places, like crypts, sewers, ruins, and buried remnants of regraded streets across CENTRAL LLACHATUL, particularly KORACHANI and ALMAGESTI cities, subsisting on what they find in their darkened homes. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MANESKARKON ZARRÉ OF THE TAHLIB, SEVENTH OF THE ELEVEN: x. Pol. Oth, Sup. Per. (B. unknown) Eleventh of the HENDECARCHS of MALAN and ruler of the HENDECARCHY of CYRENIA. The longest serving of Hendecarchs, they have ruled Cyrenia for over 700 years, and in that time their character and indeed their rule has changed considerably.

They originally rose to power in Cyrenia as an OTHERWORLDER with oracular abilities. Named Zarré, they rapidly became a powerful influence in the area, attracting many followers. A TEMPLE was built in their honour and a large city slowly emerged around it, growing more influential than the capital in SORGIN. Known as ENIGOST⁽²⁾, it would continue to grow as Sorgin dwindled, and it was officially christened as the new capital in c. 3280 RM, soon after Zarré had become Hendecarch and was renamed Maneskarkon, which roughly translates as 'Prophet of the hearts'.

They established the order of the TAHLIB early in the 34th century, and the temple, by then a large complex, was renamed as the Temple of the Tahlib. The Tahlib became a ubiquitous policing force, using divination to predict crimes, bringing law to the Hendecarchy. However, over time, the Tahlib, much like their ruler, became corrupted by their power.

The predictions of Zarré, which had been the source of their rise to power, dwindled after they became Hendecarch, and their overall demeanour altered too. Instead of glimpse of the future, Zarré instead imparted deep wisdom, believed by some to be remnants of secrets from the otherworld, demanding tribute and favours in return. Thusly they were able to maintain power and twist people to their debt.

In 3682 RM the Hendecarchies of AONIA, HATON and NHORA marched against Cyrenia to depose Zarré, and as their armies surrounded Enigost a ceasefire was declared and the LADY AEGIS herself marched into the Temple of the Tahlib, which by then Zarré had turned into their palace. They spoke for three days and nights and when the Lady Aegis emerged, she spoke one word to the three attacking Hendecarchs: 'leave', and since then the rule of Zarré has been unchallenged, despite the growing tyranny behind their rule.

MANGATA: Rel. Set. Settlement and major monastery in the c north of NAARETH. The monastery is devoted to a cult, known as the ORDER OF MANGATA, that worships the IVORY MOON (Pop. c. 2,000).

MANGATA, ORDER OF: Rel. Soc. Worshippers of the IVORY MOON in in the eponymous settlement in NAARETH.

MANIFESTATION, the: Oth. Group of 22 OTHERWORLDERS that was reborn in the city of LAAGROTH in 3496 RM. the group was canonised in 3499 RM after increased fanaticism around them within the city, though little is otherwise known of them.

MANIFESTATION IN LAAGROTH, the: Rel. His. Event that occurred in the city of LAAGROTH in the west of LAASKHA in 3496 RM, where 22 OTHERWORLDERS appeared over the market square, within sight of hundreds of people. It is rare for an otherworlder to be reborn in sight of a mortal, and almost unheard of for such a large number to be reborn in such a crowded place. The otherworlders dispersed following their appearance, though the event caused a great panic in the city, which within a year culminated with a birth of a new cult that celebrated them as angels of the UNDYING MACHINE, and in 3499 RM they were officially canonised by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE as saints of the Undying Machine to prevent the chances of heresy, with church propaganda claiming that they returned at the behest of the Undying Machine and spread across the empire as its apostles.

A few are said to have been sighted again after that time, though never together, and rarely in regions where $\underline{\text{THE MANIFESTATION}}$, as the group of otherworlders became known, are common knowledge.

MANIFORM BEAST: Int. Sup. Fau. Dre. Grotesque ONEIROI 'endemic' to the DREAMSCAPE of GERIGASHA, in the north east of GRARNEÂST. They are horrific, and appear like two giant conjoined hands, their fingers long and spindly, like a grotesque arachnid. Their body is dominated by a round maw, circled by sharp teeth from which protrudes a phallic proboscis that ends in a long needle that is used to attack its prey, which is left paralysed, at the mercy of the disturbing beast.

They are dangerous, and are of a great risk to trade and travel in the region.

MANILL, ORDER OF THE: Org. Ascetic monastic order in THE HARÉSHK, composed mostly of FIRMAMENTISTS, concentrated near ANGEL FALLS.

MANIPULATION: Sup. Soc. The process by which a SHAPER uses the FIRMAMENT or ATRAMENTA to achieves various results. The term is synonymous with SHAPING, though often carries more negative connotations and is more common to lands in the east of the INNER SEA.

MANIPULIST: Sup. Mys. as MANIPULATION is a different way of saying SHAPING, so too is a manipulist a different name for a SHAPER. It is uncommon in the INNER SEA REGION though it is more common farther east, where FIRMAMENTISM is more common. See Vol IV: Other Forms of Mysticism.

MANKH: (B. 412 – D. 473 RM) Pol. Warlord of GOETHAN^(2,) descent and later Triarch of Hara, following the death of King SAEMDAR in battle in 438 RM.

MANN: Myr. His. Mor. The first of the seven MORTALS born to the TRIBE of AVRAHAM. He became a powerful leader, the descendants of which would become royalty and influential people as the human race spread from its birthplace.

MANN UYGR: Sec. settlement in the c south of CYHLAGHARR (Pop. c. 3,000).

MANNA: Flo. Obj. Sap of the MANNA TREE, specifically after treating and drying and being turned into resin. The sap of the tree is a rich golden honey colour and is very sweet. When hardened into resin (either naturally or through artificial means) it can be consumed, though is very fattening if consumed regularly. The resin is consumed by SHAPERS to help them conserve their strength, which is easily drained by repeated acts of shaping. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MANNA TREE: Int. Flo. Ancient species of tree found in small numbers in the tropical forests of EASTERN SAMMAEA, particularly the east of WAELMIGH, largely in ELEKHID and also parts of CHEIRA, PNESSA, and GIBEAH. The sap of the tree (commonly called MANNA) is a rich golden honey colour and is very sweet. When hardened into resin (either naturally or through artificial means) it can be consumed, though is very fattening if consumed regularly. In antiquity, when the manna tree was more abundant, the resin was consumed by shapers, whose actions are very exhausting, requiring the consumption of certain foods to keep their strength up. Today, the trees are less common than they once were and the gathering of the manna is mostly regulated.

Some scholars link the manna tree with the $\underline{\text{TREE OF AMARANA}}$, which is mentioned in the $\underline{\textit{MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN}}$ as a singular tree created by the $\underline{\text{DEMIURGE}}$ ARIMASPI to serve as nourishment for his favoured creations, the $\underline{\text{EELYOUHNS}}$ and $\underline{\text{AIKLAHS}}$. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MANNAH: 1. Geo. Glacier in the far north east of GNOTH, in the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains.

2. Mil. Str. Major fortress guarding a pass north across the $\underline{NARAHASAPHAEL}$ Mountains.

MANNAU: Set. Coastal city in the east of KASPIA (Pop. c. 40,000).

MANNAL ITRUSH: Sea. Large lagoon off the south western coast of SAMMAEA, to the east of the SHIELD ISLES, bordered by various islands, reefs, sand bars and atolls. It is relatively shallow and is known for its plentiful sea life.

MANNALAN, ORDER OF: 1. Mys. Org. Order of Oneiromancer based on the island of KILAWADA in FALLAROUR. They emerged in c. 2900 RM after many ancient steel stellae, now known collectively as MANNALAN STELLAE, were discovered on islands bordering the MANNAL ITRUSH. The stellae act as ONEIRIC FOCI (2.) of varying quality, depending on the condition that they are found in, and they are sought after by members of the order for their usefulness.

SHAPERS of the order can often be found travelling around the SHIELD ISLES, and the CORAL BARONIES, in search of new stellae.

2. Str. Org. Headquarters of the above organisation^(1,), on the island of KILAWADA in FALLAROUR. It was built in c. 2940 RM on an ancient basaltic fortress, though was expanded ad built upwards, and down, into its old catacombs. It is home to the oneiromancers of the order, though many of their number spend months on the road searching for more MANNALAN STELLAE to study.

MANNALAN STELLAE, the: His. Mys. Obj. Ancient steel stellae found on the islands of the states of FALLAROUR and the CORAL BARONIES surrounding the waters of the MANNAL ITRUSH. They predate the middle FIFTH AGE nation of AMMASH⁽³⁾ though little is known of this period of history, so their purpose and origins remain unknown. They are believed to be ONEIRIC FOCI⁽²⁾, so it is possible that they were used by Oneiromancers, though to what ends are unknown.

Around three dozen individual stellae were unearthed and documented by KORACHANI explorers in c. 2820 RM and taken back to KHADON, where they remain today, scattered across various museums, libraries and private collections. Since then, many more are believed to have been found though most of these are rapidly snatched up by a Fallarouri order of Oneiromancers known as the ORDER OF MANNALAN, though it is thought that many more have been discovered by fishermen and other uneducated individuals, who discard them, believing them to be trinkets of little value.

MANNON: Set. Small fortified city in the region of HATTRE in the c east of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 15,500).

MANOLORA: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY-TAINTED region to the far east of the KHINCHIR valleys. It is around 4,500 square miles in size and is noted for its DUSTSTONE formations and their brittle nature.

The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

MANRAH: Set. City in ARKOS⁽¹⁾, to the north east of DUN MHAQ. One of the largest non-mount settlements in Arkos, Manrah appeared in c. 900 RM, becoming a vassal of DUN SVARR by c. 1100 RM, serving mainly to provide the larger cities with adequate food and industrial supplies. The city was flooded in 3701 RM following unanticipated flooding of a tributary of the river THAUR. The resultant damage and disease decimated its population, though it has since been rebuilt and now forms a part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 20,000).

MANSION: Pol. Geo. The political divisions of the nation of GREST^(1.) in the west of the island-continent of BROR^(1.). The nation is divided into three Mansions, each of which is ruled by one of three HE'ELAN ARCHDUKES. The Mansions are FURFUR^(1.) in the north, which is ruled by the Archduke ARA YETZIRAH; Grest^(2.) in the centre, which is ruled by JURASAMA YETZIRAH; and SITRI^(1.) in the south, which is ruled by IEBESH YETZIRAH.

The mansions were introduced in c. 3781 RM after Jurasama successfully deposed the ruling monarchy and taking control of the capital city of Sceld.

MANT ITRUSH: Sea. Lagoon in the north of the CORAL BARONIES, to the south west of the SAMMAEA, located between the island of IREN

BARA and the LYCTON Isles, to the south of the SHIBBOTHA ISLES. The lagoon is shallow and the surrounding area is largely unpopulated.

MANTEGNA: m. Mys. Per. (D. c. 1774 RM) A PATRICIAN and mystic from KORACHAN who is remembered for having revived the tradition of using TAROKKA cards in mystic traditions across the INNER SEA. He was a mystic himself and studied various esoteric teachings, many of which had been banned by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE.

MANTICORE: Fau. Aberrant creature native to the savannahs of eastern BROR^(1.). The creature is considered an aberration (RACHAR) and has fascinated NEAR HEMISPHERE scholars since its discovery by explorers dome 2-millennia ago. It is unique in that different generations have (specifically two) different morphologies, not unlike the metamorphosis that takes place between a pupa and adult insect, though experienced across two distinct generations – parent and child, with the child giving birth to 'pupal' offspring, which in turn given birth to 'adult' offspring.

The 'pupal' generation is similar to a large worm or larva, around 2 ft. long, with two pairs of small spider-like limbs positioned close together in its forequarters, providing rudimentary locomotion. A small lamprey-like mouth is surrounded by four unblinking black eyes. Individuals live for around 2 – 3 years and have an omnivorous scavenging diet, eating anything from decaying plant matter to carcasses, favouring roots. They are good burrowers and spend most of their time underground. They reproduce sexually, and give birth to single young, which grow up into the 'adult generation. Their bloated maggot-like bodies are a rich source of protein, both directly (when eaten by predators and scavengers) and indirectly (with their phosphorus-, nitrogen-, and calcium-rich blood serving as a fantastic fertiliser) and they are a vital part of the food chain. MORTALS who live close to their native lands poach individuals for food.

The 'adult' generation is of interesting morphology, with a large vertically-oriented mouth with two pairs of strong pouncing legs beyond which is a prehensile tail with a stinger on its end. The stinger delivers a particularly virulent venom that paralyses those struck by it in seconds, leading to respiratory failure and a rapid death. They are carnivorous, as likely to hunt as they are to scavenge, and adults can reach lengths of around 10-ft. excluding the tail. Like the 'pupal' generation, they reproduce sexually, and give birth to litters of as many as eight 'larval' young, which then continue the cycle.

It has been noted that a mix of 'pupal' and 'adult' generations introduced to the same area will, over some year, synchronise their generational cycles, though this may not necessarily correspond with the cycle of other isolated groups. It is thought that this synchronisation of cycles is of benefit to the manticores, with the pupal generation

Attempts at domesticating the pupal forms have proven fruitless due to their reproductive cycles

There has been little true research into the nature of manticores, with some claiming that their ancestors are NIGHTMARE CREATURES that were somehow able to breed pure, or that they are perhaps the progeny of ancient experiments, or even the works of one of the DEMIURGES of old. The lack of any living creatures remotely related to them means that it is unlikely that we will ever know the truth. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MANTIS: 1. Plr. 'mantids'. Mar. Rnk. A caste of divinely appointed assassins with roots in PRE-SUNDERING KORACHAN, though today they are most common in KORACHAN, SKAROS, LAASKHA and ALMAGEST.

Their origins can be traced back to pre-imperial Laaskha (c. –150 RM), when they were champions of the deity SETHENYN. Later on, their role evolved into that of executioners and harriers. With the appointment of the TYRANT OF BALAAM as Laaskha's lord and steward in 15 RM, the custom was introduced to the Imperial administration of the region, and it remains in use to this day. Mantids are not always human, and are often HALFBLOODS or otherwise can be ATRAMENTALLY-altered creatures, which are better-suited to the role.

2. Med. Magickally-sensitive drug that has been used by SHAPERS to aid in ONEIROMANCY and ASTRAL PROJECTION. It is shunned by most due to its extremely vivid horrifying hallucinations that are, regardless of extraneous influence, identical in nature. The hallucinations invariously depict a hellish landscape wracked by chromatic storms and ephemeral phenomena in which dwell cannibalistic humanoid creatures that resemble praying mantises, from which the name of the drug is derived.

The individual hallucinations vary greatly, though details, such as the landscape and its denizens remain constant.

The drug originates as a salt-like mineral in the c of the VESPERTINE LEAGUE that is dissolved in natural alkalines (most commonly almond milk) at specific temperatures and intervals and reduced to a crystalline concentrate that is placed on the tongue and allowed to dissolve, ideally after long periods of fasting. Aside from psychoses and violent episodes whilst under the effects of the drug, overuse can lead to agonising headaches, wasting of the body, permanent paranoias, and degradation of memory.

Some have proposed that the similarities in hallucinations could mean that the drug allows those who consume it to experience distant as yet undiscovered lands, such as via clairaudience or astral projection See Vol II: Drugs and Addictions.

MANTUS: Set. Major fortified city in the north west of NALARDIL. It was fortified in defence against the armies of OSSIEL, though relations between the two nations are now favourable and many of the bastions are now unmanned. It is also a stop along the EGETAKHAN ROAD (Pop. c. 110,000).

MANTARA: Geo. Mountain pass between the STYLITH and KHO HAGOR
Mountains, linking the east of ARKOS^(1.) and the south west of SARASTRO. It was once well-travelled by merchants though has largely fallen into disuse today.

MANTRA: Fau. Horse-size carnivorous SYNAPSID, similar to a MONITOR⁽²⁾. they are native to JURRAS⁽²⁾ and KARAKHAS. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MANUBRA: Ast. Set. Major OBSERVATORY-CITY in the c north east of AQUARIIA, built on a flat-topped hill. Its highest levels are dominated by the large domes of observatories, and all lights in the city must be extinguished by a certain time to allow for celestial observations to be carried out (Pop. c. 138,000).

MANUFACTORIA: Ind. Set. MANUFACTORY city in the c-south east of PARTHIS, it is dominated by a monolithic stepped pyramidical structure within which is the manufactory after which it is named. Though once of uniform design, today it its sides have become asymmetrical, covered in piping and vents from the large network of subterranean manufactories that have grown beneath it, which specialise in the manufacture of TECHNARCANA, TRANSIENT ENGINES, and HARDSUITS. Surrounding this great edifice are the domiciles and smaller businesses needed for the great city to run.

The city is structured around a feudal hierarchy, with nobles given large sections of the factory which they lease out to families and workers. They are expected to pay a tithe back to their superiors in the form of a percentage of their produce. They in turn pass those on to their overseers, who pass them on to the Manufacturer General.

It originated as a small caravanserai along the RED ROUTE in c. 1200 RM, rapidly growing as stockrooms and merchant-houses were funded, followed by foundries and manufactories. It became dedicated to the manufacturing industry by c. 2500 RM and became the most productive city in Parthis by 2700 RM. Amongst other items, it is today specialised in the manufacture of REALITY SUITS. The city is surrounded by the sludge wastes of ACHAL, in which SCAVS and other destitutes eke out a living (Pop. c. 2,020,000).

MANUFACTORIA TECHNA: Lan. Ind. Soc. General term for manufactories in the KORACHANI EMPIRE concerned with making a variety of complex objects such as engines and machinery.

MANUFACTORY: also 'Cathedral-manufactory' or just 'factory'. Ind. Str. Soc. In the most general sense, manufactories are industrial structures where labourers or machines manufacture goods (steel and engines) or process raw materials (for instance, iron into steel ingots for use in other manufactories).

The driving-force behind the rampant growth of industrialisation around the INNER SEA, large manufactories first appearing in c. 1500 RM during a period of economic growth within the KORACHANI EMPIRE as it consolidated its many subjugated nations.

Manufactories come in various forms, with the most basic being little more that large areas where slave- or indentured-labourers toil in seemingly unending shifts. On the other extreme are the advanced manufactories of PARTHIS or the west of PELASGOS, which are largely automated; their HEART ENGINES controlling the actions of vast hallways of intricate and often archaic engines that smelt, hammer, and assemble myriad different items. The more common varieties fall somewhere in between, with large machinery forming the heart of the manufactories, and a sizeably slave-labour working in the peripheries, either maintaining the engines, or doing the detailed work that the machinery cannot cope with

MANUFACTORY, FOOD: see DROSS FARM.

MANUMISSION OF THE CLONES, the: Pol. Soc. His. Mil. Major historical event that took place in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, beginning in 3845 RM, and lasting until c. 3890 RM, when many of the STEEL LEGIONS were disbanded, and the VAT-BORN LEGIONNAIRES that made up their ranks freed of their ties to the Korachani military and manumitted, becoming free men. The remaining Steel Legions were either consolidated into smaller elite units that became formidable in close-quarter fighting, or became leaders to other mortal formations.

This was a tumultuous time in Korachani history, and the repercussions of the SUNDERING OF THE EMPIRE in 3705 RM were still being felt. The empire was ailing, its SAMMAEAN territories all but lost, and with them a great many of its already dwindling resources. Across what remained of the empire, many cities were starving and others had succumbed to disease and an economic dearth. Its greatly-reduced borders meant a reorganisation of its military strength, and the Steel Legions were found to be prohibitively costly, with the creation and maintenance of its CLONED soldiers untenable in the changing political climate of the empire.

In some cases, entire legions were sent on suicide missions with the sole purpose of whittling down their ranks, with THE SEVEN knowing full well that they were marching to their deaths. Elsewhere, regiments were disbanded, the individual clones manumitted and allowed to travel freely within the empire, provided that they register their movements with the authorities. MANUMISSION OFFICES appeared in major cities across the empire to cater to this, quickly spreading to lands outside the empire, including major ports in ALMAGEST, PARTHIS and the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO. Such offices remained popular for around a century, after which they were no longer needed.

The attitude towards these manumitted cloned differed from place to place, though was generally low, with most regarding them as mindless brutes, only giving them the chance to perform manual labour in exchange for a pitiful stipend. Attitudes generally improved with time, and some regions, such as LAASKHA and VAALK, which always valued martial traits, were always more supportive of them, and Laaskha currently has the largest population of manumitted clones in the empire. Conversely, AZAZEM was renowned for its distrust of them and few settled there.

Today it is thought that the manumitted clones lived sad solitary lives and were often bullied and abused by their employers, who for the most part considered them slaves in all but name. Many killed themselves in the years following their release, and many others turned their backs on their so-called civilised lives, favouring careers as mercenaries or bodyguards, if not banditry and piracy. Many others spent their lives doing manual labour, at which they excelled.

Whether through suicide, accidents, or natural causes, the numbers of free clones slowly dwindled from as many as possibly 40,000 during the peak of the Manumission, to little more than a few thousand today. Though few Legionnaires are manumitted today (their numbers are regulated and new iterations are only made to replace slain individuals), they are known to be extremely long-lived and can easily live for 300-years, meaning that there are clones alive today who saw decades of military action prior to the First Manumission in 3845 RM.

MANUMISSION OFFICE: Soc. Pol. Str. Government offices in major cities and ports in the HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN following the MANUMISSION of the STEEL LEGIONS between 3845 and c. 3890 RM. Following the Manumission, as many as three thousand CLONED LEGIONNAIRES were freed, and allowed free passage within the empire, on the condition that they register their movements with the government. Cities and areas that saw heavy clone traffic set up Manumission offices, the purpose of which was to keep tabs on the movements of certain Legionnaires to police their activities, as well as to provide those individuals that required it the umbra needed to survive. The first Manumission office appeared in the city of Korachan in 3851 RM and the last one, in Almagest, closed in 3941 RM. After that time manumitted clones were expected to fend for themselves.

MANY-ARMED QUEEN, the: see SVIZIA OF THE CARALL, ELEVENTH OF THE ELEVEN.

MAO HARS: Geo. Large escarpment along the border between the prefectures of HOLICHRIS and TERECHANT⁽¹⁾, in the c east of HOLOLACH⁽¹⁾, forming part of the TOLIASOR mountain-chain.

MAO SAGHI: Geo. Mountain range in the c south of KEPHUAAN, in the south west of SAMMAEA. It is known for its brownish rocks, many of which are crumbling, and held in place by bushes and sparse tree cover.

MAOCARHL, PILLAR OF: Int. Mys. Arc. Needle-like pillar close to the TROPIC OF MAOCARHL, between the SEA OF ASEER in the north west and the BATHASHAL OCEAN in the south east that rises impossibly far into the sky, disappearing from view far above the clouds, and which is believed to descend to the deep abysm of the ocean floor. The pillar itself is no more than 100-ft wide where it meets the sea's surface and is of a dull burnished metal that seems not to decay or oxidise.

It is covered in a thick mass of barnacles, limpets and oysters where the water meets metal, growing thicker and wider closer to the present surface of the water, though it extends up and down for hundreds of feet, indicating where the past sea level once stood. This shelf radiates for hundreds of feet outwards from the needle like a disk, with sea grasses, corals and other oceanic life attached to its sea-facing surface, while its skyward surface is more barren with a few weeds and shrubs clinging to life on it. It is a haven to marine birds, which have turned it into a colony, covering its every surface in their nests and guano.

The pillar has fascinated scholars since its FIFTH AGE rediscovery in c. 1100 RM, when it was documented that the metal is not only inert and untarnishable but also indestructible to mundane and supranatural methods of tampering with it. Like many such ancient megastructures, the pillar is believed to be the work of a DEMIURGE, though to what ends remains unknown.

At various times in history scholars and shapers have set up temporary camps on the shelf to better examine and research the object. A consortium of various shapers met in 4003 RM in TETHRA to fund a research into the uppermost limit of the pillar, which they intend to explore with SKYSKIFFS and other vehicles in the near future.

MAOLAHARANGI: Set. Small city in the c south west of NOAVATUR. It was founded during the early days of Noavaturi independence in the 14th century RM, beginning as a humble settlement, primarily serving as a waystation for traders and prospectors traveling south from the more established regions to the north east. It remains as an important link between the two disparate regions to this day, offering lodging and other amenities to travellers passing through it (Pop. c. 18,000).

MAORATE: Mil. Rnk. Until 19 RM, a militocratic title adopted by the rulers of the various city-states of VAALK (then known as VALKA) Following the subjugation of Vaalk in 19 RM, the Maorate was deposed and, where possible, superseded by the KORACHANI PATRICIAN-aristocracy, which saw the two cultures eventually mingle, eventually becoming the HEPTARCHY.

MAORTHES: Set. Large city in the c east of PELASGOS, at the southern shore of lake CHIMON. It is home to the first manufactory belonging to MARUHABAL, a producer of fine firearms (Pop. c. 100,000).

MAPHANI: 1. For. Sparse forest in the north east of VENTHIR, close to the coast of the DARK SEA.

- 2. Rvr. River in VENTHIR, flowing for 975 miles east from the SHANA Mountains⁽¹⁾, through the Maphani forest⁽¹⁾, to its mouth at the DARK SEA. It provides life to the region and is home to many settlements that depend on it for survival.
- 3. Rui. Abandoned ancient VENATHI settlement along the banks of the river Mapanhi⁽²⁾, where the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR seduced and corrupted QUEEN HETEPHERES in 359 RM.

MAPHRAN: Plr. 'Maphra. Soc. Rel. Rnk. Church breeders in VENTHIR, originating in c. 400 – 500 RM as female breeding slaves. They are similar in role and function to the MAPHRIAS, yet rather than dynastic (increasing the power of the family), they are ministerial (increasing the power of the CULT OF THE SPHINX). Those born from the maphra are church-owned slaves and can fulfil various roles including, but not limited to, guardians, servants, clergy, warriors and workers; and, in the case of many females, becoming maphra themselves.

MAPHRIAS: Plr. 'Maphria'. Soc. Rel. Rnk. Matriarchal figures of VENTHIRI nobility whose sole purpose is to birth new generations to maintain the power and influence of the family. Though of no power themselves, the maphria fill an almost religious role within their families, with other members devoted wholeheartedly to their wellbeing. They are similar to the MATRIARCHS⁽²⁾ of NAARETH, and it is thought that they share similar cultural roots.

Maphria are often augmented through ORTHOSES and TECHNARCANE engines to improve gestation, health and longevity.

MAPOLAE: Set. Coastal city in the south east of CALBIA (1.), overlooking the BAY OF HARURHOTA (Pop. c. 30,000).

MAR: Set. Settlement in the north of HABOT, in the southern foothills of the MAR SAHIGH Mountains. Its main industry is the quarrying of SERPENTINE (Pop. c. 6,200).

MAR SAHIGH: Geo. Mountain range in the south west of SAMMAEA, in the AMMASHI⁽¹⁾ peninsula, forming a natural border between the states of HABOT in the south and METHUMN in the north. It is old and its peaks are crumbling and grey, and the lands its south are rich in SERPENTINE.

MAR ISS: also 'the Shelf. Geo. Region of grey plateaus and cliffs in the north of TZALLRACH, to the west of the region of AMADIA.

MARA: 1. Lak: Lake in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of PALUS⁽¹⁾, forming part of the river SARA.

2. Mil. Str. Fort in the south of IZABAL^(1.).

MARABAK: Str. Arena in the MHARROKIN city of ATHON, where most combatants fight artificially-crafted beasts.

MARABOUT: Mil. Rnk. Military rank in VENTHIR and TZALLRACH, denoting the highest-ranking guardians of coastal towers around the TORRENT OF KARROCK.

In the rank was adopted by the administration of the KORACHANI EMPIRE in Venthir, though came to take on the role of a caretaker or warden, more than that of an active commander.

MARACHA: 1. Geo. Region in the north west of THE SURRACH noted as one of the main areas settled by KORACHANI colonists in c. 2300 RM.

2. Dem. 'Marachan'. Ntn. Small nation in the north west of SAMMAEA, enjoying idyllic weather and stable ARCANE TEMPERS, making it a haven in this dying world. One of many nations in the area that owes its ancestry to SAVI natives as well as KORACHANI immigrants and colonists, Maracha has been independent of the Korachani yoke since c 3400 RM, and since then has forsaken many imperial traditions (Such as the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, which was abolished during a time of religious turmoil in c 2520 RM), even as it clings dearly to others.

Various attempts at colonisation of the coastline to the south west of the SEA OF AAHES were made by KORACHANI settlers at intervals between c 1800 – 1300 RM. Their arrival was met with receptions ranging from lukewarm to outright hostile, and the Savi natives were defensive of their lands, managing to repel many such attempts. The small colony of MORACHAN evaded local attentions long-enough to allow the construction of a fortress and port in 2220 RM. The fortress's name would, over time, become corrupted, becoming the name of the region.

The distance from the imperial HEARTLAND and persistent native harassment made efforts at maintaining the region largely unsuccessful, despite the aid of nearby ERET^(2.), and Korachan abandoned the region between 2350 – 2400 RM, though many families and houses that had set roots there remained, taking over control as they slowly integrated with native populations. Despite its relatively short time there, Korachani culture rapidly took hold and many customs remain there to this day, such as the funerary custom of disposing of bodies and keeping skulls, which are inscribed with prayers and personal allusions, before being stored in FUNERARY TOWERS.

Following the abolishment of the Church of the Undying Machine, the region experienced a renaissance of sorts and disparate city-states coalesced into a feudal monarchy in 2682 RM, though this collapsed by 3248 RM with increasing influence from various SAVIUDI trade-houses, which would establish republic there, lasting until 3582. Following decades of disorder, a new republic was born in 3689 RM, which survives to this day. See Vol II: Extant Realms and Nations.

3. Set. Major coastal city, and capital, of the eponymous region in the north west of NORTHERN SAMMAEA, to the north of THE SURRACH^(1.). The people here have a distinctly KORACHANI look about them, a throwback to the days of the attempted Korachani colonisation of the region in c. 2300 RM. some imperial customs remain to this day. Though the imperial religion was abolished by c. 2500 RM, replaced with local faiths (Pop. c. 78,200).

MARACHARL: also 'City of Pearls'. Rui. Now apocryphal city said to have been located in the north of KHARKHARADONTIS, named after its strange populace and its unique affliction.

This city was truly an oddity amongst oddities – an ancient metropolis, believed to date to the days before MORTAL SPIRITS were granted the gift of the OTHERWORLD, the city was, until its destruction in c. 2100 RM, a unique place populated by the undying desiccated remains of its ancient dead, bodies fettered by debilitating SOULSTONES that grew like pearlescent tumours in their bodies. What reason or explanation for their undying nature remains unknown to this day and will likely never be answered, in no small part due to the eradication of the city and the slaughter of its somnambulist corpses by the KORACHANI EMPIRE for its soul pearls, which were (and still are) a nefariously rare resource.

Today only the hollow ruin of Maracharl remains, the now-decomposed bodies of the dead strewn in its empty stone streets.

MARAD: Geo. Major island in the BHALASSIAN ARCHIPELAGO⁽²⁾ in the PANTHEON ISLES off the eastern coast of LLACHATUL.

MARADA: Rvr. Fetid wetlands along the course of the river BINI in the territory of TERARA in the c west of LYRIDIA DHAI.

MARAENT: Geo. Escarpment in the c of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR in the south west of MALAN.

MARAGA: Rvr. Major river flowing south east for 1,660-miles from various sources in RAONGEN^(2.), GNOTH, and OPHIUSSA before emptying into the SEA OF SERPENTS in Ophiussa. It is noted for its expansive delta, which is known as XEIA.

MARAGHA: Geo. Mountain in the north of LLACHATUL serving as a border between the nation of DURCHAA^(1.) in the east and the lands of VALBAR^(2.) in the west. It forms an extension of the MARMARA MASSIF.

MARALAACAQ: His. Rel. Str. Ancient SHIE temple in the tribal territories of ITTRA, in the c of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It takes the form of a large multi-armed granite statue carved out of a cliff-face. A small temple is carved between the legs of the statue, and was once used by shie for religious rites. The temple is thought to date back to the early FOURTH AGE, and has not been used in many centuries.

MARAMARI: Soc. Rnk. Off-white GIGANRI with visible green veins. They are the most silent and morose of all giganri, being pensive and slow to action. Many find themselves taking on the life of the ascete.

MARAN: Geo. Expansive karst formation in the south west of the rainforest of WAELMIGH in the far south west of CHEIRA, that at its southern-most extent stretches to the coast of the SEA OF KHURSA. The region is made up of soft limestone and, as long ago as 1000 RM, it was known for its many labyrinthine cave-networks, most of which have since collapsed, leading to the narrow jagged karst formations that are visible today. Most are covered in dense vegetation, the roots of which hold the formations together in many cases.

Some caverns still exist beneath the formation, though they are treacherous and have not been extensively explored.

MARASHA: Set. Major city and port in the south east of TAHOMIA. It was originally part of the nation of MEDINEA^(2.), though was subsumed by Tahomia in c. 3150 RM(Pop. c. 620,000).

MARASMUS: 1. Geo. Region in the north of AZAZEM, renowned for its frail DUSTSTONE foundations, resulting in labyrinthine canyons, slip holes, mesas and other formations created as cavities and other hollows collapse. Most settlements in the area are temporary at best, with foundations crumbling above shifting duststone sediments; with relocation the norm.

2. Set. Town in the AZAZEMI region of the same name^(1.). The town is the longest-lived settlement in the area, that has survived countless shifts and alterations of terrain due to the crumbling DUSTSTONE of the region. The town has nonetheless been damaged by such activity, and bears the scars of the geological forces around it. The town subsists mostly on water and ALOE-farming and has the largest market for some distance, which makes it a popular resupply point for travellers heading north west or east to KORACHAN (Pop. c. 10,000).

3. Geo. Region in the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes, noted for its sulphuric mires and bogs. The KORACHANI EMPIRE and other nations have attempted to use the area to extract the plentiful pyrite deposits (mostly for use in creating coppers for use in the creation of iron gall ink), though the land is too hostile to support such activity and it is inevitably reclaimed by 'nature', such as it is.

MARATES: Set. City in the south east of the INTERURBAN STATES (Pop. c. 20,000).

MARATHA ROSIGNA DAVARA: (B. 3961 RM) Com. Pol. Present Administrator of the Plutocratic council of TRINITANIA (1.), elected in 4003 RM.

MARAX BERITH: see MEDEVAS THE PROPHET.

MARBAIJA: Pol. Ser. City in the north of the JAHADAT STATES, in the east of SAMMAEA, and capital of one of the twelve States (Pop. c. 48,600).

MARBAS: Pol. Per. The king of DATEPHA. Of HUMAN and VAPULIM heritage, he overcame prejudice and rose to power in 3954 RM, beginning a new dynasty that sought enlightenment and an end to the racial caste system that was so deeply-entrenched in Datephan culture.

He is of noble countenance and leonine features, with a thick mane of hair and powerful arms. He has a loyal following and his reforms are gaining in popularity, though there remains a very vocal minority that opposes his changes, various groups have claimed responsibility for terrorist acts, including riots, lynchings and acts of arson.

MARBLE COURT, the: Lan. Colloquial name for the capital city GARES, in the INTERURBAN STATES.

MARBLE WING, the: also 'Oerag'. Int. Art. Rui. Soc. Buried funerary army in the c east of KOMMEA in the HOLLOW COASTLINE. Its thousands of life-size warriors crafted from the purest marble and are attributed to an unknown THIRD-AGE culture. Most statues in the collection have been excavated and are now found in private collections across the north east of LLACHATUL.

MARCH OF A MILLION PILGRIMS: Mus. Baroque madrigal by the famed composer and music theorist SATYRION. It remains an influential work to this day and is probably the most famous madrigal in the INNER SEA REGION, due to its quality and subject matter – the SHADOW MARCH.

MARCHAS: 1. Pol. northern-most duchy in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of EDICULE^(1.). The name is a corruption of the Haréshki word for copper, after the copper-rich deposits of the MARCHOSILOS mountain that guards its eastern borders.

2. Set. Small city in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of EDICULE (1.). The city is situated along the far western foothills of the MARCHOSILOS, a small mountain rich in copper and sulphur. As a result, the city of Marchas is a centre of copper smithing, its delicate copper-weave clothing being particularly renowned and finding itself on sale across the GREAT ROAD, which passes through the city (Pop. c. 17,500).

MARCHOSIA: 1. Also 'Makosha'. Pol. His. Now extinct KORACHANI colony in what is now the east of RHINOCOLOURA, around the hills of IMOROR. Established in c. 750 RM, following months of travelling upstream along the river DAKHAN, a small settlement was founded in fertile lands some miles south of the confluence between it and the river MHALAR. There, mining operations were established, exploiting the gold reserves in the region.

As other Korachani colonies faltered against native resistance around the UGOSTAUTH plateau, Marchosia was able to maintain tentative contact with Korachan for at least six decades following the establishment of the fortress, though as the DESPOSYNI WARS reached a peak in c. 830 RM contact decreased until the city was declared abandoned by $\underline{\text{KHADON}}$ in 859 RM, other settlements in the region were maintained until 1195 RM, at which point they were left to the $\underline{\text{INTERREGES}}$. This time also marked an end of hostility between an expansionist Korachan and $\underline{\text{ETHISTONITH}}$ and other adjacent nations.

Following the colony's isolation from the empire, Marchosia slowly developed its own culture, eventually adopting native customs whilst never truly abandoning its Korachani roots. A Korachani tradition that remained and which would eventually become adopted by much of Rhinocoloura is the custom of interring the skulls of the dead in great towers, with the details of the deceased carved into the cranium. Though individual settlements survived, the fortress was abandoned to the advancing duststone formations of Imoror.

In c. 1340 RM it was restored and converted to a monastery of an ascetic order of monks who abandoned it to guardian templars in c. 1500 RM. Over time the monastery became the object of the templars devotions, and the teachings of the monks were forgotten. Pilgrimages from surrounding towns became common and a city grew outside its walls, catering to the thousands of wayfarers that visited it every year.

By this time, the people of Marchosia had integrated with the natives, their language (still rooted in Korachani) developing on its own, adopting native phrases and words. By c. 1800 RM the people were calling their land Makoshar.

Little is known of the regions' fate, though by 2600 RM the region had been subsumed by Rhinocoloura. Most of its cities were abandoned, with the exception of $\underline{\text{CARPHIS}}$, which remains to this day. The high number of earthquakes and duststone collapses in the area have levelled most of the regions' ruins.

2. Pol. Set. Fortress capital of the eponymous KORACHANI colony in the north east of Sammaea, in what are now the north east of RHINOCOLOURA, south east of AETHIOS, and west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. Officially founded in 752 RM, it first appeared some centuries earlier as a tentative colony. As the people of Marchosia (later Makoshar) grew distant from their Korachani roots, the fortress remained a constant – a holy structure and link to their roots. By c. 1340 it had become a monastery, though by c. 1500 it was empty, guarded by templars after it had become a place of pilgrimage.

Following the regions' demise in c. 2600 RM, the fortress-temple was allowed to decay and is now almost completely erased by the elements and subsequent earthquakes.

MARCHOSILOS: lit. 'copper home'. Geo. Mountain and roughland region in the western lands of the HARÉSHK, forming a border between the city-kingdoms of EDICULE (1.) and PALUS (1.), to the west and east, respectively. It is known for its dark brown rocks, and its western face is known for copper and sulphur.

MARCINATE: Soc. Org. One of the 17 Grand Houses of the Nacre League. The House is based in the north west of Northern Simbara and is a major purveyor of textiles and luxury fabrics within the League, making use of the vast cotton that is grown in its home region. The House is deeply entrenched in the fashion and garment industries, with its goods being highly prized in the courts of Southern Sammaea. Its influence extends into cultural spheres, where it sponsors the arts and patronises designers, and many of its members are typically considered to be on the forefront of the fashion world around the Sea of Krihiek.

MARD: 1. Geo. Mountain-range in the east of SAMMAEA, serving as a partial border between the c of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT and the west of the JAHADAT STATES.

2. Set. Small city in the west of the $\underline{\text{JAHADAT STATES}}$, under the control of the city of $\underline{\text{NAJ}}$ (Pop. c. 16,000).

MARDEN, the: Sea. Waters of THE INNER SEA east of TAHALL that are known to be very dark and deep.

MARDUK, HIERONÉSIMUS: (B. 413 RM) Rel. Rnk. head of the order of HIERONÉSIMUS in the BROKEN LANDS.

MARDON: Rui. KORACHANI port in the north of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA⁽¹⁾. It was established in 1215 RM by Korachani troops attempting to reclaim the peninsula during the WAR FOR THE CRADLE. The port was abandoned in 1333 RM following years of attacks from KULIGALA.

MARECHOTTAY: Pol. Set. capital of IACIO. It is built atop the ruins of an ancient early FIFTH AGE city that was thought to have been coastal. It is today the seat of the HIEROMONARCHS, who have called the city their home since before the fracture of Iacio from RHEA in 3242 RM, when they moved the capital there in 3203 RM. (Pop. c. 780,000).

MAREHANDAY: Set. Settlement in the north of RHEA, to the north east of the AHRAN HIGHLANDS (Pop. c. 8,000).

MARES: Rui. Ancient temple and burial mound, its archaeological remains buried beneath centuries of ash and dust. What remains once filled the great pyramid-like mound were exhumed in the early days of the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S reign in SKAROS c. 65 RM and carted to the BASTION OF STEEL in KORACHAN.

MARID: Set. Major harbour in the TWILIGHT STATES (Pop. c. 58,000).

MARIGETA: Rel. Rnk. Priests, often SHAMEN, common to many regions of RHINOCOLOURA, who fulfil the role of holy leaders in the region's POLYTHEISTIC RELIGION. They are often found in positions of authority, where they oversee the conservation and worship of holy water sites.

MARINERS' LODGE, the: Com. Str. Inn located in the coastal plains of the north west of ZOHAK, built within a wrecked ship that is now miles from the coast. The ship ran aground in c. 3720 RM and eventually found itself removed from the coast as the sea level retreated. It was rapidly pillaged though was later appropriated by nomads, with the structure being added to over many years. It eventually became a hostel, accommodating travellers, providing them with food and drink. Most of its business today comes from curiosity seekers, though travellers making their way up and down the MYMEREAN coast.

Its common area is famous in the surrounding region for a riddle that is written on the wall, that remains unsolved since the lodges' founding. The person who wrote the riddle died decades ago, taking the answer to her grave.

MARINVYAAL: For. Main boreal forested area in the c part of KOLCHIS. It is mostly made up of pines, firs and spruce trees.

MARIOA: Set. City in the north of TISARA overlooking a canyon-like cleft next to the cliffy coast of the GEAUA. Much of the city is perched over the side of the cliff, with most thoroughfares and streets hewn from wide interconnecting tunnels that lead to a fortified gateway some distance from the city proper. The dead are buried in long vertical seemingly endless shafts that predate the appearance of the city and whose origins are unknown.

A great harbour oversees the export of textiles from Tisara to neighbouring states (Pop. c. 38,800).

MARIUS USHAR: (B. 3874 – D. 4007 RM) Pol. Soc. ARCHPATRICIAN and head of HOUSE USHAR since 3965 RM, and member of the COUNCIL OF SEVEN since 3968 RM, until his death in 4007 RM, which many believe was a major cause of the GREAT WAR.

MARKAS: Set. City in c west of ALMAGEST, in the mouth of the river DANUR. The city is a major industrial centre and is responsible for the natural death of the river delta in the vicinity. The city is also known for its college, which is famed for its physician's academy.

The city was also the birthplace of $\underline{ST.\ NOMELA}$, and is a part of \underline{THE} $\underline{SHADOW\ MARCH}$ (Pop. c. 107,000).

MARKED PALL, the: 1. Geo. Nm. Insular realm in the west of KHARKHARADONTIS, ruled by the OTHERWORLDER NIHITH YARAATH, a horrifying winged being. The place is a wasteland of arid terrain that is rarely blessed by rain. What settlements exist do so only in rare oases or where ground water is easily accessible via deep wells. Most notable is the city of AMERAGASTER, which is now largely subterranean, built within an ancient cistern. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Rel. Deity (if such it can be called) of the realm of the same name in western KHARKHARADONTIS. The Marked Pall is embodied by an idol that takes the form of a flat stone disk outside the temple-city of HEGANUSH, bearing the seven true names of each of the Two-and-Twenty DEMIURGES, revelling in the anathema their nihilistic craftsmanship brought to Elyden. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

MARKOHIR'S SEA GHOST: Fau. Giant pyrosome that lives in warm waters around and south of MENISCEA. Has link with the FIRMAMENT and doesn't stray far from such areas. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MARLERIE, PRINCESS OF ZHARIAH: f. Pol. Per. (B. 3907) Born first in line to the ROYAL HOUSE OF HINOL in ZHARIAH⁽¹⁾, Marlerie had the misfortune of being born in an age of political unrest that in 3913 RM saw her family ousted from the throne and all her closest relatives slain in a cultural revolution.

She, alongside her court and what remained of her family fled from Zhariah, finding refuge in the MALANI HENDECARCHY of LONAR, where she settled in AGLABHA in the royal court. She grew up to become the sweetheart of Lonar, well-loved pitied for her history. She was competent and took well to Malani culture, and rose in the Lonari court, eventually marrying into the royal house despite the repudiations of its elders.

Her son, MJALAD went on to become Hendecarch in 3979 RM following the death of his father.

MARMAHIA: Sup. For. Grotesque ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED forest in the c north east of AZAZEM, known for its fleshy writhing trees that resemble disembodied nervous systems, with a thick central fleshy stem from which emerge hundreds of secondary branch-lashes, crowned by a thick fleshy mass beneath which protrude small black sphere, not unlike a MORTAL brain and eyes. The branches of individual trees writhe and snap about them seemingly at random, dripping a sticky mucous-like substance. With the movements of these sticky limbs, they are able to trap insects and small vermin, and even larges creatures like mortals are not entirely safe moving through the woods as enough tendrils may latch onto arms and legs, trapping them. Trapped creatures are slowly digested alive by the sticky substance, which is actually an acid.

The individual 'trees' are very tough, with roots that go deep into the earth and individual branches grow back if cut down, with the disembodied parts remaining mobile for days after being cut down, until they slowly dry out.

MARMARA: Geo. Massif in the north of ALMAGEST, dividing its coldest lands from the south. The massif is largely made of granite, and many large-scale quarries pepper its southern regions.

MARMARACHAN: Set. Settlement in the c of the MARMARA massif in the north of ALMAGEST. Its main industry was copper and lead mining, which originated under KORACHANI rule over a millennium past and remains operational today, over a millennium later, producing granite, copper and lead (Pop. c. 7,000).

MARNEIHOTLA: Int. Geo. Major chamber in the PRISON CARCERI. It is amongst the most well-known areas to laypeople, and is famous for its purported size. Rivalling a small nation in area, it is said to lie beneath the north east of PARTHIS, extending beneath the INNER SEA. It is famed for its subterranean seas and weather effects, including clouds, rain; and is said to possess entire diverse ecosystems.

MARNIVEA: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTAL WASTELAND in the south west of SIMBARA, surrounding the capital, ITARA, close to the border with VAUN.

MARNOK: Set. Settlement in the north of TARTAK, close to the river FARRAD (Pop. c. 17,000).

MAROMM: Mil. Str. Fortress in the c of ELEKHID, in the north of the YANAVASH Mountains, dating back to c. 3960 RM, when the defences of what was then the far west of Elekhid were being strengthened against an expected Pnessian attack. The attack came, though the fortress was barely used. The eventual declaration of peace in 3997 RM saw the borders of Elekhid expanding far west, rendering the fortress unnecessary. It remains today, abandoned, slowly being reclaimed by the rainforest which had been cleared away decades ago.

MAROU: Set. Settlement in the north of PARAIYA, at a fork where the river BUTA meets the SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾. Its main industry is freshwater clamming (Pop. c. 3,700).

MARRIG: Set. Fortified city in the south of PHYRR, in the region of SLIMA. It is an industrial centre, where machinery components used across the nation are manufactured (Pop. c. 41,000).

MARROK'S GUIDE TO THE DREAMSCAPES AND NIGHTMARISH REALMS OF THE EMPIRE: Int. Dre. Vol.

Comprehensive guide to the DREAMSCAPES of the Korachani, published by PUYA MARROK in 3982 RM from over three decades of work studying them in the field for the SOMNIARECHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION. Though detailed and informative, the text has been redacted and abridged by the Order for public consumption, to preserve certain information and details that is deemed too sensitive or classified for laypersons. Despite this, the book remains a seminal work on the subject and is consulted by most SOMNIARIIN across the empire.

MARROW: Dru. Drug made in the city of ATTURYANG in the east of CUTH. The drug is made from a lattice-like substance that is mined beneath the city and is thought to be the marrow of the gigantic body of a SCION. The drug is a hallucinogenic that is enjoyed across the east of LLACHATUL. See Vol II: Drugs and Addictions.

MARROWLANDS, the: Geo. Expansive geological formation dominating the c north territories of the nation of QARALAM, in the south east of SAMMAEA. It is named after its lattice-like texture, that has made many scholars wonder if it is biological in origin. Most of the Marrowlands are situated atop a negative influence in the ARCANE TEMPERS, making SHAPING there close to impossible. The entire region is shunned, and there are few settlements nearby, though the area is rich in ICHOR, a psychoactive substance that's mined there.

MARROWINE: Int. Ind. Bev. Unique liquor made from the marrow of cervids native to the mildly FIRMAMENTALLY TAINTED region of KRAURTHAT in the north east of BROR⁽¹⁾. The main producers of the marrowine are KASIHAAL, and RASTAN, and it is a highly prized by connoisseurs elsewhere. See Vol II: Beverages.

MARSHAL-ELECT: Pol. His. In the history of SIMBARA, Marshal-elect was the rank with which the first emperor REXIMAND PROLGAPEA who was able to have the BALLOT COUNTS bestow upon him in 2668 RM. It was an honorary rank, above all the ballot counts and ARCHDUKES, which he shrewdly twisted to grant him more and more power until in 2789 RM he had become emperor of all Simbara, the supreme ruler to whom the ballot counts owed fealty. So adroit a politician was he that he was able to do this while maintaining a majority backing from the ballot counts and archdukes not only throughout his rule, but well into the rule of his descendants.

MARSHALL: 1. Mil. Rnk. High-ranking military position in TEMUJA. Traditionally it is awarded to high-born nobles.

2. Soc. Rnk. Org. A caste of wardens who dedicate their lives to protecting the MONSTRANCE OF FEALTY in the city state of RAMINA in the AMMASHI (1.) peninsula. Many amongst their number travel across the peninsula, spreading the message of hope and unity that the AMMASHI TREATY once inspired, in the hope of bringing unity to a land that has slowly unravelled in the centuries following the signing of the Treaty. They also have a strong presence in the city of OMMRAIA in AMMESH.

MARSUARAND: Ind. Set. Ship-breaking yard in the far north of VENTHIR (Pop. c. 42,500).

MARTICHAVRA: Leg. Fau. Strange creature claimed to live in the c of SAMMAEA, known to have the face of man, porcupine quills, and a stinger.

MARTU: Set. Small coastal city in the c west of KHAMID, overlooking the SEA OF PHARESES. Its main industry is agriculture (Pop. c. 12,000).

MARTYR, THE: Oth. OTHERWORLDER who, in 2821 RM as vivisected and whose body was later the subject of the first publicly-recorded HELIOGRAPH. Just before the dawn of the fourth millennium RM, a group of supporters known as the MARTYRS' TEARS brought public awareness of the suffering caused to the otherworlder, leading to its canonisation in 3033 RM.

MARTYRS, BELL OF: Mus. Obj. Once the largest BELL in pre-SUNDERING KORACHAN, located in the city of LAMECH. The bell was lost during the civil war that saw Korachan sundered, and it later sank into lake SILEB, where it is believed to remain to this day.

Records claim the bell weighed around 800,000 lbs. and was over 26-ft. tall.

MARTYRS' CATACOMBS, the: Str. Cemetery in the city of GAVADA, capital of RAONGEN⁽²⁾. Dating back to c. 2500 RM, it was used to inter people executed by MARTYR'S NETTLE. There are no graves and the bodies are unmarked, with those that have decayed sufficiently placed in pit-like ossuaries.

MARTYRS OF MARDUK: Rel. Org. Religious group that rose in the BROKEN LANDS following the CATACLYSM c. 100 RM. Its members advocate nihilism and entropy. Most live ascetic lives, content in seeing the world devour itself. Others are not so relaxed in their approach and seek to speed up the natural destruction of the world. Many are mercenaries, EXECUTIONERS, weaponsmiths (weapons are seen as symbols of entropy). The order is named after the HIERONÉSIMUS believed responsible for the Cataclysm.

MARTYRS' CENOTAPH, the: Int. Rel. Arc. Gigantic monument located in KHARKHARADONTIS, along the passage of the SHADOW MARCH, just north of what is commonly accepted to be the beginning of the stretch of the March known as the MARTYRS' ROAD. It is some 300-ft. tall and of monolithic shape, made from a single gigantic block of hard granite that is of a dark grey colour. The lower part of the cenotaph also contains a shrine where people can pray to the souls of martyred pilgrims.

Many scholars and historians believe it should be listed amongst the WONDERS OF THE ANCIENT WORLD.

MARTYR'S NETTLE: Flo. Nettle plant endemic to the south of WESTERN LLACHATUL that is known for its incredibly painful touch, which can last for years, flaring up when the touched area makes contact with water. For the first few days after touching a leaf, the pain is unbearable, making any activity, including sleeping and even eating difficult. The pain slowly subsides though can flare up from time to time. Some people have been affected by pain for up to 10-years following contact with the nettle.

In some areas of RAONGEN⁽²⁾ those found guilty of crimes were forced to wear a crown of Martyr's Nettle as a form of punishment, leading to death from shock or suicide, which led to the common name for the plant, which spread to other lands. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MARTYRS' TEARS, the: Org. His. Edu. Group forming in KORACHAN around 3000 RM defending an unnamed OTHERWORLDER known now as THE MARTYR that was vivisected and was subsequently the subject of the first ever recorded HELIOGRAPH. The group was short-lived however and its members were culled and slain in the district of GITULO by censors in a retributive campaign in 3003 RM. Despite this, their efforts led to the otherworlder becoming canonised by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE in 3033 RM.

MARTYR'S ROAD, the: Geo. Rel. Soc. The final stretch of THE SHADOW MARCH, between the settlement of ATLEAS and the final destination of the SEPULCHRAL PALACE in DAEKYN. The Martyr's Road is so named in honour of the uncounted thousands of PETITIONERS OF THE MACHINE pilgrims who have perished along its 2,000-mile-long road. Millions of bones, bleached by millennia, parched by the corruption of KHARKHARADONTIS, lie scattered along the path as warning to those who would continue on the Shadow March.

Such morbid trinkets are the least of pilgrims worries however, as the path is strewn with other horrors; where land and charnel-remains are as one, where the bodies of the dead yet yearn for life, where the unclassified denizens of the wastes gather in communion of the bodies there interred, where hope seems to shirk those who yearn for it. This road is considered the final hurdle along the Shadow March and those who cross it are encouraged by the demagogic expoundings of orators and ministers, their words steeling their followers against the horrors that face them.

Petitioners undergoing this stretch of the road are often guarded by KNIGHTS OF THE MARCH, an order of knights sworn to protect those undergoing the March.

MARUHABAL: Ind. Soc. Prestigious PELASGOSI PATRICIAN HOUSE renowned for its expertise in the production of high-quality firearms, particularly handguns and the gunblades that have become synonymous with the house. Their firearms are famed for their craftsmanship and are carried as status symbols among the elite of the INNER SEA REGION, where they are popular.

Founded over 5-centuries ago by the FREEMAN Diorus Maruhabal in 3504 RM as an ammunition factory outside the city of MAORTHES, the company soon expanded to making firearms. As the demand for their weaponry grew, the house expanded its operations, establishing a second manufactory in TRATI, KORACHAN, which specializes in larger-scale production and creates models like the M-RS4 'JUDGEMENT', a famed repeating 4-gauge shotgun sought by government and private militaries alike.

The house has a long history of serving both aristocratic and military markets, with its firearms seeing wide use across the Inner Sea and beyond, with the KORACHANI government being its largest client. Its manufactories specialise in making bespoke firearms, particularly decorated gunblades tailored to the needs of individual patrons, often made with rare materials and designed for display rather than functionality, though the most prized excel at both.

In addition to the M-RS4 'Judgement' shotgun, the house is known for other firearms such as the $\underline{\text{M-O5}}$ gunblade, and the $\underline{\text{M-R7 'Longshanks'}}$ revolver. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

MARURIN: Lan. Ntn. Native name for the island chain that is better known as the MAIDEN ISLES in the INNER SEA REGION.

MARUT: Set. Major coastal city in the south west of PHUT (Pop. c. 62,000).

MASAH AR: Ind. Set. Major sulphur mines in the west of AHKA, in the northern foothills of MT. MALEHOTHEA (Pop. c. 9,000).

MASANDUR: Set. Coastal settlement in the north east of EZASUH⁽²⁾ (Pop. c. 10,000).

MASANSU: Sct. Small city along the course of the river ARELLI in the c south of TZALLRACH. It is a major link between the southern cities, including ARACHAI, BALBETH, and SIMHAPARRAN, and the c-cities, including the capital in LUCCITARIA via the city of ATASSA, 110-miles to the north (Pop. c. 17,000).

MASAS: Geo. Island off the south eastern coast of VENTHIR.

MASDAR: Geo. Rocky highlands in the west of LAASKHA, forming a natural extension of the CAALUA Mountains.

MASEGI: Set. Small city in the west of TZALLRACH, 12-miles west of LUCCITARIA (Pop. c. 15,000).

MASENAN: Set. Fortified city in the c west of the BARRIER LANDS. It was historically known for the quality of its crystal glass, individual items of which still sell well across the IVORY ROAD (Pop. c. 39,000).

MASHA TUT: Mil. Str. Major coastal fortress in the north of OPHAR, in the north of the GEMOPHAR peninsula, guarding its coastal waters.

MASHE: Set. Small city in the c west of the TEMPLAR STATES. It originated in c. 200 as a dolerite mine, and remains a source of the volcanic stone, which is used in construction across the States (Pop. c. 14,000).

MASHEBON: Geo. Mountain-range in SAMMAEA, acting as a border between the north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER and the north east of AETHIOS. Lands to the north of these Mountains have been contested between AUERENI militants and Aethios for some years.

MASHHAK: Set. Settlement in the c east of TARTAK, known for its PHYLACTER training (Pop. c. 6,750).

MASHMATTIN: Rel. Pol. Rnk. Ruling caste of SHAPER-priests in EMENRIST who use their powers to dupe their ignorant subjects into thinking they are demigods. The state of Emenrist has become an insular prison to its people under their rule, a necessary state required to keep their people believing their propaganda.

MASHRAN DYUN: Set. Settlement in the c of CUTH, in the north west of the jungles of RAOGON. It is a producer of wood and rubber (Pop. c. 10,000).

MASIKA: Geo. Mountains in CENTRAL LLACHATUL, acting as a partial border between the north of TZALLRACH and the south of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in the south of MALAN. The mountain is noted for its array of different-coloured undulating layers, ranging from orange to brown and off-white.

MASK OF HETEPHERES: His. Rel. Obj. Large mask made of mercury and Atramentally-treated to remain 'solid' though its surface is fluid. It is thought to date back to the FOURTH AGE and is currently in the private collection of HOUSE SHAMUSH in CATHAGO, and is open to viewing by scholars by appointment only.

Though named after the QUEEN OF VENTHIR, neither its creation nor ownership can be truthfully attributed to her. The name likely originated in PARTHIS and is likely intended to evoke an exotic feel. Its origins are unknown, though it is thought to have been made in the FAR HEMISPHERE by craftsmen skilled in Firmamental metallurgy.

MASKA: Set. Fortified city in the far north east of TZALLRACH, forming the northern-most part of a trade-route north with MALAN. It originated as a series of fortifications to defend against the HOSOSHAN⁽¹⁾ valley in the north east of the nation. A caravanserai appeared at the base of the fort in c. 3360 RM and a city slowly emerged from it after that, catering to merchants and diplomats travelling between the states along the GREAT ROAD trade-route (Pop. c. 48,000).

MASKALAG: Set. Coastal city the south east of KASHAAL, in the east of $\underline{BROR}^{(1)}$ (Pop. 24,000).

MASKALAG SQUID: Int. Fau. Elusive giant squid-like creature that dwells in the deepest seas of the BATHASHAL OCEAN, that has featured in mariners' tales and songs for centuries. It was only scientificallyaccepted as a true creature in 3866 RM after one was captured and presented for examination in the city of MASKALAG, in KASHAAL, after which it is named.

The creature is of strange physiognomy, with 9 incredibly long and slender tentacular appendages that can reach lengths of up to 300-ft. and which hang vertically beneath the main body of the creature in parallel fashion. Each of these appendages bifurcate around 50-ft. from the tip and sway gently in deep sea currents, and their slightest touch paralyses creatures long enough for them to be drawn to its mouth, where they are liquefied and absorbed through the skin. Its body is of strange design, resembling a dark hipbone, with no discernible eyes or a mouth. Little else is known of the creature. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MASKHADRA: Rvr. River in the south of SEDISIA, flowing south for 540-miles from sources in the VARRUTH Mountains, before reaching the coast at the SEA OF SERPENTS.

MASLIA: Set. Settlement in the north of PELASGOS, located on the banks of the river TRIKHOLL. It is a major producer of olive oil and grain, which are used by CYPRIA^(3,) and OCTIRA. In the ancient Fifth Age it was a major GERICIAN city and stronghold, and these 4,000-year old ruins dot the hills outside the extant settlement, and once wondrous palaces and temples now serve as little more than shelter to shepherds and travellers (Pop. c. 4,500).

MASOLYAN: Set. Small fortified city in the north of RHINOCOLOURA (Pop. c. 18,000).

MASOT: Mil. Str. Fort in the c of THE SURRACH, guarding the IVORY ROAD. It is built atop the ruin of an ancient SELAHIMI tower.

MASQUENNI, the: His. Soc. Mor. Late FOURTH AGE culture that dominated the south of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, in what is today the north east of KORACHAN and the north of PELASGOS, and part of western VÂRR. Little is known of this land, though it is thought that its people were under the thrall of the forces of RACHANAEL. Their ruins are not uncommon in the above lands, and many ancient sites that have been unearthed are thought to have once been prisons or work camps.

MASQUERADE OF THE LAUGHING GOD: see LAUGHING GOD, MASQUERADE OF THE.

MASS GRAVE OF HESHAR: Pol. His. Following the independence of VENTHIR in 3781 RM the forces of QUEEN HETEPHERES were quick in quelling any signs of dissent or KORACHANI sympathy. Despite their early successes an underground resistance formed in, of all places, HETEPHEROPOLIS, and by 3787 RM they were on the verge of performing a coup, but informants alerted loyalist forces, who rounded up close to 15,000 members of the resistance and killed them, alongside their families, burying them in a vast unmarked grave a few miles north west of the city.

MASSALAR: 1. Dem. 'Massalari'. Ntn. Situated in the centre of LLACHATUL, to the west of the SEAS OF ADUM and APHOTIS, Massalar is a small free region whose people are descended from ancient KORACHANI traders who settled the region in around 200 RM.

There they settled the region east of the DIVUMMA Mountains, which then were warmer than today and gifted with many deep natural harbours, most of which have since dried up as the sea has retreated. Surviving largely unnoticed by eastern powers, including the Korachani empire, its people became allies of ALAM BETHYL as the region expanded following its colonisations by KOLCHISI immigrants in the centuries following their arrival there in around 900 RM.

Since then, the city has developed trade links with industrialised nations in the south, moving trade from Alam Bethyl, CISNERIA, and Kolchis, down the Sea of Propontis and the STRAIT OF SKAROS, though its merchant fleet is often the target of pirates and privateers, which led to the development of a large navy and marine corps in conjunction with Cisneria.

Historically, the lands surrounding the present-day city were known as Firmamental ley markers and were haunted by FAEREX and other fey creatures, most of which have now been driven away from populated areas if not killed outright.

The region is ruled by a Plutocratic Council at the head of which is an elected Chairperson, who during their ceremony of appointment eschew their name so that they can completely assume the mantle of Chairperson. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Pol. Set. Main city and capital of the above region $^{(1.)}$ (Pop. c. 120,000).

MASSAL: Set. Settlement in the north of the BARRIER LANDS (Pop. c. 6.000).

MASSAN: Set. Settlement on the island of DOUVA in the north east of TATAR. The island and all its settlements were once under the control of KAZZAR, but following decades of territorial disputes, the island and its people finally fell to Tatar in c. 3970 RM, allowing the many collieries that Massan oversees to fall under the control of TATAR (Pop. c. 9,200).

MASSEGA: Set. Major city in the c of THE SURRACH, known for its extravagant carnival that lasts for most of the year, building up to the celebration of the rebirth of the OTHERWORLDER ENATHASHA, whose mummified mortal body is carried across the streets of the city in a great procession. The otherworlder was an epicurean whose philosophies are still observed to this day. People of means visit Massega from across the Surrach and its population slowly increases from around 80,000 to close to 300,000 during the peak of the carnival (Pop. c. 170,000 - 710,000).

MASSETER: Set. Major coastal city in the west of MACELLARIA. It is a major producer of UMBRA and is famed for its FLESHWRIGHTING manufactories and ATELIERS, and has been the birthplace to many CLONES used in the nations' military. The lands surrounding the city are a wasteland littered with chemical waste from centuries of tireless industry that have left its environs devoid of flora and fauna alike (Pop. c. 80,800).

 \underline{MASSUS} : Set. Fortified settlement in the east of the $\underline{BAKHRAN\ STATES}$ in the north west of $\underline{SAMMAEA}$ (Pop. c. 8,300).

MASSYR: Set. Settlement in the north west of KORACHAN, situated along the course of the river PHAIA. The city was built atop ancient ruins thought to be DVERG remnants from the early FIFTH AGE (Pop. c. 13,700).

MAST OF SUSTAR: (13,200-ft.) Geo. Stone needle marking the southern-most point in JURRAS⁽²⁾.

MASTANDRIA: Set. Small city in the c of AETHIOS, in the far south east of the LIDONUSAN PLAINS overlooking lake SCIBARA (Pop. c. 14,000).

MASTESRA: Set. Major city in the c west of SERROK (Pop. c. 60,000).

MASTI: Lak. Lake forming the south eastern Border of AHRISHEN, between the QOCHLAN PLAINS and the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOMS. The lake is fed by the river SARA, AUSIA and APHORA. Its waters are shallow and oxygen-rich and mastic and BAKHA thrive in the area, alongside other wetland flora.

MASTODON: Fau. THEROPS common in the north of EASTERN LLACHATUL, from subpolar to warm temperate climates, including ABATTUR, HALEDONIA, KOMMEA, LOEGRESS⁽¹⁾, TETHYSIA, and TISARA. Traditionally, they were used as beasts of burden in many industries, though their numbers are now diminished and they are not as plentiful as they once were, though they can still be seen in some areas, particularly in Haledonia, Kommea and Tethysia. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MASTRON KOPH: (B. 1109 – 1174 R) Pol. His. First KINGSFRIEND of INGHULL, serving king ASIYPHAL I and his son Asiyphal II until his own death in 1174 RM. His services begin a tradition in Inghull that lasted until the ousting of the $\underline{\text{INGHULLAN MONARCHY}}$ in 2136 RM.

MASYARA: Rvr. Marshland along the course of the river BINI in c west of LYRIDIA, north of the city of URINIT.

MASZRO: Sett Settlement in the c-south east of SURUTUR, along the course of the river EHIBEL (Pop. c. 5,000).

MATANINE: Set. Settlement in the c of GNOTH, along the course of the river SARAPHA. The settlement is home to a caste of annulling SHAPERS who have studied there for millennia (Pop. c. 3,000).

MATAR: Set. Settlement in the c south of NAARETH (Pop. c. 6,800).

MATARANT: Ind. Set. Mining settlement in the prefecture of TERECHANT^(1.) in the east of HOLOLACH^(1.), with various mines and quarries dedicated to the extraction of iron ore (Pop. c. 5,950).

MATARATH: Sea. Shallow sea off the western-coast of TARTAK, forming a part of the SEA OF UGOLOTH.

MATARHL: Rui. Abandoned LHAUS settlement in KHALHAT.

MATARIR: Set. Coastal city in the south west of TATAR. It controls one of the few sources of UMBRA in Tatar, and its economy revolves around the extraction and refining of umbra for use in industries across the nation (Pop. c. 46,000).

MATAUR: Pol. Str. Palace in the south of the LEVANTINE in AHRISHEN.

MATERAN TERRITORIES: Soc. Geo. Rocky hilly region in the east of LYRIDIA, noted for its large number of TROGLODYTE^(2.) settlements, which largely survive apart from the greater Lyridian social orders. Ironically, the region is also the passage that the GREAT ROAD traderoute takes through Lyridia, which is the source of most foreign trade into the nation.

MATERIA OMNA: Myt. His. Sup. In the study of the mythic history of ELYDEN and the study of shaping, the Materia Omna is the common term used to denote the FIRMAMENT and the ATRAMENTA as a single entity. See Vol IV: the Materia Omna.

MATERIAL PLANE, the: Myr. Sup. His. After THE SHAPER'S GREAT DIVINE UNDERTAKING, where of the SEA OF CHAOS was divided into the FIRMAMENT ABOVE AND THE ATRAMENTA BELOW, the Material Plane is the point of overlap where the Firmament and the Atramenta touched. The Material Plane was, like the Sea of Chaos before it, the root of all creation, gifted with traits of the Firmament and the Atramenta, yet unlike the Sea of Chaos, it was stable, a perfect foundation for the future creation.

The DEMIURGES' act of SHAPING took the material and, using the Firmament and the Atramenta to create ELYDEN.

Today the term 'Material Plane' is used almost synonymously with Elyden, though more specifically, it is taken to encompass the totality of all matter – Elyden, its surrounding system of PLANETS and all that is encompassed in the heavens that is not the OTHERWORLD.

MATERIAL LIFE: Edu. Soc. One of two broad categories applied to life (with the other being IMMATERIAL LIFE), as per the studies of the polymath SUZIV. Material life encompasses all forms of life born of the elements of the MATERIAL PLANE, including the mortal races. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MATH NEL: Rui. Late NAHORIAN ruins in the south east of the HENDECARCHY of AONIA, in MALAN. The ruins are expansive and though greatly fragmented, remain spectacular in parts, echoing only a small fraction of the splendour they once possessed. Many Malani people have explored the ruins, and for many in the nearby city of YISIRA, it has become a rite of passage.

MATHAYA: Rui. Ancient THYMI adamantine mines in the north of present-day N'RAKH. The mines are spent and now lie deserted, a blight in the arid terrain of the area.

MATHIS: Set. Expansive conurbation in the VESPERTINE LEAGUE^(1.) in the north of SAMMAEA, some 90-miles south east of the coast of the SEA OF ANIPTERRA. The ASONA is characterised by the hard yellowish stone, caused by high trace amounts of sulphur compounds found in the region's rocks, that are used in construction. Indeed, sulphur has for centuries been a major product of the city, whose sprawling labyrinthine quarries surround the city for miles around and are opposed in scale only by the slave cemeteries that house the millions quarry workers that perished throughout their use. The city is also home to the vast temple of OSHANTI, an unaffiliated temple where people can find peace and quiet, unburdened by the politicking of the KARGAMAN IDOLATORY that dominates culture in the Vespertine League.

It is the current seat of the Vespertine League $^{(2)}$, an honour that comes to an end in 4011 RM, when the leadership will move to another city (Pop. c. 283,000).

MATHORNOTAL: Int. Rui. Ancient pyramid-complex constructed by the people of SOKATTAR in the early FIFTH AGE in what is now the south of SERROK. It was constructed around an ancient IROTHANI CANOPIC ENGINE that the techno-priests of Sokattar communed with. The engine was destroyed in c. 324 RM when the priests were usurped following a tyrannical rule that had lasted for centuries.

MATHRAN: Geo. Reef in the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA, in the southern waters of the BAY OF LEPHET.

MATHRAS: Rvr. River in the emirate of DEITHO^(1.) in the c west of LIMOTH^(1.), flowing south for 575-miles from sources in the KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA Mountains, before reaching the coast at the SEA OF KRYMEA.

MATHRU'IL AN: For. Large sparse subtropical woods dominating the north of RHEA, ending before reaching the KAURKHA region. In antiquity it was known as a place steeped in the FIRMAMENT, and was sought out by Firmamental SHAPERS to study. The subsequent dominance of the ATRAMENTA throughout the FIFTH AGE has seen these FIRMAMENTALLY-ACTIVE areas dwindle until few, if any, are known to remain.

The ruins of ancient ley markers, menhirs, and other Firmamental architecture dot the region and are largely forgotten and overgrown today. The land remains warm year-round however, though not uncomfortably-so.

Though sparse the woodlands in Mathru'il An are fecund, with all flora there growing individually rich. The sap and fruit of trees and the meat of animals are affluent. The region is a prime hunting spot for the wealthy, and what communities exist in the region are known for orchards, the fruits of which are beyond compare.

Firmamentists still travel to this land, though their research is largely of an archaeological nature.

MATIAN: Set. Settlement in the c-south east of MHAROKK (Pop. c. 5,800). MATRANU: Set. City in the north of SERROK (Pop. c. 34,000).

MATRI: 1. Rvr. Seasonal endorheic river-system in the c of MHAROKK, flowing north from the SOLON HIGHLANDS for 30-miles before dwindling in the AMATA badlands. The river terminates in wetlands and saturates the water-table, feeding a natural well found in the area.

2. Set. Settlement in the c of MHAROKK, in the AMATA badlands, sustained by a natural well (Pop. c. 1,000).

MATRIARCH: 1. also 'Materfamilia'. Pol. Soc. The eldest and most respected member of a specific PATRICIAN HOUSE, from whom all other patricians of the line are descended. Though often used interchangeably with the word GERENT, the two are different – the gerent is the head of the house, which may often be someone other than the patriarch, particularly if the patriarch is old or infirm.

Most Patrician Houses are not matriarchal by default, and the rank is shared with that of PATRIARCH.

2. Pol. Soc. Rnk. Ruling and breeding caste in NAARETHI HOUSEHOLDS. They are the eldest able-bodied and fertile women in the household and hold absolute power within their community. When the existing Matriarch dies or becomes infertile, her successor is elected by the household's MATRIDULES from within their own ranks. Once elected, a new Matriarch will seek a male breeder and consummate her new position, after which she is expected to continuously bear children as quickly as physically possible, with as many sexual partners as she desires (though hierodules encourage that offspring are sired by different fathers to maintain a healthy bloodline).

Births of as many as half-a-dozen children at a time are made possible through technarcane ORTHOSES and use of Atramental drugs that also accelerate the gestation period to a mere 5-months (the nature of such drugs is a closely-guarded secret and none outside Naareth know their origins or composition). Male offspring are groomed to either become MAMLUKS or overseers of the male slave corps of Naareth. Female offspring become citizens and are educated to the best abilities of the household and are eligible to take part in the Rite of the Volute, as are their female offspring for two further generations.

Matriarchs holds council over the Matridules, who govern the household and individual families in their name. In turn, the Matriarchs assemble seasonally in KAURNAKAR to discuss more important matters of state with the Arch Matriarch and the Hierodules.

MATRIARCHY: 1. Soc. Pol. A social system where females wield the primary position of power in political leadership.

2. Soc. Pol. Specifically, the political and religious leadership of NAARETH, where a Matriarch rules each HOUSEHOLD (settlement). The Matriarchs elect a ruler, known as an Arch Matriarch and convene seasonally in the household of KAURNAKAR (the capital of Naareth), to rule on matters of import.

MATRIDULE: Pol. Soc. The ruling upper-caste in NAARETH, and individuals closest to the HOUSEHOLD MATRIARCHS. They are chosen from the offspring of the household Matriarchs and are the only true citizens of Naareth, with most of its upper- and merchant-classes made up of Matridules. Household Matriarchs are chosen by its Matridules, and the Arch Matriarch is in turn chosen by the Matriarchs.

MATRIGAN: Set. Small city in the c north west of GNOTH, along the course of the river ORPHEAR. It is known to carve fine limestone from CALCANTHIA, which it trades south down the river Orphear (Pop. c. 13,000).

MATRIS: Geo. Hills region in the c north of VECTIS, in the south east of WESTERN MENISCEA, known for the ILLYRIAN badlands.

MATT: Mil. Str. Major coastal cliff-fort in the north of Io, overlooking SALOROC^(1.). It is home to many troops, ready for a possible attack of Saloroc.

MATUG HOHT: Rui. SHIUNOTHI ruins in the north east of the tribal territories of KORIND, in the north west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. The ruins date back to c. 2900 RM, and are thought to belong to a large fortress, though little now remains of it.

MAUAT: Set. City in the south of THETIS, in the ARITEAN peninsula (Pop. c. 44,000).

MAUGOGNOTH: Geo. Expansive basin dominating the north east of the wastes of KHARKHARADONTIS. It is most famous for its large winding canyon-system, known as IPOS"(2). This region of Kharkharadontis is believed by some to be the place where the seven seeds of the human race were sown. If this is true, then the exact location has been lost, though expeditions have been mounted there to little success. Unknown ancient stone ruins dot the region, though little is known of them.

MAUGRE: Ser. Major city in the c of KASPIA, in the east of the TAGHAIRM plains, along the course of the river DUBBEA. The course of the river here is fast and it is bordered by steep cliffs, which the city spans via seven iron bridges of intricate design (Pop. c. 83,000).

MAULIMM: Geo. Highland area in TZALLRACH dominated by harsh nearimpenetrable ridged plateaus.

MAUNURIN TRIBES: Geo. Territory in the south west of WESTERN SAMMAEA, west of the SANTOREAN Mountains. It is populated by isolationist tribes that shun technology and revere ancient basaltic idols as chthonic deities. The region is isolated form the rest of Western Sammaea by the ANDALLAN and SANTOREAN Mountains and dense forests.

MAURA: Mil. Str. Large fortress and defensive trench system in the south west of Ahrishen, close to the border with Lyridia Dhai.

MAURRA: Rui. Ind. Expansive zinc mines in the c of the nation of ENITH.
The mines, alongside those of LURA, once formed the major industry of the region, while it remained under KORACHANI control, and was in operation for over 400-years, being abandoned finally in c. 1420 RM after it was exhausted through over-exploitation. Today the open-cast mines remain, as a scar in the surface of the region.

MAUSAMMAR: Geo. Archipelago in the far west of METHMUN, in the south west of SAMMAEA. It is an extension of the HENAKARAIAN peninsula.

MAUSOEA: Set. Small fortified settlement in the south west of TZALLRACH. It emerged to serve the needs of the MAUSOEUM, which is less than a mile south of the settlement, where royal dead are buried. It lies along the path of the GREAT ROAD (Pop. c. 7,200).

MAUSOEUM, the: also 'Hall of the Dead'. Soc. Str. Necropolis in the west of TZALLRACH, where spent rulers and members of their families are laid to rest, their bodies gilded, clad in their best armour for all eternity. The hall is constructed roughly in the middle of a 100-mile-long basaltic plug, which in antiquity served as a border between the people of Tzallrach and LERACH.

MAUSOLEA OF MOLIOR: His. Rui. Ancient mausolea found in the east of the TIAMOLDORAN CITY STATES. Each mausoleum is around 300-ft. in diameter, with sides decorated by 77 columns atop which lies a solid brick-build dome. The mausoleum is solid and would have been built around a basalt coffin in which a king or queen of ancient ZEANAN is interred.

There are perhaps 50 extant individual mausolea scattered around an area of about 1,000 square-miles, though it is thought that there were hundreds more, which have since been destroyed by the elements and/or MORTAL influence. Those that remain are in varied states of disrepair, with some resembling steep hillocks, and others in relatively good shape.

MAUSOLEUM OF KHASSOS: Rel. Str. Mausoleum in the west of KHAMID dating to c. 750 RM, where a legendary Khamidian PHAROANT, Amoth, was buried. Little remains of the original structure and most of the treasures that were buried there have since been looted, though some deep chambers are thought to remain untouched.

MAVA: Set. Settlement in the far west of KARGAMA. Its min industry is pyrite mining (Pop. c. 6,300).

MAW OF DORMORRO, the: Ind. Rui. Large open-cast mine in the south of DURCHAA(1.), that originated during its vassalage to ALMAGEST. It was abandoned in c. 2820 RM, when the bottom collapsed into an expansive hollow below. Investigations revealed that is part of a massive cave-complex, though further explorations have been difficult and little progress has been made. It is thought that the cavern, named after its first explorer, exists in isolation and is not linked to other systems, such as the PRISON CARCERI, and that it has been isolated for tens of thousands of years.

It is noted for the deep rumbling that emanates from its deepest unexplored depths, that are felt in the lands surrounding the maw as a deep vibration that is unsettling to those standing above it. Stale air often flows out of the maw in a long rhythm that some have equated to breathing.

These two phenomena have led to the appearance of various rival cults. There are 5 such cults in all, and each is based in a settlement located close to the Maw. These settlements exist in an uneasy political state, with gangs loyal to the distinct deities followed by each of the cults opposing each other. These gangs often fight in the no-man's land in the old mine surrounding the Maw.

The entire region surrounding the Maw has been ignored by the rest of Durchaa since c. 3760 RM, with the 5 major settlements surrounding it existing in relative isolation as self-sufficient city-states. The five city-states are: LOROD, MORI, OHATAN, ORCU, and SUED.

MAW, the: also 'Icas'. Int. Geo. Huge two-tiered boreholes in the south west of PERGOST. They descend for at least 1000-ft., where attempts at exploration have ended, revealing unidentified heirographs carved on the walls. Explorers report a foul wind that reeks of death and wails as though the spirits of the dead were screaming out.

MAXARADA: Set. City on the south of the island of CAMARA in the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA. It was once a prosperous port but following rapid waning of sea levels by c. 3600 RM following centuries of struggling. It was eventually left landlocked, its government faltering. Following this, time the city saw an exodus of people who fled to other cities on the island, leaving those behind to fend for themselves.

Today the city is a semi-anarchy, largely autonomous, left to its own devices. Few live here who choose so and the city is rife with crime and corruption (Pop. c. 24,000).

MAXELL: Lak. Endorheic lake in the c south west of ACHAA⁽²⁾. The region surrounding the lake is known for its clay industry, and may settlements in the area collect clay and are known for their pottery, which remains in use to this day.

MAYADABIKON: Set. Settlement in the west of NOAVATUR, along the course of the river RUSAMADARIID. It is home to a small college of ATRAMENTISTS, who mount expeditions into the KHARKHARADONTID wastes to study the ATRAMENTA (Pop. c. 10,000).

MAYED: Rvr. River in the east of SAMMAEA, flowing south for 740-miles from sources in the south of the POROPHOSSYR Mountains, and the north east of the US'HUT Mountains, before meeting the coast at the BAY OF BERITH.

MAYGAR: Set. Settlement in CUTH, around 45-miles south of the capital city of ERKALA. It is a major producer of jute and food (Pop. c. 7,000).

MAZARINE SEA, the: Sea. Deep sea between the nation of KHULL and the island of REDDIN. It is steep-sided and abyssal, and few ships venture far from the shores, particularly in bad weather. It was notorious in antiquity for the number of ships that were lost within its waters, with many shipwrecks found along the north western shores of Khull. Today, its waters are popular amongst treasure hunters and deep sea divers who hope to recover ancient riches. The port of SUTARA is popular with these treasure hunters.

MBAST: Geo. Island off the western coast of $\underline{GREST}^{(L)}$ in the south west of the island-continent of $\underline{BROR}^{(L)}$. It divides the \underline{SEA} OF $\underline{NDORTUR}$ from the STRAIT OF ANDAS.

The diminishing of ELYDEN'S coast has revealed the deserted ruins of merill cities along the old coastal shelf overlooking the Ndortur, as well as a series of snaking islands between it and the mainland that will, if the seas continue to lower, eventually connect the island with Bror itself.

MEACHUA: Set. Settlement in the north of GNOTH, above the northern POLAR CIRCLE (Pop. c. 3,200).

MECHABET: 1. Dem. 'Mechabet'. Ntn. A small nation in the north of the PARTHISAN PENINSULA, overlooking the INNER SEA, Mechabet has a proud monarchic history dating back to around 1907 RM, when it emerged from the ruin of PENGARI monarchy which had collapsed decades before following the death of its king.

It absorbed TYRANOSH soon after its formation and went on to dominate the north of the Parthisan Peninsula for millennia. This period lasted until 2863 RM, when the political wedding of its crown-prince to the daughter of a PARTHISAN lord saw it become a tributary-state of Parthis. Today, the Mechabeti king is a regent, ruling in the name of Parthisan republic, and is a permanent member of the Parthisan council.

Of an idyllic temperate climate, it is known for its agriculture, though of late it has turned towards industry as its primary economic driver. This, coupled with mining and animal husbandry, makes it a profitable partner for Parthis, giving it material reason to defend it. In return, Mechabet has exclusive trade rights and a duty to pool its military resources with those of Parthis when needed, and a yearly tribute it must pay, in the form of a pure blood-bay stallion, for which Mechabet is a renowned.

Over the past years, Mechabet has been showing signs of political unrest and looking towards independence – feeling in cities is uneasy as new political groups are coming to power, seeking to distance Mechabet from Parthis even as they forge stronger alliances with BISBUT and ERUTO, with an eye towards emancipation. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

2. Set. Fortified city-state and capital of the vassal state of Mechabet^(1,) occupying both banks of the river ACHAT, a few miles from the coast. It is part of the RED ROUTE and its harbours are very busy with trade (Pop. c. 420,000).

MECHACOLYTE: Med. Tec. Sup. Form of HAEMONCULUS with many TECHNARCANE orthoses.

MECHANISED COLOSSUS: Int. His. Sup. Tec. An ancient, likely FOURTH AGE, TECHNARCANE colossus discovered in the GHARUM desert in KHARKHARADONTIS by the Excavator-general LURION TED ASTERIS of the AIWAHAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION.

Drawn by rumours of ancient mechanical ruins, the Excavator-general toiled for five years in the tainted desert, digging in millennia-old ruins for ancient technologies. He was finally successful in 1900 RM, unearthing an ancient iron colossus automaton, powered by archaic technarcana. The colossus was clandestinely returned to the VAULT OF VAURNOS, where it was revived and its ancient mechanisms researched and reverse engineered, leading to breakthroughs in certain fields of technarcana, which are now employed by the Order and the KORACHANI empire.

MEDDERANDI: Rvr. River ion the west of HABOT, flowing south for over 850-miles from sources in the OMRBAS, MAR SAHIGH, EMMIGHI, and SETHIGH Mountains, before meeting the BAY OF ESSIA at an expansive delta

MEDDIAN: Geo. Island off the south western coast of the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula, forming a part of the AMMASHI FREE-ISLES.

MEDELER SANARITZ: (D. 927 RM) His. Heretical Ionic demagogue who published a condemned text known as the ELDRITCH GOSPELS that initiated a manhunt that led to his eventual capture, torture, and EXECUTION in 927 RM. The inspiration or source for his writings were never revealed.

MEDELIARII: Nou. 'Medeliarear'. Plr. 'Medeliariin'. Sup. Org. Mil. Rnk. An order of SHAPERS in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, whose MINASTERIA^(2.) has been based in the city of LAAGROTH in LAASKHA since 1502 RM Members of the order are ATRAMENTAL shapers whose SPHERE grants them powers in healing and, to a lesser extent, the manipulation flesh.

They are perhaps the most appreciated of shapers within the empire and beyond, though their skills are often overly-generalised or misunderstood. Indeed, such shapers are potentially amongst the most dangerous, for the ability to heal also brings with it the inverse ability to harm. As a result, the order's members are amongst the most heavily policed across all the Minasteria, with licensing the most stringent. They have many similarities to the ANALOGONIN, though the latter tend to take more offensive roles, usually working in militaries.

Medeliariin are not a substitute to traditional healing or surgery, and in many cases the latter is preferrable. Medeliariin work relatively quickly and unobtrusively, eliminating the need for large incisions to reach organs, however their work is far more painful than traditional surgery. This, coupled with the fact that it cannot be used alongside anaesthetics, which numb the sensory response the shapers require to successfully work, make its use a mixed blessing.

As is the case with most SPHERES of shaping, individual Medeliariin possess vastly different skills, with some being good generalists, and others being adept as anaesthetists, or distinct areas, such as functional healing, cosmetic healing, or operating on specific organs.

Most Medeliariin are able to ease or hasten the healing of wounds, and as a result they are often found working in hospitals, hospices or in the military, where they put their skills to use in operating theatres, infirmaries, or clinics. Though effective and less intrusive that traditional surgeries, the work of Medeliariin is not subtle and can leave particular swirl-shaped scars and distinctive scar tissue. Its use may also lead to long-term side-effects that are not immediately obvious, particularly when used on organs. Of note is the brain, which is incredibly difficult for Medeliariin to work on without unintended consequences in the personality, intellect, and mannerisms of the subject. As a result, only Medeliariin with a particularly rare subset of skills can successfully carry out procedures on the brain.

Others work in the TECHNARCANE industry, tending to LARVAE interred within HEART ENGINES, ensuring that they do not develop any sores, diseases or tumours. They also work closely with CLONERS and FLESHWRIGHTS, where they similarly tend to VAT-BORN beings such as HAEMONCULI. Those with more specialised skills work in the cosmetic surgery industry, which requires a more subtle touch, with shapers aiding in procedures and helping patients to convalesce.

They are used by the military and the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION as adjuncts, where their abilities are invaluable in the field, though can also be found working with interrogators as torturers. Understandably, such uses of their abilities are not very widespread and are hardly touted.

Unlicensed Medeliariin or individuals who have had their licenses revoked can often be found in rural areas living, where they offer their skills as healers. They can also be found in the underworlds of larger cities, living in defiance of the law, working as unregistered physicians and surgeons, or aiding criminal organisations, though their lack of true medical knowledge can be dangerous. See Vol IV: Spheres and types of Shaping.

MEDENS: Mil. Str. Major coastal fortress in the north of the TEMPLAR STATES, guarding the entry into lake DORRA. The fort is relatively recent, with construction having completed in 3799 RM following the diminishing of the BAY OF SHERUSALL in previous centuries.

MEDES: 1. Pol. One of eight HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOMS, known for its mercantile traditions which form the backbone of trade-routes between the south of SAUA and the north east of LYRIDIA.

2. Pol. Duchy of the $\underline{\mathsf{HAR\acute{E}SHKI}\,\mathsf{CITY}\text{-}\mathsf{KINGDOM}}$ of $\mathsf{Medes}^{(1)}$.

3. Pol. Set. City and capital of Medes $^{(1)}$. It is the largest coastal city in the $\underline{\text{HAR\acute{E}SHK}}$ and is a major port, linking its lands with $\underline{\text{KHAMID}}$, $\underline{\text{MALAN}}$ and $\underline{\text{SAUA}}$. A shanty appeared there in c. 3900 RM, made up of refugees from surrounding settlements that found themselves landlocked following the slow wane of Elyden's sea levels. The shanty remains to this day outside walls and is became an officially recognised part of the city in 3923 RM (Pop. c. 804,000).

MEDEVAS, THE PROPHET: (B. c. -70 RM) founder of the ABYSSAL TEMPLARS, who disseminated the entropic wisdom taught to him by the OTHERWORLDER MARAX BERITH amongst what would become thirteen acolytes of the Abyss, in -41 RM. The tenets of his philosophy were the inevitability of decay and corruption and the predictions that the world would fall into darkness after a time of metropolitan prosperity. The founding of the order on the day of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR'S birth is not unknown amongst imperial scholars.

Ironically, despite the order condoning decay and entropy, the body of the Prophet Medevas became incorruptible following his 'death' in 1 RM (the year of the empire's founding), and remains in the TEMPLE OF THE ABYSS in ABYSSIA to this day, little different to the day of his final meditation.

MEDHAMANN: His. Nm. Early FIFTH AGE empire in the south west of SAMMAEA in what are today METHUMN, northern and central PHYRR, and the south of ADHERA. It collapsed to its own excesses and corruption in c. 1810 RM.

It grew from a series of independent cities in c. 150 RM. They had grown prosperous through SLAVERY, their ships and caravans raiding surrounding settlements for goods and slaves. Eventually they allied, becoming powerful merchants in the easternmost reaches of the SEA OF MERCUVIA. They grew increasingly influential in the surrounding area over the next centuries, becoming infamous for their proliferation of slavery and the rapidly waning rights of their people, until by c. 850 RM the disparity between classes had become grotesquely distorted. This led to the rise of a fledgeling new religion that was centred around the teachings of the merchant TOMASS OF SAGARIN, known as the that attracted members of the disenfranchised lower classes. It was condemned at first, but the ascension of emperor UMMALIN brought acceptance of the faith and within a century it had spread across the empire.

Over the next centuries Medhamann slowly turned from commerce to industry as the backbone of its economy, and sprawling workhouses spread across the land, becoming the centre of wretched hive-like cities in which people lived miserable lives. Between them lay expansive farmlands producing the meagre food to feed its growing slave workforce. The empire came to be divided into various demesnes, each overseen by plutocrats who in turn owed their fealty to a SUPREME OLIGARCH. By c. 1600 RM these workhouses had developed into early manufactories, their smokestacks belching black smoke into the air as their industries plundered the land for resources. Its free people were known to worship an alien multi-armed idol of exotic countenance that polluted their dreams with carnal visions that helped to keep them complacent. This idol is now remembered as SHUU TURULL, and its eventual fate remains unknown.

Its ruling plutocrats grew increasingly wealthy, barely even regarding their millions of slaves as numbers, let alone as people. Though as their decadence and corruption waxed, so too did their fear of losing their power. They became insular, protecting themselves behind walled compounds and deep chambers, surrounding themselves with specially bred guards, yet conversely, they schemed against their peers. Methods of assassination became elaborate and convoluted, and a vicious cycle began, with established magnates getting killed off by upstarts, who within a few years would be killed off themselves. A few venerable magnate houses retreated from the world completely, ruling over the manufactories by proxy, yet they became completely disconnected from the world around them and the increasing corruption of their proxies who squandered their employers' riches.

This period culminated in c. 1780 RM, with the breakdown of various infrastructures as three major magnate demesnes collapsed within the span of a few years. Their competitors were unable to meet demands created by the failed industries, and they too collapsed amid inflation and a workforce that was breaking under the pressure, with slaves dying in droves, bringing the economy to a standstill. By then what government remained had degenerated into such a bureaucratic quagmire of red tape, ceremony and antiquated traditions that it could not cope with the pressure and the nation collapsed in c. 1810 RM, leading to the MEDHAMANNI DARK AGE. See Vol III: Extinct Realms States.

MEDHAMANNI DARK AGE: Pol. His. Period of political history in the south west of SAMMAEA that lasted from c. 1810 to c. 2000 RM, following the collapse of the MEDHAMANNI empire.

The Medhamanni empire began to wane in c. 1700 RM as its magnates and oligarchs grew used to lives of unimaginable excess that were fuelled by a workforce primarily made up of SLAVES. Driven by vices and perversions their subjects could scant imagine, they became detached from the realities of their world, and came to rule by proxy, delegating the daily running of the empire and its industries to secondaries, many of whom were wealthy and powerful enough to further delegate to third parties, to the point that those at the top had nary a clue of what was happening in their own demesnes. This began a time of decline as communication between demesnes decreased as plutocrats descended into their own worlds, becoming detached from reality, slowly growing paranoid about losing their power. Not unjustified as assassination had become common, with control of demesnes rapidly changing hands as rulers were eliminated, often by their allies or direct inferiors.

This period culminated in c. 1780 RM, with the breakdown of various infrastructures as three major magnate demesnes collapsed in quick succession, and the remaining workforce unable to meet the economic demand, leading to slaves dying in droves, exacerbating the collapse of the economy. By then what semblance of government remained had degenerated into such a bureaucratic quagmire that it could not cope with the pressure, and the empire collapsed in c. 1810 RM, with the SUPREME OLIGARCH and many plutocrats oblivious to the change, so cut off from reality were they.

Following this, the demesnes became largely self-sufficient. Most saw starvation and disease run rampant through their manufactory-cities, decimating their populations, leading to them becoming further cut off from each other. This propagated an increase in slavery - both in surrounding regions, as well against neighbouring demesnes plutocrats struggled to find the manpower to work their factories and farmlands. Plutocrats came to power only to be deposed, killed or otherwise replaced within short spans of time, increasing the unease. Many demesnes were left leaderless as the remnants of their population stormed palaces and citadels in search of food and other goods that were being hoarded. War broke out in various areas, all in a relatively short span of time, and by c. 1840 RM the old territories of Medhamann had completely degenerated into anarchy. Slaves who had never seen the light of day were suddenly freed into a world that was collapsing. Most cities and manufactories lay empty, looted of anything of use, as groups of people banded together into small groups. Elsewhere oligarchs and plutocrats desperately held on to their lands through any means necessary as in other places entire workforces revolted, overthrowing the last of the decadent generations of rulers to enforce their own form of rule, that in most cases were not successful.

This period lasted for over a century, though by c. 1980 RM the population had stabilised and particular areas had begun to recover. Of note was the demesne of PHYRR, in the east of old Medhamann, which had remained largely intact throughout this period. However, it was not quite able to exert its influence over surrounding areas as it struggled to retain control of its own quarters. Its manufactories continued working through the Dark Age as those in the west fell first silent and then into ruin

In the west, the population eventually found a natural equilibrium, and agriculture was able to continue once more as small manufactories began working once more. This led to the rise of a new power – one whose founders were largely descendants of the old slave caste, who vowed never again to enslave others. By c. 2020 RM this region had coalesced into the state of RAMIS, which later became a monarchy.

MEDIA: Mil. Str. Major coastal fort in the HARÉSHK, overlooking the SEA OF URAN. It guards the passage north into the GULF OF CARIA^(1.).

MEDIAL: Set. City in the south of PARTHIS, in the region of HYRCANIA, known for its poultry and rice production (Pop. c. 17,000).

MEDINEA: 1. Geo. Region of southern TAHOMIA named after an ancient subsumed state⁽²⁾. It is renowned for its idyllic waters and hilly grasslands peppered with rocky outcrops.

2. Dem. 'TAHOMIA': His. Nm. Small extinct nation in the east of EASTERN MENISCEA, that occupied some 65,000-square-miles of the southern TAHOMIAN headland. The region was subsumed by TAHOM in c. 3100 RM, and most of its cities remain inhabited to this day. The region took its name from its capital city⁽³⁾, which rose atop the ruined mesa-top monastery of MADARASH in 3920 RM.

The region is known for its feudal and knightly traditions, both of which survive into what many observers call its golden technarcane age. Its religion is a militocratic monotheism thought to be born in the early days of its founders' knightly tradition and is known for its warrior monks. Thaumaturgy and Theosophy are common as is the study of the FIRMAMENT as an esoteric discipline.

2. Set. City and fortress of the region of the same name in the south of TAHOMIA. The city appeared in 3920 RM on the ruins of a mesa-top monastery once known as MADARASH and from there slowly solidified the surrounding people into a strong state that took on the city's name^(1.). The city's natives are dark-skinned and dour, betraying a more distant ancestry in the south, possibly from DHA NAR, where it is believed they emigrated from in c. 2000 RM. It was, alongside the rest of Medinea, subsumed by the northern state of Tahomia, and survives now as a major city in the regions' south (Pop. c.110,000).

MEDINNAR: Soc. Org. One of the 17 GRAND HOUSES of the NACRE LEAGUE. The House is based in eastern AMMESH, with a major stronghold in the city of NUMMARA, though its influence easily extends across the western half of the trade-route, where it controls the trade of raw materials, particularly coal that is mined in the region. The House is responsible for supplying the League's merchants with essential resources such as food, drink, beasts of burden, and vehicles for their journeys along the trade-route.

MEDIRIEN: Ast. Str. Org. Observatory in the north east of the peninsula of KETESH, away from the lights of any large cities, overlooking the open waters of the INNER SEA. It was chosen as a home by the group's founders due to the region's independence and relative safety. It is home to an unaffiliated group of astronomers whose members hail from dozens of nations from the INNER SEA REGION and beyond.

Members spend their days cataloguing the skies, particularly taking note of the birth of new stars or the extinguishing of old ones and differentiating between $\underline{TRUE\ STARS}^{(1.)}$ and $\underline{SOUL\ STARS}^{(2.)}$. Of particular interest are the moons $\underline{ARAKHAME}$ and \underline{SIELLA} , and their relation with each other, and \underline{ELYDEN} , and the sun, in particular conjunctions and alignments, as well as tides.

Others work in the field, hunting for historical treatises and star charts to add to their library, which is considered to be one of the largest and most diverse, outside of Almagest.

MEDIS: Set. Settlement in the north of MECHABET, south of the SULAEN Mountains. Its main industry is the mining of iron (Pop. c. 8,200).

MEDRANI: Mar. Rnk. mercenaries and monster hunters who are most wellknown to ply their trade in the KHARKHARADONTID desert in the defence of Petitioners of the Machine undergoing the Shadow March.

MEDUSEA: lit. 'stone heart'. Mil. Rnk. Elite DVERGAI troops, traditionally bodyguards and personal troops of the ACMON.

MEDUSON: 1. Rvr. River in the north of PELASGOS in the CALDERAN Mountains.

2. Lak. Lake in the north of PELASGOS in the CALDERAN Mountains and along the course of the eponymous river.

MEEK, CHURCH OF THE: Rel. Localised religion that rose in FASCIA, RHAMIA in c. 3450 RM, and spread to the east of VÂRR, LYRIDIA DHAI and scattered parts of NÁRTHEL by 3600 RM. The religion is a sect of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE and as such adheres to all the rules imposed by its parent church. It believes that RACHANAEL, in the guise of the UNDYING MACHINE, is the great engine that keeps the KORACHANI EMPIRE alive, and that those amongst his followers who fall victim of the ATRAMENTA and its afflictions are weak and unfit to follow him.

The Church of the Meek counts amongst its members the ORDER OF ORPHEA, a sisterhood devoted to caring for those whose Atramental afflictions that would otherwise be too debilitating. Their motives are not entirely noble however, as most sisters within the order care more for a painless euthanasia rather than giving comfort to their unfortunate wards. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MEEREN: Plr. 'Meereni'. Soc. Rnk. Org. Expert guides who are found in the major cities of SIRIPHAGOS. Aside from knowing every nook and cranny of their respective cities, they are knowledgeable in many other subjects, including history, current affairs, economy, and religions, and though they are expensive, they are an invaluable asset to foreign dignitaries.

The meereni are thought of as discreet and trustworthy, and are organised into a guild that ensures the wellbeing of its members. There are some who accuse them of mongering information, selling it to the highest bidder or passing it on to the ruling council of Siriphagos, though there is little proof behind such allegations.

MEGALA: Ind. Set. Iron-mining city in the north of PELASGOS. It forms a part of the RED ROUTE and iron produced here finds its way on sale across the route (Pop. c. 29,000).

MEGARA: Set. Major city in the c south west of SUOR, at the southern shore of lake KALAR, and the course of river LOTAN. It is a major agricultural centre and is known for its stone steps that overlook the river (Pop. c. 5,105,000).

MEGATHALOS: Rui. Ancient now-crumbled colossus lying strewn across the EICLON badlands in LIDEA. The colossus, if still intact, would be gigantic, perhaps a mile high. All that remains now of the strange creature depicted in its now-corroded shape is a large plaque, its words long-since worn away, and scattered boulders across a huge area, some still bearing traces of the original craftsmanship.

MEGILLAR: 1. Geo. Dry region in the north of Krem. It is characterised by scrublands and sparse trees

2. Rel. Vol. Religious scrolls penned in the north of KREM in c. 2080 RM, named after the region in which they were written. They were created by the SHAPER INDERA AHAM SOLTA, through many sessions of automatic writing, whilst ASTRALLY PROJECTING in the otherworld, where their words were imparted to her by a choir of spirits.

The writings espouse a philosophical way of life that is said to lead to a shorter gestation of ones' spirit after death before being reborn as an otherworlder. The truth behind this is unfounded, but the region is known for the many otherworlders that travel there from around ELYDEN. Few amongst them know of what draws them there, but the supporters of the WAY OF MEGILLAR, as the philosophy is called, swear that they are drawn to the region by the influence the Way of Megillar had on the gestating sprits within the OTHERWORLD.

The scrolls are stored in the holy city of OKKOWAN, where the bodies of dead otherworlders are interred glass-fronted reliquaries in a great temple. The scrolls themselves are preserved in a crystal altar in the back of the temple.

MEGGROLL: For. Scrub forest in the c west of THE SURRACH, dominating the south east of SAGGAR, and the far south of the BAKHRAN STATES.

MEGHA: Geo. Shallow basin dominating the east of PARAIYA that is known for its wetlands and a 175-mile stretch of the NOTHIYA river that is dominated by braided rivers and wetlands. The region is an alluvial plain and is incredibly fertile. It has been settled for millennia, and is covered in expansive farmlands were beans, legumes, rice, and grains are all grown.

Many Paraiyan nomads once travelled across the Megha, though they have lessened since it has been overtaken by agricultural industries, which has also seen the once-bountiful herds of animals slowly moving farther east or south.

MEGHIDDÉ: Set. Settlement in the north of the BARRIER LANDS. It is an ancient settlement, dating to the days of the CHIWENOOL Kingdom, and ruins of its once-coastal fortifications still dot the landscape. It dwindled with the waning of ELYDEN'S seas, though it remains active to this day, serving as a crossroads of trade across the Border Lands (Pop. c. 4,800).

MEGHRANIZ BHOOKH: also 'the Otherborn Territories'. His. Ntn. Early FIFTH AGE culture in what is now the east of ZHARIAH^(2.). Little is known of its early history but by c. 150 RM a series of city-states and small states had appeared, in which HALFBLOODS of various lineages were prominent figures. Many rose to become rulers or powerful shapers in, and were largely responsible for the regions' coalescing into the singular state of ZHARIAH^(1.) in 1107 RM under the command of the champion SKAETAH. It is unknown what events led to the prominence of halfbloods in the region, though it is likely that there may have been a community of otherworlders in the region in the FOURTH AGE.

Many remnants of this time can be found to this day, including the TOMBS OF THASAUZ, where the most renowned members of the halfblooded caste were interred.

MEGILLRGN: Geo. Volcanic region in the east of SAMMAEA, to the north west of the SEA OF LETHEA, on the southern face of the GOJAN highlands. Though devoid of true volcanoes, the area is unstable, known for earthquakes and the cracked shell of earth from which seep poisonous gasses and dark lava.

MEGINNAS: 1. Geo. Region in the east of PARTHIS. It was once an agricultural centre, though the past centuries have seen the climate change, leading to the abandonment of much farmland.

2. Rui. abandoned city in the above region^(1.) in the east of PARTHIS. The city was home to a faltering culture that in c. 3480 RM departed to colonise the island of JIRIDUN in the SEA OF ORRIDA, establishing the independent nation of OD MEGINNAS^(1.).

MEGISTA: (-189-ft.) Geo. Depression in the north east of ALMAGEST, noted as an endorheic basic with a large area below sea level. The area is dry and cold, and sits just north of the northern POLAR CIRCLE. Its lowest point is 189-ft below sea level.

MEGREZ: Rvr. River in the north of THE SURRACH, flowing north for 250miles from sources in the NGHALLEAL Mountains, before meeting its parent, the river MAENDA. It passes through the mildly ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of AMAM, in the south of EREBETH.

MEGUOS: Rui. Ancient coastal city in present-day OPHIUSSA, within the grasslands of PERISTULLA. It was once a major polity in the region but found its influence waning as the coastline slowly retreated. It waned throughout the first millennium RM and was abandoned in c. 1000 RM.

MEHARRAAT: His. Med. Tec. Archaic SOUL-ENGINE created by the DEMIURGE NYARLOTH following the corruption of his physical body and his obsession with stalling its inevitable demise. The soul-engine was the result of his fevered artifice and upon the eventual consumption of Nyarloth's physical body, his spirit, or essence was transmigrated into the device, where it remains to this day in a state of torpor.

Monolithic in scope, the soul-engine is comprised of billions of large vacuum tubes and other archaic machinery, all linked together in rows and storeys that continue for miles beneath the near-abandoned city of PARYMESIA, where SEPTS continue to tend to the soul-engine to this day. At the height of its power the city boasted a population of over 5,000,000 ROTHANI, whose sole purpose was the maintenance of the great machine in which the Demiurge's essence dwelt. The Septs acted as priestengineers who oversaw the maintenance and held communion with the Demiurge.

Though little is known of the soul-engine and Parymesia, the engine is still believed to be functioning.

MEHAT HI: Rel. Str. Monastery of the Order of Lore on the island of PADHIS in the BROKEN LANDS, KHAMID.

MEHDRA: Ntn. Nation in the south of WESTERN SAMMAEA, to the east of SYNCHTHONITHA. Climate/terrain *

It emerged from the latter alongside $\underline{GRARNE \hat{A}ST}$ and $\underline{HA \ddot{I}RAMAL}$ in 3817 RM. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

MEHEMESH: Ser. Major city in the east of the JAHADAT STATES, in the east of SAMMAEA, and capital of one of the twelve States. It is recognised by most outsiders as the ruling city amongst all 12 capitals (Pop. c. 138,600).

MEHEMM: Rel. Str. SZIKALIAN monastery in the c east of THE SURRACH, to the north east of the BIRANTA Mountains.

MEHITIEL: Dem. 'Mehitiel'. Ntn. Nation in the west of MENISCEA, north west of the SEA OF AKRY. The region occupied by present-day Mehitiel was struck by a foul PLAGUE in 903 RM, which moved west over the next 100-years.

It was at war with ABATTUR 3326 and 3353 RM. In 3788 RM the royal family of MEHITIEL was slaughtered during a wedding ceremony on the beach of ONORIEL, plunging the entire nation into anarchy that saw a new republic emerge in 3791 RM. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

MEHMAS: Lake in the south east of PORPHYR, forming part of the course of the river MAYED, which leads into SABAISA.

MEHMUTH: His. Ntn. Historic region in the south west of SAMMAEA, in what are today the south of PHYRR and MAENMIST and the far north west of NORTHERN SIMBARA.

Its people never united into a single state as others around it did. Instead, they lied in large extended family groups of as many as 100-200 individuals. Some remained sedentary, with their descendants founding settlements; while others became nomads, moving slowly in caravans hauled by great beasts. Some of these nomads would go on to become merchants, trading along a 1,000-miles stretch of what would in time become the $\underline{\text{NACRE ROAD}}$.

Those who settled faced predation from various foes, including MEDHAMANNI slavers, who harassed their northern territories, particularly between c. 800 and 1800 RM. This led to the construction of a series of high towers that were used to light signals to warn people of an attack, giving them change to seek the shelter of great underground strongholds.

Though it recovered somewhat during the MEDHAMANNI DARK AGE, Phyrran slavers began launching new raids starting in c. 1960 RM, sending troops south to overwhelm the Mehmuthi towers, sweeping into their lands and taking thousands north as slaves and establishing strongholds on their old settlements. This period lasted around 200-years and reduced Mehmuthi territories by two thirds, pushing their remnants further south.

The period ended in c. 2180 RM as the Mehmuthi people rallied around a new group of leaders, known as the PHEMERION, whose leadership allowed them to secure their remaining territories and establish new defensive lines in the north and even greater subterranean fortresses in the south and east – the so-called PHEMERION BUNKERS, which formed the basis of the great underground metropolises used in Maenmist today.

The Mehmuthi culture waned by c. 2700 RM, its people victim of their own fear and reclusiveness. Various scattered cultures rose in their stead between c. 2700 and 3000 RM, of which Maenmist became the dominant one, slowly absorbing most by c. 3150 RM. See Vol III: Extinct States.

MEHOK VADALIA: also 'the Singing Tower'. Int. Leg. Mus. Rui. Ancient solid metal pylon-like tower in the north west of SAMMAEA, north west of the SANTOREAN Mountains. The tower stands some 100-ft. tall and has a square base 80-ft. wide, and is riddled with hollows and tubes that produce an eerie music when the wind blows. The tunes change drastically based on the direction of the wind. Native folklore places prophetic qualities in the changes in the music.

MEHOTHATI: Ser. City in the contested region of ESSEVERA, west of the SEA OF APHOTIS. Once an ALMAGESTI colony, it is now the centre of the lucrative independent UMBRA processing industry in the Esseveran umbra fields. Situated at the mouth of the river BARRA, it is home to a large harbour where umbra ships dock to fill their reservoirs before travelling south. It is also the hub of a large umbra pipe network that takes processed umbra from the manufactory city of Essevera and pumps it south to major cities in the region (Pop. c. 40,000).

MEHRAMIS: Set. City in the south of ADHERA in the south west of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 36,000).

MEHRIRA: Set. Small city in the c of VENTHIR, in the region of ZAMAINI (Pop. c. 14,000).

MEHROTA: Set. Large city in the south west of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR, in MALAN. It is a major industrial centre in Malan, and its factories manufacture various engines and machinery used across the FOREST KINGDOMS (Pop. c. 92,000).

MEHURLITAH: Geo. Rocky escarpment along the border between the nations of BANT and KULIGALA, in the c of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA⁽¹⁾.

MEIGNAS: Set. City in the c south of the HENDECARCHY of MYEIN in the west of MALAN. It lies along the northern shore of lake BALI, close to the border with south western AMILLAERE^(1.) (Pop. c.).

MEILYR, HIGH-ASSESSOR: (B 3901 – D? RM) Pol. Rnk: HIGH-ASSESSOR of the AVÉNETHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION since 3972 RM.

MEINAASOS: Set. Large industrial city high along the western bank of the river PARRAN, in the south east of LAASKHA (Pop. c. 172,000).

MEIRAN: Rui. Ancient FIFTH AGE YARAOMIC settlement in the territory of GARHADDON, in the c east of extant VAALK. It was one of few Yaraomic settlements of note, and was overtaken by KORACHANI forces in c. 150 RM during their conquest of VALKA.

MEKARREM AND: (B. 3946 RM) Pol. Present governor of HARAPPA⁽³⁾, who answers directly to SATHEP THE RISEN, in SARASTRO.

MEKASSAR: Set. Small city in the contested lands of UTIMAN, in the c of PORPHYR. It has a small gold mine, and its known for its ivory trade, from beasts that live in the wooded hills of the region (Pop. c. 17,000).

MEKENA: Rui. Ruined settlement in the far east of VAALK, close to the border with MHAROKK, 10-miles west of the BAY OF NUTHEN. It was once a major city in VAALTHA, though was destroyed by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR in 2609 RM due to increased strife in the east of the nation following radicalisation of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE and the growing centralisation of the government in ANAKARRA. The city was later consumed by the Atramental wasteland known as the MEKENA AKRA, and remains a ruin to this day as testament to the wrath of the Archpotentate.

It was built atop the far older early FIFTH AGE YARAOMIC settlement of EREHANN, which was part of the ASUWAN territories.

MEKENA AKRA: also 'the Wastes of Mekena'. Geo. ATRAMENTAL WASTELAND in the south east of VAALK, outside the ruins of MEKENA. It runs for around 75-miles in a rough south westerly direction along a natural escapement dividing the far east of Vaalk from the north west of MHAROKK. The region is dominated by DUSTSTONE formations that are known to collapse after heavy rains, leaving new formations behind. These are thought to be a result of Atramental use in attacks by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR against the city of Mekena in 2309 RM.

The region is categorised as a Moderate threat by the Korachani Institute of Atramental Studies.

MEKESH: Set. Settlement in the c east of MHAROKK, known for its quality stone quarries (Pop. c. 9,000).

MEKHAR: (4,500-ft.) Geo. Hill in the east of Andiluth that until c. 1050 RM was an island in the SEA OF BYSSOS. The lowering of ELYDEN'S seas since then saw it conjoined with the mainland.

MEKHOZIA: Rvr. Major river in EASTERN LLACHATUL flowing east from sources in the ARGENT Mountains through the TURCAR Desert before meeting its termination at lake KALIMM in TETHYSIA.

MEKLIS: Set. City in the c east of $\underline{JURRAS}^{(2)}$, along the course of the river $\underline{EHATANAS}$ (Pop. c. 18,000).

MEKONIA: Sec. City in the far south of the nation of DURCHAA that once specialised in CLONING. Following the fracture of Durchaa from the KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3101 RM, the city diminished, its government fragmenting, leaving it as a lawless state of rogue TECHNARCANISTS.

The city has since recovered and is now a centre of manufacture in Durchaa, ruled by a warring Patrician Houses and populated by rival gangs under the sway of the patricians. The rest of its populace is composed of refugees and the opportunistic descendants of CLONES, HAEMONCULI, and other MANUFACTURED BEINGS from its imperial days (Pop. c. 84,000).

MEL ADIUS: Rui. Ancient FIFTH AGE coastal fortifications in the west of the island-continent of BROR⁽¹⁾. The fortifications date back to c. 1350 RM, during the time of the COALITION OF SURISSIA, and take the form of giant concrete colossi with bunkers in place of heads, whose purpose was primarily as lookout posts, though they were also equipped with well-made artillery whose role was to attack enemy ships before they could approach the land. These fortifications were instrumental in keeping the people of the 'FAR WORLD' away from Bror, allowing it to develop in relative isolation.

Most of these fortifications were abandoned long ago and have been left to rot and are now found many miles from the coasts as the seas of ELYDEN have steadily retreated.

MEL SAGHI: Geo. Mountain range in the south east of the nation of AMMESH, in the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula.

MELAAN: Geo. Island in the SEA OF DAGGERS, belonging to PERGOST.

MELA: Geo. Rel. Mesa in the south of ABARHAL known for a singular maple tree that is tended to by an ancient group of monks that claim to have planted it there centuries ago. The tree is regarded as sacred by the monks, who will defend it with their lives if needed.

MELAHAR II: (B. 3916 RM) Pol. REGENT-KING and present ruler of VÂRR.
MELAIA: Geo. South western arm of SAUAN territories, dividing the CITY

KINGDOMS OF THE HARÉSHK from MALAN. It is known for its fertile mesa formations and lush grasslands as well as its competent corps of arbalesters.

MELAIS: 1. Geo. Region in the north of AZAZEM. The land was bequeathed by the empire to the PATRICIAN HOUSE MELANA in c. 2571 RM, after which it takes its name. Archpatrician Kaustus of House Melana rapidly exploited the grazing lands of the region, setting its vassals to work there. A citadel was constructed where the house would base itself, and a large city quickly appeared around it, becoming a wealthy stronghold of the house, whose Archpatrician desired independence from Azazem, pledging full loyalty to the Archpotentate and Korachan. Kaustus was a religious radical, and worshipped St. Astreg, the patron of House Melana since its inception centuries past, and forsook the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE in favour of worship of St. Astreg, which was frowned upon by KHADON.

Descendants of Archpatrician Kaustus would continue to petition Khadon for Melais' emancipation from Azazem for decades, but the requests were denied.

In 2678 RM House Melana formally declared the independence of Melais from Azazem, bringing chaos to the region. Azazemi armies marched against the citadel of Melais, expecting a half-hearted defence. Instead, it became embroiled in a 3-month siege that killed thousands, but succeeded in repelling the attacks.

War soon engulfed the region, leaving Melais cut off from the rest of the empire, forcing it to surrender in 2780 RM. House Melana lost favour with Khadon and was stripped of its lands in Azazem, which was to be its undoing. Despite this, the region of Melais remains loyal to its worship of St. Astreg to this day, which is tolerated by the Church due to the regions relatively fertile lands.

2. Set. City in the eponymous region, appearing there in c. 2621 RM following the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE'S exploitation of the region in previous decades. The city was greatly damaged by the war between House Melana and Azazem between 2678 – 2680 RM, though remains the main city of the region to this day. Its people stubbornly worship St. Astreg over the Undying Machine, which the Church tolerates. Though much of Azazem is now sterile, the lands around Melais are relatively fertile and are home to many fortified farmsteads and fields (Pop. c. 26,800).

MELAKAB: Set. Settlement in the south west of RHINOCOLOURA. It is unimpressive, and home to shepherds, though it played an important role in the rise of the RHINOCOLOURAN KHANATE^(2.), for it was the first recorded settlement where the Khan ILLAREGH first made himself known. In 3601 RM (Pop. c. 7,000).

MELANA: Pol. Soc. PATRICIAN HOUSE in the HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN. In 243 RM it became one of six Patrician Houses that seceded from the KORACHANI EMPIRE and formed the REPUBLIC OF LARATHUKH⁽²⁾. The republic was attacked by Patrician Houses that had remained loyal to the empire, and it was toppled in 271 RM. House Melana lost favour following this, and spent many centuries struggling to regain favour.

It was at its height in c. 2350 RM, though in c. 2571 RM it was granted a large tract of land in the north of \underline{AZAZEM} , which became known as \underline{MELAIS} .

Fertile lands in the region were soon exploited and a citadel constructed around which the city of Melais⁽²⁾ would later appear. Archpatrician Kaustus was head of the House at this time and had an unhealthy obsession with St. Astreg, the patron of House Melana for centuries. He forced the people of his fief into worshipping her over the UNDYING MACHINE. News reached KHADON, and <a href="CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE looked at the act as heresy.

Within decades of taking control of the area of Melais, desired independence from Azazem and petitioned the capital for autonomy, but the requests were denied due to the worship of St. Astreg.

House Melana formally declared the independence of Melais from Azazem in 2678 RM despite Khadon denying its requests. This resulted in two years of war, where Azazemi armies besieged the citadel of Melais, forcing it to surrender in 2780 RM.

House Melana lost favour with Khadon and was stripped of its lands in Azazem, which was to be its undoing. Within a century House Melais had diminished greatly, and remains now in small numbers in the south of Azazem, the east of LAASKHA, as well as in scattered enclaves in the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

MELANI: Rvr. Largely-seasonal river in the north east of VENTHIR, flowing east from the highlands of SAGO and the plains of HAMSHEN. The ancestors of the NATHI people once claimed the banks of this river as their ancestral home, though it has since dwindled in size, sometimes failing to appear altogether if seasonal rains do not appear.

MELANIC: Geo. Region in the c of KHARKHARADONTIS, around 900-miles west of the BLACK FOUNTAIN. It stretches for close to 100-miles in length and is of a featureless black glass-like substance.

MELAR: Set. Small city in the c west of the BAKHRAN STATES, along the main trade-route through the States. It is known for its stone quarries and its carob groves (Pop. c. 18,000).

MELARIA: Set. Major city in the north east of AMMESH to the west of the TRETHIGH Mountains. It is known to trade with the TAAN ANAN city of MELEMMESH (Pop. c. 76,000).

MELASO: Set. Coastal settlement in the far east of ELEKHID. Its main industry is the manufacturer of the resin known as MANNA. Production of manna is shrouded in secrecy and outsiders are not allowed in the city (Pop. c. 10,000).

MELATUT: Rvr. River in the west of BANT, flowing south for 325-miles, from sources in the ETONONONT highlands. It is a tributary of the larger river CHAKIN OTT.

MELAYA: Dem. 'Melayan'. His. Ntn. Early FIFTH AGE culture in the south east of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, in what is today occupied by the west of SAUA, east of AHRISHEN, and the far north of the HARÉSHK. It rose between c. 500 - 700 RM, remaining insular throughout its existence.

Under the rule of FIRMAMENTISTS known to wear black masks, Melaya attacked the city of TASH, destroying it. After this time, it waned and later fragmented, leading to parts of it becoming absorbed by SAEDISH and HARÉ SHKA.

MELCHIOR ARVAYHA ONÉSIMUS: (B. 3969 RM) Pol. Sup. TEMUJAN male. As a youth, he was a guardian and hunter of his home, the village of ARVAYHA. Melchior was FIREBLOODED, and as such, enjoyed a level of education higher than that of many similar-aged youths. His lineage gave him responsibilities, such as those of courier to the $\underline{ELDERS}^{(2)}$ of his tribe

MELEA: Set. Coastal settlement in the north of EREBETH (Pop. c. 10,000).

MELEK: Set. Settlement in the c of AHRISHEN, 14-miles north of the capital of MAHSERTH. The settlement is situated in the GIANT'S MOUND region, and is a major producer of granite used in the capital, with its sculptors famed across LLACHATUL (Pop. c. 8,000).

MELEMMESH: Set. Small fortified city in the south east of TAAN AN. It maintains a trade route with the AMMESHI city of MELARIA (Pop. c. 18.200).

MELEN: Sea. Inland sea in the c south of SATARIEL. Its link to the SEA OF

IALCUS lies within the city of HADARMIEL, whose post is the only access into the sea.

MELENDARA: Set. Fortified coastal city on the south of the island of CYNCER^(1.) in the south of the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 39,200).

MELENEK: Lak. Lake in the c of AETHIOS, along the course of the river NARRATI. It is named after an ancient king of ETHAND.

MELENESH: Set. Small city in the c east of AMMESH, between the URARAGHI and MELSAGHI Mountains (Pop. c. 15,200).

MELESH: (B. 341 RM) Pol. Soc. The most powerful of the DESPOSYNI, commonly referred to by his title, Primid. He was slain by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR in 902 RM during the closing act of the DESPOSYNI WARS, though he was later restored to life through the dedicated actions of his HOUSE and a cadre of TECHNARCANISTS in a powerful ritual.

MELHIMEA: Int. Geo. Region of fossilised machines and archaic engines in the far east of ABACARDAT, just west of the border with ZHARIAH⁽²⁾, many of them buried in strata like ancient fossils. The machines, or what remains of them, are worshipped by the savages of the region, who regard them as sleeping gods.

In truth the machines are CANOPIC ENGINES for the spirits of the DEMIURGE NYARLOTH'S SCIONS and SEPTS, his closest aides, who oversaw the construction of his own SOUL-ENGINE, known as MEHARRAAT, though they are corrupted beyond use, the spirits of those interred within thought to be inert, dormant.

MELHUMBRA: 1. Geo. Island off the north western coast of SAMMAEA, forming part of the KORACHANI colony of the same name.

2. Pol. KORACHANI colony off the north western coast of SAMMAEA, between the SEA OF LYNNAE in the west and the SEA OF BATYAE in the east, and south of the ERTHYDEAN SEA. It has been under Korachani control since 2973 RM, and has been a major territory of HOUSE CROTON since 3348 RM. It is a major source of slaves for the empire, which are acquired through slave raids along the Sammaean coast. It is also a major producer of cork.

3. Set. City in the above colony, belonging to the KORACHANI EMPIRE. It was once the main administrative centre of the colony though found itself landlocked in c. 3440 RM and remains now as a hub of the cork industry on the island.

MELIA: Pol. Soc. PATRICIAN HOUSE that, alongside the houses of KYDOR, LYCTUS and HIMERAN, was a major political presence in TARATI^(1.), originating as a puppet of the governing body there in c. 1100 RM and becoming part of the ruling TETRAN by c. 1300 RM. The Tetran was overthrown by dissidents called THE AVATARS in 3013 RM, with their leaders executed and their followers expelled from the small nation.

The House remained active in \underline{AZAZEM} and $\underline{LAASKHA}$ following the fall of the Tetran. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

MELIALAN: Sec. Small city in the west of THE OLD FOREST. It forms a part of the GÂTHAN ROAD (Pop. c. 16,000).

MELIBODHA: Pol. Set. Major city and capital of the MALANI
HENDECARCHY of AONIA along the course of the river INDROT. It forms a link along the GREAT ROAD trade-route (Pop. c. 785,200).

MELIDIA: small city in the north of SAGITTARIA, just south of the SEA OF
EBORRA. It is known for its reed gatherers, and forms part of the IVORY
ROAD (Pop. c. 15,200).

MELIK: Set. Settlement in the east of the region of GENETHAANT, in the seasonal wetlands of lake IGRAAL in the c of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 9,000).

MELIORA: Set. Settlement in the ASTUDAN⁽²⁾ settled by refugees and outcasts from other regions in c. 3820 RM. It never grew into the independent haven that they wished for, and was absorbed by GÂTHA within a few decades of its appearance, and it remains under its control to this day (Pop. c. 8,000).

MELIQ: Set. Small city in the east of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT, at the eastern foothills of the ZANBAURI Mountains. Its main industry is the quarrying of aluminium (Pop. c. 12,000).

MELITIA: 1. Geo. Island off the north eastern-coast of THUMAL.

2. Set. Settlement in the north west of THUMAL (Pop. c. 4,200).

MELKARTH: Leg. One of the names of the HERO OF A THOUSAND

BATTLES. In some legends he is said to have discovered purple dye when his dog bit into a shellfish, turning its mouth purple.

Some scholars believe that he may be the scion MELQART of the DEMIURGE AVRAHAM, after finding various passages in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN that are similar to tales of the Hero of a Thousand Battles

MELKAT: Geo. His. Site in the north west of present-day SUMA'YA where a large battle was fought between KORACHANI immigrants and BA'AKHI natives in 568 RM. The battle was quick and bloody, ending in the massacre of unnumbered thousands of Ba'akhi soldiers; their bodies piled into a great pyramid and blessed by imperial priests to EXORCISE them of the influence of their pagan god, TERATHA. The Battle of Melkat was the last great battle during the imperial exploration of the area and it was responsible for the later imperial dominance in the region.

MELLAGO: Set. Major coastal city in the north of the TEMPLAR STATES, overlooking the BAY OF SHERUSALL.

It was established in 1908 RM in the TRISKETHIAN DOMAINS as a replacement for the ailing port city of LILLI, which was located at the edge of the dwindling BAY OF DORRA, and which was suffering from increasingly devastating low tides that were leaving it landlocked, its port useless. Mellago was chosen for its deep natural harbours that would withstand years of continued diminishing in sea levels.

The city has since waned in influence and importance, though remains a major centre of SOULSTONE-based TECHNARCANE industries (Pop. c. 48,000).

MELLAR: Set. Major city in the BAKHRAN STATES, built on LAETIAN ruins (Pop. c. 102,000).

MELMOTH: 1. Arc. Metallic twin pillars in the far north west of BROR^(1.), separated by some 500-miles across the SEA OF BRAGUA. One is located on the north western-most tip of Bror, while the other is half-sunken, off the southern coast of the isle of KRAJA, to the north west of Bror. Both are damaged, though survive relatively intact, and at their full heigh would have measures some 400-ft. of tapering geometric design. Their purpose or origin are unknown, though ate thought to date to the same culture in the THIRD AGE.

- 2. Arc. northern-most of the two pillars of Melmoth^(1.), located on the island of Kraja. It is the most-damaged of the two and is abandoned today.
- 3. Set. Arc. southern-most of the two pillars of Melmoth^(1.), located on the north western-most tip of $\underline{BROR}^{(1.)}$. Though damaged, it is now the centre of a large settlement (Pop. c. 16,000).

MELODUS & BARDAS: Ind. Com. Famed for the beauty of its timepieces, Melodus & Bardas was established in 3305 RM when the famed modelmaker Bardas teamed up with sensational young HOROLOGIST Melodus to construct a beautiful CLOCK of such artistic aptitude that it was sold to the most influential Patrician House in AZAZEM.

The two maintained their alliance and established a company that prized the beauty and artistry of its horologists – a mindset which persists to this day. Though not mechanically the best timepieces in the empire, its output is measured by the beauty and finesse of its pieces. Each piece is unique, and most are made bespoke to order, accounting for the decade-long waiting list for now works.

MELOGGOS: Geo. Ridge in the c west of THE SURRACH.

MELOGH: Mil. Str. Fortress in the south east of KERRAS PELLN, guarding the main pass into the UMBRA SOKHAR.

MELQART: m. Myt. His. Per. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, a SCION of the DEMIURGE AVRAHAM, mentioned in many independent sources and passages within the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN. He led the HUMAN forces in the WAR OF THE SHATTERED PROPHECY, that saw millions of IFIRMIANS slaughtered.

Many scholars believe that he is synonymous with the HERO OF A THOUSAND BATTLES. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

MELUHULLU: Geo. Basin in the west of KHULL, characterised by its many shallow valleys which lead gradually to the west. The region is dry but is thriving and full of life, particularly after the rainy season, which sees countless flowers bloom over a short span of time, bringing all manner of fauna.

MELUTA: Ind. Set. Settlement in the south west of CISNERIA, to the west of the BLACK MOUNTAINS. Its main industry is the mining of BLOODSTONES (Pop. c. 6,500).

MELOGHA: Geo. Valley in the south of KERRAS PELLN leading towards the PASS into the UMBRA SOKHAR.

MEMBARRA: Set. Major city in the c east of THE SURRACH, along the SABARRAK depression. The city is noted for being constructed on heavy stone stilts that become submerged in the wet season and the normally-dry endorheic lake of the area being to fill with rainwaters from the north (Pop. c. 71,000).

MEMEHAR: 1. Sea. Sea sound, forming the south west of the SEA OF UGOLOTH, itself a part of the larger SEA OF BYSSOS.

2. Pol. KORACHANI colony founded in far eastern ANDILUTH in c. 1050 RM, where the first STEEL LEGIONNAIRES were created. At the time the colony was situated on the island of MEKHAR, though the lowering of the SEA OF BYSSOS saw the island become landlocked, part of the greatly increased landmass that became known as the ANDILUTHAN SHELF.

MEMNIBOL: also 'Dread Marshes'. Sup. Geo. Foul marshlands in the c north west of KHARKHARADONTIS, in the REALM OF THE MARKED PALL. The region is ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED and ignored.

MEMNID COLOSSI: His. Arc. A series of around a hundred ancient dioritic colossi in the MEMNIDS in the HENDECARCHY of LONAR in MALAN, their stylised faces angled upwards, following the course of the IVORY MOON.

MEMNIDS, the: Geo. Karst and massif formations in the north east of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR in MALAN, serving as a natural border between it and MYEIN.

MEMORITER: Rnk. Caste of administrational clerks in PARTHIS and its dependencies, who are taught from a young age to memorise text and dictation, giving them what is commonly referred to as a heliographic memory. Memoriters are said to be able to quote hundreds of pages of text from memory without any form of preparation. Perhaps as a result of their unique talents, most Memoriters are aloof, and seen as strange by others, unable to socially functions most others do. They are shunned by most others and tend to live in small compounds close to or within the offices in which they work.

MEN OF GLASS: see SILEX.

MEN-OF-RUST: Rel. Mil. Org. conscript soldiers of ILOXENRA, whose members are indoctrinated in the beliefs of the SLAVES OF SENESCENCE. They are characterised by their slab-like rusted armour and heavy hand cannons, and raid surrounding lands for slaves and plunder.

MEN OF STEEL: Int. Tec. His. Metallic CREANTS that wander the lands of the PORPHYRI PENINSULA. They stand around 10-ft. tall and are made from an ancient bone-like metal that was grown by the IROTHANI kingdoms of KATHAR BYAAT. These machines were given rudimentary commands by SHAPERS who could control remotely. Following the fall of the irothani kingdoms, most of the Men of Steel continued performing their last tasks.

Few of them remain today and those that do are decayed, covered in rust and moss. They struggle to move, though continue to fulfil their last orders until it is impossible for them to move. They are dangerous and in most cases are ignored, though in a few rare instances they have been 'tamed' and might be seen accompanying powerful shapers of itinerant members of the VAGANT COHORT.

MENAAIS: Ser. A major city in the c south east of LAASKHA, along the course of the river LARRAN. Its economy is based around industrial manufacture, and it provides much of eastern Laaskha with its industrial goods (Pop. c. 110,000).

MENAIA: Set. City in the east of GNOTH. It is believed to be the birthplace of the SICTHAINEN TECHNA, known as MENAION, that dominate the eastern face of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains. and the BLACK MOUNTAINS. This iteration of the city is built atop the ruin of a far older metropolis, thought to date back to the THIRD AGE, which thrived well into the FOURTH AGE, the ruins of which dot the countryside around the present-day city. It is not uncommon for the remnants of ancient menaia to be dug up around the city (Pop. c. 17,500).

MENAION: Tec. His. GNOTHI automatons similar to imperial SICTHAINEN

TECHNA found in dormant state along the eastern face of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains. and parts of the BLACK MOUNTAINS.

Their condition – overgrown, rusted, pitted and worn-down, indicate that they have been there for millennia, their original intent possibly to guard or even forgotten altogether.

They are about the height of a GIGANRI, or possibly taller, standing about 10-feet tall are bulky and, when complete, often bear animal-like heads, giving them a totemic or shamanistic quality. These totemic heads appear to have had some influence on the SHAPERS of ALAM BETHYL who wear wooden death-masks of similar attributes.

MENAPIA: Set. Small city in the c north of AETHIOS (Pop. c. 20,000).

MENARACGH: Ser. Large slum-city in the region of JAT RAZDA in the far west of THE SURRACH. It was originally envisioned in c 3520 RM by the now-extinct nation of AHINA as a massive drydock. The project ultimately failed, though not before a vast quarry was constructed close to the water's edge, though never linked to the water. The material removed from the quarry was used in construction of the surrounding settlement. The quarry remained empty for some time until an earthquake in c 3610 RM toppled part of the city into it. The rubble was used to reconstruct part of the city, which extended within the quarry, ultimately becoming a large unregulated slum, from which the present city evolved.

Today the city is a major industrial centre and capital of the region of Jat Razda, gutting decommissioned ships and CYCLING the waste of nearby cities into usable materials (Pop. c. 67,000).

MENATH: 1. Geo. Mountain-range in SAMMAEA, along the border between ARKOS^(1,) and SARASTRO.

2. Set. KARKADAN enclave just south of the STYLITH forest along the border between SARASTRO and ARKOS^(1.). The karkadanni were once found throughout this region of SAMMAEA, though were forced south by colonialism and expanding HUMAN empires in the FIFTH AGE, which the karkadanni could never compete against. The fact that the karkadanni are also a mystical people, believing in fetishism and SHAMANISM has not served them well in a post-industrialised world filled with religious and mythic cynicism.

This is one of the few places outside of RHINOCOLOURA where they have thrived, largely because the speck of land they cling to is without industrial resources and because of a totemic idol that they revere, which gives them a reason to stay. The truth is that the karkadanni leaders here have made treaties with SATHEPTHE RISEN, that allows them to maintain sovereignty of Menath, in return for military aid should the occasion arise (Pop. c. 24,800).

MENATORR: Set. City in the c of MIRALUL, forming a part of the EGETAKHAN ROAD (Pop. c. 62,000).

MENAXIA: 1. Sea. Bay in the far south east of ATARAXIA.

2. Set. Coastal city in the far south east of Ataraxia, 52-miles from the border with Ahka. The city is fortified due to its proximity with Ahka and its conflict with Korachan (Pop. c. 82,500).

MENBRAH: Set. Small city in the east of GYZHA (Pop. c. 20,000).

MENDICANT: Rel. Org. Monastic order in TETHYSIA. It is made up of contemplatives who write prayer-plaques to the NEVERDYING and leave them as offerings in natural places such as forests, springs, oases, etc.

MENDREA: Set. Major coastal port city in the c east of CEHOPHELA, overlooking the SEA OF INGALAT. It is unique in that the city proper is surrounded by steep cliffs and is only accessible from the land by a natural tunnel. The tunnel has been widened and reinforced over the years and is now guarded by a series of bastions, making it close to impregnable from the land. On the other side, it is guarded by two large breakwaters, each of which ends at a sea fort.

Mendrea was the birthplace of the famed Cehophelan historian LUNTEV, whose 17-volume 'A New HISTORY OF ELYDEN' is considered one of the best modern historical treatises in ELYDEN (Pop. c. 109,200).

MENEFIR: also 'the Broken Mountain'. Geo. Coastal mountain range in the south east of MENISCEA. The mountains are old, worn smooth by coastal activity and known for their deep valleys and as many as half a dozen separate mountain systems, including the AKDA, ALLAD, AYANA, HAMAD, HARAEL, and KHATAM.

MENEMHIR: Set. Settlement in the c of EZASUH^(2.) (Pop. c. 6,400).

MENENHANA: Set. Fortified coastal city in the south east of PELASGOS, in the region of MENNOM (Pop. c. 40,000).

MENENORS: Set. City in the c of AETHIOS. It is known for its glass production (Pop. c. 27,500).

MENENTHARR: Rui. Ancient KHAMIDIAN colossus discovered in 1484 RM by PELASGOSI explorers and transported back to KHADON, in KORACHAN, where it now remains in the SECOND VICTORY SQUARE.

MENERAND: Set. Settlement in the north east of AETHIOS (Pop. c. 6 000)

MENEVATH II: (D. -21 RM) Pol. Last autocrat of Arsheesh, whose death in -21 RM would later bring about the birth of the Ahrisheni nation.

MENHIT: Plr. 'Menhita' Rnk. In RHEA, a title bestowed upon those of any gender who have passed their TELA (COMING-OF-AGE trial) and granted the right to defend the borders of their home. Few who pass the tela are granted this privilege, and the families of those who leave in self-imposed exile on their duties as menhita are forever honoured by this.

In their exile, the menhita roam the borders of Rhea defending it from nomad opportunists and worse. They are most common in the Kaurkha along the northern border with the deserts of RTHEI, and the south, along the border with Iacio.

MENIAASOS: Set. A major city in LIDEA, and its capital until 978 RM. In the years following KORACHANI subjugation in 911 RM, the city became a hotbed of dissent, with native partisans disrupting imperial rule. The capital was moved in 978 RM to the new city of CATHAGO, with Meniaasos left in the hands of the INTERREGES, who enforced martial law to keep the city in order. Despite the disruptions caused during this time, by c. 1000 RM, the city had established itself as an important, if modest, trade centre, linking Lidea with MHAROKK in the west and the mercantile city of PYRRHOUA in the north. This, coupled with rich marble quarries outside its borders, have made the city relatively prosperous, receiving many immigrants throughout its life.

A massive earthquake wracked the city in 2605 RM, levelling most of its structures and destroying its streets. It was abandoned after this, with many smaller satellites springing up outside its peripheries, though prospectors and immigrants slowly returned within c. 2750 RM, and the settlements became all part of a larger conurbation that took on the name of Meniaasos. By c. 3000 RM the city had reappeared as a major trade influence in Lidea, where it remains to this day, ruled by the PHORI monarchy, who remained in power as regents following the change in regime of Lidea to the LOW-EMPIRE OF SARASTRO after the SUNDERING OF THE EMPIRE in 3705 RM. Today it is a major city along the routes of both the SALT ROAD and the RED ROUTE, and its markets are alive with merchants trading wares (Pop. c. 260,000).

MENILEK: m. Myt. His. Per. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, a SCION of the DEMIURGE AVRAHAM. Little is known of him and the only mention of him in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN says that he withdrew from his family's legacy and birthright, but eventually became a champion of HUMANS. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

MENISCEA: Geo. Common KORACHANI name for ELYDEN'S eastern continent, connected to the far north east of LLACHATUL. It is known to most natives as ENDORRA. Though many disagree on the exact border between Llachatul and Meniscea, most geologists state its true edge lies north east of the ROTTING MOUNTAIN of VOULLOR.

As its name implies, Meniscea is home to the font of font of the FIRMAMENT in Elyden, known as the TRUE MENISCUS, and its south western-most expanses are FIRMAMENTALLY-TAINTED, particularly the region of TULURKRYPH^(1.) and the CHORHYST phenomenon.

MENISCEA, EASTERN: Geo. One of two common subdivisions for the continent of MENISCEA, understood to begin at the nations of ABATTUR and LOEGRESS in the north west, encompassing most lands west of IMEAL.

MENISCEA, WESTERN: Geo. One of two common subdivisions for the continent of MENISCEA, understood to lie east of CEHOPHELA.

MENISCEAN INDRIK: Fau. Diminutive relative of the indrik that is common to LLACHATUL, around the size of a large horse with MONOCEROUS traits, including a calcified growth on their nose. They are very tough, and relatively easy to train, and are known for their calm demeanour. They are common to the south west of MENISCEA, including, ACHAA⁽²⁾, CHORHYST, DANU, NALARDIL, SABAEA, and VARU.

They are adapted to high FIRMAMENTAL energies (likely the cause of their calcified skin) and can live to 60-70 years in captivity, and rare individuals (1 per 1,000,000) will reach 200-300 and can grow to twice the size of a horse. The older they get the more knobbly and larger the calcified growths on their heads. They are commonly ridden by authority figures, including police forces, as well as diplomats and envoys. See Vo II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MENISCUS, ORDER OF THE: Org. Oth. Esoteric order of Firmamentists and mystics with chapters across MENISCEA, whose base is located in the city HOTAZAK, in VARU. Its symbol is the double crescent moon and its members are expert astronomers, with diverse knowledge regarding the OTHERWORLD and SPIRITS. It evolved from an ancient order based in the MINARET OF LIGHT, with which its members still have close ties.

MENISCUS, the: see TRUE MENISCUS, THE.

MENITAB: Pol. Sct. Capital city of CHEIRA, as well as being head of the first prefecture, where representative of all twelve prefectures sit in council. It appeared around the PALACE OF THE PROPHET OF THE EMPYREAN in c. 3660 RM, and grew rapidly from then over many decades, reaching a population of 100,000 by c. 3800 RM.

It became the capital of Cheira in 3702 RM, after the SORCERER-KINGS were exiled following the rise of the Church of the Prophet of the Empyrean and remains so to this day, though the Church officially lost power in 3803 RM, replaced by a council made up of various guilds and worker unions, which rule from there to this day (Pop. c. 680,500).

MENKA: Geo. Table hills forming the easternmost part of the HARAPPAN^(1.) Mountains, situated in the far south east of MHAROKK.

MENKAR: His. Ntm. A successor state of the failed nation of SARASHAN in the west of the PORPHYRI PENINSULA, that emerged in c. 1000 RM, following centuries of anarchy. See Vol III: Extinct States.

MENKARRI: His. Lan. Now-extinct language that was spoken by the state of MENKAR, in the PORPHYRI PENINSULA. It would eventually give rise to SABAISAN. See Vol II: Languages.

MENKEN BARRIER: Edu. Eschato-nihilistic hypothesis that, put simply, implies that nothing – not ELYDEN, nor distant suns or the galaxy in which they reside – can last forever, not even time, mass or energy. The eponymous barrier is the postulated point when everything has decayed, leaving nothing in its place.

Devised more as a thought experiment than an actual hypothesis by the VÂRRAN philosopher CURE MENKEN in 2367 RM to argue that MORTALS simply cannot comprehend the meaning of nothingness, the argument gained traction far later in KORACHANI scholarly circles in the 32nd century, with many physicists accepting it and building upon its foundations. Various members of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE interpret the Barrier as being the point when all spirits will be consumed by the LORD RACHANAEL in the event known as the RUINATION, uniting mortals with deity in a moment of ecstatic bliss.

MENNANT: Set. Settlement in the south of the region of GENETHAANT in the c east of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 8,200).

MENNOM: Geo. Region of ancient lava flows and dust basins in the south west of PERGOST, in the southern-most tip of the REHEMAZI peninsula, just north of the SEA OF USOLESA. The region is known for its black rocks and dark green mosses and it is noted amongst mariners for the fossilised remains of a gigantic beast, in which the whaling outpost of $\underline{\text{LEAH}}$ is situated.

MENOLOGION: see CALENDAR OF SAINTS.

MENORAH: Set. City-tower in VAALK, along the banks of the river RIPARIS. An immense tower, rising over 1/3-mile in height, built from metal through TECHNARCANE and ATRAMENTAL means over ancient foundations and crypts. Its roots stretch deep beneath the surface of the Vaalkan scrubland, housing manufactories, food vats and other workshops, with offices, residential areas and small businesses filling the rest of its mass. The structure is crowned by patrician's palaces and penthouses, which are built around a massive orthodox cathedral; and its base is surrounded by miles of fields that supply it with food (Pop. c. 103,000 incl. farmland).

MENPON: Set. Fortified city in the south of TAAN AN. It is the largest city in the south of the nation and is a major trade centre, maintaining relations with the city state of RAMINA in the west and AMMESH in the south (Pop. c. 45,000).

MENSA: Rel. Str. Ancient temple in the far east of ANUBIA, in the Salt deserts of SLAAN.

MENTHA: Set. City along the banks of MENTHAS in the south of ERUTO (Pop. c. 173,000).

MENTHAS: Rvr. River in the south of ERUTO, flowing west for 550-miles from sources in the SIPYLANA and ALBITIA Mountains.

MENTA: Set. northern-most major city in THE SURRACH, in the north west of SAMMAEA, located on the ruins of a great FOURTH AGE trench known as GAUL. The city is located along the remaining side of the trench, rising vertically along its surface. Scattered balconies and loggias pepper its visible parts, though its bowels dig deep into the catacombs and caves beyond (Pop. c. 41,000).

MENUR: Mil. Str. Coastal fortress in the north of IO, overlooking the strait of DAGSIN^(1.). It is a base to SARASTROAN ships that defend the strait from foreign attention.

MEON: Com. Set. Major trade city in the c south of IMEAL. It is considered by most to be the heart of the SOVEREIGNS' ROAD trade-route, and it is famed for its gigantic markets and auction houses where trade goods are bought and sold in large quantities before being sold along the trade route. It lies along the course of a large river that flows south into the SEA OF INDIRILL (Pop. c. 118,300).

MER: Sea. Small bay off the western-coast of KETESH, forming the western-most part of the SEA OF BASSANDER.

MERA: Geo. Mountain in what is now central SAUA. In distant times the TURA people saw the mountain as the centre of the universe and the ruins of many late fourth and early FIFTH AGE temples dot its eastern face, with a large.

MERA DYUN: Set. Settlement in CUTH, along the course of the river TEREEN. It is a major producer of rubber and food (Pop. c. 7,000).

MERODACH: Ind. Set. Major industrialised city in the c-south east of KREM, within the BERASSIM BASIN. Situated atop a natural spring, the city has ample free water that is made available to its many people through a vast network of water pumps, the construction of which dates back to c. 2700 RM (Pop. c. 750,000).

MERODI: Set. Settlement in the north of RHINOCOLOURA. It is known for its production of legumes (Pop. c. 3,400).

MERAK MIRA: Sup. Ind. Tec. UMBRAL RIGS off the eastern coast of AHKA. The rigs have been subject to KORACHANI attacks for decades, and many are now in ruin, the sea around them tainted by the ATRAMENTA. The waters of the Merak Mira are ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED and have polluted surrounding waters, though the currents of the GULF OF SKAROS play a vital role in dispersing the taint.

The region is categorised as Dangerous by the Korachani Institute of Atramental Studies.

MERAKHA: Rvr. River in STOLAS flowing east for 240-miles from sources in the REGHAM Mountains before meeting with its parent, the river ALLIA.

MERAKHI: Sec. City in the c north of VENTHIR, forming part of the NATHI ROAD. It originated in the early FIFTH AGE and, alongside the city of VENATH, it became instrumental in bringing about a golden age for the VENATHI EMPIRE, during which time it grew incredibly powerful. By 18 RM the city of ENAATH (present-day HETEPHEROPOLIS) allied itself with TEIRA, to oppose the twin cities of Venath and Merakhi, which eventually lost power. Merakhi waned after this time, becoming a shadow of its former self by the waning years of the Venathi empire.

With the coming of the KORACHANI EMPIRE to VENTHIR in 361 RM, the settlement was resettled, growing into a thriving city by c. 1450, becoming a stronghold to the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. Today it is a major link in the RED ROUTE, and a crossroads of trade in the north of Venthir (Pop. c. 70,000).

MERAL: Set. Dre. AL AKHI settlement in the c north west of STOLAS. It is known for its caste of DREAM-SEERS who venture into the region known as THE GREY TOMBS where they induce visions (Pop. c. 3,000).

MERAVA: Set. Coastal settlement in the north east of the PARTHISAN colony of IBANNEM^(1.) (Pop. c. 7,600).

MERCHANT-KINGS, the: Pol. Set. Ruling caste that emerged in BA'AKH in c. 408 RM following the fall of the older Telraasi government there. The Merchant-kings placed little faith in Telraasi wisdom, and admonished use of Atramental substances, and traded UMBRA and UMBRISKA with other nations, most notably HOAMM. The ORDER OF BAALBETH was created by the descendants of Telraasi members who were exiled by the Merchant-kings, and established a fortress in the ancient hold in the LION'S MAW in the far north east of Ba'akh, from where they harassed the flourishing umbra trade north.

The Merchant-kings were abolished in 634 RM following the nations' subjugation by KORACHAN. They were replaced by governors of imperial descent.

MERCHANT WARDS: Com. Arc. Three coterminous markets within the great city of HETEPHEROPOLIS. Originally independent and divided from each other by some distance, the markets were specialised to different functions – one selling meat and fish, the other selling fruit and vegetables, and the third selling services and manufactured goods. The inexorable growth of the city saw the three distinct markets also expand, and they eventually made contact with each other. Over time, partitioning structures were torn down or adapted, leading to a labyrinthine expanse of alleys and streets – in many cases vaulted or covered in wrought iron and glass – with large empty spaces dominating the historic centre of each market.

Together they are now called the Merchant Wards, and they are where most merchant businesses are found and where they make their homes.

A large statue of QUEEN HETEPHERES now stands at the centre of the Merchant Wards, perched atop a grand structure in which is housed the official departments that oversee trade and taxation within the markets.

MERCUVIA: Sea. Large sea in the south west of SAMMAEA, along the TROPIC OF MAOCARHL.

MERDDIN: Leg. Sup. Rnk. Legendary FIRMAMENTAL SHAPER who features in many legends and myths from MENISCEA, particularly CAMAU, LARISH^(2.) and OBLEVIS.

MERE SABICINA: Lak. Long and narrow lake in the southern face of the KULL DARGA Mountains in the c north of KOLCHIS.

MERECH: 1. Rui. Ancient FIFTH AGE YARAOMIC settlement in the territory of EVURAHAN, in what is today the north east of LIDEA. It was one of few Yaraomic settlements of note, and was overtaken by KORACHANI forces in c. 80 RM during their conquest of northern SAMMAEA.

2. Set. Coastal settlement in the west of $\underline{SARASTRO}$, known for its fishing (Pop. c. 5,800).

MERED SUBBAR: Rui. Ancient THIRD AGE city, now located beneath the western-most reaches of the GO BISAMMAM desert kin the south west of VENTHIR.

MEREHIM: Geo. Expansive badlands region in the far south east of the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes in SAMMAEA. It is known for its many petrified arks that lie, half-buried there. Their distance from open water indicate that the region was vastly different in the past. MEREKA: 1. Sea. Narrow gulf in the east of ESHIR⁽²⁾, to the west of the GULF OF ESHIRON. It is around 85-miles long and has decreased greatly in size over the past centuries, moving steadily east, as the sea level has dwindled.

2. $\it{Mil. Str.}$ Major coastal fort in the east of $\underline{\rm ESHIR}^{(2)}$, guarding the entrance into the gulf of the same name.

MEREN: 1. Sea. Bay in the south east of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES and mouth of the river MEREN SIN.

2. Rvr. Delta of the river MEREN SIN leading to the above bay.

MEREN SIN: Rvr. River dominating the c and south of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, flowing east for 880-miles from sources in the ETHITUL, SHAIPUR, MUHUPUR, HASHATH, and NARAMAS Mountains before emptying in the BRINE SEA. It is considered the lifeline of the nation and many of its major cities are located in its drainage basin.

MERENAI: Rui. Abandoned settlement in the west of AETHIOS, in what is now the BLEEDING PLAINS. It was abandoned in c. 3750 RM after the aforementioned ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region expanded beyond its borders.

MERETH: Set. Settlement in the south east of ESHIR⁽²⁾, in the south west of the region of ATENARA. It is surrounded by rocky landscapes that bear the echoes of an ancient forest – petrified tree stumps and the desiccated remains of woodland creatures. Little is known of this period of life in ancient Eshir, though the region has attracted explorers and historians, who comb through the ruins of ancient life, hoping to find clues that might explain what happened to the area (Pop. c. 5,000).

MERGATA: Sec. City in the west of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES. Its main industry is logging, though it is more famously known for its monastery where SHIE devotees train to serve the MAHANTKHAI, in a tradition that stretches back around 2700-years to the freeing of shie by the first Mahantkhaj RAHANKHEN I from the demon sultan AMENABAST, who had subjugated their people (Pop. c. 47,800).

MERH: Plr. 'merhi'. A unit of measurement common to LIDEA and surrounding regions, including parts of MHAROKK and BA'AKH. It is shorter than the IMPERIAL MILE, to which it is comparable, and equals 1.31 Imperial mile.

MERIDIAN TEMPLE: Pol Rel. Str. Large pylon-like tower within the HALLOWED CITY, in the city of MALADAE, in CEHOPHELA. It was once an influential temple, dedicated to the old animist religion of SEPU, though as the religion fell out of favour in c. 2600 RM it was abandoned. It was restored in c. 2920 RM and has been a part of the administrative infrastructure in the Hallowed City since then.

MERILL: Plr. 'merills'. Mor. One of the original Two-and-Twenty MORTAL PEOPLES, and the children of the DEMIURGE SHIBBOLETH, and the only known aquatic mortals. Physically, they have squamous features, with humanoid upper bodies and piscine tails, with notably no legs. Their faces are notable for being hairless and having large black eyes, and perhaps most famously – long barbels hanging from their chins.

Merills also differ from the other mortal races in that they are asexual, with seven known lines of lineage – each descended from one of the first seven individuals of their tribe. Of them only one lineage exists in numbers enough to study as all other lines have since dwindled through corruption and inbreeding: for the 'torrent' that once sustained them is now gone.

Though few in number, they are most well-known amongst other races for their GENETIC MEMORY, where a newly spawned merill inherits the memories of all its direct ancestors, all the way back to one of the original seven merills. As a result, merills are brimming with discordant memories and experiences which are not their own, though have little empathy, particularly with other races. They are beings of emotion, though unlike KERATIN and ILLIDRAEN it is not a personal passion, but an echo of their many ancestors' lives — pain, suffering, love, loss, death, and so on. As merills age, many find themselves unable to differentiate between their own thoughts and memories inherited across the aeons. This leaves many merills suffering from a personality disorder that is misinterpreted as madness by other races. This disorder becomes exponentially worse with each new generation, which carries the burden of those who came before them, and many scholars think that merills become little more than gibbering beasts.

Merills are linked to the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾ in many ways. They each undertake a long COMING-OF-AGE RITUAL by going upstream to the rivers' main source, where they immerse themselves in its waters. This somehow causes them to reach sexual maturity (Some scholars think this is due to an unknown chemical in the water or some other effect that causes a metabolic change in them), though the proliferation of humans around the river sees fewer and fewer merills complete this arduous ritual.

Merills communicate through intense speech in which intonation and inflection are as important, if not more so, than the words themselves and they can often speak in stream of consciousness, rendering their speech, even that uttered in the common tongues, difficult for other races to understand. Very little else is known about them, though as ELYDEN'S seas retreat, soapstone ruins that hint to ancient submerged metropolises have begun to appear in the middle of once-submerged seas, built on volcanic atolls. Such settlements are invariably deserted and most contact with merills is now either during the pilgrimage along the Shibboleth (though even that has lessened of late) and in coastal raids along the south western coast of SAMMAEA. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life: Sicthain.

MERILL ABDUCTIONS: Int. Soc. Once considered little more than an urban legend or a story that parents of some coastal regions would tell their children to stop them from wandering off, today the phenomenon of MERILL abductions is one that is more readily accepted as fact. Lighthouse keepers that go missing or solitary fishermen that disappear without a trace – such cases are increasing in number, with scattered evidence – indicating that they are being abducted and taken below the sea, though to what purpose remains unknown.

Merill abductions are increasingly common in shallow coastal regions that have been revealed by waning sea levels (geologically) recently, for instance the $\underline{SARGASSUM\ SHELF}$ in the east of \underline{BROR} , or the north west of the $\underline{VORANDINE}$, where they disappear within dense kelp forests.

MERITORIAN: Pol. Rnk. Noble caste in TETHYSIA, culturally similar to the PATRICIANS of the INNER SEA REGION. They are known to wear iron armour as a sign of their rank and wealth. Those of highest hierarchal social rank wear clothing that is reminiscent of full-plate, though it is not functional and made of very thin metal that is tailor-made for comfort and to display wealth through detailed enamelling, filigree and gilding.

MERKABH: also 'the Speaker in Dreams'. Rel. Arc. Dre. A totemic spirit worshipped by AL AKHI of the STOLAS. The spirit is said to communicate to the DREAMS of al akhi SHAMEN on nights when the sky is without the light of moons, and neither solstice nor equinox is in effect.

MERN: Set. City-state in the c east of THE SURRACH. It is known for its master astronomers (Pop. c. 41,800).

MEROAI: Rui. Petrified ruins in the REALM OF THE MARKED PALL in the north west of KHARKHARADONTIS. It is known for its expansive domed charnel-temple, which is adorned with gigantic bones and is famed for its deep marrow-vaults. Little is known of the culture that built the temple, and it is ignored by the people of the Marked Pall.

MERODACH: Rel. Rul. Ancient solar temple in RHEA, now abandoned.
The temple is located in the c south of Rhea, in the east of the jungles of CARIAISIUS and was a major temple of the ancient AUDARIAN religion.
It was abandoned following the rise to power of the HIEROMONARCHS in 3192 RM.

It is a wide stepped temple, with many of its deepest chambers cut into the low foothills of the north western-most reaches of the BOKKARIS Mountains. Much of it was destroyed in an earthquake in 3396 RM, though the majority of the structure remains intact, if overgrown.

MEROVICHI DYNASTY: Pol. Soc. Plutocratic ruling caste in SAGITTARIA that ruled from 129 to 1567 RM, believed to be the descendants of one of the four lieutenants of the ancient king BARBATOS. They were eventually deposed by the AUTOCRAT OF SAGITTARIA, who from 1527 RM had been advisor to the court.

MERREANTI: Rvr. Major seasonal river that appears in the north of TAAN AN in the south west of SAMMAEA, at the end of the wet season, that flows north into the ACCA HOAL Basin.

During years with heavy rains, the river's flow may lead to the rise of ephemeral lakes that disappear within months, though which lead to the blooming of thousands of vibrant flowers that die within a few weeks, but which are vital to the life in the region and offer a spectacle that has greeted merchants and travellers for centuries.

MERT: Set. Small city in the c of PARTHIS, along the course of the river DARMUN (Pop. c. 15,500).

MERUTIA: Set. Small city in the far south west of CISNERIA (Pop. c. 11,000).

MERX: Com. Set. Major trade-city and mercantile hub within the TIAMOLDORAN CITY STATES in the south east of BROR^(1,), in the east of OROGEN. The city was founded centuries ago by SHAPERS that were persecuted far from their home. Being close to the Nullambit, the SHAPERS eventually abandoned their Firmamental traditions, though their descendants still cling to some of their old traditions to this day (Pop. unknown).

MES YAMMANA: Myt. His. Lan. MHAROKKIN name for the MESOCHTHONS, also known as THE FORGOTTEN ONES.

MESA: Set. Settlement in the south east of TAMAR, along the ridge of the MESATAR Mountain. The settlement is home to an observatory (Pop. c. 1.000).

MESANIN GOLIATH, the: Flo. Famed giant ficus located in the gardens of St. Lurac's Bastions in Upper Almagest. It is named after the botanist Apsellus Mesanin who brought a sapling back with him from Ahopah in c. 3120 RM. The trees' inexorable growth has rendered obsolete dozens of glasshouses that have been built around it over the years and it has now reached such a size as to no longer need one. It is famed for its hundreds of aerial roots that reach towards the ground like secondary trunks supporting its massive span. Its trunk is covered in centuries of graffiti and carvings proclaiming love, revenge and deaths and it remains a popular spot with FREEMEN who visit the bastions.

MESATAR: Geo. Rough upland region in the south east of TAMAR that runs from the north west, east of the river TAMAR, for around 200-miles south east to the ELIAM: the southern-most region in Tamar. The region is renowned for its brown-grey rocks.

MESHABAR: Geo. Rocky ridge in the south west of GNOTH, forming part of the border with SEDISIA. It is known for its many shallow caves, which are filled with ancient animal bones.

MESHES: Lak. Long narrow lake in the c of PORPHYR, along the course of the river GOR.

MESHULL: Set. Small city in the c-south east of NAARETH, along the course of the river SULLAR. It is home to a large university, where MATRIDULES study (Pop. c. 16,200).

MESIKAS: Set. Settlement in the c of ELEKHID, close to the RUBEIT wetlands (Pop. c. 7,000).

MESISA: 1. Rvr. River in the c of TAMAR, flowing south for 175-miles from sources in the KYTHI Mountains and TISTAR hills. The c city of TAMARA is situated along its eastern bank.

2. Set. Large city in the c south of TAMAR, sprawled across both banks of the eponymous river. It is considered a BASSORAH⁽¹⁾, and forms a link along the GREAT ROAD, and is also a major hub of local trade, where produce from across Tamar is brought to be sold to merchants passing through. As a result, it sees many trade goods and more exotic items from across CENTRAL LLACHATUL and beyond. It grew following the SARASTROAN annexation of Tamar and is now home to many dignitaries and consulates and is the main point of contract with Sarastro (Pop. c. 428,000).

MESSIT SABAH III: f. Per. (B. 3921) Pol. Current PHAROANT of KHAMID, who ascended in 3981 RM. She is an accomplished FIRMAMENTIST, studying the most recent learnings of Meniscus-trained SHAPERS. Messit is the 7th dynastic Pharoant to rule since his great-great-great-great-grandmother JENDAYA MET corrupted the REPUBLIC COUNCIL and changed the elected position of Pharoant into a hereditary monarchic one. Her daughter NEFRATIR is a famed champion of Khamid and is much beloved by its people.

MESOCHTHON: also 'the Forgotten Ones'. Myt. His. Ancient beings created by THE SHAPER in the earliest of ELYDEN'S cosmogony of ELYDEN, predating even the creation of the DEMIURGES and the MATERIAL PLANE was as yet unseparated from the FIRMAMENT and ATRAMENTA.

They were aberrations, and possessed not the mental faculties through which to understand the dichotomous world into which they were born. Their short existence was tortured and cursed, and they haunted THE VOID between the FIRMAMENT ABOVE AND THE ATRAMENTA BELOW, stalking each other.

It is now thought that The Shaper either destroyed or imprisoned these creatures, after the creation of the Material Plane and the Demiurges Shaped the world of Elyden. effectively ending their suffering.

Very few accounts exist of the Mesochthons, and most of what we know is from fragmentary sources or regional mythologies that have been corrupted by time and oral retellings. Indeed, they are not mentioned in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN at all, though references to FORGOTTEN ONES locked in the deepest depths of the PRISON CARCERI by the Demiurge VORROPOHAIAH may be allusions to the Mesochthons. See Vol IV: the Mesochthons.

MESOTH, THE SPIDER: Mys. Rel. In TEMUJAN SPIRITUALISM, the TUTELARY SPIRIT of fate and guile; often called the weaver of lives. She is usually shown as an anthropomorphic spider weaving a tapestry depicting everyday life. Each strand is a human life and the length of the strand the length of the life. Though many shamen claim to have communicated with other spirits, Mesoth remains distant and uncommunicative. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MESOZ: 1. Sea. Bay in the north of JURRAS^(2.), north of the city of the same name, forming the western-most part of the BAY OF BREA.

2. Set. Coastal city in $\underline{JURRAS}^{(2)}$, near the mouth of the river $\underline{PALLATANAS}$. The city is known for its canals and channels, both within and without its ancient walls, linking it to the retreated coast (Pop. c. 50 000)

MESQUES, THE: Soc. Eth. People native to the south of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, in what is now the north east of KORACHAN and the north of PELASGOS. They are descended from an ancient late FOURTH AGE culture known as the MASQUENNI that dominated the above lands, and whose descendants would diminish in the early FIFTH AGE, eventually scattering into what would later become VARR and the north of Korachan.

The Mesques remain now as a minority of nomadic metalsmiths and tinkerers, who travel across the south of Central Llachatul, from LAASKHA to Vârr. Attitudes towards them vary, and in some places, they form a vital part of the economy, where in others, particularly in urban areas where they have settled into ghettos, they are barely tolerated. They exist largely outside of the societal hierarchy of the empire, and in many cases are closest to FREEMEN, though they have none of the benefits of being 'free', though they are not immune to press ganging or indentured servitude. See Vol II: Peoples and Races of Elyden.

MESSHUGA: Set. Subterranean city in the PRISON CARCERI, located somewhere within the expansive CHAMBER OF CHAINS. Little is known of the place, though it appears in independent accounts – one by an PARTHIAN traveller dated to c. 300 RM, and another from SURRACHI myths. Both name the city as Messhuga, and describe it as a cacophonous place that exists beneath the constant echoing clamour of distant chains swaying from the unseen roof of the chamber above. Though not specified, its denizens are thought to be ROPOHAII, or the descendants of unions between ropohaii and DVERGAI (Pop. unknown).

MESSIA: His. Geo. Rocky area to the north of the NEHNAXIAN Desert. Receiving enough yearly rainfall to disqualify it from being a true desert, the region is nevertheless arid and largely inhospitable, with no notable settlements. The discovery of the so-called CLAY LEGION – a series of tens of thousands of life size clay statues – in an ancient buried funerary complex in 4005 RM saw the construction of an ad hoc settlement for the archaeologists and their workers that now numbers a population of close to 400.

The region has been turned into an expansive dig site, with the terrain unrecognisable from the natural features of a decade ago, with large trenches and pit peppering the land, and mounds of waste earth from where the complex was excavated.

The region is well guarded by members of the Tethysian army, and the punishment to anyone caught trespassing on the site is intentionally severe to discourage looting MESTIS: Set. City in the east of PELASGOS, along the fort where the river ENIKOS meets with the river ELISSANAS. It forms a part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 38,500).

 \underline{MET} : 1. Set. Coastal settlement in the north west of $\underline{MECHABET}$ (Pop. c. 4,800).

2. Lak. Lake in the east of BANT, in the c of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.), in the east of SAMMAEA, forming part of the course of the river IDDEAH.

MET SOBOD: Set. Settlement in the c north east of ANANTHUL. Its quarries are a major source of coal for the nation (Pop. c. 8,000).

METAGHALA: Rvr. River in the east of CHEIRA, flowing east for some 800-miles from sources in the LABR-AGHTUL Mountains, before meeting the coast of the ROILING SEA.

METAGRASH: 1. Geo. Resource-rich area in the north of CHEIRA that in 1724 RM was the site of a major civil war amongst generals and viziers who were vying for the remnants of the empire of UALLA MIGHA, following the untimely death of the emperor earlier in the same year.

2. Set. Major city in the north east of CHEIRA, and capital city of the third prefecture of Cheira (Pop. c. 50,000).

METAL LIBRARY OF VITTIVAS: Edu. Str. Hewn chambers deep within the cave-system of VITTIVAS in the north west of AZAZEM. Documented by KORACHANI explorers in c. 960 RM, the library is famed for its trove of metallic books, after which the so-called library was named. Despite the damp conditions of the cave and the clear, though disputed, age of the books, they are untarnished and in near-perfect condition, though the text that is etched on their surface is unique, with no other known examples, and remains a mystery to scholars. The books were taken to the IMPERIAL LIBRARY in AGLAIA, where they were studied, remaining there to this day.

METANOIA: Set. Fortified settlement in the c of TZALLRACH, along the shores of the river USSAMA (Pop. c. 8,000).

METEBDAN: Pol. Set. Capital of the extinct nation of ALLUCITA, to the west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS in the north east of SAMMAEA. It was abandoned in c. -350 RM, when the OTHERWORLDER NEPHTHALONT united all the tribes of the Growing Mountains under their banner, founding the city of Mulciber in its place. Metebdan was allowed to rot, becoming a ruin within a hundred years. It is now thought to be in the east of the tribe of ATEVEGOS.

METENOIA: Set. Small city in the c of GNOTH, just east of lake ALOGIA. It forms a part of the GNOTHI ROAD, providing food to merchants undertaking the road (Pop. 17,000).

METENUT: Set. Settlement in the south of THETIS, along the course of the river UAPETH. It is a major agricultural area, and is known for its MOONS CRAB harvesting (Pop. c. 4,800).

METEORE: Ele. Meteoric iron, most commonly found in PARTHIS, SABIA, and KOLCHIS, though scattered in small amounts across all of ELYDEN. The metal is remarkably strong and latently magnetic, yet difficult to mine and process. It acts as a focus of sorts for Sabian SHAPERS.

METEORIC IRON: see ADAMANTINE.

METET BANAN: Geo. Scrub plains in the west of PORPHYR.

METGRA: Set. Small city in the west of CYHLAGHARR, 15-miles east of the AGRNN SOUND. The city is known for its many fortified homesteads and farmlands surrounding it, which are largely worked by human slaves (Pop. 12,000).

METHED, LIBRARY OF: Edu. Str. Large library in the city of HYRCANIA in the south of PARTHIS. It is notable for its section filled with books banned by other nations, be they originals or copies. Most of this collection is comprised of books originating in KORACHAN.

METHLAN: Set. Major city in the east of the TARAHID ANNEXES (Pop. c. 420,000).

METHOSS: (7,221-ft.) Geo. Volcano on island of LIVYATHA. It is thought to be responsible for the earthquake that destroyed Livyatha in 3708 RM.

METHULA: Geo. Rocky region in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of MEDES. The region overlooks the GULF OF NESHER⁽¹⁾, and the coast is largely steep, dominated by cliffs.

METHUMN: Dem. 'Methumni'. Ntn. Nation in the base of the AMMASHI⁽¹⁾ peninsula, in the south west of SAMMAEA, south east of the SEA OF MERCUVIA. It is of a hot climate, with the north more hospitable and home to scrubland and sparse woods, and the south dryer and less welcoming to MORTAL life. Its eastern-most reaches are dominated by dry plains and the desert of ANTHAR.

Its people are hard-working, and its agriculturalists remain experts at water-management. They are known amongst outsiders for the reptilian hide clothing that they often wear, and they revere a sun god known as RAK ETH, which is the chief divinity of the AUREATE FELLOWSHIP, a religion that espouses egalitarianism and education.

It emerged from the collapse of the republic of RAMIS, which in 2836 RM saw its northern territories annexed by ADHERA after losing a war with the northern nation. Its remaining territories fragmented, eventually coming together once more in c. 2990 RM to form the nation of Methumn, which remains to this day.

A series of droughts in the 31st century RM led to the formation of a new order of water engineers – known as the VODARCHS – who specialised in innovative irrigation systems and water storage. Within a matter of years, they had saved Methumn and in so-doing had gained great prestige and renown, and by c. 3085 RM were challenging the ruling council for leadership of the nation. The collapse of the council in 3091 RM led to the vodarchs usurping control, becoming a ruling caste controlled Methumn for centuries. Their tenure over the nation was not without conflict, and outside of the dense settled areas around the mouth of the river SAPPARANTI and the HENAKARAIAN peninsula, but struggled to reign in disorder in more distant territories, leading to decades of conflict and the near-fracturing of the nation in c. 3130 RM. They were able to stabilise Methumn in 3133 RM, narrowly avoiding outright civil war through the actions of the MOUNTEBANK BANNI, who went on to become an influential member of the vodarchs until his death.

The vodarchs ruled for over three centuries and were eventually ousted by a coalition of powerful merchant guilds and trade magnates in 3452 RM. Collectively known as the GILDED UNION, they had grown disillusioned with the Vodarchs' inability to control its distant territories. Capitalizing on economic discontent and the Vodarchs' struggles, the Gilded Union orchestrated a series of coordinated economic manoeuvres designed to further weaken the Vodarchs' grip over their home. They had amassed a great army in the city of ARAROBY, and in 3449 RM seceded from Methumn alongside a handful of other cities and territories. They emerged victorious after three-years of war, and moved the capital from Hezaz to Araroby, which became a centre of trade, culture and commerce.

Corruption slowly pervaded the Gilded Union, causing it to slowly shift from a meritocracy to a plutocracy to an autocratic oligarchy, and by c. 3770 RM the nation was controlled by a small group of ruling elites, who rule the nation to this day. During this transition to its current state, the Gilded Union became more and more secretive, turning Araroby into a fortress, becoming paranoid of outsiders, and turning Methumn into an insular nation where outsiders are unwelcome. See Vol II: Extant Realms and Nations.

METIGLEA: Rvr. River in the HENDECARCHY of HATON in the north of MALAN, flowing east for 400-miles from sources in the JHALOSS Highlands and the NIYAN^(2.) Plateau before reaching tis termination at the creek of LKOR.

METISOLLA, TEMPLE OF: Rui. Ancient cliff-face temple on the island of Usaar, in the KORACHANI colony of MELHUMBRA. It is thought to date back to the THIRD AGE. The temple-face is hewn from the rock of the island and takes the form of a gaping maw, though most details have been lost.

METON: Ind. Set. Settlement in the far south east of almagest, in the valley between the GAEFANG and IARUS Mountains. Its main industry is the mining of quartz crystal. The settlement is situated close to a nearby ruin, some 4,000 years old, belonging to an old stargazing culture (Pop. c. 5,700).

METORHANA: 1. Sea. Long narrow bay in the east of PERGOST.

2. Set. Coastal settlement in the south east of PERGOST, at the far north of the above bay^(1,). Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 6,000).

METREA: Set. Small fortified coastal city in VALBAR⁽²⁾. Its main industry is whaling and it has a long deep harbour. The land around it is known for its ice wedges, which form over many years of permafrost thawing and freezing (Pop. c. 19,000).

METTAR: Set. City in the north east of the HENDECARCHY of DERAEIA in the east of MALAN (Pop. c. 47,000).

METTUSRAH: Myt. His. In the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN a mortal prophet and lover of the DEMIURGE ACHAIAH. The two fell deeply in love and abandoned their duties, enjoying the natural world together. Achaiah abandoned him following her pursuit by her wicked brother ASHTERATH, after which she was turned into the TREE OF AGEN as a means of protecting her from her brothers advances.

Mettusrah spent the rest of his mortal life searching for her, and died heartbroken, at the in age of 969. He was reborn as an OTHERWORLDER. His love transcended death and even as an otherworlder he searched for her, and eventually found her, recognising her instantly despite her appearance as a tree. He sat by her side on her roots, unmoving, protecting her from harm, and eventually she grew to encompass his body, embracing him completely. Today he is mummified, his body preserved by her life-sustaining sap, acting as her mouth if he can be coaxed from his deep reverie.

It is said that so long as the two remain in their embrace, that Elyden can never truly die. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

METUN KOR: Geo. Mountain forming a natural border between the north of SABIA and the west of PERGOST.

METUS: Set. Settlement in the west of AYAD, along the course of the river ISACCHIR (Pop. c. 6,000).

METUSEA: Set. Major city in the north east of ACHAA⁽²⁾ (Pop. c. 230 300)

MEUS: 1. Geo. Small headland, around 20-miles long, on the western-coast of PELASGOS. Until c. 1000 RM the headland was a small island, though the retreat of the SEA OF SPIRES left it joined with the mainland by c. 3800 RM.

2. Set. Coastal settlement in the west of PELASGOS that emerged from settlements destroyed and abandoned in the wake of the retreat of the SEA OF SPIRES (Pop. c. 3,200).

MEUSEA: also 'the Needles'. Geo. Strange conical rock formations in the south east of TULURKRYPH^(1.), MENISCEA. They are characterised be their inverted appearance, as they balance on the tip of the needles, impossibly so in some cases. This is a result of wind erosion and the LODESTONE heavy rocks, which are supported by FIRMAMENTAL forces.

M'HOTOK: 1. Geo. Region in N'RAKH, notable for its dense ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED forests. Its trees are withered and twisted, their vine-like branches tangled and covered in poisonous thorns. The AANTH of the region have adapted to life in this dense canopy, harvesting the plants and building fortresses and cities from a combination of silk and woven STRENK trees.

2. Set. City-state in the region of the same name^(1.). Its many ATTERKHATS have perfected the art of silk-building, melding the craft with the weaving of STRENK trees and mining of the pumice-like stone of the region. (Pop. c. 110.000).

MHAAVA: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region in the south east of LIDEA.

The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

MHAGANI: Lak. Lake in the south east of ELEKHID, forming part of the course of the river GRELLOR.

MHAGGUAD: Rui. Ancient ziggurat-like tower in the far north of LLACHATUL, in the north east of RAONGEN^{2.)}, in territories claimed by the CALLOW HORDES, beneath the ice sheet of TAAMARAS.

MHALAR: Rvr. River in the north east of SAMMAEA, flowing north west into RHINOCOLOURA from sources in the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER and the UGOSTAUTH plateau for 550-miles, before meeting its parent, the river DAKHAN, itself a tributary of the larger river RASELETH.

MHAQ: His. Set. Ancient tower and, later, settlement, built just north east of the mouth of the river THAUR in the far south of the UHLSAATI plains. The tower was constructed in -1195 RM by the master mason MONDL, who escaped the AUERENI blockade of his town and gathered various guerrillas and refugees to aid in the construction of the tower, which was hidden from barbarian eyes. From there he led various counter-attacks which disrupted the barbarian attacks enough to ensure the victory of the Uhlsaati people following the barbarians' death in in -1193 RM.

With the barbarians scattered, the Uhlsaati survivors erected three other high-towers, and Mhaq became a capital of sorts, with Mondl elected as leader, known as the LORD MASON. Under his guidance the region prospered and became known as the CITADEL MOUNTS, after the high-towers. Mhaq itself grew quickly, its people rapidly outgoing the peak-top citadels and populating the hills and plains beneath it, stretching closer to the river Thaur, where in c. -740 RM it assimilated the harbour-town of DHART as their borders became indistinct. The harbour was expanded, and vessels travelled across the SEA OF ERIA and the DAARKEN GULF, bringing trade and wealth to the region. In -585 RM the city was granted the epithet of DUN MHAQ in honour of its achievements. The city prospered after this time, continuing to grow with the Citadel Mounts themselves. Sea trade increased, both to the north west as well as the east, where river-vessels travelled up the river Thaur, reaching as far east as the ANUBIAN settlement of RET AHK (later RETHKA) in c. -100 RM, where exotic items were traded, bringing yet more wealth to the region. By c. 200 RM trade with the city-state of SIRIPHAS was common, necessitating construction of the fortress of NAKH to safeguard their trade-routes.

The city thrived until the arrival of KORACHAN in the region in 352 RM, at which point its harbours were bolstered to accommodate the large imperial vessels that began arriving to the region with immigrants, after which it became known as DUN MHAQ.

MHAQAL: Sec. Small city in the west of the JAHADAT STATES, under the control of the city of URDAH (Pop. c. 16,000).

MHARAKA: His. Nm. Ancient FIFTH AGE territory once belonging to native YARAOMIC PEOPLE. It was situated in the north of SAMMAEA, forming the south of their ancestral lands and occupied what are today central and eastern MHAROKK, western LIDEA, and north western PARAIYA.

It is believed to have been the last bastion of Yaraomic culture following their enslavement at the hands of KORACHANI forces, and it was eventually overrun in the years following the capture of KEKELIB in 933 RM, signifying the end of their culture in any form that was not fragmented.

It emerged in c. -100 RM following the discovery of an ancient THYMI crown by a Yaraom shepherd, who gained strange abilities as a result. Drunk with power, he subjugated a nearby town, and as people pledged their loyalty to him, he found himself growing stronger still. Over the course of a few tumultuous years, he subjugated most settlements along the NATIAL plains, uniting them under his crown, and he became known as the SHEPHERD KING – an insult crafted by his opponents that he assumed as his own title.

Until then, the area had been unstable, plagued by AATI attacks, though the Shepherd Kings unification of the tribes and city-states allowed them to work together, and the region was cleared by c. -20 RM.

His life prolonged by the crown, he founded a new capital – the city of Kekelib – at the mouth of the river FATHA (now 85-miles from the coast), which rapidly became a metropolis and the largest concentration of Yaraomic people in all of SAMMAEA by c. 200 RM, and possibly the largest urban centre of Yaraomic culture, with its armies defending its western borders from KORACHANI incursion. In 407 RM the Shepherd King entered into diplomatic agreements with HOAMM, which provided Mharaka with many new trade enterprises and eventually the founding of ATRAMENTAL colleges in KHYMER in 523 RM.

Worship of the UNDYING MACHINE in the guise of the IRON DEITY was introduced to Mharaka via EXOCRINES and the ICONOCLASTS^(2,) between 700 – 900 RM, which slowly but steadily took hold, challenging the established religion of NUTHEN^(2,).

The Shepherd King was assassinated under mysterious circumstances in 903 RM, leading the region into chaos that Korachan willingly marched, founding colonies in its lands between 900 – 950 RM along the eastern coast, and along the mouth of the river SHIBBOLETH (3), which helped to further destabilise the region, particularly the capital in Kekelib, which was besieged in 932 RM and sacked the next year, after which it was allowed to fall into ruin, becoming a haven to bandits and the disenfranchised.

A Korachani Kratocracy was introduced in 933 RM, leading to the downfall of Mharaka, after which the nation became known as Mharokk – the Korachani name for the region. See Vol III: Extinct States.

MHARKA: Sea. Gulf dividing the east of MHAROKK from the north west of LIDEA. It is named after the old YARAOMIC territory of MHARAKA, which existed in extant eastern Mharokk and western LIDEA.

MHAROKK: Dem. 'Mharokkin'. Ntn. Originally known as MHARAKA, Mharokk is one of few KORACHANI dependencies in mainland SAMMAEA. It is in many ways a relic of an ancient time that harks back to the early days of imperial expansionism. It is of a temperate dry climate, and is dominated by the SOLON highlands that run like a spine across the middle of the nation, from west to east, to the HARAPPAN (1.) Mountains, which act as a border to the nation of Harappa (3.).

Its current incarnation dates back to 3930 RM, when it was finally reclaimed by Korachan following a short war with SARASTRO after the assassination of its autocrat, the SERAPI SHAR SURYAH two years earlier, though prior to this it had been an imperial territory for some time, beginning in c. 925 RM, following centuries of EXOCRINES and missionaries spreading the word of the UNDYING MACHINE there, and it lasted until the regions' fall to Sarastro in 3728 RM.

The present prefecturate was introduced by Korachan in 2702 RM, when the region was divided into 52 municipalities (now 49), each overseen by a PREFECT⁽¹⁾, who ruled on behalf of the 'king' – a hereditary rank first appointed by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, which survives to this day.

The west of Mharokk came under control of the short-lived DORN KINGS during the political upheaval surrounding the WAR OF SUNDERING, leading to formation of the independent state of ALLASAN in 3705 RM.

Though Mharokk has remained under Korachani control since 3930 RM, largely due to its gold reserves and other natural resources, the region has remained unstable, particularly across the STRAIT OF SHIBBOLETH, as SARASTRO attempts to wrest control away from Korachan, particularly since the damming of the SHIBBOLETH (3.) in 2943 RM.

Mharokk was once a pioneer of the alchemical form known as TAKWIN, which specialised in creating artificial life like HAEMONCULI. The practice has since been superseded by CLONING and FLESHWRIGHTING industries, at which it continues to excel. It also has one of the largest SERAPI populations, many of which are in positions of power and authority, or conversely living in ghettos in the larger cities, most notably TAKUH. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

MHAROKKIN: 1. Lan. Native language of MHAROKK, and now also spoken in ALLASAN, ARSHAD, and HARAPPA⁽³⁾. After millennia of subjugation by the KORACHANI EMPIRE, the language has become bastardised, with as much in common with extant KORACHANI as it does the Mharokkin of the early FIFTH AGE. See Vol II: Languages.

2. Wea. Dry south westerly wind common in the $\underline{\text{INNER SEA}}$ that blows from $\underline{\text{NORTHERN SAMMAEA}}$. It is named after Mharokk, as the wind are typically felt there first, though it is common from $\underline{\text{VAALK}}$ in the west to $\underline{\text{LIDEA}}$ and $\underline{\text{BA'AKH}}$ in the east.

MHAROKKIN CAMPAIGN: Mil. His. A particular theatre of the WAR OF SUNDERING that saw LIDEAN forces (under the command of dissident SARASTROAN SARAKASHAR (general) ACHAXCE BENNALAB) moving across the river SHIBBOLETH^(3,) into MHAROKK. The conflict started on the 8th of MALICHALEN 3705 RM and lasted for over 6-months until the 23rd of KORAHALEN, with the destruction of fort GARAKK by the imperial alliance, after which the last of Lidean forces were pushed back across the river.

MHAROLAGON: Sup. Geo. FIRMAMENTALLY-TAINTED region in SAGITTARIA, and one of few such regions in the NEAR HEMISPHERE. It serves as a border between the south east of Sagittaria and the north of EREBETH. Though the corruption here is faint (likely due to its distance from the TRUE MENISCUS), it can be felt – the land here is calcified and drained of colour, and no flora survives here. What fauna ventures here does not remain for long as to do so is to become one with the land.

The fabled region of $\underline{SOMA\ RAS}$ is claimed by some to lie within these lands.

MHATESESHAL: Geo. Warm humid scrubland dominating the south of VÂRR.

MHELK: Set. Fortified coastal city in the north east of KARGAMA, in the IHATHUS headland. Founded in c. 3740 RM, the settlement emerged to harvest (and later cultivate) seaweed that is used as a dye. This remains its main industry to this day, though the city has grown considerably and was fortified between 3834 – 3893 RM to help deter piracy and slavery in the region (Pop. c. 47,300).

MHEMGAST: Mil. Str. Large citadel in the far east of ZOHAK, within the Firmamental wasteland of WESTERN TULURKRYPH, in the c of MENISCEA. It is hewn from the rock of a gigantic monolith and is located in an area where the ARCANE TEMPERS are weak, leading to a weakness in the FIRMAMENTAL effects there.

MHILOS: Geo. Island off the north western coast of the island of IRUGNA^(1.), belonging to the PARTHISAN colony of ABDAKROS^(1.).

MHOBAAT: Set. Settlement in the west of ROMOREA⁽²⁾. It originated as a forward military outpost soon after the arrival of RAFFIN BARAQ to the region, though later developed into a manufactory where landships, ambulants, and conveyors used in the mining industries were built and repaired.

Today its main industry is the repair of the SICTHAINEN TECHNA that protect the royal family and its industries. Though most of these golems are imported, they are maintained and repaired in Mhobaat to reduce spending (Pop. c. 8,900).

MHODRI: Set. Settlement in the south west of ZHARIAH⁽²⁾ along the banks of the river VENNON, in the region of KUIASH. Its main industry is iron mining (Pop. c. 5,900).

MHOGUN: Set. Major city in the c north of CARNYNGA. It is situated in the steep foothills of the SANTOREAN Mountains, and is known for its steep layout and winding streets, many of which are stepped (Pop. c. 180,400).

MHORGCALU: lit. 'tainted tower'. Sup. Mil. Str. Corrupted tower built over a dagger-like peak in the far south west of the MHORSINA plains in the far south of the nation of DURCHAA, dating to an ancient time, its walls corroded and rank with the stench of MHORS: Set. Settlement in the south of the nation of DURCHAA that serves as a trade-hub between the more rural southern-cities and the more industrial north (Pop. c. 10,000).

MHORSINA: Geo. Black plains in the south of the nation of DURCHAA, eerily beautiful in winter when covered by snow.

MHORWI: Set. City in the south east of AHOPAH, overlooking the SEA OF NARANOR (Pop. 80,000).

MHOURESH: Geo. Mountain-range forming an eastern extension of the KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA Mountains, located in the east of LLACHATUL, forming a major part of the geography of the north of the mainland PANTHEON ISLES.

MHUGIZZHE: Geo. Expansive canyon system in the c of the DUNE SEA in KHARKHARADONTIS, its floor hidden beneath dust dunes. ETHERI legends claim that the canyon walls are riddled in hewn caverns that were made by a FOURTH AGE culture of whom little is now known.

MHUGREH WASTES: Geo. Stone desert in the west of Kharkharadontis, in the Realm of the Marked Pall.

MHUIXHRU: Geo. Expansive wasteland in the north east of the REALM
OF THE MARKED PALL, in the north west of the KHARKHARADONTIS. It is filled with large fossils of strange design.

MHUKTARA: Set. Small city in the west of the JAHADAT STATES, under the control of the city of MARBAIJA (Pop. c. 19,000).

MHURZIM: 'also the Herald City'. Set. Autonomous city (enclaved within the nation of RAHENG) overlooking the SEA OF CHHMAR, in far west of SAMMAEA, north of the equatorial forests of WOLD.

It is known as the Herald City only to those from distant lands, due to an old legend originating around THE INNER SEA: due to the city's status as a far western region, it was commonly associated with the night and was regarded as the first place an OTHERWORLDER would visit following its rebirth onto the MATERIAL PLANE (Pop. c. unknown).

MHUTHASH: 1. Geo. Rocky region dominating the south east of OTINTH, known for its relatively flat top.

2. Geo. As recently as 2000 RM the south eastern reaches of OTINTH (the VETHRANDA) were separated from the mainland by a shallow inland sea of ABARULLIA, leaving a peninsula, some 200-miles long, though the waning of ELYDEN'S seas over past centuries have left the peninsula landlocked, the inland sea disappeared.

MIACH: Geo. Mountains in the north east of TETHYSIA, close to the border with LOEGRESS^(1.).

MIAGANA: Sup. Geo. Atramentally tainted coastal area off the western coast of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS. The region spans the southern coast of the island of KORIN^(1.) and the northern coast of the island of KATHARA^(1.), and the sea between them, which is laced with strands of thick black ichor, leaving its waters lifeless.

The region is categorised as $\underline{\text{DANGEROUS}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}$.

MIAID: Set. Major coastal city in the east of ELEKHID, overlooking the BAY OF ENEPH. Its main industry is logging, and it exports lumber to various nations (Pop. c. 138,000).

MICHER: Set. Major city in the north of GREST^(1,), in the west of the island-continent of Bror^(1,) (Pop. c. 580,000).

MICOPA: Set. Coastal settlement in the south east of OPHIUSSA (Pop. c. 13,400).

MICRAPIS: Set. Settlement in the c of ALTHA. Its main industry is tinmining (Pop. c. 20,000).

MID FIFTH AGE COLLAPSE: His. Historical period. 3000 following decreasing sea levels and unprecedented numbers of ports becoming landlocked. Sea trade and travel diminished, cutting off many regions from each other. This period lasted between 1 - 2 centuries at most as many ports and harbours were regraded or redesigned to take into account the lowering seas.

MIDAEL: Mil. Rnk. In the military of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, the highest rank within the conscript armies. Though the rank is commonly regarded with disdain amongst the armed forces, it is a vital one, and only given to skilled individuals with the ability to rally relatively untrained forces. It is required to instil a sense of discipline and respect in otherwise unruly troops.

MIDAEL GIGNESTHUS: (B. 3959 – 4007 RM) Mil. General (MIDAEL) of the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S conscript forces.

MIDAL: Alc. Set. City in the c north of VENTHIR, its roots lying in the NATHI kingdom that dominated the region there in the early FIFTH AGE. The city is renowned for its rich culture of ALCHEMIE, which first appeared there in c. –360 RM, where the halfblood ARAKIEL introduced the FIRMAMENTAL art of ALEMBISM. The region attracted many scholars and alchemists and within 100-years of his introduction of the art, Midal had grown prosperous and influential, so-much-so that that the capital of the Nathi kingdom was moved there in -268 RM.

By c. -200 RM, the alchemists had turned to the ATRAMENTA as means to further their experiments, eschewing the Firmamental art as taught by Arakiel. Through the Atramenta they could achieve much more, and their power continued to wax, their alchemists and warlocks enjoying long epicurean lives. The city slowly transformed into a hub of hedonism, with epicureans from distant lands travelling there to savour the delights on offer. This led to the so-called $\underline{\text{LION HERESIES}}$ that fragmented the Nathi kingdom, leaving it ruined by -170 RM.

The once proud kingdom reduced to a handful of warring city-states, Midal's attitude changed and by c. -40 RM it had forsaken its past sins and returned to its true vocation of study. The philosophy of MIDISM would first appear in this time, propagating the persecution in -6 RM of the few SHIE that had remained in Midal following the fall of Nath. Proponents of Midism clashed with religious fundamentalists based in TEIRA, though Midal remained powerful. By c. 140 RM it was one of the largest consumers of umbra in ELYDEN, leading to the funding of umbra plants in the SHAMAL.

The return of HETEPHERES to VENATH 194 RM brought with it the end of Midism, though Midal continued to grow, its alchemist-caste composed of immensely powerful individuals. In 211 RM the KORACHANI EMPIRE founded a colony in Midal, where Atramental secrets were traded. This only increased with Hetepheres' abdication to Korachan.

The fall of Teira to PLAGUE in 1002 RM and the construction of SIPHON ENGINES in the HAMSHEN plains further tipped the balance of power towards the west of Venthir, and a technocracy was founded in Midal in 1293 RM, the remnants of Teira's ASHURAN monarchy all but disappeared by c. 1300 RM. The re-emergence of Hetepheres in 1906 RM led to the massacre of most Venthiri TECHNARCANISTS in 1921 RM, ending the technocracy of Midal. The abandonment of KITHAMAR – the region's main source of umbra – in 2821 RM – left Midal greatly diminished. The city that once boasted a population of close to a million was dying.

The city declined and as the last of the great alchemist-lords died in c. 3100 RM, the city remained as little more than a port and link with THE INNER SEA, one of the few cities in Venthir where the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE retained power, though the slow wane of the DARK SEA saw even its ports diminish over the next centuries, until it had become a dim simulacrum of its former self by c. 3800 RM, about 5-miles from the present shore, and its outer structures and old harbours crumbling and abandoned, home to disease and DEGENERATES. It remained a part of the Red Route, which brought some respite on the form of trade (Pop. c. 39,000).

MIDDIR: Mil. Pol. Str. Bridge-fortress in the north east of EASTERN LLACHATUL, along the course of the river LYNNFAEL at the border between the south of LOEGRESS^(1.) and HARITH. It is a major political centre and is home to offices and halls where representatives from both nations meet to discuss trade, alliances and other matters. It is considered the main gateway between the nations, with passage across their shared border largely stymied by the course of the river Lynnfael.

MIDIAN SABAQ: Geo. Massif in the east of SAMMAEA, in the c of the UHBATAQI headland^(1,), forming a part of the expansive Uhbataqi Mountain-range^(4,).

MIDISM: His. Phil. A philosophy that originated in the VENATHI empire in c. -40 RM, that eschewed the past sins of its founding city of MIDAL, advocating instead a life devoted to the pursuit of scholarly pursuits and introversion. Advocated of the philosophy were responsible for the persecution of SHIE and other creatures that had remained in the region following the LION HERESIES that had destroyed the NATHI KINGDOM years before. The philosophy found opposition in the rival religions' fervour of the city of TEIRA, though managed to survive until the return to the region of the SPHINX HETEPHERES, who managed to quell it by 194 RM.

MIDNIGHT SUN: KORACHANI vernacular commonly used to describe the months-long period of unending light experienced during summer in the far north of LLACHATUL. By contrast the regions' winter is known as the CRAWLING DARK.

MIDOHOII: Ser. Small city in the north east of ELEKHID. Its main industry is the processing of lapis mined in the region into blue dye and paint (Pop. c. 16,000).

MIDUM: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the south of HANNAH, overlooking the SEA OF ETAGIRIA.

MIFUNE, THE LONE: Leg. Legendary character in SAUA. A mystic wanderer, was once a naval captain, though following a court-marshal for disobeying orders (an act which ultimately won a battle), was exiled.

MIHADDUN: Sup. Geo. Mildly ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED basin in the c of OTINTH. It was mined for umbra extensively between c. 1100 - 1900 RM by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, with ownership changing hands to VETHRANDA following the expulsion of SATACHAN from the area in 1241 RM. The mines continued to be operated until the region was rendered inhospitable and was abandoned to corruption in c. 1900 RM.

The region is categorised as $\underline{\text{DANGEROUS}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ Institute of Atramental Studies.

MIHARAST: Set. Major city in the c north of the UMBRA SOKHAR. It is a sprawling metropolis, dominated by a tall stone citadel perched on a rocky pinnacle at its centre that commands an unsurpassed view of the Umbra Sokharan skyline. The city is relatively close to the civilised lands of northern SAMMAEA – some 200-miles south west of the PARAIYAN border, and 350-miles south east of the KARAKHASID border and maintains well-guarded trade-routes with both.

Though the city is often called an ETHERI metropolis, the population is split evenly between HUMANS and etheri, and it is also home to SHIE, DVERGAI, as well as PLAGI. Indeed, it is known for having the largest urban concentration of plagi, which traditionally avoid large urban areas. Miharast maintains little contact with other settlements within the Umbra Sokhar, though it is said that every etheri nomad travels to the city at least once in his life to revere the relics of their kind, which are kept in open view within the GREY CITADEL (Pop. c. 430,000).

MIHATEGHAH: Geo. Expansive tar pits in the c south of VAALK, 3-miles south east of the city of EMBER. The tar pits are thought to date back to the early FOURTH AGE, if not earlier and fossil evidence suggests that the pits were frequented by mortals as well as wild flora and fauna over the years.

The pits are known for their natural bitumen, which was extensively mined in the late Fourth Age and sporadically in the FIFTH AGE. The ruins of a settlement are found close to the pits, and are likely attributed to various different cultures over the years, the most recent of which was in c. 1000 RM, where bitumen was mined by the KORACHANI EMPIRE here.

MIHEHAEL: Set. Major city in the south of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS. It is one of its larger cities, something largely possible due to the large hydro-electric power provided by a dam north of the city, along the course of the river ABINOR (Pop. c. 253,000).

MIKA: Sea. Small Bay in the west of TAMAR, north of the ABYSS OF ENESH. Prior to the retreat of ELYDEN'S seas the bay was a strait, and the small headland to its West as an island.

MIKAH: Set. Coastal settlement in the south east of GNOTH (Pop. c. 9,000).

MIKAL: Set. City in the north of PARTHIS, along the course of the river ESHMUN. It forms part of the RED ROUTE and is known for its large storage yards and mercantile auction halls where merchandise is sold wholesale (Pop. c. 103,000).

MIKALI: Geo. Rolling valley in the north of PARTHIS, between the MALAUR Mountain and the ABBARI highlands.

 $\underline{\text{MIKKEA}}\!\!:$ Set. Settlement in the west of $\underline{\text{TAMAR}},$ controlling the $\underline{\text{BAY OF}}$ $\underline{\text{MIKA}}$ (Pop. c. 5,000).

MILA: Geo. Island in the BAY OF OMONJA, in the south of PERGOST.

MILAD II, SHRINE OF: Rel. Str. Final resting place of king MILAD II of ROMOREA^(2.), on the island of GURI^(2.) in the sea of HASAAZ ARAAT. When he died in 33755 RM the sea had not yet been created and the shrine was located on a hill in the Guri^(1.) depression. The island is private and only members of the royal family are allowed on it, though it believed that none have visited it in many generations.

MILAD IO SGIROUT I: m. (B. 3672 – 3809 RM) Pol. Per. Historic king of ROMOREA (2.) and 1st cousin of the previous monarch, queen SETAREH BARAQ, who died heirless in 3798 RM. He claimed the throne following a year of unrest and ruled for just over a decade, leaving the throne to his daughter ELAHEI IO SGIROUT (after his eldest child, MILAD IO SGIROUT II, predeceased him).

His rule was unremarkable and despite his venerable age of 126 years when claiming the throne, he was lucid and able-bodied. His longevity was a result of a lifetime of taking drugs whose intent was purely designed to extend his life.

He lived for 11 years as king, dying only because he chose to stop prolonging his life. He is remembered as a patron of the arts, cementing a tradition of aestheticism in the royal line, something that continues to this day.

MILAD IO SGIROUT II: m. (B. 3701 - 3755 RM) Pol. Per. Son of king MILAD IO SGIROUT I of ROMOREA (1.) who died of AEPATHY, predeceasing his father. His body is laid to rest in a private shrine on the island of $\underline{GURI}^{(2)}$ in the sea of \underline{HASAAZ} \underline{ARAAT} .

MILALL: Rel. Str. Fortified temple in the foothills of the SICHAAL Mountain in the east of VAALK. The temple is a monastery to failed CENOBITES, their bodily corruptions too great to bear alone. Together they serve the intermittent pilgrimages of THE SHADOW MARCH, tending them during their short sojourns there.

MILATA: Mil. Str. coastal fortress on the island of MILA in the south of Pergost, guarding the BAY OF OMONIA.

MILAZAAN: Geo. Plateau in the c of the REHEMAZI peninsula, in the c of PERGOST.

MILAMAND: Set. Small city in the east of NOAVATUR, in the region of VOHUR. It is a major agricultural centre (Pop. c. 18,000).

MILESTONES OF HALLID: His. Soc. Arc. Old iron pillars in the south west of SKAROS and the north west of LAASKHA, thought to have been used by the ancient LASCAR people as milestones and burial markers. Most are corroded and decayed beyond recognition, though are few remain, mostly in the south of Skaros.

MILIMORDA: Pol. Soc. Minor PATRICIAN HOUSE with holdings in LAASKHA. It originated in the city of DAKHACAIA in KORACHAN in c. 1200 RM, where it owned land, growing crops on them, though it dwindled in influence over the years and is now largely forgotten, having married into other Houses to survive. It is most famed in Korachan for BIRIGAN CASTLE – a now-ruined family cemetery in the form of a fortress that is the final place of repose for hundreds of members of the House.

MILIZAAN: Sec. City in the east of the tribe of ASSAGOS, in the east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is known for its strange customs, which some scholars have likened to ancient LACER culture (Pop. c. 32,000).

MILK GALL: Fau. Cui. Worm-like creatures common in EPHATTA and the south of SYNCHTHONITHA that burrow into the bases of BAOBAR trunks, which causes a gall tumour to grow around the creature, which lives the rest of its life inside the tumour, eating sap that it produces. The gall is cut off and eaten by many people in these regions. The sap is white and coconut-like, and the worm is sweet and crunchy.

MILL KARGEMMA: also 'Eastern Kargemma'. Pol. His. For a short period between 1929 and 1959 RM the kingdom of KARGEMMA was divided in two when twins ANOQUARIS and ANOQUARON acceded the throne following their father's death in 1926 RM.

After a few years of ruling together, they decided to divide the kingdom into two and drew lots to decide which of them would rule from there. As a result, Anoquaris moved west to begin her rule over what became known as TUL KARGEMMA, while her brothers' domains became known as Mill Kargemma. Anoquaron's death in 959 RM saw the kingdom reunited once more.

MILLIPOD: Fau. Gigantic arthropods common in the tropical rainforest of WAELMIGH and associated nations (PNESSA, CHEIRA, and SERROK), though it has also been found in NOAVATUR, OKKHAM and PORPHYR. They can grow to over 10-ft. long, and slither through the forest undergrowth, where they feed on decomposing vegetation and faeces, though they are well equipped to defend themselves against predation, with many varieties having chitinous plates that are covered in a foul-smelling toxic chemical, and all forms are able to curl up into hard balls, which allow them to avoid most harm. Some are able to attack other slow-moving prey by wrapping around them and constricting until their toxic chemicals that cover their bodies burn through the skin of their prey, killing them slowly. Smaller varieties grow to around 1 - 2 ft. long and are known to swarm, with hundreds if not thousands seething over the forest floor in a tight mass, eating all in their path. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MIMEIS: Oth. A form of OTHERWORLDER within the HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN. They are secretive and are known to possess the ability to mark a MORTAL, after which they are able to assume their form and identity. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MIMIR: rel. Dei. Principal deity in ancient HADEN. Its icons were usually in the form of a menhir bearing a bass carving of an eye, the eye representing its all-encompassing knowledge. Such menhirs can still be found abandoned in the wildernesses of PELASGOS and VÂRR, though present cultural differences see the EYE OF MIMIR as an evil sign, and any menhirs bearing the mark are largely avoided. Rural settlements sometimes leave offerings of meat and rawberries at such menhirs on mid-winters' eve, to appease dark spirits. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

MIMIR, EYE OF: 1. Rel. Symbol of the old deity MIMIR; a bass-carving of an open eye in a menhir, some of which remain in present PELASGOS and VÂRR.

2. Mys. Soc. In cultures along the north eastern coast of THE INNER SEA (particularly the east of KORACHAN, PELASGOS, western LYRIDIA and VÂRR), belief in the manifestation of a persons' envy or dislike of another individual in a detrimental physical effect (usually minor sickness or strange afflictions such as hiccoughs, sneezing, crying etc) in the target.

MINARET OF THE EIGHT WINDS: His. Str. Ancient tower in the south of Ahrishen, in the north of the Levantine region. It has an octagonal cross-section, and its sides correspond with the four classical winds and the four winds pairings. The top of the minaret is dominated by funnel-shaped hollow on each of its eight sides, which make a distinct whistling sound when wind strikes them from a particular direction, serving as a way of identifying both the speed and wind source. The ruins of an early FIFTH AGE settlement is found at the base of the minaret, possibly dating back to the time of GOETHAN^(3,) rule over the region.

MINARET OF FLAME: Sup. Arc. Supranatural phenomenon in the north west of SHAZGIN in MENISCEA that takes the form of a pillar of everburning red flames that emanate from a sinkhole. The region is FIRMAMENTALLY ACTIVE, and SHAPERS can only spend a few minutes around the pillar before being wracked by intense headaches that, if not removed from the area, can lead to seizures and death. Due to this, the flames have never been adequately examined and their source remains unknown.

MINARET OF LIGHT, the: Edu. Sup. Str. Found close to the TRUE MENISCUS in MENISCEA, the Minaret (comprised of 13 towers) is home to the ruling body of FIRMAMENTAL SHAPERS, who oversee the development and growth of their kind throughout ELYDEN, particularly in the continent of Meniscea. The Minaret is overseen by a council of thirteen ONÉSIMUS, at the head of which is a ONÉSIMUS-PRELATE. The current prelate is ARANTUDUR FARAUT.

However, where once shapers were a united people, their customs held together by the dominion of the Minaret, things have been different since the demise of FEDERATION OF FREE NATIONS OF MENISCEA in 3272 RM, and their kind have fractured, with no central leadership as the rule of the Minaret is ignored by most. Despite this estrangement, the Minaret maintains it is still the ruling body of the shapers of Meniscea, and continues to release edicts and laws. Even though most shapers are unaware of them.

Many shapers live their lives without once coming into contact with the Minaret and some even live in ignorance of its continued existence altogether. Most shapers learnt to focus their skills through a mentor, who in turn learnt from another and so on, making contact with the Minaret sparse at best.

MINARET OF MALLAREON: Rui. Ancient monument, believed to have been created by the DEMIURGE NYARLOTH in the THIRD AGE. Its construction follows the principles of the golden ratio, as described by his children the irothani and can be seen from many miles away. Indeed, though it is 17-miles from the coast, it is used by mariners travelling the waters of the SEA OF LETHEA to navigate with.

MINARET OF MERED SUBBAR: Rui. Ancient half-toppled minaret in the west of the GO BISAMMAM desert in the south west of VENTHIR. It is named after the nearby ruin of MERED SUBBAR, which was a THIRD AGE city, but which is now buried beneath the sands of the Go Bisammam.

MINARET OF TAE INORU: His. Str. Gigantic marble FOURTH AGE tower located in the c north of present-day OPHIUSSA. By the time mortal races had re-emerged in the early FIFTH AGE, the tower had been reduced to an expansive ruin with a huge footprint covering many miles. As MORTALS began to settle down, they began to plunder it for construction materials, and many structures in the city of ASHURHADDON, including its original walls built between c. 100 – 175 RM, were made from blocks taken from this site, which remains a major landmark to this day.

MINASTERIA: Plr. 'Minasteria'. 1. Pol. Org. Generally, the name used for the various branches of governmental offices and departments, including SHAPING within the KORACHANI EMPIRE. They were disbanded in 3708 RM following the SUNDERING OF THE EMPIRE, and reorganised into ORDERS, though this only lasted until 3779 RM when they were reinstated, and many of the newly-funded Orders disbanded and folded into the reinstated Minasteria.

The major Minasteria in operation throughout the empire today include:

- the MINASTERIA OF AGRICULTURE.
- the MINASTERIA OF ANNALS.
- the MINASTERIA OF COMMUNICATIONS.
- the MINASTERIA OF EXORCISMS.
- the MINASTERIA OF NEGATIONISM.
- the MINASTERIA OF ROADS.
- the MINASTERIA OF SHAPING.
- the MINASTERIA OF TITHES.
- the MINASTERIA OF TRADES AND COMMERCE.

There is some degree of overlap between the Minasteria and the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION, and various Minasteria and Orders do work together in pursuit of their common goals. The main distinction is that the Minasteria are civil departments, while the Orders are militant.

Indeed, there has been a great deal of controversy over the years with many individuals and groups attempting to reorganise various Orders into Minasteria, or vice versa. Though following the failure of the MINASTERIAL REFORMS of 3708 RM the Council of Seven have been reticent of changing the present balance between Minasteria and Order any further.

2. Pol. Org. More specifically, one of many offices in the KORACHANI EMPIRE devoted to a specific form of SHAPING, and which is responsible for training and issuing licences to shapers, as well as issuing warrants on those practicing illegally. Each Minasteria is the face of the form of shaping associated with it, and maintains a single headquarter as well as regional centres across the empire.

These Minasteria of shaping emerged in c. 1230 RM following many centuries of decentralised traditions in various territories that often clashed with each other, in both idealism and execution. The Minasteria established themselves in most major imperial cities over the coming decades and were responsible for a period of sweeping reforms to laws concerning the education, certification, and policing of shapers within the empire. This period of assertation was followed by another now known as the Great Culling between 1312 – 1345 RM, during which older shapers who had escaped the reforms were hunted down and rounded up and either sent to the Minasteria for education or neutralised through various means.

Most of the major Minasteria maintain various bases or colleges across the empire, where their recruiters and the ORDER OF PROSELYTISERS can send promising young shapers (known as Prospects) for study and training. These larger Minasteria receive funding from major PATRICIAN HOUSES that allow them to operate in more locations. By contrast, the smaller or less influential Minasteria many only have a single college serving the entire empire. Alternatively smaller Minasteria might be annexed to a larger Minasteria.

Once rounded up Prospects undergo simple testing using $\underline{FOCI}^{(2)}$ to determine where their aptitude lies, and they are sent to the relevant Minasteria to study and train for their license. This training typically lasts for 2-5 years, depending on the Minasteria, and any specialisations the shapers may opt for. Those of strong-enough disposition will go on to become licensed $\underline{SHAPERS}$, while those who fail their practical exams might go on to take less glamorous roles, such as archivists, or even internment within $\underline{HEART\ ENGINES}$. The latter is also used as punishment for those who display egomaniacal or otherwise dangerous tendencies, in which case they are lobotomised and used to power heart engines and similar $\underline{TECHNARCANE}$ engines.

Not all shapers who are members of a particular Minasteria necessarily share the same SPHERE, as there exists a great deal of overlap between their shared abilities. Indeed, the terms are merely attempts by mortals at categorizing abilities which are inherently individual. As a result, two shapers who might be considered to have abilities from different spheres might have a certain overlap, leading to them being members of the same Minasteria.

Though many people (particularly uneducated laypersons) believe that shapers have god-like powers within their sphere, the truth is largely more pragmatic, with shapers limited by individual skill, amount of training or knowledge, as well as the vagaries of the ARCANE TEMPERS, and not to mention limitations imposed on them by their respective Minasteria and the licenses they are issued with. The act of shaping itself is highly stressful and exhausting (which is where the misconception of them being lazy comes from – they eat and sleep so much as a means of restoring their energy), and the type of powerful shaping that is popularised by mythology, legends, and pulp novels is simply beyond the grasp of most shapers, and those that are capable of preforming such legendary acts are either beholden by law or simply disciplined enough not to.

The major Minasteria of Shaping include (but are not limited to): ANALOGONEAR, ANAMNREAR, ANNULLEAR, BATIKEAR, CHODENREAR, COGNITAREAR, EREPIDIAREAR, ESTMANEAR, FERREAR, INCENDEAR, LETHEAR, MEDELIAREAR, MYGALURGEAR, ONAGOGEAR, PROCULEAR, PROVACTAREAR, PENUMBRISM, PROGNOSTICEAR, SOMNIAREAR, SOMNIFEREAR, SULRACHAREAR, TECHNARCANEAR, TELLURAREAR, and TEMPESTAREAR. See Vol IV: Spheres and types of Shaping.

MINASTERIA OF AGRICULTURE: Pol. Org. Major KORACHANI governmental DEPARTMENT (1.), based in the city of ZEPHANICHAN, with offices in all major Korachani territories, and a large annex in the Governor's Palace in the capital of AZAZEM, AGLAIA (2.). It oversees the production and distribution of food across the empire and its territories and dependencies, including the growing of crops, raising of livestock, and the production of DROSS. The main structure in Zephanichan is imposing, made of stark concrete, with a large depiction of a green soapstone tree above its door.

For millennia, the Minasteria has made use of TEMPESTARIIN and CHODENRIIN SHAPERS to alter the local weather and improve crops, respectively, to benefit agriculture. Over the years, this practice became more brazen, until the DORUK CALAMITY left the east of AZAZEM devastated, hundreds of thousands of people dead and displaced, and hundreds of communities destroyed. Following this, the Korachani government changed its policy regarding the use of Tempestarii, which are now used in a reactionary rather than pre-emptive capacity – controlling storms, redirecting rain on a small scale and so-on, rather than attempting to alter climates on a large scale.

MINASTERIA OF ANNALS: Pol. Org. One of the smaller KORACHANI governmental DEPARTMENTS^(1.), based in the capital in KHADON, though with an influence in all major cities across the High-empire. The MINASTERIA is responsible for record keeping, and maintains the vast libraries and repositories of knowledge, particularly the IMPERIAL ARCHIVES in Khadon, where its headquarters are located.

Members are often augmented with $\underline{DACTYLID}$ ORTHOSES and \underline{IRON} $\underline{MANTLES}^{(2)}$ designed to aid in their vigilant duties of the Korachani archives and libraries.

MINASTERIA OF COMMUNICATIONS: Pol. Org. Major MINASTERIA within the KORACHANI EMPIRE that is entrusted with the maintenance of communications, including the IMPERIAL POSTAL OPERATIONS and telegraphy networks as well as more esoteric forms of communication, such as SEEING POOLS, the COLLECTIVE MIND, and clairaudient and clairvoyant operations within the empire.

MINASTERIA OF EXORCISMS: Org. Department within the KORACHANI EMPIRE, specialised with EXORCISING people and places of POSSESSION by tainted spirits. It has close links with the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE as well as the GRIGORIAN and AVÉNETHI SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION, though strangely it operates independently of either, and answers only to THE SEVEN. Its headquarters are situated in the city of ELAARH in the c of LAASKHA, though it has annexes across the empire.

It originated as the Office of Exorcisms, though was changed to the Minasteria of Exorcisms in an empire-wide departmental reorganisation that had various unrelated departments restructured into the MINASTERIA that we know today.

MINASTERIA OF NEGATIONISM: Pol. Org. MINASTERIA within the KORACHANI EMPIRE, based in the BASTION OF STEEL in the city of KHADON. It is tasked with issuing propaganda and rewriting history to better suit the needs of the imperial government. Its agents work diligently across ELYDEN to eradicate references to condemned subjects, and they often work with the CONCORDANTIST ORDER, whose role is more civil than that of the Minasteria.

Perhaps most notorious of this Minasteria's deeds was the expunging of an entire nation from its records and public consciousness. Today, those few who are even aware of the nation know it only as the OMITTED EMPIRE.

The agents of the Minasteria of Negationism are amongst the most nebulous and least known amongst the empire, and they are even more feared than the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION. They are farranging and work across Elyden, though are most active around the INNER SEA REGION and within the Korachani empire, working diligently to cover-up information from the masses.

MINASTERIA OF ROADS: Pol. Org. Major MINASTERIA within the KORACHANIEMPIRE that is entrusted with the maintenance of roads and trade networks, as well as offering protection to travellers through the SHEPHERDS OF THE ROADS. It is also entrusted with the issuing of PASSPORTS for the purposes of travel.

MINASTERIA OF SHAPING: Pol. Org. Various OFFICES (2.) and departments within the KORACHANI EMPIRE concerning different aspects of SHAPING within the empire. Each of Minasteria of Shaping is concerned with a specific sphere of the ATRAMENTA and is responsible for issuing licences, as well as apprehending and punishing those practicing without said licences. Licences carry with them compulsory service in the Imperial armies, numbering no less than 4-years.

MINASTERIA OF TITHES: Pol. Org. MINASTERIA^(1.) within the KORACHANI EMPIRE in charge of tithing and taxations. Under its jurisdiction is the job of enumerating the imperial population through regular census-taking. It is one of the largest imperial MINASTERIA, and its agents can often be seen travelling in and between imperial settlements whilst carrying out their duty to the empire.

The Minasteria of Tithes is responsible for granting SANCTIONS OF INDUSTRY, granting individuals and groups sanctions to exploit a defined area of land for profit, be it extracting a natural resource, using the land for farming or erecting a manufactory. They are also responsible for collecting the tithes owed from these sanctions, which are a vital form of revenue for the empire.

MINASTERIA OF TRADES AND COMMERCE: Pol. Org.

DEPARTMENT^(1.) within the KORACHANI EMPIRE that oversees businesses – both state-owned and private – within the empire. Based in the city of KHADON, it issues trade licences which are required for businesses to operate within the empire, and it imposes the empire's laws over such establishments with its own cadre of enforcers who operate closely with the IRON GUARD and the GRIGORIAN Order of the INQUISITION.

MINASTERIAL REFORMS, the: see DISSOLUTION OF THE MINASTERIA.

MINATA: Pol. Set. Major coastal city and harbour in the south east of MULIEBRA (Pop. c. 117,000).

MINES OF BARDEL: Geo. Ancient open cast mine in the c west of TISARA to the west of the LHANA Highlands, thought to date back to the THIRD AGE. The mine is expansive, over 3-miles wide and almost half a mile deep, and tiered. Since its abandonment over 10,000 years ago it has been reclaimed by nature, its deepest reaches now flooded and home to endemic salamanders.

The SEISM OF ASMARATH, that wracked the west of Tisara in 3201 RM, added further damage to the region, making it unstable and dangerous to mortals.

MINISTRANT: Rel. Rnk. Altar tenders within the THREE CHURCHES OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. They are typically VOTARIES OR SECTARIANS.

MINITIL: 1. Geo. Pass in the north east of KOLCHIS, guarding the route linking METEORE mines in the north with the more civilised areas in the south. the pass lies along the border with the far north west of ALMAGEST and it is heavily guarded. 2. Mil. Str. Fortress in the north east of KOLCHIS, guarding the above pass, which lies right along the border with the far north west of ALMAGEST. It guards important METEORE trade-routes, from quarries in the north to warehouses and markets in the south.

MINTHA: Dem. 'Minthan'. His. Ntn. Relatively short-lived kingdom that predates the appearance of THETIS in the south east of EASTERN LLACHATUL. Based around the city of KHYTER, which was founded by Rhean immigrants in c. 1590 RM, Mintha would emerge slowly as new cities were founded over the next centuries. Efforts to colonise the surrounding lands were unsuccessful due to the increasing desertification of the region, which continues to this day, leading to the appearance and growth of the RTHEI^(1.) desert.

This stalled efforts to spread inland, leading to new cities appearing around the coast, but they would remain independent in a form of feudal system, with their rulers owing fealty to the DEIARCH of Khyter.

The cities eventually coalesced following centuries of merging cultures and increased trade, leading to the formation of the kingdom of Mintha by c. 2450 RM.

The kingdom was short-lived however, and collapsed after 400-years, following the increased strains on the government brought about by the growing desert and increased piracy. Today it is commonly accepted that this happened by c. 2860 RM, after which the culture of the NEMIS nomads would emerge as the dominant one in the region, leading to the appearance of Thetis as a nation in 3133 RM.

MINIUM: 1. Pol. His. An independent city-state and enclave that existed between 2381 and 2479 RM in the TRISKETHIAN DOMAINS in the north of SAMMAEA, in what is today the east of the TEMPLAR STATES. It emerged as an independent city during the SECOND TECHNARCANE REVOLUTION, when the caste of SOULSEERS defected from the ADEPT rulers of the Triskethian Domains in protest of the treatment of SHAPERS. The city remained independent for decades despite the Adepts' attempts at reclaiming it, until the Second Technarcane Revolution led to widespread revolts. Seeing their chance, the Soulseers attacked the city of OBYRYTH, slaying the Adepts and taking control, moving the capital to Minium, effectively beginning a new era within the Triskethian Domains.

2. Sct. City in the east of the Templar States, within the basin of Vena, that originated in c. 1000 RM within the Triskethian Domains. It was an independent enclave⁽¹⁾ between 2381 and 2479 RM until the Third Technarcane Revolution usurping the ruling Adepts, leading to the Soulsers of Minium taking control, under whose reigns Minium and Triskethia were united once more, with Minium serving as capital.

The city was left deserted by a LHAUAPARAN of the Soulseers' own creation in 2852 RM, whose birth brought about a psychic blast of such devastating potency that it killed every mortal in the city, effectively ending the Soulseer caste in an instant.

The city was eventually repopulated by the few Soulseers who survived the calamity. It remains an important city today and the centre of their research, and it is renowned for its libraries on the subject (Pop. c. 46,000).

MINYSSA: Set. Independent city in the far east of EASTERN MENISCEA overlooking the SEA OF ABARHAL. The city is known for its GIGANRI torturers, believed to be descendants of GNOTHI natives from WESTERN LLACHATUL (Pop. c. 24,000).

MIRROR OF AMBITION: Myr. His. Obj. In the ancient mythologies of ELYDEN, an artefact created by the DEMIURGES SYNCHTHONITH and NYARLOTH in the FIRST AGE. The mirror was created as a tool for the Demiurges to amplify their abilities and make the act of SHAPING easier. When RACHANAEL saw his reflection in the Mirror he saw the roots of his future, of a world shackled by his rule. This acted as a catalyst for his own ambition, giving conviction to his dark desires.

MIRA: 1. Set. Settlement in the east of OPHIUSSA, 18-miles south of the capital city DRAK LON, located at a fork along the river INA. It is a major agricultural centre (Pop. 48,000).

2. Set. Major city in the c of AQUARIIA, along the course of the river ISARRA. It was once a coastal city, though the diminishing of the SEA OF LIAKARRA over the past millennia has seen it become landlocked, now 250-miles from the coast. Today it is a major industrial centre in Aquariia (Pop. c. 820,000).

MIRACLE OF THE MASSES: Int. Rel. His. Miracle performed by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR in ARGEA, where he restored life to 66 slain anchorites who had been killed by $\underline{\mathsf{SARASTROAN}}$ guerrillas after the surrender of the nation to KORACHAN. The site of the miracle became famous and a priory was later built on the spot, where the ORDER OF MALICHARIAN SISTERS were established until their eviction after the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM, whereupon they relocated to the city of HIALIA.

MIRACLE OF NOCEN, the: Int. Rel. His. A miracle that took place on the FEAST OF THE MORTAL BIRTH OF ST. MALICHAR in the city of NOCEN, SKAROS, in 3703 RM during which a young man levitated, his body undergoing a transfiguration into an alien form, not unlike an OTHERWORLDER, before disappearing in an implosion of darkness.

He spoke in a deluge with a deep booming voice during the transfiguration, which took around 18-minutes and which was captured in various HELIOGRAPHS. Though no-one recorded the entirety of what was spoken, various first accounts survive, that together give the impression of a series of quatrains, some of which were retroactively attributed to the early events of the WAR OF SUNDERING. This began a fever that dominated social life across the EMPIRE over the next few years as people tried desperately to attribute the rest of the writings to the events of the war. Today, only two of the quatrains remain unaccounted for, causing great consternation for many armchair sleuths.

The miracle was independently verified by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE and the SANCTITIAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, and the nature of the transfiguration is discussed in seminaries across the empire to this day. Many believe that the man was the victim of a horrific anomaly in the SPIRIT CYCLE, condensing what usually takes centuries or millennia into a matter of minutes. Others refute this, citing various theories, though none are widely accepted.

MIRADAS: Set. Fortified city in the east of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT. It is governed by a clade of TECHNARCANISTS who interpret the computations of an ancient ANALYTICAL ENGINE as law (Pop. c. 38,000).

MIRADOR: 1. Geo. Mount in 10, and home to an ancient citadel(2.) where the first EXARCHS ruled Io.

2. Rui. Ruins of the first EXARCHS' citadel in mount Mirador (1.). Constructed in -23 RM, the citadel became a place to the Exarchs and a workshop where their acolytes created new golems.

The palace was abandoned by most Exarchs in c. 900 RM, when the descendants of the original Exarchs had become part of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. those that remained there became powerful technarcanists, manufacturing potent sicthainen techna. In 3103 RM, following the SARASTROAN SANCTION and the handing over of Io to SARASTRO, its ruler, SATHEP THE RISEN, destroyed the fortress in Mirador and persecuted the Exarchs, executing them and their followers. Some maintain that their old workshops remain there, but few know the truth of the matter.

MIRALUL: Dem. 'Miraluli'. Ntn. Nation in the west of WESTERN MENISCEA, north of the SEA OF MIRA. OSSIEL'S MAGICKAL crusade against its neighbours saw much of the south of MIRALUL scoured of FIRMAMENTISTS. It later allied with Ossiel and allowed its 'inquisitors' free passage in its territories.

There has been much unrest in the country since its controversial alliance with Ossiel, which saw the eventual dissolution of any Firmamental industries and vocations, which brought great chaos to the land, accompanied by an exodus of SHAPERS and Firmamentists to neighbouring nations, including ALBASSITA and CEHOPHELA. Recently, its people protesting the 'unholy alliance'. Many commentators believe this will eventually lead to civil uprising, which may lead to it losing its new ally and being sundered from within. Coupled with this, the increasing paranoia of the present monarch, king NIHILSEH IV has alienated other neighbouring states, including ALBASSITA and UGURIIT, and many think that war with them is only a matter of time. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

MIRELAN: Set. Small city in the far south east of KOMMEA. It was once known for its natural harbour, but the retreat of ELYDEN'S seas found it become landlocked by c. 3820 RM, and it is now half a mile from the coast. A series of canals and locks have been constructed to maintain its link with the coast (Pop. c. 65,000).

MIRILLIRA: Rvr. River in the south west of the SAMMAEA, flowing west for around 1000-miles south from various sources in the SASTAKAUR Massif, before meeting its parent, the river HELAGHILRA.

MIROS: Set. Settlement in the c north of SAGITTARIA (Pop. c. 10,000).

MIROVEA: also 'the Great Eastern Sea'. Sea. ELYDEN'S largest ocean and body of open water, stretching from the eastern coast of SAMMAEA to its western coast, and bordering the south of MENISCEA, and encompassing all of the small continent of $\underline{BROR}^{(1.)}$.

MIROVEAN BASIN, the: Geo. Drainage basin formed by various continental divides in the continents of LLACHATUL, SAMMAEA, and BROR^(1.), including parts of the EASTERN SAMMAEAN, KHARKHARADONTID, and GREAT BROR DIVIDES. The basin comprises part of south eastern Llachatul, EASTERN SAMMAEA, and the north west of Bror and all rivers within it drain directly into the MIROVEAN OCEAN.

Nations and territories that are at least partially within the Mirovean Basin include BROR⁽²⁾, CHEIRA, DATEPHA, GIBEAH, IACIO, LIMOTH⁽¹⁾, the Pantheon Isles, Porphyr, Rhea, Sabaisa, Sabomor, Serrok, SURUTUR, and THETIS, amongst others.

MIROVEAN GYRE: Sea. Sea gyre in the c of the MIROVEAN OCEAN, flowing in a counter-clockwise motion.

MIRQAL: 1. Rvr. River in the c south of AHRISHEN, flowing north for 170miles from sources in the ASHER and BHANN Mountains, before meeting

2. Lak. Lake in the c south of AHRISHEN, forming a part of the course of the river Mirgal^(1.).

3. Set. Settlement in the c south of AHRISHEN, along the course of the eponymous river^(1.) and the south western shore of lake DAVAL. Its main industry revolves around the gathering and drying of reeds (Pop. c. 6,000).

MIRRA CALLEN: f. Oth. Per. (B. 3928 RM) High-ranking member of the AVÉNETHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, holding the unique rank of INQUIRER-GENERAL, which was bestowed upon her by the Order's $\underline{\text{GRANDMASTER}} \hspace{0.2cm} \underline{\text{ADONICA ASTARTUS}} \hspace{0.2cm} \text{in 3982 RM in recognition of her} \$ work. She is a HALFBLOOD of unknown heritage with a gift for interrogation, whose skills are famed across the Order.

MIRROR LAKE: also 'Drad Gath'. Geo. Expansive salt flat in the south of ROMOREA^(2.), dominating the centre of the HALAD Rift. Its common name comes from the mirror-like sheen that follows occasional rains, which reflect the sky perfectly.

MIRROR OF SYTRY: Myt. Obj. Ancient silvered mirror crafted by the SCION SYTRY in the THIRD AGE. The mirror is said to reveal to anyone looking into it a shadowy depiction of the scion, superimposed over the observer's own reflection. This is said to instil in the observer a yearning to learn more of the scion - a bid to keep Sytry alive should knowledge of him wane.

The whereabouts of the mirror are presently unknown, and it was last mentioned in the early FIFTH AGE almanac, collated in the south of MENISCEA.

MIRU: Rel. Set. Independent holy city in MENISCEA, standing between the borders of $\underline{\text{SABAEA}}, \underline{\text{SHAZGIN}},$ and $\underline{\text{ZOHAK}}.$ The city and its residents do not recognise the divinity of the DEMIURGES and instead revere the dichotomous forces of creation – the FIRMAMENT and the ATRAMENTA. Neither physical force is particularly strong in the region surrounding Miru, making it a 'neutral ground' of sorts to SHAPERS of these elements of the MATERIA OMNA. It is ruled by a theocracy, most members of which are dual FIRMAMENTISTS and ATRAMENTISTS. The city has, for many decades, been considered as neutral ground and welcomes people from all nation and races, as long as they obey its laws (Pop. c. 129,200). See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

MIRVOR: Pol. Governor's district in GÁTHA, named after the tower that once stood there.

MISANOMNISTS: Org. Loosely organised order in THE SURRACH in the north west of SAMMAEA, characterised by its distrust of both the ATRAMENTA and the FIRMAMENTAL and SHAPERS, as well as those who would consider them divine elements. They are misanthropes and can be found in scattered cults as far afield as south of THE INNER SEA.

MISANTHROPE: Sup. Soc. Term used specifically in relation to SHAPERS who are extremely sensitive to the FIRMAMENT or the ATRAMENTA. Proximity to creatures and objects to which the Firmament and Atramenta are sensitive causes misanthropes to become uncomfortable, with the displeasure increasing with closeness to and number of such creatures and objects. Extreme reactions include headaches and nose-and ear-bleeds and less commonly uncontrolled acts of shaping.

Due to their unique condition, misanthropes are loners, either of their own will or exiled by their homes, and this is the source of their name. Despite their somewhat tragic lives, misanthropes can be powerful shapers and those who live long enough to gain control over their powers can be very powerful, with strong influences over living creatures and their bodies. See Vol IV: the Materia Omna.

MISCEGENATION: Int. Soc. The breeding between different ethnicities, cultures or species. Attitudes to miscegenation vary across ELYDEN and in some cases may be negative, but for the most-part it is simply accepted as a part of everyday life, whether it's the growth of cosmopolitan cities in the wake of global trade and travel, or cultural conditions brought about by post-colonial or post-imperial life.

It is most-evident within the offspring of unions between mortals and supranatural beings, such as $\underline{\text{OTHERWORLDERS}}$ or $\underline{\text{SCIONS}}$, resulting in $\underline{\text{HALFBLOODS}}$.

MISED: Rvr. Major river in the north of MENISCEA, flowing west across the CEHOPHELAN EMPIRE. The capital city, MALADAE, is situated along its banks. It is an integral part of the coming-of-age ritual known as the GRAIAIN ANOINTING.

 $\underline{\textbf{MISERICORD}}\text{: }\textit{Oth.} \text{ A type of }\underline{\textbf{HALFBLOOD}}\text{. See Vol II: Classification and } \\ \overline{\textbf{Taxonomy of Life.}}$

MISGAE: Set. City in the north of CYAE in the south east of EASTERN MENISCEA (Pop. c. 72,000).

MISHAMAR: Set. Small city in the west of the JAHADAT STATES, under the control of the city of SIYYAT (Pop. c. 12,900).

MISHANOS: Geo. Mountain-range in the c. of THE SURRACH in WESTERN SAMMAEA. The range runs north west for around 450-miles acting as an internal border for independent regions within the Surrach.

MISTRA: Mil. Str. Fortress in the south ETUA, overlooking the border with the north west of KHARKHARADONTIS. The fort guards against incursions from tainted creatures that occasionally move north into less hostile lands. Its soldiers are veterans at navigating ATRAMENTALLY CORRUPTED lands and stalking the beasts that dwell in them. In fact, many are PENUMBRISTS, whose skills are in high demand.

MISTRESS OF KETESH, the: Int. Soc. Courtesan famed across the INNER SEA for her beauty and her sexual prowess. Only the richest can afford the honour of meeting her, and even fewer can afford her extended company. She is thought by many to be the true political power in KETESH and her favour and influence have been known to sway wars, build nations or topple empires. Despite her appearance of a woman in her prime, she is thought to be over a century old, with many believing she is a HALFBLOOD.

She is also thought to be a major broker of information, with spies and informants across the Inner Sea, and some have even posited that she is secretly in control of hundreds of brothels, with thousands in her employ, acting as her eyes and ears.

Those who seek her services as an information broker are asked for a fickle favour, at times merely odd (such as a handkerchief kissed by a famed gladiator), at others impossible (the eyes of Rachanael) or simply dangerous to acquire (a soulstone sourced in Kharkharadontis).

 $\underline{\text{MIT ISH}}$: Geo. Island off the eastern coast of $\underline{\text{NOAVATUR}}$.

MITA AGHRA: also 'the Black Obelisk'. Rui. Str. The fragmented remains of a once towering stone monolith in the west of the UKHORR Mountains in the east of METHUMN. The obelisk is ancient, possibly predating the rise of MORTALKIND in ELYDEN, and its once impressive form now lies strewn in the north western hills of the mountains. Each shard of its oncesingular mass is itself a wonder, measuring hundreds of feet long, indicating that it was a truly monolithic edifice, probably the work of a DEMIURGE or SCION.

Their outer surfaces once bore indecipherable hieroglyphs, though these have long-since been erased by harsh winds. The stone from which it is made is of a deep matt black that seems to absorb all light, eliminating any details on its surface, and it is only through the accumulation of dust that anyone observing it can make out any details. The material has thus far not been found elsewhere in Elyden, and parts of it have been looted and fashioned into smaller blocks that have been used to manufacture stark statues that can be seen across Methumn and the AMMASHI (1.) peninsula.

 $\underline{\textbf{MITAHAH}}:$ Rel. Str. Monastery in the region of $\underline{\textbf{FLAVESCA}}$ in the west of THE SURRACH.

MITANN: Set. Fortified city in the east of HITTA. It is home to most of Hitta's military, and most of its mercenary forces are trained here (Pop. c. 31,000).

MITH SHUR III: (B. 3364 – D. 3409 RM) Pol. His. Youngest of three children born to the then-ruler of PNESSA, KARAN SHUR. Upon Karan's death in 3388 RM Mith had his siblings – MORTHA and DEGLIA imprisoned in the tower of ENEPH in the far east of Pnessa so that he could claim the throne.

In 3402 RM Mortha and Deglia were freed from the tower of Eneph. In IRUT MARKA, supporters of their cause showed their colours and attempted a coup, but it was thwarted. Fighting broke out in major cities, devolving into war that lasted till 3409 RM, becoming known as the WAR OF SECESSION.

Mortha killed Mith in 3409 RM following an unsuccessful parley, though he was unable to claim the throne. With Mith's only heir still a child, leadership broke down in the capital as allies of the secessionists sowed discord.

A series of military blunders saw the armies of Pnessa falter against Eneph, leading to a ceasefire that ended in the signing of the independence of Eneph and the birth of the nation of $\underline{\text{ELEKHID}}$ in 3409 RM. In Pnessa, the son of Mith was groomed to take over the crown when he becomes old-enough, amid reforms and fortifying of its lands, particularly in the east.

MITHRAR, TEMPLE OF: Rui. Rel. Str. Gigantic abandoned temple in the far north of SABIA, in the southern face of the METUN KOR Mountains. The temple is named after a nearby peak, and is constructed at a scale altogether too large for any mortal, including giganri. It is a stone structure of solid thick walls and vaulted roof, though it is partially collapsed, and buried in thick rock and permafrost that completely freezes solid every winter, giving it an eerie appearance.

Its origins are unknown, though it is thought to predate the FIFTH AGE nation of SAKKHRIA, and possibly even its precursor state ELDIRA, and possibly even the fourth Age empire of Ceeropia.

MITHRENT: 1. Geo. Geographical region in the c south west of OTINTH, noted as the region where secular ideologies took hold between 2626 – c. 2640 RM, whose leaders were responsible for the expulsion of KORACHANI colonists from the region in 2671 RM.

2. Dem. 'Mithrentish'. Set. City in the c south west of OTINTH. Historically, it was pivotal in supplanting the power of the VETHRANDAN theocracy and was also responsible for ousting KORACHANI influence from the region. The city had grown powerful by 2643 RM, and, together with TATARAN allies from the south, it marched against the power bases of the CHURCH OF THE CHAINED GOD in both Vethranda and SEDISIA.

In 2671 RM repercussions of the war forced Korachan to abandon its nearby colony of OHDURTAR. In 2674 RM the city of Mithrent was taken by Vethrandan forces, and the last of its defence was pushed south, into former Korachani territories. Despite its defeat, its secular teachings remained strong in Vethranda, and the power of the theocracy there waned, and they were finally supplanted in 2735 RM by the SCION known as THE VHOCENT, who earlier the same year obliterated the capital in EVHRAN, destroying the entire theocracy in one blow.

Mithrent remains a stronghold of secular thought to this day, and is a major industrial power and processor of raw UMBRA. It was once coastal, overlooking the now-dry SEA OF ABARULLIA, though is now over 175-miles from the coast (Pop. c. 180,000).

MITRA: His. Rel. Chief divinity in ancient PELASGOS, rising in c. -250 RM, replacing fertility goddesses common in area and the MIMIR. It rose through the influence of the ANAXIN and judges who ushered in the JUDICUARY AGE in Pelasgos c. -200. A figure of contracts and judgement, she is commonly represented as a female with right arm raised in judgement (or admonishment), and a third eye on her forehead that sees all.

The deity was used as a symbol by partite states in 70 RM during the inter-city wars that eventually led to KORACHANI invasion in 73 RM. The religion was assimilated by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE in. c. 100 RM, combining aspects of MITRA with a Korachani SAINT.

MITRA NYX, the SHADOWBLADE: f. Per. (B. 3947 RM) High-ranking member of the AVÉNETHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, in charge of shaping assassins whose duty it is to hunt down and neutralise FIRMAMENTAL SHAPERS, particularly within the KORACHANI EMPIRE itself. She was responsible for eliminating the outlawed shaper cult known as the VEILBREAKERS in 3995 RM.

MITTANA: Set. Fishing city in the north west of IZABAL^(1.) (Pop. c. 13.800).

MITTU: also 'Demonsmouth'. Int. Sup. Geo. Gigantic sinkhole about 9-miles across in the north eastern-most part of the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes. Its walls vary in height though are on average a sheer 100-foot drop onto the table below, which is noted for its treacherous terrain composed of craggy mesas and canyons from which seeps thick gaseous shadowstuff that has laid claim to all life in the region. The gas is often carried by winds across more civilised areas in the north east of the continent, bringing with it black rain and ATRAMENTAL AILMENTS.

N'RAKHI culture shuns the place, calling it the Demonsmouth.

Seasonal rivers flow into Mittu, disappearing within cracks and small caves that are thought to lead to the depths of the QABARRU cave system.

MIZAR: Lak. Lake in the c of SIRIPHAGOS. Normally it is little more than 5-miles wide, though it increases greatly in size in the short winter months, drying up again by the end of spring.

MJALAD ONÉSIMUS, SHAMAN-HENDECARCH, FOURTH OF
THE ELEVEN: m. Pol. Sup. Per. (B. 3961 RM) Fourth of the HENDECARCHS of the MALANI FOREST KINGDOM of LONAR. The son of MARLERIE of ZHARIAH^(1.), who, alongside the rest of her family fled from Zhariah following a political revolution that saw the ROYAL HOUSE OF HINOL ejected in 3913 RM and its direct claimants to the throne slain, he was raised as a Malani noble.

Both his parents were HALFBLOODS of two different royal bloodlines, which earnt him a degree of notoriety. From a young age he took a direct interest in FIRMAMENTISM and the ideals associated with SHAMANISM, and studied extensively until his ascent to Hendecarch following his fathers' death in 3979 RM. Though forced into the role at a young age, he has proven to be a competent ruler, though shows little desire to elevate Lonar from its rural roots.

MKISIH. lit. 'broken thing'. Med. Tec. CLONING techniques are complex, often resulting in misshapen creatures. Such clones whose bodies are not up to the task of their original purpose, but still capable of general locomotion and cognitive functions are often retained and used as slaves. Some, by circumstance of their deformed bodies, may be strong agile or otherwise competent physical creatures, and may even find their way as shock troops or cannon-fodder in armies.

Mkisih is a general term, used most commonly with such malformed bodies when used in a military capacity.

The beasts are worshipped as gods by the people of ANUBIA, where many mkisihs escaped captivity centuries ago and now roam the deserts of the region. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MKISIH IDOL: Soc. Rel. MKISIHS that roam the deserts of ANUBIA, which are WORSHIPPED AS DEITIES by the regions' desert nomads.

Cloning experimentations were not uncommon in the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{EMPIRE}}$, with crazes coming in and out of fashion over its reign. A period of such activity was noted in $\underline{\text{VENTHIR}}$ c. 2700 – 2850 RM, particularly in the city of $\underline{\text{KITHAMAR}}$, with many experiments being conducted on various creatures and the effects of ATRAMENTAL infusion during the gestation of CLONED individuals. Most were GROTESQUE failures, though some drew results that were of use to the empire.

In 2821 RM contact was lost with an ATELIER 50-miles south west of Kithamar. It was later discovered that an as yet unknown calamity befell the base, leading to dozens of captive mkisihs escaping, with most fleeing south into the deserts of Anubia, where they were encountered by desert nomads, where they rapidly came to be revered as avatars of the LOST ONES' ancient deities. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

MKISIH IDOLATRY: Rel. Predominant religion observed in ANUBIA, with its adherents worshipping the MISHAPPEN BEASTS that roam the surrounding deserts as deities.

Originating in c. 2850 RM, the ATRAMENTALLY-TAINTED beasts are revered as avatars of the LOST ONES' ancient deities. The mkisihs are rarely possessed with the intellect required to understand the ANUBIANS' fascination with them. Some are imprisoned and come to be worshipped as living gods by nomads and settlement dwellers alike, who haul them around with them as they travel the deserts, or build temples around them, respectively. Upon death the creatures are mummified and gilded, with temples are erected around them where they continue to be worshipped. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MLIRESS: (D. 3998 RM) Pol. Queen of FURAKISH whose rule united the disparate tribes of the region. Her death in 3998 RM led to a fracturing of the tribes, allowing them to return to their natural state of conflict, which persists to this day, disrupting trade between Furakish and Abacardat.

MMAN SHATH: For. Geo. Woodlands in the south west of the HENDECARCHY of AONIA, in MALAN, situated in kart formations in the north of the EGLAENT Mountains.

MMASSACARURA: Rel. His. Rui. Vast vaulted necropolis in the western wastes of KHARKHARADONTIS, its immense mass mostly buried by the dust of the marching deserts. Large mummified bodies, their race unknown, fill the vaults beneath, their condition so bad that they crumble into dust upon being exposed to open light.

MMITH: Rvr. Wide river in the c of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, in the region of Goror, flowing east for 360-miles into THE ROILING SEA.

MMKORO: 1. m. (D. 1123 RM) Pol. Per. Warlord of HATYÉ^(2.) who in c. 1100 RM united various cities of what is now the north east of the BARRIER LANDS in the empire of Hatyé^(1.).

2. m. (D. 1169 RM) Pol. Per. The son of the uniter of HATYÉ^(1.) who inherited the empire after his father died. He brought a singular pantheon of deities to his empire, effectively wiping out the well-established YAGHUKLI PANTHEON and disenfranchising hundreds of settlements and thousands of people. This ended in his EXECUTION at the hands of religious extremists, which ultimately led to the collapse of the small empire.

MNAKH: Mil. Str. Twin coastal fortresses in the south of THETIS, guarding the entrance into the KAT ENNA inlet.

MNAVIS: Set. Coastal settlement in the far south east of KHAMID, on the headland of KHARR (Pop. c. 8,000).

MNEMON: Geo. Region in the east of SAMMAEA, south of the GOJAN Highlands, overlooking the SEA OF LETHEA. It is inhabited by tribal warriors who exist in spite of the natural technological progress of the world.

There are dozens of different tribes, each with their own territories and settlements, and they war against each other as much as they do with surrounding lands, such as NOAVATUR and BANT and KULIGALA.

MO-ORASSIM: Geo. Expansive fold mountain-chain in the south east of LLACHATUL, forming a major part of the territories of the south east of KREM, north and c CUTH, and the far west of RTHEI.

MOAB: lit. 'Destroyer'. Mil. Tec. Largest of KORACHANI-designed cannons.

MOAH: 1. Dem. 'Moahan'. Ntn. independent landlocked nation in the north of SAMMAEA, 560-miles south west of the SEA OF BYSSOS. The region is dry, with cold nights and winters, and hot summers, and is known for its giant aloe and century plants.

It is ruled by a council of five NUMENIN OTHERWORLDLY beings that have shaped the course of the city's fate since its founding in 1624 RM, following its slow emergence from escaped human slaves from Khalhat and natives years earlier. The capital city also has its own independent governing body that only seeks the counsel of the Numenin in times of uncertainty, though their wisdom is often conflicting.

Moah is located in an unstable region, with militocratic tribes harassing its western and southern borders, not to mention the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of the DAENED SULRACH being close by. It has close relations with ANDILUTH, and trades with the city-state of AKRAB to the south. Little is known of its culture, which it keeps from outsiders, though it thought to owe a lot to the enigmatic LHAUS, from whose slavery it was born. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Pol. Set. Capital of the eponymous independent region in the north of SAMMAEA, south west of the SEA OF BYSSOS. The city has its own governing body, which only seeks the counsel of the NUMENIN⁽⁴⁾ rulers of the nation in times of uncertainty, though their wisdom is often conflicting (Pop. c. 101,800).

MOANING CITY, the: see IDOLUM.

MOARAH: Set Major mercantile city in the east of HANNAH, in the c-south east of SAMMAEA. It forms part of the NACRE ROAD (Pop. c. 116.000).

MOCCOS: Set. Settlement in the c east of Tisara. It is a centre of game hunting, with nobility from cross the nation travelling there in autumn to hunt deer in the southern reaches of the ERDUIN forest. The peripheries of the settlement are occupied by many private hunting lodges and estates that lie empty for most of the year (Pop. c. 8,000).

MOCH SAMHANA: Set. Small city in the c of PERGOST, in the south east of the boreal bog of RANARHOR. Its main industry is peat production (Pop. c. 12,000).

MODANA: Set. Fortified settlement in the east of SARASTRO known for its production of the drug APHRASIC (Pop. c. 4,000).

MODEL BELT: Sup. Region forming a ring within each of the two hemispheres on either side of the NULLAMBIT. It has been found that the ideal distance at which SHAPERS can practice their Art lies roughly midway between the Nullambit and their respective PRIME LACUNA (Around 30° – 60° from the respective Prime Lacuna), regional ARCANE TEMPERS and elemental tides notwithstanding. This is known as the Model Belt, and most ATRAMENTAL and FIRMAMENTAL cultures are found in their respective Belts. See Vol IV: the Materia Omna.

MODERATE THREAT: Sup. The second least harmful class used by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES to categorise regions of ATRAMENTALLY TAINT. MORTALS can travel short distances across such regions though it is not advised to stay within such an area for more than a few hours at most. Settlements are rarely founded in such regions, and established towns that find themselves engulfed by a LACUNA will either have to use SIPHON ENGINES or MAGICKAL means to protect their territories or will otherwise be forced to relocate or risk irreversible Atramental contamination of its lands, livestock, crops, and people, with any children born there likely to suffer from debilitating ATRAMENTAL MALADIES, including acute aepathy.

MODIR: Set. Small city in the north east of the emirate of UKOLIST in the north east of LIMOTH^(1.) (Pop. c. 15,300).

MODOB: 1. Set. City in the west of THE SURRACH, along the south eastern reaches of the saltlands of JAT RAZDA and home to the later AUTOCRAT OF SAGITTARIA. It was once a prosperous harbour metropolis, its sunbaked houses and white-washed roofs synonymous with the name, though it diminished greatly in the years since its divorce from the sea, with most of its outer districts crumbling into low hills, beneath which lie the remains of the ancient city. It is now 75-miles from the coast. (Pop. c. 39.000).

2. Mil. Str. Major fortress, about 20-miles north east of the eponymous city⁽¹⁾ in the west of THE SURRACH. It was once coastal, protecting the safest passage into Modob's harbours, though was abandoned following the drying of the JAT RAZDA.

MOEMAGNUS: Oth. Lan. KORACHANI word for HALFBLOOD. It is a relatively recent addition to the lexicon, superseding ANTHROPEIDOS in usage by c. 3000 RM.

MOETIA: 1. Pol. western-most of the four ONARCHIES of TZALLRACH. The state is also home to the capital of LUCCITARIA.

2. Set. Major coastal city in the far west of TZALLRACH and capital of the eponymous state. It forms a part of the GREAT ROAD trade-route (Pop. c. 1,159,000).

MOGADDA: His. Ntn. Early FOURTH AGE culture that dominated the northern coast of SAMMAEA, in what are today are the east of VAALK, MHAROKK, and LIDEA. See Vol III: Extinct States.

MOGOLLA: Set. Settlement in the south west of RAONGEN⁽²⁾. Its main industry is the mining of OMNATITE, which is processed in the city of SINVERU in the south east (Pop. c. 8,000).

MOHAMA: Flo. Parasitic tree in the mica hills in the south of TISTAR in the west of TAMAR. The tree is unique, though similar in general appearance to a banyan. Its exposed roots are embedded in the mummified body of a gigantic creature of undetermined nature.

The tree is unique in many ways, including its sprawling branches and wide pale leaves. It is noted for its thin yellowish sap, which is a tactile irritant MOHARA: 1. Geo. Desert in the c north east of the BARRIER LANDS, known for its dark grey dust.

2. Set. Settlement in the south of the BARRIER LANDS, in the far north of the HOUSHNAM region. It is a major producer of rubies and is surrounded by small mines (Pop. c. 5,000).

MOHMAR: Rvr. River in the c of TAMAR, and tributary of the river MESISA.

MOKASHA: Myt. Rel. Dei. In the mythology of KHAMID and the BROKEN LANDS, an ancient fertility deity, mother of pyramids and guardian of the skies and constellations.

MOLA: 1. Mil. Str. Hill-top fortress in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of ALAMUT, near lake TARHA, overlooking the forest of TAHIEL.

2. Set. Agricultural conurbation in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of PALUS^(1.) (Pop. c. 14,500).

MOLACARII: PIr. 'Molacariin'. Sup. Org. Mil. Rnk. An order of SHAPERS in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, whose MINASTERIA^(2.) has been based in the city of MAKHARA in KORACHAN since 1216 RM. Its members are ATRAMENTAL SHAPERS whose SPHERE of influence extends PENUMBRISM.

A fundamental tenet in the art of Atramentism within the Korachani empire and other areas of the Inner Sea where Atramental Shaping is common. It is the opposite of the Light Undying of Firmamentism. The associated Minasteria⁽²⁾ is located in the city of Barak, in Laaskha. See Vol IV: Spheres and types of Shaping.

MOLACHARI DESERT: also 'Malachari Desert'. Geo. Expansive desert that dominates the nation of ANUBIA. Once known as the ARVA desert, it was renamed in 375 RM, in honour of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, following the arrival of the KORACHANI EMPIRE in VENTHIR. The desert is largely uninhabited though not without its flora and fauna.

The descendants of a people known as the KHERI continue to roam the deserts, dour nomads of unparalleled survival skills.

MOLACHAR: His. Birth name of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR; corrupted over time into the present form.

MOLDAVITE: Ele. Green glass-like substance believed to be formed under extreme pressures, such as in meteorite impacts. The substance is rare and is valued as a semi-precious stone that is shaped by artisans around ELYDEN.

MOLLAR: Set. Small city in the south east of the tribe of EBURUL in the south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 12,500).

MOLOCH: Set. Coastal city in the far west of THE SURRACH known for its deep enclosed harbour and shipyards. It was originally a KORACHANI colony in c. 2300 RM and, alongside MARACHA, is the area of the Surrach with the most links to Korachan (Pop, c. 37,000).

MOLOCHAN: Lan. Soc. VENTHIRI pronunciation for the name Malichar, commonly used in reference to the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR. MOLOSSUS, the: His. Str. Tower in VAALK; one of few remaining relics of the HARACIANS; a now-dead race that occupied the area now known as VAALK in the Fourth Age. The tower is home of the legendary BAT KING of Vaalk – subject of many Vaalkan legends.

MOLOTH KHAMMOTHUL: Geo. Expansive mountain-chain in the north of SAMMAEA serving as a border between the great KHARKHARADONTID desert in the south and the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes in the north. The Mountains stretch for over 3,000-miles from the SAHODOM Mountains in the west to the nation of ETHISTONITH in the south east. The Mountains are treacherous and riddled with duststone formations, and cave-ins and landslides are all-too common. Aberrant features are also recorded, and many of the more interesting ATRAMENTALLY-CORRUPTED features in Kharkharadontis and the Umbra Sokhar can be found in its shadow.

The mountain-chain is believed to act as a barrier to the worst of the Atramental corruption that is prevalent in the Kharkharadontid desert, and without it, most northern Sammaean territories would be close to uninhabitable.

MOLTU: Sea. Sea to the north east of the SEA OF SIPARIA, overlooking the south western shore of OBLEVIS. It is characterised by the solid sheer stone stacks that dominate its shores, possibly once forming part of the vertical coastline. A few are noted to possess bass carvings, though what detail they once possessed has been eroded by the elements.

MOLUIA: Set. Conurbation in the c south of TAMAR, and one of the major farming communities in the nation (Pop. c. 17,200).

MOLYBDOMANCY: Mys. In many nations, the ritual act of divination from studying the shapes resulting from pouring molten lead into cold water. It was common practice in Iron-age KORACHAN, ALMAGEST and PELASGOS, and remained culturally prevalent following the rise of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, though any religious connotations and symbolism involved were quelled by imperial censors and the ICONOCLASTS. It remained widespread around the Inner Sea, though bucolic practitioners maintained some of its mystical nature, particularly amongst imperial occultives.

Outside the old Korachani states, it remains a common practice in ALAM BETHYL, KOLCHIS, TAHALL and more rural parts of TETHYSIA, where it remains a 'pagan' ritual, often connected to each realms' cosmology and is of spiritual importance.

MOMESH: Mil. Str. Major coastal fortress in the far north west of ROMOREA^(2.), guarding entrance into the Sea of HASAAZ ARAAT. It acts as a port to Romorean naval ships.

MON KETTRA: His. Ntn. Late FIFTH AGE metropolis and, later empire, in what is now the east of KREM, known today as the city of AM ONKRET. The city was a powerful harbour and commanded much of what is today the west of Krem. In c. -720 RM settlers from the fledgling nation of AD encountered the city and its ruthless king, who executed the explorers, who included amongst their ranks a prince from the city of AD PIYAN. When word of his death reached the city, its rulers declared war on Mon Kettra. For decades they fought, besieging satellites of the great Mon Kettra, even as its cavalry moved east, attacking the cities of Ad.

The war lasted until c.-600 RM, ending with the destruction of Ad Piyan and its dependencies, whose survivors were absorbed by Mon Kettra, which continued to grow over the coming centuries, becoming an empire hungry for resources. It spread south, destroying struggling NATHI colonies, surpassing the extent of the ancient ACACINNATHI EMPIRE, subjugating the city of HAMMON from where its armies consolidated and spread farther south and east, taking over the city states of the region with little resistance, crossing the southern-most extent of the MO-ORASSIM Mountains in the spring of -174 RM.

The armies of Mon Kettra were ill-prepared for the jungles they encountered south of the Mo-orassim. They perished to disease, hunger and thirst, and what the natural world did not kill, the armies of KARKAUTH did.

Defeated, the armies of Mon Kettra fled north. It fortified the city of Hammon and its environs against this new foe, and strengthened links between its existing cities, from Poyakwan in the north all the way to the lake-city of Sandoon in the south, creating a trade-route that has cut a line through the vegetation of the land and is still used to this day.

During this time Karkauth had grown into a confident kingdom under the leadership of a line of aggressive kings, and its armies pushed ever outwards. Clashes with Mon Kettra, whose dominion was on the wane, became more common, until in 184 RM, when war broke out. Over the course of two decades Karkauth swept north, taking cities as it went, until it besieged the once-great city of Mon Kettra itself in 202 RM. For over a year Karkauthi armies attacked its walls, finally felling them in the last days of the Autumn of 203 RM, scant days before the armies were to abandon the siege for winter. The city was razed, the soil around it salted so that it could not be resettled, and it was allowed to crumble as a reminder to the foes of Karkauth.

Its domains fragmented after this time, first becoming absorbed by the growing Karkauthi kingdom, but later being abandoned to their own devices, which devolved into a lawless region where anarchy prevailed and entrepreneuring people struggled to make a living. Large fortified farmsteads dominated what had once been Mon Kettra, and, without centralised leadership, they were forced into protecting themselves against thieves and bandits. The region came to be known as KETTARANG and its people became renowned for their tenacity and skill in defending their home-land.

Though their coastal cities had always been the targets of SUORI chorsairs, a new law granting free charters to privateers in the name of QUEEN HETEPHERES in 636 RM saw Kettarang suffer new attacks from VENTHIRI privateers in the following decades.

This sped up the formation of a coalition amongst the Kettarangi people, which helped protect its lands against banditry and pirate raids. Coastal fortresses were built and shipyards constructed where fast ships could be rapidly commissioned. These ships patrolled the coast of Kettarang, guarding coastal settlements from attack, which in turn helped the coalition grow into a republic by 732 RM.

By 1326 RM Kettarang had brought many outlying city-states together under its banner by the champion YANDAR DASHE, who in 1333 RM founded a new city atop the ruins of Mon Kettra, naming it Am Onkret, which remains the capital of Krem to this day.

MONA: Lak. Small lake in THE HARÉSHK, some 75-miles north of the mouth of the river SARA. The lake is around 60-square miles and, alongside the river, serves as a natural border between the kingdoms of PALUS^(1.) and ALAMUT, and the duchies of ILLON and FAULALA, both to the west and east, respectively.

MONACH: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the far north east of KARAKHAS, scant miles from the border with ALLASAN. The fortress guards THE RED ROUTE as well as THE SHADOW MARCH that passes from the area, keeping the area safe from the dangerous valley pass through which the two routes pass.

The fortress is situated along such a red-stoned valley facing the river LISSA, its own walls made from large bricks quarried from beyond the valley, commanding unrivalled views of the north and west.

MONAHIR: Set. Small city in the west of ELAT. Its main industry is the mining of zinc (Pop. c. 16,000).

MONAPIA: Set. City in the south east of AETHIOS (Pop. c. 30,000).

MONASTERY OF APPARITIONS: Rel. Str. Monastery dedicated to the Church of the Nephillim, in the far south east of Kuligala, in the far east of the Carchemishi peninsula, in the east of Sammaea. It has become a hostel to pilgrims who travel to the Phobian Wastes in hopes of getting visions of the Nephillim.

MONASTERY OF THE LEADEN THRONE: Rel. Str. VITELLARY monastery in the north west of LAASKHA, in the northern foothills of the LAASATHEA Mountains.

MONASTERIES OF THOUGHT, the: Phil. Str. Seven famed monasteries in the nation of GNOTH, each of which teaches a different path of FOUR JOURNEYS. The seven monasteries are: ADJURA, AUDIAN, EMANAS, ITEPHUAT, SABIAN, SETHIA, and ZURVAN.

MONASTERIUM OF SCOURGING SOULS: Rel. Str. Monastery in SARAGOS, for those who went on the RITE OF MORTIFICATION whose attempts to free their bodies/minds of corruption failed.

MONASTERY OF THE EMPYREAN: Rel. Str. Monastery in the far south west of PNESSA, close to the border with CHEIRA. It is home to an order of monks dedicated to the Church of the Prophet of the Empyrean.

MONASTERY OF THE FLAMING ROSE: also 'Deretaketh'. Rel. Str.

Monastery in the ARGENT Mountains in the west of TETHYSIA. Dating back to at least c. 1000 RM, the monastery has existed intermittently as a ruin and populated structure throughout its existence. Its most recent period of activity began in 3362 RM with its rediscovery by the mendicant LAANAH, after which it became a base to the ORDER OF THE FLAMING ROSE.

MONASTERY OF HOLDA: Rel. Str. Monastery in the north western hills of the TOLIASOR Mountains in the prefecture of EROSENEA^(1.), in the north east of HOLOLACH^(1.), where the first VARPULIS set up his school in 3021 RM and taught his followers. It was abandoned in 3037 RM after the Varpulis and his followers were killed, though was resettled in 3055 RM and remains populated to this day. The people who live here are strict adherents of the local faith and are amongst the most loyal of the Varpulis' followers (Pop. c. 1,500).

MONASTERY OF LIKATHU: Rel. Str. Monastery in the north east of THE SURRACH in the south western face of the NGHALLEAL Mountains overlooking the PASS OF KURDA. The monks are ascetics who eschew material wealth and spend their days in meditation, looking to the skies and the changing cloud formations.

MONASTERY OF MAPOSH: Rel. Str. Monastery on the island of ANEAZS, off the eastern coast of NOAVATUR. It is inhabited by an order of monks of the UNCHANGING GOD.

MONASTERY OF ST. BAEL: Rel. Str. Cliff-side monastery in the AMARU Mountains, in the south east of Io. The monks who reside here are EXORCISTS who operate across Io and the west of SARASTRO, and follow the doctrines of ST. BAEL, who was himself an exorcist. The monastery dates back to c. 2000 RM, when it was originally occupied by mystics persecuted by KORACHANI-controlled EXARCHS. They were located and eradicated in c. 2080 RM and the monastery was allowed to decay. It was restored and resettled by exorcists in 2692 RM and remains populated by them to this day.

MONASTERY OF ST. MALICHAR: Rel. Str. Monastery in the east of the THALLEI Mountains in the c of the TEMPLAR STATES.

MONASTERY OF VALA: 1. Rel. Str. Monastery located in the northern face of the Shibotha Mountains belonging to monks of the ADHERENTS OF THE REPENTANT, in the south west of BA'AKH. The fortress is ancient, with its roots thought to date back to the THIRD AGE.

It was the eldest known enclave of the Adherents of the Repentant, whose monks were descended from an ancient line of people (the ASADEANS) who settled the region in c. -2000 RM. The Asadeans had disappeared by c. -1250 RM, though by then the monastery had become a fortress, guarding passages across the mountains. Famed for its libraries, it became a hub of knowledge and religious studies.

It was cleansed by KORACHANI ICONOCLASTS^(1.) and was later appropriated by monks and hospitaliers to tend to sick pilgrims undertaking the SHADOW MARCH.

2. Rel. Str. Monastery and asylum in the south west of BA'AKH, where those afflicted by AEPATHY and other ATRAMENTAL DISEASES are sent to convalesce. It forms a major stop along the SHADOW MARCH, and is home to various hospitals and convalescing homes where sick pilgrims can rest before carrying on their March.

Merchants and itinerants travelling through the area have reported angelic-like silhouettes in the skies above the Monastery, particularly during the time of the ADUMBRATION OF KORACHAN. This led to many prominent legends appearing in the surrounding areas, including Ba'akh itself and MHAROKK.

MOND: Set. Fortified settlement in the region of BETAHAL in the north of THE SURRACH, known for its ancient astronomers who left behind large observation platforms on which the present settlement is built. Today it is home to a guild of cartographers who are responsible for most maps of the region (Pop. c. 15,200).

MOND EAYID: His. Str. Ancient stone monument in the north of SURUTUR. It is used by most as marker to indicate the worst of the effects of the region of KOHNOR – venturing further north than this is considered a warning.

MOND SAYON: Mil. Str. Major coastal fortress in the east of IACIO, overlooking the BAY OF ALLATOY.

MONEA: Set. City in the c of CHEIRA. Its main industry is silver mining (Pop. unknown).

MONGFIND: Set. Small fortified city in the west of KOMMEA. It lies along the main trade route that links Kommea with neighbouring LOEGRESS^(1.) and is home to large tax offices and markets, as well as a garrison of its army, which patrols the western border of the nation (Pop. c. 19,000).

MONITOR: 1. see ONOCHIM.

2. Fau. Quadrupedal reptilian creature relatively common to subtropical areas of SAMMAEA, who are most abundant in the wild just south of THE INNER SEA, in regions such as TRAKIA, VENTHIR, and SARASTRO, ranging as far west as THE SURRACH, though they are bred and used as mounts farther afield than that. They are adept predators of the plains, standing around 20 – 25-ft. long. They are sometimes trained as mounts – an act primarily designed to flaunt the wealth and dedication of the rider, as their usefulness as steeds is debated. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MONKS OF THE CROWN: Rel. Org. Secretive monastic order that is said to dwell somewhere in the Worlds' Crown Mountains (also known as the ACHARKHARA). Little is known of them, or even if they are real, given their remote location, but it is said that anyone, regardless of race or creed, who seeks them out and successfully finds them is granted shelter. There they live ascetic lives and practice self-mummification to bring them closer to their deity, ELYDEN.

Few scholars believe the tales though, as the climate in central SAMMAEA, particularly at the supposed elevation, would be inimical to MORTAL life.

MONDL, LORD-MASON: Pol. His. Ancient mason who in -1195 RM built he high-tower of MHAQ in the KOHOD mountains. It was pivotal in defending the region from AUERENI attacks in -1193 RM. He later oversaw the erection of another 3 high-towers, which eventually led to the dawn of the CITADEL MOUNTS. The title LORD-MASON subsequently came in use there, honouring his deeds.

MONNA: Set. Fortified city in the c south of the BARRIER LANDS, to the west of the HOUSHNAM region, just outside of the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of OLTAGRA. It is a major producer of rubies, with a large open pit mine dominating the landscape outside the city (Pop. c. 42,000).

MONOCERA: (10,200-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in OPHAR, along the south western face of the ASOGHAQUA Mountains.

MONOCEROUS: 1. also 'unicorn'. Fau. Ungulate characterised by its single brow horn. They were once common to many wild areas across Llachatul and SAMMAEA where flowing water and tree-cover is common, though they now very rare. Their bodies are resilient to changes wrought by both the Firmament and the Atramenta.

Of particular note are their horns, which are linked to their natural resilience to the Firmament and Atramenta. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

2. also 'the Unicorn'. Ast. Con. Constellation in the SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE. See Vol II: Constellations.

MONOIKA: 1. Geo. Island 10-miles off the coast of the east of PELASGOS.
 Rel. Str. Monastery dedicated to the UNDYING MACHINE on the eponymous island⁽¹⁾.

MONOLITH OF AB AESSENAS: see AB AESSENAS.

MONOLITH OF LYIL: His. Rui. Partial remains of a large crystalline monolith in present-day SUMA'YA, attributed to the FOURTH AGE civilization of THYM. Ba'akhi legend claims that the monolith was shattered during the WAR OF SCOURGING, when the body of a DRAGON was sundered upon it by a champion of ALLAISHADA. Little remains of the structure now, but for its corroded base, discoloured and pitted through age and neglect. SHAPERS coming across it claim its heart is warm from proximity to the FIRMAMENT, though none are known to have pried the secrets of Lyil from their glassy prison.

Shards of crystal are sometimes encountered half-buried in the ground surrounding the remains of the monolith, some of which are observed to emanate faint Firmamental energies, and which are collected by travellers and merchants for sale as curios.

MONOLITH OF ZALBAIGALED: Rui. Arc. Ancient glass monolith in the c south west of BANT. Around 120-ft. high, it was once perfectly smooth and translucent, though time has taken its toll on it, and it is now weathered and stained. It dates back to the late FOURTH AGE, and it is mentioned serapi accounts from the time as having been built as a form of triumphant architecture by KARKADANNI the once lived in the region.

MONORK: Geo. Headland in the north of NÁRTHEL, overlooking the STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL.

MONRA: 1. Geo. Pass between the south of the Cartiga Mountains and the northern Harbida Mountains in the far east of Lyridia, close to the border with southern Ahrishen. The pass forms part of a short traderoute that crosses the Levantine region of south eastern Ahrishen, linking the Lyridian city of Sarytos with the city of Naiska in the Haréshki City-kingdom of Edicule^(1,).

2. Rui. Ruined cave-temple in the far east of LYRIDIA, towards the south of the CARTIGA Mountains. Little is known of the culture responsible for the stone carvings in the cave, though they are commonly attributed to the ancestors of the TROGLODYTES.

MONRITT: Rui. Abandoned PHYRRAN city now located in territories contested between Phyrr and MAENMIST. It became the target of massed bombardments between 3972 – 3974 RM in the early years of the NACRE WAR, by the end of which it had been levelled. In 3977 RM the ruin became the site of a large battle between allied forces under the control of the NACRE LEAGUE and Maenmisti defenders, which ended with the latter forces advancing westward, after which vast lines of trenches were constructed, that remain in use to this day.

MONSTRANCE OF FEALTY: His. Soc. Pol. Obj. Object of great cultural, religious and political significance in the AMMASHI(1.) Peninsula. Its origins are unknown, and it is believed to predate the rise of the Ammashi^(3.) nation by some time, possibly having been created in the FOURTH AGE.

It was described in ancient texts as taking the form of a large chalice held aloft by twin capriform idols, made from the finest materials from across ELYDEN – LYRIDIAN gold, KHAMIDIAN lapis, SURRACHI ivory, AEONAN ebony, and SIMBARAN rubies – and was of such fine craftsmanship as to be considered a divine gift by the MORTAL peoples of the time.

The Monstrance is believed to have been used for ancient religious ceremonies, though was later used by the Ammashi people in rituals that took place in the great city of TAMMANA, where oaths of allegiance and pledges were made, with the act of drinking from the vessel making them sacred and binding in Ammashi law, making it an integral part of its politics and culture. Any religious connotations it may once have had in its original Fourth Age incarnation were lost by the time it was appropriated by the Ammashi. So important was it that it became a prominent symbol in Ammash, and it was incorporated into its flag and the heraldry of its noble families.

The Monstrance was destroyed in 2547 RM by unidentified terrorists during a period of political tension that also killed various members of the government. The act only served to exacerbate the situation and played an important role in the subsequent collapse of the nation and the coming of the dark age known as the Ammashi Struggle, that would last for a millennium. Tales surrounding the fates of various parts of the Monstrance are common across the Ammashi peninsula, and parts of it were indeed retrieved, with some becoming regional artefacts. Some of these were lost or destroyed during the period known Ammashi Struggle, with the whereabouts of only one in particular – part of the central vessel itself – remaining known, in Kaphaar.

It was eventually remade in 3562 RM by hopeful Kaphaari artisans, who tried to replicate the original design as closely as possible (with some original parts reused). With the vessel as its symbol, Kaphaar soon allied itself with TAANAL, and the two sent envoys to other states in the peninsula, hoping to forge an alliance that would render the region safe to travel.

They were eventually successful, and in 3594 RM the AMMASHI TREATY was signed by diplomats from all recognised states of the peninsula in the neutral city of RAMINA. There they vowed aid each other in bringing peace to the region. The reborn Monstrance was used to sanctify the treaty, with representatives each drinking from it and letting their blood in it, with the mixed blood representing their unity. The Monstrance was kept in the city of Ramina, where it became a powerful symbol of freedom, hope and strength and whose people felt deeply responsible for upholding the spirit of the treaty. Some dedicated their lives to the ethos of the Monstrance and the treaty, becoming known as MARHSALLS⁽²⁾.

Through the accord were the allied armies able to rid the peninsula of its marauders and brigands. Safety was returned to the land, and with the immediate threat nullified the nations of the treaty slowly forsook their oaths, and conflict returned to the peninsula.

In Ramina, the Marshalls took it upon themselves to remind the people of the peninsula of the oaths their ancestors made. They now travel the land, acting as missionaries of the spirit of the Treaty, wearing robes emblazoned with the icon of the Monstrance.

MONTAMANDA: Set. Coastal settlement on the south east of the island of CYNCER^(1,) in the south of the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 9,200).

MONTANACH: Pol. Soc. Major PATRICIAN HOUSE, controlling most gold supplies in KORACHAN as well as a controlling interest in the BANK OF KORACHAN. Its PATERFAMILIA is nominally a member of the council of patrician, if not one of THE SEVEN, making this one of a handful of incredibly influential Patrician Houses in Korachan, existing on another level to most others, and richer and more powerful than other nation's governments. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

MONTAR: Geo. Island in the far east of the SEA OF MIROVEA, forming a part of the RATHURU^(1.) archipelago.

MONTHRA: Set. City in the c west of CISNERIA, in the far west of the USSIL Massif (Pop. c. 40,000).

MONTRALLA: Set. Settlement in the north of THE SURRACH, close to the border with EREBETH (Pop. c. 6,000).

MONTREST: Set. Major fortified city in the far south of ALMAGEST, close to the border with SKAROS. It was once known for its truffles, but today it is a major link in the RED ROUTE and is famed for its large markets where exotic wares are bought and sold (Pop. c. 66,000).

MONUMENT OF JUDGEMENT: also 'Ikatal. Int. Rui. An ancient gigantic monument located just north east of the NEHNAXIAN desert within the greater TURCAR desert in the c south west of TETHYSIA. Its features are heavily weathered though a semblance of its original MORTAL form can still be gleaned. The monument towers above the surrounding desert even though it is half swallowed, standing askew. Little is known of its origins, though it is thought to date to the FOURTH AGE, if not earlier.

MONUMENTAL SCRIPT: Lan. Ancient logographic script that has seen a resurgence in VENTHIR at the behest of QUEEN HETEPHEROPOLIS since fully gaining its independence in 3781 RM in a la hieroglyphs. The language was originally used by an ancient FOURTH AGE SPHINX culture but it died out with the effective extinction of their people, though it continued to be used in the court of Queen Hetepheres in an ornamental capacity. Years of subsequent KORACHANI subjugation discouraged their use, though Hetepheres still had her inner chambers decorated with them in secret, until the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR granted Venthir its freedom, when the script was brought back into the daylight, finding its way on monuments and structures across the Kingdom, later spreading to NÁRTHEL. See Vol II: Languages.

MONUMENTS, the: Int. Arc. Geo. Plains in the south of TARTAK named after the monumental termite mounts that cover it. Reaching heights of around 20-ft. the mounds belong to endemic giant termites, with individuals reaching sizes of about 6". The mystical prison of NYPHERA UNCOST is located to the south of the Monuments.

MONYAN: Set. Settlement in CUTH, around 26-miles south of the capital city of ERKALA. It is a major producer of food (Pop. c. 7,000).

MOON: Ast. Elyden has two moons, ARAKHAMÉ, the Blood Moon; and SIELLA, the Ivory Moon.

MOON DESERT, the: see SALITH.

MOON TEMPLE, the: see KAMMAR.

MOONCALF: Leg. Folk tale common in parts of LLACHATUL. Stories usually take on an eerie form and are told by travellers at night to scare each other. The mooncalf is a pale creature with stilt-like legs that wanders in wooded or otherwise dense terrain, remaining in the shadows as it follows lone travellers, taking them back to its home, the Ivory Moon, where they in turn become mooncalves.

It is thought that this is a corrupted retelling of sightings of EMPYREAN SPECTRES. See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

MOONS CRAB: Fau. Fresh-water crab common to the east and south eastern coast of LLACHATUL. Named after its complex rituals, each governed by the motion of the moons. It mates on nights when both moons are new (every 672 days), follows the course of the red moon in its eating habits and gathers in large groups and culls weak members on nights when the white moon is full. Is approximately a foot long and is farmed and/or trapped in many regions, including CUTH, IACIO, RHEA, SURUTUR, TETHYSIA, and THETIS. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MOONS JELLYFISH: Fau. Jellyfish with a white translucent body and a visible red organ, from which its name is derived. They are common in the open seas of the MIROVEAN OCEAN, and can be gigantic in size though are relatively harmless. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MOONSFOLK: Leg. Mor. Diminutive emaciated humanoids rumoured to dwell in the winding caverns beneath the SCABLANDS of the c east of BASSORAH⁽²⁾. Most consider them a legend or myth, but many swear to have seen them – usually fleetingly behind bushes or rocks at night - or otherwise believe in their existence. They are often blamed for disappearances of people and objects in the region.

Of note is the disappearance of the Falkveld homestead in 3882 RM, which remains a popular subject amongst gossipmongers and taverns to this day. No trace of the family was ever found, though the walls and furniture were covered in scratches that looked as though they may have come from small humanoid hands.

MOONSLESS MASS: Rel. Org. Blasphemous rituals that take place in PARTHIS, commonly in rural areas where the law is more malleable. These masses take place on nights when both moons are new and usually take place outside, under the cover of darkness, within forests or secluded places within natural areas. The cultists wear purple robes with black pointed masks, and they exist in direct opposition to the otherwise secular values of Parthis. No particular deity is venerated in these masses, and any deity – living or dead, real of fictitious, benign or malevolent – may be honoured simply to spite those who would have Parthis forsake religion completely.

Little is publicly known about these Moonsless Masses, though it is believed that members from all echelons of Parthisan society are involved, including politicians and notable PATRICIAN HOUSES.

MOONSTONE, the: Sup. Obj. Dre. Large crystalline stone of indeterminate origin and material that was discovered by a group of independent miners in the north of the HENDECARCHY of CYRENIA, in MALAN, in c. 3940 RM. The stone corrupted those who found it before it was even excavated, and they shaped it into a monolith that they came to worship. They soon forsook the beliefs of the Malani people, which led to them becoming persecuted from their home.

They fled across the hinterlands and deep forests of Malan, taking the Moonstone with them on the back of an OGHUR slave. It slowly corrupted them with dark DREAMS, and they came to spread their vile creed amongst small settlements they encountered, giving rise to the MOONSTONE CULTS, which venerate the Moonstone as an inert deity, whose dreams of the collapse of order fuel their heresy.

The origin of the Moonstone is unknown for no scholars have been allowed to study it up close and likewise, it is unknown what substance the stone is made of.

MOONSTONE CULTS: Org. Dre. Heretical cults in MALAN that eschew the cultural traditions of its people and instead venerate an ancient carved monolith that is referred to as the MOONSTONE. Believed to be an object of great MAGICKAL power, the Moonstone grants feeds the DREAMS of those in close proximity to it, giving them eschatological visions of the final death of the LADY AEGIS, and the collapse of Malan.

The cults emerged in c. 3955 RM after the original group that unearthed the Moonstone in CYRENIA was forced to flee persecution. Its movements spread its corruption to various settlements and regions, where their beliefs took root, becoming a blight that Malan struggles to this day to be rid of.

Though only one Moonstone is thought to exist, there are believed to be dozens of individual Moonstone Cults scattered across Malan, largely concentrated to the north east of the HENDECARCHIES, though their influence is slowly spreading south west.

MOPASSA: Sup. Geo. DUSTSTONE mountain in the far south of PARAIYA, serving as part of the border with the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes. To the south of here lies the fabled region that Paraiyan legend refers to as the STARGAZERS.

MORACHAN: 1. Mil. Str. KORACHANI fortress in the far north west of THE SURRACH, built during an ill-fated early KORACHANI colonisation effort there in c. 2220 RM. Little is thought to remain of the place but for the SEEING ENGINE that was erected there to facilitate contact with the HEARTLAND. The fortress was abandoned in c. 2400 RM as the Korachani immigrants left or spread across the area as they mingled with the locals and the fortress has given its name to the region: MARACHA.

2. Set. Settlement in the KORACHANI colony of AMONDOR on the

2. Set. Settlement in the KORACHANI colony of AMONDOR on the northern coast of THE INNER SEA, occupying the southern-most part of the TOLIASOR Mountains (Pop. c. 7,500).

MORACHI: Set. City in the east of PELASGOS, 4-miles west of the coast of the SEA OF SPIRES. It was once a powerful city-state by the name of EKATON before being renamed by KORACHANI governors in c. 500 RM after the settlement outgrew its borders and the old quarter was abandoned.

Today it forms part of the RED ROUTE and is famed for the white marble statue of MALICHAR RISEN, that was blessed by the ARCHPOTENTATE himself in 340 RM during his return to KHADON following his ITINERARY. A large cathedral was later constructed around the monument, and has since become a shrine of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, becoming a basilica in 2262 RM. The city is also home to an insular religious order dedicated to the Archpotentate Malichar, that has roots going back over 36-centuries to c. 400 RM. Little is known of the order, but it does recruit members from eastern Pelasgos (Pop. c. 40,000).

MORACHI, PILLARS OF: Geo. Natural stone pillars in the east of PELASGOS, 50-miles north east of the city of MORACHI.

MORAD: Sec. Small city in the c north of NOAVATUR. Its main industry is iron mining (Pop. c. 14,000).

MORAN: Geo. Ancient and crumbling mountain-range in the c south of TEMUJA, east of the DUIARHI Mountains.

MORARA: Ind. Sup. Set. ALMAGESTI UMBRA extraction facility in the north western territories in the HORSCH. The area is covered in hundreds of siphon engines, which extract raw UMBRA and pipe it south east to Almagest (Pop. c. 2,200).

MORBANNON: Set. City in the north east of GREST^(L) in the island-continent of BROR^(L). It forms part of an industrial region though little is known as to what these industries are (Pop. unknown).

MORDA: Geo. Small island off the north eastern coast of NAARETH.
Originally a reef, it grew as Elyden's seas bean diminishing over the mast millennia.

MORDANA: See. Fortified settlement in the c north east of SARASTRO. It is famed for its assassin school (Pop. c. 5,200).

MORDANT: 1. Oth. Common form of HALFBLOOD, their words as poison as the venom that fills their veins. See Vol II: Anthropeidos..

2. Pol. Set. City and capital in the c of the Hendecarchy of Deraela, in Malan. It straddles the banks of the river Vlara (Pop. c. 390,000).

MORDECAI: Sup. Rnk. Head of the IMMORTALS^(2.) in the TRUE MENISCUS.

An incredibly ancient being, one of the eldest of the Immortals, and therefore, one of the closest living descendants of the DEMIURGE DURUTHILHOTEP. In the THIRD AGE, slayed the dragon Ahzdarcon.

MORDON: Pol. Soc. New PATRICIAN HOUSE that bought the ruin of RODIA in the south west of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS and has resumed manufacturing there. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

MORDOR VIG, LICTOR MAGNUS: (B. 3933) Oth. HALFBLOOD and present head of the ORDER OF LICTORS.

MORDHA: Sea. Shallow waters 85-miles east of mainland AMONDOR, south of the TOLIASOR Mountains.

MORÉHAN ORDER: also 'Iconoclasts'. Pol. Org. One of the major SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, dedicated to eliminating idolatry and paganism both within and without the borders of the empire.

It was formally recognised as an Inquisitorial Order in 498 RM, though its roots date back to the earliest centuries of Korachani expansion into neighbouring lands that brought its armies into contact with various faiths and cultures, which its EXOCRINES abhorred. This led to the emergence of the ICONOCLAST (1.) caste in c. 100 RM. It steadily grew over the subsequent years to become one of the most influential religious groups in the empire, gaining the full backing of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE. Eventually, it grew so powerful that it was able to dictate the fate of foreign religions, deciding whether a heathen deity would face oblivion or live on in corrupted form as an imperial saint.

In c. 430 RM a group of high-ranking iconoclasts splintered from the Church of the Undying Machine after their increasingly fanatical acts of iconoclasm (including condemning reverence of sanctioned saints of the Church of the Undying Machine) earnt the ire of church officials. Over the next decades, they continued their iconoclasm until they were excommunicated in 463 RM, which allowed them to continue in their crusade unmolested, eventually establishing a LANGUE(1) in the city of NOUVAR in VÂRR under the approval of the COUNCIL OF SEVEN, though it eventually relocated to CALDERA in KORACHAN in 2963 RM, to focus its attentions on keeping the empire free of heathen influences.

Since its founding, the Order has scoured the length and breadth of the empire, ridding it of idolatrous cults. Meanwhile, the iconoclasts continue to work outside of imperial borders, spreading word of the imperial creed to heathens while toppling its blasphemous idols. Its actions reached a crux in the middle of the 15th century RM during a tumultuous time now remembered as the ICONOCLAST WARS, when its influence was at its peak and its crusaders at their most numerous, becoming a ubiquitous sight across the empire and its cities. Since then, the Order has worked tirelessly to quell increasing reverence of the so-called GUTTER SAINTS as well as the activities of MYTHOGRAPHERS, whose preservation of often proscribed knowledge and figures is antithetical to the Order's ideals.

The Order is hierarchal in nature, with various ranks and titles, including the infamous Iconoclasts (whose name has become synonymous with the Order itself), VIGILATORS, EXPURGATORS and CENSORS. It also maintains close ties with the EXOCRINES and missionaries of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, as well as the BUREAU OF CENSORS.

The order's emblem is a hammer on top of a circular labyrinth, with the former symbolising the orders' actions in toppling heathen idols, and the latter symbolising the confusion and directionlessness experienced by the followers of heathen deities.

The Order's present Grandmistress is BEHRAAD KHASHAYAR.

MORGUN: Set. Small coastal city in the far north of ELAT (Pop. c. 12,300).

MORI: Set. One of 5 isolated self-sufficient city-states in the south of DURCHAA whose people revere the so-called King in Darkness – an entity believed to dwell in the darkest reaches of the MAW OF DORMORRO. They clash with rival cults, each of which is based in another city-state near the Maw, and has its own beliefs surrounding the Maw (Pop. c. 3,400).

MORIBUND EMPIRE, the: Arr. Soc. Name commonly given to the KORACHANI EMPIRE by novelists and poets around the INNER SEA. The term was particularly common between the 29th and 33rd centuries, when a particular style of epic overindulgent writing was common. The term was most popularised by the writer BLANESCHI WALLIA in c 2910 RM with the release of his epic work, A CORONACH TO ELYDEN.

MORILD: Set. Ancient stone coastal fortress in the south east of PERGOST, in the REHEMAZI peninsula, overlooking the SEA OF DAGGERS. It is now some miles from the coast and a small settlement has appeared at its base (Pop. c. 500).

MORILD STELE, the: His. Obj. Ancient metal stele discovered beneath the MORILD fortress in the far south east of PERGOST. The stele is thought to date back to the early FOURTH AGE, though little else is known on it and the acid-etched runes remain undeciphered.

MORINA: Set. Small city and UMBRA extraction facility in the c north of the nation of DURCHAA. The city is owned and controlled by a single patrician family with ties to the Durchaan monarchy (Pop. c. 17,500).

MORISKER: Pol. Soc. Bus. PATRICIAN HOUSE prevalent the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO whose main business interest is the mining and processing of UMBRA. It is the main controller of the ARGEAN PIPELINE.

MORITAS: Set. City in the c of LOEGRESS⁽¹⁾, along the course of the river MORRINACH. It is a hub of commerce and culture, uniting various disparate regions of Loegress, and it is also recognised as the site of a miracle, where a vision of the TAELLANNIR appeared to a dozen people in c. 3080 RM, decades before her rebirth as an the OTHERWORLDER. The city is now home to a shrine dedicated to the ORDER OF THE TAELLANNIR, and it has become a site of pilgrimage to its people (Pop. c. 45,000).

MORKALA: Mil. Ind. Str. Major fortress in the south east of PHYRR, close to the western border of contested territories with MAENMIST. It is a sprawling complex of individual reinforced concrete bastions linked by subterranean passages beneath which lie the workshops, barracks, armouries and foundries. It is home to the forward command of the Phyrran armies taking part in the NACRE WAR and is protected by hardsuit-clad KALKAN COLOSSI and arrays of artillery that face ever east.

MORLHAR THE ELDER: KORACHANI historian who in 142 RM published the 'COLLECTED HISTORIES', one of the first known encyclopaedias in the FIFTH AGE.

MORNAST: Set. Fortified coastal city in the east of the INTERURBAN STATES (Pop. 43,000).

MOROCHA: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the south west of SEDISIA, overlooking the contested region of ATILIPHO.

MOROI: F. 'strigoi'. Sup. Rnk. Leg. Ancient ATRAMENTSITS who are said to have transcended death, their SPIRITS hollow, yet bound forever to their VESSELS, preventing death, yet denying them full life. The name is thought to be derived from the MALANI city of MOROIA, where the legends originated in the early FIFTH AGE.

Different cultures have their own versions of the moroi, though most of them share a few common traits, including: incredible longevity; mastery of some form of SHAPING, usually Atramentism or specific SPHERES, such as PENUMBRISM; often mishappen or ghoulish bodies; and unnatural means of preserving their strength and life, including UMBRAPHAGY, HEMATOPHAGY, or PSYCHOPHAGY. Such creatures usually conform to the ELLUNUR PARADOX.

MOROIA: Set. City in the north west of the HENDECARCHY of CYRENIA, in MALAN. It has active trade-routes along the GREAT ROAD with BOREA in eastern KASPIA. It is known for the trapping and breaking of BHAHS, which are then sold in large caravans as slaves to Kaspia. It, like most Cyrenian cities, also has a tradition of ATRAMENTISM, though this is more pronounced than in other settlements, where a caste of scholars who devote their lives to the study of the ATRAMENTA have lived since c. 2000 RM. Though initially they only studied the Atramenta to better understand it, some of its members have turned to full PENUMBRISM, learning to manipulate it in search of their knowledge (Pop. c. 68,000).

MOROMARTH: Soc. His. Mor. In the history of MERILLS, an individual said to be afflicted by the collective memory that plagues their kind, but none of the madness and gibbering nature that curses them. If true, this would mean that they might possess the sum knowledge of all merills, ranging from the very dawn of mortal-kind to the present-day.

Stories of Moromarth are common in the north of SAMMAEA, in lands close to the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾ and culturally-linked with KARAKHAS and such tales are generally-accepted as fact even though there is little empirical evidence supporting such claims.

A similar individual appears in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, though it is unknown if this is the same merill, unrelated stories of a similar nature, or one serving as inspiration to another.

MORONI, THE HORSE: Mys. Rel. In TEMUJAN SPIRITUALISM, the TUTELARY SPIRIT of travel, companionship and loyalty. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MOROSIGHI: Geo. Mountain range in the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula in the south west of SAMMAEA, dominating the east of HABOT, where it serves as a partial border with the south west of PHYRR. The southern face of the mountain is known in Habot for its many ancient fossils of gigantic creatures that remain unidentified to this day. Some well-preserved examples may find their way in auction houses from time-to-time, though they remain particularly rare to this day.

MORPHEA: Set. Dre. City-state in the far south east of THE SURRACH. Its ruler is a strange queen, thought to be HALFBLOODED or possibly SCIONborn by those who dare to wonder. She sends 'DREAM hunters' south east into the dream-tainted lands of SOMNIAL to capture NIGHTMARE entities and other ATRAMENTAL phenomena. What she does with these trophies is unknown to all but her closest advisors and many think that the city exists solely so that she may continue claiming such trophies. It is postulated that she may be related someway to the entity responsible for the region of Somnial, and is trying to amass enough dreams and memories to ascend to godhood herself, though those who voice such opinions have been known to disappear.

It is one of the more insular city-states in the Surrach and it trades very little with outsiders (Pop. c. 51.000).

MORR ISAKHANA: Pol. Ser. Capital city of AQUARIIA since the ejection of PARTHISAN occupiers in 3140 RM, before which the capital was ANACHA. (Pop. c. 709,400).

MORRAKH: lit. 'Black Coast'. Sea. Coastal waters, some 150-miles long, south of the FLAMING SEA, in the western-most waters of the SEA OF LETHEA. It is known for the repugnant black ichor that coats the shores. Under the sun's influence it cracks and bleeds a toxic sap, though under normal conditions it is sticky and foul. The water surrounding the coast is thick with the stuff and what life survives there is twisted and wretched as a result.

The ruins of an ancient tower survive, cacked in web-like strands of the stuff, covered in dust and the detritus of ages. Little is known of the place as it has only been observed from a distance.

MORRINACH: Rvr. Major river dominating the valley of MOTTANIA^(1.) in the east of LOEGRESS^(1.). It flows east for 680-miles from sources in the eastern face of the VOULLOR, before meeting the coast at the BAY OF ERMAE^(1.).

MORRUSH: Set. City in the east of JURRAS^(2.), 65-miles south of the capital in SAMARIS, where much of the armies responsible for the defence of the capital are stationed (Pop. c. 34,000).

MORS: Geo. Highland region in the c of ANUBIA. It is characterised by its ominous black rocks, the largest of which form a ridge, running along the region for around 220-miles.

MORSALIA: Geo. Mountains in the north east of MENISCEA, on the headland of ABARHAL (2.). It serves as a border between an Abarhali exclave in the west, and the PARTHISAN colony of IBANNEM (1.) in the MORSICANT: Ind. Set. Lead and limestone quarries in the north of NAARETH, in the southern-face of the SIRDAIRA Mountains (Pop. c. 7,200).

MORTAL PEOPLES: also 'Mortal Tribes'. Myt. His. Mor. The two-andtwenty races given life through the acts of the DEMIURGES in the FIRST AGE, as set down by the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN.

They were born from 'seeds' sown by THE SHAPER, that in time would have germinated into the IMMORTAL^(1.) races. This was not to be, as the hubris of the Demiurges destroyed the perfect realm they had created on the MATERIAL PLANE. This corrupted the seeds, causing them to germinate before their time, giving rise to mortals – imperfect beings whose senses were assaulted by the chaos of what was wrought on Elyden by the Demiurges.

The Shaper punished the Demiurges and tasked them with guiding the newly-born mortals. Each Demiurge was tasked with protecting and leading one of the races, each of which was made up of seven individuals. Some were embraced this new role, seeking to atone for their actions, where others ignored the races, leaving them to their own devices.

Over time the mortals increased in number and span, making contact with one another, establishing trade and alliances, or making war. Those who had been abandoned by the Demiurges suffered, and even those who had the aegis of a Demiurge would eventually wane. Today most mortal peoples are either thought to be extinct or are minorities in a world that has become dominated by https://doi.org/10.1036/j.com/html. Other notable races that persist in large-enough numbers to have a role in Fifth Age include DERUWEIDS, DVERGAI, GIGANRI, KERATIN, LHAUS, MERILLS, PLAGI, ROPOHAII, SHIE.

The other mortal peoples, which are today either extinct or near-extinct, are: AITHAR, CATACHIS⁽²⁾, THE FORGOTTEN, IFIRMIANS, ILLIDRAEN, IRKALLA⁽²⁾, IROTHANI⁽¹⁾, RAREVAS, SEITHIN, SERAPI, VALTHAS, and VAPULIM.

The mortal peoples have mingled and evolved since their creation millennia ago, leading to the rise of other races, including AL AKHI^(1.), ALMAS, ETHERI, LACER, MULLS, OGHURS, SELKIES, SIMEIANS.

The term mortal is also often erroneously used in relation to the creatures that were directly created by the Demiurges, such as AIKLAHS and EELYOUHNS, who are more correctly identified as the ASICTHAIN. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life: Sicthain.

MORTAL PLANE, the: see MATERIAL PLANE, THE.

MORTAL SIN: Rel. Phil. In the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE and the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO, a concept explaining the sin inherent in the mortal peoples. Mortals, specifically humans, are inherently sinful and must work towards attaining redemption from the UNDYING MACHINE, whose absolvance allows their spirit to attain immortality at the time of death, which then transmigrates to the otherworld, leaving the mortal body, full of sin and no-longer needed, on the MATERIAL PLANE, where it rots into nothingness. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MORTAR: lit. 'black forest'. For. Forest in the south of AHRISHEN, reaching into the north west of LYRIDIA, and forming a border between the two. During the early years of what was to be the KORACHANI EMPIRES' tenuous hold of LYRIDIA, the forest was far larger, reaching as far south as the northern face of the PLALEPH Mountains. Deforesting of the area dominated the Korachani empire's hold of LYRIDIA DHAI and by 2119 RM, the forest had retreated north, to its present borders, a fraction of its former size.

The forest is home to the indigenous REXCANIS; a breed of particularly ferocious canine that has since been tamed and exported across THE INNER SEA.

2. Mil. Str. Ancient fortress in the south west of AHRISHEN, overlooking the SEA OF PROPONTIS to the west and the BAY OF ST. JERUSH^(1.) to the south. Despite its age the fortress is used to this day as a look-out post.

MORTAS: Set. Settlement in the c south of JURRAS^(2.), in the north of the INNORADOS Mountains. It is famed for its many gigantic ruined arches that hark back to an ancient city that was much larger than its current incarnation (Pop. c. 8,000).

MORTHA SHUR: m. Pol. His. Per. (B. 3376 – 3434 RM) Eldest of three children born to the then-ruler of PNESSA, KARAN SHUR. Upon Karan Shur's death in 3388 RM Shur's younger brother MITH had him and his younger sister DEGLIA imprisoned in the tower of ENEPH in the far east of Pnessa so that he could claim the throne. There, Mortha and Deglia, maintained a small but loyal following that began working to secure their release, eventually gaining the support of the city of Eneph as well as individuals close to the royal family in IRUT MARKA.

In 3402 RM Mortha and Deglia were freed from the tower of Eneph. In Irut Marka, supporters of their cause showed their colours and attempted a coup, but it was thwarted. Fighting broke out in major cities, devolving into war that lasted till 3409 RM, becoming known as the WAR OF SECESSION. Mortha killed Mith in 3409 RM following an unsuccessful parley, though he was unable to claim the throne. With Mith's only heir still a child, leadership broke down in the capital as allies of the secessionists sowed discord.

A series of military blunders saw the armies of Pnessa falter against Eneph, leading to a ceasefire that ended in the signing of the independence of Eneph and the birth of the nation of Elekhid upon the marriage of Mortha and Deglia in $3409\,$ RM, starting a new dynasty that rules to this day.

MORTUARY CULT, the: Rel. Soc. An organisation within the HIGH- and LOW-EMPIRES that concerns itself with the removal and disposal of corpses. In large cities it is important to dispose of bodies as quickly as possible, lest disease spread, and the Mortuary cult is responsible of such disposals. The cult was created in DEOCHAN in 1143 RM to aid in collection of bodies.

In the KORACHANI EMPIRE, some bodies will be used for military purposes, with others donated to SHAPERS and TECHNARCANISTS for use in their experiments. Since c. 3000 RM, most have been simply repurposed for use in the DROSS industry, though the veneration of SKULLS means that the Mortuary Cult now specialises in the preparation of heads — either for the purposes of embalming, or cleaning in preparation for decoration for placement within FUNERARY TOWERS or family crypts and shrines.

Members of the cult venerate ST. ATHANAS as a patron and most of their religious rituals and rites centre around him over the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR of the UNDYING MACHINE. The importance and widespread influence of the cult are likely the only things stopping the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE from taking action against these near-heretical practices.

MORU: Set. Settlement in the c north west of the tribe of SATAR in the north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 4,500).

MORUL: Rvr. River in the south west of SARASTRO, flowing north, then west for some 450-miles before emptying into the GULF OF DAARKEN. The cities of MORULAURGO and HAGRADEA are perched on its banks.

MORULAURGO: Set. Major fortified city in the west of SARASTRO, along the course of the river MORUL, after which it is named. It was founded in c. -205 RM in what was then SAOSTANA and has remained an influential city in the area ever since, surviving the slow waning of ELYDEN'S seas and various wars.

Today it is the controlling city in the AMERETAT region of western Sarastro, close to southern IO. The city is positioned around 50-miles from the present coast of the DAARKEN GULF, along the course of the river Morul. Pilgrims undertaking THE SHADOW MARCH board massive ferries into BA'AKH from here, sailing down the river and across the sea to the vassal state as part of their travels (Pop. c. 152,000).

MORUR: Rui. Abandoned settlement in the c-south east of THE SURRACH, in the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of HARAT CHLO. Little is left of the settlement other than a grey mound – the remnants of its clay brick structures that were left to rot over 300-years-ago.

MORUSS: Fau. large lumbering herbivore distantly related to horses, they have large forelimbs and backs that slope down to their back legs. They live in temperate regions of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA and are about 10-ft. tall at the shoulder and weigh around 2,400 lbs. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MOSA: Rvr. For. Waterlogged BLUE HORSETAIL 'forest' along the border between the south of the HENDECARCHIES of CYRENIA and the north west of HATON, in the north of MALAN. The region is around 7,500-miles in area and is primal, with very little mortal influence from both this and past ages, with very few ruins compared to the rest of Malan.

MOSAIC UNDULANT: Int. Rui. FOURTH AGE ruin in the north of SKAROS, to the south of the ADAMATI Hills, that lain buried in soil for millennia. The ruin was unearthed by mistake in c. 3210 RM, revealing an expanse of mosaic around a square mile that over the years had warped due to shifting lands and earthquakes over the ensuing years. The mosaics remain largely undamaged and make for a spectacular view to those able to view them.

The exact location has not been widely publicised though it has become a popular destination for those undertaking the GRAND TOUR as well as artists and historians.

MOSASA: Sea. Sea in the east of SAMMAEA, forming a western part of the MIROVEAN OCEAN, dividing the nations of GIBEAH in the north from the east of CHEIRA in the south. The sea is fertile and full of life, rich with sediment from the rivers DENGUEA and CACEPHA. It is populated by a caste of CHEIRAN people who subsist off the water and live on giant catamarans that host family groups.

The regions surrounding the sea were the source of the $\underline{\text{UALLA}}$ $\underline{\text{MIGHAN}}$ culture from which the empire of $\underline{\text{WAELMIGH}}^{(2)}$ eventually appeared in c. 1900 RM.

MOSATOTH: Set. Major city in the c east of THETIS (Pop. c. 318,000).

MOSQUITO COAST, the: Geo. Colloquial name for the shoreline of the delta of the river NEPHILA in the east of the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT. It is so named for the insects, amongst them mosquitos and midges, that infest the region almost year-round.

MOSSAN, the: Gco. Region in the far south east of SAUA. It's noted for its picturesque lichen-covered boulders, and is largely uninhabited by humans.

MOST HUMBLE ORDER OF KETESH, the: Mil. Org. Voluntary organisation based in KETESH⁽²⁾, whose members are drawn from PATRICIAN HOUSES and FREEMAN households across the INNER SEA. Members are typically expected to serve for five years in a variety of different positions of public service, including roles as diverse as civil servants, police, and military.

After five years members are granted citizenship and are given the choice of retiring with a modest stipend in compensation for their work, or continuing their work within the Order. Retired members of the order are known as COMPEERS OF KETESH and the term has positive connotations within Ketesh as well as neighbouring nations, such as VAALK and LIDEA, who have contributed many members over the years.

MOSTOSI: Mil. Str. Major fort in the south west of ROMOREA^(2.), overlooking the border with the BARRIER LANDS.

MOSTUE: Dem. 'Mostuan'. Ntn. Nation in the south east of BROR(1.). It is the location of the termination of the river AUGUE, which waters its vast cotton fields. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

MOTANT: Set. Major city in the west of BANT, in the east of SAMMAEA. It is home to a large portion of the nation's military, and is where new recruits are trained before being sent north to defend against the AMPHISCARAN threat (Pop. c. 60,000).

MOTANTA: His. Ntn. Early FIFTH AGE state that rose in c. -300 RM from various peoples that survived the earlier destruction of the city of AD PIYAN and the eventual downfall of the people of AD. The state occupied lands surrounding the remnants of the wall of DAR CINNRA, beyond the great MO-ORASSIM mountains, and farther south around the BRAGGAY lagoons. By c. -200 RM the disparate people of the above regions had coalesced into Motanta, which dominated lands around the lagoons of Braggay, as far north as the fortress of HATADA, which survives to this day002E.

Motanta eventually fell to the predations of KARKAUTH, which ended in 52 RM, when its final city, PASABAY, was subjugated by Karkauth.

MOTH: Set. Settlement in the east of IO, just north of the AMARU Mountains. The settlement is a centre of granite production, which is used in architecture throughout the region (Pop. c. 9,000).

MOTHER OF AHKA: see AMALTHEA.

MOTHER AND FATHER OF CREATION, the: Int. Leg. Myt. Ancient prophecy foretold by S'HITH (one of twin aspects of the DEMIURGE DOPELLANICH) that came about following the punishment of the Demiurges. in which two SCIONS born without mothers would unite to shepherd creation to its fated terminus. The prophecy gained a foothold in various mortal tribes despite the admonishment of their leaders, and when the scions AZER^(2.) and HAVELRA, were born through divine will to the Demiurges AVRAHAM and DURUTHILHOTEP respectively, the prophecy had become well known in various mortal lands, where it gained notoriety.

The two grew up under conflicting stimuli. One the one hand they were persecuted throughout their lives by adherents of the prophecy who were intent on bringing them together; but on the other both had been raised by their fathers into rejecting the prophecy as mortal folly. Avraham, in particular was intent on swaying Azer against the prophecy, indoctrinating him instead in the mystic tale surrounding his second birth in mortal form from the AZORA (the PILLAR OF FLAME). In time they would forsake these prophecies and each went to great lengths to prevent the prophecy from being fulfilled.

They met by chance (some would say fate) under the TRUE MENISCUS following the death of Avraham and, fed by centuries of indoctrination and conflict, Azer attacked Havelra, killing her as his father's poison cursed through his thoughts.

Azer was consumed by conflicting emotions that over decades festered into a deeply-rooted grief. He went to Duruthilhotep to confess what happened, prostrating himself before the Demiurge, asking for absolution. Duruthilhotep refused him. Azer turned violent, shouting at the Demiurge to forgive him, but he urged him to leave before he subdued him. Azer began hitting him, begged him to kill him. Duruthilhotep cast him down with a Firmamental blast and left him, alone and broken. Azer took his own life, initiating a great war between various human and ifirmian tribes that would later be remembered as the WAR OF THE SHATTERED PROPHECY, in which the ifirmians would be almost wiped out. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

MOTHER OF SIN, the: Myt. His. In the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, a common epithet by which the DEMIURGE SYBARIS⁽¹⁾ was once known.

MOTHER WOMB: Soc. Lan. Name for the sky in PARAIYA and other lands in the east of SAMMAEA.

MOTHER'S AXIOM, the: Rel. Vol. Religious doctrine of the SECTS OF SYNCHTHONITH, which is the only known religion of the people of CHTHYRID. Every city has its own variation of the Axiom, which is why the religion's KORACHANI name is referred to as the Sects of Synchthonith. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

MOTHER'S WAY TEMPLES: Rui. Ancient temple located in the far south east of CHEIRA, beneath the lighthouse of AQARA PHAT. The temples were home to a small mystery cult. Little is known of the cult or its members, but it was documented as being in use as recently as c. 3750 RM.

MOTHETH: Geo. Dry plains in the c north east of MOAH.

MOTO: Mil. Str. Major fort in the east of THE SURRACH, close to the border with KHALHAT.

MOTORRIS: Ind. Set. Mining settlement in the region of KOROSH in the c of JURRAS^(2.). The region is known for its iron deposits (Pop. c. 9,000).

MOTRILL: Pol. Set. Capital city of CEGANE. It is coastal and overlooks the SEA OF ADAMASTOR. It forms a part of the ISHMMARRAN TRAIL and caters to the many merchants and travellers that cross through it (Pop. c. 90,000).

MOTTANIA: 1. Geo. Region in the c east of LOEGRESS⁽¹⁾. It is characterised by a wide valley basin that was once heavily wooded and various coastal cliffs and rocky bluffs to the north and south. Today it is filled with fertile terraced fields that are separated by border trees and thick bushes. The river MORRINACH flows east through the valley into the SEA OF AKRY. Much of the valley was submerged beneath the waters of the BAY OF ERMAE⁽¹⁾ as recently as 3300 RM, though the lowering of sea levels in the ensuing centuries was the valley grow, with much of the winding bay becoming a delta to the river Morrinach. The wetlands of AIMEND are the last remnant of the valley's old coastline.

2. Dem. 'Mottanish'. His. Ntn. Historical kingdom in what is now the c east of LOEGRESS⁽¹⁾. It emerged in c. 2500 RM following the collapse of PRAETTANIA about 5-decades earlier and was the last region to fall to the armies of TORRVAN in his conquest of the descendant states of Praettania, following the two-year SIEGE OF CAER SIDI.

During the time of Torrvan's conquest it was ruled by the tyrannical king FAEGRIN of Mornellon, who terrorized neighbouring regions. Faelin was known for his fleet of warships, which harassed coastal settlements across the BAY OF SIDI and the west of the SEA OF AKRY. See Vol III: Extinct Nations.

MOUADDIN: Set. Settlement in the far east of MHAROKK, in the marshes of ILASIMA. It is known for its long history of training hippopotami as mounts (Pop. c. 7,000).

MOUNT OF GOLDEN DOMES, the: see DUN KHARR.

MOUNT STYGIA, the: Geo. A solitary wretched peak in the west of KHARKHARADONTIS, to the west of the FORGOTTEN DOMAINS, where, in Myth, the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL smote his sister TALANTEHUT, breaking her body.

MOUNT ZIGGURAT: Rui. Grey ziggurat in the far north of KHARKHARADONTIS, at the northern edge of the GREAT SADNESS, close to the border with the UMBRA SOKHAR. It is large, around 380-ft. to a side, and 80-ft. high, though is greatly weathered today, half-buried in the duststone sands of the region.

It is thought to have been constructed by plagi following their abandonment by the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL, where they turned to the worship of a different, unknown, divinity.

MOUNTAINS OF DEMM: see DEMM.

MOUNTEBANK: Pol. Rnk. Diplomats of METHUMN, who are known for their individualism and roguish characters.

They originated under the reign of the VODARCHS in c. 3080 RM and remain an important part of the Methumni politics to this day, existing outside of the corrupt structure of the oligarchs that rule the nation today.

MOURNOS: (18,640-ft) Geo. Peak in the north of PELASGOS, in the c east of the CALDERAN Mountains.

MOUTH OF THE GOD WHO SPEAKS, the: Rel. Rnk. In RAONGEN⁽²⁾, the mortal vessel of the deity known as the GOD WHO SPEAKS that is kept in the city of Iricora in the c of Raongen. The vessel is chosen roughly once a generation from amongst the most loyal of followers of the deity. Most candidates are SHAPERS, though not necessarily trained, showing a proclivity for ONEIROMANCY and TELEPATHY; or individuals who have experienced verified visions from the ONE WHO SPEAKS, and they are rounded up from across the kingdom every 25-years. Some settlements or regions spend a great deal of time and money in preparing people to increase their chances of being chosen, and to be chosen is considered an auspicious sign, bringing wealth and fame to the settlement.

An individual is selected from these candidates, often against their will, and is prepared for the ritual that will eventually see them interred within a technarcane engine that forges an irrevocable link with the God Who Speaks, after which they become known as the Mouth of the God Who speaks. The process renders the Mouth in a vegetative state, and they are incapable of mundane communication or movement. The Mouth is only ever distantly aware of the present and lives in a trance, surrounded by the sum totality of knowledge and memories of the God Who Speaks, which causes their minds to collapse with the burden of what they now know.

Telepaths and oneiromancers sift through their thoughts looking for fragments and memories that might be useful. This process is painful, and the Mouth lives in agony until its body withers and expires, causing the search for a new Mouth to replace it.

Most people in Raongen are oblivious to this process and the pain it causes the Mouth, knowing only that there is a Mouth that acts as a vessel to the thoughts of the God Who Speaks. However, it is only through the existence of this chosen one that the people of Raongen are able to have visions and DREAMS of their god. Perhaps they are cries of help from the chosen one, or clues to learn more about the world.

Outsiders doubt the need for this antiquated tradition, but the people of Raongen will not risk losing their link to the God Who Speaks by abolishing the tradition, so it continues.

The origins of this custom are unknown to outsiders, though it has been a part of Raongeni culture for millennia, likely dating back to four thousand years after the first recorded visions attributed to the God Who Speaks were recorded in c. -500 RM.

MOUTH-KING, the: (B. 2103 – D. 2199 RM) Per. Pol. His. Historic king of RAONGEN^(2.) who is recognised as being the only king to also be elevated to the position of MOUTH OF THE GOD WHO SPEAKS. He was a powerful SHAPER who was able to communicate with his chosen proxies TELEPATHICALLY. He became king in 2129 RM, inheriting the throne from his father, and became Mouth of the God Who Speaks in 2131 RM, serving in dual roles until his death in 2199 RM – the oldest and longest-serving Mouth on record.

MOUTH OF TORMENT, the: Geo. Vertical cavern in the permafrost of northern ARERAQTH.

MOUTH OF THE ABYSS: Geo. Large cavern complex in the c south west of VÂRR, in the east of the ADALLA Mountains. The caverns are known

- to link to the \underline{PRISON} CARCERI, and are ignored by locals, who fear the $\underline{ROPOHAII}$ that are rumoured to emerge from the depths.
- MOUTRAT: Set. City in the c of MHAROKK. It was built atop the ruin of an ancient metropolis in c 2900 RM, with subterranean crypts converted into dwellings due to their cool air (Pop. c. 29,800).
- MOYAL: Set. Small city in the east of the emirate of UKOLIST in the east of LIMOTH^(I.) along the course of the river NAHRAS. Its people cultivate various spices that are exported across EASTERN LLACHATUL (Pop. c. 13,800).
- M'TEKEH: see SILKEN FORTRESS, THE.
- MT. ABARRA: (15,300-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the BALAUR Mountains in the c of PARTHIS. It is known for its SHADOWISPS, most of which disperse harmlessly before reaching settled lands.
- MT. AESHMESAREPH: (18,080-ft.) Geo. Major volcano in GNOTH, between the eastern-most reaches of the VAGNOSTAN Mountains and the west of the SOLUN HIGHLANDS. It is active, and its last major eruption was in 3746 RM. Lands to the south are a major source of sulphur in Gnoth, and there are extensive sulphur mines in the region of LEVIAN.
- MT. AKRASIA: (11,070-ft.) Geo. Volcano on the western-face of the PSAMMOL Mountains in the c west of THE SURRACH. It is quite active, known to erupt once every few decades at least, though (ill-tempered).
- MT. ALKAEG: (7,220-ft.) Geo. Young rugged mountain peak in the far north of the HENDECARCHY of CYRENIA in MALAN, forming a part of the ALCAAN Mountains close to the border with the UNCLAIMED LANDS, in the south east of KASPIA.
- MT. AMARU: (11,100-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of the AMARU Mountains in the south east of IO.
- MT. ARANON: (11,240) Geo. Highest peak in the OZZARUN Mountains, in the c east of KAZZAR⁽²⁾.
- MT. ARCANA: (10,445-ft.) Geo. Dormant volcano in the north western face of the ARCANTHEA Mountains.
- MT. ASHA: Geo. Highest peak of the WORKNAH Mountains.
- MT. ASSARAK: (12,750-ft.) Geo. Peak in the MALAUR range in the north of the BALAUR^(1.) Mountains in c PARTHIS.
- MT. ATARA: (14,800-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the SIPYLANA Mountains in the c of PARTHIS.
- MT. ATHANOR: (12,620-ft.) Geo. Sulphurous volcano in the north of GNOTH, just south of the northern POLAR CIRCLE, in the south west of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains.
- MT. BAAT: (17,100-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of KOROR Mountains, along the border between TARATI^(1.), SARASTRO and VENTHIR.
- MT. BOTHYEL: (21,040-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the north eastern-most reaches of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains in the west of ALAM BETHYL. It is visited by many monks of the FIERY HAND as part of their self-enlightenment, where they use their esoteric skills to stay alive as they ascend the glaciers and ice-packs to reach the summit of the peak.
- MT. BRANDOS: (12,300-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the south of the EHRANDEAN Massif.
- MT. CANDAS: (15,750-ft.) Geo. Peak GROWING MOUNTAINS in the c north of MULCIBER, in the far north of the tribal territories of KANAATI. The peak is considered a holy mountain and is tended to by shamen who worship the sky above it as the origin of the OTHERWORLDER NEPHTHALONT.
- MT. CARIA: see ANAHER.
- MT. CHANDA: (14,900-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the northern EHRANDEAN Massif.
- MT. CHESED: (12,800-ft.) Geo. Active volcano in the north east of GNOTH, in the southern-face of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains. Its last major eruption was in 2527 RM and led to the creation of the ash-fields of NUUTH, over 100-miles to the south. The dominance of the FIR. in the area surrounding Mt. Chesed has led to gravity-defying lava flows, the remnants of which pepper the area surrounding the volcanic cone.
- MT. DAALA: (13,800-ft.) Geo. Peak in the c of PARTHIS, north west of the ALBITIA Mountain-range.

- MT. DRAR: Geo. One of 3 volcanoes in the south east of the THISATHON Mountains. The volcano, alongside its companions, the MATAIAR and SOIAR, erupted in 2759 RM, devastating the empire of SELAHIM.
- MT. EKALSCA: (12,920-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the EKALSCA Mountain.
 MT. ELDRAA: (12,130-ft.) Geo. Dormant volcano in the northern face of the ARCANTHEA Mountains.
- MT. ENDR: (16,100-ft.) Geo. Volcano in the south west of CYHLAGHARR, in the northern reaches of the NGHALLEAL Mountains. The volcano's last recorded eruption was in 2399 RM, with lava flows reaching over 1-mile north east. It has been largely dormant since then, though it is not uncommon to see low rumblings and steam rising from its low peaks as far as 60-miles to the east.
- MT. FOLAYNAR: (11,060-ft.) Geo. Active volcano in the far north east of the IAPEGRAN Massif in the north of THE VORANDINE.
- MT. GAABIA: (14,950-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of the ARCANTHEA Mountains.
- MT. GLADHA: (14,800-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the east of the AMRAOT Massif.
- MT. GULLAUR: (13,800-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the KANDIA Mountains in the north east of PARTHIS.
- MT. GUMUL: (21,000-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of the ARGENT Mountains along the border between the south of TZALLRACH and the west of TURCAR.
- MT. HARIOD: (10,500-ft.) Geo. Peak in the north of the UTHAANI Mountains, in the north west of the island of IRUGNA.
- $\underline{MT.\ HOLOA}$: (9.100-ft) Geo. Highest peak $\underline{RUALASOR}$ Mountain in the prefecture of $\underline{TERECHANT}^{(L)}$ in eastern $\underline{HOLOLACH}^{(L)}$.
- $\underline{MT.ISPHAN}$: (9,000-ft.) Geo. Peak in the c of \underline{GNOTH} , along the course of the mountain of the same name.
- MT. KARAN: (8,300-ft.) Geo. Peak in the SOUBA mountains in the north west of PARAIYA.
- MT. KARATU: (11,300-ft.) Geo. Peak in the ARATHAMMOS Highlands in the west of the PARTHISAN colony of EZHIRAYA (2.).
- MT. KELAT: (14,045-ft.) Geo. Peak in the GAEFANG Mountains in the east of ALMAGEST.
- MT. KEPHALA: (11,200-ft.) Geo. Volcano in the south west of ARKOS^(1.), in the west of the AMROAT Massif.
- MT. KLAUVAKA: (22,600-ft.) Geo. Volcano in the ACHARKHARAN Mountains, in the south east of the HOGGOTHA ISZ. It is famed for having erupted in c. 1180 RM, leading to great destruction in the surrounding region, now known as the MT. KLAUVAKAN CALAMITY. The explosion, thought now to be the most powerful one in all of the FIFTH AGE, destroyed a large portion of the Acharkharan Mountain, causing landslides and great destruction. Today a huge crater can still be seen gouged through the south eastern face of the mountain.
- MT. KLAUVAKAN CALAMITY, the: also '20-month winter'. Int. His. Geologic volcanic event that took place in c. 1180 RM with the eruption of MT. KLAUVAKA in the ACHARKHARAN Mountains. This eruption of Mt. Klauvaka is believed to be the most powerful explosion witnessed in the FIFTH AGE and possibly all Ages.
- So powerful was the eruption that a large portion of the mountain was dislodged, falling down onto the south east of the Hoggotha Isz in a monolithic landslide that buried tens of thousands of square miles, dispersing many more MORTAL peoples (largely from what are now AKANTHRA, western KHAR NADUL, northern ELALLIA, and north western ZAKRON, amongst others), and killing unnumbered animals and trees. The ash plume released from the eruption darkened the skies of Kharkharadontis for weeks, and the effects could be felt across all of ELYDEN, with various first-hand accounts of the time noting the 'weakening of the sun' and the 'grey pall' that had been cast upon the sky. In the INNER SEA REGION, the event was so notable that it became known as the '20-Month Winter'.
- The full aftereffects of the eruption remain unknown but various events that occurred in the $12^{\rm th}$ century are now thought to be as a direct (or indirect) result of the eruption. These include the failure of crops in dozens of nations, leading to famine and disease sweeping across the land;

the subsequent Kharkharadontid Plague, which swept across central Sammaea and beyond throughout the 12th century, killing hundreds of thousands; increases in cases of rickets as children grew up in twilight conditions where the sun was not directly seen for over a year; widespread cases of AEPATHY as Shadowisps released in the eruption travelled across Elyden on prevailing winds, bringing sickness to distant lands that might not have been prepared for it; and the displacement of entire cultures, such as the Sherri people who were forced south by the eruption, into what is now Simbara (many others are believed to have been destroyed entirely without having been discovered or catalogued by us); amongst other events.

MT. KU'KU NAL: (12,130-ft.) Geo. Peak in the east of the SHIBOTHA Mountain. It is home to the HALL OF CHAMPIONS, an ancient temple where prospects wishing to become wrestlers in the KU'KU NAL WRESTLING tradition must travel before they can begin their training.

MT. LIRILL: (16,783-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of the AAORA Mountains in the c of AZAZEM.

MT. LITANI: (12,810-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the LITANI Mountains.

MT. LOGON: (13,300-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of the LOGON Mountains in the c west of GNOTH.

MT. MALEHOTHEA: (18,120-ft.) Geo. One of the largest, most active volcanoes in ELYDEN, in the contested nation of AHKA. Situated at the south eastern face of the TOLIASOR Mountains, this monolithic volcano dominates the western skyline as seen as far as the STRAIT OF SKAROS. Its last major reported eruption was in c. 3200 RM. The tremor was felt as far away as NÁRTHEL and VENTHIR and the plume of smoke and ash blackened the skies for months, unleashing river of black lava that stretched over 60-miles north east.

The immediate surroundings of the peak are dangerous; with toxic gasses lying heavily on the land, sulphur fields, unstable terrain that is prone to erupting without provocation, and the threat of earthquakes ever-present.

MT. MATAIAR: Geo. One of 3 volcanoes in the south east of the THISATHON Mountains. The volcano, alongside its companions, the DRAR and SOIAR, erupted in 2759 RM, devastating the empire of SELAHIM.

 $\underline{MT.\ MITHRAR}$: (14,900) Peak in the $\underline{METUN\ KOR}$ Mountains in the far north of \underline{SABIA} .

 $\underline{MT.\ MORA}$: (18,750-ft) $\mathit{Gco.\ }$ Highest peak in $\underline{KORACHAN}$, located in the north of the \underline{AKAGHA} Mountains.

MT. NAGAG: (11,200-ft.) Geo. Peak in the c of the mainland PANTHEON ISLES.

MT. OROANA: (14,400-ft.) Geo. Volcano in the south of the HAAGEN Mountain along the south western border between SARASTRO and

MT. OROROTH: (9,180-ft.) Geo. Active volcano in the HAIMOTH region in the c of KARAKHAS. The soils of its eastern face are renowned for their fertility and many farms are found there. The volcano's last major eruption was in c. 2000 RM, where an expansive plume of ash and pumice travelled north, settling as far as southern VAALK, burying some settlements at the volcanos base.

The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

MT. PELLING: (8,025-ft.) Rel. Mtn. Mountain the in c south of CUTH, in the HAMMINGHENG Highlands. It is considered a holy mountain by those who follow the CULT OF NERGAAL, and it is forbidden for the laity to step foot upon it. It is said to be covered in the ruins of many ancient temples dedicated to the DEMIURGE NERGAAL and his SCIONS, which have lured many opportunists and explorers to their doom. Priests of the Cult claim that the temples are gateways that lead to deep catacombs and where ancient mortals once lived to hide from the harsh sun.

MT. PLESIA: (12,800-ft.) Geo. Extinct volcano in southern ARKOS^(1.), in the southern-face of the AMROAT Massif.

MT. RANNOS: Geo. Highest peak of UEFIR Highlands.

MT. ROTH: (16,093-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in AZAZEM, to the north, along the CHACTHORNYS Mountains.

MT. RYKKA: (12,800-ft.) Geo. Highest peak, and active volcano, in the c of the RYKK Mountains, in the c north west of PORPHYR.

 $\underline{MT. SILNARA}$: (11,800-ft.) Geo. Solitary peak in the c north east of $VALBAR^{(2)}$.

MT. SCEPSIS: (17,140-ft.) Geo. Peak in the GAEFANG Mountains in c of ALMAGEST.

MT. SEPPHIRA: (22,250-ft.) Geo. Peak in the SOLUN HIGHLANDS, in the north of GNOTH.

MT. SICHAAL: (14,210-ft.) Geo. Peak long the midspan of the SICHAAL Mountain range, along the border between VAALK and MHAROKK.

MT. SKALA: (8,400-ft.) Geo. Extinct volcano in the c north west of $\underline{ARKOS}^{(1)}$, in the far-northern reaches of the \underline{AMRAOT} Massif.

MT. SKAR: (12,631-ft.) Geo. Peak in the SKAR Mountains in the north east of SKAROS.

MT. SOIAR: Geo. One of 3 volcanoes in the south east of the THISATHON Mountains. The volcano, alongside its companions, the DRAR and MATAIAR, erupted in 2759 RM, devastating the empire of SELAHIM.

MT SUDGRA: (17,150-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the east of LYRIDIA, located in the midspan of the CARTIGA Mountains.

MT. SUNDA: (16,200-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of the HEBAT Mountains in the c south of TZALLRACH.

MT. TAABAR: (16,400-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of the DAURAENT Mountains in the south west of the MALANI HENDECARCHY of ATALLUA. It is celebrated within the FOREST KINGDOM as being the home to one of ELYDEN'S oldest standing temples – the OBSERVATORY OF SANKAROS. It is believed by many that the temple was once used by the ancient DEMIURGES as a place to convene.

MT. TAMURIM: (9,750) solitary mountain in the c of AYAD, to the north of the ABASLA plains.

MT. TEHHESA: (14,220) Geo. Dormant volcano in the SHAROOK Highlands in the west of ZHARIAH⁽²⁾. Its last recorded eruption was in 2930 RM and the ash cloud was observed from as far away as Abacardat.

 $\underline{MT. TEPE}$: Geo. Highest peak of the $\underline{CARCAENT}$ Mountains, situated in the north of the chain.

MT. TORET: (14,380) Geo. Highest peak of the JAELA Mountains, in far north western VENTHIR.

MT. TZURIA: (7,250-ft.) Geo. Major volcanic plug and highest point of the DYLPHIRA Mountains in the west of NAARETH.

MT. USSIL: (12,900-ft.) Geo. Highest peak in the c north of CISNERIA, forming an eastern extension of the BLACK MOUNTAINS. its highest point is Mt. Ussil, which is 12,900-ft. high

MT. VALUR: (10,050-ft). Geo. Volcano in the south east of the tribe of LEGEO in the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. The volcano is active, though eruptions are small and not thought to be very dangerous.

MT. VARUNA: (18,250-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of the VAGNOSTAN Mountains in the north of GNOTH. In was an obsession of ancient Gnothi philosophers.

MT. VOGHRANT: (16,350-ft) Geo. Highest peak in the MULL CITY-STATES, along the border with ATARAXIA, on the spine of the TOLIASOR Mountain range.

MT. VOLATA: (18,960-ft) Geo. Highest peak in HOLOLACH^(1.), in the far east of the prefecture of ALITENEA, along the spine of the TOLIASOR Mountain chain.

MT. VRAMATHIS: (16,800-ft.) Geo. Volcano in the west of AHKA, forming the western-most reaches of the TOLIASOR Mountains. The volcano is active, and the northern-slopes of the surrounding Mountains are well-known for their fertile soils.

MU: f. Myr. His. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, a SCION of the Demiurge NERGAAL, commonly, associated with the fly. Etymologically, Mu is the root of many languages' words for fly (such as KORACHANI mjut), though few are likely aware of the divine roots of the word.

She...* See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

MUAHHAR, the: Pol. Org. The ruling regime in KHAR NADUL since the revolution of 3927 RM that ousted the royal family. It is ruled by a plutocratic council made up of many of the families that were responsible for the revolution that saw the royal dynasty overthrown.

The government is a police state that has severely limited the freedoms of its people, though it is responsible for curtailing the spending and excesses of the old monarchy, putting money that would have been wasted into public projects to increase productivity and, in some respects, quality of life. This includes sanitation and sewage, which were minimal prior to rise of the overthrowing of the monarchy.

MUBASI: Set. Small city in the c south of TZALLRACH, along the course of the river BOSI.

MUEHATATHARIID: Rvr. Major river dominating the c north and c north east of NOAVATUR, flowing east for over 1,075-miles from sources in the UASHADITH and the IQUAHAITH Mountains before emptying in the SAURIAR shallows.

MUEZZIN: Rvr. Rnk. In the religion of NEPHTHALONT, one who calls people to prayer, twice daily.

MUFARISH: Set. Small city in the east of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT. It was founded by the descendants of bandits centuries ago and has worked hard to shake off the stigma of its roots (Pop. c. 13,000).

MUGGO: Set. Slum city in the arid plains of c SABAEA. The city was founded by disparate refugees fleeing the rapid desertification of the RAELLA plains over the last decades, and it is characterised by rapid changes in regime as various gangs vie for control of the city, which is not recognised as an entity by the government of Sabaea.

Its main industry if goat rearing and its goat $\underline{\text{CHEESE}}$ finds its way in merchant caravans across Sabaea (Pop. c. 17,200).

MUGHARRIB: Rel. Rnk. 'ministers' of the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO who are plucked from their homes or the ranks of SECTARIANS at a young age to begin their religious instructions as novitiates. This period typically ends after seven years with an ancient ceremony revived by the Reformed Church, that ends with a symbolic marriage to the UNDYING MACHINE, which sees the novitiates elevated to the rank of mugharribs.

Once this rank is reached, the mugharribs can seek out further training to specialise in a particular area, or remain as simple mugharribs, who fulfil a role similar to that of the sectarians of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, though they are considered to be ordained.

MUHADDAK: also 'Giant velvet worm'. Fau. Large ABERRATIONS native to the scrub and sparse forests in the north east of WESTERN LLACHATUL.

They are around 30-ft. long, with a velvety-like appearance, though their bodies are somewhat amorphous, capable of stretching to twice that amount or contracting to half the amount of needed. They have around a dozen pairs of legs each, though the exact numbers vary from individual to individual. Their faces are featureless when relaxed, though have two fleshy proboscis-like appendages from which they spray a caustic resinous substance that hardens on contact with air, paralysing their prey, allowing them to eat them, which they do by revealing a cavernous needle-lined mouth that allows them to swallow their prey whole.

They live underground, squeezing into tight hollows where their relatively large prey, which includes small to medium therops up to around the size of ponies, cannot follow them. They are as likely to be active at night as during the day and have no favoured prey, attacking any creatures that are the right size. They have very slow metabolisms and can gorge themselves and append weeks if not months in a dormant state. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MUHADDIS: Geo. Series of overgrown sinkholes covering some 200-square-miles in the north of THE SURRACH, within the forest of HISPIDIA. Many of the sinkholes have caverns that lead into the limestone of the region, some of which are flooded and home to interesting fauna that never see the light of day.

MUHUPUR: Geo. Mountain in the c west of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, forming an extension of the GROWING MOUNTAINS in the west. To its west are the UNTANA plateau and the ILLIROR plains.

MULAD: also 'Plateau of Mulad. Geo. Level table plateau in the far north east of ALAM BETHYL, between the SHEB ALAM Mountains in the west and the BAND^(1.) Mountains in the east. Due to its latitude most of the area is covered in permafrost and it largely unclaimed by mortals, though there are some half-buried ruins thought to date back to the FOURTH AGE, which are largely unexplored.

MULCIBER: Dem. 'Mulcibian'. 1. Ntn. Once a powerful nation built atop the ruin of the earlier nation of ALLUCITA that was itself based around the FREESTONE-rich GROWING MOUNTAINS in the north east of SAMMAEA. The unexpected assassination in 1111 RM of its living-god NEPHTHALONT led to decades of chaos, the pervasive religion that had grown around it shattered.

The following centuries were characterised by a decline of culture as internal strife gripped the fractured nation. Church and state splintered into opposing ideological factions that warred amongst each other. Centuries of civil war led to increased radicalism amongst factions, and by $1600-1800~\rm RM$ they had settled into as many as thirty smaller tribes, each with their own version of the cult of Nephthalont and their own suspects for their gods' murder.

Today, Mulciber remains a lawless region that is dangerous to outsiders and natives alike. Each tribe maintains constant vigil of its fluxing borders. Contact, outside of firefights and border clashes, are uncommon between tribes, though those on the peripheries of the mountains do maintain trade with outsiders. A neutral pariah caste of itinerant merchants, known as the AHHAS, travel between tribes, bringing news and trade goods where they can. Their ancestors were once acolytes of Nephthalont and they are respected for this, despite the differing views of the tribes.

Its people favour heavy stone architecture, and in many cases, the foundations of their buildings are hewn from natural stone, with stone blocks lain on top of them. Many religious and government structures are hewn into cliff-faces, with elaborate facades carved from the living rock, painted white, to signify purity.

Amongst the Auereni and the more war-like tribes of Mulciber, there is a tradition of leaders and other people in positions of power to grow their hair long. Whenever such a leader intends on going into battle with a foe, they cut their hair and send it to their enemy as a declaration of war. The length of hair received by the recipient is indicative to the nature of their attacker - long hair could mean that the attacker is stoic, not eager to fight, but not unwilling to, whereas shorter hair may belong to an aggressive foe who is eager to fight. Sometimes entire groups may shear their hair in protest, such as representatives of entire family groups cutting off their hair and presenting it to a ruler who they feel has treated them unfairly.

The tribes are ALLAKAT, ASSAGOS, ATEVEGOS, AUEREN, CHRIL, DATHOA, DRAKAINA, EATAN, EBURUL, ESSENIA, ESSERIS, GOROR, HAVATH, ILLPHAGOS, INDARR, ITTRA, JACITTA, KANAATI, KORIND, LEGEO, LINARIS, NINIR, NUNEA, ORIM, OSRIS, OURANASSA, RAOSI, SALARNA, SATAR, SUUR'KA, TATRAS, THLOLOT, and USAR. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Also 'the Snaking City'. Set. Once-capital of MÁRTHEL, of no relation to the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER(1.). The city of Mulciber was envisaged and planned by Korachani architects and constructed to be a new capital in place of KAIROR. Construction of the city was completed in 504 RM, after which it continued to grow until it became a city of hundreds of thousands, snaking its way through the NAHUM valley.

The city remained capital until 3061 RM, when the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR gifted the east of NÁRTHEL to QUEEN HETEPHERES THE STRANGLER of VENTHIR, after which point the capital was moved to DACIA. Under Hetepheres' rule Mulciber was allowed to fall into decay, where by c. 3300 RM it had become a largely lawless city, ignored by the authorities.

The city re-emerged from anarchy in c. 3540 RM as an independent region between Nárthel and Venthir. Its large ship-scrapping yards came to the attention of Queen Hetepheres by c. 3630 RM. Within a decade its people had been subjugated by Venthir, which took control of its industries, and it became a regional centre of Venthiri government in the area, with most industries pushed to the city of MARSUARAND instead, with an increased focus on trade, with the RED ROUTE now passing through it (Pop. c. 290,000).

MULIEBRA: 1. Dem. 'Muliebran'. Ntn. League of city states in the south of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA that emerged from the collapse of the earlier nation of ILIMNILL. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Set. Free-city and capital of surrounding satellite states, in the far south of SAMMAEA. The city is known in foreign lands for the GYNOCRACY that rules there, and the geothermal manufactories and power plants that dominate its skyline (Pop. c. 182,000).

MULL: PIr. 'mulls'. Mor. MORTALS descended from ancient unions between DVERGAI and HUMANS. They share more in common with their human ancestors than they do with dvergai, though are shorter and broader, with keen eyes that are grey, blue, or pale green. They are strong, their physical toughness every bit as resolute as that of their minds. They have no link with the FIRMAMENT or the ATRAMENTA, their bodies unaffected by them.

For the most-part they have been integrated with mortal lands surrounding the INNER SEA, though do have their own territories – specifically the MULL CITY-STATES, and are abundant in ATARAXIA and AHKA, and are commonly found in Korachan and ALMAGEST, as slaves, helots and freemen. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life: Asicthain.

MULL CITY-STATES, the: Ntn. The only known mull nation, located in the south east of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, to the west of the GULF OF SKAROS, nestled between the TOLIASOR and RUALASOR Mountains, to the east of HOLOLACH⁽¹⁾. It is of cool temperate climate, with lots of rain and for in winter.

The city-states emerged in between 3000 and 3100 RM, and were founded by refugees fleeing war in the north as the KORACHANI EMPIRE attacked the MULL city of ARGHAM in 2906 RM. Within a year of fighting, Argham had been wiped out and razed to the ground before being resettled as the imperial colony of ARKAM. Its people fled south, populating the valleys between the Toliasor and Rualasor Mountains. The culture of Argham survived through the oral traditions of elders who settled the AZHAG plains, whose descendants would go on to populate the region, founding various states, which over the next hundred years would coalesce into the Mull City-states.

Though each of the now-six states remained independent, their shared heritage and customs aided in maintaining an alliance, which almost faltered in 3740 RM when Korachan founded the colony of AMONDOR. Soon after its establishment, the colony was used as a staging point for attacks to the north into the southern-most of the Mull City-states, which then numbered far more than the six states of today. This necessitated an alliance between the cities, leading to the formation of the republic that unites them to this day. Despite their best efforts, their southern territories were lost to the Korachani colony, though these lands would later break away and form the independent state of THUMAL in 3820 RM, which remains a close ally of the City-states to this day.

The states' borders reached their current form in around 3872 RM, and today each of the six states has its own elected ruler. Together, the six archministers convene twelve times a year in $\underline{ZBALL\ GHAR}$ within a great amphitheatre overlooking lake \underline{ERUSK} to make decisions that affect all of the states.

Its people are quite gregarious, though are somewhat distrusting of outsiders, given the frequent raids by Korachani slavers. Their cities are not only populated by mulls, but also humans, as well as DVERG, and small numbers of other mortal peoples, and they states have become a haven to those who have been persecuted elsewhere in ELYDEN. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

MULLEA: Set. Small fortified city in the west of CALBIA^(1.). Its adult populace all receive training as militia at the fortress of VIROTUTH, and are well-equipped, always at ready for an incursion from the north (Pop. c. 18,000).

MULLEN: Flo. Herbal drug that was consumed via smoking in the now-extinct culture of SASHELL (2.), whose users were originally known as blood champions. The drug acted as a mild analgesic, and also served as an aggressant. This fomented a culture where disputes were settled through blood combat between two BLOOD CHAMPIONS in duels that often ended in death.

Extended consumption was found had the unintended side-effect of increasing $\underline{FIRMAMENTAL}$ sensitivity, leading to those who consumed the herb in large quantities over a long time becoming capable of SHAPING the FIRMAMENT in ways that were far beyond their natural ability, which was very dangerous. This ability was also found to be passed from parent to child, and would manifest even if the child did not consume mullen, though those who did showed an even greater propensity for the skill. Incredibly dangerous, the practice was discouraged by most, leading to further alienation from the surrounding lands of VESPER.

This warped the older blood champion culture into one of Firmamental combat, whose champions became known as BERSERKER-MAGES. The berserker-mages became a touchstone, shaping the culture of Sashell for years to come. They eventually became leaders of the disparate settlements and ruled Sashell as a whole through a council.

The herb was never available in large numbers and the over-consumption, coupled with environmental changes in Sashell caused by the drying of the BAY OF BATHIN, lead to the herb dwindling over time. That, and the self-sacrifice of most berserker-mages to defeat the invading KNIGHTS OF ST. MALICHAR, saw the tradition die out. See Vol II: Drugs and Addictions.

MUMMY OF INDERACHAN: see INDERACHAN, MUMMY OF.

MUMURA: Geo. Stone wasteland in the c north of PARAIYA.

MUN AMDAYAN: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the south of the SULTANATE
OF ABACARDAT, overlooking the MARROWLANDS of the SANCTUARY CITIES.

MUN BIQQAR: Mil. Str. Major coastal fortress in the c north east of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT, overlooking the AMELEEN SEA and the entrance into the BAY OF FATARAH, and ultimately the trading city of Fatarah.

MUN CHIRAQ: Mil. Str. Major coastal fortress in the north east of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT, overlooking the BAY OF ARHBAH.

MUN SHAMSAHAD: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the north of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT, overlooking the south of HADDURATH.

MUNDER NAH: Mil. Str. Mountain fortress in the ABOSHATHOT Mountains in the far east of THE SURRACH. It is home to the DRAGON ASSASSINS and region around it is heavily guarded.

MUNICIPAL LIBRARY OF SHAMAS: Edu. Str. Public library in the city of SHAMAS, in PARTHIS, that was converted from an old church dedicated to the UNDYING MACHINE, itself erected during the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S short tenure of the nation in c. 900 RM. The library is also known for a series of caryatids that were plundered from SATHAII in c. 1200 RM.

MUNTER: Set. City in the east of SKAROS, positioned along THE SHADOW
MARCH. It contains many hostels and markets where those undertaking the March can resupply and rest (Pop. c. 38,500).

MUNTER III: (2038 – 2102 RM) Pol. His. The fourth king of the HOUSE OF UMATRA in AHRISHEN. He is not remembered fondly as known to most historians as having lost the support of many barons. Upon his death in 2102 RM, he left the kingdom an unstable place. In c. 2290 RM the kingdom was sundered in two, with the south west remaining under the control of House Umatra, and the north east splitting into various baronies that opposed it. The House ultimately ended with the death in battle of king GISHEN IV, and the exile of his son DIERDFAN to HARÉ SHKA by the barons, leading to the second inter-monarchy period.

MUNTER OF UMATRA: (1958 – 2041 RM) Pol. His. The first king of the HOUSE OF UMATRA in AHRISHEN. He acceded to the throne at the age of 17 and ruled well into his 80's, strengthening the network of canals in the kingdom and constructing coastal locks that linked its inner-most reaches to the receding SEA OF PROPONTIS.

MUNTETH: Set. Coastal settlement in the east of THETIS. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 3,800).

MUQARRAN IIX: (B. 3931) Pol. Present REGENT-KING of LIDEA, and accomplished SHAPER.

MURAKIS: Set. Fortified city in the far north east of ETUA, close to the border with KHARKHARADONTIS. It is believed that the people of Murakis once traded farther east with the natives of Kharkharadontis, though the growth of the SHADOW IN THE DESERT over the course of the FIFTH AGE has led to an abandonment of those ancient ties.

Since then, its people are thought to have become increasingly insular, isolating themselves behind thick basalt walls, using $\underline{\text{UMBRA}}$ pumped from the $\underline{\text{DAENED SULRACH}}^{(1.)}$ to create $\underline{\text{HAGHOUERIN}}$ it releases into surrounding lands to defend against outside attentions (Pop. c. 28,500).

MURAS: Sec. Coastal settlement in the SKAROSIAN region of ADAMATI, known for its production of shellfish from which a deep purple dye is produced. Its people eschew the tenets of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE in favour of a more fervent worship of the SHADOW in its purest form (Pop. c. 5,800).

MURASI SHELF: Geo. Shallow shelf along the northern coast of the STRAIT OF SKAROS, to the south of the SKAROSIAN region of ADAMATI.

MURDAD: Cal. In the KORACHANI CALENDAR, the sixth month of twelve, comprising 30-days. It is thought to be named after an old deity from proimperial KORACHAN and is considered the third of three months of spring. See Vol II: Months and Lunar Cycle in Elyden.

MURET PASS: Geo. Mountain pass crossing the HAMAIDON Mountains, close to the settlement of VILYLL, in SERROK. The pass allows access across the mountain in the dry months – flooding from snow-melt and storms render the passes unusable for much of the year, however.

MURIN: Pol. Set. Capital of ABARHAL, in the north east of MENISCEA (Pop. c. 87,000).

MURINE WASTES: Geo. Expansive desert in the south west of XYRPHAAT⁽³⁾, in the rain shadow of the LAODDANAN Mountains. The region is dominated by mesas and buttes, as well as the petrified remains of ancient forests, indicating that the region was once very different to its present incarnation.

Ancient FOURTH AGE accounts from the region tell of a vibrant verdant ecosystem that was once populated by a large variety of fauna, including gigantic rodents – both herbivorous and carnivorous – the bones of which are sometimes encountered by merchants passing through the area.

Many extant myths and legends from the west of Xyrphaat feature mysterious uncategorised creatures that fit that description, and some travellers returning from the Wastes claim to have seen shadowy creatures observing them from the petrified remains of ancient trees.

MURRAQ: Set. Small city in the west of the JAHADAT STATES, under the control of the city of MEHEMESH (Pop. c. 18,000).

MURRAT: Rvr. One of two rivers on the island of ARCHAEDON^(1.), the other being the ASHRA. Both rivers flow south, emptying into the SEA OF SAMMAIDU in spectacular coastal waterfalls.

MUSA: Set. Small city in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of MEDES. It lies along the main path of the GREAT ROAD (Pop. c. 3,300).

MUSAMA: Sup. Ind. Set. ATRAMENTAL extractors and refineries in the south east of SKAROS, that pumps UMBRA to the north to the capital in SKAROSIA. It also forms a part of the RED ROUTE, and provides fuel to AMBULANTS and other vehicles passing through (Pop. c. 1,800).

MUSANAAH: Geo. Island off the western-coast of PORPHYR, around 1,520 square-miles in area. It is largely uninhabited.

MUSER: For. Boreal forest in the south east of DURCHAA.

MUSEUM OF ANCIENT ARTEFACTS: Edu. Str. Large museum in TETHRA, PARTHIS. Though many unique and interesting artefacts and relics are on display, its archives and vaults are filled with more esoteric items that are not for laymen's eyes.

MUSEUM OF THE ATRAMENTA: Edu. Str. Museum dedicated to the study of the ATRAMENTA in the city of KORACHAN in KORACHAN.

MUSEUM OF CURIOSITIES: Int. Edu. Str. Located in the city of DEOCHAN, in KORACHAN, this museum is populist, designed to shock and elicit wonder from its exhibits, which include curios and oddities from across the empire, particularly artefacts of strange cultures and examples of physical deformities and fantastical creatures. The SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION vet many exhibits they consider to undermine the position of the empire and its CHURCH. Such exhibits are taken by the orders and locked away or destroyed, in certain cases.

MUSEUM OF MESSIAN ANTIQUITIES: Str. Edu. Recently constructed archaeological museum in LYSITEAS to house the MESSIAN treasures, including the famed CLAY LEGION. Over the first years of excavation the CELEBI Till al Sar sold hundreds of the clay statues to private collectors around ELYDEN, growing rich off the profits, but the activity was stopped by the OFFICE OF THE PRIME MINISTER in 4006 RM, and all remaining and future discoveries were earmarked for inclusion in a new museum that was to be built in the capital. Completed in early 4007 RM, the museum is open to all and houses all treasures.

MUSEUM OF PAST AGES: Edu. Str. Archaeological museum in HETEPHEROPOLIS, VENTHIR, containing artifacts and treasures from across ELYDEN, some of which date back to the THIRD AGE OF MORTAL LIFE. Amongst the artifacts on display is the IDOL OF THYM - the ancestral crown of the ancient THYMI emperors.

MUSHAT: Set. City in the c north of ABACARDAT, just east of the BITTER SEA. It is known for its carob groves, from which syrup and pulp that are used in cooking are produced (Pop. c. 40,000).

MUSHIR: Pol. Rnk. A title common in much of THE SURRACH. A mushir is a court scribe, keeping meticulous details of all official meetings. In some regions mushirs also assume the role of interpreter and translator, if need be, this is most common in areas with many conflicting languages.

MUSK OX: Fau. THEROPS common in northern LLACHATUL, ranging from just south of the POLAR CIRCLE to 80 – 85° north. They are known for their thick insulating wool that is used in the production of winter clothing. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MUSOMERIEL: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED area in the c of JURRAS^(2.), responsible for the taint of the river KARIBAT. The area is replete with DUSTSTONE formations that have been carved by the acrid waters of the river. Which also stunts plant growth in the region. The region emerged in c. 2800 RM, and slowly led to the death of dozens of settlements along the course of the river KARIBAT.

The region is categorised as a Moderate threat by the Korachani Institute of Atramental Studies.

MUSSAR: Sea. Sea to the south west of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in the far south of MALAN, forming the north easternmost part of the BOILING SEA. It serves as a division between the north westernmost point of TZALLRACH and southern Malan.

MUSUMA: Set. Settlement in the east of SEDISIA (Pop. c. 8,000).

MUSTAA: Set. Settlement in the south of TATAR. The city is built around an ancient restored fountain (Pop. c. 7,700).

MUTARIZ: Com. Set. Fortified city in the east of TARTAK, close to the border with KHURAUR. Until c. 3700 RM it was little more than a small village of goatherders, but when the borders of Khuraur opened following its vassalage to PARTHIS in 3752 RM, it began to see increased traffic, and has since grown into a commercial centre and a main point of contact between Tartak and Khuraur, with embassies and trade houses established there. It is also a stop along the SALT ROAD, seeing a lot of trade and commerce (Pop. c. 46,300).

MUTASARRIF: Pol. Rnk. City governors in SARASTRO. Those with enough cloud and influence can go on to become members of the IMPERIAL DIWAN.

MUTHRA: Ind. Set. Industrial settlement in the c of ALMAGEST, within the wastes of SUPHLATUS, that is known for its huge brick yards, where compressed sludge from centuries of pollution is cooked into bricks that are used across Almagest. It forms part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 11,500).

MUTTAHARCH: Pol. Mil. Rnk. The highest rank within each of the ENCLAVES OF THE SARASTROAN INQUEST, similar to the GRANDMASTERS of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION OF KORACHAN. The Muttaharch is the undisputed leader of their respective Enclave, establishing and enforcing the Enclave's tenets and answering only to SATHEP THE RISEN. Indeed, most of the Muttaharchs also sit on the OVERCOUNCIL, serving as the main governing force of the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO.

Most Muttaharchs are known to gain the confidence of Sathep and serve as advisors to him on matters of state, and in return many are indoctrinated into the ancient MAGICKAL traditions that the MORTAL Sathep once practiced, giving them prolonged lives and various ATRAMENTAL skills that they make use of in their work.

MUZA: Int. Dru. Notorious drug that brings the mind of those who take it closer to the otherworld, making them more susceptible to influence by spirits via POSSESSION.

Originating in the VENATHI EMPIRE, muza is a resin made from dried plants that was traditionally used by animists and other SHAPERS to ease their interactions with the OTHERWORLD. After VENTHIR inherited the lands left behind by the fall of Venath, muza began to spread amongst noble classes starting in c. 230 RM, becoming widespread there by c. 450 RM. By then Venthir had become one of the major producers of muza, and over the next centuries it began exporting it to other KORACHANI lands, and beyond, where it quickly took hold as an insidious narcotic. Indeed, it became so popular that its use as an aid to shaping diminished to the point that it's barely used in that capacity any more due to the modern manufacturing process favouring its use as a drug over its performance-enhancing roots, with regards to shaping.

As a recreational drug, the resin is smoked or injected, and makes the spirit of the imbiber more sensitive to the otherworld, with the common and sought side-effect of inducing visions and hallucinations. While in this state, SPIRITS and otherworldly activity are attracted to users. Repeated use can result in a specific spirit becoming 'bonded' to the user, whose influence can be felt whilst under the effects of muza and for some time thereafter.

This influence can be in the form of knowledge of a language the user would otherwise not know, or expertise in a certain skills or lore. At times the influence of the otherworld may manifest as a change in demeanour or temper, and even attempts at POSSESSION by malicious spirits.

Prolonged use can lead to dependency as well as a permanent bond to the otherworld or a spirit, making the addict becoming less aware of the mortal plane. Withdrawals can result in paranoia, seizures (in which alleged prophecies or secrets of the otherworld may be muttered), and even comas. See Vol II: Drugs and Addictions.

MUZAFFER: Phil. Set. Settlement in the north west of the PARTHISAN colony of VARTA^(1.). The settlement is located at the base of a steep rocky escarpment, at the top of which is a centuries-old monastery, originally dating to the times of the SELAHIMI empire. Today it is home to a sect of secular aesthetes (Pop. c. 1,200).

MY SOJOURN IN THE HERMIT KINGDOM: Vol. Travelogue published by the polymath Izaguerre in 3973 RM, detailing her stay in the isolationist nation of SATHAII, which became the source for most laypeople's knowledge of the nation.

MYA: Set. Settlement in the c-south east of HARITH in the north east of EASTERN LLACHATUL, situated along the course of the river LHANA. The lands surrounding the city are known for their poisonous fungi (Pop. c. 4.200).

MYEIN: Pol. Fifth of the HENDECARCHIES of the FOREST KINGDOMS, located in the west of MALAN. Its capital is the city of NETHEA, and it is ruled by the HENDECARCH GALLATRIS EBUL.

The Kingdom is covered in large swathes of woodland, much of them virginal and old growth, though the lack of major FIRMAMENTAL LEYS in the region make them more mundane than other Malani forests might be. It is bordered on the west by the KARPAROS mountain and the south by the MEMNID highlands, though it is known for its many ruins, most of which date back to the NAHORIAN empire, though some ancient ruins of SEITHAL can still be found there. Historically, in c. -1000 RM the city-states and small nations of the region were invaded by people whose descendants would go on to found SAUA. These people would settle the region that would later become Myein, and today it shares many cultural links with Saua.

The HENDECARCH of Myein rules from the WOODEN THRONE, an ancient seat carved millennia past from the root of a far more ancient tree, thought to have been the first one created in ELYDEN by the DEMIURGES of old. Myein is known for its tradition of SEERS, many of whom occupy high-ranking positions in the government and private institutions, either casting lots or looking to the otherworld for any signs that should be acted upon. Many belong to an ancient sodality that sews their eyes closed as a symbol of their prowess.

MYGALURGE: Nou. 'Mygalurgear'. Plr. 'Mygalurgen'. Sup. Org. Mil. Rnk. An order of SHAPERS in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, whose MINASTERIA^(2.) has been based in the city of DIRUCHAN in the c of SKAROS since 3781 RM. Its members are ATRAMENTAL shapers whose SPHERE of influence involves the control and manipulation of animals – most commonly mindless chthonic vermin, such as invertebrates and other lesser creatures.

The most obvious role of a Mygalurge is as pest control, using their abilities to move insects and vermin away from settled areas, or killing them outright. Less obvious is perhaps their ability to direct such pests to where they are needed. Pollinators can be forced to work in a particular area, ensuring that certain trees or plants are allowed to reproduce.

Particular Mygalurgen might be able to see or otherwise sense through the vermin they are controlling, allowing to scry at a distance, largely unopposed by normal scrying deterrents.

The most accomplished of Mygalurgen have power over larger creatures, including wild animals and, more readily, domesticated animals. This makes them excellent trainers and handlers, and they can also be used to calm down rampaging or escaped animals. These individuals can also work in the military, where they oversee the animals used by mounted regiments, or they can also work on the enemy's mounts, sabotaging their own commands.

The order was founded in the city of MYRMICA in the west of VENTHIR, in 1238 RM, though was relocated following the eventual independence of Venthir in 3781 RM. See Vol IV: Spheres and types of Shaping.

MYMEREA: Sea. Known outside TETHYSIA as the Dawn Sea; eastern-most of ELYDEN'S known seas. The Mymerean Ocean is an open sea, known for rough waters and seasonal storms; its northern-most reaches becoming the frigid SEA OF AKRY. Explorers have travelled east across the sea, though none have returned with word of land.

MYMEREAN ACCORDS, the: Pol. Org. An alliance formed between the states of HALEDONIA, LIMOTH^(1,), the PANTHEON ISLES, TETHYSIA, and THETIS, in 2996 RM at the behest of the Pantheon Isles. KOMMEA entered the Accords in 3189 RM.

The Accord saw its six member states form an alliance to patrol their coastal waters, ratifying a formal course of conduct with regards to slavery, piracy and smuggling, taking some of the brunt away from the Pantheon Isles, and sharing it between the member states. This made the waters off the eastern coast of LLACHATUL safer than they had ever been, giving a boost to trade and travel in the region, improving the economies of all member states.

In theory, the member states were to share the burden of incarceration of captured pirates, slavers and smugglers, though Tethysia found itself accepting most of them. This was most obvious around the city of AZAKETIST, which emerged from a prison in c. 3210 RM and which today boasts a population largely descended from such prisoners. In 3523 RM Tethysia left the Accords, and began patrolling its own waters. This led to a greater burden on the remaining member states, and today Limoth is the largest contributing member, with its fleet serving as the greatest deterrent to slavers and pirates. Its harbours are home to ships from other member states, which use them as a forward base of operations, particularly the fort of RINNETH⁽²⁾.

MYMEREAN GALES: Wea. Localised weather system that brings very strong moist southern winds from the SEA OF MYMEREA across the AKRY to MEHITIEL, SEDALLIA, and ALBASSITA, causing coastal storms as moist warm air from the sea meets warm dry air flowing south from inland highlands.

MYMEREAN GYRE: Sea. Sea gyre in the c of the SEA OF MYMEREA, flowing in a counter-clockwise motion.

MYOTID: Fau. Dog-sized creature with long arms and thin slender fingers, all connected with a wing-like membrane, related to the CHEIROPTER. Though incapable of flight, myotids can glide short distances, a manoeuvre they use in pursuit of their prey. They are common along the SKAROSIAN coast. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

MYRA: Pol. Set. Capital city of LYRIDIA, position along the course of the river LYCEA at the foot of the KYTHI Mountains. It is home to most of the nation's AUGURS and BARRIMA. A long trail leads south east through the mountain to the home of the ABULIA. The city is one of few, and by far the largest, where TROGLODYTES mix with the rest of the populace, though cave dwellings comprising the eldest part of the city are still used to this day.

The city is protected to the west and east by the steep hills of the Kythi Mountains and to the north and south by a series of low wide heavily guarded walls (Pop. unknown, est. over 1,000,000).

MYRINA: Set. Fortified settlement in the west of EREBETH that was once part of the ruby mining industry there, though the mines were closed in c. 3690 RM. Today it is known for a small yet influential group of people who strive to debunk the existence of various supranatural beings and deities, much to the derision of many outsiders (Pop. c. 6,500).

MYRKANNA: also 'City of Darkness'. Set. Major city in the far north of PERGOST on the north of LLACHATUL. It is around 680-miles north of the northern POLAR CIRCLE, and experiences over a month of darkness each winter. Its location in the south-facing hills of the DANTIS Mountains means that it is in the shade for the better part of the year, from which it gets its name.

It is built on an ancient FIFTH AGE stone fortress around which are littered the remains of countless mammoths and other beasts, many of which are now extinct (Pop. c. 60,000).

MYRMICA: Set. Fortified cosmopolitan city in the west of VENTHIR along the banks of the river MAPHANI⁽²⁾, founded on the ruins of the NATHI city of MYAM in c. -170 RM. Originally a collection of TROGLODYTE⁽¹⁾ settlement cut into the base of a low cliff that dominated the land about a mile south of the river Maphani, it rapidly grew into a caravanserai that attracted traders and travellers, ensuring its steady growth. It became a metropolis under the aegis of SIPHON ENGINES installed there in c. 1000 RM to provide aegis from mild ATRAMENTAL TAINT that had appeared in c. 980 RM, which attracted further settlers to the region. It is renowned for the MINASTERIA⁽²⁾ of MYGALURGEN which was funded there in 1238 RM and for the many SHAPERS that populate its central districts.

Following the desertion of KITHAMAR in 2821 RM Venthir suffered a massed UMBRA shortage, leading to the closure of many industries, including the siphon engines that kept the plains of HAMSHEN free of ATRAMENTAL TAINT. This led to many settlements in the region being abandoned. By c. 3000 RM Myrmica had grown into a mercantile metropolis, populated by the descendants of dozens of different regions. It maintains their various cultures and is now part of the RED ROUTE, leading south west into TARATI^(1.), witch which it maintains a close relationship (Pop. c. 353,000).

MYRRHAS: Set. Dre. Coastal settlement in the north west of IO. Its main industry is the production of an ONEIRIC drug known as SALARAN, which is derived from the flesh of VARESVAT fish that it farms. The drug is used as a stimulant by ONEIROMANCERS and by laypeople hoping to experience LUCID DREAMING (Pop. c. 8,000).

MYRTHRAMA: Set. Settlement in the c west of KARGAMA. Its main industry is agriculture, particularly TSAMMA (Pop. c. 5,200).

MYSIS: Set. Settlement in the far north of SKAROS, in the region of GNASSIA, north of the SEA OF APHOTIS. It is known for its production of the popular port known as HEIRLOOM that is widely consumed in the KORACHANI EMPIRE and, to a lesser extent, across the INNER SEA REGION (Pop. c. 6,200).

MYSTERY CULT: Org. Throughout ELYDEN, many secretive sects and orders exist that operate outside of their national or cultural norms. Some mystery cults are highly secretive and operate contrary to common beliefs in the region, while others have become standardised over time, becoming addenda to more open religions.

MYSTICISM: Mys. Practices and beliefs, often occult, that tap into the MATERIA OMNA in ways that are different to more common bases of shaping, such as FIRMAMENTISM or ATRAMENTISM.

Some of the more well-known types of mysticism include: BLOOD MAGICK, FATICARIA, HEXCRAFT, LUNARCHY, RUNIC MAGICK, and SCIONIC MAGICK. See Vol IV: Other Forms of Mysticism.

MYT DAR: Set. Small fortified city in the north east of SALOROC. Its people trade north with the NÁRTHELI city of TRETA and are expert producers of OLIVE oil (Pop. c. 17,000).

MYT GER: Set. Fortified coastal city in the far north of SALOROC, overlooking the west of the SHADOW SEA. It shares much of its culture with NÁRTHEL, which lies just 10-miles east (Pop. c. 40,000).

MYT HAS: Rui. Ancient stone temple in northern SALOROC, hewn from the walls of a cavern along the TAMURATH escarpment. The temple is covered in intricate bas-carvings, the meanings of which are unknown. It is thought to date back to the early FOURTH AGE.

MYTHKEEPERS, the: Org. Scholars in CENTRAL LLACHATUL, most prevalent in TEMUJA, though also common in SAUA and BAATAN. Their headquarters are in the GREAT LIBRARY of DUARIAHAHN.

MYTHOCLAST: Org. Policing force in PARTHIS and its colonies and suzerain states. The mytholcasts ensure that the secular tenets of Parthis are upheld.

MYTHOGRAPHERS: Org. Historians common to the various nations and regions around the INNER SEA. They are beholden to no one lord or nation and work of their own volition, cataloguing histories both ancient and contemporary. Knowing that much knowledge and history of the ancient world has been lost through war, carelessness and the simple passage of time, they seek to conserve and retrieve as much of the world as they can.

Many believe that they are responsible for the creation of the ENCYCLOPAEDIA ELYDEN, but that is not the case. They seek pure knowledge and histories, and the censored and doctored information found in previous editions of the Encyclopaedia Elyden went against their core beliefs.

In past ages they were often persecuted by imperial ICONOCLASTS⁽²⁾, as well as other groups, forcing them to work underground, which is a state they maintain to this day, preferring it to drawing unwanted attention to themselves.

They control libraries across many nations as well as private institutions, sometimes secretly, and they make sure that copies of all major works are kept in multiple locations in the event of disaster.

MYTHOHISTORY: Myt. His. In historical studies, one of three commonly accepted ways of measuring history, the other two being prehistory and history, respectively. Mythohistory concerns the study of events and cultures, often apocryphal and so ancient as to predate the appearance of any known first-hand accounts. Most mythohistorical knowledge of such comes from ancient second-hand accounts in sources that would be considered prehistoric in most scholarly circles. Such accounts usually concern the events of the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, specifically the AGE OF MYTH through to the SECOND AGE OF MORTAL LIFE and the first millennium of the THIRD AGE. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

MYTHOLITH: Rui. Ancient black pyramidal objects found in the HELINOT plains in the tribal territories of ALLAKAT in the c of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. They are famed for their strange soap-like texture and large unblinking featureless white eyes that bulge from one of their faces. Despite their size, which ranges from 3 – 10-ft. in height, they are quite light. They are seen as religious objects by the people of Allakat and INDARR, and are mounted onto the backs of INDRIKS, where they serve as mobile temples, travelling across the two tribes with an entourage of priests and seers that visit settlements, bringing their wisdom to the people. Allakat and Indarr are rare regions that do not revere the NEPHTHALONT as a deity, but rather as a prophet of the Mytholiths.

Little is known of the origins of the Mytholiths, but they are thought to be incredibly ancient, likely dating back to the shaping of the DEMIURGES.

MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN: Vol. Myr. His. Ancient mythological writing detailing the cosmogony of ELYDEN, and the creation of the world by the DEMIURGES, as well as the ancient history of the MORTAL PEOPLES and their first civilisations, leading up to the end of the FOURTH AGE and the WAR OF SCOURGING.

The Mythologia Elyden is first referenced in the early THIRD AGE, at which point it is believed to have already been a venerable work, based on the oral accounts of various cultures and peoples from early Elyden, possibly as far back as the FIRST AGE.

So much time has passed since the Mythologia Elyden was first put down to record that there exist many misconceptions about it.

Foremost among these misconceptions is that the Mythologia Elyden is a single book. The truth is far more complex, and it's likely that the origins of the Mythologia Elyden might be traced back to a single work, possibly penned by a SCION or perhaps even one of the Demiurges themselves, with further passages penned by their descendants through 2nd and 3rd hand accounts.

However, over time this would have been copied, transcribed, translated, expanded on, edited, censored, or just misunderstood or extrapolated from. Therefore, it is difficult to ascertain today, in an age so far removed from its original creation, tens of millennia past, what is truth or what is anecdotal or apocryphal, added millennia later by enthusiastic and no-doubt well-meaning individuals.

However, there exist so many independent examples of the Mythologia Elyden, each discovered on different continents and penned in different times, that share certain similarities as to allow scholars to make educated guesses on what can be believed to be a trusted timeline for Elyden's cosmogony and mythic prehistory. Of note are the so-called EXEMPLAR TRIAD – three different versions of the Mythologia Elyden discovered in the FIFTH AGE that together have allowed scholars to piece together a relatively accurate account of Elyden's cosmogony as it was originally penned in the First Age.

Though knowledge of the Mythologia Elyden was once widespread, it has become less popular throughout the Fifth Age as tyrants and rulers have quelled both physical copies as well as references to it. This is doubly true in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, whose DEITY is one of the few remaining lucid Demiurges, whose history features prominently in the Mythologia Elyden. It is in the Churches best interest to keep such knowledge out of the grasp of the common populace. As a result, in the four millennia history of the Korachani empire, the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, the BUREAU OF CENSORS, and the MINASTERIA OF NEGATIONISM have worked tirelessly to suppress knowledge of what the Mythologia Elyden once taught. Physical copies have been destroyed or placed under lock and key by imperial decree to avoid them being consumed by HELOTS and SLAVES in a bid to preserve the power of the Undying Machine. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

MYTHRIA: Set. Settlement in the c of OD MEGINNAS. Its main industry is copper mining (Pop. c. 6,750).

MYUN: Set. Fortified coastal settlement in the region of NUCTEMERA in the north of EREBETH, known for its wines (Pop. c. 4,800).

N

N'BAKHA: Rui. Ruined N'RAKHI palace in present-day BARATHEA^(1.). It is shunned by locals and is thought to have an expansive system of tunnels that link it to western N'rakh, though which the AANTHA have access.

N'DATA: Rvr. Wetlands in the west of N'RAKH, located at the confluence where the river J'KHOSO meets its parent, the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.), at the border with the north western-most reaches of the UMBRA SOKHAR.

N'HABBA: Set. Major city in the north of J'THANA, that in 2193 RM was the site of a large battle between escaped slaves and the N'RAKHI military that ultimately ended with the independence of J'thana and the taking of the city, which was to become the first independent J'thana city to be settled. The city is now a major link between J'thana and BARATHEA^(1.) and forms an important part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 42,000).

N'HATTA: also 'Silk Poison'. Poi. Poison common in the region of M'HOTOK in N'RAKH made from extracting a pale liquid from fermented silk milk.

N'KHAYA: Set. Settlement in the north of N'RAKH, along the course of the river SICERAN in the marshes of N'KHOSSA. I'THANAN legends claim the settlement was founded by siblings (Pop. unknown).

N'KHOCH: Geo. Rocky region in the north west of N'RAKH, noted for its high tiered mesas and giant ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED spiders.

N'KHOSA: Geo. Region in N'RAKH known for its marshes.

N'RAKH: Dem. 'N'rakhi. Ntn. A strange land of exotic vistas populated by an abnormal race of arachniform beings known as AANTHA, N'rakh is situated in the c north east of SAMMAEA, and borders the UMBRA SOKHAR. It is a dry region that is fed by rivers, many of which are seasonal and is only inhabited due to the natural fortitude of the aantha.

The collapse of the THYMI empire early in the FIFTH AGE saw scattered aanth tribes spread across their abandoned lands, populating their ruins and taking what people remained as slaves. The young races that inherited the Fifth Age were superstitious and cautious, and shunned lands populated by these misshapen warmongers, allowing them to consolidate an area which would, by around 875 RM, dwindle in size following conflict with ARKOS⁽¹⁾.

In around 1100 RM Arkosian explorers uncovered caves north of lake C'DATA, revealing the birthing pits of the living goddess MAALKAT – this was the first recorded contact of outsiders with the aanth goddess, and revealed that the aanth territories encompassed as much of the subterranean world as the lands above. A war erupted between the Arkosians and the aantha would defend this intrusion into their sacred lands fiercely, dying without thought in defence of their alien 8-limbed goddess.

The war ended with the aanth fortifying the lands around lake C'data with grotesque silken fortresses, and by 1550 RM the region south of the STERHBEL mountains had become a place of pilgrimage to the growing aanth culture, which had become known as N'rakh to surrounding humans by then.

The N'rakhi were notorious SLAVERS and most of their workforce was made up of human slaves who lived in horrifying conditions. Dissent amongst the slaves in the metropolis of N'SATTA led to a rebellion that rapidly spread across the nation, culminating in 2193 RM with the overthrowing of the city and hundreds of thousands fleeing south east, taking the city of N'HABBA and fortifying it. This would lead to the sundering of the surrounding region from N'rakh within a few years, giving birth to the slave-nation of J'THANA. The lands east of lake C'data had remained uninhabited since the N'rakhi victory against Arkos, and it was eventually settled by another group of freed slaves soon after, eventually becoming known as BARATHEA^(1.) in 2200 RM.

N'rakhi borders have remained difficult to cross since then, with constant patrols that only allow chartered merchants from J'thana and Barathea $^{(1.)}$ entry, and then only to specific wards of its largest cities to buy silk and trade needed goods. Contact with foreign human states is conducted through a slave-caste of human diplomats, who are based in $\underline{\rm EKALLU}$, Maalkat and $\underline{\rm M'HOTOK}$. They are taught the difficult N'rakhi tongue as well as surrounding languages, allowing them to act as mediaries. These ambassadors are deeply indoctrinated into the ways of aanth culture and are as alien to foreigners as the aantha themselves. What we know of the nation is through contact with such ambassadors and the descendants of slaves who settled Barathea $^{(1.)}$ and J'thana, so our knowledge may be skewed or outdated. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms N'RAKHI: Lan. language unique to the AANTHA population of N'RAKH and, to a lesser extent J'THANA and BARATHEA^(1.), where it is spoken by merchants and others who have contact with N'rakh. It is composed of complex click consonants that are a natural evolution of the unique aanth physiology, many of which are impossible to emulate by other mortals.

Little is known of its origins, though it is believed to be a corruption of an ancient bestial language that emerged alongside the corruption of the aantha themselves. See Vol II: Languages.

 $\underline{N'SAMBA}$: Set. Fortified settlement in the north west of $\underline{N'RAKH}$ along the course of the river $\underline{SHIBBOLETH}^{(3)}$ (Pop. c. 15,000).

N'SATTA: Set. Settlement in the south east of N'RAKH, known historically as the place where slave revolts first took place in 2193 RM that would ultimately lead to the freeing of unnumbered slaves across N'rakh, eventually leading to the founding of the nations of BARATHEA^(1.) and J'THANA.

It was a metropolis, known for its slave markets and large quarries, where granite used in the construction of religious monuments to MAALKAT was mined. Following the revolts all the slaves were freed, and the city dwindled over the next decades.

Today it is much smaller than it ever was during its peak, though it is thought to have a larger subterranean presence (Pop. c. 5,000).

 $\underline{N'SSARU}$: Rel. Mar. Rnk. \underline{AANTH} templars and guards of $\underline{MAALKAT}$ in N'RAKH.

NTHAEGOM: Geo. Badlands dominating the southern-face of the GRCAUTHAIRM massif in the c of CYHLAGHARR. The region is uninhabited and it noted for its sprawling rock formations.

NA RATYM: also 'Pillars of the Summer Sun'. Rel. Str. Twin pillars flanking an altar, positioned on a prominent location to receive solstice suns. It is a place of veneration of the people of ALAM BETHYL.

NAAH: His. Ntn. Ancient late FOURTH AGE empire that dominated much of the northern SAMMAEAN coast west of the GULF OF DAARKEN. It predated CONTH and survived in a diminished from until the first centuries of the FIFTH AGES, after which it fragmented into disparate warring groups that contributed to the fall of Conth in 193 RM. Within around a century the remnants of Conth and Naah would become LIDEA.

Various aspects of its culture were adopted by the early Lideans, and the HUSSADI nomads are thought to be remnants of their culture. See Vol III: Extinct States.

NAAHI: Eth. Ethnic group common in the north of SAMMAEA, around BA'AKH, LIDEA, SUMA'YA and the east of PARAIYA, descended from the ancient NAAHI culture. See Vol II: Peoples and Races of Elyden.

NAAIA: 1. Geo. Basin in the south west of ANUBIA, and primary drainage basin of the ATEIGHA and KALAIAMA river.

2. Rvr. Seasonal river appearing in the above basin following the yearly appearance of the ATEIGHA and KALAIAMA rivers. As many as two individual lakes are known to appear along their course, based on strength of their yearly flow.

NAAL: Dem. 'Naalish'. His. Set. Ancient city overlooking the SEA OF BYSSOS with a long history in the FIFTH AGE. Little is known of its origins, though PARTHIAN records show that it was part of the TERRITORIES OF OPHAM. It was besieged by CYHLAGHARRI OGHURS in 754 RM and was on the brink of starvation when reinforcements arrived, ultimately saving it.

It emerged in c. 800 RM as a mercantile power as the cult of the CHILD'S ADVENTISM takes root there, after the OTHERWORLDER known as THE REGENT appeared there decades earlier.

In 851 RM KORACHANI CENSORS based in Opham marched into Naal to control its growth, but by then it had already spread to surrounding states. In 867 RM it sundered itself from Opham following a civil war, becoming an independent state.

Korachan abandoned Parthia to the INTERREGES in 934 RM. Despite this, many PATRICIANS remained there becoming a noble caste, slowly losing their Korachani roots over the next century. They were instrumental in its rise over the next centuries, leading to its borders expanding well after the Interreges' eventual abandonment of the region in 967 RM.

By c. 1500 RM OLNNADI merchants had set up offices there, and revolts in Olnnad in 2135 RM led to many slaves seeking refuge in Naal. In 2391 RM it was taken and AZOSAOTH^(2.) emerged from its ruin, which would eventually give rise to the city of VULKA, in the south east of the TARAHID ANNEXES.

NAALO: Ind. Set. Mining settlement in the region of ADASICH in the west of THE SURRACH. It is known for its citrine quarries, the produce of which is used in the production of jewellery (Pop. c. 7,500).

NAAMAH: Oth. Type of HALFBLOOD. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

NAAMNI: His. Lan. Now-extinct FOURTH AGE language of northern SAMMAEA. It emerged from an earlier descendent of the ANAVRAMI tongue and would from the basis for AMNATHI. See Vol II: Languages.

NAANEMUR, THE LAST TREE: Flo. Individual gigantic tree in the north west of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in the s of the EGEAHAR Steppes in MALAN. It is famed for its striking appearance – the soil surrounding the tree's roots was slowly washed away over centuries, leaving a branching mass of exposed roots, clinging to rocks and earth surrounding it. This has left a tunnel-like hollow under the great tree which has since become used as a thoroughfare. A settlement appeared under the tree by those seeking to protect it, making sure that as many of the roots remain unbroken (Pop. c. 1,000).

NAANDA: Set. Small city in the south of METHUMN, in the east of the IRAGASH region. It is situated close to one of the natural sources of the GARAGIRA river, which is controlled by the city's rulers, who ration water amongst the people (Pop. c. 12,500).

NAARETH: 1. Geo. Large peninsula in the north east of the continent of SAMMAEA, jutting to the south east of the continent, south of the IAPETAN SEA and north of the ROILING SEA. It is home to the nations of NAARETH and KHITAI, as well as the south of SARAGOS and SUOR. Khitai (a dependency of Naareth) forms the eastern-most part of Sammaea.

2. See HOLY GYNOCRACY OF NAARETH.

NAARETHI CURRENT: Sea. Warm surface ocean current to the north west of the MIROVEAN OCEAN that flows north west into the ROILING SEA, creating the ROILING GYRE. The current flows round the Roiling Sea before leaving the basin, south where it joins up with the PORPHYRI CURRENT.

NAARTH: His. Ntn. Ancient name for the nation of NAARETH.

NAASSENE: Set. Fortified settlement in the c west of GNOTH. It is an important link in the GNOTHI ROAD (7,300).

NAASU: Sea. Bay off the south western coast of LAASKHA, with the island of VUDA to its south.

NAAYN: 1. Geo. Island off the southern coast of LAASKHA.

2. Set. Settlement on the above island, off the southern coast of LAASKHA, known for its grapes and white wine. Local legends claim that the city was born of a divine seed that had lain dormant in the region for millennia (Pop. c. 5,000).

NABAANI ES SABRAH II: (B. 3951 RM) Pol. Present ruler of the plutocratic council that rules the City-kingdom of ENNAIAH, in THE SURRACH.

NABASSAR: Rui. Once-major city in the c of SARASTRO, along the course of the river SOLONA. It was abandoned following an uncontrolled outbreak of PLAGUE there in c. 3660 RM, the ruin of its river-side docks still haunting the banks of the river Solona to this day.

The city was occupied by a Sarastroan garrison during the WAR OF SUNDERING, and was attacked by IMPERIAL forces, including a large tank battalion, which destroyed the defence, allowing Korachani forces to continue east towards ARGEA. The city was badly damaged in the attack and remains a ruin to this day.

NABAT: Set. Small city in the east of the MULL CITY-STATES. It is home to a popular style of music that utilises an obscure piano accordions (Pop. c. 17,000).

NABAURA: Geo. Solitary mountain in the c of JURRAS (2.). *

NABBIL: Set. Coastal settlement in the south west of TZALLRACH (Pop. c. 20,000).

NABERIN: Geo. Rocky highland desert dominating the east of the territories of ETHISTONITH in RHINOCOLOURA. It is an ancient land, its rocks worn smooth by wind and rain, and is largely uninhabited. It is populated by a semi-nomadic indigenous people who revere the igneous dome of rock known as PATHON, and who hold the land sacred.

NABERIZ: Pol. Ser. Capital city of AKHELIZ, in the south east of BROR⁽¹⁾. It is known for its great colleges and the philosophical traditions of its elders. It bears the emblem of three dogs, which appear on its architecture and military imagery. It has grown around the ROYAL INNER CITY, which is known for its large gardens, temples, royal palace, and government structures (Pop. c. 287, 800).

NABIL: Geo. Massif in the east of EASTERN LLACHATUL, along the border between LIMOTH^(1.) and the PANTHEON ISLES.

NABIL SADDA: Rel. Rui. Ruined sun-temple in the south of TZALLRACH, dating back to the early years of the FIFTH AGE.

NABIRIA: f. His. Pol. Per. (B. 1901 – D. 2023 RM) princess of DERAIEA who in 1922 RM was wed to the merchant prince TOUTAT of TISHANNA in an arranged marriage that established the TISHANNAN MONARCHY, of which she was the first queen consort.

NABIRRUS: Mil. Str. Major fort in the north east of AZAZEM, guarding the route of the SHADOW MARCH, as well as protecting the border from THE OLD FOREST.

NABONA: Geo. Island, and part of the PANTHEON ISLES.

NABORRO: Set. City in the c of SAUA. It is known for its manufactories (Pop. c. 50,000).

NABULASSAR: Set. Small spring-fed city in the south west of SARASTRO (Pop. c. 16,000).

NABUS: Set. Settlement in the c west of GNOTH, along the course of the river PITTIROT.

NABUSSIA: Geo. Island in the c of the PANTHEON ISLES, off the eastern coast of LLACHATUL.

NABUUN: Set. City in the c north west of tribal territories of LEGEO, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It has a long history of training ROCS for use as messengers and, less commonly, as mounts. The mounts are used by political diplomats in the Growing Mountains due to their speed in reaching disparate tribes (Pop. c. 50,000).

NACARATIAN PLAINS: Geo. Level plains in the c-south east of PORPHYR, known for its orange-red soil.

NACATH-HITHOTH: Int. Sup. Geo. Ancient fantastical terrain in the north of ARERAQTH, some 180-miles south of the northern POLAR CIRCLE, attributed to the DREAMS of the stillborn DEMIURGE RYHASSHARAUCH, where the earth peels upwards in the form of a triple-helix, as though the page of a book were torn in three places and lifted upwards. It covers around 1 square-mile, and rises around a mile into the sky. It is FIRMAMENTALLY-ACTIVE, and the ruins of past civilizations can be found upon it, though no extant settlements are known to exist there today.

NACEH: Alc. Set. Settlement in the region of HITHRA in the north of THE SURRACH, in the northern foothills of the NGHALLEAL Mountains. It is known for its ALCHEMICAL research in the mildly ATRAMENTALLY-influenced stone of the region (Pop. c. 7,000).

NACH: Geo. Highland region in the north west of NÁRTHEL.

NACHA RID: Com. Set. Fortified city in the south east of ELEKHID, built along the outer face of a large crater in the TAIPOETH rainforest. Its people are known to trade south with Cheira (Pop. c. 37,400).

NACHAA: Set. Settlement in the c south of NAARETH (Pop. c. 10,000).

NACHAN: 1. Str. Dam built across the river LOBKIR in the c north west of NÁRTHEL in 3690 RM that powers the city of Nachan. The dam was constructed to redistribute waters for irrigation purposes across the ailing region, though it ultimately had the opposite effect of drying out the region, leading to the increased size of the LYBIC SANDS.

2. Set. Oas. Oasis-settlement in the north west of NARTHEL, largely inhabited by SVATHI people. The entire region surrounding the settlement was rendered barren by over-harvesting and poor cropmanagement under the leadership of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, leading to the death of the settlement by c. 3600 RM.

The settlement re-emerged following the construction of a nearby dam over the river LOBKIR in 3690 RM and remains to this day as the main producer of opiates in all Nárthel, where opiates are extracted from dehydrated poppies before being shipped north to (Pop. c, 102,800).

NACRE: Set. Pearl-farming settlement in the west of VENTHIR (Pop. c. 9,000).

NACRE LEAGUE: Com. Org. Major commercial and mercantile conglomerate that controls all trade along the 12,000-mile NACRE ROAD in the south of Sammaea, from the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula in the west to the headland of UHBATAQ in the east, encompassing the nations of AMMESH, HABOT, PHYRR, MAENMIST, SIMBARA (its longest stretch through a single nation) AKANTHRA, KHAR NADUL, HANNAH, QARALAM, SHEZALIAH, and ZHARIAH.

The League was formed in c. 1820 RM as an alliances of hundreds of various merchant houses and coalitions (today known as LEAGUE HOUSES) that pooled their resources to facilitate the movement of goods across the dozens of individual routes that together made up the Nacre Road. Based in the city of ENNERA in Simbara, the League initially struggled to find its footing, though by c. 2000 RM its itinerant merchants and their matted-armoured guards had become a common sight along the road. Over the next centuries they strongarmed independent and rival merchants into either disbanding or joining them, until by c. 2160 RM they were in control of the route. Particular stretches of the road remained troublesome, with state governments heavily taxing League merchants in a bid to favour their own economies, but by c. 2250 RM the League had gained control of all trade along the Road by forging alliances and trade deals with ruling governments, and though they were paying different taxes at every nations' border, they had grown unimaginably wealthy within a matter of generations, making them extremely powerful across southern Sammaea, with individuals able to alter the decisions of governments and monarchies with a few choice words. Indeed, many elder members of the major League Houses often go on to become advisors and viziers (more commonly known as VAKKILS).

Today, the Nacre League has risen to such levels of power and influence as to rival the nations and states in whose territories they operate, effectively becoming an independent culture and government in the south of Sammaea, and many people in its member cities identify as children of the Road more than they do with the culture of their home nation. Many cities, including SELBIST in Simbara and THARAPHOTA in Akanthra, are more loyal to the League than their parent nations. Some cities culturally as much as members of the League as they do their parent states, and in many cases the League has more standing and influence than the parent state.

For over a millennium the League was overseen by council of seventeen members, each from a different League House, though political intrigue was rife, and what was intended as a meritocratic council often degenerated into a plutocracy, often for generations at a time. In 3966 RM a triad of merchant lords usurped leadership of the League through corruption and remain in control to this day. Together they are known as the TISRAHAN, and their rule has been characterised by war with Maenmist:

The League declared war against Maenmist in response to its closing of its borders to outsiders in c. 3960 RM, which effectively stalled land trade in southern Sammaea and sundered the Nacre Road in two. Phyrr and Simbara formed an alliance with the Nacre League and declared war in 3972 RM, leading to the south of Maenmist becoming a warzone in a protracted conflict that continues to this day.

NACRE ROAD, the: Com. Geo. One of ELYDEN'S largest trade-routes, and likely the largest in the SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE. It stretches for over 12,000-miles laterally across the south of SAMMAEA, linking the city of HAMMA in the far south west to BHAL ZHARIAH⁽²⁾ in the south east, passing through the following territories: AMMESH, HABOT, PHYRR, MAENMIST, SIMBARA (its longest stretch through a single nation) AKANTHRA, KHAR NADUL, HANNAH, QARALAM, SHEZALIAH, and ZHARIAH, and allows the relatively easy flow of trade from west to east.

The road is named after the now-largely dead nacre trade along the northern shore of the SEA OF AMMASH⁽²⁾, and is now controlled by the merchant hegemons of AKANTHRA. It originated in c. 500 RM as a route travelled by MEHMUTHI nomads, some of whom went on to become merchants, travelling in caravans hauled by great beasts. Today it is ruled over by the NACRE LEAGUE, a conglomerate of merchant lords and trade princes that control most trade in the aforementioned regions.

The nation of Maenmist closed its borders to outsiders in c. 3960 RM, bringing chaos to the Nacre Road, and effectively sundering the route in two. This led to the Nacre League declaring war on the insular nation in 3972 RM, drawing support from various states along the Road, including Phyrr and Simbara, which are neighbours of Maenmist to the west and east respectively. The cities of CYNDARA in HABOT and BAVVERA in NORTHERN SIMBARA became the two main points of exchange where goods moving along the land route were shifted to the sea and vice versa, but Maenmist was (and remains) a major naval power in the region and employed fleets of privateers to harass sea trade.

The war continues to this day and the Nacre Road is now diverted across the SEA OF AMMASH^(2.), bypassing Maenmist at great cost. See Vol II: Major Trade Routes.

NACRE WAR: War. An ongoing conflict in the south of SAMMAEA centred around the south of the insular nation of MAENMIST. The war's roots lie in the sudden closing of Maenmisti borders in c. 3960 RM, which sundered the NACRE ROAD trade-route in half, devastating the economy of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA and leading to the rapid wane of the NACRE LEAGUE.

The League was quick to act, sending envoys to Maenmist, but most did not even make it within its borders, and those few that did were either slain or driven away before they were able to petition the nations' insular leaders. This led to years of economic downturn in the region, with lands west and east of Maenmist being cut off from each other.

The League began shifting its lucrative land trade to the SEA OF AMMASH^(1.), bypassing Maenmist and Phyrr, though was a costly temporary measure as diplomatic efforts continued amid Maenmisti privateer attacks on merchant vessels. The cities of CYNDARA in HABOT and BAVVERA in NORTHERN SIMBARA became the two main points of exchange where goods moving along the land route were shifted to the sea and vice versa, but Maenmist was (and remains) a major naval power in the region and employed fleets of privateers to harass sea trade.

In 3972 RM the Nacre League, alongside its allies Phyrr and SIMBARA, declared war on Maenmist in an effort to liberate enough land to reopen the Nacre Road. Allied artillery bombarded the notorious Maenmisti fortifications for weeks to little effects, forcing them to move their ground forces forward against its might bastions, leading to grinding war where success and failure were measured in inched moved forwards and how many thousands of troops a side lost.

Maenmist retaliated by bombarding the Simbaran city of OTHAMA with ATRAMENTAL BOMBS, levelling it and cementing its misanthropy amongst its neighbours. The southern borders of Maenmist have been a constant warzone since then as allied forces made up of a mix of the private armies of trade conglomerates and consortiums, and the national armies of their allied states attempt to reestablish a land trade route in the area.

NACREOUS COAST, the: Geo. Coastline around the city of CHATOYANT in the west of THE SURRACH. It is named for its many clams and other molluscs which are farmed in great number, the nacre of their shells being used for decoration.

NADA: 1. Sea. Bay off the eastern coast of SARAGOS, in the IAPETAN SEA.
It is an estuary of the river ISRAFA and TAARFA and is surrounded by dense mangrove forest.

2. Geo. Island in the above bay, just 3-miles off the coast of SARAGOS.

NADAB, CHILD OF OT, PLENIPOTENTIARY TO THE AMBER MINARET: (B. c. 3920 RM) Sup. SHAPER born in the BROKEN LANDS, though of TEMUJAN descent. She claimed direct ancestry from the Fire Goddess OT, making her FIREBLOODED, something evident in her affinity for the SPHERE of fire. She was elected Third PLENIPOTENTIARY of the AMBER MINARET in 3981 RM.

NADAIRA: 1. Geo. Mountain in the far east of TZALLRACH, forming a western extension of the ARGENT Mountains.

2. Pol. One of the four $\underline{ONARCHIES}$ of $\underline{TZALLRACH}$, occupying its easternmost territories. The state capital is located in the city of \underline{BAMETE} .

NADI'RAH KHAMSAL: also 'the Enclave of Purity'. Pol. Org. One of the SHAMASHI ENCLAVES OF THE SARASTROAN EMPIRE, whose tenets revolve around the importance of water and sanitation, particularly in arid territories.

The Order is based in the city of Argea and emerged from the Korachani Illdisadai Order of the Sanctified Inquisition in 3705 RM, following the Sundering of the Empire and its agents build and repair wells, dams, and cisterns. Its troops, known for their distinctive deep blue robes and turbans, also guard these structures, particularly in regions wild areas. They also control the spread of water-borne diseases such as cholera and dysentery, and raise awareness of hygiene amongst the people of the Low-empire.

They control water rationing in arid regions, and even oppose careless individuals and manufactories whose actions are a threat to the smooth running of the empire.

The Enclave's present MUTTAHARCH is HAKARIM ELSHIFFRA.

NADITABRA: Geo. Rocky coastal plains in the dominating the north of the SARASTROAN colony of IPSISSIMA^(1.). Its coastline is home to many varieties of seal.

NAEL: Mys. Rel. Phil. One of the SEVENTY-SEVEN NAMES OF THE UNDYING MACHINE.

NAEL NOT: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the prefecture of TERECHANT^(1.) in the north east of HOLOLACH^(1.), overlooking the MULL CITY-STATES.
Troops stationed in the fortress guard the entire eastern border of Hololach from MULL banditry.

NAFAHAL: See. Small fortified city in the south of the tribe of NUNEA, in the south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is a major link between Nunea, and the tribes of LINARIS, and ESSERIS (Pop. c. 17,000).

NAFIYUN: Set. Settlement in the c of VAALK, overlooking the BAY OF ALTAR. Its main industry is the quarrying bitumen from naturally-occurring bitumen in the surrounding area. It forms a part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 3,500).

NAGA: Plr. 'naga'. Mor. Large snake-like being with slender clawed forearms, no legs, and an anthropomorphised face. Some varieties are also known to have skin that secretes a toxin, which is used to paralyse their prey when they constrict them.

Nagas are barbaric creatures with little in the form of culture, though they are sapient. They are cunning hunters that live in lush tropical regions, such as the rainforests of WAELMIGH, and the WOLD, and the south of MENISCEA. They make use of simple tools, making crude clubs, short bows and bolases that they use hunt prey. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

NAGADKA: Set. Settlement in the west of ELEKHID, along the eastern shore of lake ADATAD, at the fork between the river YAGNOTH PHTHAN and its tributary, the river MAHEZEAL (Pop. unknown).

NAGAH: 1. Geo. Small island off the eastern coast of AHOPAH.

2. Set. Settlement on the above island^(1.) off the eastern coast of AHOPAH (Pop. c. 4,200).

NAGALAI: Set. 1. Settlement in the north east of AMMESH. Its main industry is amethyst mining (Pop. c. 8,000).

2. Large city in the c north east of KEPHUAAN, along the north eastern shore of lake ONILA. The city is built on stone stilts to protect against the yearly flooding of the lake, which causes its surface to rise greatly in height (Pop. c. 105,000).

NAGALARA: Set. Coastal settlement in the c south west of HABOT, overlooking the north west of the BAY OF ESSIA (Pop. c. 7,800).

NAGALARAA: See. Small city in the south west of HABOT. It was once coastal though became landlocked by c. 3400 RM, and is now some 10-miles from the coast (Pop. c. 13,000).

NAGAMOTH: Set. Marshy area along the border with the north west of SALOROC and the south west of NARTHEL. Until 3994 RM the region was entirely under the control of Saloroc, though Nártheli armies moved south aggressively, taking the settlement of PATHOC, which is a major producer of peat bog (Pop. c. 9,000).

NAGARHI: Geo. Region in the west of Ammesh that is known for its cotton fields and textile industries.

NAGAYUNA: also 'the Winged Snake'. Ast Con. Constellation in the NORTHERN HEMISPHERE. See Vol II: Constellations.

NAGEL: Ser. Small coastal city on the island of BEKSHEGNI, in the far south of the PANTHEON ISLES. It is one of few settlements in the Pantheon Isles with permission to breed MONOCEROUSES. Today it pays its tithe to the crown in the form of monocerouses, many of which are ultimately exported at great profit (Pop. c. 16,000).

 $\underline{NAGENNA}$: Set. Settlement and major agricultural centre in west of $\underline{NARTHEL}$ (Pop. c. 4,600).

NAGGAR: Set. Settlement in the north east of VENTHIR (Pop. c. 5,200).

NAGHIGH: Geo. Mountain range in the c south of the nation of AMMESH, in the AMMASHI^(1.) peninsula. A single pass crosses the mountain, which is controlled by the city of ZAIAMANA.

NAGILHKA: Rui. Shipbuilding settlement in the east of AHKA, captured by KORACHANI forces in 3998 RM. For 9-months it was a hub of Korachani operations in Ahka, and was used as a staging-point for land assaults, though it was destroyed by rogue shapers following a week-long offensive. It remains deserted today.

NAHAL: Rvr. River in Khamid. It was, before the Cataclysm, far larger, winding south east for about 400-miles from the NEFERATH Mountains before joining the LAUL EGLEA. Following the Cataclysm and the sundering of most of Khamid, the river's course was cut short at about 50-miles, and is no-longer a tributary, now ending at a 480-ft. waterfall leading directly into the waters of the RED ISLES.

NAHASHAZ: Geo. Expansive scrubland dominating the north west of MECHABET.

NAHEL: Set. Settlement in the c north of NÁRTHEL. It is one of many settlements in the region known for its opium and poppy honey production, including a unique honey that is made by bees that pollinate poppy plants (Pop. c. 10,000).

NAHESE: Ind. Set. Mining settlement in the east of THETIS. Its maim industry is the mining of VIRGIN STONES (Pop. c. 9,000).

NAHMOL: Rvr. River in the c of ALMAGEST and main source of water in the CITY OF ALMAGEST (though it is now largely polluted thanks to industries in the city and upstream). The river flows for 600-miles, including the length of lake BITHA, west from the GAEFANG Mountain before emptying in the STRAIT OF ALMAGEST.

NAHORIA: 1. Dem. 'Nahorite': His. Ntn. Ancient late FOURTH AGE empire existing in what is now the south east of MALAN. It collapsed in c. –2400 RM, leaving the area largely unpopulated. The descendants of the Nahorites built the FORGOTTEN SHRINE, and over the next two millennia would stabilise into the states of AMILLAERE (3.) in the north and LARAM (1.) in the south, which would eventually be united as the Eleven FOREST KINGDOMS by the LADY AEGIS in 2075 RM. NHORA, one of the eleven kingdoms of Malan, maintains some traits of the dead nation, and its name is a corruption of the old name. See Vol III: Extinct States.

2. Rui. Vast network of ruins in the south east of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in southern MALAN, to the south east of the city of NEHOMIA.

NAHRAS: Rvr. River in the emirate of east of LIMOTH^(1.) in the east of Limoth flowing south for 215-miles from sources in KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA Mountains before reaching lake ONODA.

NAHLA: Rvr. River in the c of ALMAGEST and tributary of the larger river NAHMOL. The river Nahla flows for over 45-miles west of the GAEFANG Mountain before joining with its parent, the river NAHMOL, which flows into the STRAIT OF ALMAGEST.

NAHRLLA: Ind. Str. ATRAMENTAL distillery in the prefecture of HOLOLACH^(1.) in the c east of Hololach^(3.), in the region of VALLAR. The distillery pumps umbra from below the Vallar plateau and pumps it south west to TOTHRIS, where it is refined and experimented upon.

NAHUM: 1. Geo. Large valley in the north west of VENTHIR, running some 450-miles from the JAELA Highlands, down to the DARK SEA.

2. Rvr. River flowing for some 400-miles in the north west of VENTHIR, emptying into the SEA OF BEAR.

 $\underline{NAIA} : \mathit{Set}.$ City in the c west of \underline{SAUA} (Pop. c. 60,000).

NAIDA: Lak. Large cliff-bordered lake in the south of AHRISHEN. Twice yearly (once following the melting of snow in the mountains surrounding AHRISHEN and again in the wet season) the lake expands to the north and north west as shallow wetlands around it are flooded. The lake once formed the south eastern-most part of the SEA OF PYREA and remains salty to this day as a result.

NAILAH: Rvr. River in the south west of THETIS flowing south east for 650-miles from sources in the THAAM AEGLA and the AHRAN highlands, before meeting the coast of the SEA OF ERUTHEA.

NAILLA BEATRIX, CHAMPION OF TOPHEL: (B. ? – D. 3862 RM)

DEMIURNE champion, who dedicated her life to guarding the

SEPULCHRAL PALACE and the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL. Though it is believed that she was alive during the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR'S sojourn in DAEKYN, little else is known about her, other than her death at the hands of the FIRMAMENTIST paladin ZULEIKA WHITEMANE.

NAIN: Set. City in the north east of SEDISIA, in the far north east of the region of VETHRAND. It was once coastal and known for its thriving harbours, though the waning of the SEA OF SERPENTS has left it some miles from the coast. Since then, the smaller city of RANAIA has appeared along the coast to act as a port to the larger city, and the once deep drydocks of Nain have been converted into markets and storage yards (Pop. c. 40,000).

NAISKA: Set. Small city to the north west of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of EDICULE^(1.). The settlement is situated along the southern-most point of the ASHER Mountains in what is known as the ISHAHAAT Massif, scant miles downstream of one of the sources of the river EDICA.

The city is renowned for its great cathedral to the $\underline{ASHKERON}$ (Pop. c. 74,200).

NAISSAN: Set. City in the c of PORPHYR, to the north of the volcanic lands of the RYKK Mountains. The city exists purely due to the many THIRD AGE IROTHANI ruins in the region. Following the chance discovery of functional TECHNARCANA dating back to that time in c. 3724 RM, the MAKHANATE began to send archaeologists to the region to purposefully search for such artifacts. This led to a boom-town appearing that would develop over the next century into the present-day city of Naissan.

Today the city is known for its historians and experts on irothani technarcana. Whilst many recovered artefacts are used by the Makhanate to advance their own research and technology, many more pieces are sold on to the secondary market for exorbitant prices, knowing that there is always someone willing to pay for such items (Pop. c. 40,000).

NAITO: Mil. Str. One of three major fortresses in the east of SAUA (the other two being the KOTIO and the HASHI), serving as a defence along the eastern border against the HENDECARCHY of MYEIN in MALAN. Built during a time of unease between the two states, the fortresses are still manned though they have not been modernised to the most recent theories of military engineering.

 \underline{NAIYA} : 1. Rvr. Wetlands in the c of the course of the river $\underline{NOTHIYA}$, in the south of $\underline{PARAIYA}$.

Set. City in the south of PARAIYA, in the west of the region of NOROUA, close to the above wetlands⁽¹⁾. It forms part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 43.800).

NAJ: Set. City in the c north of the IAHADAT STATES, in the east of SAMMAEA, and capital of one of the twelve States (Pop. c. 40,800).

NAJAFRET: Geo. Expansive labyrinthine rocky region dominating the far south west of OPHIUSSA.

NAKARA: Geo. Huge sheer-sided pit in VÂRR, measuring roughly square-miles. It is around 50-feet deep with a relatively flat floor. A few wide slanted paths lead down to the floor where a number of small communities now exist, built around the thousands of tiered caverns line the pits walls at different levels. Walkways link the niche-like caves (which are now mostly humble residences) with larger municipal and commercial structures being built outside.

NAKARAS: Geo. Mountain-range in the south east of the territories of ETHISTONITH in RHINOCOLOURA, forming part of the expansive ETHISTONI HIGHLANDS.

NAKARRA: Geo. Mountain-range stretching for 290-miles west-to-east, forming a border between the south of ARKOS^(L) and the north of SIRIPHAGOS. Its northern face is known for its many large and winding water-carved caves, the largest of which is known locally as the MAGARRAN MAW.

NAKED EYE PLANET: see PLANET, NAKED EYE.

NAKH: Sct. Fortress originating in c. 200 RM in the northern-most reaches of the BETHET mountain, overlooking the river-lands of THAUR in the CITADEL MOUNTS (present-day ARKOS^(1,1)). The citadel was originally erected to oversee trade between the free-city of SIRIPHAS and the city of MHAQ (later DUN MHAQ). The citadel became a fulcrum for native defence against KORACHANI incursions in the Citadel Mounts, though fell into disuse following Korachani subjugation of the region in 352 RM.

As Korachan established its rule in the region, it restored the citadel, bolstering its defences, particularly to the south east, where tensions with AUERENI barbarians began to increase in c. 375 RM. The fortress was eventually stormed in 481 RM, with the defence starving following a lengthy siege against the allied barbarian forces form MULCIBER. The fort remained a ruin until c. 675 RM, where it was resettled by Arkosian descendants of the imperial rule and became a caravanserai linking the free-city of Siriphas and Arkos. The caravanserai fluctuated in status throughout the years, finally falling dormant in c. 2325 RM following Sarastroan attacks into Arkos. It later re-emerged as a fortified caravanserai in c. 3200 RM with the growth of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 3.500).

NAKHÉ: Lan. KORACHANI name for SAUA. For the sake of clarity, the nation is referred to as Saua elsewhere in this volume. See Vol III: the Nations of Elyden.

NAKI: Set. Settlement in the south west of PORPHYR. Its main industry is farming (Pop. c. 7,000).

NAKIR: Soc. Str. Major ANCESTRAL TOKEN in the c south west of MALAN, acting as a border between the HENDECARCHIES of LONAR, CHLORIS, and STHAMAN. Situated along the course of the river DUR, it is divided into three sections, each of which lies in the territories of one of the aforementioned Hendecarchies. A fire is kept burning beneath the token, which is guarded by an order of secretive guardians.

NAKOSSAN WATERS: Sea. Shallow waters off the eastern coast of the SEPAHAUNATI peninsula, covering over 16,000-square-miles of coastal shelf. The waters are known for their many reefs and abundant sea-life.

NAL SARA: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the south west of VAALK, overlooking the STRAIT OF CYKRANOSH^(2.). It is a major military presence in the region and its fleets patrol the waters of the FOR and AHAMA, often encountering pirates from DERKAZ.

NALAHYR: Set. Major industrial city in the east of LIEVTHRA (Pop. c. 110.000).

NALALDA: Set. Settlement in the south of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, in the IMYRI TRADE-ZONE (Pop. c. 10,000).

NALANT: Set. Settlement in the west of LAASKHA, just north of the CAALUA Mountains (Pop. c. 5,000).

NALARDIL: Dem. 'Nalardili'. Ntn. Small nation in the west of WESTERN MENISCEA. It has a rich FIRMAMENTAL history, though recently became an ally to OSSIEL, and is abandoning its Firmamental heritage, helping fund MAGICKAL CRUSADES against other lands along the western coast of Meniscea. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

NALCR: Geo. Mountain-range forming an extension of the NGHALLEAL Mountains north into the south of CYHLAGHARR.

NALE: Dem 'Nalish'. Set. Major city in the c south of OPHIUSSA that is divided by the course of the MARAGA. It is of ancient heritage and dates back to c. – 400 RM, at which time it was a coastal city, with the mouth of the Maraga over 250-miles to the north.

It was one of the major polities in the region and commanded commerce and culture in a 100-mile radius, though as Elyden's sea levels decreased the city found itself landlocked by c. 1000 RM, following centuries of struggle. It diminished after this time, becoming little more than a small settlement whose people subsisted by salt-panning, however as the BAY OF SNAKES disappeared completely by c. 2200 RM, the settlement found itself along the course of the now-lengthened river Maraga, bringing fresh trade from upstream. It grew steadily in the past 1,000-years into the metropolis of today, becoming a melting pot of surrounding cultures and dialects, and the major TONGUE spoken in Ophiussa today emerged here between c. 3000 – 3400 RM.

Through the influence of its merchant houses between c. 2400 – 2700 RM, it became the heart of the OPHIUSSAN LEAGUE – formally an alliance of settlements along the river Maraga and the coastline, though in truth feudality with satellite cities owing fealty to Nale.

The League was dissolved in 3285 RM following decades of opposition from the allied cities of Drak Lon and APHALASS and mismanagement by its merchant houses and the defection of many of its satellites. The culture of Drak Lon dominated the region over the next decades, and Nale would eventually become part of a united Ophiussa (Pop. c. 1.160.000).

NALENI: Lan. language spoken in OPHIUSSA, which emerged in the city of NALE between c. 3000 – 3400 RM as various dialects and cultures converged in the growing metropolis. See Vol II: Languages.

NALESH: Rvr. River in the north east of RHAMIA and the north west of AHRISHEN, flowing intermittently between lakes GALATA, SAIDA, and ANELA for 300-miles from sources around the KARAEHLA Mountains.

NALHA: Set. Citadel and surrounding settlement to the north east of the region of the Arshi Plains in VIRAHAN, around 75-miles west of the ORCAMMOR Mountains that borders SAUA (Pop. c. 4,500).

NALIA: Rui. Ruined manufactory in the far south of the FREE-ISLES OF
PELASGOS. Once a major producer of sheet metal, it is now a ruin, the landscape around it still marred by the metal industry that ended there in c. 3700 RM.

NALLINDE and ALISHIN: also 'Nallinde Sarras' and 'Alishin Vakar'. Pol. His.

Per. NALLINDE SARRAS and ALISHIN VAKAR, two MALANI revolutionaries from the HENDECARCHY of AONIA who are most commonly remembered today for having defeated the tyrannical rule of HENDECARCH RAMATAR KAN in 3107 RM, restoring order to their home. Following his imprisonment, they ruled together at the head of a republic until the death of Nallinde, after which Alishin abdicated her seat, allowing others to rule in her stead. During the revolution the two famously rode mounts — Alishin astride a NANDI BEAR and Nallinde astride a TALLATHERE, and that is how they are now remembered.

A large statue of the two women stands outside the city of MELIBODHA, commemorating their victory, and their names remain very common baby names in Aonia to this day.

NALLINDE SARRAS: f. Pol. His. Per. (D. 3134 RM) see NALLINDE AND ALISHIN.

NALLO: Set. Area of around two dozen large fortified homesteads in the region of MOLOCH in the west of THE SURRACH, known for their production of saffron (Pop. c. 3,100).

NALN: Sea. Large bay off the south western coast of WESTERN SAMMAEA, to the east of the SEA OF NARANOR.

NALOCHLA: Set. Fortified settlement in the far west of KHALHAT in northern SAMMAEA. The city has links with THE SURRACH and is one of few of the LHAUS cities in the region to trade with outside regions (Pop. c. 15,500).

NALSHEN: rel. Set. Holy settlement in KHITAI, 7-miles south west of the city of GRATH. The holy pillar of KADA SHAN forms the centre of the settlement, which is dedicated to the religion and its deity (Pop. c. 10.000).

NALUTIS: Set. Copper and zinc mines in the east of SKAROS, along the SKAR Mountains. (Pop. c. 3,000).

NALVANNA: Ind. Set. Major industrial city in the north of AKANTHRA, along the course of the NACRE ROAD. Its skyline is dominated by, and its people live in gigantic crowded apartment blocks downwind of the manufactories and chemical plants that dominate its skyline, while its magnates and merchant lords live upwind in spacious estates amid engineered gardens that are within sight of the trade-route, giving the false impression of a beautiful city. Sadly, this is not far from the truth, and the city was once surrounded by woodlands

It is one of the largest cities in Akanthra, and is wealthy from selling its various manufactured items (including pig iron, worked steel, machined parts, and chemicals) to merchants travelling along the Nacre Road (Pop. c. 830,000).

NAMAN: Set. Small city in the c south west of ABACARDAT, in the region of UHBATAQ (Pop. c. 12,000).

NAMANI FLOODLANDS: Geo. Geographical region in ABACARDAT, in the east of SAMMAEA, forming the south east of the BITTER SEA, which is an endorheic lake. Its south eastern shore is very shallow and flash floods from highlands to the south can result in the lake rising, expanding its shore as much as 40 – 50-miles over the course of a few days, after which it retreats steadily as it evaporates.

NAMEGHA: Sup. Sea. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED waters forming the south western-most reaches of the SEA OF ESCHATA. Its waters are dark and viscous, and reach the shore of the south west of THE SURRACH, making habitation there impossible. The sunset over its waters is ironically a beautiful, if dark sight, with its light filtering through the Atramental smog with a rich purple hue.

The sea has, since time immemorial, been recognised as a place of death with many necropolis' and death temples surrounding it, dating back to various ages.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{MODERATE THREAT}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ Institute of Atramental Studies.

NAMEL: Set. Small settlement on the island of VALARCH in the south east of HOLOLACH^(1.) (Pop. c. 5,100).

NAMELESS CITY, the: Leg. Set. Fabled city in the PRISON CARCERI, said to lie beneath the sea bed in the east of the INNER SEA. Mariner's legends from across the sea speak of a city where uncaring 'gods' slumber and their fish-like children squabble amongst themselves for power on the sea floor (Pop. unknown).

NAMELESS ONE, the: Sup. Leg. Soc. OTHERWORLDLY entity that dwells in the shale wastes outside GRATH. Locals offer willing sacrifices to the Nameless One who corrupts them into grotesque servants, though little else is known of this outside of KHITAL.

NAMELESS WORLD, the: Int. Phil. Rel. His. 1. A term used by mythographers and historians to refer to the deep history of ELYDEN that is tens of thousands of years old and encompasses the earliest works of the DEMIURGES, their fall from grace, the birth of the SEEDBORN MORTALS and the rise of the first dozen-or-so generations of WOMB-BORN mortals that followed. In it are born the first tales of the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, many of which survive to this day.

Despite the vast wealth of knowledge mortals possess of this time from contemporary and later $3^{\rm rd}$ hand accounts, our full comprehension of this era remains frighteningly limited, and most scholars believe that most history from this era will never be fully recovered. Even what glimpses can be gleaned through shaping and other esoteric means are often fragmented or contradictory in nature, often raising more questions than they answer.

2. More specifically and less commonly, the Nameless World is a term used by some mythographers to refer to the time before the creation of ELYDEN, whatever form that may have taken.

In this context, the Nameless World is unfathomably old, dating back to a time before even the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN mentions. Many mainstream religions still observed today do not have creation myths, for most MORTALS do not concern themselves with such things, so never developed myths and stories around such things. Indeed, the thought of the world not existing is not even contemplated by most faiths, so ridiculous is the notion. For instance, within the Church of the Undying Machine (and its various sects and offshoots) it would be considered blasphemous to think that Elyden did not always exist, at least in the dreams of the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL.

NAMELLI: Rvr. River in the north east of TZALLRACH, flowing west for 450-miles from sources in the Khun, USIARA and ARGENT Mountains before meeting with its parent, the river BAELLI.

NAMESH: Rvr. River in the south west of CISNERIA, flowing south from sources in the BLACK MOUNTAINS, before meeting its parent, the river ARASTRA, which leads south through ATARAXIA. The river is fast-moving and have cut deep channels in the soft rock of the area, leading to vast distances that are uncrossable.

NAMITH: Pol. Set. Capital city of the LIMOTHAN^(1.) state of UKOLIST, located along the southern shore of lake ONODA^(1.), and linked to the coast by a wide slow-moving river around 20-miles long. It is known for its well-maintained harbour (Pop. C. 601,000).

NAMITIA: Set. Major city in the c north east of the MALANI HENDECARCHY of AMILLAERE^(1.), flanking a river of the same name flowing south from the FATHMMA highlands. The city is built along a natural FIRMAMENTAL LEY, situated beneath a large LODELITH that hovers a mile above the land. It is home to a large SHAPER-caste that elects new members from amongst potential Firmamentists from around MALAN, and rarely, other free lands (Pop. c. 100,000).

NAMMARA: Set. Major fortified coastal city in the south of KEPHUAAN. Its fleet is divided between its own harbour and that of fort SONALLIN, which together patrol the waters of the BAY OF COMMARA^(1,), keeping it safe (Pop. c. 310,000).

NAMMTEN: Sec. City in the c of METHUMN, to the south of the ANTENAS plains. It is a crossroads of trade and culture in Methumn and people from across the north east of the nation can be found there (Pop. c. 45,000).

NAMU: Set. Settlement in the west of ALAM BETHYL, in the south of the territory of ESAUN⁽¹⁾ (Pop. c. 6,000).

NANAEL: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTAL WASTELAND in the c of the HAMSHEN plains in VENTHIR. The earth here is spongy, making travel difficult. It seems to decay very slowly.

NANANC: See. Small city in the c west of SERROK. It is located in the region of KRALVISSRA, and is known for its expansive coal-mines (Pop. c. 11,800).

NANARS: Set. Settlement in the west of BANT, in the west of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.), in the east of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 2,900).

NANDI BEAR: Fau. These strange-looking creatures are a relatively common sight in tropical forests of south EASTERN LLACHATUL, particularly IACIO, SURUTUR and southern RHEA. Their powerful arced bodies are a cross between a horse and gorilla, having the general body shape of a pony, with the hunched appearance and powerful forelimbs of a gorilla. Their forelimbs have long claws that are used to dig roots, and they stand on their knuckles, giving them a strange gait. The face is very similar to that of a horse, but is wider and larger at the base, and connects to an immensely powerful neck.

Their colour varies from grey-khaki to dark browns, and they usually have pale vertical stripes, which let them blend into their surroundings.

Usually solitary creatures, nandi bears roam their forest homes looking for roots, fruit and plants to eat. After mating, a male and female will remain together until their young are born and are old enough to leave them. Litters are usually of one or two individuals. Though not domesticated, nandi bear cubs are known to fetch a decent price on the black-market, where they often end up the property of nobility, though they rarely survive long in captivity.

They are related to tallatheres, though are smaller, incapable of bearing the weight of a MORTAL. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

NANEN: Set. City in the south west of THETIS, close to the border with RHEA. It trades with the Rhean city of KEIMA (Pop. c. 39,600).

NANNAR: Set. Fortified hostel along the route of both the SHADOW MARCH and the RED ROUTE, in the south east of SARASTRO. It provides lodging to travellers and has many hostels and inns (Pop. c. 4,200).

NANNAS: Set. Settlement in the south of SARASTRO, to the north east of the HAAGEN Mountains. It is known for its expansive coal quarries (Pop. c. 9,000).

NANSHAR: Set. Small city in the east of SALOROC. It was used by VENTHIRI armies as a staging post during the WAR OF SUNDERING and many of its military structures remain in use today as houses (Pop. c. 7,000).

NAOS LIR: Set. City in the north of HARITH (Pop. c. 60,000).

NAOTHAT: Set. city in the east of the tribe of RAOSI, in the north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 23,000).

NAPATA: Set. Settlement in the c-south east of SARASTRO, along the path of the RED ROUTE, just south of the RAHUNAAN wetlands. It lies along the passage of the RED ROUTE and sees many caravans and merchants crossing it streets (Pop. c. 8,300).

NAPHTALI, HIGH-BORN PRINCE OF DUARIAHAHN: TEMUJA MARSHALL of the KESHIKS.

NAPRI: Set. City in the c west of KULIGALA in the c of the CARCHEMISHI

PENINSULA⁽¹⁾, in the east of SAMMAEA. It is a major source of onyx and has a notable open cast mine within a mile of the city, which has a thriving industry in the mining and cutting of the gems (Pop. c. 30,000).

 $\underline{NAQGORI}\!:$ Set. City in the far east of \underline{CHEIRA} (Pop. unknown).

NAQI: Lake in the c of AHRISHEN, forming a part of the ARESHI⁽²⁾ river system.

NARA: also 'the Sundered Temple'. Rui. Hewn cliffside temple in the KRATHI hills of the north of KHURAUR. The temple was sundered in two following an earthquake sometime in the 32nd century RM causing the Krathi clans to abandon it.

NARABIA: Rui. One of three ancient towers (the other two being DANTALIA and DECARABIA) scattered in the south east of SAMMAEA, this one located in the south of ILLAKRAR. The tower, of rusted metallic substance, is now sundered in half, with only a foundational stump remaining. The remnants of the tower are now scattered around it in a 50-mile radius, splintered into shards. The tower has barely been explored, though is rusted solid, its chambers and catacombs seemingly filled in from the inside, rendering exploration impossible.

NARACHAN: Set. City in the far south of KORACHAN, controlling trade south into HOAMM. It is one of the oldest continuously populated cities in ELYDEN, dating back to pre-imperial years. It was attacked by SARASTROAN forces during the WAR OF SUNDERING, though it suffered no major losses (Pop. c. 70,000).

NARAH OF KYON: m. Mil. Pol. Per. (B. 50 – D. 113 RM) Korachani general who fought in PELASGOS and was present during the fall of CYPRIA (3.). He is remembered as the founder of the KYONI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION in 96 RM in the city of DEOCHAN, KORACHAN, which served as the template for all later Orders.

NARAHASAPHAEL: also 'the Frozen Wastes'. Geo. Expansive mountain chain and rocky region in the north of WESTERN LLACHATUL, located above the arctic circle. The region is an extension of the BLACK MOUNTAIN chain and serves as the northern border of GNOTH and extends east into the south west of ALAM BETHYL. It is a barren, alien place, in part due to its position north of the northern POLAR CIRCLE, as well as its high elevation.

Despite this, its many deposits of mineral and ores have seen the place exploited by neighbouring regions and ruins (some dating back to before the FOURTH AGE) pepper its peripheries, particularly its south western face.

NARALARAM: Set. Coastal settlement in the c south west of HABOT, overlooking the north east of the BAY OF ESSIA (Pop. c. 6,400).

NARAMAS: Geo. Small mountain-range in the north east of SAMMAEA, forming a border between the SOLEYN TERRITORIES and SUOR.

NARAMISH TERRTORIES: Soc. Geo. Region in the north east of AZAZEM whose people are noted for their distrust of technology and who have chosen to remain cut off from modern life. Even with matter of SHAPING, they have eschewed the use of TECHNARCANA and cling to an antiquated, some might say romantic, outlook on shaping.

The Naramish Territories are a source of natural food and so long as Azazem receives the correct seasonal tithes the region is allowed to live in ignorance. Its main city, and home to its ruling household, is RAVVAH.

NARANISM: Rel. Religious sun-cult prevalent in AHRISHEN, the HARÉSHK, LYRIDIA, SAUA, and VÂRR and, with less popularity, NÁRTHEL and SARASTRO. The cult originated in Ahrishen in c. 2500 RM, where it grew in response to the increasing corruption of the world and ELYDEN'S concurrent diminishing.

Its priests are FIRMAMENTAL SHAPERS who use their abilities to safeguard their lands. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

NARAN DURA: Rel. Str. Temple in the north of LYRIDIA in the QANAM HALAT dedicated to the sun-cult of NARANISM.

NARANOR: Sea. Sea dividing MENISCEA and SAMMAEA. It was considered one of the FIVE SEAS of the pirate lore of the FIVE SAILS.

NARAR: Mil. Rnk. SAUAN archers, named after house most renowned for its use.

NARAVA: Set. Small settlement in the north of the BARRIER LANDS, overlooking the BAY OF BEREV. Its main industry is the farming of oysters for flesh and pearls (Pop. c. 2,750).

NARAVASH: Geo. Intrusive igneous mountain range in the c east of ELEKHID, in the east of SAMMAEA. The mountain is thought to be very old, and its sheer cliff-faces are crumbling and very dangerous, particularly on its eastern face.

NARAXAS: Set. Small city in the south of SERROK (Pop. c. 13,000).

NARI ADIX: Set. Settlement in the east of SURUTUR, in the delta of river ENNOIA. It is a major source of cotton in the area (Pop. c. 7,000).

NARI KAFIR: Set. Settlement in the c north east of SURUTUR. It is a centre of mastodon breeding and training (Pop. c. 8,000).

NARIK: Set. Small city in the north east of ESHIR⁽²⁾. It's main industry is the quarrying of the clay that the region is famous for. Much if it is made into pottery and the rest is exported (Pop. c. 12,000).

NARIRI: Set. Large settlement in ancient VENTHIR. It was destroyed by the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID in 101 RM, though later re-emerged, and became renowned as a maker of TAROKKA cards. The wane of Elyden and worsening weather in the region left the city abandoned once more in c. 3200 RM.

NARIS: Ind. Set. Copper and ALUMINIUM mines in the east of SKAROS, along the SKAR Mountains (Pop. c. 3,200).

NARIS PASS: Geo. Wide pass along the west of the SKAR Mountains in the east of SKAROS.

NARMAD: Set. City in the east of NÁRTHEL along the course of the river DAHAK. The city is the home of HOUSE KARDAARI, which bears a logging charter in the region (Pop. c. 50,000).

NARNOT: Mil. Str. Fortress in the prefecture of EROSENEA^(1.) in the north west of HOLOLACH^(1.), overlooking the river ALLAMAR and the nation of SAGITTARIA.

NARNOTHA: 1. Int. Myt. Obj. Ancient mummified being, possibly a SCION or MESOCHTHON, in the north east of AZAZEM. A city has appeared at the base of the remains, using it as a resource^(2.). See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

2. Set. Small city built around the eponymous mummified remains^(1.), which have served as resources and sustenance by its people since its appearance in c. 3600 RM.

It is now thought that the entity's memories and impulses are passed on through consumption, which would explain the relatively high number of oneiromancers and apparent mental illnesses recorded in the region. The city has a major Fasting Templar presence, and they outlawed the gathering and eating of the being in 3986 RM, though there remains a lucrative black-market for the organic material to this day (Pop. c. 12,000).

NARRA: Set. Small city in the c of SARASTRO, along the course of the river SOLONA. It is a stop along the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 16,900).

NARRATI: Rvr. River dominating the east of AETHIOS, flowing for over 1,000-miles from sources in the ARAM Mountains and the west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS, before meeting its parent, the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾, at lake NURAS. The land surrounding the river is amongst the longest permanently-settled in the region, and is home to many major cities, particularly since the growth of the BLEEDING PLAINS to the west has forces many people east.

NARRETI: Rvr. River in the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER.

NARROWS, the: Geo. Set. Soc. Sheer canyon-like canals in the CITY OF ALMAGEST hewn from the rock of its central headland. They reveal apartments hewn from the bedrock, with ramshackle balconies, and natural and man-made bridges connecting the disparate sides.

The canyons were dug deeper as $\underline{\text{ELYDEN'S}}$ sea levels slowly waned, though the construction of the $\underline{\text{DAMOF}\,\text{ST.SIMEOL}}^{(2)}$ rectified this across the $\underline{\text{SEA}\,\text{OF}\,\text{SEKHEM}}$, causing works to stop in 3758 RM.

NARRUQ: Set. City in the east of the JAHADAT STATES, under the control of the city of SIYYAT (Pop. c. 50,000).

NARRUQAVEQ: also 'the Stone City of Narruqaveq'. Rui. Ruined stone city situated in the north of PNESSA along a mile-long stretch of cliffs in the eastern face of the LIRAQAM Mountains. The ruins are thought to date back to the early FIFTH AGE though there are signs that they were inhabited as recently as c. 2000 RM.

NARSHAT: Set. Small fortified city in the west of BANT, in the east of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 13,000).

NARTH: Set. City in the c south of SARAGOS along the course of the river ISRAFA. It has a long and storied history, where it was once the northernmost extent of NAARETHI (then known as NAARTH) territories, with large armies patrolling its borders with what was then the south of VENATH, before Naarth became a vassal of Venath.

It was Narth, alongside TAAR AL (known today as TAAROM), that was responsible for Naarth gaining independence from Venath in 162 RM. Following the founding of Saragos in 1939 RM, Narth became home to a large Saragosi embassy and would eventually adopt its religion and various customs, including patriarchal dominance, which made it lose favour farther south. It had grown into a major industrial presence by 2343 RM and its burgeoning economy made it powerful-enough to abandon its Naarethi roots. Within a century it had become a political ally of Saragos, becoming assimilated by the nation. Completely 2472 RM. It remains a major industrial city to this day, and is well-known for its metallurgy (Pop. c. 192,000).

NARTHI: Lan. Language spoken in NAARETH. It emerged from ancient VENATHI and was quashed during almost 3-centuries of KORACHANI subjugation there, where it became corrupted by the predominance of KORACHANI. It re-emerged in 2825 RM after the Korachani empire abandoned the region, though continued to develop from outside influences, changing intrinsically. See Vol II: Languages.

NÁRTHEL: Dem. 'Nártheli'. Ntn. Nation positioned in the north of SAMMAEA, overlooking what was once the STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL and LYRIDIA – and LLACHATUL - beyond. As a result of its unique location, it is both a crossroads of culture, serving as a bridge between Sammaea and Llachatul; as well as commerce, where trade once passes regularly between the INNER SEA and the DARK SEA via the Strait of Nárthel until its permanent silting 3757 RM.

A vassal to KORACHAN since 84 RM, Nárthel had been exploited of its resources for millennia, until around 2950 RM, when many state-owned mines and quarries were sold to private interests after years of decreasing yields. This period signalled a downturn in Nártheli economy and culture, with many long-established settlements with their roots in boom-towns abandoned in favour of imperialised cities. Much of the west and northeast was abandoned to the DOMNITORS in 2950 RM as barren wastelands. This left much of Nárthel empty, save for the north west, which by then had become a major producer of OPIATES, and the only reason Korachan had not abandoned it altogether. VENTHIRI Patricians, working for the crown, capitalised on this neglect and over may centuries bought up hundreds of miles of land in the south of the nation for close to nothing, where they slowly began constructing a series of fortresses in relative secret.

Korachan finally abandoned Nárthel completely in 3699 RM, leaving it independent for the first time in over three millennia. Its rulers, the BENNANI (made up of Domnitors who remained there, forming a dynastic upper class), struggled to maintain control over the weakened region, and were forced to seek the economic aid of its neighbours to survive. This led to even stronger commercial, social and economic ties forming with Venthir and, to a lesser degree, SARASTRO, which continued until the WAR OF SUNDERING. Which time Venthir had coerced it into various trade and freedom-of-movement agreements that it used to its advantage during the WAR OF SUNDERING.

The SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE and the silting of the Strait of Nárthel decades later brought chaos and an economic downturn that made Nárthel a target to many foreign powers, including Lyridia, which in a period of uncharacteristic aggressiveness annexed much of northern Nárthel, including its then-capital DACIA in 3712 RM, leading to much disarray. A newly-freed Sarastro took advantage of this period to apply pressure against Nárthel, leading to their entire shared border becoming a contested warzone by 3810 RM. The conflict died down after decades of waning battles, leaving minimal change to the border, in favour of Sarastro.

Cities destroyed or evacuated due to the war were slowly repopulated, with the city of NEKIR becoming the new capital, even as the city of HAEGORN became a major power in the south-east. By that time Lyridia had appropriated some 30,000 square-miles of former Nártheli territory around the city of Dacia, which broke away from its captors to become an independent nation in 3785 RM.

Nárthel remains infamous for its opiate production, the fields of which dominate its western lands to this day, and the produce of which proliferates the harbours and markers of the Inner Sea and Dark Sea, as well as lands beyond. The SVATHI people, ancient ancestors of the Lyridian and Nártheli people, who survived as nomads early in the days of Korachani rule, became low-paid workers in the poppy fields and, later, in manufactories across Nárthel, and they would become a lower-caste that survives to this day. Today much of its opium produced in the expansive fields is used in the production of medicine, with the city of NEKOR being at the forefront of morphine production and medicinal research in ELYDEN.

Since the silting of the Strait of Nárthel, Nárthel has concentrated on land trade, linking the Inner Sea with the Dark Sea, with major harbours take sea trade and move it overland across Nárthel at great profit. Over the next decades it became very powerful under the leadership of a series of competent rulers, but in 3923 RM it became a protectorate of Venthir after years of trade partnerships and being subjected to propaganda. As a vassal of Venthir it gained access to resources and military power it was previously lacking, which were able to further secure its trade-routes.

Today it looks to quell growing Lyridian trade across the old strait, whose actions are in direct competition of its own interests. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

NÁRTHEL, PRINCE: (B. 512 – 561 RM) His. Pol. NICATHI merchant-prince who, following the confederacy of TAMESIS, Nicath and ENESH became the chief proponent of a true union. It was largely his actions that would lead to the funding of NÁRTHEL in -403 RM, which is named after him.

NATHEL STRAIT: see STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL.

NÁRTHELI CRUSADE: Pol. His. see CRUSADE, NÁRTHELI.

NÁRTHELI CODEX, the: Vol. Myt. His. One of three different versions of the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, that through corroborate study have formed the basis for the most accurate modern reconstruction of the Mythologia. The other two versions are the KASKEAN TOME, and the KHOLAMORI MANUSCRIPTS, and together they are known as the EXEMPLAR TRIAD.

It was discovered in the north west of the ARARAH basin in the south west of NÁRTHEL in 320 RM. After spending months in private hands, the codex, which is thought to date to the late FOURTH AGE, was apprehended by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, and has never been seen since. This is the least transcribed of the Triad, largely due to the short time it spent in private hands before disappearing, though many details of Elyden's creation story were confirmed through it.

Individual pages from the original Nártheli Codex turn up on the secondary market from time to time, though most literati consider these to be forgeries. The Dacian Manuscript appeared in Dacia in 996 RM, purporting to be a complete transcription of the Nártheli Codex, and there remains much debate as to the accuracy of this book, with many of its passages still considered apocryphal to this day. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

NÁRTHELI LINES: Mil. Str. Major fortifications built by VENTHIR in the south of NÁRTHEL in the years leading up to the WAR OF SUNDERING as a show of strength to SARASTRO. They proved a vital part of the Venthiri strategy during the war, remaining so until well into the independence of Sarastro, though they ultimately proved costly to maintain and by c. 3850 RM large sections had been left to crumble, with most of them in ruins today. Of note is the fortress of UATAT, which remains in use today and forms a major part of the southern defences of Nárthel to this day.

NARTINA: Set. Small city in the west of KAZZAR⁽²⁾, in the region of TASALOTT. It is famed for its game hunting, with trophies and pelts sold south, where they make their way to the market along the IVORY ROAD (Pop. c. 15,500).

NASAKHA: Set. Farming settlement in the north of AHKA, south of the river AMALTHEA (Pop. c. 10,000).

NASALON: Set. Settlement in AMANAL, in the south of LYRIDIA DHAI, known for its expansive salt-pans (Pop. c. 2,600).

NASARAP: Set. Coastal settlement in the west of IACIO, known for its fishing (Pop. c. 5,000).

NASAT: Rvr. Seasonal river in the east of J'THANA, flowing from sources in south western ARKOS⁽¹⁾ in the AMRAOT Massif. At its longest it flows for 70-miles before meeting its parent, the river Y'HATAT.

NASDEA: Set. Fishing town in the prefecture of $\underline{SONTADRIS}$ in the south of $\underline{HOLOLACH}^{(1)}$ (Pop. c. 4,700).

NASEUS: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED lands that cause fainting, located in the north west of KHARKHARADONTIS.

NASHA: Rui. Ancient silver mine in the west of the HENDECARCHY of DERAEIA, west of SARANTHIA, in eastern MALAN. The mines date back to the FOURTH AGE and were spent millennia past, though many of the pits and quarries remain open and accessible to this day, and they have been explored at length, though certain tunnels and hollows remain undiscovered.

NASHADRA: Rvr. Major river system dominating the north east of SEDISIA in the south west of LLACHATUL. It flows from many sources to the northern coast of the SEA OF SERPENTS.

NASHIR: Set. Settlement in the c north east of AQUARIIA, along the course of the river ISARRA (Pop. c. 5,000).

NASHT: Set. Small city in the c south west of KREM, along the course of the river SEBBADDI. It has a long history with the nearby city of KAMAN THAT, and the two are considered twins, one with the river flowing east and other with the river facing west, respectively. In c. 3103 RM, the two cities fell to a vicious PLAGUE that left their populations devastated, though they later rebuilt (Pop. c. 20,000).

NASOON: Set. Small fortified coastal city in the south west of KREM, overlooking the SHAM delta of the river SEBBADDI. It is home to man troops that patrol the nearby waters (Pop. c. 12,000).

NASTHONO: also 'the City of Bridges'. Set. City in the KATURUSH region in the c west of THE SURRACH. It is positioned on both sides of the river ESSRA, and is nicknamed for the many bridges that span the course of the river. In some parts, the river is concealed for large stretches, built over with vaulted manufactories and workshops (Pop. c. 71,000).

NASIA: 1. Geo. Valley in the north east of TAMAR, south of the CARTIGA

2. Rvr. River in the north east of TAMAR, south of the CARTIGA Mountains flowing east into the river ROHOTHA, to which it is a tributary.

3. Set. Fortified settlement in the far north east of \underline{TAMAR} , along the river Naisa^(2.).

NASIDHA: Int. Rui. Large ancient aqueduct that once crossed the north of HOLOLACH^(1.), from the river MAAR to just 10-miles from the coast. In its prime it's thought to have brought water to a now-forgotten city. The aqueduct remains in scattered parts, some as large as 25-miles long at its longest, though typically much smaller, averaging 400-ft high in places. Its pink granite blocks have been plundered for various architectural projects over the years and examples are found as far south as DUI ACHRIS.

 \underline{NASSA} : 1. Sea. Bay to the south east of \underline{SEA} OF $\underline{SÛN}$, along the border between $\underline{SALOROC}^{(1.)}$ in the west and \underline{IO} in the east.

2. Mil. Str. Major fortress in the east of $\underline{SALOROC}^{(L)}$, overlooking the border with IO.

NASSAGO: Geo. Escarpment in the west of SKAROS, overlooking the BAY OF ZENID. The area is known for its many caverns.

NASSARA ASHERATI: (B. 3942 RM) Pol. The Regent of ARSHAD. As is the custom in Arshad, the ruler (in this case queen) is called a regent, ruling on behalf of the UNDYING MACHINE.

NASSERT: Set. Settlement in the c south of KHAMID, close to the shore with PHARANX. Its people are expert hunters of local fauna (Pop. c. 9,000).

NASTAL: 1. Lak. Large lake in the c north west of SAMMAEA, situated partially along the border between the VESPERTINE LEAGUE and the nation of Nastal⁽²⁾. It is believed to have once been much larger, and has dwindled over the last centuries with the changing climate of inland Sammaea

2. Dem. 'Nastali'. Ntn. Landlocked nation in the c west of SAMMAEA. It exists despite the inhospitable terrain and climate of the region, making use of aqueducts and deep wells and aquifers, and is now a hub of commerce, trading goods from the south, north, west, and east. Most of its territories are empty, dominated by inland deserts and wastelands, and most of its cities are located atop oases and aquifers. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

NASUCHAN: Set. Near-coastal city in the south west of LAASKHA. The city is of little economical value, with few natural resources in the immediate area, though it has become a hub of activity related to the study and research of death and effects related to it (such as afflictions that effect the body after death). The city has been the centre of the NECROSAGE order since 1217 RM (Pop. c. 20,000).

NASUCHAR: Geo. Rocky hills in the south of LAASKHA, flanked by lowlands to the north west and south east, that until c. 3500 RM were the bays of DUULAA and EDASK, respectively. The hills are jagged and relatively young in geological terms.

NATAKH: Ser. Settlement in the east of THETIS, along the far north western coast of lake TATHARA. Its main industry revolves around the harvesting of MOONS CRABS (Pop. c. 5,400).

NATAL: Mys. Rel. In TEMUJAN SPIRITUALISM, the TUTELARY SPIRIT of blood. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

 $\underline{\text{NATAMURRA}}$: Geo. Plains and sparse woodlands in the south west of $\underline{\text{SAUA}}$, to the east of the river $\underline{\text{DANILLI}}$.

NATANI: Set. Major city in the south east of SAUA. It is located close to the border with the MALANI FOREST KINGDOM of LONAR, specifically the fortress city of ALK (Pop. c. 73,000).

NATASI: Ind. Set. Settlement in the east of GNOTH. Its main industry is lead mining (Pop. c. 3,800).

NATATH: Set. Coastal settlement in the west of the island of ALETARA^(2,) in the south of LIMOTH^(1,) (Pop. c. 6,300).

NATH: 1. His. Ntn. Ancient kingdom in the present-day ARID TRIPTYCH, that persisted until c. -190 RM, after which it fragmented into several warring city-states, from which VENATH would later rise in c. -50 RM. See Vol III: Extinct States.

2. Rui. Ruin of ancient capital of the eponymous nation⁽¹⁾, in present-day VENTHIR. The ruin is mostly buried, with fragments of ancient marble colossi protruding from the earth, with few standing remnants. The ruins have been extensively explored and looted by various cultures since and little of value remains to all but the most studious of archaeologists.

NATHA: Pol. Rnk. Title of grove-leaders in THE OLD FOREST.

NATHA TAMAR OF THE VANEFAN: Oth. Pol. HALFBLOOD ruler of the city of GITHILALAN in THE OLD FOREST.

 $\underline{\text{NATHAR}}$: Rui. Abandoned monastery outside the walls of $\underline{\text{DARENT}}$ in c PARTHIS.

NATHER: 1. Rvr. River in the south of TZALLRACH, flowing for 150-miles from sources in the southern-face of the HEBAT Mountains, to the BAY OF STEZA, east of the island of PARAI DEIS.

2. Set. Small fortified city in the south west of TZALLRACH, along the course of the river Nather^(1.). The settlement is in control of as many as a half-dozen smaller satellites that mine iron in the region. It processed the raw iron and ships the produce south to the harbour of BOUIKA (Pop. c. 17,000).

NATHES: Set. Settlement in the north of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of ALAMUT. The settlement overlooks lake MASTI, and is renowned in the region for its mussels and clams, which are sold upstream (Pop. c. 3.500).

NATHHAL: Set. City in the west of LAASKHA. The city is perched on the edge of a large mesa, whose three steep-sides makes it highly defensible. The city is noted for its SIPHON ENGINES that vibrate deep in subterranean chambers hollowed out of the natural caverns beneath the city. The engines are at the centre of the city's main industry, which is the manufacture of UMBRA, that is pumped south east to Baayn via the NATHHALAN PIPELINE (Pop. c. 70,000).

NATHHALAN PIPELINE: Sup. Ind. Str. Major UMBRA pipeline in the south east of LAASKHA, travelling 450-miles from its source in the ATRAMENTALLY-TAINTED region of BETHAL region to the capital city, BAAYN. The entire length of the pipeline is guarded by patrols based in the city of DHAIACHAN^(2.).

NATHI: His. Lan. Language spoken in the NATHI KINGDOM. The VENATHI and CHARAMANI languages spoken in VENTHIR and TZALLRACH respectively both emerged from Nathi following the fall of the Nathi Kingdoms. See Vol II: Languages.

NATHI FIG: Flo. Tree common to the far north east of SAMMAEA, endemic to lands south of the DARK SEA. It was common in ancient NATH, where it was cultivated for its sap and fruit, and spread from there to extant VENTHIR, and TZALLRACH, where it continues to be used. DIARCH'S THREAD, a rural sweet, uses sap from the tree. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

NATHI KINGDOM: see NATH.

NATHI PASS: Geo. Pass crossing the highlands between the JAELA and KOROR mountain between SARASTRO and VENTHIR, forming a part of the NATHI ROAD.

NATHI ROAD: Com. His. Geo. Major historical trade-route linking CARULA, the capital of SAOSTANA; with the High-city of NATH. Originating in -661 RM, the road was a permanent link throughout the rule of the NATHI KINGDOM^(1.), though diminished somewhat following the rise of VENATH, though was restored following the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S subjugation of both nations and remains in use to this day.

The Road's most recognised route was from LONIA, at the mouth of the SEA OF TIAMA, where it winds its way east, through the cities of Carula, SOLONIA, SAMARANA, PRINCEP'S CITY, ARGEA, across the Nathi Pass between the JAELA and KOROR Mountains, through the cities of MERAKHI and HETEPHEROPOLIS, where it tapers out over 2,000-miles from its origin in Lonia, around the ruins of Nath⁽²⁾.

The road was eventually replaced by the RED ROUTE, which continues to link present-day SARASTRO with VENTHIR, though the recent outbreak of open hostilities between the two nations has made travel increasingly dangerous, and few merchants are willing to cross the national borders. See Vol II: Major Trade Routes.

NATHLA: Rvr. River in PELASGOS.

NATIT HENSHEF: His. Pol. Autocrat who ended SAPETI DYNASTIES in 2384 RM with the assassination of SHEDKHARKHEM IV and usurped control of KHAMID.

NATJAL: Geo. Plains in the south of MHAROKK, covering some 100,000 square-miles of rough scrubland. The plains are typically recognised as being part of the southern Mharokkin border, which is shared with LIDEA and PARAIAYA, though the boundaries aren't clearly marked; a fact that causes some degree of friction with the cities of IDDEN and BELUAN, which mark the true northern-most expanses of their territories, respectively.

NATJAL, BATTLE OF: His. War. Major battle that took place in the south east of MHAROKK, to the west of the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.), between the 27th – 30th LIVIALEN 3705 RM within the larger MHAROKKIN CAMPAIGN, which was itself a part of the WAR OF SUNDERING.

Construction began on the $\underline{NATIAL\ LINES}$ in 3704 RM in response to the recent \underline{LIDEAN} declaration of support for $\underline{SARASTRO}$ during the unfolding events of the War of Sundering, and was completed by the end of the year in $\underline{AKORALEN}$, just a few weeks before Lidean forces began bombarding Mharokk from across the Shibboleth on the 8^{th} $\underline{MALICHALEN}$ 3705 RM, lasting for over two days and beginning the Mharokkin Campaign. The next few months saw various dissident offensives launched across the Shibboleth into Mharokk.

The Battle for Takuh saw Lidean later forces took the cities of Takuh and Kenearth in Algolen, though allied Korachani forces eventually retook Kenearth some two months later, allowing them to make a final push on Sarastroan forces on the 27th Livialen, beginning the Battle of Natjal. The attack was centred around Takuh, which is the last remaining Sarastroan stronghold in the region. The 3rd Steel Legion (Tarragon banner) of the Imperial Army performs admirably, pushing Sarastroan forces to the mouth of the river Shibboleth while taking minimal casualties themselves. The actions of the Clone Legionnaires were instrumental in deciding the conflict, which ended on the 30th of Livialen with their storming of the governor's hall, beginning the final months of the Mharokkin Campaign, which would end in favour of the Korachani empire.

NATJAL LINES: His Mil. Str. Defensive lines in the south east of MHAROKK, facing the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.) that were constructed in 3704 RM by IMPERIAL forces during the WAR OF SUNDERING, to defend against an expected attack from LIDEA.

The fortifications were hastily constructed and were not congruous, existing dozens of separate edifices. They were indeed attacked by Lidean and Sarastroan forces during the war and formed a major target during the MHAROKKIN CAMPAIGN, with most of them falling to dissident forces throughout the conflict. They were left to crumble following the conclusion of the war, though parts of them have been restored over the past decades since Mharokk became a vassal to KORACHAN in 3930 RM and its forces look uneasily east to the.

NATORA: Set. Small city in the west of the tribe of KANAATI, in the c north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 12,000).

NATRAI: 1. His. Rvr. Historic river in the east of VÂRR that once flowed south for around 400-miles through the SARRAHAL and LARACHON Mountains, to the coast at the SEA OF PROPONTIS. It ran dry by c. 2840 RM after many of its sources ran try and other parts were redirected.

2. Geo. Canyon system in the east of VÂRR and remnant of the now-dead river of the same name⁽¹⁾. The canyon is around 150-miles long and dominates the eastern VÂRRAN PLAINS.

NATRIA: Set. Small city in the c of THE VORANDINE. (Pop. c. 11,000).

NATRIS: Sea. Bay in the prefecture of SONTADRIS in the south west of HOLOLACH^(1.).

NATTAR: Rel. Str. large temple dedicated to the Paraiyan cult of the Church of the Undying Machine in the north west of Paraiya. It was once popular, and frequented by thousands of people daily, but its influence waned following the transfer of power from the city of BAKKOU to SOPORA in 3813 RM. It remains in use today, though many of its annexes have been abandoned and sealed off, and it is inhabited by an order of reclusive monks, though it also maintains a hostel where travellers can seek shelter.

NATTRANEN: Geo. Mountain in the far south of the nation of DURCHAA, forming part of the border between it, SABIA and the DESOLATION OF ASTUDAN.

NATURA FAEREX: Med. Vol. Anatomical treatise published by the UNIVERSITY OF HIGH BASRETH in 3159 RM, written by the scholar Masalli Kotraba.

NATYON, THE EVERTOWER: His. Str. FOURTH AGE tower of a singular monolith of absolute black stone, whose rooms and catacombs are hewn from the stone. Thought to have been the work of a SCION of OTHERWORLDER, it was once the centre of a small demesne, though stands now half-shattered, any riches plundered centuries ago, though rumours abound of undiscovered crypts and vaults deep beneath its rubble-strewn base, luring treasure-hunters.

GAUGON VEIL: Sup. Geo. Region of ATRAMENTAL TAINT in the north west of ETUA that is characterised by its impenetrable darkness. Some religious fanatics travel here to seek communion with the GIBBERING WORM, though few return.

The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

NAUIRON: Set. Small city in the north west of KHITAI, overlooking the GULF OF VEGATETH.

NAURACH: Pol. His. Rui. Now-ruined KORACHANI colony in EHBOT, founded in 368 RM, south of the river THAUR. The settlement was initially a boom-town erected in the wake of gold, quartz and copper deposits found there, though it rapidly grew into a fort to fend off AUERENI attentions from the south east. After the mining boom died down, the settlement served as the staging point for various colonisation attempts of the GROWING MOUNTAINS and other lands to the south, including RHINOCOLOURA, between c. 400 – 420 RM.

The city was sacked during Auereni attacks in 461 RM, though as engagements drew on, it was resettled and fortified by the barbarians, serving as a gathering point for arriving reinforcements in their war against Ehbot. By c. 500 RM it had become their capital, where most offensives were launched. Imperial reinforcements arriving in Ehbot in 534 RM attacked Naurach, forcing the barbarians to withdraw from the region. This left the settlement ruined, and though it has intermittently served as a camp to various groups, it was never truly resettled and remains abandoned to this day, its stones barely recognisable as the foundations of a once-thriving area.

NAURU: Set. Settlement in the south of TZALLRACH, known for its LODESTONE mines that penetrate vertically into the hard stone of the area (Pop. c. 5,000).

NAUTHANATIDS, the: Org. Originally a funerary cult in NARTHEL, dating to before KORACHANI occupation in 84 RM. It has changed over the millennia and is now overseen by the BATIK class.

The cult is entrusted with providing medical aid to those approaching death, administering last rites, mourning for those who have passed, as well as providing proper disposal and veneration of the dead. The organisation is based in the city of NEKOR in Nárthel, though is now spread across the INNER SEA within the TWIN EMPIRES.

NAVAH BERDEN: (B. 537 – D. 615 RM) Car. IONIC explorer and pioneer. In 559 RM he began an epic journey that would last until the end of his days, taking him around the known coast of SAMMAEA, from the SEA OF SERPENTS in the west to the SEA OF LETHEA in the south east. His epic travels have since come to be known as the VOYAGE OF BERDEN.

NAVISH: Set. Small coastal city in the west of NÁRTHEL (Pop. c. 12,200).

NAWDARA: Set. Small city in the north of the JAHADAT STATES, in the east of SAMMAEA, and capital of one of the twelve States (Pop. c. 18,600).

NAXAR: 1. Geo. Region in the south east of KHULL. Its people were exploited by the SORCERER-KINGS^(3,) of antiquity, and forced to work as labourers in extensive granite quarries that were used to source the materials for their grand monuments.

2. Set. Small city in the south east of KHULL, in the above region^(1.). Its main industry remains granite quarrying to this day, and many statues have their roots in granite that is quarried here (Pop. c. 18,000).

NAXAS: Set. Settlement in the c north west of SERROK, in the eastern face of the ASARODON Mountains (Pop. c. 3,200).

NAYALA: Set. Coastal settlement in the south west of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS, in MALAN, overlooking the waters of the BROKEN LANDS (Pop. c. 7.200).

 $\underline{\text{NAZAGASH}}$: Set. Major coastal city in the north west of $\underline{\text{DANU}}$ (Pop. c. 250,000).

NAZAR: Set. City in the far north east of MHAROKK, close to the border with HARAPPA(³⁾. It is part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 50,000).

NAZHUS: Ser. Settlement in the far south west of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT. Its main industry is the quarrying of coal, most of which is exported (Pop. c. 6,200).

NBASA: Set. Small city in the c south west of TZALLRACH, serving as a link between the cities of the LURIUM plains and the RIVER LANDS to the north (Pop. c. 15,000).

NBESZA: Int. Rel. Rui. Crumbling idol carved from a massive block of strange grey-white stone in the c of N'RAKH. The statue predates the appearance of AANTH in the region by some millennia. Its features now obscured by weathering and the mosses and creepers that hang from it, the idol was thought to have been a simulacrum of a deity or SCION worshipped by mortals in the region, the place is abandoned, shunned by the AANTHA and other creatures in the region. Accounts of occasional tremors centred around the object claim the events are followed by outbreaks of SHADOWISPS that drift across the land, bringing to ruin to everything, though little evidence exists to support this.

NDAMAN: Set. Settlement in the far north west of AETHIOS, west of the city of AESAPIA (Pop. c. 8,000).

NDEPHARA: Geo. Expansive canyon system in the c of the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes stretching for some 500-miles.

A large endorheic river, known as the SPICIA, once flowed through the canyon, shaping the NUMINIAN plains that dominate the central basin of the Umbra Sokhar into the distinctive canyon formations, though the river is now dry, its major sources spent, and the dwindled river redirected to other regions by damming upstream. The canyons are noted for the many temples and ancient abodes carved into their cliff-faces.

NDISA: Set. Fortified coastal settlement in the west of TZALLRACH, 35-miles north of LUCCITARIA. Its main industry is the cultivation of reeds, and it forms a part of the GREAT ROAD trade-route, and offers lodging to merchants and travellers passing through it (Pop. c. 5,000).

NDORTUR: Sea. Body of water in the south of ELYDEN, dividing the island-continents of BROR⁽¹⁾ and the island of ISEA from each other.

NE'ARIM: Mar. Rnk. In AETHIOS, caste of warrior-sages descended from the now-extinct SEPHIAN SHAPERS. They were instrumental in defending Aethios against IMPERIAL explorers and incursions during the early days of the Korachani empire, in c. 500 RM. The name is still used today, though it is now used synonymously to represent members of the police force, and few members, if any, are known to be shapers.

 $\underline{\text{NEAGARI}}\text{: 1. For. Forest in the north of }\underline{\text{AHRISHEN}}\text{ largely composed of the eponymous flora}^{(2.)}\text{.}$

 Flo. Hardy tree with wide exposed root systems, common in the north of AHRISHEN, SAUA and MALAN. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

 Republics of ALMAGEST and PARTHIS, as well as countless independent nations and other distant empires and kingdoms.

It is commonly divided into two – the northern Near Hemisphere and the southern Near Hemisphere, dominated by the aforementioned continents, respectively.

Conversely, the remainder of Elyden, known as the FAR HEMISPHERE constitutes the continents of MENISCEA and BROR^(1.).

NEAISHIA, BRINGER OF WAR: His. Oth. An enigmatic OTHERWORLDER whose purpose was to propagate war through any and all means including subterfuge, corruption, and guile. Scholars claim she appeared to the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR in -6 RM in VAALK and was a major contributor to the consequent wars that united THE INNER SEA.

She was silent during most of the FIFTH AGE, despite the major conflict that predominated its end. She is recorded by the prophet AAMON MAHALALEL as having appeared once to MELCHIOR ONÉSIMUS in 4006 RM, in mirror of her manifestation to Malichar just over 4000 years earlier.

NEANDARA: (3211 - 3470 RM) His. Ntn. Relatively short-lived FIFTH AGE empire in the north east of SAMMAEA, in what is now RHINOCOLOURA. Emerging from the nation of ERINAKH LAUR following the subjugation for surrounding lands by the OTHERWORLDER NEANDER, the empire was belligerent, known for its well-equipped armies that between 3042 - 3211 RM marched across the lands surrounding the city of HAZOR, which was made capital of the newly-christened Neandara.

The empire grew rich from industry and trading, and in 3298 RM marched against LAKERTHA, succeeding in taking most of the nation within a year, expanding its territories further.

Neandara prospered following this, maintaining its wealth, and trading with the SALT ROAD, protecting its borders against foes that had no intentions of antagonising it. But it was not to last, and the empire crumbled following the assassination of Neander in 3462 RM. His offspring quarrelled amongst themselves trying to decide who will rule in his place. The mortal populace would revolt amid this chaos, storming the imperial citadel in 3469 RM, finally able to depose the fragile ruling house the next year. The offspring of Neander were either executed or exiled, with some of them fleeing south, settling ETHISTONIH and PNESSA.

The resistance instated the leaders of their uprising as the rulers of Hazor, and one of their first actions was to abandon the name of Neandara. Instead, they named their home Rhinocoloura, a corruption of the old name, Einokh Laur, that had grown in popularity amongst resistance members. See Vol III: Extinct States.

NEANDER: 1. (B. unknown – D. 3462 RM) Oth. Dark-skinned OTHERWORLDER, commonly acknowledged to be an AEHARI. He became the ruler of the city of HAZOR in 2965 RM after supplanting the ruling MAATHORA sect there. He later took over the three prefectures of ERINAKH LAUR, renaming them the NEANDARAN empire. He remained ruler until his assassination in 3462 RM, which would lead to the fracturing of his house, and the eventual collapse of Neandara, named after him, which was founded in 3211 RM, after the three prefectures of Erinakh Laur was united under his banner.

2. Oth. HALFBLOOD house sired by the eponymous otherworlder in the city of HAZOR in RHINOCOLOURA, between 1001 – 3462 RM. Careful not to dilute the bloodline too much, he sired nineteen children, and never allowed the house to surpass 500 in number. The house was divided in two – the TYRANON upper caste, made up of first to third generation halfbloods; and the AGORNON middle-caste, made up of fourth generation halfbloods and above.

NEANDERINE CITIES, the: Ntn. Region in the north of PNESSA, which became a stronghold to members of house NEANDER^(2.) who were exiled from RHINOCOLOURA in c. 3469 RM. They settled in the north of Pnessa and in 3493 RM managed to wrest many cities in the north of Pnessa in a coup that left the region known as the Neanderine Cities. The region would later become the base of the HMMEN REGIME, which would go on to overthrow the CAIAN monarchy in 3959 RM.

Though the Hmmen region now rules from the capital in IRUT MARKA, the north remains their most trusted territory and many lieutenants and generals over their ancestry to this area, which remains stoically devout.

NEANDRYA: Sec. Fortified city in northern EREBETH, forming part the IVORY ROAD (Pop. c. 38,500).

NEAR: Set. Small city in the region of ADA in the c west of THE SURRACH, along the course of the river HATHURAN. It is known for its reed cultivation and reed-based items (Pop. c. 11,200).

NEARDIS: Set. Small city in the c of GNOTH, along the GNOTHI ROAD that links the major Gnothi cities together. It is a major caravanseral along the road and has many hostels that are used by pilgrims on the way to the SPLENDOR SOLIS – the last such major civilised stop before the 100-mile trek to the monument (Pop. c. 5,000).

NEARPA: Set. Small fortified city in the north of OPHAR. Its main industry is the manufacture of ceramics (Pop. c. 13,000).

NEBER KHE: Rel. Dei. The Creator-deity of the KHAMIDIAN pantheon and patron of FIRMAMENTISTS. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

NEBER KHE'S EYE: Rui. Ancient KHAMIDIAN shrine on an island in the SEA OF FIRE (Esh Etek). The shrine was originally dedicated to the Khamidian creator deity of the same name and takes the form of a large alabaster-coated dome (most of which is now in ruins). Within was the round altar of NEBER KHE, upon which was a mosaic of the depicting the world. The altar has since been stolen.

NEBER NEL: Set. Small town in the north west of KHAMID. Though the name goes back thousands of years, it has been used at various points in history, often for settlements in the generic area which bear little links to one-another.

The town, like its predecessors, is named after the creator-deity of ancient Khamidian religion and is famous in neighbouring nations for its large domed temple that is said to predate the CATACLYSM.

NEBESH: Scr. Settlement in the east of THETIS, along the far north eastern coast of lake TATHARA. Its main industry revolves around the harvesting of MOONS CRABS (Pop. c. 4,200).

NEBHET: Set. Settlement in the c south of KHAMID, close to the shore with PHARANX (Pop. c. 7,200).

NEBRA: Set. Small city in the west of KHAMID, in the northern-most reaches of the IAHNEF marshes.

NEBRO: also 'the Rebel. m. Myr. His. Per. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, the only known SCION of the DEMIURGE IALDABAOTH. He fomented unrest amongst the LHAUS, who Ialdabaoth had paid little attention to, and was able to wrest many of them to his own causes, which seemingly changed with the seasons. Under his control many monuments too Ialdabaoth were toppled, and he eventually propagated an exodus of many disenfranchised lhaus from their ancestral lands across ELYDEN.

Little is known of his fate, and he disappears from accounts in the mid-FOURTH AGE, with his last mention in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN being of him walking into a rift that tore the sky and earth vertically asunder after having slain an eyeless abomination (possibly an imprisoned MESOCHTHON) that had slithered from the rend as it opened. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

NEBRO'S CICATRIX: Leg. Sup. Geo. Great blackened depression in the north west of NASTAL, that local legend claims is the scar of an ancient celestial phenomenon.

It is named after the scion NEBRO, who is mentioned in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN as having walked to his doom here over 8,000-years ago, though few are those who would know such esoteric history.

NEBUCHACCID: Set. Southern-most city in LHACCIDA⁽²⁾ (Pop. c. 39,000).

NEBURO: (D. 3966 RM) Edu. GIGANRI annalist who travelled across his homeland of GNOTH, noting his observations and discoveries. He published many of his notes in 3891 RM as a travelogue titled 'RURAL GNOTH AND ITS PEOPLE' that became popular in urban areas of GNOTH, as well as farther afield in the INNER SEA REGION.

NEBYLITSA: also 'the Nonsense City'. Set. Subterranean city in the PRISON CARCERI, said to lie beneath the west of the LYBIC SANDS in the c north west of $\underline{\text{NARTHEL}}$. It is mentioned in fairy tales and nursery rhymes in the north east of $\underline{\text{SAMMAEA}}$, where its denizens (thought to be $\underline{\text{GRUAIMIN}}$ steal naughty children and take them below ground. Though considered fanciful by most, there may be a grain of truth to the tales (Pop. unknown).

NECHIL: Set. Settlement in the c south west of ACHAA^(2.), close to lake MAXELL. Its main industry is the manufacture of cay used in pottery. It is built atop an ancient FOURTH AGE ruin, and though little is known of its origins, it is thought to be reclaimed industrial land – as ancient rusted blocks of iron indicate that archaic machinery was once found here.

NECROMAGUS: Plr. 'necromagin', or 'necromagi'. His. Sup. Org. Mil. Rnk. A largely historical SPHERE of SHAPING in which the SHAPER had limited control over dead bodies, at rare times even being able to grant them a semblance of life for short time. More commonly, they were able to extract memories, EXORCISE lingering SPIRITS (1.) from their spent vessels (or imprison them in inanimate objects), form a link with the recently dead allowing people to speak with dead loved ones, or bring life back to necrotised tissue, amongst other things. Few were able to do all the above, and most had a specific repertoire of skills they could call upon.

Necromagi originated in the ARID TRIPTYCH early in the FIFTH AGE and by c. -500 RM had spread to NÁRTHEL, where they had become an important part of culture, being responsible for many funerary customs and traditions by the time of the KORACHANI EMPIRE'S appearance in those lands.

The necromagi were slowly stripped of their power and influence under the tyranny of Korachani rule, and many of their roles were eventually subsumed by SHAPERS of the MINASTERIA OF BATIKIN, which was founded in AGLAIA (2), AZAZEM, in 925 RM. Few necromagi remain today, and those that do remain in the Arid Triptych region, though they are largely indistinguishable from OCCULTISTS. See Vol IV: Spheres and types of Shaping.

NECROPOLIS OF THE FALSE EMPERORS: Rel. Rui. Expansive necropolis a few miles north west of the capital city of OPRET^(3,) in the CHILD'S REALM OF OPHAR, where the bodies of failed CHILD EMPERORS were buried after their 8th birthday came without the prophecy of the CHILD'S ADVENTISM being fulfilled. Over 1,000 mummified bodies are buried here, each interred within a small temple, and the entire complex is guarded by adherents of the Child's Adventism.

NECROPOLIS OF HUTTON: Rui. Ancient stone necropolis-city, located in the c west of SAMMAEA, in the south west of the VESPERTINE LEAGUE, whose million inhabitants died in a ritual of self-sacrifice sometime in the FOURTH AGE, entombing themselves alive in tombabodes, performing self-mummification until they eventually died, leaving their city a tomb, whatever dark purpose that required the sacrifice of a million bodies unknown and unhinted at.

NECROPOLIS OF KEISHHAAG: Rel. Rui. An ancient necropolis in the UMBRA SOKHAR, taking the form of a deep sinkhole with hundreds of temples hewn into its sides. It is unknown how the people who built the temples would gain access to them, as they are unlinked with doors facing the abyss. Scholars believe they may have been constructed by a winged race, such as the AL AKHI or ILLIDRAEN, or more pragmatically, there may once have been a wooden scaffold linking them together.

Each of the temples has a single small room with a stone altar inside, and dozens of small niches on its facade, each of which is large enough to house a disassembled mortal skeleton.

NECROPOLIS OF NDAT: Rel. Rui. Ancient stone necropolis, hewn from the living rock of the western reaches of the AGGOSHETH in the far east of ANUBIA.

NECROPOLIS OF SHAELL: Rui. His. Arc. Ancient stone cemetery in the far north east of AZAZEM, close to the border with the OLD FOREST. It is thought to date back to the THIRD AGE and its stone sepulchres and temples are largely destroyed, buried by the soil and dust that has accumulated around them over aeons. Many expeditions have been made into the region throughout the FIFTH AGE, which is made of up of various necropolises, scattered over a wide area of rocky uneven terrain in the northern-most foothills of the RHAECHA Mountains.

NECROSAGE: Soc. Rnk. A caste of scholars in the KORACHANI EMPIRE who devoted their lives to the study of the dead. Their lore branched into many different subjects, including ATRAMENTISM, BIOMECHANICS, and TECHNARCANA. The seat of their power was in the city of NASUCHAN, in LAASKHA and remains a centre for the study of death to this day.

NECROMANCERS TOMB, the: Leg. Myt. Legendary site in the c south of J'THANA, inaccessible, in the CENTURY PLANT forest of MALU. The place is said to be an ancient pylon that was inhabited by an AANTH shaman. N'RAKHI folklore depicts the tale thusly:

There lived in the forest of Malu a blighted shaman, an ATTERKHAT so dreaded that he was shunned by all tribes and people of N'rakh. He lived in a ruined tower where he called upon a wicked aspect of the moon deity to grant him power. One day two children came across his home and he invited them in, where they were enchanted into serving him for eternity. The forest was angered by this act and imprisoned him, growing so thick that no magick could save the shaman from his tomb, where he died in solitude, a bitter man who, with his dying words, swore that he would overcome the verdant prison.

See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

NECROMANCY: Sup. Mys. Form of SHAPING where the SHAPER can communicate with the dead. The exact nature of this varies wildly from place-to-place and across different periods, though most commonly consists of the shaper – usually an ANIMIST – ASTRALLY PROJECTS, allowing them to speak with SPIRITS⁽¹⁾ of the dead and unborn.

Less commonly, but perhaps more famously, necromancy involves restoring an expired body to a semblance of life through TECHNARCANE or MYSTICAL means.

NECRONOMICON: Vol. PELASGOSI book of the dead, in which the names of dead kings and heroes were once listed. It is kept in a temple in the SCYTHE Mountain, where it is guarded by templars and a single scribe who writes names into its pages.

NEDALL: Set. Settlement in the c south of ALLASAN, known for its food production. It is a major source of food and provisions to merchants passing through the settlement while travelling along the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 5,800).

NEDMEN VOSTAIM: (B. 3954 RM) Rel. Rnk. Current EXORCISOR GENERAL of the MINASTERIA OF EXORCISMS.

NEEDLE OF KHASIL: Geo. Arc. Metal pillar in the c south west of AQUARIIA. Standing around 100-ft. tall, it is untarnished and perfect of sheen, tapering to a needle point. Its origins are unknown but are thought to lie in the SECOND AGE and is likely the design of a DEMIURGE of SCION. Most attempts at analysing the substance proved futile, and the material and origins of the pillar remain a mystery.

NEFERATH: Geo. Red mountain forming the western-most reaches of KHAMID. Its southern-most part was destroyed during the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID, claimed by the BOILING SEA, now known as the RED ISLES.

NEFHETAKHT: Geo. Coastline in the east of the ESH PHARAS. The coastline is volcanically-active, and constantly expanding west. The contact of molten rock with the water leaves a 70-mile stretch of coastline constantly shrouded in steam, after which it is named.

NEFIRIA: Set. Small fortified city in the far north of EPHATTA, guarding its northern borders against LIEVTHRA in the west and SYNCHTHONITHA in the east. The city itself if originated as a bastion settlement in c. 2840 RM, completely ensconced behind consecutive series of walls, and the extant fortifications were constructed in the centuries following the founding of the city, sprawling for dozens of miles in all directions (Pop. c. 25,400).

NEFRATIR SABAH, PRINCESS OF KHARR: f. Per. (B. 3976 RM) Mil. Pol. Princess of LAHNEF and daughter (and second child) of the current PHAROANT of KHAMID MESSIT SABAH III. As the second child of the Pharoant, Neferatir is amongst the richest and most influential figures in Khamid and is the GUARDIAN OF THE BRACERS OF THE HAWK – a prestigious title that has never been granted to a member of the royal household before. She is a skilled combatant, and is well versed in the political history of Khamid and surrounding regions, and is also widely regarded by many as the most beautiful woman in Khamid, if not the entire DARK SEA REGION.

Nefratir was a mere 5 years old when her mother ascended the throne. Even at that young age she was already known for her good looks and strength, both physical and mental, and by the age of 15 she had begun her studies in the royal military academy of KHARR, learning political and military history, as well as mastering classical weapons as was the custom in the resurgent dynasty, where many antique customs and traditions were resurrected.

She enlisted with the SLAYERS after graduating at the age of 18 against her mother's wishes and proved herself more than competent in the field, winning over her mother and the PHAROANT COUNCIL alike. Despite suffering a grievous injury during a mission in the DHASSRA, she was promoted through the ranks, becoming a sergeant.

In the summer of her 21st year, she was instrumental in revealing and quelling a planned insurrection, which made her far more popular, and her mother bestowed upon her the great honour and responsibility of protecting the fabled treasure known as the BRACER OF THE HAWK, whose guardian she remains to this day.

Her rank means that in times of war it is also her duty to carry the standard of the Khamidian armies.

NEGARAL: 1. Geo. Island off the western coast of RHEA, in the SEA OF PYTHEA.

2. Set. Island city-state on the above island^(1.). It was founded by triplet warlords, exiles of RHEA, in c. 3150 RM. It was infamous for its pirates for many decades, though following the fracture of Rhea and the rise to power of the COURT OF DREAMS 3242 RM, the pirate fleets were destroyed and the city brought under control of Rhea. Today the city is fortified and guards the entrance into the BAY OF AURADIA (Pop. c. 30,000).

NEGASH: Set. Fishing settlement forming part of the City-kingdom of ENNAIAH, to the south west of THE SURRACH, close to the south eastern periphery of the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED waters of the NAMEGHA (Pop. c. 20,000).

NEGHIRREN: Rvr. River in KARAKHAS flowing north for 650-miles from sources in the KELACHOT Mountain crags before emptying in the GULF OF SUKH, in the SEA OF DEKANA. Tributaries flowing from MT. OROROTH are tainted orange from ores.

NEGADHAISH ALLAI: Int. Myr. His. Ancient unknowable beings mentioned in clay tablets unearthed in VENTHIR, near HAUTIA, dating back to the days of the VENATHI EMPIRE. They are thought to be a regional name for the MESOCHTHONS, or the FORGOTTEN ONES.

NEGERIS: Rvr. River in the south of TETHYSIA flowing south into the emirate of UKOLIST in the north east of LIMOTH⁽¹⁾ for 265 miles, before reaching lake MAHASTA and its parent, the river ATROTHA⁽¹⁾.

NEGLECTED ONE, the: see SUHA.

NEGRED: Set. Settlement in the c of KORACHAN, 25-miles south west of the city of KHADON. It is one of many settlements whose sole purpose is to keep the metropolis capital of the EMPIRE fed (Pop. c. 9,000).

NEGRIN: Set. City in the c east of TRAKIA abandoned in c. 3400 RM due to the expanding ATRAMENTAL-WATERS of TUKHRAGHON.

NEGUAR: Geo. Small mountain range in the north of SAMMAEA, serving as a border between the INTERURBAN STATES and OPHAR in the south west and the TARAHID ANNEXES in the south east.

NEGUS: Pol. Rnk. Noble caste in AETHIOS, from which the ARCHNEGUS is elected. The caste enjoyed great wealth and influence in the latter days of the ROYAL HOUSE OF ETHAND, but lost much of that power in 3810 RM, after the ABUNA abolished the Royal House. Following this the Negus remained as landowners, though they now reached the affluence that their ancestors were renowned for.

NEHALEN: Set. Coastal city in the west of ABATTUR, overlooking the SEA OF GEAUA. It is a major fishing centre (Pop. c. 42,000).

NEHEBAK: Geo. Steep, treacherous cavern in the centre of CISNERIA, said to lead to the labyrinthine depths of the JEHENNA, in the Carceri. A foul stench of damp decayed air emerges from the caverns at times when the air above is still and the BLOOD MOON is full, and mortals shun the place. Legends abound of GRUAIMIN inhabiting its depths, though such claims are largely unsubstantiated.

NEHIR: Set. City in the c south of AHRISHEN, along the southern shore of lake PANOIDA^(L) and the northern-most point of the Panoidan canal⁽²⁾. It is a stop along the GREAT ROAD, and many trade goods are transferred from the road to the canal (Pop. c. 33,000).

NEHN ODU: Geo. Large geyser in the north of KOLCHIS, in the region of NOLKOSH. It is known for the multicoloured mound, which erupts periodically.

NEHNAXIA: Geo. A parched region in the far south east of the TURCAR desert in the c west of TETHYSIA. It is known for its FIRMAMENTAL influence. The land there is often cracked by the Firmamental forces exerted upon it, leading to parts of the otherwise flat region breaking away and floating upwards, attracted to one-another, leading to strange gravity-defying formations. In other regions, the desert it littered with clumps of salt, indicating that the region may once have been submerged to some degree.

NEHOMIA: Set. City in the east of the MALANI HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS, forming a part of the GREAT ROAD trade-route, and trades goods between Malan and TZALLRACH. It is named after the ancient NAHORIAN empire that predated the rise of Malan (Pop. c. 92,000).

NEHRENHAT: Geo. Fertile region in the c west of KHAMID, between the SNIEMET and AHTEPTIS Mountains. It is home to most arable land in Khamid and is fed by the river ARAX.

NEHUABB PLAINS: Geo. Expansive coastal plains dominating the south western coast of BANT, in the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.), in the east of SAMMAEA. The plains are home to a variety of wildlife.

NEIMA: 1. Lak. One of seven major lakes in KOMMEA, collectively known as the SEVEN MAIDENS^(1.), situated in the north east of the kingdom to the north of the LYRLDRAN Mountains. It was once the largest lake and is central to the region's mythology, though it has dwindled in size over the last millennia.

2. Dei. Rel. Myt. One of the SEVEN MAIDENS^(2.) of KOMMEAN myths. She is the eldest of the maidens and an arbiter of their squabbles. She is most commonly associated with summer, warfare, and community. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

NEIT: Set. Settlement in the south of KOMMEA. It is a centre of agriculture in the region, and is surrounded by miles of fields and vast herds of sheep (Pop. c. 10,000).

NEITA: Set. Small coastal city in the north west of TZALLRACH, Overlooking the BAY OF MUSSAR (Pop. c. 16,000).

NEITH: 1. also 'Daughter of the Moon'. f. Myt. His. In the mythology and ancient history of ELYDEN, twelfth of the Two-and-Twenty DEMIURGES, whose children were the SEITHIN.

Her known SCIONS are: IEHOVA, SETH, and TERATHA. Her favourite amongst them is Teratha, who she lavished with gifts to the growing bitterness of her siblings. See Vol IV: the Two-and-Twenty Demiurges.

2. Set. City in the north west of the HENDECARCHY of STHAMAN in the c south west of MALAN, along the course of the LAUL EGLEA river. Its name indicates a link with the eponymous DEMIURGE (1.), yet despite the many ancient possibly SEITHALAN or NAHORIAN ruins that dot the surrounding region there is little evidence to support this (Pop. c. 74,000).

NEITHAN HOLLOWAY: Geo. A 20-mile stretch of the AEGISWAY trade route in the c of the HENDECARCHY of STHAMAN. This stretch of the road is flanked by moss-covered boulders, becoming a canyon in places, the air thick with pollen and insects. Many refuse to travel through this section of the road, believing it to be dangerous.

NEKAK: Set. Settlement in the west of TARTAK (Pop. c. 10,000).

NEKHARAAL: Set. southern-most of the main cities in the region of the SIX CITIES in the north west of SAMMAEA. Its influence once spread farther east than it does today, though the slow growth of the ATRAMENTAL WASTES of HEHABAAN have forced its borders west. The city overlooks the western-most expanse of the wastes and ATRAMENTISM has become a valued art, with SHAPERS given almost celebrity status, growing rich off of the government, which has for the past decade been a militocratic council. The council is tasked with keeping strong bloodlines and defending the state from WRITHENS and other DEGENERATES that have begun to emerge from the wastes (Pop. c. 18,000).

NEKIR: 1. Pol. Set. Capital city of NÁRTHEL (Pop. c. 738,000).

2. Set. City in the west of KHULL, and centre of its ultra-orthodox region, known for its strict and numerous INTERROGATORS. Dominating its skyline is the stone prison HAPHSHETH, a byword for suffering and misery in those in the region (Pop. c. 50,600).

NEKODA: Set. Large coastal city in the south west of KORACHAN, regraded many times throughout its history, the lower levels – once catacombs, temples and sanctuaries – are now hidden far beneath the streets.

It is home to the IMPERIAL COLLEGE OF ATRAMENTISM — the empire's largest such institution dedicated to the study of ATRAMENTISM and all its associated SPHERES. Most SHAPING licences in Korachan are given in Nekoda and it has a reputation as being the centre of Atramental research in the HEARTLAND. The SANCTITAN ORDER of the SANCTITAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION was founded there in 343 RM and remains there to this day, investigating claims of miracles and rediscovered relics from across the empire.

It is also the ancestral home to the PATRICIAN HOUSE of NOSO, which oversees pilgrims undergoing the SHADOW MARCH, who travel here to catch ferries south to SAMMAEA. The city is believed to have been founded by the spoils of early Korachani conquests across the Inner sea Region, and treasures and relics from other cultures can be found in public and private buildings across the city(Pop. c. 130,000).

NEKOR: Set. Major coastal city in the west of NARTHEL. In 4006 RM it was the site of a bloody conflict between the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE and futurist cultists. It is home to the NAUTHANATIDS, who control the hospitals and mortuaries of the city (Pop. c. 1,071,000).

NELCHA: Geo. Old mountain, around 175-miles long, in the west of THE OLD FOREST. Scholars, geologists and LITHISTS claim that the Nelcha is part of a far older mountain system that once stretched for some 1,500-miles from the GAEFANG Mountain in ALMAGEST, south east to the UMBRALA. Though more interestingly, the composition of its stone does not correspond with any other known rock and bears many similarities to the fossilised-state that the bodies of DEMIURGES have been found in.

This matches many legends surrounding the mountain that name it as the resting place of the DEMIURGE NELCHAEL, though the lack of overt DREAMSCAPES serves as evidence to the contrary.

NELCHAEL: m. Myt. His. Per. In the History and mythology of the DEMIURGES, one of the two facets of the DEMIURGE DOPELLANICH (the other being S'HITH).

Nelchael is considered the dormant and more powerful of the two aspects, embodying the dreamer epithet of the Demiurge. He is a powerful MONEIROMANCER – some believe the most powerful oneiromancer that Elyden has ever seen. See Vol IV: the Two and Twenty Demiurges.

NELIREA: Rvr. River in the south of MALAN, in the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS. It flows west for 500-miles from sources in USSIKA Mountains, before meeting its parent, the river SIELL NA, at the border between Chloris and STHAMAN.

NEMAS: Sect. Small city in the south of LOEGRESS^(1.), along the course of the river CAIRWYN (Pop. c. 15,000).

NEMESIS: Myt. Rel. Dei. a powerful demigod in the mythologies of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, specifically the legends of pre-imperial KORACHAN. He was a roguish character whose adventures took him across the PENINSULA, and who has different significance in each of the original city-states of Korachan.

Following the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI EMPIRE'S}}$ rise in the peninsula, the legend was warped by early imperial propagandists, turning nemesis into a man of noble descent who became a lieutenant of the $\underline{\text{ARCHPOTENTATE}}$ $\underline{\text{MALICHAR}}$, helping him to unite the seven city-states.

The title was adopted by one of Malichar's true lieutenants in 37 RM until his death in 62 RM, after which he was elevated to a saint.

It is believed by imperial ASTROLOGERS that he was reborn as an OTHERWORLDER in 666 RM whose identity was finally confirmed and traced in 687 RM. After this, the otherworlder was used in imperial propaganda as a living saint, and remains a powerful tool of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE to this day.

NEMESIS, TEMPLE OF: Rui. Unfinished temple, dedicated to the KORACHANI ST. NEMESIS, found just outside the VÂRRAN capital of NOUVATAI. Construction began in 3745 RM by the AVÉNETHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, just before the INTERREGES departed Vârr, though construction halted when the Order itself abandoned its fortress in Vârr in 3943 RM.

It stands now uncomplete, its half-finished dome a hollow reminder of the empire's hubris in the face of its demise and has become a centre of DEGENERATE activity outside the city, despite periodical scouring attempts.

NEMET OTHAR: Set. City in the c south of the MULL CITY-STATES (Pop. c. 41,200).

NEMETEAS: Set. City in the east of TISARA. It is a major centre of the CULT OF ANDRASTE. Historically, legends pertaining to her life were always popular here and it became one of the first regions to support her deification in c. 1900 RM, and it gave rise to many proselytisers who spread word of the growing cult across surrounding lands, helping to cement the new religion and invertedly strengthening the claim of the future monarchy (Pop. c. 39,500).

NEMETH: Ind. Set. Settlement in the c of THETIS. It is known for its mining of red beryl, which is known to be very rare, and which is worked here and exported abroad at great profit (Pop. c. 6,300).

NEMEZIAH: Rui. Ruined city in the north west of SARASTRO, north of the SEA OF TIAMA. It was besieged by Korachani forces early in the WAR OF SUNDERING and suffered greatly over the next years, eventually ending as little more than rubble. It was never rebuilt and lies forgotten today.

NEMI: Set. Ascetic retreat in the c south west of ATARAXIA. Its anchorites are known for their strong honey and mead, which are consumed throughout Ataraxia, and exported as exotic foods with the west (Pop. c. 5,000).

NEMI SHIPS: Veh. Type of stable flat-hulled catamaran common to VENTHIR and commonly used to go through the IAPETAN into THE ROILING SEA.

NEMIS: Eth. Semi-nomadic people of the south east of THETIS who spend summers on the coastal plains and the harsh winter months in ancient walled cities along the peripheries of the RTHEI^(1,) desert that protect them from the bad sandstorms that wrack the region.

They travel in large bands of up to 200-related individuals, making use of ANATHEROPSES to haul their large yurts and any goods they scavenge in the ancient Rtheian $^{(2)}$ ruins they encounter. using large across Thetis and often venturing into TURCAR and RHEA, rarely settling in any city for more than three to four winter months at a time. There they bring various raw materials and resources collected during their summer travels for trade, providing a vital chain in the Thetishi economy.

Their society is matriarchal, with their rulers known as LACARCHS holding positions of power and authority in nemis clans as well as cities, though males still maintain authority with regards to crafts, trade and military. Copulation usually takes place in the summer months so that the last months of pregnancy and childbirth occur within the safety of the cities, and children typically spend their first years within the confines of the cities as they grow strong. See Vol II: Peoples and Races of Elyden.

NEMISHI: Lan. Language spoken in THETIS and TETHYSIA. It has its root in the culture of the NEMIS nomads, and is common in certain districts where descendants of the Nemis are prevalent, though is secondary to TETHYSIAN. It is also common in the fortified cities between the RTHEI desert and the coast, where the nomads take shelter in winter. See Vol II: Languages.

NEMORI: Set. City in the south west of the MALANI HENDECARCHY of LONAR, in the ELISIAN peninsula. It is a hub of trade and culture in the region (Pop. c. 37,300).

NEMUR: Set. Fortified settlement in the north east of Jurras (2), overlooking the STRAIT OF CYKRANOSH (2) (Pop. c. 8,200).

NENA: Rvr. River in the south east of MALAN, flowing north through the HENDECARCHIES of ATALLUA and STHAMAN for over 500-miles before meeting its parent, the river SIELL NA. The river has two notable lakes along its course – the THALAL, and KOLIAN. ADD TO MAP

NENANKHINA: Set. Small city in the west of ANANTHUL (Pop. c. 16,000)

NENDAQ: Set. Settlement in the south west of CHERIA (Pop. c. 3,000).

NENEM: 1. Rvr. River in the north east of AZAZEM, flowing south from sources in the CHACTHORNYS Mountains, into lake RANNO.

2. Set. Settlement along the course of the river Nenem^(1.), known for its ALUMINIUM resources and open-cast mines where it and other ores are extracted (Pop. c. 3,100).

NENGAN: Set. Small city in the south east of CUTH, on the eastern face of the peninsula of HAMMINGHENG. It is a major producer of EMBALMING resins in the region (Pop. c. 13,000).

NENODEMIA: Mil. Str. Fortress in the DESOLATION OF ASTUDAN, in the western reaches of the cracked lands of the ASHOSHOTH, from which the DESOLATI are based.

NEON: Set. Settlement and lighthouse in the western mainland of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS (Pop. c. 8,400).

NEONATE: Tec. Med. Rnk. Generic term used by TECHNARCANISTS and BIOMECHANISTS for newly-INCEPTED UMBRANS and CLONES, specifically for their first months of life outside the SOHBAL FERROLLI.

NEOPHYTE: Pol. Rnk. Inductees of the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION who are recruited from across the empire, ranging from orphanages to PATRICIAN HOUSES. They typically spend between two and three years studying the ways of their respective Order and training for active duty, depending on their level of education when recruited. Upon graduating they are elevated to the rank of ACCENSOR, or the equivalent, depending on the Order.

Those who fail may go on to serve their Order in other ways, such as becoming OBLOCUTORS, or serving in petty clerical or administrative duties.

NEPARAK: Ind. Set. Coastal city in the c south of THETIS, in the PETEHAROTHIS region, overlooking the inlet of KAT ENNA. It is a major industrial city, noted for its growing population of manufactory workers, which, culturally, are at odds with the NEMIS nomads, who return to the city less and less with each passing year (Pop. c. 47,400).

NEPENTHÉ: Med. Drug manufactured by many cities along the coastline of the SEA OF LETHEA, though which originated in the city of NEPENTHEA, in ANANTHUL. It is distilled from the waters of the SEA OF LETHEA and induces vivid hallucinations formed from the short-term memory of the imbiber.

Depending on the purity, one may also lose recent memories as far back as months or years in extreme cases. Overuse has been known to cause permanent amnesia and those who overdose lose all sense of self, becoming little more than zombies (known as LETHEANS) that cannot even feed themselves. The drug is considered highly dangerous and its use is prohibited in most civilised area around the Sea of Lethea, with possession alone being a punishable offence. Its use is less regulated far from Lethea due to its relative rarity.

A less potent form of the drug, known as LETH, is more common, and has less severe side-effects than nepenthé, making it more widely-used. See Vol II: Drugs and Addictions.

NEPENTHEA: Set. Coastal city in the west of ANANTHUL, along the shores of the SEA OF LETHEA. The seas' waters are distilled into a drug known as NEPENTHÉ that causes short-term memory loss, though overuse can slowly affect long-term memory. Those who become addicted to the thick liquid are known as letheans, and they wander the streets of Nepenthea in a fugue between life and death, devoid of anything marking them out as individuals. Many end up being abducted and sold into slavery, or just going missing.

People travel here from across ELYDEN to forget their pasts, though many become addicted to the drug and remain here, forgetting who they are or why they came in the first place (Pop. c. 182,000).

NEPENTHII: Soc. Rnk. Hunters in the PORPHYRI PENINSULA, who often make use the drug LETH against their prey. They prefer to stalk or otherwise lay in wait, hunting animals that venture close to their positions.

NEPERA: Set. Coastal settlement in the south west of THETIS. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 4,800).

NEPHEILL: Lak. Lake in the north west of KASPIA, forming the south eastern-most part of the delta of the river TARAGEA.

NEPHILA: Rvr. Expansive river in the north west of SAMMAEA flowing for 1,800-miles from sources in the SANTOREAN Mountains. Its delta is in the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT, and provides rich nutrients for crops that grow there.

NEPHILIA: 1. Myt. strange mythological creatures mentioned in apocryphal texts of the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN. Little is known about them other than what vague mentions of them are made in those texts. It has been postulated that they are the first forgotten scions of the DEMIURGES, or that they are entirely unrelated, possibly akin to the MESOCHTHONS. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

2. also 'the Hunter'. Ast. Con. Constellation along the equator. It is depicted in most cultures as a male hunter, his bow raised in attack. The constellation is an oblong shape, characterised by three distinct stars in near-line in its centre – the Hunter's Belt. See Vol II: Constellations.

NEPHILIM: Rel. Dei. Pantheon of deities that emerged in c. 1500 RM in the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA⁽¹⁾, from the earlier and archaic CULT OF THE LIVING NIGHTMARE, which was by then waning in influence and would be replaced by the CHURCH OF THE NEPHILIM by c. 1800 RM.

Eschewing the indifferent and unknowable entity embodied by the LIVING NIGHTMARE, the Church of the Nephilim instead turned to a pantheonic suite of spirits, known as the Nephilim, which were primordial forces indirectly responsible for the creation of the material plane and all that exists within it.

Today the Nephilim are distant, thought to dwell on a level of reality far removed from the material plane – possibly the otherworld, though likely something utterly intangible. Their contact with the material plane exists through DREAMS and nightmares, which influence the sleep of mortals and which can, in specific areas bleed into reality, in the form of DREAMSCAPES.

ONEIROMANCERS are seen as their chosen disciple and the art is well-regarded in both BANT and KULIGALA, and individuals displaying such abilities are favoured to become priests and demagogues.

Each Nephilim, of which there are many dozens, has a sphere, embodying certain traits and emotions, making them infinitely more relatable to their worshippers than the alien Living Nightmare had ever been. The faithful pray and make offerings to any of the myriad Nephilim based on their needs and desires at a particular time, though most people take on a specific Nephilim as a patron as they come of age. This is either based on the time of their birth or indoctrination in their first years of life. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

NEPHILIM, CHURCH OF THE: Rel. Dre. Main organised religion prevalent amongst the people of BANT and KULIGALA, in the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA (1.), as well as ZEMELEN, to the south west. The religion emerged in c. 1500 RM following a schism in its originator religion, the CULT OF THE LIVING NIGHTMARE lead to the latter to dwindle and disappear by c. 1800 RM, leaving the Church of the Nephilim in its wake.

The NEPHILIM are a pantheon of ancient incorporeal beings, spirits of the nascent world, that cling to the mortal plane in the form of DREAMS and nightmares that may at times gain corporeal form through the dreams of those with an ONEIRIC bent.

Many fanatics in the church seek out DREAMSCAPES, which they believe brings them closer to the Nephilim. Of note are the PHOBIAN WASTES, which have become a site of pilgrimage to many, who welcome the violent visions that are common in the region.

Many priests of the Church are oneiromancers, who use their abilities to spread the teachings of the Nephilim. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

NEPHILIM, TEMPLE OF THE: Rel. Str. Primary edifice of the CHURCH OF THE NEPHILIM, located in the capital city of THAO, in the nation of BANT, in the c of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA (1.). It holds amongst its many relics the remains of beast born of DREAMSCAPES, including what is thought to be an avatar of the NEPHILIM, contained in a great glass relicusary.

NEPHILIMS' MAW, the: Sup. Geo. Dre. Large ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED DREAMSCAPE dominating the CARCHEMISHI MOUNTAINS⁽²⁾ at the border between BANT and KULIGALA. The centre-most part of the dreamscape is notorious for the common rain of teeth that assails it, which is enough to keep most mortals away from it. Some fanatics of the CHURCH OF THE NEPHILIM seek it out, thinking that it is a manifestation of their will, though few cohesive explanations have been made as to their origin or purpose, if any.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{MODERATE THREAT}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}$.

NEPHINE: His. Nm. Extinct empire in the ISHMMARRAN peninsula in the west of SOUTHERN SAMMAEA in what are now CEGANE and the northern half of the SYCHTAN PREFECTURES.

It was a bimarial nation, with its western coast overlooking the BAY OF BEKAPYR, and its eastern coast overlooking the SEA OF ADAMASTOR. As a result, it had a strong maritime tradition, and most of its large settlements were coastal or close to the coast. The Nephine people were expert shipbuilders, and their vessels were known for their range and durability, allowing them to dominate trade in both seas, particularly the Bekapyr, where there was less competition. The empire's economy was heavily reliant on its coastal industries, with fishing and pearl diving being significant contributors.

Nephine was also known for its distinctive architectural style, characterized by wide-based tapering towers of spiralling silhouette, often built from the region's abundant limestone. These towers served as both watchtowers and places of scholarly pursuit, housing extensive libraries and observatories where Nephine's scholars studied the stars and seasons, contributing significantly to the region's maritime traditions.

It collapsed in c. 3180 RM amid a brutal civil war that followed the assassination of its ruling household that saw many ethnic groups that until then had been protected by the old imperial house persecuted and slaughtered. Some fled to the north, and would go on to found the Sanctuary States of Cegane in 3485 RM. The remainer of its lands were divided amongst the three forces that fought in the civil war, though these would fragment into various prefectures that would become known as the Sychtan Prefectures. See Vol III: Extinct Nations.

NEPHLA: Set. Fortified settlement in the far west of GNOTH. Its troops guard the western-most reaches of the VAGNOSTAN Mountains (Pop. unknown).

NEPHOT: Rvr. Major river in GNOTH, flowing south for 1,760-miles from sources in the SOLUN HIGHLANDS, before meeting its parent, the river MARAGA at lake IAMTI.

NEPHROLITH, the: Arc. Large monolithic column located in the hinterlands of north eastern AEONAS. It stands around 100-ft. high and is of a green/brown colour, with a soapy texture and bearing slight surface translucency. It forks into four slender minarets at the top, between which stretches a lattice-like substance, which gives the impression of it being alive. Scholars and ATRAMENTISTS have examined the object at various times in history and though some claim that the pillar is indeed biological in nature, few believe that it is truly alive. It is likely the work of a DEMIURGE or SCION from an ancient Age.

NEPHTHALONT: x. Oth. Dei. Rel. Per. (B. unknown – D. 1111 RM) Oth.

OTHERWORLDER ruler of classical MULCIBER, who usurped the ruler of ALLUCITA in -400 RM and over the next centuries united the barbarian tribes of the GROWING MOUNTAINS under their rule, eventually forming the empire of Mulciber, after a vision that plagued them since their rebirth. They ruled with an iron fist, though the empire became productive and wealthy under their rule. They were assassinated in 1111 RM by an unknown assailant, and their death led to a power vacuum and an ideological war amongst the people of Mulciber, who fractured into dozens of warring tribes, each with their own political and religious beliefs that persist, leaving Mulciber a fractured region to this day divided by religious sectism.

Today they are worshipped as a God-king by the disparate tribes of Mulciber, each of which has its own cult that differs in minute details that the tribes use to claim superiority over their neighbours. There is little in the form of an organised religion, with each family maintaining its own shrine within its house, and partisan rivalry is strong amongst the various tribes, with each denouncing all other sects as false. Various kindreds in the south east of Mulciber worship the ARCHSHAPER BALAISHIZZIAR as an avatar of Nephthalont.

They were served by a caste of acolytes, who were priests and bodyguards in equal measure. They escaped the war that gripped the region for centuries after Nephthalont's death, and their descendants are today the neutral AHHAS caste, who are untouchable itinerant merchants that travel around the Growing Mountains, buying and selling goods and spreading news to disparate tribes. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

NEPIA: Sct. Small city in the c of AETHIOS, close to the confluence where the river NARRATI meets the river SHIBBOLETH^(3.). It operates a ferry linking it with the city of HOSETA (Pop. c. 14,750).

NEPITTRA: Set. City in the north of THE VORANDINE, in the far east of the IAPEGRAN Massif. Its main industry is jade mining, and its people are known for their foraging skills (Pop. c. 44,700).

NEPULIS: Set. Small coastal city in the far north west of LAASKHA. It lies along the route of the SHADOW MARCH and has many churches where PETITIONERS OF THE MACHINE can pray while they stop in the city during their pilgrimage (Pop. c. 12,000).

NEQALEN: 1. Set. Settlement in the north east of AHRISHEN, along the course of the river LANAEST. It controls the largest lock in the Neqaleni canal⁽²⁾ (Pop. c. 7,200).

2. Rvr. Canal in the north east of AHRISHEN, forming part of the AHRISHENI WATERWAYS, linking the river ERENAST in the north with river LANAEST in the south. It is 44-miles long and contains 17 major locks.

NEQUE: Sup. Geo. Region of ATRAMENTAL CORRUPTION in the south of NASTAL⁽²⁾, within the wastes of SPHYRNIDONTIS. It is inimical to most life, including flora and fauna, but fungi thrive there, covering every surface, and growing to gigantic sizes.

The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

NERA: Geo. Island off the south western coast of GYZHA, forming part of the chain known as THE CAPRICORNS.

NERAE: Set. Settlement in the north of GYZHA (Pop. c. 9,000).

NERAGAL: also 'the Purulent Pillar'. Int. Sup. Rui. Foul monument in the c of SARASTRO, north of the KRAONA badlands, thought to date to the early FOURTH AGE. It takes the form of a classical pillar, some 100-ft. high with a square cross-section 15-ft. wide at the base. Its surface is sticky and is said to burn if touched for too long, and causes headaches amongst those that stop at its base. It attracts insects, which become trapped on its surface, enticing tentative lizards and birds that feast on them. It is commonly attributed to the DEMIURGE NERGAAL, though such links are tenuous at best.

NERAWAN: Set. City in the c of VIRAHAN, along the course of the river SARA, near the SARAN RESERVOIR. It is a growing industrial centre, and is expected to attract many people from surrounding rural areas over the coming years. It forms a part of the GREAT ROAD trade-route, where many of its machined goods are sold (Pop. c. 45,000).

NEREA: 1. Lak. Lake in the south east of SAMMAEA. It was originally the south western-most expanse of the SEA OF LERAMUGH, though the retreat of ELYDEN'S oceans left it landlocked, and it is now dry, its remnants – a salty basin – now located in the south of the XETEAN STATES.

2. Set. Major city in the south of the XETEAN STATES, overlooking lake Nerea^(1.) (part of the SEA OF LERAMUGH). The city is rumoured to have once been a naval power in the region, its merchant vessels reaching thousands of miles north and west, though the gradual retreat of the Sea of Nerea and its dwindling into a lake left the city land-locked by c. 3320 RM, severely weakened. The decades following its 'death' saw the city subjected to severe internecine conflict that left the place ruined, its people crippled.

The city re-emerged in c. 3740 RM as a massive producer of salt, supplying the region (Pop. c. 89,000).

NERES: Set. Settlement in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of MEDES^(1.), in the peninsula of ORRIAH^(1.). Its main industry is the manufacture of ROTWINE (Pop. c. 4,500).

NERETHI: Set. Major city in the c of the emirate of UKOLIST in the north east of LIMOTH^(1.). It is located along the northern shore of lake MAHASTA and its coastal districts are built on wide concrete pylons designed to protect it from seasonal floodwaters (Pop. c. 73,800).

NERGAAL: also 'Bringer of Sun and Rot'. m. Myt. His. Per. In the mythology and ancient history of ELYDEN, fourteenth of the Two-and-Twenty DEMIURGES, whose children were the IRKALLA.

Nergaal was always solemn, a hard-worker with little desire to stop and enjoy his work. When the Demiurges were abandoned by THE SHAPER in punishment for their hubris, Nergaal was one of the first to anger, taking out his rage on natural world, unleashing diseases and PLAGUES that afflicted mortal life indiscriminately, including his own children, which he had largely ignored, only returning to them sporadically throughout their history.

His children, leaderless, were at the mercy of the world, succumbing to plagues and without a force to shield them from the natural world that beset them. They scattered into various groups, most of which came to worship the natural world in place of their Demiurge father, focusing on the destructive nature of their homeland and the world around them. Ironically, many of the plagues and diseased they came to worship were created by Nergaal.

Strengthened by their inadvertent worship, Nergaal revealed himself to them and assumed his responsibilities as the father and leader of the irkalla. But his rule was ruthless. Many died to his whimsy, with countless more coming to be sacrificed to him in a form of appeasement. His worship increased, with many other mortal tribes outside of the irkalla also worshipping him out of fear. These worshippers, Nergaal rewarded with exemption from his wrath, punishing their foes with drought and plague, leading his armies into their lands, claiming them as his own.

The irkalla prospered in this time, his cities rich, his lands burgeoning under a nourishing sun. The other Demiurges were angered by this and opposed him. RACHANAEL, ASHTERATH, BAPHOMET, and AVRAHAM allied against him and brought their armies to his borders, sometime in what is now thought to be the mid-THIRD AGE. He received some aid from KHARANI and SYBARIS⁽¹⁾, though with few allies, Nergaal was unable to defend himself. The war was bloody, leaving the irkalla largely dead and their lands ruined, the plague and drought that Nergaal had once sown afflicting them. Nergaal himself had his hand cut off by Avraham and was left severely wounded, with most of his scions dead.

With his worshippers gone, Nergaal grew weak, declining to a shadow of his former strength. Without a home, he would travel, the land in his wake dying, its flora and fauna succumbing to disease and death. Eventually he was found by his son, Vam Atar, who had since learnt many Atramental secrets (some claim from Rachanael himself, whose true intent is unknown). He offered to save his father in a great ritual. It was during the Fourth Age that Nergaal agreed to die at the hands of his son so that his spirit could be reborn, his thoughts transmigrated into the body of Vam Atar. His body was allowed to decay, surviving to this day as the festering mountain of ATON in the north of CUTH, which ancient scriptures claim is now the origin of all disease that afflicts the world.

The ritual was successful and Nergaal was reborn in the body of his son Vam Atar, as his vessel festers, undying.

His known SCIONS are: BADHUR, TALLAS⁽²⁾, MU, VAM ATAR and VAMMATAR (possibly the same scion), and VRITRA. See Vol IV: the Two-and-Twenty Demiurges.

NERGAAL, CULT OF: Pol. Rel. One of two sects that make up the organised religion of the empire of CUTH. The religion originated in 2252 RM when an ancient mummified hand was discovered deep in the caverns of TILLAYAN, south east of the city of HAMMON. The hand was identified as having once belonged to an ancient DEMIURGE NERGAAL by the scholar and shaper KENG WALIN, who would go on to worship it after being plagued by LUCID DREAMS and visions, believed by some to be the WHISPERS OF NERGAAL. He would later construct the temple of ERKALA to house the hand, and many people gravitated to it, eventually forming a settlement around it.

The religion spread rapidly across KARKAUTH, with many becoming fanatical to Nergaal and his prophet Keng. By c. 2700 RM Karkauth, then known as Cuth, had become insular, cutting off relations with other nations. Rumours spread of a strange cult that demanded willing sacrifices to satiate the sun, known to them as $\underline{\text{TALLAS}}^{(1)}$, which became a dichotomous force, representative of Nergaal, bringing both life and death.

Given the divine status of the sun, those who could would only emerge from their homes at night, out of reverence, and solstices and equinoxes became great festivals of the natural cycle of the sun, celebrated underground. Temples would likewise dig deep into the earth, out of respect for the sun, and it was in these deep crypts that the rituals were said to take place.

The death of Keng's mortal body in 3173 RM brought a schism within the church. Though he was elevated to godhood, there was disagreement within the church. Some claimed Keng was the true deity and Nergaal was merely the herald of his ascent to godhood. Others claimed that Keng was merely a prophet, who brought word of Nergaal to Cuth. This led to entrenched partisanism, with 2 distinct sects forming in 3259 RM – the Cult of Nergaal, and the Adherents of Keng. To this day, there exists a degree of enmity between members of the two sects, which still vie for spiritual control of Cuth.

People willingly give their lives to ritual sacrifice in the Winter Solstice, bringing great honour to their families, and disease and death are regarded in a far more open manner than in other civilised lands. The dead are not buried, but rather, they are embalmed and injected with resins that preserve their bodies, which are interred in niches in the living rooms of their families, where they remain a part of their families. Diseases are typically allowed to run their course, which is seen as barbaric, and the cause of needless suffering, to medical practitioners from other nations. Despite this, the people of Cuth have a tremendous resilience to most diseases, and whilst they may display symptoms of illness, they are not affected as other people are. Though this is likely a result of particular diets and cultural habits, most who know strange resilience believe it to be a gift from Nergaal. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

NERGAAL, WHISPERS OF: Mys. Sup. Dre. Lan. Phenomenon recorded by MORTALS in the south west of EASTERN LLACHATUL for many ages, in which the sleep of those who are ONEIRICALLY-SENSITIVE is disturbed by strange whispers and murmurs, most of which are gibberish or otherwise incomprehensible. Over time these were interpreted by the ancient KARKAUTHI people as being the DREAMS of the DEMIURGE NERGAAL. These whispers were slowly interpreted over many years and became an influence on the KARKUTHI tongue, as well as present-day CUTHI, which is a religious language spoken within the CULT OF NERGAAL. Indeed, it is believed that the highest-ranking members of the Cult are even more sensitive to these Whispers than others, and that they regularly commune with the slumbering deity.

NEREK: Set. Settlement in the south west of OPHAR⁽²⁾. Its main industry is animal husbandry and shepherding (Pop. c. 3,500).

NERIDUN: Set. City in the west of VAALK. Its industry revolves around the ZAFEED CONVEYOR manufactory, which produces and sells luxury vehicles, many of them bespoke (Pop. c. 40,000).

NERIK: Ind. Set. Fortified settlement in the south of LYRIDIA, south of the HELIOPARNASSUS Mountains. Its main industry is gold mining and bullion is sold to merchants passing by along the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 8.000).

NERIKA: Str. Fortified lighthouse in the north west of SAGITTARIA, overlooking the deep waters of the SEA OF SERPENTS. It was built in c. 3350 RM on top of a far older fortress with indeterminate origins.

NERIL TA: Set. Fortified coastal city in the north of KHULL, overlooking the BAY OF KALLAR.

NERIS: Geo. Barren coastal area in the north west of TARTAK. Before the time of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, the region was underwater, though the drying up of the BYSSOS and the slow retreat of the INNER SEA left the shallow coastal shelf exposed, the lush coastal grasslands that once hugged the shore now dry. This change had mostly taken place by the time the Korachani empire arrived in Tartak, though the plains still survived, if struggling, though the change was complete by the time the Korachani empire left in 2132 RM.

Where once the area was rich with flora and fauna, it is now barren and twisted by the Atramenta, tree-like growths of raw oxidise iron protruding from the cracked earth. All usable minerals have been extracted by the insatiable imperial industry, leaving the place empty.

NERITA: Geo. Island along the midspan of the strait known as the GATE OF EREBETH, between the nations of TAHALL and SAGITTARIA. The island was revealed by the slow continued diminishing of THE INNER SEA in c. 3342 RM and the city of SUCHARIIT, belonging to the ORDER OF THE GATE, was built there not long after.

NERKALA: see 'GOD'S TEARS'.

NERLII: Set. Coastal city in the south west of PNESSA, overlooking the GULF OF SAURIAR (Pop. c. 38,000).

NEROLI: 1. His. Ntn. Once a major city state that existed between c. 2800 and c. 300 RM that was known for its back-stabbing rulers and political assassinations, leading to the period known as the THRONE OF LIES.

2. Set. Settlement in the south east of THE SURRACH, in the region of INOTAHL. It was once a major-city state, though lost most of its power in c. 3000 RM after which it dwindled. Today it is known for its orange clay that is used in the manufacture of pottery and bricks (Pop. c. 13,600).

NEROS: Mil. Str. Major fort in the south of PELASGOS, close to the border with the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS. It provides protection to merchants and travellers crossing the RED ROUTE, which passes by the fortress.

NESAE: Geo. Mountain-range in the c of OKKHAM, stretching south from the western-face of the Okkhami mountains.

NESAKHA: Set. Coastal settlement in the west of KHAMID, along the south eastern shore of the SEA OF IANA (Pop. c. 7,000).

NESH: Set. Settlement in the region of DAYLAM in the west of THE SURRACH, along the course of the river BRUD (Pop. c. 10,000).

NESHAK: Set. Settlement 12-miles north west of the capital city of LIRAET in the south of TARTAK, the settlement, like many others in the region is a satellite of Liraet and provide much of its food (Pop. c. 9,000).

NESHER: 1. Sca. Sea and extension of the far north east of the SEA OF URAN, serving as a natural border between the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOMS of MEDES^(1,) and NICAEA^(1,).

2. Set. City in the south of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of NICAEA^(1.) (Pop. c. 15.200).

3. Mil. Str. Citadel in the eponymous city in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of NICAEA^(1,).

NESHRA: Pol. Duchy in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of NICAEA. It is coastal, bordering the BAY OF NESHER^(1.) and is known for its rolling farmlands that lead down to the coast from the GESSEL Mountain in the porth NESIT: Set. Settlement in the south of CHEIRA (Pop. c. 4,750).

NESIYON: Set. Settlement in the south east of RHEA. It is known for its cotton production (Pop. c. 4,500).

NESSA: Geo. Pit in the upper levels of CARCERI, roughly beneath the city of TA OMA in the c of AHRISHEN. It is said to be guarded by a valthas, and has been described by the few who have explored it as having many drip waterfalls, snottites, and stalactites, thought to have their origins in the Ahrisheni wetlands above.

NESSUL: Set. City in the east of KORACHAN, around 20-miles from the coast of the GULF OF LEMAS. It is a major manufacturer of machined parts, and is noted for its watchmakers, including the HOUSE OF ILLIAN (Pop. c. 58,000).

NESTER: Soc. Rnk. Ranchers within the KORACHANI EMPIRE. The term originated as a slur, though has since been appropriated by the ranchers themselves over time, with the term finding its way in common usage today.

NESTRIS: Set. Small fortified city in the west of OPHIUSSA, along the course of the river PURUSA. It trades upstream with western GNOTH (Pop. c. 18,000).

NETARION: Set. Fortified coastal settlement in the far north of KARGAMA, overlooking the south west of the BAY OF VIAMA. Its people trade with the TEMPLAR STATES (Pop. c. 8,400).

NETCASTER SPIDER: Fau. Large spider, roughly the size of a mastiff, common in the jungles of the WOLD and surrounding environs. It is known for its net-like web, that it throws at prey, trapping them. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

NETCHA: Set. Major city in the c south west of ABATTUR. It was the administrative centre of Abattur during the region's subjugation by TISARA, and was assaulted by a disgruntled populace in 2908 RM. The uprising was quelled, with the instigators put to death, but it stoked the flames of rebellion, with conflict spreading across the conquered lands leading to the independence of Abattur in 2913 RM. A new capital was established in the city of LAILLA soon after, though Netcha remained a cultural hub following this.

A monument honouring the actions of those taking part in the uprisings was erected in 3021 RM and remains a focal point of the city centre to this day (Pop. c. 126,500).

NETERSHEN: Rvr. Saltwater marshland at the mouth of the river DALARIA in eastern VÂRR. Its delta is extensive and mud shallows dominate the coastline up to 10-miles out, making it dangerous for vessels to approach the land.

NETH: 1. Lak. Endorheic lake in the tribal territories of OSRIS in the c east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. An island in the c of the lake is home to the co-called COLOSSUS OF OSRIS, the c of the OSRA faith that is common in the region.

2. Rvr. Endorheic river in MULCIBER flowing north west from various sources in the tribal territories of NUNEA, ending at lake Neth in the territories of OSRIS in the c east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS. The river is seasonal and wanes twice a year, often disappearing entirely.

NETH SHUVRA: Int. Rel. Str. Isolated church in the ORACASHO region of c south western SARASTRO, known for its crypt and reliquaries.

NETH TA': Set. Small coastal city in the north east of KHULL. It is a major fishing centre and its main industry is the production of fish sauce (Pop. c. 16.400).

NETHAYA: Pol. Soc. Bus. PATRICIAN HOUSE in the KORACHANI EMPIRE known for being a member of the ATROPI HOUSES. Its ancestral home is the settlement of LARIA, which is now greatly diminished following the death of the natural land in the area. The House is largely based in the CAMASSIAN STRONGHOLD today.

Its main role within the cooperative is the overseeing the growth of moss and algae cultures for use in DROSS production, many of which are grown in vast underground vivaria. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

NETHEA: Pol. Set. Capital of the HENDECARCHY of MYEIN, in the west of MALAN, along the course of the river LOT. It is extremely insular and few if any outsiders are granted the luxury of entering its CREANT-guarded walls (Pop. unknown).

NETHERLANDS, the: Geo. Region in the c east of AHOPAH that is largely below sea level and guarded from the SEA OF NARANOR by coastal hills. It was once part of the Sea of Naranor itself, though as ELYDEN'S seas diminished over the past centuries it found itself cut off from the main sea, and slowly diminished, leaving behind salty wetlands. These wetlands were slowly converted to arable land through the planting of reeds and by c. 3860 RM they had become fertile and a valued part of agriculture and economy, with goats and cattle now plentiful.

NETHIR: Mil. Str. Artillery outpost in the south west of VENTHIR, hewn from rocks in the south of the JAELA Mountains, facing west into SARASTROAN territories, overlooking the NATHI ROAD. The fortress is home to 6 heavy 19.7" rifled muzzle loading guns, each of which has a range of 5-miles. The guns are located deep underground, with firing slits built into the cliffs of the Jaela mountains and they are notorious for the deafening roar they make when fired.

NETHYR: Sup. Set. Small city in the FAR HEMISPHERE, located on a LODELITH above the north east of the SEA OF ASEER just south of its turn into the SEA OF IPERIA. The lodelith it is situated on is uneven, and the city is stepped, built across different levels that divided by chasms and cliffs, connected by stone walkways and cliffs. Its main link to the mainland is via SKYSKIFFS and airships.

It is home to many schools and institutes of higher learning, where <a href="https://example.com/schools-schoo

NETISOA: Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of DATHOA, in the south west of MULCIBER, in the west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS. The city is a major centre of SLAVERY in the region, and buyers of the rich and powerful travel thee from across the north of SAMMAEA and beyond to purchase slaves from its great markets (Pop. c. 90,000).

NEUSA: Set. Settlement in the south of OPHIUSSA, in the west of the region of GOMELA. Its main industry is viticulture, and the production of OPHIR^(3.) (Pop. c. 5,000).

NEVAIHM: Geo. Region in the south of THE SURRACH, in the desert of THAMAAZ. Its controlling city is PAAN.

NEVANEX: Dre. Myt. Mys. The PARTHISAN word for the DREAMWORLD, which has been a part of NORTHERN SAMMAEAN mythology since the days of the SAMMONISH empire, in the FOURTH AGE.

NEVERDYING, the: Rel. Religious sub-cult of the TETHYSIAN pantheon that worships the Proxy-king as a deity, rather than proxy to KATHISIS^(1.). Its centre is the city of LYSITEAS. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

NEVERDYING, TEMPLE OF THE: Rel. Str. Temple in the capital city LYSITEAS in TETHYSIA where the body of the GOD-KING KATHISIS is kept alive. It is home to the petitioner chosen to be the mortal vessel of the God-king for the remainder of their live, and it is an important religious site in Tethysia.

NEW TEMPLE OF THE EMPYREAN: Rel. Religion founded in SERROK in 3782 RM following the unearthing of texts that shook the foundations of the CHURCH OF THE PROPHET OF THE EMPYREAN in CHEIRA. Both religions remain active to this day and are forced to co-exist under an edict that allows the people of Serrok to practice any religion, within reason. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

NEWAERS: Set. City in the c of ELALLIA. It is built on flat marshy terrain in the south of the EGETTUR lowlands and is known for its many canals. Its main industries are the cultivation of peat and sheep farming (Pop. c. 36.400).

NEWGROWTH: Cal. TEMUJAN spring, mostly referring to early spring and the festivals of sowing

NEW VALGHAR: see MALPHAS.

NEYEM: Set. Major city in the south of the nation of GREST^(1.) in the west of the island-continent of BROR^(1.). It was once the capital of the nation of AHAGGAD^(2.) though it was sacked in 3263 RM during the fall of Ahaggad, after which the legion was named Grest and the capital was moved to SCELD.

The ruin of Neyem was soon rebuilt and it became home to the secretive HE'ELAN CULTS, which would later spread across Grest, leading to the eventual overthrowing of its monarchy in 3782 RM after which the three HE'ELAN ARCHDUKES would take over as autocrats, dividing the nation between them.

The city never regained its previous political power, though it remains a major city in the south of Grest to this day (Pop. c. 157,000).

NEYSHABUR: Geo. Rocky region in the north east of SAMMAEA, crossing the border between the south east of SARASTRO and the north west of ANUBIA, once known for its vast umbra reserves. The area was the battleground of a 2-decade conflict known as the WAR OF THE TRIPTYCH that began in 161 RM that involved the nations of Sarastro, VENATH (later VENTHIR) and the KHERI people of Anubia. The conflict left Venath in control of the many UMBRA wells and extractors, though they were abandoned in c. 200 RM as the Venathi empire dwindled.

After the KORACHANI EMPIRE annexed Venthir in 361 RM interest in the region was renewed, with imperial expeditions there resulting in as many as a dozen new colonies in Neyshabur by 400 RM.

The region was an important industrial area for Korachan, though umbra reserves began to dwindle by 2450 RM and last of the colonies, ACATEA, was abandoned in 2523 RM.

NEZAH: Set. Small city in the region of QATTISYSH in the west of THE SURRACH. Due to conflict with the BAKHRAN STATES, the city has diminished in recent years, and many of its southern districts have been reduced to rubble from enemy bombardments, though it has become a major recruiting ground for Qattisyshi forces (Pop. c. 15,200).

NGAT SHOSGUR: Set. City in the south west of ALAM BETHYL, constructed around and within the trunk of a giant tree, most of which is now dead. Dating back to an early FIFTH AGE TREE-DWELLER settlement, the city is proud of its long heritage and celebrates the tree, which is considered a spiritual guardian of its people, throughout the three day

Spring equinox festival, in which the tree's sap is used to make flat cakes that are consumed during a great ritual that is said to unite its people. Though merely a sapling when compared with the monolithic trees that once dominated this region in the FOURTH AGE, it remains a breathtaking sight, with stone dwellings surrounding its base, reaching up its trunk, before tapering may storeys as the crooked trunk continues to rise, its grey bark stark against the blue skies. It was struck by lightning in c. 3400 RM and much of the tree burnt down, though a single branch remains alive to this day, and it is fiercely protected by the people of Ngat Shosgur.

The city is one of few major Bethylan settlements to exists to the south of the northern POLAR CIRCLE, meaning it does not experience any periods of 24-hour light or dark (Pop. c. 39,300).

NGHALLEAL: Geo. Mountain-chain, covering some 1,650-miles in the north west of WESTERN SAMMAEA, forming a border between north east of THE SURRACH and southern SAGITTARIA and south western EREBETH and south western CYHLAGHARR. The Mountains are old, relatively low and crumbling, with many caves and cave-systems in its eastern face, many of which open up into larger fissures and shafts that form a hollow webwork in the heart of the mountain, which is to all intents and purposes, hollow. The lower caverns are largely flooded with stagnant waters and the stench of stale air. Earthquakes are relatively common west of mountain, following its vague outline and have been known to affect the cave-system, collapsing caverns and revealing new hollows.

NGILPOG: Leg. A mischievous spirit in RAONGENI^(2.) folklore, known for playing tricks on travellers. It is said that appeasing Ngilpog with offerings ensures a safe journey through areas of wilderness. See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

NGLILIA: Set. Fortified coastal settlement in the west of CYHLAGHARR, overlooking the SEA OF IMERRIL. It is known for its farmlands (Pop. c. 7,400).

NGODRIN: Set. Small fortified city in the west of CYHLAGHARR, overlooking the AGRNN SOUND. It is known for its thick heady wine and is surrounded by dozens of vineyards that are worked by human slaves (Pop. c. 14,000).

 $\underline{\text{NGUR}}\text{: }\textit{Set.}$ City in the c of $\underline{\text{CHEIRA}}$ (Pop. unknown).

NHAL: Rvr. River that flows through ALMAGEST. Has three major tributaries that flow from the GAEFANG Mountain.

NHASESS: Set. City and island in the north west of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS (Pop. c. 19,800).

NHORA: Pol. Ninth of the HENDECARCHIES of the FOREST KINGDOMS, located in the north east of MALAN. Its capital is the city of DERATOALA, and it is ruled by the HENDECARCH XENADUS VELTHUR IV.

It is of a cool wet temperate climate, and is dominated by the rocky THARORAT Mountains in the north and the CARMATHAN in the south and is known for its many rugged landscapes. It is the only one of the eleven FOREST KINGDOMS that is not currently a monarchy – it is ruled by a great republic council made up of 111 councillors elected from its various districts. A representative is elected from amongst them who carries the title Hendecarch, but they do not wield any more power than the rest of the councillors.

NHUAD: Sct. City in the north east of CHTHYRID, noted for its deep catacomb-districts and sizeable subterranean portions. It is known to trade with the metropolis of AMDUKA in THE OLD FOREST (Pop. c. 42,100).

NHYOTH: Geo. Sheer ridge, 150-miles long, in the north of CHTHYRID, between the RHAECHA and UMBRALA Mountains. One safe pass crosses the ridge, along a schism 30-miles from its western reach, known as the BRALA.

NIAH: Set. Fortress-city and lengthy redoubt in the east of LHACCIDA⁽²⁾, overlooking the lowlands of SIMBARA (Pop. c. 17,000).

NIALDA: (B. 1543 – D. 1592 RM) Pol. Empress of IMELKA and member of the IMELKAN DYNASTY whose death led to the 3-year civil war in which her twin sons and heirs to the throne fought for possession of the GODSTONE⁽¹⁾ PRONAOS TESSERA. EVVRED would eventually win the war, taking control of the nation in 1595 RM.

NIANA: Set. Small city in the c north west of PARAIYA. It is known for its caravanserais, where merchants can seek shelter along the route between MHAROKK and the capital of SOPORA in the south east (Pop. c. 18,000).

NIAPPED: Set. Coastal city in the east of KASPIA (Pop. c. 32,000).

NIARNA: Geo. Low mountain range in the south east ZHARIAH⁽²⁾. It is the southern border of the basin in which the ISTHIS sea is located.

NIASIT: Set. City in the north east of the tribe of NINIR in the south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 22,000).

NIBAR: Mil. Str. Fortress in the far north east of CUTH, in the c north east of the MO-ORASSIM highlands. The fortress was constructed in c. 2480 RM to defend against a possible mountain-route into Cuth from KETTARANG (now KREM). The threat was not present though and the construction of the fortress is attributed to a growing insularity at the time, as the CULT OF NERGAAL took root in the region.

The fort was abandoned in c. 3170 RM and bloodstones were later found there, leading to the formation of a boomtown to cater to prospectors. During this time the miners and prospectors would commonly eat and gather at the Mountains' Edge eating hall. Given the remoteness of the area, harsh terrain, and dry climate, there was little of sustenance in the region, but one thing it was known for was its aloe liqueur, known as BRAN, distilled beneath the tower from aloe plants cultivated in the region.

The rush died down in 3384 RM, and the settlement diminished, though remains today as a new fort rebuilt over the remains of the previous iteration, though the distillery remains.

NIBBIA: Set. Major city in the south of AHRISHEN (Pop. c. 841,500).

NIBRU: Sup. Rnk. Caste of FIRMAMENTISTS, commonly found in SABIA or KASPIA, though recorded in various other parts of the north east of LLACHATUL. Their SPHERE of influence is tied to the winds, sometimes waves and tides.

NICADA: 1. Pol. One of the eight HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOMS.

2. Pol. Duchy in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of Nicada^(1,).

3. Set. Fortified capital city of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of Nicada⁽¹⁾. It is a city of great religious importance in the Haréshk and is fed by a natural spring that has been present for thousands of years. It is also an influential economic centre, and is a vital link in the GREAT ROAD, with merchants from across the trade-route making their way here with distant goods for sale (Pop. c. 575,000).

NICAEA: Set. Storied city in the c of NARTHEL. Originally called NICATH, it was renamed to Nicaea in 903 RM following mass dissent of workers there, with harsher laws enacted. KORACHANI culture flourished there following this time, with most native customs quelled, surviving only in secretive rituals and mystery cults. In 2746 RM a meeting of THE SEVEN was held in the city, which forever-more became known as the COUNCIL OF NICAEA. The council led to the EDICT OF NICAEA, where PATRICIANS throughout he empire were stripped of certain religions privileges and some ancestral lands.

Its gold mines were exhausted by c. 2700 RM and the city remained as a fortified redoubt in the UEFIR Highlands. As the Korachani empire began to fragment towards latter half of the fourth millennium RM, the city became a strongpoint for the STEEL LEGION, with dissenting cities and regions within Nárthel subject to their retaliation (Pop. c. 92,000).

NICAEA, COUNCIL OF: Pol. Org. Council convened by the KORACHANI government in the city of NICAEA in 2746 RM, overseen by The Seven. The council led to the EDICT OF NICAEA, where PATRICIANS throughout the empire were stripped of certain religions privileges and some ancestral lands.

NICAEA, EDICT OF: Pol. His. Edict enacted by following the COUNCIL OF NICAEA in 2746 RM, which removed certain religious powers from KORACHANI PATRICIANS, leading to the downfall and weakening of many HOUSES. The edict had great ramifications across the empire, and is believed by some scholars to have been one of many causes of the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES.

NICARIAH: See. Small city, originally in the north east of SKAROS, but now part of the south of ALMAGEST, since 3014 RM, around 80-miles from the Skarosian coast. The city pre-dates the arrival of the KORACHANI EMPIRE into Skaros by some centuries, appearing in PRE-

IMPERIAL Korachani texts as a settlement along the northern LASCARI⁽²⁾ border that was renowned for its philosophers.

Nicariah was rapid to adapt to subjugation under Korachan, and quickly established itself as a scholarly and philosophical centre, where many books were printed following the appearance of the first crude printing presses c. 500 RM, which it continues to do to this day

It became a ruin after the $\underline{\text{WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES}}$, though following the expansion of $\underline{\text{ALMAGESTI'}}$ borders south, it was resettled and remains today as a centre of printing (Pop. c. 18,000).

NICASSA: 1. Geo. Plains covering 8,000 square-miles of area, dominating much of the north of MHAROKK. The coastal area of this region was once beneath the sea level, though the shrinking of the INNER SEA over past millennia caused it to rise above the sea-level. The extent of the old coast now stands some 10-miles inland, and is dominated by ruins of past ages, perched on the edge of the dry plateau that marks the old coast, the rotten half-fossilised wrecks of ships lying half buried in the rock; the structures around them reduced to little more than dust, the echoes of the once-monolithic constructions disappeared.

The region was pillaged throughout the AGE OF STEEL for what materials remained as well as the treasures of ancient tombs, leaving the area a barren echo of its past.

2. Eth. Ancient people thought to have been wiped out in by the $\underline{\text{AIKLAH}}$ in an ancient war. The coastal plains of the north of $\underline{\text{MHAROKK}}$ are possibly named after them, as some ruins attest to.

NICATH: His. Set. Ancient city and part of the AMNATHI KINGDOM, situated on the northern face of the UEFIR highlands and overlooking the east of the LYBIC SANDS. Nicath was a moderately successful mining settlement during the time of the Amnathi kingdom, with its mines and quarries supplying the kingdom with gold and quartz, amongst other materials. Due to this, it was always somewhat fortified, its position in the foothills of the Uefir highly defensible. Following the dissolution of the Amnathi kingdom in -589 RM, Nicath managed to maintain enough power to become one of the nine resulting states, from which came to rule merchant family of NÁRTHEL in -542 RM. Through the influence of the family, Nicath, alongside TAMESIS and ENESH, formed the state of Nárthel, with Nicath as its capital.

Nicath's gold mines expanded considerably, the wealth helping to unite the new state. People flocked to the city and by c. -350 RM it became the largest and most influential of Nártheli cities, becoming a republic. However, with that power came corruption and the leadership of Nicath began to flounder by c. -100 RM. That, coupled with the rising Venathi empire, which by then had already annexed much of the eastern territories of Nárthel and, later, the birth of Korachan in the north and west, led to the fragmentation of its republic, with a new militocratic power-base forming in the western city of KLIROS (by then the home of most of its military), which became the capital of Nárthel in 76 RM; scant years before the KORACHANI EMPIRE would blockade the STRAIT and take Nárthel in 84 RM.

The city's gold mines flourished under Korachani rule, though the city itself became little more than a settlement for the workers and magnates controlling the industry and trade of the material, and its culture suffered greatly. Though the slave-culture that dominated imperial manufactories was never truly adopted in Nárthel, the conditions of the mines in Nicath were hardly exemplary, and such adverse working conditions led to revolts in c. 850 RM. Most dissenters were culled by c. 890 RM and a reinforced imperial administration was set-up, leading to its renaming to NICAEA (the Korachani name for the city) in 903 RM.

NICHE CHAPEL: also 'Cenobite Chapel'. Rel. Str. Roadside shrines across the KORACHANI EMPIRE and in lands where the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE holds sway, where CENOBITES who have become ATRAMENTALLY CORRUPTED through their travels are sent to spend the rest if their days. They collect alms and tend to the small chapels, where travellers and those living nearby can come to pray and leave offerings. These ailing cenobites are sometimes assisted by VOTARIES of the parish, who help them and make them as comfortable in their final days as possible.

NICODEMIUS: 1. Geo. Island 300-miles off the southern coast of OKKHAM. It is part of the ISLES OF NICODEMIUS, that is a tributary of Okkham.

2. Set. Fortified settlement and harbour on the above island (Pop. c. 15,000).

NIDHAIA: Ind. Set. Settlement in the c north west of PARTHIS, in the eastern foothills of the BALAUR^(1.) Mountains. Salt mining has been its primary industry for centuries, and the mines beneath the city are wondrously expansive, featuring long tunnels and large square chambers, some of which are now partially flooded, with chemically-rich waters. The salt mined here is considered of high industrial quality and is not used for cooking (Pop. c. 8,400).

NIDOR: Set. City in the east of CHTHYRID (Pop. c. 43,000).

NIELL: Set. City in the c north of KAZZAR. It is built atop an ancient early FIFTH AGE astronomical observatory, where ancient mortals would mark solstices and equinoxes (Pop. c. 32,400).

NIGGAST: Set. Coastal settlement on the c north of the island of CYNCER^(1.) in the south of the CORAL BARONIES, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 8,500).

NIGHT-COURT: Com. The so-called law courts of the criminal underworld of the CITY OF ALMAGEST, where disputes amongst counterfeiters, smugglers and other participants of illegal activities are settled. Ironically, the Night-court is thought by some to be more efficient and effective than the true courts of Almagest.

NIGHT SISTERS, the: Org. Penitents of the IVORY MOON. Based in the PRINCIPALITY OF SEPAHAUNAT in the north west of SAMMAEA, the sisters seek penance by shunning the light of the Ivory Moon, and are thus known as the Night Sisters. Isolationist, its sisters are only ever seen on nights when the Ivory Moon is new, and sometimes travel to towns seeking alms and donations. Little is known about them and even the natives of Sepahaunat shun then. They are not related to the religion of SYBARR that is dominant in the region.

NIGHTMARE CREATURE: see ONEIROI.

NIGRED: Mor. Black-skinned GIGANRI who are largely found in GNOTH. Their ancestors sought enlightenment and fell, though the giganri are reticent of sharing the full story with outsiders. Today, they are known for their outgoing personalities and their love of travel, and they are amongst the most commonly encountered giganri outside of their homeland, whether they are simply travelling or have emigrated to foreign lands. They often become diplomats and ambassadors to other nations, suiting their natural characteristics. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

NIHASH KIMAL: Leg. Oth. Soc. Famed OTHERWORLDER commonly featured in the legends and myths of various peoples and cultures in the south east of MENISCEA, including AHOPAH, the north of IMELKOT, and the east of VECTIS. The otherworlder is noted for the brilliant light that emanates from its body that is inimical to those who look upon it, leaving them sickened, blind and their bodies blistered and burnt.

The otherworlder gained prominence in c. 1300 RM, and has been sighted sporadically since then, earning a place in local legends and myths, where it is regarded as a harbinger of monumental events, where the injuries sustained by those who look upon it being regarded as a test. Those who die of their injuries are said to have been weak-willed, with those surviving often becoming famous or influential members within their societies. Some areas that have had visitations by Nihash Kimal have gone on to deify the otherworlder and worship it as a demigod and patron.

NIHAV: Ast. The seventh of seven known PLANETS orbiting the star SOR. Its mean orbital distance from Sor is 2,1000,000,000-miles and has an estimated diameter of 35,000 miles.

It is the third of the OUTER PLANETS and is not visible to the naked eye though has been known to astronomers and some SHAPERS for centuries. It is characterised by its smooth, featureless gaseous surface and its brilliant colour that ranges from pink to salmon. It has one known satellite, ZAUATE, though is believed to have more. See Vol II: Planets and Satellites.

NIHAVALEN: Cal. In the KORACHANI CALENDAR, the ninth month of twelve, comprising 30-days. It is named after the PLANET NIHAV and is considered the third of three months of summer. See Vol II: Months and Lunar Cycle in Elyden.

NIHILESH IV: m. Pol. Per. (B. 3921 RM) The king of MIRALUL since 3977 RM. He is commonly regarded as a deranged warmonger and his actions have cost him various alliances and Miralul now stands on the brink of war with ALBASSITA and UGURIIT.

NIHITH YARAATH: Oth. OTHERWORLDLY lord of the realm of the MARKED PALL (1.) in the west of KHARKHARADONTIS. They scour the surrounding lands for slaves and sacrifices to be made to the MARKED PALL (2.). They take the form of a pallid figure, with enveloping wings like cobwebs, their slender talons like blades and most horrifying of all, a dull featureless face marked with two gaping hollow eyes, dark as the ATRAMENTA. They are regarded as a prophet of the Marked Pall and are considered a divine figure and the head of its 'church'.

NIHILAR: Oth. A form of OTHERWORLDER prone to bouts of melancholy and despair. They remember nothing of their previous lives and are reborn as hollow creatures. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

NIKAN: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the north east of MHAROKK, perched over a steep valley in the HAOL Mountains. It was once the repository of an ancient THYMI relic, thought by some to be a GODSTONE. It was taken by SARASTROAN forces during the WAR OF SUNDERING, when Mharokk was still a Korachani territory, and the fate of the relic, if indeed there ever was one, is unknown.

NIKAPONTA: Set. Settlement in the south of SAGITTARIA, along the course of the river MAENDA. It is known for its vineyards and dry white wines (Pop. c. 8,000).

NIKAYADA: Set. Major city on the island of OULADA in FALLAROUR, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA. It is the largest city in Fallarour, and is its only major industrial centre, with a large harbour where large cargo ships can berth – the only such place in all of Fallarour where they can do so (Pop. c. 246,000).

NIKEFAR: Ser. City in the far south east of ABATTUR, in the eastern face of the VOULLOR Mountains. along the course of the HIDDEN RIVER. Its main industry, and the reason for its founding, is the quarrying of slate, which is believed to be millions of years old, formed during the creation of the incredibly old mountains that flank the settlement and its quarries (Pop. c. 25,000).

NIKODEMIA: Set. Major city in the c north west of the MALANI HENDECARCHY of LONAR. It is an important link in the Malani trade route known as the AEGISWAY, and also forms a part of the GREAT ROAD, and it trades north west with SAUA and south with TZALLRACH. (Pop. c. 98,000).

NILA: Set. Fortified coastal city in the south east of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of PALUS^(1.), near the mouth of the river SARA (Pop. c. 39,500).

NIMBUS GOD: Pol. Ruler of the Kingdom of ELALLIA in the south of SAMMAEA.

NIMEH: also 'Temple of Nimeh' or 'the Temple'. Str. Soc. Pol. Gigantic forum and food hall in the city of TUALAR in the c south east of PARTHIS. It is often referred to as a temple (or the Temple by those who commonly frequent it), despite having now extant overt religious allegiances. It is a place where people can eat for free, though donations, no matter how meagre, are expected (going towards the next day's meals).

It is run by the Parthisan government and prepares good food daily, without fail, feeding many poor and homeless, though people from all walks of life go there to eat, as it is famed for its forum where people can talk and proselytise their fellow diners, which often results in 'lively' conversation. The structure was once a temple dedicated to an ancient power, but following the secularisation of Parthis, it was repurposed. It is famed for its verdigris-encrusted domes and status and its green-stained white marble walls. All the tables and chairs in the hall are identical, signifying a breakdown of class - for once inside, all are considered equal.

To steal or commit any crime in the Temple is a serious offence and seen by most as morally reprehensible, and those caught doing so are publicly shamed in punishment, which is usually more than enough to ruin their lives.

NIMMEA: also 'the Restless City'. Set. Dre. A free city situated in the north of IMEAL in CENTRAL LLACHATUL, Nimmea is constructed in a shallow crater and its metal walls are well-guarded against exit. Though the terrain around it is largely free of the corrupting influence normally associated with torpid DEMIURGES, it is nevertheless subject to some strange laws.

The region is famed for the troubled sleep that greets those resting in the city, whose fears and desires are sometimes made manifest. Heavy DREAMING sometimes brings with its nose and ear bleeds, while waking hours always come with a dull ache. Natives and those acclimatised to living there come to ignore the feelings though those new to the region find the effects discomforting.

The city is governed by an ancient 1^{st} generation HALFBLOOD who is said to hold enthralled the weaker-willed beings of the city, which exist as little more than slaves (Pop. c. 52,500).

NIMALO: 1. Pol. Geo. One of five emirates of the SECULAR EMIRATES OF LIMOTH, located to the south east of the nation, and encompassing most of the islands that collectively are known as THE CONSTELLATIONS.

The other states are DEITHO^(1.), LIMOTH^(2.), OTHOTEL ^(1.), and UKOLIST.

2. Pol. Set. Capital city of the eponymous emirate within LIMOTH^(1.), located in the c north of the state (Pop. C. 156,000).

NIMRAH: Ser. Settlement in the c of NAARETH, 70-miles north of the capital in KAURNAKAR. It is known for its rangers who patrol areas of the BAT YAAD that are close to settlements, protecting them from wild animals, particularly TARRAGONS (Pop. c. 32,000).

NIMUR: Geo. Island off the north eastern coast of VENTHIR, in the KEMHAB COAST.

NIN: Set. Fortified settlement in the far south of VENTHIR, around 12-miles from the border with SARAGOS (Pop. c. 10,000).

NINAVAND: Myr. A being born in the early FIFTH AGE, in what is thought to be the north east of SAMMAEA, to a culture believed to be a precursor to the VENATHI EMPIRE. Though their origins are unknown, they are thought to be a scion, otherworlder or low generation halfblood.

They were once an apothecary to an influential house and rose to the position of royal apothecary in the city in $\underline{\text{VENATH}}$ in $\underline{\text{NATH}}$ in c. -150 RM. From there they became part of expeditionary forces that explored the surrounding lands, where they became enamoured by the scope of the world and what lay beyond the horizon. They left their life in Venath and began exploring the world, taking copious records of their findings as they explored.

They made the LIBRARY OF ZODD their base and would return there periodically to transcribe their writings and make copies of them, though following its destruction in c. 800 RM, they continued exploring the west of SAMMAEA, circumventing the continent as they sojourned in different cultures, making their way into Llachatul in c. 1500 RM, eventually moving east into Meniscea in c. 3000 RM. Every place they went they took copious notes, leading to an extensive body of work that has been translated into many languages over the centuries, creating possibly one of the most exhaustive and studied treatises of dozens of cultures, from their inception to long after their death.

Some eras of work have been lost over time due to various events, such as the destruction of the Library of Zodd in SEPAHAUNAT, or the looting of the TEMPLE OF EMREZEN in VALA.

NINE, the: see ABULIA.

NINE BROTHERS, the: Leg. KORACHANI folk tale detailing the exploits of nine brothers who travel the known world in search of fame and fortune. Over the journey, they die one-by-one to their selfishness and misfortunes until only one remains, who returns home empty-handed, and wounded, glad to be alive.

Scholars now think that the story was originally intended to dissuade people from venturing too far from their homes, as a way of keeping them safe from harm. With the coming of the Korachani empire, the tale was encouraged to instil in people values inherent in a sedentary life. See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

NINE SENTINELS, the: Rui. Ancient towers built of solid basalt found midway across the LIDEAN-MHAROKKIN border, along the course of the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾. Two of them lie in ruins. Two, in Lidean lands, are occupied by standing troops. Three, in Mharokkin lands, are similarly fortified. One, also in Mharokkin lands, stands abandoned, shunned by locals and Lideans alike. The final one carries somewhat of a history behind it:

Sometime in the early FIFTH AGE the last of the towers, bearing the anthropomorphic name of 'the Eremite' by the Mharokkin people, became the subject of a massed OGHUR pilgrimage. From all over KHARKHARADONTIS and beyond the creatures would travel, some coming from thousands of miles away (though few, if any, from CYHLAGHARR), each bearing a story worthy of an epic. Many bore the signs of the wasting diseases of the ATRAMENTA such as AEPATHY, their bodies wracked by pain and grotesqueries. Together they gathered under a silent call and a banner unseen, rallying behind the calls of a single demagogue, his body foulest amongst them all, more akin to a GROTESQUE than anything else.

At some silent command they proceeded to rip away at the structure with nought but their bare hands and the smallest of instruments. On a few occasions the KORACHANI EMPIRE launched attacks against them but they responded savagely, acting only in defence. Eventually Korachan relented and left them to their devices. Over many years they broke the structure into countless parts and hauled the remains south, where they disappeared, never to be seen or heard of again.

NINE WATCHERS, the: Sup. Dre. Pol. Rnk. Comatose AUGURS in LYRIDIA, second only in importance to the SIBYL herself, who is said to draw strength and sight from their DREAMS. The ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR had them enslaved after the siege of Lyridia.

NINE WONDERS OF THE ANCIENT WORLD: His. Rui. Leg. Str. A list of nine wondrous ancient structures, commonly attributed to mortal craftsmen working in the early FIFTH AGE or earlier, without the aid of supranatural forces such as SCIONS or DEMIURGES.

The contents of the list have varied over time, mostly by tyrants wishing to erase the feats of ancient peoples and to aggrandise their own accomplishments, though most unbiased historians cite the following as the most commonly-accepted list, which includes:

The Acropolis of Lanethos, the Bell Tower of Gerra Shabott, the Catacombs of Costantia, the Chthonic Gate, the City-engine of Unnyarhial, the Colossus of Reshab, the Forum of the Demiurges, the Library of Hemmarashel, and the Pyramid of Otulr.

The list discounts structures or feats of engineering from extant nations and states, restricting the structures to those of previous ages or the ancient FIFTH AGE, prior to the rise of modern nations, and it also discounts many wondrous feats of engineering from previous ages. Some scholars have proposed other structures be added to the list, including:

The Aisle of Gharakhlor, the Aqueduct of Thryadami, the Arch of the Blessed, the Bastion of Steel, the Belfry of Kaudos, the Cistern of Nergaal, the Cisterns of Consanis, the Endless City, the Fountain of Gedriss, the Martyrs' Cenotaph, the Monument of Symari, the Pillar of Tanith, the Sepulchral Palace, the Splendor Solis, the Temple of the Machine Ascendant, the Temple of Shibb, the Tomb of Gorolavartur.

NINETY-NINE YEAR WAR: also 'Chthyridi Wat'. His. War. Historical war that took place in CHTHYRID between 3208 – 3307 RM, during which the KORACHANI EMPIRE, covetous of its rich ore and mineral reserves, attacked the DVERG state.

The numerical superiority of imperial forces was no match for the warren-like networks of fortified sub-surface forts that the Chthyridi defences were secreted in. These *

For decades Korachani armies struggled against the dogged Chthyridi defences, whose subsurface fortresses offered unparalleled protection against artillery and afforded their own troops various hidden exits through which they were able to harass imperial army camps and movements. The war ended in 3307 RM in a Korachani defeat, allowing Chthyrid to rebuild its lands.

NINIR: Pol. Soc. Tribe in the far south east of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. It borders the north west of the nation of ELEKHID.

NINKYUN: Geo. Mound in the south west of KREM. It is thought to date back to ancient times, possibly the THIRD AGE or earlier, and is made up of the skull and bones of thousands upon thousands of mortals killed by the diseases of NERGAAL'S armies. It is regarded as a place of death and disease to this day, though known the true history that precedes it.

NINTH: Set. Small fortified city in the south east of AETHIOS (Pop. c. 15,000).

NIOGG: Set. Fortified settlement in the south west of the tribe of NINIR in the south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 23,000).

NIPARACH: 1. Geo. Rocky region on the island of USASAAR in the KORACHANI colony of TAVVADRA off the north western coast of SAMMAEA. It was once covered in sparse forest though these were stripped by colonists to make way for open cast mining some centuries ago.

2. Set. Settlement on the island of USASAAR in the KORACHANI colony of TAVVADRA off the north western coast of SAMMAEA. Its main industry is the mining of phosphates (Pop. c. 9,000).

NIQAMM: Mil. Str. Series of ruined towers along the south eastern face of the THARORAT Mountain in the HENDECARCHY of NHORA, in the north east of MALAN. They are remnants of watchtowers erected by the FOURTH AGE nation of NAHORIA.

NIR: Geo. Island off the north eastern coast of ELEKHID, on which stands the DAGGER OF Y'BERU. The island was revealed diminishing seas some 800 years-ago and bears strange hewn geometric features that remain a mystery to this day.

NIRALAPANA: Set. Coastal settlement in the east of NOAVATUR (Pop. c. 8,000).

NIRBULA: Set. City in the north west of AQUARIIA, forming a part of THE WAY trade-route that links Aquariia with GNOTH. As a result, it has become a mercantile entre with large auction halls and markets (Pop. c. 30,000).

NIRELD: Set. City in the north east of Grest^(1.) in the island-continent of Bror^(1.). It forms part of an industrial region though little is known as to what these industries are (Pop. unknown).

NIRMAL: Set. settlement in the east of KHULL, in the region of Naxar. Its main industry is the quarrying of fine granite that is used in architecture (Pop. c. 3,500).

NIRSHAAD: Geo. Mountain in the north east of AQUARIIA, forming an extension of the western-face of the BLACK MOUNTAINS.

NIRVAM: Set. Settlement in the c north west of NAARETH, in the region of GAIAT. It is a major producer of amethyst (Pop. c. 8,000).

NISA: 1. Geo. Island in the far east of the present-day STRAIT OF NÁRTHEL, belonging to LYRIDIA.

2. Mil. Str. Fortress on the above island.

NISAPAHETAR: Small fortified city in the c east of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 20,000).

NISES: Set. Small coastal city in the south west of PNESSA (Pop. c. 12,600).

NISHRIR: 1. Set. Hook-shaped bay in the east of ESHIR⁽²⁾. It is home to many sponges and most settlements here make a living by compressordiving for them.

2. Fortified coastal city in the east of $\underline{\text{ESHIR}}^{(2)}$, overlooking the bay of the same name⁽¹⁾. Its main industry is sponging (Pop. c. 25,000).

NISKUS: 1. Lak. Lake in the west of TISARA, along the course of the river TAIHA.

2. See. Small city in the west of $\underline{\text{TISARA}}$, along the shore of lake Niskus^(1.), where it reforms the river $\underline{\text{TAIHA}}$ (Pop. c. 18,000).

NISROCH: His. Str. In antiquity, the palace of AKACHI the God-slayer in what is now STOLAS. Little now remains of the palace and surrounding city, and what foundations and ruins are visible have been defaced by the AL AKHI who seem not to know about the region's history.

NISSA: 1. Pol. PARTHISAN colony founded in 3957 RM in the far south of the peninsula of HAMMINGHENG, in the south of CUTH. Within scant years of its founding, the colony had grown powerful, subjugating much of the native populace and appropriating surrounding resources. Cuthi armies have attacked the region, but rocky highlands surrounding it have made it difficult to approach from the land, and the bay leading into it is heavily guarded from attack.

There is no concrete border between native Cuth and Nissa, and much of the region remains contested to this day. It is far from its homeland, and one must travel three quarters of the way around ELYDEN to get back to Parthis, with the journey taking over 3-months.

2. Pol. Ser. Capital city of the above colony^(1,). It has grown steadily in power and influence over the past decades (Pop. c. 43,500).

 $\underline{\text{NISSARI}}$: Set. Agricultural settlement in the c south west of $\underline{\text{NAARETH}}$ (Pop. c. 7,000).

NITTHAL: also 'the Stone Forest'. Int. Geo. Petrified forest in a dusty valley-system in the west of the RTHEI desert. The area is strewn with the rocky trunks of ancient felled trees. The region is famed for the stone tree of AGGACTHAR, which is the centre of a substantial DERUWEID cult that dominates the region for miles around.

NIUH: Geo. Large endorheic valley in the east of GREST(1.), in the west of the island-continent of BROR(1.). It forms an extension of the LAHAED Mountains, and the region is of a cool temperate climate that is known for mist. The river HITULA flows west across the valley and empties as a 300-ft. waterfall into a sinkhole before disappearing into caerns below the surface. The valley is riddled with stark rock formations, likely formed from the flow of water over thousands of years.

NIUTHRA: Sea. Small inland sea in the south of the PARTHISAN colony of EZHIRAYA⁽²⁾.

NIVARE: Mil. Str. Major coastal fort in the east of KARGAMA, overlooking the east of the BAY OF POAL, guarding it.

NIVESHTAI: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY CORRUPTED region in the far north of RAONGEN⁽²⁾, within the WHITE SHEET. The corruption mars the icy skin of the land, staining it black. Gigantic metallic branch-like growths pierce the ice and reach for the sky. Whatever their appearance is below the White sheet remains unknown for none have penetrated the deep ice, but the taint is clear to see for miles around.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{MODERATE THREAT}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}$.

NIYAN: Geo. 1. Mountains in the c north east of MALAN, along the border between the HENDECARCHIES of AMILLAERE^(1.), HATON, and DERAEIA.
2. Expansive plateau reaching north from the eponymous mountain range^(1.) in the c north east of MALAN, in the south of the HENDECARCHY of HATON.

NIZITRIS: Set. Settlement on the island of BELASHAS, in the BHALASSIAN ARCHIPELAGO in the east of the PANTHEON ISLES. Its main industry is the quarrying of silver and sulphur (Pop. c. 13,400).

NIZZUM: Dem. 'Nizzumi'. Ntn. Nation in the far south of SAMMAEA. A large part of the north west of the nation is dominated by an Atramentally tainted wasteland known as ARALAZEM. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

NJINSHI: For. Forest in the south of RAONGEN (2.).

NJURI: Ind. Set. Small city in the c north of PARAIYA, in the north of the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of ILLURATH. Its main industry is the extraction of raw UMBRA, which is piped over 200-miles to the south west to SOPORA (Pop. c. 17,000).

NKECHINYERE, BANE OF SHADOWS: (B. 3961 RM) Leg. BA'AKHI

NMASA OLA: Set. Major city in the c east of TZALLRACH, along the course of the river ADASIBA (Pop. c. 91,000).

NNAKANNA: 1. Geo. Island off the north western coast of TZALLRACH.
2. Set. Island-city off the north western coast of TZALLRACH (Pop. c. 40,000).

NOABEIL: Set. Settlement in the south of ARKOS^(1.) that processes guano collected from caves along the course of the river THAUR into guaninie that's used in fertilisers across the region (Pop. c. 9,000).

NOACHIS: Set. Major city in the north west of VÂRR, close to the source of the river ICHORIA in the RAMAVARKHA hills, west of the VARRACHON Mountain. Following the INTERREGES' abandonment of Vârr in 3791 RM, Noachis was amongst the first regions to stabilise as warlords and tyrants fought amongst themselves for power. Whereas the REGENT-KINGS would come to power in the rest of Vârr by 3824 RM, Noachis remained independent until 3912 RM, and remains largely autonomous to this day.

Though many areas of Vârr have since annulled the ancient decree in which the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE declared the Vârran god SOLUM a saint of the UNDYING MACHINE, and are slowly returning to a worship of their ancestral deity, Noachis retains its faith in the KORACHANI deity, which has caused a cultural schism (Pop. c. 135,000).

NOALANIS: Set. Small city in the east of KARAKHAS appearing in 4005 RM following the increased activity of the AKRABATOR BLOOD RAINS led to the desertion of many settlements. Founded by refugees from these settlements, Noalanis is now a scholarly centre in Karakhas studying the effects of the rains on the flora and fauna of the region. The city is ruled by the HURHEKH caste, who use the blood rains in their experiments. It also forms part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 17,000).

NOAMARACH: Sup. Rui. Abandoned ATRAMENTAL research facility in the south of KARAKHAS. It was once a centre of research into Atramental weaponry, including ATRAMENTAL BOMBS, but was decommissioned in c. 3890 RM and since then many legends and myths have emerged surrounding the structure. Many claim that lights can be seen on at night and that it is still used, but attempts to penetrate it have only revealed a hollow abandoned structure. Reports of corrupted beasts in the region surrounding it are also common.

The facility was attacked by SARASTROAN-funded Karakhasid dissidents in late 3704 RM during the SHADOW WAR, which severely hampered imperial production of ATRAMENTAL BOMBS for the rest of the war.

NOAMAS: Pol. Soc. Rnk. An important wealthy pariah caste in the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, that fulfils the role of merchant, businessman and noble. The Noamas are itinerant merchants who were once the backbone of society in Soleyn. Traditionally the Noamas would circumvent Soleyn, buying excess produce in one town and selling it in another in an endless cycle that was the backbone of the region's economy. They remain a common sight along the length of the EAST ROAD and are resected merchants there and beyond.

At the peak of their presence, between c. 3000 - 3200 RM, their caravans numbered hundreds of individuals and beasts of burden and stretched for miles as they marched across the rainforest HOLLOWAYS – paths that remain clearly marked to this day, even though some have not been used in centuries.

They are pariahs, and are not generally allowed within city limits, but most settlements have sizeable caravanserais and markets outside the city limits, which are the Noamas' domain and subject to their own laws, which may be archaic, or subject to the whims of the Noamas under whose jurisdiction the markets fall. In some cases, these market-towns can be bigger than the settlements they are serving.

The Noamas became pariahs because they refused to honour the masochistic beliefs of the rapidly spreading KWEI beliefs after its appearance in Soleyn between c. 2400 – 2550 RM, though their status as pariah remains largely as little more than tradition today and few really care for their dismissal of the religion. Indeed, many of the pain houses that are common in most Solyeni cities are owned by the Noamas. See Vol II: Peoples and Races of Elyden.

 \underline{NOAS} : Sea. Bay in the \underline{SEA} OF \underline{DERAEA} , acting as a natural border between the $\underline{HAR\acute{E}SHKI}$ \underline{CITY} - $\underline{KINGDOMS}$ of $\underline{ALAMUT}^{(1)}$ and $\underline{SYRTIS}^{(1)}$.

NOAVATUR: 1. Also 'the Hidden Empire'. Dem. 'Noavaturi'. Ntn. Nation in the east of SAMMAEA, to the north of the SEA OF LETHEA. Originating as a KORACHANI colony in c. 900 RM, over the native land of KZANADEM. The indigenous people were students of mythohistory and they were virtually wiped out by Korachani slavers as their lands were resettled by industries that set about tearing down forests and digging into the earth for rich mineral resources.

In c. 1150 RM the region was left in the hands of PRECEPTORS to govern from the city of Noavatur⁽²⁾ in the name of the empire, and the region continued to prosper. Magnates and landowners grew incredibly wealthy from their industries, and their influence in Noavatur as well as in Korachan grew until their names carried more clout than those of the Preceptors. Indeed, the Preceptors became their puppets and in 1299 RM they were finally deposed, replaced by a Plutocratic council made up of the richest, most influential, most ruthless of the magnates, who declared independence from Korachan.

This prompted Korachan into action – its navy blockaded the SEA OF RTHAS in 1301 RM, though this escalated into war by 1303 RM. The war was finally settled by a great tsunami, now referred to as the UPHEAVAL OF LETHEA, which left both the Noavaturi and Korachani fleets devastated, and the Noavaturi coastline destroyed.

The next year, prisoners of war, including the Korachani admiral, VIRRIATO ARROLIABE, were delivered to Korachan, in exchange for independence, which was officially recognised for the first time in 1304 RM.

The Plutocracy thrived following this, growing rich and decadent off of the toil of their people who slowly became slaves in all but name. This period lasted until 1876 RM, when all 1,863 Plutocrats were assassinated while holding session. The tale of their demise in the burning of the Palace of the Prefecturates is now a national story, and the unknown culprit is seen by many as a folk hero who helped to eventually liberate millions from the yoke of oppression, though not before a vicious civil war left a quarter of its population dead. The civil war brought a new age of democracy to Noavatur that lasts to this day.

Noavatur is a land of jungles and beauteous rugged mountains that make life hard for its people, but not impossible. Most settlements are situated close to the coast or in the inland basins, where natural resources are harvested on an industrial scale. These industries originated with the arrival of Korachani colonists three millennia ago, and continue to this day. Indeed, vast swathes of its jungles have been removed to feed the INNER SEA'S need of wood and other resources.

Today Noavatur is a major centre of trade, wealthy from its seemingly endless natural resources, and, despite being located on the shores of the feared Sea of Lethea, it is a populous and vibrant land. Its people worship a deity known as the UNCHANGING GOD: a corruption of the imperial CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, whose roots date back to imperial colonisation of the region dating back to around 800 RM. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Pol. Set. Capital city of the eponymous nation $^{(1.)}$ in the east of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 950,000).

NOAVATURI: Lan. Language spoken in NOAVATUR. It is based on the earlier native KZANADEMI, though has many Korachani loanwords. See Vol II: Languages.

NOAVATURI TRAIL: Com. Geo. Major trade-route that once linked the KORACHANI colony of NOAVATUR with KARAKHAS, overland via the UMBRA SOKHAR, which in those days was safer to traverse than today due to being less ATRAMENTALLY-ACTIVE. The trade-route was established in c. 1000 RM.

Stretching for almost 50,000-miles across the Umbra Sokhar from the city of KITHALOI in the south of Karakhas, to the Noavaturi city of SOVROKA). It was well-guarded and also home to many caravanserais along its route, which catered to the extensive caravans that travelled its length, transporting raw materials from Noavatur north, and essential items from the HEARTLAND to the south.

The trail became less travelled following the independence of Noavatur in 1304 RM, though continued to be used until the growing Atramental taint in the Umbra Sokhar became too intense to safely traverse, in around 3000 RM. Some caravans, especially suited to the conditions, still make use of the trail today, though it is a dangerous road. See Vol II: Major Trade Routes.

NOBATA: Set. Settlement in the c west of RHINOCOLOURA. It is known for its cattle rearing (Pop. c. 4,000).

NOBLE BEAST, the: Myt. His. Common epithet by which the DEMIURGE ARIMASPI was once known.

NOCEN: Set. Coastal city in SKAROS, known for its shipyards and harbour. It was the site of the MIRACLE OF NOCEN on the FEAST OF THE MORTAL BIRTH OF ST. MALICHAR in 3703 RM (Pop. c. 731,000).

NOCENTI: Set. Small city in the north of KULIGALA, in the north east of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.) in the east of SAMMAEA. It was coastal in ancient times, and was known for its courts and the gibbets that surrounded the city in warning to others (Pop. c. 14,000).

NOCHRIS: Set. Settlement in the south east of HOLOLACH^(1,), in the prefecture of Hololach^(2,). It exists along the western edge of the DREAMSCAPE of KHYZOTTRA and is known for its logging of its peculiar trees (Pop. c. 6,600).

NOCS EQUUA: Set. Fortified settlement in the eastern face of the MISHANOW Mountains in the region of FURUD in the c of THE SURRACH. It is affected by a mild ATRAMENTAL TAINT that leaves it in a near constant state of twilight, with only a mild difference between day and night, which are divided equally all-year round. It is home to scholars and shapers who study the effects of the ATRAMENTA on the MATERIAL PLANE (Pop. c. 11,000).

NOCTOU: Set. City in the south west of PARAIYA on the banks of lake ALANCARAC at its confluence with the river NOTHIYA. The city sees trade move across the river NOTHIYA to MALKOU and lake KONRA via the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 389,000).

NODAN: Set. Major city in the south west of LOEGRESS⁽¹⁾, along the easternmost shore of lake BUILL. It is built atop an ancient (possibly FOURTH AGE) quarry, with many dwellings and structures tunnelled into the limestone walls of the old quarry (Pop. c. 80,500).

NODENS: Set. Fortified coastal settlement in the Free Land of TRINITANIA^(1,) northern coast of SAMMAEA, in the far north of KHARKHARADONTIS, overlooking the SEA OF UGOLOTH. It is situated close to the border with ANDILUTH, and is located along the SALT ROAD, and is known for its caravanserais and storage yards (Pop. c. 6,200).

NOES: Int. Geo. Voluminous cavern in the western-face of the SHAKHURAN Mountains in the west of ADHERA. It is crowned by a large skylight through which enough light enters the cave to allow the growth of flora, which is dense and fecund thanks to the humidity of the cave, which is otherwise inaccessible. The skylight is some 300-ft. above the cavern floor, and very few people are known to have penetrated its depths, though it is said that an ancient temple lies in the deepest reaches of the cavern, hewn out of an entire cliff face. Very little is known about the temple and its origins.

NOHEHUN: Lak. Lake in the east of RHINOCOLOURA, acting as a confluence of the river MHALAR, SOMALAN, and SARAKHAR, with the MHALAR leading from it into river DAKHAN.

NOHET: Set. Settlement in the east of BANT, in the c of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA⁽¹⁾, in the east of SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 6,000).

NOKON, SHRINE OF: Leg. Str. Jungle shrine in the south of DHA NAR, the location of which is now lost (and thought by some to be little more than legend). The shrine is believed to be the final resting place of the ancient primogenitor king VRYODETETESH, whose exploits are now immortalised in semi-fictitious parables that are told to children across the nation and beyond.

The shrine is named after the mid FIFTH AGE explorer who claimed to have discovered the location of the shrine, though subsequent attempts to replicate the discovery have thus far failed. Nokon did produce a solid golden idol that he claimed to have recovered from the shrine, which is now in possession of the ruler of Dha Nar.

NOLAN: Pol. Rnk. Title common in VENTHIR, TZALLRACH and SARASTRO generally used in administrative purposes. The title was originally a military rank, though changes in culture saw its use migrate to a civilian NOLKOSH: Geo. Geothermally-active region in the far north of KOLCHIS, is the frozen lands of SHUK RAZHA. The region is characterised by geothermal vents and geysers, many of which are surrounded by brightly-coloured pools of water. The permafrost for which most of the Shuk Razha is known is kept at bay here, making the process of METEORE mining easier.

NOLONRA: Set. Coastal settlement in the north of SABAISA, facing the SEA OF OTALGIA. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 8,000).

NOMARCH: hereditary noble title in KHAMID, the BROKEN LANDS, TZALLRACH and TETHYSIA, originating in Khamid.

It is now common to Tzallrach and Tethysia, as well the few island where Khamidian government remains in the BROKEN LANDS, and it is similar to the PATRICIANS of the INNER SEA or feudal lords, and they are granted land and entrusted to amass armies to defend their lands.

NOMENCLATOR: Pol. Soc. Rnk. Caste within the HIGH and LOW-EMPIRES whose members are attached to the PATRICIAN HOUSES and serve as heralds. They Nomenclators manage the house histories and genealogies, and oversee the use of protocol and armorial bearings across the lands where the house has influence, and make proclamations and carry official messages.

NOMOBEL RISHA: f. (B. 3946 RM) Pol. Per. LADY OF THE CABINET of VALBAR⁽²⁾, representing the state of ODARUL⁽¹⁾.

NOMRA DHISS: f. Sup. Per. (B. 2967 – D. 3101 RM) SKAROSIAN ARCHSHAPER FERREAR who is considered a hero in the nation, and in particular the capital city, SKAROSIA. She was pivotal in the defence of Skarosia during the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES, during which she animated the great griffin statues that guard its doors, which stalled the Almagesti attack on the city long-enough for its armies to eventually repel the invaders. She is buried in a crypt under the basilica, where her body is preserved in wax as a CORPO SANCTO.

NOMROS: m. (D. 1261 RM) Pol. Mil. Per. Ruler of KARAKHAS between 1249 and his death. He was a renowned general whose actions were instrumental in bringing to an end the intense civil conflict now known as the SABISSILIAN REVOLTS. He is famed for having commissioned the forging of a sword from the iron procured from the blood of 1,000 vanquished foes, which later came to be known as the BLOOD SWORD.

NONKOWAN: Set. City in the c west of KREM. Its main industry is the creation of GLASTEEL items, particularly ceremonial weapons (Pop. c. 32,750).

NONOT: Mil. Str. Fortress in the prefecture of HOLOLACH^(2.) in the west of Hololach^(1.), 65-miles east of the capital.

NOON: Pol. One the FIVE-AND-SIXTY FEUDAL STATES of SAUA.

NORABOSK: also 'the Wood of Cats'. Large virginal forest dominating the c north of the HENDECARCHY of AMILLAERE^(1.), north of the LAUL EGLEA river in MALAN, said to be the ancestral home of the SPHINXES. It is known for its many overgrown crumbling colossi bearing feline features and is home to many OGSUASIM. It is known for its mist and moss-covered old growth trees.

NORACHAN: Set. City in the north west of KORACHAN, near the mouth of the river SUARA, whose slow death has led to the diminishing of the city. Its population is less than a quarter of what it boasted at its peak in c. 2894 RM. Despite this, it still remains a major manufacturer of food (mostly in the form of DROSS), much of which is sold to merchants travelling along the REDROUTE passing through the city (Pop. c. 36,000).

NORARIA: Set. Small settlement in c of CISNERIA (Pop. c. 1,200).

NORASH: Set. Fortified city in the east of CISNERIA (Pop. c. 29,000).

NOREI: see LOST ANCESTORS.

NORERAEL: also 'the Godscrowns Mountains'. Geo. Mountain-range in the c south of RHINOCOLOURA. In Rhinocoloura it is known as 'the Godscrowns', after its many peaks, each of which is named after one of the many deities of its pantheon.

NORETANAS: see BLACK MOUNTAIN, THE.

NORIA: Set. Settlement in the c north west of LYRIDIA (Pop. c. 5,000).

NORICAFAR: Set. City in the c south west of ABATTUR. It is an industrial centre, with many manufactories that produce engines and machines (Pop. c. 120,000).

NORICAS VEICA: f. Pol. Per. (B. 3949 RM) The present chair of the ABATTURI senate. A 6th generation UTTRAN heiress to an industrial dynasty that grew rich mining sunstone, she has held her seat since 3978 RM – the longest residing chair to date. She has amassed quite a following and, with her family's wealth, has been able to influence various councillors to her cause over the past decades, and many believe she wields far more influence than she publicly admits.

NORICONNA: Ser. Major city in the far east of TISARA, along the course of the river AGRONNA. It is a mercantile hub, with a large market controlled by relations of the royal family that regularly trade with ABATTUR via its capital LAILLA (Pop. c. 80,000).

NORKHA: Set. Settlement in the north east of LAASKHA, renowned for its grasslands and horses. It supplies horses to merchant caravans travelling along the RED ROUTE, which passes through the city (Pop. c. 5,000).

NOROAS: Geo. Rocky highlands in the north east of JURRAS⁽²⁾, overlooking the SEA OF AHAMA and the sea of FOR, and protecting the south of the city of CYKRANOSH⁽³⁾.

NORONT: Set. Small city in the east of the tribe of DATHOA, in the south west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 14,000).

NOROUA: Geo. Shallow valley in the south of PARAIYA, and part of the drainage basin of the river NOTHIYA. It is rocky, though in many areas it has been shaped into wide terraces that are filled with fields.

NORTH KINGDOM: His. Geo. In ancient KHAMID, name given to its northern territories, as determined by the SNJEMET Mountains that divided the land in two.

NORTH ROAD: also 'Noded Bass'. Com. Geo. The northern part of the KORACHANI trade road known as THE RED ROUTE, beginning in the west of LAASKHA, passing through SKAROS, ALMAGEST, the DESOLATION OF ASTUDAN and finally DURCHAA. See Vol II: Major Trade Routes.

NORTH TOWER, the: see SUBÉ.

NORTHERN HEMISPHERE: Geo. The half of ELYDEN that is situates north of the equator, including all of the continent of LLACHATUL and most of MENISCEA, as well as around half of SAMMAEA.

NORTHERN MYMEREAN CURRENT: Sca. Warm surface ocean current in the north of the SEA OF MYMEREA that flows south along the eastern coast of EASTERN LLACHATUL, before heading west, where it splits, heading north west into the IAPETAN CURRENT, and south west into the PORPHYRI CURRENT and part of the MIROVEAN GYRE.

NORTHERN PALADIN: see NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN PALADIN.

NORTHERN POLE: Geo. Northernmost point in ELYDEN, within the WHITE SHEET, in LLACHATUL, defined by the latitude 90° north.

NORTHERN SARASTROAN CAMPAIGN: Mil. His. One of the major military campaigns that formed a part of the larger WAR OF SUNDERING, fought between KORACHAN and its allies, and the dissident forces of SARASTRO and its allies in the north of Sarastro.

The region encompassing lake SARAGON and the JAELA Mountains had seen fighting between VENTHIR and Sarastroan forces as part of the VENTHIR/SARASTROAN WAR since LIVIALEN 3703 RM, though fighting reached a stalemate in the SHAMAS SHUGAL by MURDAD, leading to the BATTLE OF KARAFR, which took place between the $12^{\rm th}-13^{\rm th}$ of MALICHALEN 3704 RM. The battle was indecisive and left the Shamas Shugal a contested region until the end of the war.

After over a year of fighting, Korachani forces were able to clear a corridor in the Shamas Shugal on the 13th of CYKRANALEN 3705 RM, capturing KARAFR a few weeks later, on Equinox Day, giving their forces a safe route towards ARGEA – capita of Sarastro.

The Campaign was divided into a series of other engagements and battle, each a major war in its own right. Of note are the two SIEGES OF ARGEA – the first of which began on the 5th of ASHTALEN, ending in defeat with the cataclysmic FIRST RITUAL OF SEGARRA that levelled the Venthiri city of CORYBANT on the 15th, killing 200,000 civilians; and the second took place between the 19th and 30th NIHAVALEN, and ended with the humiliating ROUT OF THE KORACHANI 1ST, in which and STEEL LEGIONNAIRES of the Korachani 1st Gryphonnes, under the command of the IRON ANGEL, were overwhelmed, suffering crippling injuries forcing them and the rest of the imperial forces to withdraw north, losing their foothold on the city.

The Sarastroan Treaty was signed less than a month later on the 23rd of SATAVALEN, ending the war and the Northern Sarastroan Campaign with Sarastro an independent nation under the control of the LICHKING SATHEP.

NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN PALADINS: Mar. Leg. Myt. Cultural figures that are deeply ingrained in the various legends and myths of the INNER SEA REGION, transcending borders and beliefs, likely dating back to mid FOURTH AGE civilisations, where contact and trade between mortal peoples allowed for a dissemination of history and legends, eventually leading to the rise of Northern and Southern Paladin myths.

The Northern Paladin is pale-skinned, sullen and taciturn, while the Southern Paladin is olive-skinned, passionate and hearty. Each represents the characters of their homelands – the former, Central Llachatul, and the latter Northern Sammaea. Despite their differences the two share many similarities – they both crusade for good and represent the common folk, though they have clashed against each other, with differing fables and legends chronicling their exploits, which end differently depending on where they're told.

Their tales were passed down through the FADING of the Fourth Age via oral traditions, which allowed the legends to survive, but this also caused them to change greatly from their original forms. These stories had spread with the coming of the first stable cultures of the FIFTH AGE, by which time they had taken on various flavours and traits as the identities of their parent cultures solidified. By the end of the 1st millennium RM there were dozens of different versions of the legend, which had diverged to a point of them being unrecognisable from each other. These include the AGHA LLYR VÂNA of TZALLRACH and VENTHIR, BAAL (4), HECUBAH REX, and the AZAZEMI REVENANT, amongst others.

The rise of the KORACHANI EMPIRE around the INNER SEA brought its own traditions and outlook to the fore, which eventually superseded many of the older myths, which have since been forgotten, bit the SUNDERING OF THE EMPIRE in 3705 RM saw cultural as well as political fragmentation of the old empire, with new REFORMED EMPIRE of the south eventually reappropriating various traditions and myths, including the Southern Paladin, which, while remaining a dark figure, became a liberator of imperialist shackles who has gained various Sarastroan trait over the years. See Vol II: Legends and Folk Tales.

NORTHERN REVENANT: see REVENANT, AZAZEMI.

 $\underline{NORTHERN\ SAMMAEA}\text{: see }\underline{SAMMAEA}, \underline{NORTHERN}.$

NOTHERN SIMBARA: see SIMBARA, NORTHERN.

NORTHERN TROPIC: see TROPIC OF RAH.

NOSALA: Set. Small city in the c west of KHALHAT. Its primary industry is the growing of porcelain and flesh for the use of ITERANT construction (Pop. c. 18,400).

NOSAR: Sec. Small coastal city in the c north west of PERGOST, in the far south of the headland of ANASAR. Its people have a long history of MAMMOTH taming, though today their link with the beast is purely predatory, with them selling meat, oil and pelts, as well as captured beasts south across the SEA OF DAGGERS (Pop. c. 16,200).

NOSETH: Set. Fortified settlement in the far north of AETHIOS. It is located in the region of DAGESARETH and its main industry is the quarrying of SOULSTONES on an industrial level (Pop. c. 10,000).

NOSHEER: Rvr. Seasonal endorheic river in the c east of KREM, flowing into the BERASSIM BASIN to the north of the MO-ORASSIM Mountains. When the river flows, it ends in the seasonal endorheic lake LAEDAN.

NOSO: Pol. Soc. PATRICIAN HOUSE which was the subject of the old epic THE WANE OF THE HOUSE OF FLIES. It still exists today, based in the city of NEKODA in the south west of the KORACHANI PENINSULA, though is greatly diminished and its lands are now largely bereft of resources and of little value, other than the mortal lives that dwell within. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

NOTEA: Rvr. River in the north of EREBETH and the south of SAGITTARIA, which flows north for 425-miles before meeting its parent, the river MAENDA.

NOTH NAMMAR: Rel. His. Str. Great iron temple beneath the east of MHAROKK, carved from a solid vein of rare red iron in the upper levels of the PRISON CARCERI. A sphinx idol, also hewn from the red iron, dominates the temple. Deep, and rarely encountered by surface-dwellers, the temple is rumoured to have been home to the IDOL OF BAPHOMET, following the wanderings of the demented PERIPATETIC SET Nastanaur, who commented in c. 890 RM after his seven-decades-long itinerancy of Carceri, that it was kept in the sphinx-temple, where it was worshipped by a breed of corrupted humanoids.

NOTHIYA: Rvr. River in the south west of PARAIYA flowing from the black waters of lake ALANCARAC for over 850-miles before joining with its parent, the river SHIBBOLETH^(3,). The river slows down and becomes a 175-mile long braided river as it passes through the incredibly flat MEGHA region, which is now renowned as an agricultural centre.

NOTHA: Rvr. River in the north of CHTHYRID, flowing east for 350-miles from the north eastern-face of the RHAECHA Mountains, before joining up with the river ALLIA. It is the main source of fresh water in Chthyrid, alongside the river GHATAN.

NOTHEOS: Rvr. River in the east of UKOLIST in the east of LIMOTH^(2.)
flowing west for 315-miles from sources in KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA Mountains and the NABIL Massif, before reaching its parent, the river
NAHRAS.

NOTHONAR: Set. City in the west of CEHOPHELA (Pop. c. 38,000).

NOTHURHUL: Geo. Region in the south west of MEHITIEL. It is renowned for the ice that covers it almost all-year despite the latitude there of 46°. The phenomenon is attributed to a deep ATRAMENTAL sinkhole which act as a siphon to heat. It is home to eerie conical vents through which poisonous gasses seep. The surrounding area is filled with the rotting corpses of unfortunate animals that have been killed by the phenomenon.

NOTHOS: Set. Settlement in the south of OPHIUSSA, along the course of the river MARAGA. Its main industry is agriculture and it also grows flowers for use as scents in the perfume industry in FORDONEA (Pop. c. 5.000).

NOTICEBOARD, the: Soc. Arc. large wall, around three storeys high flanking a wide staircase leading from the central peninsula of the CITY OF ALMAGEST to the docks that is used to post notices, adverts and bills. The wall is thick with inches of layers of posts that have accumulated over the years. It is a popular spot for mercenaries, freelancers and others to solicit for work and is a hub of pickpocketing and the sale of counterfeit and black-market goods at all hours of the day.

NOTRA: Set. City in the c-south east of SAGITTARIA known for its production of machinery (Pop. c. 38,000).

NOTTRASH: Set. Fortified city in the far west of the tribe of ITTRA, in the c of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is separated from the rest of the tribe by the spine of the GROWING MOUNTAINS, and it is the only link to the ruling city of IROHAAN is across a well-guarded mountainpass. The city is a major source of gold, and is kept at great cost to Ittra (Pop. c. 35,000).

NOUVAR: Pol. Set. Capital of VÂRR throughout its KORACHANI subjugation and the reign of the INTERREGES there, and home to the MORÉHAN SANCTIFIED ORDER OF THE INQUISITION between 498 and 2963 RM. In 3553 RM the suburb of NOUVATAI appeared in response to costly regrading to keep the city coastal in the wake of retreating waters of the PROPONTIS. Following the nations' abandonment by the Interreges in 3791 RM the nation entered a long period of chaos, with tyrants and warlords vying for control, but the REGENT-KINGS emerged as rulers in c. 3824 RM. The capital was moved to SATAAR in 3985 RM, and they continue to rule from there to this day.

Nouvar is ruled by the PROLOCUTORS, as is the rest of the ILORHAN peninsula, and though it is technically under the aegis of the Regent-kings of Vârr, it is largely left to its own devices. During the Order's presence there, Nouvar was a hub of the FIRMAMENTAL slave-trade, and slave-raids to the east were often mounted from there. Though slavery died out with Korachani abandonment of the region, a distrust of SHAPERS and foreigners from the east remains to this day.

The city was first affected by diminishing sea levels in c. 3200 RM though its harbours were maintained and moved farther out through the costly construction of locks. The cost of maintenance became too much and in 3553 RM a new suburb called $\underline{\text{NOUVATAI}}$ was founded 5-miles east, at a steep shore and most of the populace was eventually moved there.

Despite this, Nouvar was never truly abandoned and soon became a rural centre to the new capital, producing food and other goods that are consumed to this day in Nouvatai (Pop. c. 8,000).

NOUVATAI: lit. New Nouvar. Set. Major conurbation and seat of power of the PROLOCUTORS of VÂRR. It emerged as a suburb of the old capital of NOUVAR in 3553 RM in response to the withdrawing coastline, which left the old capital of Nouvar landlocked following centuries of costly maintenance. It has since become a major stop along the RED ROUTE, and is also the eastern-most stop along the SULPHUR ROAD that links Vârr to KORACHAN.

The city is home of the (incomplete) TEMPLE OF NEMESIS and is renowned for its harbour. Political commentators believe that the influence of the Prolocutors has grown to an extent where they may challenge the government in SATAAR for independence soon (Pop. c. 410,000).

NOUA: Set. Settlement in the north of NÁRTHEL. It is one of many settlements in the region known its OPIUM production, so-much-so that the poppy is its emblem (Pop. c. 6,000).

NOVA ARCANA: Sup. Org. Organisation based in PARTHIS, with branches extending into the territories of it its dependencies and allies. The group concerns itself with the propagation of knowledge related to the Firmamental arts and protects FIRMAMENTAL SHAPERS where it can. Individual members often operate outside of Parthian borders, as far afield as the LOW- and HIGH-EMPIRES, where they operate in secret, rescuing persecuted Firmamental shapers and taking them to their bases, largest of which is Surantin the ZOHELETHI Basin.

NOYAN: Mil. Rnk. Military rank in TEMUJA.

NOZAMB: Set. Settlement in the region of HAPANTHA in the c east of THE SURRACH. Its people claim it has a great history, though they are reticent of sharing this with outsiders (Pop. c. 10,000).

NRUTACYLL: Set. Small city in the north of SERROK (Pop. c. 13,000).

NSEKEAT: Set. Settlement in the c of OKKHAM, in the western foothills of the Okkhami Mountains. Its main industry is sericulture – the production of silk from caterpillars of the giant ORUNA moth that is endemic to the lower mountains of Okkham (Pop. c. 10,000).

NU AMAHITA: His. Rel. Dei. Extinct sea deity across the region of the PANTHEON ISLES to the north of the THARACASSAN Waters off the eastern coast of LLACHATUL. The islands were visited by KORACHANI explorers in c. 1525 RM, who brought with them missionaries who brought the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE to the region, corrupting Nu Amahita into a saint of the UNDYING MACHINE. Worship of the entity as a god slowly returned to the region, though the imperial veneer forced upon it remains in most cases. See Vol IV: Gods and Pantheons.

NUAAGHU: Set. Coastal settlement in the west of METHUMN, in the northern arm of the HENAKARAIAN peninsula. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 3,750).

NUAAN: Set. Major coastal city in the c south of KEPHUAAN, overlooking the BAY OF COMMARA. It is the largest city in Kephuaan and is known for its steep natural harbour and its busy ports and shipyards (Pop. c. 1,080,000).

NUAANAN: Set. Major city in the north of METHUMN, in the north of the ANTENAS plains, along the course of the river HELAGHILRA. It was once a coastal settlement, though as the BAY OF LRITHA slowly withdraw to the west as ELYDEN'S seas lowered, it became landlocked and attracted refugees from across the region that saw it grow into a thriving city. It reached its peak in c. 2000 RM, when its population was believed to have been around 1,000,000, though it has slowly waned since then, as the area slowly became drier and incapable of supporting such a large concentration of mortals (Pop. c. 110,000).

NUAANU: Set. Industrial settlement in the c of TAAN AN. Its main industry is the extraction and mining of raw UMBRA within the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of UBERRET, which is then piped north along the ZENEGE RES PIPELINE, where it is refined before being piped farther north to URAMMALET, where most of it is exported. It is also home to many SHABRAZIG, who maintain the pipelines of Uberret (Pop. c. 10,000).

NUADA: Set. City in the west of AMMESH. The city is a crossroads and is a mercantile centre, trading goods from surrounding cities and from across the west of Ammesh (Pop. c. 40,000).

NUALLA: Pol. Mil. Champion and Herald of QUEEN HETEPHERES in VENTHIR. She is also a Templar-princess who fought in the SIEGE OF CHAR MÂTHI.

NUALLA INEN ARGHAAV: f. Mil. Pol. Atr. Per. (B. 3955 RM) TRIUMVIR of the TAVVADRA^(2.) LANGUE^(1.) of the GRIGORIAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION since 4001 RM. Born the second child of PATRICIAN HOUSE ARGHAAV in the colony of TAVVADRA^(1.), Nualla was raised far from the heartland of the empire. A problem child, she was sent to a distant LYCEUM to be disciplined and learn how to run the family business, but whilst there she was found by agents off the ORDER OF PROSELYTISERS and sent to the MINASTERIA^(2.) of PROCULEAR to study CLAIRVOYANCE, at which she excelled.

She was recruited by the Grigorian Order at the age of 21, where she became a SEER(3.), eventually rising to the rank of OVERSEER, a role in which she showed natural aptitude.

Though only Triumvir for a few years, she has already made her mark on the Order, implementing reforms to all three Langues (with the consent of their respective Triumvirs), including a reorganisation of the various regiments and ranks within the Order, and has spent most of her time extending a hand to the other Orders of the Inquisition, through which she plans on forming new alliances to strengthen the effectiveness of all Orders.

Some believe she desires to unite the various Orders into a single monolithic organisation, which she believes would benefit from a singular centralised leadership, rather than the conflict and competition that currently exists between Orders.

NUARA: Set. Settlement in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of SYRTIS^(1.).

The settlement is situated along the shores of lake PAVO (Pop. c. 8,500).

NUARAMINO: Set. Settlement in the west of NOAVATUR (Pop. c. 10,000).

NUARGA: Set. City in the c north of CISNERIA (Pop. c. 42,000).

NUBBIOR: Rvr. River in the east of ELEKHID, flowing east for 325-miles from sources in the NARAVASH Mountains, before reaching the coast at the BAY OF ENEPH^(1.)

NUBITA: Set. City in the c of KHAMID, to the west of river NAHAL. Its main industry is the making of object d'art, particularly utilising gemstones and gold. Goods made here are sold to merchants travelling the GREAT ROAD, which passed through the city (Pop. c. 43,000).

NUCTEMERA: Geo. Region in far north of EREBETH, known for its vineyards and aromatic wines. Most of the wineries in the region have evolved into small fortified settlements.

NUÉDHA: Set. Major city in the c of KOMMEA. It is a crossroads of trade and culture, and is known for its great bustling market that exists in the shadow of vaulted bridges and spires (Pop. c. 376,000).

NUEREA: Set. Fortified city in the south east of LAASKHA, forming the major link between it and AZAZEM (Pop. c. 43,000).

 $\underline{\text{NUHA}}$: Rvr. River in the east of $\underline{\text{SARASTRO}}$ and a main tributary of the river $\underline{\text{SOLONA}}$.

NUHAMESH: Set. City in the east of SARASTRO, less than 100-miles west of ARGEA, along a fork between the river SOLONA and river NUHA. The city emerged from two earlier settlements that were situated on either side of the river – Nuha and Mesh. Over many years the settlements grew into one, becoming known as Nuhamesh (Pop. c. 92,000).

NUHMEN: Set. Major city in the c north west of KHAMID, along the course of the river ARAX (Pop. c. 800,000).

NUHUMM: Set. City in the far west of PNESSA (Pop. c. 40,000).

NUIGHAMMAN: Set. Small coastal city in the far north east of METHUMN, overlooking the BAY OF UAMMARA(1.). It was founded in c. 3550 RM to take advantage of oysters that appeared there with the waning of sea levels, and pearl diving remains its main industry. Since then, its people have come to believe in a sea serpent that lives in the SEA OF LRITHA, whose appearance is now thought to bring disaster to the pearl harvest. (Pop. c. 14,000).

NUISS: Set. Fortified city in the north east of ELEKHID. It is part of a traderoute with the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, via the city of ASAMA (Pop. c. 43,000).

NUL UMELARA: Rui. Ancient obsidian tower, forming part of the UMELARA wall that once stretched for over 160-miles in the c north of AQUARIIA, located in the ATRAMENTAL WASTES of LAHUSHUR that have developed the base of the tower in a red flesh-like substance that holds it together.

The wall as well as the tower are now ruined. A second tower, SON UMELARA exists on the northern reaches of the wall. Little is known of the wall's origins or where the obsidian, which is otherwise unknown in all of Aquariia, was sourced.

NULAH: His. Set. Ancient settlement, originally SALOROCAN, though resettled by NATHI colonists after its subjugation of the area in c. -550 RM, becoming its most north western port. Though it later diminished with the Nathi kingdom, its ruins were used as the foundation for the city of MULCIBER, which was completed in 504 RM.

NULAND: Set. City in c south of ROMOREA⁽²⁾, along the southernmost shore of the Sea of HASAAZ ARAAT. Its main industry is training MONITORS⁽²⁾, which are used throughout Romorea and are also exported (Pop. c. 33,500).

NULL: also 'hollow one' or 'shell'. Oth. Sup. Rnk. Rare MORTALS born without a presence in the OTHERWORLD and ultimately without a SPIRIT or the chance to be reborn after death as an OTHERWORLDER.

For reasons as yet unknown nulls are known to live for far longer than normal mortals, even as much as twice to three times the norm for their race. They are sorrowful and hollow creatures that have little to no equals in the world amongst their kind, and often live solitary or abused lives as outcasts.

NULLAMBIT: Sup. An imaginary line that circumnavigates ELYDEN, at an angle of around 81° to the equator. It is equidistant from the SUPRANATURAL antipodes known as the PRIME LACUNAE – the BLACK FOUNTAIN, and the TRUE MENISCUS; at 8°57'33"S 27°56'20"W and 8°57'33"N 152°03'40"E, respectively – and is the farthest point from the two regions, crossing Elyden.

The world is commonly divided into 10° lines radiating from the Nullambit. These lines are largely arbitrary and are used to give SHAPERS a rough idea of the phenomena and effects one can expect when a certain distance from Nullambit or the two fonts.

The closer one gets to the Nullambit the weaker the effects of the FIRMAMENT and ATRAMENTA become, making shaping and technarcane use a lot more difficult, yet conversely a lot more reliable. The farther one moves from the Nullambit (and closer to the antipodes of the Black Fountain or the True Meniscus) the stronger relative SHAPING becomes and the more unpredictable its behaviour.

Most shaping cultures emerged at around $30^{\circ}-60^{\circ}$ from the Nullambit, where a stable compromise exists between the predictability and reliability of shaping, and the strength of the Atramenta and Firmament depending on hemispheres.

Within a radius of 10 – 100-miles of the Prime Lacunae, survival for unadapted life becomes close to impossible, with the strength of both the Atramenta and the Firmament becoming increasingly inimical to life, with shapers in incredible danger. See Vol IV: the Nullambit, the Black Fountain and the True Meniscus.

NULUM: Pol. His. Historical dynasty and royal house that ruled the kingdom of GREST^(1.) from 3555 RM, ruling until the fall of the monarchy in 3781 RM, after which Grest fell under the yoke of the insidious HE'ELAN ARCHDUKES, whose cultists eradicated the house in a night of bloody fighting.

NUMANEA: Geo. Mountain-range in the south west of TARTAK, forming the northern-most part of the CAMMOREAN Mountains. Its southern face is shallow and leads to the ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region of the CAMMOREAN SHADOW, while its northern face is steeper.

NUMARRAI: Eth. KHARKHARADONTID nomads that see the spectacle as a sign of BAPHOMET. See Vol II: the Nomads of Elyden.

NUMEN: 1. For. A small dense forest In the c south of VÂRR, known for the lone mystics that live around its periphery. Those who live close to it

(not least of all the mystics) tend to have vivid nightmares on a regular basis. Some attribute this to the vicinity of a shunned cavern leading into the PRISON CARCERI.

The forest was once far larger, dominating most of the east of Vârr, though the EMPIRE'S presence reduced it to little more than a few small woods by c. 2000 RM, the largest being Numen, with a few smaller spare wooded areas scattered towards the coast of PROPONTIS, none of which have been touched by industry.

- 2. Lak. Lake in the c south of VÂRR, along the course of the river ICHORIA.
- 3. Set. City in the south west of VÂRR (Pop. c. 11,000).
- 4. Plr. 'numenin'. Pol. The 5 OTHERWORLDLY rulers of the free city of MOAH, in northern SAMMAEA.

NUMEN MYSTICS: Rel. Rnk. Dre. Lone priests who live in the periphery of the NUMEN Forest. Like many in the region, their sleep is plagued by dark DREAMS, though unlike others they embrace them, seeing such nightmares as visions of divine intervention; clues to be unravelled. They spend most of their time alone on the edges of the forest (which is sacred ground to them; impassable holy ground) imbibing drugs that aid their LUCID DREAMS, preaching to any who would hear them.

NUMESEA: Rui. Ruined city in the east of AZAZEM, east of the river ZEMEN. It was besieged during the reconquest of LARATHUKH^(2.) in 268 RM, and its citadel taken the next year, ending the rule of HOUSE HERCULE in the region and destabilising the autonomy of Larathukh. This led to the collapse of Larathukh in 271 RM, and its eventual reabsorption by Azazem. 4 of the PATRICIAN houses – Hercule, LENTIS, HIRINA, and RUSINA, were brought low during the conflict.

NUMINIA: 1. Geo. Plains dominating the c basin of the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes. The plains are dominated by the NDEPHARA canyon system, which until c. 2500 RM was the drainage system of the expansive endorheic river SPICIA, which today is greatly diminished, ending far west, where it is dammed by the city of KADOTA.

 Lak. Once lake and terminus of the river SPICIA, in the far north east of the UMBRA SOKHAR wastes, in what is today occupied by the SOKHAREN DESERT.

The lake was once a spiritual place to the etheri nomads, who abandoned it following its drying up, which was seen as a sign of it having been forsaken by the INNER GODS.

NUMMARA: Set. Major city in the south east of AMMESH. It controls a large stretch of the river KERIKHAYANTI for around 35 west of its location, where the river takes the form of dangerous rapids that make it impossible to navigate. It is the largest city in Ammesh and forms a major part of the NACRE ROAD trade route, where it has become a hub of mercancy, serving as the main link between Ammesh and HABOT to the east. It is also the main seat of power of the GRAND HOUSE of MEDINNAR, which controls most of the coal mines of the nation (Pop. c. 1,087,000).

NÛN: Sea. Body of water dominating the south of TZALLRACH, and forming the northern-most part of the IAPETAN SEA. It is characterised by the PARAI DEIS island and the steep coastal mountains of the HEBAT Mountains and the PTHASSAL'OSS.

NUNA: Rui. Ruined city in the north of LIDEA, overlooking the mouth of the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾. It was attacked by an ATRAMENTAL BOMB during the WAR OF SUNDERING in early 3705 RM, allowing KORACHANI armies to make landfall and claim the surrounding land, turning it into a beachhead. The city was never resettled following the is now in ruined, largely reclaimed by coastal vegetation.

NUNAGH: Set. Small coastal city in the west of METHUMN, overlooking the BAY OF ANNUNA. It was founded in c. 3600 RM following years of lowering sea levels led to the silting of part of the Annuna. From then it evolved into a more industrious settlement, with its economy increasingly reliant on the sea, becoming famous for its unique shipbuilding techniques, which use local woods treated with a special resin that makes their hulls resistant to the salty waters.

Despite its modest size, Nunagh has a rich cultural heritage and is known for its vibrant annual festival, the ANNUNA TIDE, during which the entire city celebrates the sea's bounty with music, feasts, and a ceremonial offering to the sun deity RAKETH. (Pop. c. 17,000).

NUNAKI: 1. Geo. Mountain-range to the south of the BLACK MOUNTAINS, forming a border between AQUARIIA and GNOTH.

2. Set. Small city in the c north west of AQUARIIA. It is known for its metal industry, processing raw iron, which is sent south to the industrial centre of ALBALI. The city forms a part of the Way trade-route, leading north into Goth (Pop. c. 20,000).

NUNCIUS: Rvr. Southern-most of the CITY OF ALMAGEST'S twin rivers. It is commonly seen as a barrier between classes, with lands to its south containing a large number of workhouses and slums.

NUNEA: Pol. Soc. Tribe in the c-south east of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. It shares its northern border with the SOLEYN TERRITORIES and is known for its enmity with ESSERIS. Due to this the border between the two in a state of flux.

NUR: Rui. Deserted city in the south of ALAMUT. It was attacked by various UMBRAN creatures and GROTESQUES, though the rotting corpses of the slain have tainted the place, making it uninhabitable.

NURAQA: Lake in the c of AHRISHEN, forming a part of the larger river PELADA system

NURAS: Lak. Lake in the south east of the nation of AETHIOS, forming a junction where the river RAUTI meets its parent, the river NARRATI.

NURCYA: Sea. Bay off the western coast of WESTERN LLACHATUL, to the south west of THE VORANDINE. It is famed for its EVOLAM kelp, which is extremely important in many ATRAMENTALLY-BASED procedures, including CLONING and FLESHWRIGHTING.

NUREMITH: Geo. Coastal plains in the west of THE VORANDINE, overlooking the SEA OF BYRIS. It is famed for its coastal settlements which harvest the EVOLAM kelp that is the backbone of the Vorandi economy.

NURIA: 1. Rvr. River in the east of EREBETH, acting as a border with the west of CYHLAGHARR. The river flows for 1,500-miles north east from the northern face of the NGHALLEAL Mountains before emptying into the SEA OF DANAEL at the delta of TATRIA. It is one of very few rivers that flow north from the Nghalleal.

2. Rvr. Braided river and part of the river Nuria, in the south east of EREBETH, covering around 1,000 square-miles. During seasons of heavy rain, the region swells into a seasonal lake. The war between CYHLAGHARR and Erebeth saw much fighting in this region, leading to the spread of disease which remains rife there to this day.

NUSAEL: Ind. Set. Expansive salt mines in the north east of AHKA. The mines run for miles underground and have been in continuous use for 700-years. Some chambers are gigantic and have been equated to cathedrals hewn from the earth.

The spent portions of the mine are now inhabited by the descendants of the original miners and have been fortified against attack (Pop. c. 8.500).

NUSATI: Set. City in the south of TARATI (1.) (Pop. c. 20,000).

NUSHIR II: (30 – 3109 RM) Pol. His. The last king of the FLUN-SANDRA SOVEREIGNTY in AHRISHEN, whose assassination in 3109 RM left the House without a direct successor.

Baron ZEGIR OF ARRODIA performed a coup d'état, seizing the throne, ending the line of Flun-Sandran monarchs and starting the HOUSE OF ARRODIA.

NUSISI: Rvr. River in the west of OPHIUSSA, flowing for 165 miles east from sources in the Kabira hills before meeting the coast at the SEA OF ORRIDA NUT: Ind. Set. Gold mining settlement in the east of SARASTRO, west of the JAELA Mountains in the region of HAGAAT (Pop. c. 7,000).

NUTHA: Rvr. River in the north of SAMMAEA, flowing 250-miles north from the highlands of HAOL before emptying in the SEA OF NUTHEN.

NUTHACHAN: 1. Geo. Pol. KORACHANI colony in the north of SAMMAEA. It is effectively a semi-exclave, being completely surrounded by the territories of foreign states – MHAROKK in the west, HARAPPA $^{(3)}$ in the south, and the HOAMMI semi-exclave of SKEIN $^{(1.)}$ to the east.

2. Set. Coastal city and capital of the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ exclave of the same name⁽¹⁾, along the banks of the river $\underline{\text{NUTHA}}$, 4-miles from the $\underline{\text{SEA OF}}$ $\underline{\text{NUTHEN}}^{(1)}$. Originally named Nutha, it was once the capital of $\underline{\text{MHAROKK}}$, and was renamed Nuthachan by Korachan in 1001 RM. In its original incarnation, the city was encased within a mighty fort, though the city has since far outgrown its old walls, which now form the borders of its administrative district.

The city defected from Mharokk and in 3916 RM and became part of the nation of $\underline{\text{HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN}}$ following a long period of strife and war with $\underline{\text{SARASTROAN}}$ forces. The capital of Mharokk was then moved to the city of $\underline{\text{TAKUH}}$.

It is a major link in the RED ROUTE, and its harbours are busy with ships that transfer goods to the Korachani mainland in the north (Pop. c. 59,000).

NUTHAN: see NUTHACHAN.

NUTHAI: Rel. Rnk. Priests of NUTHEN(2.) in MHAROKK.

NUTHAI UPRISING, the: Rel. His. In 1263 RM, priestly leaders in MHAROKK who opposed KORACHANI influence on culture and especially religion, destroying most Korachani power-centres due to their belief in NUTHEN (2.). Bitter fighting ensued for 5 years after which most imperial forces were made to leave Mharokk, but not before leaving puppet rulers and spies behind. In 2693 RM, the Korachani empire returned to Mharokk forcibly entering its cities, executing its nuthai, re-establishing control.

NUTHEN: 1. Sea. Sea in the north of MHAROKK, dividing the HARAPPAN⁽²⁾ peninsula in the east from the KYDONIAN plains in the west. The sea was formed with the shrinking of THE INNER SEA over the past 10,000 years or so caused what was once the continental shelf to rise above sea level forming the plains of NICASSA⁽¹⁾.

2. Rel. Dei. Chief deity in MHAROKK (originally known as MHARAKA) prior to its corruption by KORACHANI exocrines and ICONOCLASTS⁽²⁾ between c. 700 – 900 RM. Its origins are unknown and seem distinct from the guarded religion and culture of the native YARAOMIC people.

In its original form represented the power of the self and the ability to achieve. Worshippers prayed to Nuthen for conviction and strength (in practice, they believed they invoked his spirit, which gave them the strength needed to persevere). Endorsed a meditative existence, where contemplation would lead to enlightenment, granting the insight needed to succeed.

Following its corruption by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, the name of Nuthen was retained, but its dogma warped to incorporate the subservience required by the Church of its faithful. In particular, the aspect of invocation was retained, to the point that prayers became complex multifaceted communal rituals, where chanting (in the Korachani tongue) was said to invoke the spirit. Despite the widespread belief of Nuthen prior to Korachani influence in the region, the corrupted form was never fully accepted and home-shrines and underground cults abounded, where Nuthen in his original form was worshipped (his name, in this true aspect, had evolved by c. 2300 RM to GUTHEN). Openly, the NUTHAI (priests) venerated the Korachani-influenced Nuthen, but secretly despised him, leading the people of Mharokk in revolution in 1263 RM – the so-called NUTHAI UPRISING – resulting in the speedy ejection of most imperial authorities in the area.

Korachan returned to power in 2693 RM, quickly re-establishing its rule after executing most of the nuthai. Worship of Nuthen was condemned, with ICONOCLASTS(2.) executing any found worshiping Nuthen or Guthen; with worship of the UNDYING MACHINE enforced in its place. Guthen continued to be worshipped throughout this time. Further imperial religious propaganda diminished the importance of Guthen, and by c. 3100 he had become a SAINT of the Church of the Undying Machine, becoming patron to the weak.

NUTHEN ISLANDS: Geo. Island-chain in the c of the INNER SEA, between the south west of HOAMM and the far east of VAALK. There are an estimated 300 island in the region, though only 78 of them are of any significance, with only five of them inhabited. Most of the islands are claimed by KORACHAN, Hoamm, and Vaalk.

NUTHRAN: Geo. Reef in the south of the waters of the MANNAL ITRUSH off the south western coast of SAMMAEA, forming a part of the nautical territories of FALLAROUR.

NUTIBI: Set. Fortified coastal city in the north of KHAMID (Pop. c. 33,200).

 $\underline{\text{NUTIS}}$: Mil. Str. Fortress in the c north east of $\underline{\text{THETIS}}$, guarding the border south west with $\underline{\text{RHEA}}$.

NUUTH: Geo. Ash-fields in the north east of GNOTH, to the south of the city of CALCANTHIA and the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains. The region was created by the eruption of MT. CHESED in 2527 RM and is known for its strange algae & lichen growths; the only plant-life in the area, taking eerie forms unseen elsewhere; possibly due to the FIRMAMENTAL richness of the region.

NYALA: Set. Small fortified city in the far south west of MHAROKK, which forms a part of the SALT ROAD, linking Mharokk with HITTA (Pop. c. 15.750).

NYALAR: Set. Major city in PORPHYR built on the ruins of an ancient FOURTH AGE civilisation, thought by many to have belonged to the IROTHANI. It was visited in 331 RM by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR during his ITINERARY after his resurrection in DAEKYN and the secrets of the DEMIURGE NYARLOTH, long thought lost, were found by him there, enabling the construction of the TECHNARCANE engine known as the LEADEN THRONE that sustains the Demiurge RACHANAEL in the guise of the UNDYING MACHINE to this day (Pop. c. 880,000).

NYALLA: 1. Rvr. Major river system in the east of MALAN, dominating the south of the HENDECARCHY of DERAEIA and the north east of ATALLUA. It comprises two major rivers – the Nyalla^(2.), after which it is names, and the ENDULLI, and also incorporated two lakes – HÂT and STAL – as well as dozens of other rivers and bodies of water. The system drains to the east, and falls over the SHIMMERING CLIFFS in the form of the spectacular TWIN FALLS OF VATULIA before moving east into TETHYSIA.

2. Rvr. Major river flowing east across the north of TETHYSIA. The river begins in various sources in the ARGENT Mountains in the east of MALAN, which eventually coalesce at the TWIN FALLS OF VATULIA that fall for over 1,500-ft down the SHIMMERING CLIFFS. Before the river continues its journey across the PANTHALASSA desert.

NYARALA: Phil. Rel. Soc. Ancient way of life in PORPHYR that emerged from the teachings and actions of the DEMIURGE NYARLOTH in antiquity.

Best described as a philosophy, religion and TECHNARCANE school of thought, it has its roots in the ancient beliefs of the SEPTS – the rulers of the kingdoms of KATHAR BYAAT that once belonged to the children of Nyarloth, the IROTHANI.

Nyarala is difficult for outsiders to understand as the full facts are kept hidden from foreigners, and are veiled beneath layers of thoughtless ritual and ceremony that even its practitioners understand little of. Indeed, it relies heavily on misunderstood symbolism and superstition, which seems somewhat at odds with the otherwise high technological level of Porphyr. However, upon closer inspection one can see that much of its technarcana is a relic of ancient times - created by the Demiurge Nyarloth, its intricacies and secrets unknowable to mortal minds. Most present-day examples of technarcana are reverse-engineered from these ancient examples, and much of their workings are unknown or misunderstood. Indeed, the upkeep and usage of most technarcane engines are just part of the endless ritual in the hierarchical establishment of Nyarala, and few of the mighty engines that are used in Porphyr are truly understood. Ancient manuals, originally penned by mortals with first-hand knowledge of their use, are handed down across generations. But mistakes in transcriptions and subtle changes in their language have led to technarcane use in Porphyr becoming highly ritualised, closer to religion than science.

On a more esoteric note, Nyarala teaches how perfection can be attained through repetition and practice, symbolised through the meticulous building of an engine or machine. Both practices are very important aspects of Porphyri culture. Blind belief is ingrained into the psyche of its people, who know of the direct link they possess with the Demiurge to whom they owe everything. They build gigantic arks—thought to be idols and offerings to Nyarloth—miles from the sea, never to touch water. They maintain and use ancient engines and machines without knowing their true purpose or how to exactly replicate the technology. They are, in truth, a simple people, held together by the strength of their faith and the charisma of the MAKHANTE—handmaidens and priestesses of the PRAEDICATE TELEANYARA APEXEIDE, who rules state and church as one.

Nyarala is inadvertently-responsible for much of KORACHANI advancements in technarcana, and the faith was brought to Korachan by the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR after his sojourn in Porphyr in 331 RM, where he learnt many secrets of the technarcane art that led to the construction of the Leaden Throne that sustains the Demiurge RACHANAEL to this day. Since then, it has been subsumed by the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, where it is now virtually indistinguishable from its roots, though the DEMIURNE machinists of the empire still follow many of its teachings to this day. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

NYARATH: Tec. Pol. Rnk. Title in PORPHYR used by technarcane officials who hold high station in society. The title originated in ZOLOK, and was retained by Porphyr following its founding.

NYARI: His. Mor. Descendants of the IROTHANI who, following the death of the DEMIURGE NYARLOTH and his internment in the SOUL-ENGINE continued to follow him.

NYARLOTH: also 'the Great Artificer'. m. Myt. His. Per. In the mythology and ancient history of ELYDEN, sixteenth of the Two-and-Twenty DEMIURGES, whose children were the IROTHANI.

His known SCIONS are: CAGHARTIATH, IIMONOPHIS, and TELEANYARA APEXEIDE. See Vol IV: the Two-and-Twenty Demiurges.

 $\underline{NYARDOR}$: Ind. Set. Major industrial city in the c of \underline{AZAZEM} (Pop. c. 700,000).

NYCARAT: Set. Major city in the ZYCHE region of the south of THE VORANDINE. Its main industry is the refining of the tar-like substance that is extracted by various settlements along the periphery of the toxic landscape of ALVELM, some 100-miles east. Most of its people make a living refining the sludge into a solid substance known as ALVELITE that can be refined and moulded into various shapes as a substitute for metal. This workforce is seen as expendable and most people are born indentured to the manufactories, living wretched lives of sickness, with few surviving beyond the age of 30. (Pop. c. 79,000).

NYCTERIS: Set. Independent city-state in the c south of SAMMAEA, within the territories of HOGGOTHA ISZ, around 1,000-miles to the north of the SEA OF KRIHIEK. The city-state rose in c. 3821 RM and has been, since its inception, ruled by a ruthless LAMIA; TOZ, whose regime is characterised by her disregard of mortal emotion and her search to return to the OTHERWORLD. The city appeared over the ruins of a far older metropolis whose death in c. -1000 RM lay at the hands of a single misanthropic ALCHEMIST who disappeared at the onset of an artificial PLAGUE. Some claim that the lamian and the alchemist are one and the same, though those who do end their days in the infamous gaols that sprawl beneath the city.

The city exists as little more than an extension of its otherworldly ruler and is a hellish place for the many whose short pitiful lives fall beneath the gazes of the upper-caste literati. All that exists and takes place within its concrete walls is at the behest of its ruler, the Goddess Toz. The city is also surrounded serapi tribes that are a source of near-constant harassment.

A grim cult of character has grown around Toz, who has meticulously carved her image amongst the slaves and lower-caste as something to inspire awe and fear. SHAPING, particularly SHAMANISM and ANIMISM, are encouraged, as is OCCULTISM in general. Toz herself is a gifted spiritwalker and spends most of her time in state, her spirit sojourning in the otherworld (Pop. c. 25,000).

NYGHT: Fau. fantastical creature common to the folklore and legends of NARTHEL and the south of LYRIDIA. It is said by the nomads of the region to look like black smoke, drifting across the land on moonless nights, wailing eerily. To touch one is to see ones' own death, and to hear its moaning is to listen ones' swansong.

They are considered by most scholars to be a somewhat fanciful depiction of UMBRACHIN.

NYID: Rel. One of five aspects of the PENTATAEL religion of ELAT and AYAD.

NYISUS: Rvr. River in the c of ELAT, flowing south west for 700-miles from sources in the PARNASIAN Mountains, before meeting the coast at the SEA OF DAZHAT.

NYM: Oth. Form of HALFBLOOD, typically descended from OTHERWORLDERS whose purpose was to corrupt through lust. They are naturally sensual creatures, very sexual, and catlike in their mannerisms. Males are called SATYA.

NYMIRA: 1. Sea. Bay in the SEA OF ORRIDA, in the south of the islandnation of OD MEGINNAS^(1.).

2. Set. Coastal settlement in the south west of OD MEGINNAS⁽¹⁾. It was originally a shale quarry, though the quarry was abandoned in c. 3890 RM, leading to an exodus of people, leaving it much diminished today, with many districts abandoned and crumbling (Pop. c. 3,200).

NYMPH: Myt. Water spirit, called wraih in many eastern tongues.

NYNWAR: Rvr. River in the north of LOEGRESS^(1.), flowing east for over 250-miles from sources in the VOULLOR Mountains, before meeting its mouth at the SALDHUIN wetlands.

NYPHERA UNCOST: Int. Sup. Str. Monolithic flat-topped reinforced concrete pyramid in the hinterlands of south eastern TARTAK, just south of THE MONUMENTS. It is around 120-ft. high, with a sloping angle of around 56°, and each of its four slanting faces has embedded within it an archaic circular copper plate that is part of a subterranean TECHNARCANE engine that powers the entire pyramid.

The pyramid is surrounded by vast flattened minefields, at the outer borders of which are multiple obelisk-like reinforced concrete towers that are constantly manned by Tartakasid troops who patrol the periphery of the vast area, which is fenced off.

It was built by PARTHISAN SHAPERS in c. 2400 RM, though its purpose remains undisclosed to this day. In truth, few people are aware of its existence, and those that do know are ignorant to the inner workings of the government that issued its construction. Rumours do however abound, with the most popular being that it was designed to trap something – though what that something might be can only be guessed at.

NYPHIS: Set. Settlement in the south west of Kommea (Pop. c. 4,200).

NYRIX: also 'City of Worms'. Set. City in the far north of THE VORANDINE. Little is known of its unofficial namesake, though it is built on the ruins of an ancient THIRD AGE settlement (Pop. c. 19,000).

NYSEA: Set. Mountain-city in the south east of TETHYSIA, just east of the PERIEDAS mountain. It is powerful and largely self-sufficient (Pop. unknown).

NYSHAB: Set. Major coastal city in the north east of PORPHYR. It is a centre of trade and fishing and also maintains ports for skyships, which travel there from the capital in BETTYL, and LEMEGETHAS (Pop. c. 2.170.000).

NYSII: Geo. Carved cliff-face in the south of the EHRANDEAN Massif in CHANDOS^(3,), facing north. The carvings are thought to date back to the FOURTH AGE OF MORTAL LIFE.

NYTAR: Set. Settlement in the c north east of KARGAMA, to the north of the ONCETHMUS Hills. Its main industry is the mining of BRIMSTONE (Pop. c. 5,900).

OAACH: Geo. Island around 200-miles south west of CUTH.

OAKKI: Geo. Island off the south western coast of CUTH.

OANT: Rui. Ancient sprawling stone city, possibly dating back to the FOURTH AGE or earlier, in the badlands region of SHOG HARRAB in the south of SARAGOS.

OANT HAZA: also 'the Smoking Coast'. Geo. Volcanic region dominating the north east of KHITAI, to the east of the RILLATAIA Mountains known for its near constantly smoking fumaroles and cones. The region is uninhabited.

OARSTUN: Set. City in the c of MECHABET, linking trade from across the nation (Pop. c. 20,000).

OASTIS: Set. Settlement in the region of DAYLAM, in the west of THE SURRACH, along the course of the river AADAX (Pop. c. 10,000).

OBACERATA: Geo. Cave in the c north west of KARGAMA, in the DRIHULL Mountains. It entrance collapsed during a great earthquake in 906 RM, that left the cave accessible only through a single sinkhole that serves as skylight, allowing some light into the expansive hollow beyond. The cave is known for its mosses and pale creepers and vines that twist around stalagmites.

OBADON: Set. City in the north west of SATARIEL (Pop. c. 65,000).

OBAEGOR: also 'the Glass City'. Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of ORIM, in the west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. The city is known for its caste of crystal-manipulating SHAPERS known as SICLASET, who produce object d'art that are valued across ELYDEN (Pop. c. 60,000).

OBAIDA: Set. Coastal settlement in the far south east of CHEIRA, along the peninsula of XENIA. It is a major fishing centre (Pop. c. 6,000).

OBDUSA: Set. Fortified city in the south of the tribe of THLOLOT, in the north east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is a major military centre in the tribe, and most of its troops are trained there (Pop. c. 29,750).

OBEAH: Set. Once-capital of ETHISTONITH positioned along the banks of the river DAWWAN. With the annexation of Ethistonith by the Khan ILLAREGH in 3703 RM, the nation was absorbed by RHINOCOLOURA, and the duties of capital were taken on by the city of SARDONYX, to the north. Nevertheless, the city remains a major political hub, where the old territories of Ethistonith are governed to this day.

In antiquity the region surrounding the city was ATRAMENTALLY-ACTIVE, and some degree of disfigurements were not uncommon in nearby settlements, particularly Obeah. Today the Atramental taint has subsided naturally and only exists in the small region of Kalarli to the south west of Obeah, though birth defects remain more common than they are elsewhere in Ethistonith.

During the peak of these outbreaks a caste of untouchables emerged in the city made up of those whose bodies had been touched by the ATRAMENTA. By c. 2050 RM they made up a considerable lower-class, consigned to slums, on the northern banks of the river DAWWAN (which is ironically gentrified today and home to high-value properties). Over time these untouchables would develop a pervasive criminal network, and they became important informers, even coming to work for the government by c. 2120 RM. Today this untouchable caste has largely been eradicated, though a small number of outcasts remain, ignored by most (Pop. c. 285,000).

OBEDD JIHAR: Rui. Ancient stone labyrinth built in accordance with the golden ratio, believed to have been constructed by the DEMIURGE NYARLOTH in the late THIRD AGE. The labyrinth covers some 10,000-square-miles and is now located in the wilderness of eastern ABACARDAT, in the south eastern SAMMAEA.

OBEGH: Geo. Small island off the western-coast of PORPHYR, around 90 square-miles in area. It is largely uninhabited.

OBELA: Geo. Region in the north of KHURAUR characterised by a gridwork of stone pylons that were carved by hand in the distant past. Now the region is visited by ATRAMENTISTS whose spheres fall under the domain of the Blood Moon ARAKHAMÉ.

OBELINTH: Set. Small city in the c north of SEDISIA (Pop. c. 14,000).

OBELISK OF ASHOM: Int. Rui. Pylon-like obelisk of monumental size in the far north east of KHARKHARADONTIS, south of the MOUNTAILS. It is close to 1,000-ft. long, and 120-ft. wide at its widest point and lies incomplete, half-quarried, cracked. Though thought to date back to the THIRD AGE, it is likely an effort of mortals at replicating the architecture of the DEMIURGES following their waning and disappearance. Despite being incomplete, the obelisk bears carved writings that are alien to modern scholars.

OBELISK OF CASONA: Int. Rui. Ancient pillar dominating the otherwise flat EMMEN plains of the far north of WESTERN THANO. It is made of a concrete-like substance and is covered in runic writing that shimmers white when the IVORY MOON is full and the ARCANE TEMPERS favourable, though which remain undeciphered to this day. A necropolis lays in the permafrost at the foot of the 100-ft. tall obelisk, though the ground is so hard that it has evaded attempts at exploration.

OBELISK OF MARASHAN, the: Int. Rui. Gigantic obelisk in the far south west of SERROK, on the western-most tip of a peninsula jutting out into the SEA OF KHURSA. Originally constructed on an island off the coast, the combination of silt deposited from the flow of the river BEREKODRA and lowering sea levels saw the island become part of the mainland.

Standing at 300-ft. tall, it dominates the skyline for miles around and is used by those travelling the Sea of Khursa as a means of navigation.

OBELISK OF SHADOWS: Arc. His. Rel. Large black obelisk in the c west of KORACHAN, in the western foothills of the FATUACH Mountains, overlooking the city of KHADON. The obelisk is built in accordance with ancient designs found in the SCRIPTURE OF SHADOW and is a replica of an ancient THIRD AGE temple of RACHANAEL thought to have once existed in KHARKHARADONTIS.

The Obelisk itself is 200-ft. tall and stands on a wide stone plinth that is around 40-ft. high and commands unrivalled views of the city of Khadon and its various suburbs and satellite villages.

OBELISK OF UNDOING: Int. Rui. Architectural oddity in the tribal territories of NUNEA in the c east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. The obelisk is hewn from the red granite of the foothills where the Growing Mountains meet the ETHITUL Mountains and is surrounded by a deep pit, with hewn temples in the sheer sides of the wall. The obelisk itself likely dates back to the THIRD AGE OF MORTAL LIFE, and is imbued with unexplained properties, that likely have at their root the MATERIA OMNA.

The obelisk is around 40-ft. tall, and made of the natural red granite of the region, though it has scattered parts that are crystalline and translucent. These parts are known to glow orange, like AMBER, on nights when the ARCANE TEMPERS in the region are in flux. The place has attracted shapers and occultists of varying talents for millennia, and it is believed to have strange effects on shaping that are not as yet categorised. The obelisk is named for a trait it once displayed, where shapers who touched it were shorn of their abilities.

Multiple strange sightings and unexplained phenomenon in the surrounding region are attributed to the obelisk.

OBELISK WASTES: Int. Geo. Wasteland in the south of ALMAGEST, in the SKAROSIAN WASTES, covering some 80-square miles of area, north of SATHA. The region is known for the shattered obelisks that cover its lands. The obelisks are clearly artificial, arranged in concentric rows.

OBELZARA: Set. Small city in the north east of PORPHYR, in the contested lands of UTIMAN. It was one of the first cities to defect to Utiman and remains so to this day (Pop. c. 46,000).

OBERAMAGGA: Set. City in the c north east of SKAROS, in the west of the SKAROSIAN PLAINS. It is a major mining centre, and produces sand stone, slate and clay that are used in construction across the nation. Of note is its dark grey granite, whose veins resemble gold, and which is a popular sculptural material used across the KORACHANI EMPIRE, appearing in many governmental structures in SKAROSIA (Pop. c. 38.800).

OBIA: Geo. Island off the far western-coast of TZALLRACH, north of LISEDI.
OBIHADDAR: Sup. Geo. Firmamental region in the south of TZALLRACH, home to deep LODELITH deposits (useless on an industrial scale), and many incredible caverns and rock-bridges that would be impossible in other lands.

OBITER: Set. Fortified settlement in the c north of SHOTHA (Pop. c. 9.000).

OBITUA: Ser. City in the c of ANANTHUL. It is built atop the ruin of an ancient cenotaph on which were inscribed the names of the ancient, and many of its older structures are built from the rubble and masonry of the marble monument at whose base the city is perched (Pop. c. 46,000).

OBLEVIA: also 'the Dust Maw'. Geo. The dominant region and geographical feature in OBLEVIS(²), also stretching into the north of DHA NAR, is characterised by over 120,000 square-miles of compact heavy white ash, flat as glass, dominating the south west of the nation. Travel across the feature is near impossible and it is devoid of settlements or civilisation of any kind.

OBLEVIS: 1. Dem. 'Oblevish'. Geo. Generic name given to the large peninsula forming the south eastern part of the MENISCEAN continent, including Oblevis, DHA NAR, CAMAU, LARISH, PHUT and ENDUI.

2. Nm. Nation in the east of MENISCEA. It is dominated by a fantastically-flattened region, obliterated in an ancient war, and is now a white sand desert, its dust so fine, its air so still, that to walk on it is to sink. A coalition of city-states surrounds this wasteland, dating back to the fragmentation of the older OBLEVISH EMPIRE that crumbled in 3821 RM. coasts of the region, though many have dwindled in recent centuries with the retreating of the world's seas.

The nation owes its roots to an exiled KORACHANI member of the DESPOSYNI who fled there during the height of the DESPOSYNI WARS in c. 880 RM, and whose ancestors went on to rule as divine monarchs. Their rule lasted until 3199 RM, whereupon they were overthrown and slain alongside all eligible to claim the throne in a night of bloody revolution that saw the nation reformed into the Oblevish Empire. The UNDYING MACHINE, until then the primary deity of Oblevis (alongside the Korachani exile who, after teaching its people of the Undying Machine, was elevated to the status of a demigod) was also abolished, to be replaced by a deified saint of the faith that became known as the DANCING DEITY.

Throughout the rule of the DESPOSYNI DYNASTY the capital was known as KORACHAN DHAI, though this was later moved to MADDIS following the revolution. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

OBLEVISH EMPIRE: His. Ntn. Now-dead empire that controlled much of south eastern-most part of MENISCEA, including what are today CAMAU, EGINAZ, and OBLEVIS. It was formed in 3199 RM when the divine monarchy that had been in place for millennia was overthrown, leading to the formation of the Oblevish Empire, which grew until it reached its peak in c. 3600 RM. Following this it began to decline, until in 3821 RM it enforced an arbitrary partition of its vassal state of SHUTIAZ, leading to the formation of Camau and Eginaz. Oblevis itself suffered during this time, and the empire crumbled, leading to the formation of diverse city-states, that remain to this day as a coalition. See Vol III: Extinct States.

OBLITHIA: 1. Rvr. Marshlands in the c north east of RHAMIA, forming the northern-most part of the SEA OF PYREA.

2. Set. City-state and region in RHAMIA, once-closest to AHRISHEN (Pop. c. 78,500).

OBLOCUTOR: Pol. Rnk. Rank within the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION, mostly made up of NEOPHYTES who have failed to graduate to the rank of ACCENSOR.

They are chanters and deniers of other faiths and often travel with pilgrimages and large groups of those faithful to the UNDYING MACHINE and disparage those they encounter who are adherents of other faiths. They are most common amongst the MORÉHAN and AVÉNETHI Orders and commonly travel with the SHADOW MARCHES or AVÉNETHI MARCHES.

OBLOTHRA: Geo. Island in the c north west of the SHIBBOTHA ISLES off the south western coast of SAMMAEA. It is part of territories contested between FALLARAUR and the CORAL BARONIES.

OBMUTESCIA: For. Temperate mixed forest in the north of CISNERIA. It is known for its wildlife and FOURTH AGE ruins, most of which are now beyond recognition and overgrown. It features in many Cisnerian myths and legends and it thought to be haunted and bewitched, and in particular its inner-most reaches are said to be eerily silent.

OBO: Set. Fortified settlement in the c north of TZALLRACH, known for its iron mining. It lies along the path of the GREAT ROAD (Pop. c. 5,000).

OBORIR, THE SAINT OF THOSE WITHOUT: Rel. Obj. The skeleton of a stillborn child, its mother a powerful OTHERWORLDER. It was said to have healing properties and its body is now kept in the BASILICA OF DUSK in ALMAGEST.

OBRAGHATUL: Geo. Mountain range in the south west of CHEIRA.

 $\underline{\text{OBRANT}}$: Set. Settlement in the c north of $\underline{\text{BANT}}$, in the west of the $\underline{\text{CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA}^{(1)}}$, in the east of $\underline{\text{SAMMAEA}}$ (Pop. c. 5,000).

OBSCENE LORD, the: Myr. His. Recently, name applied to the SCION VOLUPIS.

OBSERVATORY-CITY: Ast. Soc. Cities in AQUARIIA common in the period between c. 900 – 1300 RM, characterising the period prior to the PARTHISAN colonial rule, which began in 1206 RM. Such cities evolved naturally from the observatories that were built in the north of the nation as the CULT OF ALBULAAN became popular following the decline of the CULT OF LIFE AND DEATH the KNIGHTS-EXILE brought with them from KORACHAN. As the importance of the cult increased, settlements appeared around the most important observatories, and these eventually became the main cities of Aquariia. Other observatories were built in isolation to replace those that became city-centres, which had evolved fulfil the role of church, governmental structures, libraries and universities.

Parthisan rule brought with it a decline in popularity of these cities, though some, such as \underline{ARKAB} , $\underline{EKHYSSA}$ and $\underline{MANUBRA}$, remain populated to this day, their central observatories (as they are still called) still in use.

OBSERVATORY OF DEOCHAN: see DEOCHAN, OBSERVATORY OF.

OBSERVATORY OF ENKATTRA: see ENKATTRA, OBSERVATORY OF.

OBSERVATORY OF LAHMON: see LAHMON, OBSERVATORY OF.

OBSERVATORY OF PAZZAD: see PAZZAD, OBSERVATORY OF.

OBSERVATORY OF SANKAROS: see SANKAROS, OBSERVATORY OF.

OBSERVERS: Rel. Voc. Monks in RAONGEN^(2,) who are devoted to the GOD WHO SPEAKS, and who spend their lives collecting accounts of visions experienced by followers of the deity. They are important figures in Raongeni culture, and the government and church alike spend a lot of money investigating and cataloguing these accounts, with verified accounts becoming part of scripture, breathing life into the teachings and warnings of the God Who Speaks.

OBSCURATOR: Pol. Rnk. Rank within the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION, whose members are concerned with concealing sensitive information deemed unfit for the masses. Though found amongst most Orders, Obscurators are most common within the CONCORDANTISTS, where they operate as mid-level agents, working in imperial cities, where they cover-up sensitive information from the masses.

OBSIDIAN ISLES, the: Geo. Islands off the southern coast of CARNYNGA, known for their black coastal cliffs, dense foliage, and obsidian stone formations.

OBSIDIAN ISLES, EXPEDITION TO THE: (2984 RM) In the late 3rd millennium, a significant expedition to the OBSIDIAN ISLES, in WESTERN SAMMAEA, off the southern coast of CARNYNGA, was launched. The AIWAHAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, alongside members of the MORÉHAN Order, uncovered a vast repository of ancient TECHNARCANA. Among the discoveries was the ARCANE CONDUIT, a device capable of amplifying Shaping abilities, now held in the Order's VAULT OF VAURNOS.

OBUSTRA: Set. Settlement in the east of SARASTRO along the foot of the western KOROR Mountains. It is a major source of stibnite and antimony in the region (Pop. c. 4,750).

OBYRYTH: also 'the Unassailable City'. Set. Capital city of the TEMPLAR STATES situated atop a steep-sided mesa in the north of SAMMAEA, at the edge of UPPER TRISKETHIA, overlooking Lower Triskethia.

In 2479 RM the city was attacked by dissenting workers who were led by SOULSEERS who manage to penetrate the ADEPTS' Palaces, slaying the Adepts and usurping control. After the TRISKETHIAN DOMAINS were annexed by the Templar States, they had the capital moved from INDERACHAN^(2.) to Obyryth in 3782 RM, after which it has continued to grow, becoming incredibly wealthy from the SOULSTONE trade, growing into a great metropolis.

KORACHANI rumours claim that the city is home to creatures that hail from outside of ELYDEN, though such rumours have never been substantiated as contact with the outside world (particularly KORACHAN) is limited, at best (Pop. c. 400,000).

OCCAETIA: His. Ntn. Early FIFTH AGE state that encompassed present-day MIRALUL, OSSIEL, and NALARDIL. It emerged from the ruin of the late Fourth Age nation of OLYSSIA in c. -800 RM and prospered until c. 370 RM, when it fell to an internecine civil war that saw its monarchy all but destroyed, the remnants exiled to the isles of UGURIIT. See Vol III: Extinct States.

OCCAMAISA: Set. Settlement in the north east of SABAISA. Its main industry is the mining of pyrite (Pop. c. 10,000).

OCCELATA: Geo. Cave-system in the c west of KULIGALA, in the east of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA(1.), in the east of SAMMAEA. The caves are located in the east of the KELLOIL Massif, and are characterised by their many sinkholes and pitted walls.

OCCIADA: Set. Settlement in the south west of RAONGEN^(2.). Its main industry is the mining of OMNATITE, which is processed in the city of SINVERU in the south east (Pop. c. 8,200).

OCCIDENT, the: Lan. Geo. Common name within KORACHAN and its vassals, usually pertaining to the lands and nations of MENISCEA or the far east of Llachatul, more generally referring to any lands east of the TORRENT OF KARROCK.

OCCLUSIATE: Tec. Voc. TECHNOLOGISTS who specialise in the grafting and maintenance of OCCLUSIONS.

OCCLUSION: also 'Grommet'. Med. Tec. In the fields of TECHNARCANA and BIOMACHINERY, occulsions are sockets embedded in the skin and flesh of creatures to facilitate the administration of ATRAMENTAL substances and tinctures. VAT-BORN creatures, including CLONES, are commonly implanted with occlusions and the STEEL LEGIONNAIRES are famously fitted with 22-such occlusions, through which they can be married to their HARDSUITS and be administered the delicate cocktail of drugs needed to regulate their metabolism.

OCCULTARIUM, OFFICES OF THE: Sup. Pol. Org. Major governmental department in PARTHIS whose agents police SHAPERS, ensuring that laws are upheld across its territories and vassal states. Unlike in KORACHAN, where shapers are divided into various different departments, known as MINASTERIA^(2.), Parthis has just one overarching department that deals with all shapers, though it is divided into various branches that are dedicated to different spheres.

Its headquarters are located in the city of TETHRA, though it has offices in most major cities and representative and agents stationed in most smaller cities, wherever shapers are found. The Occultarium is not responsible for training shapers — such matters are privatised and individual shapers are responsible for their own educations, though shapers who wish to legally practise their art in Parthisan territories must pay for a Warrant Of Use, which involves practical and written examinations, after which the shaper become accredited. The process must be repeated every three years for a shaper to maintain his Warrant. The Occultarium is divided into separate offices, each of which oversees a particular Sphere of shaping in Parthis and is headed by a High magister and various MAGISTERS who are the final authorities on that sphere in the republic.

Laws governing the use of shaping are strict in Parthis, and such shapers found operating without a Warrant of Use are immediately taken into custody until it is decided what to do with them. Minor offenders are put on probation and made to study if found to be lacking knowledge of their art, and are then made to test with the Occultarium for a Warrant (at their own expense). Those who are found to be recidivists or otherwise morally reprehensible may be imprisoned or executed in some cases.

OCCULTISM: Mys. Sup. Soc. Primitive practices and beliefs related to the raw MATERIA OMNA commonly practiced by SHAMEN, witch-doctors, sorcerers, charlatans and CUNNINGMEN, with little to any formal teaching or knowledge. They are typically unlicensed and are a risk to themselves and those around them, and live on the fringes of society offering services as diverse as TAROKKA readings, EXORCISMS, casting of CURSES, and seances, amongst others.

Unlicenced occultism is illegal in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, and the various MINASTERIA^(2.) of SHAPING are quick to bring any occultists found practicing without a licence to justice. The AVÉNETHI, GRIGORIAN, KYON, and VÁMAN SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION are also known to seek out unlicensed occultists.

Despite this, occultism remains rampant, particularly in rural areas where the sprawling organisations of the empire have little permanent presence. And while campaigns to cleanse occultism from imperial territories may occasionally sweep across the empire, neophyte occultists will always crawl into the spaces left by their cleanses forebears.

OCCULTIST: Mys. Sup. Rnk. One who practices OCCULTISM.

OCDAD: Set. Small fortified settlement in the south of the tribe of ATEVEGOS in the c west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. Its main industry is the mining of platinum (Pop. c. 4,000).

OCDALIT: Set. Settlement in the east of the tribe of ESSERIS in the c-south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 4,000).

OCHEASER: Geo. Scrublands and plains in the north east of THE SURRACH.

OCHISS: Sea. Coastal sea off the western coast of KORACHAN, covering about 115-miles, between the DEOCHANI headland and the mining town of VERACHAN.

OCHRA: Set. Settlement in the c of SHOTHA. It is surrounded by a region of orange-yellow limestone, worn by wind and storms into grotesque and harsh formations. The people of Ochra quarry this stone, which is used for building (Pop. c. 5,200).

OCHRIS: Sec. Small city in the prefecture of ALITENEA^(1,) in the c north of HOLOLACH^(1,), along the course of river ENATHAAR. The settlement is located in a valley where the phenomenon known as the WHISPERS OF VARPULIS was first recorded (Pop. c. 14,000).

OCTHURAAN: Int. Geo. For. Fantastical cavern-like forest in the north east of SYNCHTHONITHA that is known for its alien appearance and calcified canopy that gives the impression of it being in a great cave with thick vertical trunks disappearing into the ceiling.

The forest is ancient, dating to the THIRD AGE, and it gained it present appearance over tens of millennia, with their entwined canopies and branches slowly becoming calcified through FIRMAMENTAL influence, over which wind-carried dust has slowly accumulated, creating a roof that conceals the canopy from above.

Parts of the ceiling have collapsed in places, allowing shafts of light to penetrate the near total darkness, allowing other flora and fauna to survive in this otherwise inhospitable land. Scholars have postulated that the calcified roof itself absorbs sunlight, imparting it to branches that have become embedded within it over the years through some Firmamental process. Other trees have adapted to this land of near darkness, either growing in areas where the roof has collapsed, where natural light is more common; by converting to non-photosynthetic autotrophy to produce nutrients; by obtaining nutrients through the connections between their roots and those of neighbouring trees closer to sunlight; or though fungi in their roots that have created an intricate unseen web. Many of these adapted plants and trees have pale leaves, with some being entirely white. Many of the smaller plants that grow in the understory of the Octhuraan have bluish waxy iridescent leaves that seem to be efficient at capturing as much light as possible.

The original trees inevitably died over time, with others replacing them, though in many cases the trunks and branches of the older trees remained in situ, themselves calcified and providing nutrients to fungi and epiphytes that grow on them as younger trees emerge to fill in the void, into which unique flora and fauna have slowly developed. Famed creatures from the Octhuraan include the hulking felid LUCINDORS.

The region is no less than 250 square-miles in size and is unknown to most people in Synchthonitha, and it is utterly devoid of mortal architecture, indicating that it has been left alone – either out of ignorance or respect – for most of its existence.

OCTIRA: 1. see OSSRA^(1.).

- 2. Geo. Picturesque basin in the $\underline{\textit{OSSRAN}}$ peninsula $^{(1)}$, sloping to the north from the cliffs of Ossra.
- 3. Pol. Set. Capital city of PELASGOS. It was from c. 900 RM the resting place of the artefact known as MALICHAR'S GRIMACE, before it was lost in c. 1300 RM during a siege. It has been home to the ORDER OF CHEMISTERS since its inception in c. 950 RM, and the industry has become a major part of the city's identity, remaining a dominant industry there to this day.

It forms part of the RED ROUTE and is a major diplomatic city, with many libraries and embassies from carious nations located within its borders(Pop. c. 580,000).

OCTIRA, COUNCIL OF: Pol. Council taking place in OCTIRA in 1136 RM, where multiple individuals of importance to the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE were canonised.

OCTIRAN PENINSULA: see OSSRA.

OCULUS: also 'the Window'. Ast. Con. Constellation in the NORTHERN HEMISPHERE. In is one of the more recent constellations in KORACHANI astronomy, which was formally named in 1312 RM, following decades of informal usage. It was preceded by the constellation ALCANTARA, which is thought to have fragmented due to death of its constituent STARS (2.) in c. 900 RM. See Vol II: Constellations.

OD MARTA: Rui. Ruin in the east of ANUBIA, almost 300-miles south east of ANUBIS. The name translates as 'Place of the Vow', and is thought to have played a significant role in male coming-of-age rituals of ancient Anubians and KHERI nomads.

The temple is carved into the cliffs of the \underline{AHRAN} peak, the westernmost part of the \underline{AHSET} Mountains.

OD MEGINNAS: also 'New Meginnas'. Dem. 'Meginnan'. 1. Ntn. Small island-nation on the island of JIRIDUN in the c east of the SEA OF ORRIDA off the north western coast of THE SURRACH, between the continents of LLACHATUL and SAMMAEA. It is considered Sammaean both geographically and culturally. It is of a temperate cool climate, with the south west commonly being subjected to gale-force winds in winter, which is typically cold and wet.

Its name means new Meginnas in PARTHISAN, and it is named after the HOMELAND of its present peoples' ancestors. The island has a long history of occupation, and in the FIFTH AGE alone it was settled by: LASCAR^(3.) immigrants (c. -100 RM), CHEGRINTISH merchants (c. 500 RM), followed by SELAHIMI exiles (c. 2000 RM), KORACHANI colonisers (c. 2850 RM), and finally the aforementioned Parthisan settlers (c. 3480 RM). Its indigenous people mingled with these occupiers over the millennia, resulting in a rich heritage that has slowly homogenised over the centuries, taking on aspects of its various occupying powers

It was once rich in resources and was famed for its idyllic climate, which is partially responsible for its interest amongst foreign powers. Also of note was its strategic location in the Sea of Orrida, which made it an important naval resource, granting its occupiers' fleets a critical base away from

Its present incarnation originated from a collective of Parthisan PATRICIAN HOUSES (made up of Houses CAELMONT, SELVARSHI, TAELIS, TENDARI, and VALTARIS) who formed trade arrangements with the local government of what was then known as Jiridun decades before colonising it and who married into each other and with local nobles to secure their power. This relationship allowed the Houses to settle the land, taking over industries that were of vital importance to Parthis but which had been overlooked by the local populace.

In 3597 RM House Valtaris orchestrated a long-planned and ruthless excising of its household, where many ancillary families were effectively relegated, either sent to Parthis or other far-flung corners of Elyden, effectively castrating them of power and denying them the privilege of inheriting any of the holdings of the family. This was a damning act that earned the PATERFAMILIA of House Valtaris the enmity of dozens of families, and it is thought that he was responsible for many mysterious deaths and disappearances, but it ultimately paid off and by 3630 RM the family tree had been sheared down to size, consolidating the power amongst a handful of individuals, and ultimately serving a death knell to the other Houses with which it had once been allied.

The influence and wealth that House Valtaris commanded allowed it to infiltrate the political system of Jiridun, which by then had become reliant on the industry and trade that Valtaris brought it, and much of the government was in the Houses' pockets. In 3643 RM the government ratified a new law that moved for House Valtaris to become the de facto ruler of the island-nation, with the old politicians either retiring rich or becoming their governors and advisors. This new oligarchic state was christened Od Meginnas and remains in control of the island today, with House Valtaris now known as the VALTARAN OLIGARCHY, that still rules today, over 350-years after assuming control.

Od Meginnas has become a mainstay of sea trade in the Sea of Orrida, with a large navy based in the sea that patrols its waters and defends its merchants from piracy and slavers. It has formed a part of the Accord of the Gate since 3699 RM and is a major mercantile presence in the seas of the NEAR HEMISPHERE, having helped the nation grow into a wealthy independent state under the Valtaran Oligarchy. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Pol. Set. Capital city of the above island-nation^(1.) since 3651 RM, when the old capital of \underline{ZABO} was relocated there (Pop. c. 79,000).

ODAH: Soc. Str. Luxurious harem-chambers common in SARASTRO and particularly VENTHIR.

ODAOGA: Set. Major coastal city in the south west of LAOD (Pop. c. 380.000).

ODARHEN: Set. Settlement in the c north of AHRISHEN, in the region of PELADA. It is a major source of graphite and slate (Pop. c 10,000).

ODARUL: 1. Pol. Geo. Westernmost of the five political states of VALBAR⁽²⁾. It is almost all covered in permafrost.

2. Pol. Set. City in the c west of $\underline{VALBAR}^{(2)}$. It is the capital city of the eponymous state^(1,)(Pop. c. 33,000).

ODASAL: Sup. Geo. Dre. A loathsome place in CENTRAL LLACHATUL, along border of northern STOLAS and the DESOLATION OF ASTUDAN, where the land rises in grotesquely shaped pillars and peaks. The air is rarely still here, and travellers claim to hear whispers carried on the night winds as they try to rest; their DREAMS speaking in misshapen shapes and words. It is now understood to be an ATRAMENTALLY-ACTIVE region.

The region is categorised as a MODERATE THREAT by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.

- ODDA: Set. Settlement in the east of ROMOREA^(2.). its main industry is coal quarrying and the land surrounding the settlement is a wasteland of spent pits and quarries (Pop. c. 5,000).
- ODEI: Set. Small settlement in the south east of OKKHAM, along the isthmus that connects the peninsula of Okkham to the headland of KHURTAE. It is part of the SASACZHOT canal and controls its southernmost gate, leading to the SEA OF LETHEA (Pop. c. 2,500).
- ODISHA: Rui. Ancient ruined stone city in the c west of ANUBIA, now buried beneath the sands of the Anubian desert. It is thought that a major aqueduct located many miles to the south west once provide water, sourced in the HAAGEN Mountains to the city.
- ODDAR: Set. City in the north of OPHAR. It has close links to the Interurban States, including trade (Pop. c. 25,500).
- ODDEKA: Set. Settlement in the c east of KASPIA (Pop. c. 10,000).
- ODENA: Set. Small fortified city in the west of SARASTRO, just north of the border with Io. Originally known as IRAM, the city fell into SARASTROAN hands in 704 RM through the corruption of its government, after which it became known as Odena. Situated in a narrow crevice on the eastern face of a solitary peak in the northern-most reaches of the EHBOT Mountain, the ancient city was originally constructed from caverns and shafts in the mountain, making it close to invisible to outsiders, though following its growth under the rule of Sarastro and the establishment of its now-famous catacomb-market, the city has outgrown its old confines, its simple sandstone dwellings spilling out into the foothills beyond.

The city has been under the rule of the so-called PYTHON-LORD, a numinous figure believed to have close ties with Sarastro's ruler, SATHEP THE RISEN, for centuries, and was granted sovereignty over the city in 1983 RM. Since that time the Python-lord, an ATRAMENTIST of classical tradition who eschews TECHNARCANA, has ruled Odena with an iron fist, bringing wealth to the region through his working of the mines. Any opulence the city may have once experienced rapidly diminished following the exhaustion of the mines and quarries between 2105 and 2250 RM and the place has existed as a shadow of its old self, acting as little more than an intermediary between Sarastro and ARKOS (I.) (serving as a military base for some decades from around 2325 RM in the Sarastroan war against Arkos), where it maintained regular trade with DUN KHARR as well as occasional trade north with the imperial Red Route.

The collapse of the KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM brought with it much disruption to the region, though Sathep and Sarastro were quick to claim their allegiances with the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO, becoming its figurehead within a decade. This stabilised the region, bringing renewed trade to Odena, which survives to this day as a caravanserai, linking THE RED ROUTE with the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 15,000).

- ODHEN: Set. Settlement in the c north of AHRISHEN, in the region of PELADA. It is a major source of graphite and slate (Pop. c. 6,800).
- ODOACRA: Rui. Ruin in the c of CISNERIA thought to date back an ancient kingdom that predates it by many centuries, tentatively dated at around 900 RM. It was once located along the course of a river, though this has long since shifted elsewhere. The ruins take the form of wide foundations, indicating the presence of a castle and surrounding structures, which are now long-since decayed.
- ODOLA: Ser. Large city in the south of MECHABET, hub of BLOODSTONE mining in the region. It also forms part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 98,500).

- ODONTWE: Geo. Karst formation in the c south of TZALLRACH, north of the LITANI Mountains.
- ODOSS: Ind. Set. Open-cast mine in the far north of ALMAGEST, south of the region of ALBBA. The quarries are expansive and are amongst the largest producers of gold in LLACHATUL. The quarries are operated by foreign slaves from neighbouring lands, as well as captured GIGANRI and oghurs (Pop. c. 4,500).
- ODRAND: Geo. One of many major massifs in the north east of CYHLAGHARR, just to the east of CYIPHIR, THE TREE OF SKULLS.
- ODRESSI: Ind. Set. Major city in the north of KOLCHIS, in the SHUK RAZHA plains. Its main industry is the smelting and refining on meteore mined in the surrounding region (Pop. c. 88,000).
- ODU: Geo. Mountain-range in the north of KAZZAR⁽²⁾, in the north of SAMMAEA, forming the northern-most part of Kazzaran^(1,1) peninsula. In its c, it expands to the south west to form the SHAAM Massif.
- ODU RETH: Set. Small city in the east of ALAM BETHYL, in the territory of KIZA^(1.) (Pop. c. 14,200).
- ODUBDA: Set. Coastal settlement in the east of SARAGOS (Pop. c. 6,000).
- ODULROA: Geo. Dry wastes dominating the rain shadow of the NGHALLEAL Mountains in the c-south east of CYHLAGHARR, merging into the blasted badlands of ASCORYCA in the east.
- ODURAD: Set. Coastal settlement in the south east of ANDILUTH, overlooking the SOUND OF MEMEHAR. Its main industry is fishing and it lies along the western-most branch of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 4,600).
- ODYNIA: Set. City in the west of KHITAI. It is the only remaining source of iron in the nation, and still bears the signs of KORACHANI occupancy much of its machinery and structures are of imperial descent. The city is located close to a minor ATRAMENTAL sinkhole, whose depths have never been fully-explored due the debilitating pain that wracks those trying to descend it (Pop. c. 41,000).
- ODYSSEY OF THE ATRANAUTS, the: Mus. Tragic opera popular in PARTHIS, depicting the odyssey of an ancient king whose obsession with finding an artifact in the tainted realms of KHARKHARADONTIS cost him his kingdom, wealth, friends and family. The work is hauntingly beautiful and over its four acts, which last around 5 hours and 40 minutes, its audience is expected to experience a myriad of emotions, leaving them distraught and heartbroken by its conclusion.
- Dating to c. 2230 RM, its writer is unknown and it remains one of the most popular artistic works to not be attributed.
- OEDA: Set. Settlement in c of KORACHAN, in the region of RUTHUNODA. It is a major producer of livestock, mostly for consumption in the larger cities around the peninsula (Pop. c. 3.400).
- OEIKITH: Geo. Expansive mountain-range in the east of KHARKHARADONTIS, stretching south, to form part of the border with the north west of NOAVATUR.
- OFAN: Geo. Cavern system in the south west of ERBETH and the far north of THE SURRACH. The caverns connect to the larger webwork of tunnels that dominate the northern face of the MGHALLEAL Mountains. The deepest reaches of the caverns are flooded and some explorers claim that these lake link to a subterranean sea that snakes its way across the Nghalleal in which pallid, eyeless fauna swim and crawl.
- OFANIMAH: also 'Thousand-eye Forest'. For. Sparse boreal forest in the c north of GNOTH to the south of the SOLUN HIGHLANDS.
- OFFERINGS, SHRINE OF: Rel. Str. Expansive temple-complex in the CHAMBER OF OFFERINGS in the PRISON CARCERI, where offerings from the length and breadth (and depth) of Carceri are brought before statues and reliquaries of VORROPOHAIAH and his scions and various saints. The Shrine is a place of pilgrimage to ropohaii from across Carceri and many spend their lives on the road, making their way to the Shrine.
- OFFERINGS, TREE OF: Soc. Rel. Flo. Dead tree in the north west of LAASKHA, close to the city of IKATHIA. It is famed for the thousands of coins that are hammered into it, each one part of a prayer and wish made by an individual over the years. It is unknown what caused the tree to have such a religious and cultural significance, though it has been there for centuries.

OFFICE OF CAUSALITY: Org. Little-known department within the SECULAR REPUBLIC OF PARTHIS. Amongst its members are many AUGURS⁽²⁾ and ANIMISTS who look into alternate and possible futures and determine the root cause of such events. If the possible outcomes are deemed to be beneficial to Parthis, the Office will encourage them from happening. The Office also notes undesirable events, and flags people and groups that are seen to lead to them, going so far as assassinating individuals in certain cases.

This work is considered dangerous, and meddling in such affairs may lead to more harm than good in the long run.

It is thought that past iterations of this organisation were responsible for the Republic's relative neutrality in the turbulent history of the INNER SEA REGION and its silent rise to a position of power, with the Office of Causality constantly manipulating the course of fate to suit its purpose, whatever that may be.

Its agents take an oath of neutrality, forsaking their very names and identities in a bid keep their machinations as anonymous and untraceable as possible.

OFFICE OF CONSTELLARS: Pol. Org. Attachés to the court of the LADY

AEGIS, situated in the HALL OF THE HENDECARCHS in AMILLAERE⁽²⁾,

MALAN There can be as many as a hundred such CONSTELLARS, loaned from the courts of KOLCHIS, in operation in Malan at any one time, attached to the retinues of HENDECARCHS and their direct lessers, acting as advisors and diviners.

OFFICE OF DOCTRINE: Rel. Org. Department in the city of ARGEA, SARASTRO, concerned with the doctrine of the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO. It has promoted and safeguarded the religious doctrine within the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO since the churches formal founding in 3821 RM, and it oversees the written body of its teachings, ensuring that everyone across the empire adheres to the same doctrine. Its redrobed agents are a relatively common sight within the Reformed empire's cities, where they quash heretical sects and splinter cults before they are able to gain a foothold.

OFFICE OF LINEARCHS: see LINEARCHS, OFFICE OF.

OFFICE OF THE PRIME MINISTER: Gov. Org. Main civil office of the TETHYSIAN government, handling the daily and administrative chores of governance. The Prime Minister, an elected official, holds daily weekly meetings with the sovereign, where matters of state and are discussed.

OFFICES OF THE OCCULTARIUM: see OCCULTARIUM, OFFICES OF THE

OFOTH: Set. Settlement in the north west of the emirate of LIMOTH^(2.) in the c of Limoth^(1.). Its main industry is agriculture (Pop. c. 3,800).

OGAMA: Set. Settlement in the c of GNOTH, just north of the capital of BISMUTH. Its main industry is agriculture and it provides food and provisions to merchants travelling along the GNOTHI ROAD trade-route, which passes through the settlement (Pop. c. 3,000).

OGARAR: Set. Small city in the c of the tribe of SALARNA, in the c north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 14,000).

OGDAL: Set. Small coastal city in the south of HARAPPA⁽³⁾, located in a small inland sea. It is part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 20,000).

OGEASTER: Set. Fortified city in the north west of SABAISA. It is home to part of the Sabaisan navy (Pop. c. 50,000).

OGENUG: Set. Major city in the c of KASPIA along the course of the river TARAGEA (Pop. c. 120,000).

OGGADEN: Geo. Rough highland region in the north of RHINOCOLOURA, forming part of the border with AETHIOS.

OGGDU: Geo. Badlands in the far south east of HOGGOTHA ISZ. The region is expansive and is considered a desert by most, though it contains fossils and other tell-tale signs of ancient greenery.

OGGOTHRA: Rvr. River in the far south east of SERROK, flowing east for 275-miles from various sources, including the POROPHOSSYR Mountains, before meeting the coast at the BAY OF BEVERESS.

OGGUTEI: Sup. Geo. Offshore UMBRA fields in the far north of the nation of DURCHAA, in the SEA OF POLARIS. The fields are expansive and lucrative, pumping millions of gallons of shadowstuff to the city of UROTHA yearly. The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{LEAST CONCERN}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}$.

OGHAMA: Lak. Lake in the north east of EASTERN LLACHATUL, along the course of the river LYNNFAEL, serving as a partial border between the states of LOEGRESS^(1.) in the north and HARITH in the south.

OGHOSLLA: (14,400-ft.) Geo. The 'ancestral peak' the MULL CITY-STATES, overlooking river TENASAAR.

OGHUR: PIr. 'oghurs'. Mor. Descendants of GIGANRI that emerged during the FADING following the THIRD AGE after millennia of enslavement and abuse by other mortals (primarily PLAGI, SERAPIS, and KERATIN), where they withered in size.

Today, oghurs remain shorter than giganri, with adults standing almost 7-ft. tall, though they weigh more, averaging about 480 lbs., most of it muscle and fat. Despite being smaller than their giganri ancestors, they exhibit a form of gigantism in which their bodies continue to grow throughout their lives, and individuals have been recorded as tall as 10-ft. weighing almost 1,000 lbs. They remain able-bodied throughout their lived and can live for almost 15-decades, though most die before this due to their belligerent lifestyles.

They naturally live in the far north of LLACHATUL and in the hottest parts of SAMMAEA due to their natural resilience to both cold and heat, which also stretches to a mild resistance to ATRAMENTAL EFFECTS. They are widespread across the INNER SEA REGION, where they are used as slaves by various nations, where their immense strength is of use in many industries and construction works.

In around 2100 RM sentiment towards oghurs changed in the Korachani empire after a string of revolts and uprisings left many people dead. This led to a massed culling of oghurs, particularly those displaying intelligence or insolence, leaving only the dim-witted and easily-manipulated. Some escaped in this time, leading to small numbers dwelling in the hinterlands and wastes between Imperial provinces, particularly ALMAGEST and AZAZEM, where they remain in numbers large enough to be a threat to travellers to this day.

Of note is the extant kingdom of CYHLAGHARR, which is the only known nation populated entirely by oghurs, who are of more acute than their slave-kin. Located to the south west of the INNER SEA, it is a major threat to sea shipping, and its privateers are a common sight along the northern coast of Sammaea, where they hunt for slaves.

Of note are THRACIAN OGHURS, which are famed for their CYCLOCEPHALY and their latent talent at SHAPING. See Vol II: Asicthai.

OGHUR, THRACIAN: Sup. Mor. OGHURS common in many lands in the north of SAMMAEA, including but not limited to the south of PARTHIS, the TARAHID ANNEXES, TRAKIA and the north west of KHARKHARADONTIS), and named after the ancient FOURTH AGE nation of Thrace, where they are thought to have originated.

Their unifying trait is their physical vulnerability to ATRAMENTAL TAINT, which typically manifests itself as hydrocephaly, or CYCLOCEPHALY; a birth defect that leaves their faces deformed; often with a single eye.

Cyclocephalic oghurs may often display latent skills in shaping, and those who do typically rise to positions of power in their disparate gangs that roam the wastelands, harassing trade and rural communities.

OGHUR-KING, the: Pol. Despot of the northern wastes of AZAZEM, active between 3820 and the present, waylaying LANDSHIPS and caravans running between ALMAGEST and KORACHAN.

OGHYATHAR: Sup. Geo. Dre. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED land in the prefecture of EROSENEA^(1,) in the north of HOLOLACH^(1,), avoided by most of a sane disposition. The land is tainted by the past presence of a DEMIURGE or SCION, and is littered by manifest DREAMS AND NIGHTMARES. It is studied by ATRAMENTISTS and FIRMAMENTISTS who seek to understand to art of ONEIROMANCY, and historians and mythologists value the region for the insights it can give us to past ages. Though few have explored its depths for long as the prolonged exposure to the taint can slowly lead to madness, which may last even after emerging from the area. Explorations in asbestos and lead-lined suits have proved moderately successful, however.

The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES, though its oneiric qualities make it a dangerous place nonetheless.

OGNAVASQ: Rvr. Expansive wetlands in the south east of ARERAQTH, believed to be the largest such terrain in all of ELYDEN. They are home to an elusive 'MORTAL' (ASICTHAIN) people known as SALAMANDRINES.

OGOG: Mil. Str. Fortress in MELAIS, in the north of AZAZEM.

OGOROLAE: Ser. Small city in the east of OKKHAM. It is known for the large proportion of people who are afflicted with a stable form of gigantism, making them between 6'5" and 7'6" tall (Pop. c. 17,500).

OGOTHA: Ind. Set. Mining settlement in the south of the tribe of THLOLOT, in the north east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is a major source of granite in the region (Pop. c. 4,200).

OGRAD: Set. OGHUR slave farm in the west of OPRET (3). Established in c. 800 RM by oghur tyrants, Ograd was the largest of dozens of such settlements that supplemented the ravenous oghur need for human slaves in what would, around 100-years later become the oghur nation of Cyhlagharr, in which it would remain a powerful salving centuries.

The OPHRAMI unification of surrounding lands in 2391 RM saw the humans of the region grow powerful and within decades Ograd and its neighbouring slave farms had been attacked, eventually coming under Ophrami control, where roles were reversed: oghurs became slaves and were bred for that purpose.

Thousands of oghurs were born and broken there (many of which, though inbreeding and the slow corruption of the region, were born with CYCLOCEPHALY), and were sent east throughout Ophram (and later the TARAHID ANNEXES) as slaves, brutes and beast of burden (Pop. c. 45 000)

OGRIGGDARH TEMPLE: His. Rui. Ancient temple-vault in the c south of RHEA. It originated in c. 30 RM as the gold reserve of the kingdom of ARRETOY, where it became notorious for the opulence and sheer extravagance of the treasures it housed, which were said to dwarf those of any other contemporary state. The vault was repurposed following the rise of the AURADIAN DYNASTY, and by c. 1000 had become a lavish temple, itself famed for its gilded walls and marble caryatids. The temple eventually fell into disuse with the rise of SAEWAL, after which it was slowly looted, until little remained of the original structure, most of which was reclaimed by nature, though stories of buried chambers and vaults persist to this day.

The temple was rumoured to contain treasures dating back to the Third and Fourth Ages and from various cultures and peoples from across all Elyden, though many historians now doubt the truth behind such tales, claiming that no extant example of such a relic has been documented as surviving the fall of Arretoy.

OGSUASU: Plr. 'Ogsuasim'. Fau. SYNAPSIDS known for their felid features heavy tails, and agile paws, that are common in the forests of MALAN, and eastern SAUA, ranging as far south as northern TZALLRACH. They are adept at moving on land and in branches, where they hunt flightless branch-birds and other creatures. The Ogsuasu is the national beast of AONIA. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

OGUDAWA: (B. 3978 RM) Pol. Current emperor of SAUA.

OGUTHU: Fau. Sub-arctic therops found in the far north of Llachatul, extending to the WHITE SHEET in summer. They are large, with a thick shaggy coat of fur to protect them from the cold, and are characterised by the bony crest that cover their heads from snout to cranium. The crest is more pronounced in males and grows with age. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

OGYGIA: Sea. Enclosed sea surrounding the TRUE MENISCUS in the centre of the region of TULURKRYPH^(1.), in the south of WESTERN MENISCEA. The sea, much like the SEA OF IPERIA that leads into it, is dangerous and treacherous to vessels, due to the LODELITHS and other FIRMAMENTAL effects in the region.

OHAQ VANDA: Set. City in the c north of CHEIRA. It is a major trade link to PNESSA (Pop. c. 34,800).

OHATAN: Set. One of 5 isolated self-sufficient city-states in the south of DURCHAA whose people revere the so-called DREAMING DEATH – an entity believed to be buried in the darkest reaches of the MAW OF DORMORRO. They clash with rival cults, each of which is based in another city-state near the Maw, and has its own beliefs surrounding the Maw (Pop. c. 3,700).

OHATTAR: Rvr. Salty marsh forming the west of lake RANNO in the north east of AZAZEM.

OHBOKHAR: Geo. Expansive basin in the north east of KHARKHARADONTIS, to the south of the MOLOTH KHAMMOTHUL Mountains. It is the main source, via aquifers, of the river RUSAMADARIID, which is its only access to drainage, being otherwise completely surrounded by high ridges.

OHDU ATA: Dem. 'Odhu Atan'. Eth. Peoples native to the south west of LLACHATUL, who emerged there in the early FIFTH AGE, following the FADING of the FOURTH AGE. They populated the lowlands between present-day AYAD and SEDISIA, north of the DURAHRATI coast, between the early years of the Fifth Age and c. 800 RM, by which time they had spread as far west as the PARNASIAN Mountains.

There was an exodus of Ohdu Atans to the north between c. 600 – 800 RM, driven in part by SLAVERY and banditry along the southern coasts, particularly the Seas of Durahrat and ABARULLIA. Their ancestors would go on to found RAONGEN⁽²⁾. Those who remained south continued in their sparse communities of pastoral people who would eventually give rise to the people of EVHRAN and, later, VETHRANDA, and their descendants are today found in the PARNASIAN STATES, as well as the AUTOCRACY OF OTINTH and the empire of SEDISIA, though an influx of colonists and immigrants from the east have seen their numbers diluted.

The name Ohdu Ata was taken and corrupted by KORACHANI colonists who arrived in the area in 2238 RM, who named their main colony there OHDURTAR.

OHDURTAR: 1. Dem. 'Ohdurtari'. Pol. Historical KORACHANI colony established to the west of the INNER SEA, between the present-day nations of AYAD and SEDISIA. The colony was established in 2238 RM, following years of struggle with natives. The first Korachani colonists arrived in the region in c. 2160 RM and set up a stronghold along its south eastern coast, known as ORUT, from which future attacks were launched. Within 70-years the region had been largely rid of natives, with thousands of SLAVES sent east to Korachan and many new outposts and settlements established.

The forests north of Ohdurtar were rapidly exploited, with wood and ores shipped east over the next centuries, leaving a large area known as OREAHASH a wasteland. In 2643 RM the city of MITHENT broke away from VETHRANDA and began attacking neighbouring cities, including the colonies of Ohdurtar. Ohdurtar found itself cut off from Korachan following a lengthy TATARAN blockade and, after decades of war, it withdraws from the region in 2671 RM. Its lands were resettled by Vethrandan victors in the west and Sedisia in the east, though the region of ATILIPHO remains contested between the two to this day, its umbra reserves largely untapped.

2. Rui. Largest imperial settlement and port in the eponymous colonies^(1.). The area is now a ruin, some miles from the coast, its harbours and transport ships landlocked and rusted solid, now serving as refuges to bandits and outlaws. The colony was abandoned in 2671 RM and remains a ruin to this day.

OHENI CASK, the: Int. Leg. His. Obj. Ancient stone funerary vessel unearthed by KORACHANI archaeologists in the north west of the UMBRA SOKHAR in c. 1200 RM beneath a stone altar of THIRD AGE PLAGI provenance. It was locked behind seven sealed stone walls, and when opened revealed a strange translucent stone. The expeditionary team that made the discovery all died under mysterious circumstances, and the stone was eventually retrieved along with their other findings, making its way to a museum in DEKANA. The museum burnt down seven days after its arrival there, and it was moved again to another repository, where seven days later an earthquake toppled it. Similar catastrophes followed the stone around, becoming less frequent in nature, and finally, 49 years after its discovery, it was taken back to the chamber where it was found and reburied. The chamber was hidden beneath the sands and its location stricken from maps and records, though the stone would become infamous for its 'cursed' history.

Today the term 'Oheni Cask' continues to be used as a metaphor for folly and misfortune.

OHI'MBRA: lit. 'eater of shadow'. Fau. Vicious canine-like SYNAPSID that subsists on UMBRA. They are relatively common in KORACHAN, AZAZEM, and the more hospitable parts of KHARKHARADONTIS (where their bodies are often corrupted, and unrecognisable), as well as other regions of ATRAMENTAL TAINT.

OHINAR: Set. Settlement in the south west of the emirate of DEITHO^(1.) in the c south west of LIMOTH^(1.), located to the west of the river MATHRAS. Its main industry is agriculture (Pop. c. 5,300).

OHNELLA: Fas. Traditional KORACHANI garment that covers the head and shoulders in a semicircular shape around the head, which is stiffened with whalebone or, more commonly, wires, and is somewhat similar to a shawl or cape. The design is distinctive for its large bonnet-like appearance, and it can be held low, covering the face.

It is typically made from cotton or wool and is typically worn over other clothes, serving both practical and modesty purposes, protecting women from the sun and wind while adhering to the cultural norms of modest dress.

The ohnella is most common amongst helots and the middle classes, though most PATRICIANS have gravitated away from them in favour of less traditional styles, though more old-fashioned individuals may still wear them. The rich are known to embellish theirs with brocade or lace.

OHRAM: Geo. Mountains in the east of SAMMAEA, forming a natural border between the nations of SABAISA and ANANTHUL.

OHRUSH: Lan. Language spoken in CYHLAGHARR. It shares some links with GNOTHI, and the two languages are thought to have a common root, though Ohrush is directly descended from the LANGUAGE of the earlier oghur nation of FALLDRG. See Vol II: Languages.

OHTAN: Lak. Lake in the south of AHKA, forming part of the course of the river SASHAT.

OHUSA: Geo. Escarpment running for around 65-miles in the south of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of SYRTIS^(1.).

OIAHAL: also 'the Scar'. Rui. Ruined KORACHANI fortress built in c. 80 RM during the siege of NÁRTHEL south of lake DRACONA. It was abandoned in c. 560 RM. What remains now is a twisted ruin of metal girders protruding form a mound of rust-encrusted sand and compact soil. The intricate network of hewn caverns beneath the fortress were home to various groups over the years though they collapsed in 2592 RM.

OIAM: Geo. Island in the far east of the MIROVEAN SEA, forming part of the RATHURU^(1.) archipelago.

OIAMMA: Set. Small coastal city in the south west of AMMESH (Pop. c. 16,400).

OIELONET: (19,126-ft.) Gco. Peak in the north east of the BAND Mountains, in the west of KOLCHIS.

OIL OF THE FROG: also 'fusce ton tistim'. Med. Obj. Ointment common in tropical regions of south eastern MENISCEA, whose active ingredient is sourced from the skin secretions of a particular painted frog, which grants the oil various properties including making it antiseptic and mildly analgesic, as well as adequately warding against insects such as mosquitos. Found in ACHAA^(2.), LANTUA and TAES, the frogs are poached and bred specifically to collect their skin secretions, for use in making oil of the frog, which commands a high price as an effective medicine.

OIZYSH: Pol. Sec. Coastal city and capital of FALLAROUR, on the north of the island of KILAWADA in the SHIELD ISLES. It is home to the largest concentration of PENITENTS OF AVRAHAM in Fallarour (though its members remain greatly outnumbered by adherents of LAZANISM) and the hills outside its borders are filled with fanatics undertaking the LAMENT OF AVRAHAM, a self-deprecating ritual in which individuals spend their days pushing large metal spheres with the sole goal of causing themselves pain and toil (Pop. c. 124,000).

OKAADUR VALDA: see RISENBLADE, THE.

OKANGH: Set. Settlement in the south of the MULL CITY-STATES, along the mouth of the river TRALL (Pop. c. 7,500).

 \underline{OKARA} : 1. Sca. Bay in the north east of \underline{OPHAR} , at the base of the $\underline{GEMOPHAR}$ Peninsula^(1.).

2. Set. Fortified coastal city in the north east of OPHAR, at the base of the GEMOPHAR Peninsula^(1.). It is a major fishing hub (Pop. c. 30,000).

OKASI: Set. Major trade city in SAUA, forming a trade-route east into the HARÉSHK (Pop. c. 225,000).

OKGHAR: Set. Fortified settlement in the far north of the MULL CITY-STATES, in the TOLIASOR Mountain-chain (Pop. c. 7,200).

OKHARA: Set. Coastal city in the south of KEPHUAAN, overlooking the BAY OF LEPHAINA. It is the largest city in the region and is a major industrial centre, and is steadily growing into a powerful city (Pop. c. 50.000).

OKHRAS: Geo. Region in the south west of VALA, acting as the border between it and the north east of TULURKRYPH. It is a FIRMAMENTAL wasteland, where the land is bleached of colour, the sky pale, and heat of the sun unbearably fierce.

OKHTEN: also 'the Throne of Okhten'. Pol. His. Ancient stone throne in the north east of BELEGOR, thought to date back to the THIRD AGE. Little is known of what culture created it, or what individual may have claimed it.

OKITIT: Set. Fortified city in the c of the tribe of NUNEA, in the south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. The city is a major centre of the NEPHTHALONT faith in NUNEA (Pop. c. 25,000).

OKKANGAN: Set. Settlement in the north west of CUTH. It is a major producer of jute and jute rope (Pop. c. 11,800).

OKKARA: For. Forest in the c-south east of VAALK, entering north western MHAROKK. ARRAKESH trees are common here, as are carobs and pines.

OKKHAM: Dem. 'Okkhammi'. 1. Geo. Mountain-range dominating the west of WAELMIGH, and most of Okkham⁽³⁾, to which it serves as a border.

2. Geo. Long peninsula extending south east into the northern-waters of the SEA OF LETHEA, in the east of SAMMAEA. It is named for the eponymous mountain-range and the nation takes its name from the peninsula.

3. Ntn. A relatively young area, becoming officially recognised as a Federation in 3569 RM, following decades of struggle as an independent region that broke away from the far larger CHEIRA in 3337 RM. Today it is divided into 17 distinct districts, each of which has various representatives in the council that is based in the city of DIATESSARON, which is a hub of diplomats and envoys.

It is known as a place of exotic industries to outsiders, with the silk trade being the most widespread. However, the manufacture and trade of the amnesic drug LETH, is perhaps the most notorious amongst foreign nations. It is manufactured in an arduous process that takes around 4-years, from the collection of the most pervasive waters of the Sea of Lethea, to its completion and bottling in ready for shipment across ELYDEN from the city of ZO MAE.

Its people are dark-skinned, and industrious, working hard to maintain the link between the many different districts of the Federation. They are known for their large stature, and it is said that some districts of the Federation are known for humans who commonly grow over 7-ft. tall. Rumours abound as to the source of their great stature, few of which are flattering or likely true. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

OKKOWAN: Set. Major city in the c east of KREM. It is the centre of the WAY OF MEGILLAR philosophy, and is home to the MEGILLAR SCROLLS⁽²⁾, as well as the interred bodies of dozens of OTHERWORLDERS that visited Krem (Pop. c. 800,000).

OKKSHILT: Pol. Soc. Bus. Powerful and influential PATRICIAN HOUSE based in ALMAGEST. It owns the secretive clubhouse known as THE GROVE, around which many conspiracies have emerged. It is incredibly wealthy and controls the REPUBLIC BANK in Almagest, as well owning large swathes of real estate, and having assets in various industries and businesses around the INNER SEA. It is descended from an ancient royal bloodline whose territories were absorbed by almagest in c. 2730 RM. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

OKONER: For. Sparse forest area in TZALLRACH in the far north of KRISHTUL, just south of KARISSINA.

OKOROBO: Set. Settlement in the c north of TZALLRACH, known for its iron mining. Merchants travelling along the GREAT ROAD pass through the city, sometimes buying iron (Pop. c. 4,000).

OKRA: Set. Settlement in the east of OPHAR. Its main industry is feldspar mining (Pop. c. 3,200).

OKSHANA: f. Myr. His. Daughter of the SCION DENDYDRIS, herself daughter of the DEMIURGES ACHAIAH and ARIMASPI. Cassia is one of three known siblings (the others being CASSIA⁽⁴⁾ and IPOMEA), who inherited their mother's divine affinity for trees, which granted them great strength and long-life so long as the sun shone on them and they were in the presence of trees.

Little is known of Okshana's story, and she is only mentioned in passing in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN. She is believed to have died without much fanfare sometime in the THIRD AGE. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

OKSOON: Set. Settlement in the south east of CUTH, on the eastern face of the peninsula of HAMMINGHENG. Its main industry is logging (Pop. c. 8.000).

 \underline{OKUH} : Set. City in the c-south east of $\underline{AQUARIIA}$ along the course of the river \underline{ZHUSH} (Pop. c. 42,000).

OKUL: Set. Settlement in the c north east of AQUARIIA, along the course of the river ZAURALL. It is known for its logging and hunting (Pop. c. 8.000).

OLABOHAT: Set. Coastal city in the north east of BANT, in the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.) in the east of SAMMAEA. It is known for its harbour and storage yards and warehouses, and is a major trading centre, having links with NOAVATUR (Pop. 40,000).

OLAMA: Cur. CISNERIAN currency. See Vol II: Currency and Coinage in Elyden. OLAMA: Set. Settlement in the region of KURDA in the east of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 4,000).

OLANASAR: Set. Settlement in the prefecture of SONTADRIS in the south west of HOLOLACH^(1,), known for its lobster fishing (Pop. c. 4,900).

OLANTHEM: Set. Major city in the c south west of AKANTHRA, along the course of the river ERKUN. Little is known of the city's history by outsiders but it is thought to be built on the ruin of an ancient FOURTH AGE city that was founded by non-HUMAN MORTALS(Pop. c. 230,000).

OLASTIN: Geo. Island off the south western coast of THUMAL.

OLBIA: Lak. Lake in the south of TATAR. The river DIELEGAME flows into it, and it empties into the south of the GULF OF ESHIRON via the river TIAGAME^(2.).

OLBRI: 1. Pol. Geo. Largest of the five political states of VALBAR⁽²⁾, located to the north east of the nation. It is the least populated and is almost all covered in permafrost and glaciers.

2. Set. Small fortified coastal city in the north east of $\underline{VALBAR}^{(2)}$. Its main industry is peat gathering from the nearby \underline{HADAK} peatbogs (Pop. c. 12,200).

OLD CAMMORI: See CAMMORI, OLD.

OLD DEITIES, the: His. Rel. In TETHYSIA and TEMUIA, old animal-headed deities of cultures preceding current societies. In Temuja, the Old Deities are thought to have evolved into the TUTELARY SPIRITS of today, while in Tethysia they were worshipped by the natives of what was once THETIS (the followers of KATHISIS that remained there after his travelling north in 1603 RM).

OLD FOREST, the: also 'Vanefan' and 'Tar yo-dhai'. Ntn. Known to natives as VANEFAN, this nation is known across many languages simply as 'the Old Forest'. This large region of central LLACHATUL is one of the largest known remnants of a far larger forest that once dominated much of Llachatul as recently as the early FIFTH AGE, and lies between the nations of ALMAGEST, ASTUDAN, AHRISHEN, RHAMIA, VÂRR, CHTHYRID, AZAZEM, and BASSORAH⁽²⁾.

Its people are descended from early FIFTH AGE totem-animal worshipping 'barbarians' in what are now the far south west of ALMAGEST, the north east of SKAROS, the north of BASSORAH⁽²⁾, and the far west of the OLD FOREST. LASCAR⁽³⁾ settlers clashed with them and pushed then ever east, until they settled the basin of Vanefan.

Exploited by various peoples throughout the Fifth Age and early FOURTH AGES, its present borders are characterised by barren land where its neighbours slowly deforested it, in some cases as recently as centuries ago. However, the heart of the Old Forest (well over a million squaremiles) remains wooded to this day, with vast swathes of dense virgin woodlands unexplored by the outside world.

Though often ignored by outsiders and thought of as a wild place bereft of civilisation by nations without, the truth could not be more different. It is populated by an ancient people whose roots lie deep in ELYDEN'S past, and they live in cities that are built atop the ruins of ancient lands in an effort to lessen the intrusion upon the forest, which is allied to encroach on these cities in a controlled manner. In this way, buildings and trees coexist, and though these cities reach great heights, they can be sprawling, with a footprint of many square-miles. The large distances between cities and lack of major maintained roads between then have led to a decentralized government, with the nation divided into 5 states, and each of those further divided into dozens of smaller counties, all of which are allowed to self-govern, with a unified code of laws linking them together. Each of its five states is ruled by a distinct dynastic family, and the genealogies of each of these dynasties is intertwined with the others in complex web of relations. The five Dynasts each appoint a proxy to represent them in the capital city of GITHILALAN, though they do travel there to rule in person in times of need.

Bringing further unity is the worship of ASKEFER, a spirit-deity, which encompasses the spirits of all its worshippers, and who is said to grow in power with the passing of each faithful Vanefani. Each settlement has at its centre a sacred tree in which is said to dwell Askefer, and all of these sacred trees are thought to form a network through which shapers can communicate in the way that technarcana uses seeing screens.

Its people are insular and xenophobic, and are unlikely to allow news or innovations from outside lands to reach its cities, and when they do, they are largely critical of events in the world at large. Though Vanefani envoys and diplomats can be found in surrounding nations, their role is largely observational, reporting to Githilalan with news of current events from almagest and Korachan in particular. Its borders are well-guarded and the bulk of its military, which despite not yet being completely industrialised, remains effective against modern threats. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

OLD FOREST BASIN, the: Geo. Endorheic drainage basin formed by various continental divides in the continent of LLACHATUL, including parts of the LLACHATUL, DIVIDE. The basin is located in the c of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, and the majority of its rivers lead to inland lakes sinks – primarily the GâTHAN sinkhole and lake TOSEFA(1).

Nations and territories that are at least partially within the Old Forest Basin include: ALMAGEST, ASTUDAN, SHOTHA, and STOLAS.

Worshipped in the KINGDOM of LIMOTH⁽¹⁾ before it was outlawed by the PLUTOCRATIC REPUBLIC that took over in 2829 RM. The religion was abolished in 2895 RM following years of religious strife, with its few surviving adherents fleeing to the north of Limoth into the southern foothills of the KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA Mountains, where they are rumoured to cling to the practice to this day, particularly in the north of the emirate of UKOLIST.

The people of LIMOTH know very little of this old pantheon today and centuries of indoctrination have left the populace with a secular attitude and distrust of organised religions in general. Open discussion of the Old Religion and their Gods is outlawed, though few would have any reason to talk about such things.

Rumours that the so-called Old Gods, whose records have long ago been expunged from Limothan records, are older than the DEMIURGES, but such claims are unfounded and unlikely to ever be corroborated.

OLD ONES, TEMPLE OF THE: Set. Temple hewn from the red cliffs of the south west of VAALK. It is a relic of an ancient time. The cyclopean and deformed deities carved from its rocks are alien yet compelling, thought to date back to an unknown culture from the FOURTH AGE or possibly earlier. The temple is now overgrown, abandoned, save for the descendants of IMPERIAL-sanctioned guards. With the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM, the guards entrusted to protect the area remained there, making the temple their home. It is believed that a form of idolatry of the temples and the secrets hidden in the caves beneath has ensued, though the people (calling themselves TEMPLARS^(3,)) guard the place fiercely, denying entry to foreigners. It is effectively an autonomous settlement (Pop. c. 1,000).

OLD PHARTHI: see PHARTHI, OLD.

- OLD QUARTER: Set. District in the city of TETHRA in PARTHIS. As the name implies, it is one of the oldest parts of the city, though very little new remains of ancient Tethra. Those who know where to look can find ancient echoes and relics of the old city, such as remnants of old walls or aqueducts, regraded streets hiding in present-day sewers, or lintels and capstones that have been repurposed or used on more recent structures.
- 'OLD RELIGION, the': Rel. Religion of LIMOTH^(1.) eradicated over 1,000 years ago by the PLUTOCRATIC REPUBLIC following its rise to power in 2829 RM. Starting in 2840 RM, new republic propagated a secular movement. It was slow to gain traction, but over the decades many people willingly came to forsake worship of the 'OLD GODS', though those who remained became stubborn in their adherence. Though the majority of the population had abandoned the old religion by 2893 RM, a vocal minority (around 5% of the population) resisted, leading to open conflict. The conflict was bloody, taking place in churches and holy places, with the clergy and their followers being killed in their hundreds, effectively eliminating the presence of the Old Religion.

The following years were characterised by a deliberate expunging of all religious records, with the few scattered remnants of the religious minority fleeing to the north of Limoth into the southern foothills of the KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA Mountains amid the enforcement of strict laws against open religious worship.

Very little knowledge of this old religion remains today, and it is only referred to now in hushed tones as the 'Old Religion', and its gods as the 'Old Gods', though the descendants of those who fled to the north are thought to still secretly cling to these old beliefs. Their extreme isolationism and xenophobia mean that few outsiders, including Limothans from the south, are allowed to enter their settlements. This has allowed racist folktales and legends about the northern rural folk to emerge in the south.

OLD THERASH: His. Geo. Name given to the territories left in the wake of the collapse of the THERASHIAN EMPIRE in 902 RM.

For its first few centuries, the region was known for its tumultuous politics, in which the forces of rival warlords would clash along contested borders. It also became known for the fortified chapels dedicated to AELORANISM that sprung up in quieter areas, making sure that the people did not forget the one unifying thing that remained in their homeland.

Five independent states, known as KETHAR, SATÍ, AELOR, INGHULL, and VESPER^(2.), eventually emerged to fill the political void left by the collapse of the empire and claiming the lands of Old Therash.

OLD TOMBS: See GOD RELICS.

- OLD WAR, the: Pol. His. Recent terminology for the WITCH WARS in TEMUJA, most commonly used by non-elders (who are the only ones with a more honest concept of the war.
- OLDIR: Set. Small fortified city in the far south east of Valbar^(2.) in the BOSAR forest. Its main industry is logging and forestry (Pop. c. 13,700).
- OLECRANA: Set. Small city in the far south east of PORPHYR, acting as a link to the nation of SABAISA. It has a large marketplace, with many storage yards (Pop. c. 15,800).
- OLECRASSA: Rvr. River in the south of OSSIEL, flowing south into the SEA OF MYMEREA. It is known in various spots for placer mining, where nuggets of FIRMATITE are found.
- OLEINDRUTH: Geo. Island in the c of the MAIDEN ISLES, off the south eastern coast of MENISCEA.
- OLIDGA: Set. Settlement in the south of OPHIUSSA, along the course of the river MARAGA. Its main industry is agriculture (Pop. c. 7,000).
- OLIGARCHATE OF THE DIOCESE: Rnk. rank and title within the Church of the Undying Machine.
- OLIL ODU: Geo. Large geyser in the north of KOLCHIS, in the region of NOLKOSH.
- OLIMINIR: Set. Small coastal city in the west of TATAR (Pop. c. 14,000).

- OLIUTH: 1. (14,800-ft.) Geo. Active volcano in the north west of KOLCHIS, in the far west of the SHUK RAZHA, in the north western foothills of the KULL DARGA Mountains. It smokes regularly though there has not been an eruption in some centuries, with the last recorded eruption being in 3374 RM.
 - 2. Mil. Str. Major fortress in the far south east of KOLCHIS, whose troops patrol the border with ALMAGEST.
- OLIVE: Int. Flo. Myt. Small evergreen trees common to the INNER SEA REGION (though which have since been exported across ELYDEN), known for their twisted gnarled trunks and their fruit, which have been eaten by mortals for millennia and which are also used to make oil. Various mythologies across the region claim that the olive was a divine gift to mortals, with the details differing from legend to legend. This belief is conspicuously absent from KORACHANI myths, where it is regarded in a more prosaic light.
- OLL AGNOEPHATOSH: m. Per. (B. 2338 D. 2409 RM) Mus. Ind.

 CAMPANOLOGIST whose foundry was responsible for the creation of the BELL OF AGONEPHATOSH, which crowns the BELL-tower of the BASTION OF STEEL, in KHADON. Upon his death, his body was mummified and it was placed in a shrine in the cupola of the bell-tower, where it remains to this day.
- OLLATANAS: Rvr. Largely seasonal river in the IASALLAN grasslands in the south of JURRAS^(2.). At its peak, the river flows west for 450-miles, from sources in the southern-face of the INNORADOS Mountains through the LLURAN wastes, before meeting with its parent, the river KHARAD.
- OLLOS: 1. Dem. 'Ollosan'. Ntn. Western-most island forming part of WESTERN SAMMAEA, in the east of the SEA OF NARANOR.
- It is a land of FIRMAMENTISTS, and ruled by catatonic seers, whose rotting self-mummifying bodies are venerated in lavish rituals that seek to appease the otherworld. These rituals leave the people of Ollos in poverty for much of the year. It was an independent state for many centuries but is now a part of RAHENG.
- 2. Pol. Set. Main city and once-capital of the above island^(1.). It is home to the only major port of the island (Pop. c. 67,000).
- OLNNAD: 1. His. Ntm. Now-extinct state from the early FIFTH AGE that emerged in c. 1100RM from the ruins of the older city of HOALAN. By c. 1250 RM it had become a major trading influence to the west of the SEA OF BYSSOS, along the then-course of the river SISARA. By 1462 RM it and its ally HOLOTHAN bought trade-rights in OPHAM, leading to the latter's fragmentation in 1465 RM, with its territories divided amongst the two. Slave revolts in 2135 RM crippled the state, with thousands of freed slaves fleeing into NAAL. At the same time the newly-emerged state of OPHRAM was uniting surrounding regions under its banner, and by 2391 RM Olnnad too was assimilated, ending its time of independence. See Vol III: Extinct States.
 - 2. also 'City of Ages'. Set. City in the east of TRAKIA, often referred to as the oldest still-inhabited city in all of ELYDEN, with records going back as far as the early THIRD AGE, making it as much as 60,000-years old. It was once a great metropolis, a true city-empire of millions, that remains now as unrecognisable dust and fragments.

Its ancient citadel, rebuilt countless times over is now the heart of the present-day conurbation. It is a place of the dead, where cemeteries and mausolea outnumber the dwellings of the living, and where the dead are worshipped due to the knowledge they possess. SHAPERS who commune with the spirit world are relatively common here (Pop. c. 11,000).

- OLOM GARROS: (D. 3394 RM) Edu. Scholar of the Atramenta who alongside his colleague TILLA PISTOME formulated the hypothesis now known as the GARROS-PISTOME HORIZON, which postulates that given the right conditions mortals can cross over to the otherworld without supranatural aid.
- OLON: Pol. Soc. One of the most powerful and influential PATRICIAN HOUSES in the early days of the KORACHANI EMPIRE. It was one of the first merchant-houses to support the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR during his unification of the SEVEN CITY-STATES and remained a significant power throughout the REIGN OF THE EMPTY THRONE, when its members were amongst those most vehemently chasing the leadership of the empire.

- Following the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR'S return in 339 RM, the house was persecuted, finally driven from the empire in 412 RM where it lingers to this day in northern LYRIDIA and southern AHRISHEN, as a charter merchant house, its bloodline so diluted with local families as to have almost forgotten its imperial roots. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.
- OLORADA: Set. Settlement on the island of ULLORIM in FALLAROUR, off the south western coast of SAMMAEA. Its people's main diet consists of soft-shelled shrimp that lives in the waters around the SHIBBOTHA and SHIELD ISLES. These are boiled and eaten whole, usually in stews or with legumes, and as a result locals are known for the slight orange-pink tint to their skin (Pop. c. 46,000).
- OLORNYS: Set. Settlement in the north east of THE SURRACH, in the north eastern foothills of the NGHALLEAL Mountains (Pop. c. 7,000).
- OLOTAR: Sca. Bay in the far south east of ALAM BETHYL, along the border between it and MASSALAR^(1,) in the south. The river KEGHOK flows into the bay, brining rich alluvial deposits with it.
- OLRAHANAEL: Geo. Badlands region in the prefecture of BROTRIS, along the border with HOLICHRIS, in the c of HOLOLACH^(L). The area is dominated by a stepped calcite formation like a shelf along both sides of the valley and canyons between.
- OLTAGRA: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region in the c south of the BARRIER LANDS. It is dominated by brittle duststone formations and rubbery root-like Atramental growths that hold them together.
 - The region is categorised as a LEAST CONCERN by the KORACHANI INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES.
- OLTHARUN: Geo. Expansive mountains in the north of VALBAR^(2.), dominating its northern coastline. It is known for its many glaciers, its snow-capped peaks and its many KEVERAN GOATS.
- $\underline{\text{OLUHIR}}\text{: }\textit{Mil. Str.}$ Fortress in the far north east of $\underline{\text{TAHALL}}\text{, overlooking GNOTH.}$
- OLURKAARA: Pol. Set. Capital city of ACHAA^(2.), situated in the c south east of the nation. It is built atop an ancient stone bastion-city in the foothills of the south western MENEFIR Mountains (Pop. c. 302,000).
- OLUTA: Set. Coastal settlement in the north east of VALBAR⁽²⁾, overlooking the BAY OF BALFA. Its main industry is whaling (Pop. c. 3,200).
- OLVENDAM: Set. Major fortified city in the south west of MAENMIST, overlooking the BAY OF CRAS. It emerged around the far older bastion of the same name, that it now envelops (Pop. c. 68,000).
- OLYAMMYAD: His. Lan. Now-extinct language of the FOURTH AGE OLYAMMYAD EMPIRE. It emerged from the earlier ANAVRAMI, and would become the root of ancient GORRHASHI, from which the extant
 KORACHANI tongue would eventually emerge See Vol II: Languages.
- OLYAMMYAD EMPIRE: His. Ntn. Major FOURTH AGE empire that dominated the south of CENTRAL LLACHATUL, in what are now SKAROS, LAASKHA, KORACHAN, PELASGOS, and VÂRR.
 - It collapsed late in the Fourth Age, during the WAR OF SCOURGING, and various smaller states would emerge from its ruin, including ALAAS, GORRHASH and HADEN. See Vol III: Extinct States.
- OLYMARIUS FARGIA: m. Mil. His. Per. (B. 3657 D. 3758 RM) AZAZEMI

 ARCHPATRICIAN and general of the IMPERIAL ARMY from 3688 RM and, later, supreme general of the nation's bound by the TREATY OF BAAYN (AZAZEM, LAASKHA, and VAALTHA) in the WAR OF SUNDERING, where he helped lead IMPERIAL allied forces to victory in the VAALTHAN WAR. He retired in 3732 RM, just five years before Vaaltha was finally annexed by Sarastro something that embittered him in his last years of life, which he spent on his FARGIA estate outside AGLAIA.
- OLYSAGRA: Set. Settlement in the west of PORPHYR, to the south east of the capital in BETTYL (Pop. c. 6,800).
- OLYSSIA: His. Ntn. Late FOURTH AGE nation in the far west of MENISCEA, to the west of the EGETAKH Mountains. Its collapse during the FADING led to the formation of the early FIFTH AGE state of OCCAETIA, which encompassed present-day MIRALUL, OSSIEL, and NALARDIL. See Vol III: Extinct States.
- OMAHIR: Set. Settlement in the c of ELAT. Its main industry is the production of cork (Pop. c. 8,000).

- OMAN: Set. Settlement in the west of MHAROKK along the course of the river AMOA. It is a major producer of food in the region, much of which is sold to merchants travelling along the RED ROUTE as provisions (Pop. c. 7.200).
- OMAR: Lak. Lake in the east of MHAROKK, along the course of the river AMOA.
- OMARO: Lak. Lake in the south of VENTHIR, along the course of river ELIGIA.
- OMARS: Set. Settlement in the west of RHEA, known for its aluminium mines, which are the main industry of the nation (Pop. c. 4,000).
- OMATRI: Set. Small city in the c of GYZHA. It is a hub of training for mercenaries (Pop. c. 14,000).
- OMBRIAS: Set. Small city in the north east of KORACHAN, along the course of the river CHANI (Pop. c. 13,000).
- OMEMET: Set. Coastal settlement in the north west of KHAMID, overlooking the bay of IPTO. It is known for its carob trees, the eldest one of which is said to predate the CATACLYSM OF KHAMID, and is held in high regard and guarded in the middle of the settlement (Pop. c. 7,2000).
- OMENS, BELL OF: also 'Irrin'. Mil. Str. Coastal fortress in the west of VAALK topped by a massive bell (thought to be the largest in KORACHAN, besides the Bell of that rings out in times of political significance. It normally serves the role of lighthouse, due to heavy fogs in area.
- OMES OHD: Rui. Monument in the north west of GNOTH, dedicated to the GIGANRI who died against the heretics of KORVANT in c. 2800 RM. The monument is also a tomb where the loyal warriors were buried, though it is today largely forgotten and half-ruined.
- OMBIA: Set. Farming settlement in the c of SABIA (Pop. c. 7,500).
- OMERA: 1. Sea. Bay in the north of the TEMPLAR STATES, to the west of the GHORDADOS headland.
- 2. Set. Major coastal city in the north of the TEMPLAR STATES. It is known for its expansive harbour, and is controlled by a coalition of workers' unions. It is a major importer of varied fabrics from across the SEA OF ORRIDA and beyond, which are widely used in the clothing industry of the Templar States (Pop. c. 90,000).
- OMERUVED CITIES, the: Dem. 'Omeruved'. Ntn. Semi-independent region in the PERION headland in the far north east of TETHYSIA. The region is considered a commonwealth and is made up of dozens of cities and microstates, which together rule towards the betterment of the region. The city of DRELLU houses the CHAMBERS OF THE COMMONWEALTH. See Vol III Extant Realms and Nations.
- OMEUS: Fau. Large winged insect endemic to tropical lands to the north east of the SEA OF LETHEA, most commonly in the rainforests of WAELMIGH in CHEIRA, OKKHAM, PNESSA, and the west of the PORPHYRI PENINSULA. It forms a chrysalis about 8 10 inches long, which is considered a delicacy in Cheira and Okkham, where it is cultivated on an industrial scale and is commonly cooked with spices & mashed roots. See Vol II: Foods of Elyden.
- OMEUSYL: Set. Small city in the west of OKKHAM. Its main industry is gold mining (Pop. c. 17,000).
- OMEZARUH: Set. Coastal settlement in the south of EZARUH (Pop. c. 6,800).
- OMHAZAD: Geo. ATRAMENTAL geyser in the south west of VÂRR, in the woodlands of RONONVARR. The geyser was exploited early in the KORACHANIEMPIRE'S tenure of Vârr, and raw UMBRA was extracted from it for many centuries, until c. 3000 RM, when production no longer remained cost-effective. The SIPHON ENGINES and other equipment was allowed to rot following the departure of the INTERREGES from Vârr in 3791 RM.
 - After the nation became independent the city of $\underline{SACODONTA}$ began to exploit the region once again, with umbra extraction resuming in c. 3805 RM, albeit at a reduced scale. Umbra is now pumped to the capital in $\underline{NOUVATAI}$ via Sacodonta.
 - The region is categorised as $\underbrace{HIGHLY\ DANGEROUS}$ by the $\underbrace{KORACHANI}$ $\underbrace{INSTITUTE\ OF\ ATRAMENTAL\ STUDIES}$.
- OMITOS: 1. Rvr. River in the south east of PELASGOS, flowing south east for 100-miles from sources in the east of the TEREKION Mountains before meeting its parent, the river \underline{PHEMOS} . Its waters are marred by the manufactory-city of \underline{KYTHEA} .

2. Lak. Lake along the course of the eponymous river.

OMITTED EMPIRE, the: Pol. His. Region/nation that was destroyed by the KORACHANI EMPIRE in c. 1230 RM. All knowledge of the region and its peoples were hidden away by the MINASTERIA OF NEGATIONISM, with records of its history expunged.

In the years following this conspiracy, many scholars have postulated that the Omitted Empire refers to the descendants of the children of AVRAHAM, whose last known realm was in what is now the east of PARTHIS and who are known to have fled west millennia past. However, few are those who are willing to openly investigate the fact surrounding the Omitted Empire, for fear of retaliation from the agents of the Minasteria of Negationism. See Vol III: Extinct States.

OMITTED ONES, the: also 'Aepathy Towns'. Soc. Common term used across the KORACHANI EMPIRE for people and settlements that, for whatever reason, are located in ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED lands, causing the air, land, and sea around them to die. This is often due to their vicinity to manufactories and chemical plants that have polluted the land around them over many centuries.

The people and livestock in these places are sick and weak, often of emaciated appearance and haggard disposition. They know the source of their ailments but are too poor, weak, or complacent to do anything about it

There are probably thousands of such settlements across the INNER SEA REGION and beyond, and they are largely forgotten by outsiders, from which the term Omitted Ones emerged in c. 3500 RM in VÂRR.

OMLOUDOCH: Geo. Mountain in the c south west of SERROK, forming an extension of the larger HAMAIADON Mountains.

OMMAR: Set. Small city in the east of MHAROKK, known for its occasional trade with HARAPPA^(3,) (Pop. c. 170,000).

OMMARA: Geo. Island in the east of the MAIDEN ISLES, off the south eastern coast of MENISCEA.

OMMINA: Set. Coastal settlement in the south east of KEPHUAAN, overlooking the BAY OF COMMARA^(1.) (Pop. c. 8, 000).

OMMOQHUZH: Geo. Mountain-range in the c south west of NOAVATUR, forming part of the ridge that defines the IQUATHA basin.

OMMORM: Set. Settlement in the c of PORPHYR. Over the past decades, it has been fortified and mobilised in preparation for a conflict with the contested lands of UTIMAN (Pop. c. 10,000).

OMMRAIA: Set. City in the c north of AMMESH. It lies along the path of route of the NACRE ROAD trade route. It is home to a large contingent of MARSHALLS⁽²⁾ of the MONSTRANCE OF FEALTY (Pop. c. 41,000).

OMNADJURA: 1. Geo. Badlands region in the c of SARAGOS, notable for the many spherical concretions that can be found there, some of them supported by sandstone pillars.

2. Rui. Ancient ruin in the above region, thought to date back to the FOURTH AGE and possibly earlier. It was once a necropolis, and the mummified remains of mortals as varied as KARKADANNI, EELYOUHNS, AIKLAHS, and VAPULIM, making scholars believe that this was once a stronghold of the DEMIURGE ARIMASPI.

OMNAL GHOST: Sup. Fau. It has been speculated that most GHOST sightings are not in fact ghosts, but rather sightings of an ephemeral creature that is believed to be alien to ELYDEN and native to the dark reaches of the MATERIA OMNA, visiting the MATERIAL PLANE while in search of nourishment. It is thought that this nourishment may be linked somehow to MORTAL emotions – indeed, many sightings of these omnal ghosts happen to people who are experiencing high emotions or emotional stress. Others are simply more sensitive to them, making them easier to spot. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

OMNAMETER: Sup. Obj. Mechanical instrument used to measure the strength of the MATERIA OMNA and the ARCANE TEMPERS in a particular region. It can also show approximately how far one is from the NULLAMBIT.

OMNATITE: Ele. Prized ore that, through ATRAMENTAL or FIRMAMENTAL treatment, can be transmuted into various different metals. The process is time-consuming and expensive, though is coveted for its versatility and nations and cities with access to omnatite reserves are at a great advantage over others, as they are capable of producing any metal their industries may require.

It is incredibly rare and deposits are only known in the north west of $\underline{\text{LLACHATUL}}$ and the north west of $\underline{\text{SAMMAEA}}$, within roughly +/– 10° of the path of the $\underline{\text{NULLAMBIT}}$, including $\underline{\text{RAONGEN}}^{(2)}$, and the $\underline{\text{VESPERTINE}}$ $\underline{\text{LEAGUE}}$, though smaller deposits have also been found elsewhere, including $\underline{\text{THE VORANDINE}}$.

Its shaping is the reserve of trained and master TECHNARCANISTS, whose methods have been handed down through generations, though their methods are rooted in ancient ALCHEMICAL traditions.

OMNER: Set. Coastal settlement in the north of OPHAR, in the north east of the peninsula of GEMOPHAR (Pop. c. 4,400).

OMNISM: Rel. Phil. Religion or Philosophy that accepts all religions and their gods. AHKA is an example of an Omnist state, though individuals who claim to be omnists can be found across FLYDEN.

An interesting development over the past decades is the growth of a so-called OMNIST MOVEMENT, centred in ANAKARRA, that not only accepts belief in all faiths and deities but whose members actively worship a grand pantheon of all known and unknown deities and pantheons from across Elyden, including dead religions and potential deities that may yet be unknown or as-yet unworshipped. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

OMNIST MOVEMENT, the: Rel. Nascent cult that emerged in c. 3975 RM in the city of ANAKARRA in VAALK. Its members follow an extreme form of OMNISM, not only accepting belief in all faiths and deities, but actively worshipping a grand pantheon of all known and unknown deities and pantheons from across ELYDEN, including dead religions and potential deities that may yet be unknown or as-yet unworshipped.

Members of the movement keep a low profile due to the threat of persecution from the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO, though they are quick to speak of their tenets and beliefs to those who they believe to be accepting. They are thought to have a sizeable presence in the city of Kanesh, from where they have spread their beliefs to other lands through the movements of merchants and travellers.

The movement has no known leader, and rather than having a centralised leadership it is thought to have multiple chapters in different cities, which operate autonomously. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

OMNITHEIR: Rnk. A confessor-caste in the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE within KORACHANI-occupied LAASKHA and VAALK. They ritualistically paint their hands red to symbolize the sinful blood of those who seek their guidance, a tradition carried on from the ORDER OF THE BLOODY HAND.

OMONJA: Sea. Bay in the south east of PERGOST, forming the south eastern part of the AMAARI WATERS. It is known for its deep caverns and has been a spot for deep divers for centuries.

OMRBAS: Geo. Large rocky tableaux, around 160-miles long and perhaps 50-miles wide at its widest part, forming a border between the nations of TAAN AN and HABOT in the south west of SAMMAEA. The region is shunned by most intelligent life and is known for the strange resin like substance that coats much of the land there. Fauna of all sizes are attracted to the sickly smell of the stuff, though die in its thrall, bringing vermin and insects, which feast on the rotting bodies. The area's location along the border between the two nations is no coincidence – few are those who willingly walk the lands known as Omrbas.

The few explorers to brave the region tell of a 100-ft tall undecipherable carving hewn into the western side of the mesa, close to the eastern border of Taan An, though the rock in which the carving has been made is also soft, exuding a blood-like sap that have caused some scholars to question the nature of the monument and suggest it may be living, in a way.

ON NAR NYADA: Set. Small city in the c west of PORPHYR, along the southern coast of lake FARAS (Pop. c. 15,000).

ON POUR: 1. Region in the west of RAONGEN⁽²⁾ situated between the WHITE SHEET in the north, the TWILIGHT STATES in the west and THE VORANDINE in the south. Its people are known for their gigantism, with men typically growing to 6'6" tall and women reaching 6'. This bloodline claims to trace its roots to a noble household that once occupied the region in the early FIFTH AGE, though there is little concrete evidence to support this.

2. Mil. Str. Series of bastions in the boreal forest of GONLEA in the west of RAONGEN⁽²⁾, just south of the northern POLAR CIRCLE, guarding its territories from THE VORANDINE in the south and the TWILIGHT STATES in the west.

ONA: Set. Small coastal city in the north east of Khitai, just south of the ROTHOB Mountains (Pop. c. 16,000).

ONADAL: Set. Settlement in the c of IZABAL^(1.). It is a major course of iron to the nation (Pop. c. 8,800).

ONAEL: Geo. Region in the south west of ETUL in MENISCEA, bordering the Wastes of VERMES. It is a major source of gold in the region, and is home to many gold mines.

ONAGATH: Set. Major fortified city in the far south of OTINTH. Like most Otinthian settlements, little is known of it due to the nations' insular nature. It is thought to have once been a coastal city, though is now landlocked (Pop. c. 175,000).

ONAGOG: Nou. 'Onagogear'. Plr. 'onagogin'. Sup. Org. Mil. Rnk. A particular order of SHAPERS in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, whose MINASTERIA⁽²⁾ has been based in the city of MALICHARICHAN in PELASGOS since 1233 RM.

Its members are Atramental shapers who are almost exclusively drawn from the ranks of Korachani Patricians, in a tradition dating back to the dawn of the empire where most Patrician Houses sent their third child to either study theology or shaping. Those who became shapers would ritually starve themselves as part of their training as a form of penance for not choosing to become men of the cloth. This was a risky activity given the amount of energy that shaping typically consumes. Over years of fasting, they would acclimate their bodies to the demands of shaping, making them capable of acts that would exhaust other shapers. By c. 500 RM these Patrician-shapers had become close the Church of the Undying Machine and would conduct rites of fasting and officiate other festivities in settlements across the empire.

Unlike most other orders of Korachani shapers, the Onagogin do not specialise in a specific SPHERE of shaping and are considered to be generalists – with individuals showing aptitude in various spheres. They are stationed across the empire in communities ranging in size from small villages to individual districts of large cities, where they serve in a role that encompasses various aspects of healer, protector, templar, counsellor, and occasionally even ruler. Onagogin may become respected members of their appointed societies, and though some use this position as a stepping stone to greater political targets, many take a liking to their adoptive homes, spending their lives there, effectively forsaking their noble roots.

They are often compared and contrasted with OCCULTISTS, which fulfil a similar if non-official role amongst the lower classes of cities and the two often clash ideologically. See Vol IV: Spheres and types of Shaping.

ONAGUR: Set. City in the c of the tribe of GOROR in the south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is known for its leaning minaret, which dates back to c. 3100 RM (Pop. c. 11,500).

ONAIOR: expansive rubbish dump to the south east of the city of TEIRA in the south east of VENTHIR. It is large, and towers over the adjacent slums, whose forlorn residents spend their days trawling through the dump, searching for anything of worth that is sold back to the city in its expansive southern market.

 $\underline{ONALL}\!:$ Lake in the c south of $\underline{V\^{A}RR}$ along the course of the river $\underline{ICHORIA}.$

ONAN: Set. Fortified settlement in the region of DACHRANU in the north east of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 5,800).

ONANTH: Geo. Rugged hills in the south of AHKA. They are sparsely wooded and have many ruins, thought to date back to the FOURTH AGE.

ONAR: Rvr. River in the north of Virahan, flowing south for 350-miles from sources in the SALKHAN MASSIF and the DUIAHRI Mountains, before meeting its parent, the river SARA.

ONARCH: Pol. Ruling title in TZALLRACH. There is one Onarch for each of the four states of Tzallrach, elected from all DIARCHS within the state and approved by the ANARCH. Upon election the Onarch rules for seven years, and may be eligible for another term, though it is rare for an Onarch to be elected to two consecutive terms, and it is usually a sign of great faith in them when they are.

ONARCHY: Pol. Geo. Subdivision of TZALLRACHI territories. There are four Onarchies, each of which is ruled by an ONARCH. The four Onarchies are – MOETIA^(1.) in the west, NADAIRA^(2.) in the east, KHUN^(2.) in the north, and LURIUM^(2.) in the south.

ONASAWEL: Set. Settlement in the south east of CUTH, on the eastern face of the peninsula of HAMMINGHENG. It is a major producer of EMBALMING resins in the region (Pop. c. 13,000).

ONAST: His. Sea. Now-extinct sea, once forming the western-most reaches of the SEA OF ASDU The sea dried following the dwindling of ELYDEN'S coastlines and is now a dry coastal valley dominating the east of SYNCHTHONITHA, to the east of the TALENTARI Mountains.

The region is covered in salt (some of which is collected by the people of TORGOT) and ancient water-worn soapstone ruins that were once submerged.

ONATARYA: Set. Major city in the c north of EREBETH (Pop. c. 150,000).

ONATHANAT: Rel. Str. Graveyard just outside the city of KHADON in KORACHAN dedicated to the burial of children and babies. Birth and child mortality rates are high in KORACHAN, and those with the means have the deceased children made up and encased in resin blocks that preserved them in family mausolea, where they can remain beautiful forever. Many of the plots belong to PATRICIAN HOUSES, and the cemetery is well-guarded at all hours by privately-funded guards.

ONATHIT: Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of SATAR, in the far north of MULCIBER, in the east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS. It is situated close to the border with AUEREN, and is suitably fortified, its populace trained in defence and ready to be conscripted as a citizen levy (Pop. c. 160,000).

ONCETHMUS: Geo. Rough hills in the north of KARGAMA. Early in the FIFTH AGE BRIMSTONE deposits were found there by various ELITAGRI cities. This brought great wealth and spurred industry in the area, and by c. -400 RM the cities of DROM, KIVAR, and PLYSIANE (1.) had become rich from mining and selling brimstone across the SEA OF ORRIDA.

The deposits were exploited for close to a millennium and were largely exhausted by c. 1100 RM, leaving the northern foothills of the region a wasteland of disused quarries and mines, some of which smoke with sulfuric gases to this day, making large swathes of the Oncethmus uninhabitable.

ONDAR: Set. Major coastal city in the south east of GRAMMATER, in the south east of SAMMAEA, inside the southern POLAR CIRCLE. The city is renowned for its high black walls that fend off the harsh weather and raging seas of the SAMMAIDU (Pop. c. 80,000).

ONE AND MANY, the: Myt. His. Common epithet by which the DEMIURGE IALDABAOTH was once known.

ONE SOUL, the: Phil. Rel. Philosophical belief prevalent across the island of BRSEA(1.), whose adherents believe that the SPIRITS(1.) of all sapient creatures, are descended form a single ur-spirit, which has divided into smaller fractions to fill the vessels of all MORTAL peoples as they bore offspring. This has caused every consecutive generation of mortals to be farther from their divine roots as the one preceding it, and there is nothing that can be done to reverse this.

Combined, the souls of all sapient creatures that have ever lived on ELYDEN equates one soul – which is a match for the spirit of elyden. Believers of the One Soul claim that Elyden's slow death is a natural way to balance the slow diminishing of the One Soul.

ONEIRA: Set. Dre. City in the c east of GNOTH, known for its ONEIROMANCERS. The city and its environs are situated close to an unattributed DREAMSCAPE and it is known for its caste of DREAMSINGERS who dwell in the MATERIAL and dream realms. Though it forms a part of the GNOTHI ROAD it remains largely insular (Pop. c. 38,000).

ONEIRACHAN: 1. Also 'the Dream City'. Int. Set. Dre. Metropolis in the region of HALDATA in the east of the UMBRA SOKHAR. The city is renowned across the INNER SEA as a fantastical place, where MORTALS of all cultures and creeds mingle like nowhere else in the MATERIAL PLANE, only it does not exist in a physical sense. The city exists only in the Dreamworld, commonly believed to be the Dreams of a cyclopean being, possibly a SCION, known only as THE SLEEPER, whose body lies in state deep beneath the surface of the small material settlement.

Whatever the origins of this being, its dreams leak onto the Material Plane in a manner unique to itself. Where the dreams and nightmares of DEMIURGES physically manifest in the Material Plane, corrupting it, the dreams of this being remain intangible, yet with the unique effect that they can be collectively experienced by Oneiromancers anywhere in ELYDEN, and by other mortals who are close-enough to the settlement situated above the body of The Sleeper.

ONEIROMANCERS across Elyden can sense and 'travel' to Oneirachan, which is known as the True City to many, to differentiate it from the physical settlement that exists to cater to those who wish to visit Oneirachan but who are not oneiromancers.

The city is gigantic, considered near-endless by those who have explored it at length, and though its street plan is the same to all who travel there, details and appearances of its individual buildings can vary greatly between individuals, or even to the same person experiencing the same area at different times. (Pop. unknown).

2. Set. The MATERIAL PLANE settlement above the body of THE SLEEPER is a bustling caravanserai that caters to mortals wishing to experience the true city of ONEIRACHAN, who would otherwise be unable to who visit it. There are dreaming dens, where individuals are put into a deep sleep so that they can travel to the true city. Some opt for intravenous feeding so that they can remain in the true city without ever having to wake. Others prefer to travel there under the guidance of an oneiromancer, who puts them to sleep and serves as a guide in the true city.

The material city is wealthy from its business of dream tourism, and employs a powerful military that patrols the lands directly surrounding it, keeping them clear of those who would try to visit the true city without first entering the material city.

The Sleeper is considered a god amongst the people of Oneirachan, and it is protected from mortal attention, and has a dedicated and devout following amongst those who call city home (Pop. c. 40,000).

ONEIRAL GLAND: Int. Med. Sup. Dre. A small berry-shaped gland at the base of the neck found in all the mortal peoples. It existed for most of the FIFTH AGE without MORTALS truly understanding its function, other than it being related to sleep patterns and DREAMS, though in 3972 RM the PELASGOSI physician EODON LASCARIS made a breakthrough, finally linking it to ONEIROMANCY and mortalkinds' ability to shape dreams. Prior to this discovery it was known as the FARAMON'S NODE, after the ancient physician who first studied it almost two millennia earlier.

Research into its exact function is ongoing, but people with similar sized oneiral glands are thought to have similar talents with regards to Oneiromancy. Some LOCUMNI have tried extracting, enhancing and implanting the altered oneiral glands into subjects to enhance or change the way they interact with dreams. An overactive oneiral gland is believed by some to be the cause of ONEIRIA.

The discovery of the oneiral gland has made some scholars postulate whether there are similar organs that dictate how mortals interact with the Atramenta and/or the Firmament.

ONEIRARCH: also 'Oneiromancer'. Sup. Pol. Rnk. Dre. An order of SHAPERS in the PARTHISAN EMPIRE, whose governing body is the OCCULTARIUM, which is situated in the city of TETHRA. Members of the order specialise in the reading, planting and manipulating of DREAMS and are analogous to the SOMNIARIIN of the KORACHANI EMPIRE.

They are amongst the more esoteric of shapers within Parthis, and though they are not the backbone of industry that other shapers might be, they can still be found working in various places. They are most often found living as OCCULTISTS, where they offer their mystical services – dream interpretation, planting, and altering – to those willing to pay.

They are often used in interrogations, tapping into the subjects' subconscious to retrieve information, or planting sensitive information that remains inaccessible to the subject, but easily retrieved by other Oneirarchs. They are also used in these organisations as a means of non-intrusive torture, implanting a prisoner of suspect with horrific nightmares to terrorise them.

Some of them can find work as street-level fringe physicians, where they can help rid people of nightmares and visions, while others go into business selling their services in DREAM DENS – places where people go to unlock their dreams, and experience them in vivid detail. Others use their skills on themselves, using the experiences to fuel their art or writing.

ONEIRIA: Dre. Med. Debilitating ONEIRIC illness that can affect most MORTALS (with the exception of the IMMORTALS (2.1), leaving sufferers crippled by near constant dreams, often of a disturbing or horrific nature. No explicit cause for this condition has been found, though some speculate that sufferers may have unchecked latent ONEIROMANTIC abilities or may be privy to the dreams and thoughts of lambent DEMIURGES and their SCIONS.

In severe cases sufferers become unable to distinguish dreams from reality, with visions that overtake their waking moments. These severe instances are treated by a procedure similar to a lobotomy, that cripples the ONEIRAL GLAND, that leaves the sufferer bereft of the ability to dream, which leaves them somewhat hollow next to other mortals. See Vol II: Diseases and Illnesses.

ONEIRIC: see DREAMS.

ONEIRIC CREATURE: see ONEIROI.

ONEIRIC SCOURGE, the: Int. His. Dre. Phen. A historical period of great uncertainty and calamity that took place in central VÂRR beginning in c. 1300 RM, and culminating in 1305 RM, during which large expanses of DREAMSCAPES appeared in the VÂRRAN PLAINS, expanding rapidly to engulf settlements and natural lands alike.

The SOMNIARECHI ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION was sent to investigate cases of spontaneous dreamscape appearing to the east of the LAMEDUAN Badlands, and agents rapidly learnt that the appearances were connected, leading to a concerted effort at stymying their growth. The Order spent decades fighting these malignant dreamscapes, many of which had appeared on or close to major cities, including the city of IBEDIA, which had to be abandoned. Its SOMNIARIIN worked in groups to suppress these dreamscapes and, if possible, destroy them altogether. Others stalked the Badlands, hunting rogue ONEIROI that had emerged from the new dreamscapes.

The effects of the Scourge were felt for centuries after the intervention of the Order, and dozens of cities were either abandoned or outright destroyed by the unfolding events. Though the Order managed to decrease the severity and number of dreamscape activity, small outbreaks remained common. As a result, the Order established the outpost of ACTANDRAS, which is still manned to this day despite Vârr no longer being a part of the empire.

Over the years the Order realised that ROPOHAII sightings in the region had also increased. Rarely seen above the surface, these new sightings were cause for concern, leading some within the Order to believe that the Scourge was linked to activity within the PRISON CARCERI. The Order began sending agents into Carceri to monitor activity there, finding subterranean dreamscapes far worse than anything they had encountered above ground.

Their explorations of Carceri were ultimately responsible for revealing many new chambers and tunnels, which in turn led to the creation of new maps that were far more accurate than any previous ones.

ONEIRODYNIC EMPRESS, the: f. Sup. Dre. Per. (B. unknown) Ruler of TAES, since its founding in 3675 RM. She is a timeless SCIONIC CREATURE of unknown origins, whose talents at ONEIROMANCY are unrivalled, specifically within the SPHERE of sowing NIGHTMARES.

Though she appears as a normal child of eight years, her eyes bely a wisdom and age that few in her land dare ponder openly. She is ruthless and of an otherworldly circumspection, and is an unrivalled strategist and planner, and she stands over Taes with an iron grip that none have questioned since her rise to power.

She rules from the blasted marsh-like DREAMSCAPE of CODUS CEVIR, where she is the only known mortal – all her servants and slaves are ONEIROI of her own manifestation, who guard her realm ferociously. She interacts with mortal advisors and administrators in the administrative capital of SWEVEN without the region of Codus Cevir via oneiromancy, and never physically leaves her realm, though she can manifest in the dreams on anyone within Taes and beyond.

ONEIROI: also 'Nightmare Creature' and 'Oneiric Creature'. *Sup. Dre. Fau.*Unnatural fauna made manifest in DREAMSCAPES or produced by potent acts of ONEIROMACHY both intentional or otherwise. Such creatures are unique and defy any attempted method of categorisation and often possess qualities that mortal minds just cannot comprehend (it is quite common for those who sight such creatures to be shaken by the experience at best.

They are endemic to the specific dreamscape that created them and rarely survive for long far from it, becoming weaker the farther they move from them. It is thought that they have an innate sense of direction, rarely straying from their home unless forced to. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life: Racharin.

ONEIROMACHY: also 'dreamwarrior'. Sup. Dre. Rnk. In the SPHERE of ONEIROMANCY, the specific ability to alter or even plant DREAMS into another individual. Based on the skill of the SHAPER, this may be a willing or unwilling party, at an arbitrary distance. Such Oneiromancers make use of the DREAMWORLD – a mystical collective space that links the dreams of all individuals – and infiltrate the dreams of others, where their attacks can cause severe mental and physical damage to specific dreamers. The equivalent in the KORACHANI EMPIRE would be a SOMNIAREAR.

ONEIROMANCER: Sup. Dre. Rnk. A SHAPER who practices ONEIROMANCY. The term oneiromancer is generic, and different cultures have different names shapers who interact with DREAMS. For instance, in the KORACHANI EMPIRE they are the SOMNIARIIN, in PARTHIS they are ONEIRARCHS, and in the east of LLACHATUL they are known as TULPA.

ONEIROMANCY: Sup. Dre. Rnk. Amongst the most widespread SPHERE of SHAPING within both ATRAMENTISM and FIRMAMENTISM across all of ELYDEN, with abilities related to DREAMS that vary across a wide range of specialities, including the ability to read dreams, plant dreams, alter dreams, interpret dreams, as well as locate and navigate in DREAMSCAPES and, more rarely, the ability to alter dreamscapes and conjure NIGHTMARE CREATURES and banish them. Oneiromancers are a vital part of expeditions into dreamscapes, and serve as navigators to such parties.

Many young oneiromancers begin their training by $\underline{\text{LUCID DREAMING}}$ – a skill that laypersons can acquire through practice. This is of great help to their eventual foray into shaping dreams.

They are known as $\underline{SOMNIARIIN}$ in the $\underline{KORACHANI\ EMPIRE}.$ See Vol IV: Spheres and types of Shaping.

ONEIROMECHANA: also 'dream engine'. Sup. Dre. Med. Tec. A form of HEART ENGINE in which an ONEIROMANCER is interred. The engine is used to amplify the abilities of the SHAPER, to help achieve results that would otherwise be unattainable or too dangerous to attempt. They are commonly used as a form of communal dreaming engine, where multiple people can connect to it at the same time (often through the use of OCCLUSIONS) to experience the dreams and visions of the oneiromancer interred within the engine.

ONEIRONAUT: Sup. Rnk. A person, commonly an ONEIROMANCER, who navigates DREAMS – whether their own or those of others.

ONEIROPHAGE: also 'Eater of Dreams'. Sup. Dre. Rnk. A form of ONEIROMANCER that cleanses people and places of the taint of DREAMSCAPES and other ONEIROMANTIC influences. They are largely unheard of in urban regions, and mostly found in tribal cultures, most commonly the north of SAMMAEA, particularly PARAIYA and BA'AKH, where they become temporarily tainted by the forces they have exorcised.

ONEIROSPHERE: see DREAMWORLD, THE.

ONEIROTOPIA: see DREAM DEN.

ONELI: Set. City in the east of LIMOTH^(1.). In c. 1322 RM it became an ally of TODRRA, becoming a founding part of the GHAZHARID AUTOCRACY, alongside XAGADRRA. The city was later absorbed by an expanding Limoth in c. 1815 RM, which appropriated most western territories of the PANTHEON ISLES that were abandoned following the fall of the Ghazharid Autocracy.

Today it is a thriving river port and a major cultural hub in the east of Limoth (Pop. c. 54,000).

ONEMMA: Set. Small fortified city in the east of KEPHUAAN. It is home to a major college of free thinking and rhetoric, where many future members in the COUNCIL OF MERIT study. The city stands on a rocky protrusion close to lake RAMISA and its environs are considered idyllic, and are akin to a monastery, where silence and art are cultivated and freedom of expression is encouraged (Pop. c. 11,500).

ONENAHMARA: Set. Small city in the north west of NOAVATUR. It is the nation's north western-most city, and is located high on cliffs spanning river SHIID (Pop. c. 18,000).

ONES: Rel. Str. LACHRYMIST monastery in the c south west of THE SURRACH, on the south western face of the MISHANOS Mountains.

ONÉSIMUS: Sup. Rnk. Post-nominal title given to FIRMAMENTISTS in many lands east of the KORACHANI EMPIRE in the east of CENTRAL LLACHATUL and EASTERN LLACHATUL. In many cases it replaces the surname or secondary name completely, symbolising the SHAPERS' total devotion to the art. Its use is uncommon today, though is recognised by shapers, particularly in KHAMID, MALAN, SAUA, TEMUJA, though not unheard of in TETHYSIA. It is bestowed upon shapers who have completed a certain degree of training, and who are considered to be experienced shapers who have completed a form of trial based on their chosen SPHERE.

ONÉSIMUS—PRELATE: Sup. Rnk. Highest rank amongst FIRMAMENTISTS in the free lands east of the KORACHANI EMPIRE, though much like the lower rank of ONÉSIMUS, it carried little weight today, even in the nations where it is recognised, as there are few Firmamental SHAPERS today who acknowledge the authority of the MINARET OF LIGHT. Most shapers disregard the edicts of the Minaret, from which the Onésimus-prelate holds council, and few are those who pay open respect to them. The Onésimus-prelate is the highest form of authority amongst shapers, unless the existence of an AVATAR OF LIGHT or SENTINEL is proven in any given time, in which case it is deferred to the later, in the absence of the former.

The current Onésimus-prelate is ARANTUDUR FARAUT.

ONFAR: Geo. Small mountain, some 70-miles long in the south east of VÂRR that separate the SOLUM plains in the north east from the barren lands (GHALLETHA) in the south.

Even before the coming of the KORACHANI EMPIRE to the region, the shelf-like hills at the base of this mountain had been worked by human hands, their ores taken long ago by ancient craftsmen.

ONGHUR: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the far north of CYHLAGHARR. It is a centre of slave exchanges and is known for its large temple dedicated to ISHATA, which is revered by many slavers and pirates passing through.

ONGONG: Set. Coastal settlement in the north west of CUTH. It is a major producer of jute and jute rope (Pop. c. 11,800).

ONIA: Ind. Geo. One of the larger open-caste mines in the south west of LAMEDUA, in VÂRR. It was declared spent in 2932 RM, though was reopened by the following the departure of the INTERREGES in 3791 RM.

ONIAN: Lake in the c of the island of IRUGNA^(1.), forming part of the course of the river MAIASHAR.

ONICAR: Set. City in the c south of the tribe of OURANASSA, in the far south west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, along the course of the river ADYRIR (Pop. c. 32,000).

ONIEL: Milk. Str. Major fortress in the south east of GNOTH, along the course of river ACHAMOTH guarding its eastern territories.

ONILA: Rvr. Lake in the c north east of KEPHUAAN, along the course of the river SHAYANDI. The rivers banks swell throughout late winter and early spring, causing the lake to double or triple in size.

ONILLAN: 1. Geo. Valley in the c north east of ELALLIA.

2. Rui. Str. Ancient dam crossing the above valley^(1.) in the north east of ELALLIA. It lies in a decrepit condition today, the river that once flowed across it long-since dried up. The architecture carries the style of FOURTH AGE DVERG, though little else is known of it.

ONILLUSA: Set eastern-most major city of the CEHOPHELAN empire, west of IMEAL. The city is heavily militarised, with some of the empire's largest armies assembled there against the threat of Imealan invasion (Pop. c. 405,000).

ONNAS: Lak. Lake in the south east of SKAROS, between the plains of ROTHAROS and the ANOMAFERROH region. It's known for its brown and red waters – a result of oxidised iron ore along its banks seeping into the water, rendering it toxic and sterile.

ONNEGR: Rvr. River in the c west of CYHLAGHARR, flowing west for 250-miles from sources in the GRCAUTHAIRM massif, before emptying in the ANGRNN SOUND.

ONNOR AAI: Mil. Str. Major military stronghold in the east of ELEKHID, located on the island of BER, in the delta of the river NUBBIOR. It guards entry into the BAY OF ENEPH.

ONNURR: Set. Fortified coastal settlement in the west of CYHLAGHARR, overlooking the SEA OF IMERRIL. It is known for its deep vaulted harbours (Pop. c. 18,000).

ONOCHIM: lit. 'caste that looks', also 'monitor'. Soc. Med. Tec. Rnk. A breed of TECHNACHI utilised in TECHNARCANELY-advanced nations (most notably around the INNER SEA), who can see the motions and movements of living creatures in the vicinity through the MATERIA OMNA.

They are largely automatons, with little will of their own, though a few specifically-crafted individuals might maintain their intellect and individuality to act as leaders to their lesser.

They can be tailored for specific uses, such as searching for specific peoples, creatures, conditions etc. and are often used to hunt and identify fugitives, particularly SHAPERS, where they are employed in great numbers by the SANCTIFIED ORDERS OF THE INQUISITION. More sophisticated versions, known as ONOCHREDEN, are employed by the armies of the KORACHANI EMPIRE.

ONOCHREDEN: Mil. Sup. Rnk. ATRAMENTALLY-augmented scouts employed by various military institutions within the KORACHANI EMPIRE. Similar to the less sophisticated ONOCHIM, they are typically WOMBBORN MORTALS who are augmented to possess better endurance and agility, and to require less food and sleep than normal mortals.

ONODA: 1. Lak. Lake in the east of the state of UKOLIST, in LIMOTH^(1.).
Its shores are densely-populated and its southern shore is home NAMITH, the capital of Ukolist.

2. Rvr. small river in the east of the state of UKOLIST, in LIMOTH^(1.), linking the eponymous lake^(1.) to the coast. It is relatively short, no more than 20-miles long, and is wide, and well-dredged to make safe passage for the many ships that travel to and from the city of NAMITH.

ONOGOTHONT: Rui. Gigantic ancient ELLORAN temple in the c north west of KARAKHAS, dating to the FOURTH AGE. It is hewn from the pink/brown granite of the region. It is the largest remnant of such temple architecture and is known for its free-standing tiered complexes, many of which are connected by hewn walkways. Much of the complex extends to similarly-hewn tunnels and caverns that stretch for miles, and also included priests' quarters. Over the years it grew into the centre of a now-disappeared metropolis of some 200,000 people.

At some point during its latter years, workers are thought to have hit a natural cavern, thought to be an isolated Atramentally Tainted portion of the PRISON CARCERI. Within months the city was abandoned and the temple complex deserted, its lower levels filled with an un-decaying flesh caking the floors. Whatever depopulated the city is believed to be responsible for the decay of the Elloran culture, which was ruined by the dawn of the FIFTH AGE.

ONOLUE: Set. Major coastal city in the north of the HENDECARCHY of CYRENIA in the north west of MALAN (Pop. c. 280,000).

ONOMA BANT: Set. Major city in the nation of BANT, in the c of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA (1.), in the east of SAMMAEA, along the western shore of lake ABET. It was the capital of the nation of Carchemish (3.) for some time, until the fracturing of the nation in two in 1305 RM following chaos caused by the UPHEAVAL OF LETHEA. Onoma Bant suffered after this, as instability gripped the region leading to its fragmentation over the following years and the creation of two new nations — Bant in the west and KULIGALA in the east — which each adopted a new cultural centre as its capital.

This left Onoma Bant as an independent city, its territories growing to encompass the lands surrounding the river ILLASRAAH by its peak in 2100 RM, though it was later reabsorbed by Bant in 2208 RM (Pop. c. 110,500).

ONOMATATH: Geo. Grass and scrubland in the c of GNOTH.

ONORESH: also 'the Black God'. Rel. Dei. Deity commonly worshipped in the north east of BROR⁽¹⁾, amongst the people of KASHAAL, RASTAN and AKHELIZ. Onoresh is usually depicted as a human-sized statue of black skin and featureless face, and is bedecked in elaborate silk, gold and alabaster garb.

The religion is very insular and little details have been revealed to outsiders, particularly those of foreign lands, though it is believed to have appeared as a major religion in the wake of failed colonisation attempts of the region by foreigners from the 'FAR WORLD' that took place between 1930 – 2000 RM. The concept of a black-skinned entity with gold and white trappings predates this time by many centuries, however. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

ONORIA: Rel. Str. LACHRYMIST monastery in the c north east of THE SURRACH, 65-miles south east of the city of ZAFFRE.

ONORIEL: Geo. Plains in the south of MEHITIEL that was the site of a massacre in 3788 RM. Though today the plains are some distance from the sea, at the time of the massacre they were a beach, and two ships fired upon a royal wedding, slaughtering the ritual and throwing the regions' government into chaos for the following decades.

ONORTI: Set. City in the c of ALMAGEST known for its UMBRA production (Pop. c. 520,000).

ONOTARA: Ind. Set. Mining city in the north of TAMAR. The city is fortified and controls many smaller satellite settlements, each of which is in control of a mine. The region is replete with silver and various colours of granite, the exploitation of which has only recently begun, pushing the borders of Tamar as much as 50-miles north (Pop. c. 34,400).

ONQEEYAN: Set. Major coastal city in the east of ARERAQTH, south of the YULIAN^(1.) Mountains overlooking the BAY OF LDUN (Pop. c. 400.000).

ONTH: Set. Coastal settlement in the north of BA'AKH. The settlement was settled by refugees from the deserted city of ZADAK in c. 3395 RM (Pop. c. 5,100).

ONTORA: Set. Coastal settlement in the far north of SABAISA. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 4,000).

ONUATH: Set. City in the c of LIMOTH⁽¹⁾, to the south of the river ATROTHA⁽¹⁾. Like many cities in the region, it receives a large influx of people late in Summer, as farmers and other agriculturalists from around the river Atrotha move south to escape the flooding of the VOTH Valley. They spend the Autumn there before returning north.

The city was once a major source of iron in the days of the early years of Limothan culture in c. 1500 RM, though were spent by c. 1700 RM (Pop. c. 29,000).

ONYCH: Cur. Currency in the PORPHYR, using decimal units and polygonal coins with 8, 10, and 12 edges. It originated in c. 1800 RM and over the coming centuries became a major currency, eventually ousting others in the PORPHYRI PENINSULA until, by c. 2100 RM, when it was the only major currency in use there. See Vol II: Currency and Coinage in Elvden.

ONYX BADLANDS, the: Geo. Badlands region in the south east of ISESETH.

ONYX CONCLAVE: Pol. Government of KULIGALA, named after the onyx gems the region is renowned for.

ONYX STAIRS, the: Int. Str. Rui. Ancient monolithic staircase hewn out of the eastern face of the VHUZUNGI Mountains in the north of ALAM BETHYL. The stairs are around 35-miles long though large stretches are ruined, and it is thought that the stairs once stretched farther than the present can tell. Their source is unknown, but it is unlikely to have been made by HUMAN hands.

OPAD'S VIPER: Fau. Small snake native to the south east of EASTERN LLACHATUL, primarily living in isolated parts of LIMOTH, TETHYSIA, THETIS, and the mainland regions of the PANTHEON ISLES.

It is noted for its venom which serves it in both defence and offence. It contains a potent analgesic that paralyses its prey, allowing the snake to devour them with ease. However, the venom affects mortals differently, inducing a short coma that is accompanied by extremely powerful and vivid oneiric hallucinations that can, at times, feel like they persist for years, where in truth they typically only last a matter of hours. The nature of these hallucinations differ with each administration, even with venom form the same viper on the same individual – a trait that has not been fully explained. The hallucinations can be euphoric or despairing and once lucid those who have been affected by them describe them as being so lifelike as to have no recollection of what memories are true or merely a result of the venom.

Opad's vipers are milked on an industrial scale and the venom is synthesised into a recreational drug known as SEQUI that is sold at great profit in the region. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

OPAKUA: Set. Settlement in the c of OPHAR. Its main industry is the mining of feldspar, which is one of its main exports (Pop. c. 6,200).

OPARA: Set. Fortified city in the north west of OPHAR. The city, like many in Ophar, trains its citizens so they can fight as a federal levy in times of war (Pop. c. 35,000).

OPEIANNA: Set. Small coastal city in the far north west of TZALLRACH (Pop. c. 15,000).

OPEODRA: Set. City in the far south of OPHIUSSA. Its harbour exports OPHIR^(3.) (Pop. c. 37,000).

OPEROSA: Set. Fortified settlement in the c north of the region of DAYLAM in the west of THE SURRACH. It is known for its large stepwell which was once a centre of pilgrimage to an ancient caste of wanderers (Pop. c. 7.400).

OPHAKIS: Set. Major city in the south west of BROR^(1,), along the periphery of the VASTAS forest. It lies near the mouth of the river TUROR and is known for its small coastal fishing ships (Pop. c.170,000).

OPHAKR: Rvr. River flowing north east for 592-miles from sources in the north east of the NGHALLEAL Mountains before meeting its parent, the river OPHRA. It forms part of the border between the south east of CYHLAGHARR and the far west of OPHAR.

The river is dominated by the Atramental region of $\underline{\text{HACHA NUR}}$, which covers about 115-miles of its course, ending 110-miles upstream from its meeting with the river $\underline{\text{OPHRA}}$. The appearance of this area in 1178 RM rendered the river lifeless and left many of the settlements that once thrived on its banks deserted and ruined. This taint continues downstream after the convergence with the river Ophra, all the way to its delta in the $\underline{\text{GULF OF OPHAR}}^{(1)}$.

OPHAM: his. Ntn. Ancient city-state in south of the Camarinal Sea. See Kingdom of Opham, and Territories of Opham.

OPHAMI: Lan. Language spoken in OPHAR, with roots in the ancient citystate of OPHAM. It emerged from the early FIFTH AGE language of SOTHAN. See Vol II: Languages.

OPHAR: Dem. 'Ophar'. 1. Sea. Gulf of water, forming the south western-most part of the CAMARINAL SEA, to the west of Ophar⁽²⁾. It is around 350-miles long and 60-miles wide at its widest part, separating the nations of CYHLAGHARR and OPHAR. Its waters are relatively deep and haven't changed much in the millennia, despite ELYDEN'S slowly retreating waters.

2. Nm. Small nation in the north of SAMMAEA, south of the CAMARINAL SEA. It is situated in what was historically a politically unstable region, with the belligerent OGHUR kingdom of CYHLAGHARR to the north west, the TARAHID ANNEXES to the east, and the waning state of TRAKIA to the south. It is dominated by scrubland, plains and sparse woodlands, collectively known as OPRET^(1.), with the terrain turning into badlands in the south, and mountains in the north east.

Its history is tumultuous, and for much of the FIFTH AGE, the region was populated by warring and politicking city-states, which used warfare, commerce, and diplomacy to gain the upper hand over their neighbours. Borders changed constantly, and over the millennia the area has gone under various names and guises, including OPHAM, OPHRAM, OPRET, OLNNAD, and many others between.

The single constant through all this political chaos was the CHILD'S ADVENTISM — an ancient religion brought to the region of Opret in 608 RM by an OTHERWORLDER who later became known as the STEWARD. The Child's Adventism prophesied that a child would arise, who on the passing of its 7th year, would unite Opham and all surrounding lands into an enlightened empire, ending wars and bringing prosperity to its people.

As a result, followers of the cult scoured the land for promising children who were elected to emperor. If, by their 8^{th} birthday, the prophecy had not been fulfilled, they were removed, with the next candidate elected in their place, starting the process from scratch.

The cult spread rapidly across the myriad peoples west of the SEA OF BYSSOS, though it only served to divide its people, and for millennia the prophecy remained unfulfilled.

Throughout this time the Steward worked tirelessly to unite the nations and in 3119 RM it was finally successful, and the incumbent child emperor was declared the prophesied ruler. The Steward took the Child into an ancient temple and performed a ritual that imparted its wisdom and knowledge to the Child, leading to its own demise.

The appearance of the true CHILD EMPEROR was a death knell to the old Azosaothi pantheon that until then was still prevalent in the region, and it also managed to attract many of the western-most cities of the TARAHID STATES, which by then had become devout worshippers of the Child's Adventism.

Today the Child's Realm is ruled by a bipartisan government made up of a priestly upper-class and an elected meritocracy who together oversee the mundanities of daily leadership, with the Child Emperor serving as a divine being.

Its people are devout worshippers of the Child's Adventism, and are known across the Inner Sea for their ceramics, glassmaking, and feldspar mines, of which Ophar is ELYDEN'S largest known producer. Every ablebodied member of its population is well-trained to defend their city should the need arise, and its people pride themselves in their devotion to their homes. See Vol III: Extant Nations and Realms.

OPHEA: Set. Small city in the north of LIDEA, in the BAY OF TIRZA⁽¹⁾. The city is a major manufacturer of spices (Pop. c.15,200).

OPHESSA: Set. Settlement in the c of SARASTRO, to the south east of the OTINDHAR Mountains (Pop. c. 5,300).

OPHEIASE DISI: m. Com. Soc. Per. (B. 3863 RM) First generation HALFBLOOD PATERFAMILIA of PATRICIAN HOUSE VIGILIUS and present chair of the IMPERIAL DOMAIN BANK. His OTHERWORLDLY paternal bloodline is unknown, though he has various characteristics and mannerisms that clearly mark him out as non-HUMAN, including a 7-ft. tall lanky frame, near-translucent skin and prominent veins, ebony-black eyes, and distinctive tamarind smell. He is a shrewd businessman, and many believe his bloodline has granted him TELEPATHIC powers, though if this is the case, he has remained silent on the matter, choosing to cultivate an air of mystery about the rumours.

OPHIR: 1. Pol. Duchy of the Haréshki City-kingdom of Syrtis^(1.).

2. Set. Wealthy small city in SYRTIS^(1,). It is located along the route of the GREAT ROAD and is famed for its moneylenders and banks, which over the centuries have brought great wealth to the city and its environs (Pop. c. 15,500).

3. Bev. Fragrant liquor made from grapes, common in $\underline{\text{OPHIUSSA}}.$ See Vol II: Beverages.

OPHIS: Set. City and former capital of OPHIUSSA. The city was once a coastal area though the diminishing waters of the region have left it landlocked, its former harbours converted to workshops and scrap yards (Pop. c. 48.000).

OPHIURA: Set. Settlement in the ANYA region of north western PORPHYR. It is known for its meteore mines (Pop. c. 7,000).

OPHIUSSA: Dem 'Ophiussan'. Ntn. This independent nation is located in the south of WESTERN LLACHATUL just west of the INNER SEA, overlooking the SEA OF SERPENTS. It is known for its rain, created when warm air from the south meets cooler air from the north. It is of a cool temperate climate and its main geographical features are the river MARAGA, which flows south across the entirety of the nation; and the ESATH highlands in the south east.

The regions' history is dominated by the waning of ELYDEN'S seas, which over the past few millennia has left its once thriving BAY OF SNAKES dry, just a part of the greater shallow valley through which flows the river Maraga.

The present incarnation of the nation emerged in 3752 RM when the previous regime, known as the OPHIUSSAN LEAGUE, faltered with the SUNDERING OF THE KORACHANI EMPIRE in 3705 RM. Ophiussa had been in a trade treaty with the larger empire since 3451 RM (following decades of Korachani subjugation between 2044 – 2127 RM), and its economy collapsed as the KORACHANI government fragmented, leaving it in chaos. Various revolutionary groups rose in this period to oppose the autocracy and its disregard of the common people. One of these revolutionary leaders was a SHAPER who would go on to assassinate the present autocrat, assuming control, becoming the SUCCESSOR-KING, who rules to this day.

Though still an autocracy, the present regime is more caring of its people and has ensured its political and economic safety by forging alliances with PARTHIS and ALMAGEST. It also maintains close relations with GNOTH, though the latter is more distant than its other allies.

The nation is renowned for its worship of the SCION ETAMOSIS^(1.), whose fossilised flesh has psychoactive properties that enhance the shaping of ONEIROMANCERS, who are quite common in the region. The scions' gigantic body lies in torpor deep within its own territories, and the faith's main temple is constructed atop the scions' body, which is mined by the priests and consumed as part of its religious rituals. See Vol III: the Nations of Elyden. m

OPHIUSSAN BIT: see BIT, OPHIUSSAN.

OPHIUSSAN LEAGUE: Pol. His. Now extinct political entity that served as the predecessor of present-day OPHIUSSA. It was formalised in 2702 RM with the signing of a treaty ratifying alliances that had existed between the pervasive merchant houses of the city of NALE and many settlements along the river MARAGA as well as fledgeling settlements along the coast.

The League found itself crumbling between 3130 – 3250 RM due to a variety of factors, including the continued change in coastline, opposition by DRAK LON and APHALASS, which by then had formed their own alliance, and the growing decadence of the merchant houses of Nale.

By the time Drak Lon and Aphalass moved against its eastern traderoutes and caravanserais in 3262 RM, many of the cities of the Ophiussan League had already broken away, with many of them declaring their allegiance to Drak Lon. The Ophiussan League offered little defence and lost a third of its settlements and trade-routes. This exacerbated the fracturing of the League, and more cities broke away over the coming decades and it was officially dissolved in 3285 RM, with the culture of Drak Lon eventually encompassing the entire region, which by then was already known to most as simply OPHIUSSA.

OPHIUSUS: also 'the Snake'. Ast. Con. Constellation in the NORTHERN HEMISPHERE. See Vol II: Constellations.

- OPHRA: 1. Rvr. River in the north of SAMMAEA, forming a border between the west of OPHAR, and the south east of CYHLAGHARR. The river flows north for 500-miles from sources in the YGGATHALUR Mountains before emptying into the GULF OF OPHAR⁽¹⁾.
 - 2. f. Myr. His. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, the first daughter and SCION of the DEMIURGE AVRAHAM, who features heavily in the myths of THE PARRIA.

She was the mother of the sorceress EIINA, who was sired with Avraham himself. See Vol IV: Scions, Children of the Gods.

OPHRAM: 1. Also 'the Child's Realm of Ophram'. His. Ntn. Now-extinct nation in the north of SAMMAEA, occupied by present day OPHAR, the INTERURBAN STATES, and parts of south eastern CYHLAGHARR, the west of the TARAHID ANNEXES and western TRAKIA.

Its origins date back to c. 1300 RM as the city of OPHAM. In 1462 RM the city-state of HOLOTHAN, together with OLNNAD, purchased traderights in Opham, weakening the influence of TENTAEL. Soon after this, Olnnad and Holothan divided Ophami trade-routes between themselves and the land was sundered, bringing to an end the Kingdom of Opham. The resultant lands became known as Olnnad and the Child's Realm of Ophram respectively.

While Olnnad would wane over the ensuing centuries, with slave revolts in 2135 RM crippling it, Ophram found itself becoming stronger. In c. 1510 RM the city-state of BAHAL started to diminish, and by 1534 RM Ophrami merchants had become an influential presence there, officially establishing themselves there by 1542 RM, with it becoming a willing vassal by 1552 RM. By 2391 RM Bahali vassalage to Ophram had ended with the city being almost deserted, most of its populace having emigrated to other more central Ophrami lands, as Ophram concentrated on assimilating other surrounding regions.

By c. 2395 RM Ophram had subjugated ROAH, which, alongside Olnnad, ADRUAR, Bahal, NAAL & OGRAD were all united under its banner. In 2417 RM Ophram moved its capital to Naal.

By c. 2400 RM the WHITE LEAGUE took up residence in HOLOTHAN, which was an Ophrami vassal at the time.

Sometime after this the region fragmented, though little is known of the period preceding the rest of the CHILD'S REALM OF OPHAR, which inherited most of its lands in 3119 RM following the coming of the prophesised CHILD EMPEROR.

OPIA: Ind. Set. Lead mines in the north of NAARETH, in the southern-face of the SIRDAIRA Mountains (Pop. c. 8,000).

OPIATE: Dru. Narcotic commonly grown in the lands south-and-east of THE INNER SEA, in the region known as the ARID TRIPTYCH; including NÁRTHEL and the north of ANUBIA, though is also produced in other lands of a similar climate. It was commonly taken amongst PATRICIANS and other noble castes, particularly in ALMAGEST and KETESH as well as many other coastal cities across the Inner Sea. VENTHIR was the heart of opiate production in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, though its fields have mostly died since the fall of the old regime, with NÁRTHEL remaining the main producer in the region today. See Vol II: Drugs and Addictions.

OPINICUS: Fau. Quadrupedal beast, horse-sized, but shorter, with a beaked-head. They are carnivorous and fast, and roam the savannahs of MENISCEA in small familial units (one male, 3 – 6 females + pups). See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

OPOANT: Set. Fortified city in the c south of RHINOCOLOURA, just north of the NOREREAEL Mountains. It is a major military centre, and manufacturer of military equipment (Pop. c. 50,000).

OPOENA: Flo. fruit native to the rich soils of the north east of MULCIBER and the south of SARASTRO (particularly the forests of HADASSALON), northern VENTHIR and specific regions of the south of TZALLRACH, where it is intrusive. The fruit's pulp, when applied to skin, deadens pain. This fact has been utilised for millennia, where barbarians of the GROWING MOUNTAINS apply the pulp to their bodies as a form of warpaint in intricate rituals before battle. A similar practice exists in Tzallrach, though is used to a lesser extent.

OPONIS: 1. Geo. Island off the south western coast of the PARTHISAN colony of NISSA^(1.).

2. Shallows off the south western coast of the $\underline{PARTHISAN}$ colony of $\underline{NISSA}^{(1)}$.

OPONTIS: 1. Set. Fortified settlement in the far south of TARTAK (Pop. c. 5.600).

2. Mil. Str. Fortress in the far south of TARTAK, guarding the UMBRA processing plants of TAURIAK.

OPORAN: 1. Abandoned city in the north west of AZAZEM, in the region of HRIDAN $^{(3)}$.

2. Rui. Old city in the region of HRIDAN(1.) in the east of ALMAGEST, named after an ancient city in the north west of AZAZEM. It is largely collapsed into DUSTSTONE sinkholes and canyons that appeared around it in c. 1850 RM. Parts of its academies now remain, dusty, askew, with much of their riches (which once included many works of art and philosophy from the DEMIURGE RENAISSANCE), long-since plundered.

OPOSTA: Ind. Set. City in the west of PELASGOS in the OSSRAN^(L) peninsula. Its main industry is the manufacturer of SHADOWSTEEL, and the entire city is built around a large foundry (Pop. c. 47,000).

OPQADHRA: Leg. Soc. Culture-hero in GIBEAH, who is said to have driven the NAGAS out of the jungles of Gibeah in c. 2000 RM.

OPRET: see Principality of Opret.

- 1. Geo. Major geographical feature in the nation of OPHAR, made up of dry-temperate plains, scrubland and sparse woodland.
- 2. His. Set. ancient city that emerged in the nation of ERON SOTH between c. 250 500 RM. In 592 RM an agreement, now known as the SEVERANCE TREATY, was signed between the city of Opret and its 'twin' OPHAM, dividing the territories of Eron Soth amongst them, effectively ending Eron Soth. The western-most of these territories were renamed the PRINCIPALITY OF OPRET, of which the eponymous city became capital. The city was destroyed by OGHUR attacks between 729 RM and 941 RM. See Vol III: Extinct States.

- 3. Pol. Set. Present-day city and capital of the nation of OPHAR (Pop. c. 370.000).
- OPMON: Set. Small settlement in the c of LYRIDIA known for its goat herders (Pop. c. 2,200).
- OPUSAS: Set. mall city on the island of USASAAR, in the KORACHANI colony of TAVVADRA, off the north western coast of SAMMAEA. The city is a major source of zircon, and its primary industry is its mining and refining, before being shipped back to the homeland via the harbours of USACHAN (Pop. c. 18,000).
- OPUSCULA: Set. City in the south west of GNOTH, close to the border with TAHALL. It is one of few cities in Gnoth that is open to foreign merchants (the other being SYNCRETIA in the east), and as a result the Gnothi stretch of THE WAY trade-route is largely undertaken by GIGANRI merchants (Pop. c. 23,000).
- OQAM: Set. Coastal city in the north of ARERAQTH, looking out over the narrow BAY OF SUSIATH. It lies just north of the northern POLAR CIRCLE and experiences three full days of light and dark in summer and winter, respectively, every year (Pop. c. 68,000).
- ORA: 1. Sea. Large bay in the north of BA'AKH, measuring some 50-miles wide. The bay is an extension of the larger SEA OF SHADOWS, that marks the eastern-most reaches of THE INNER SEA.
 - 2. Rvr. River flowing north from the SHIBOTHA mountain, emptying in the bay of the same name⁽¹⁾, in the north west of BA'AKH.
 - 3. His. Set. Ancient DHEAN city founded in c. -1200 RM by SVATHI migrants. The settlement was built over the solid foundations of an older ASADEAN city, likely destroyed in the FOURTH AGE WAR OF SCOURGING. As the region grew and the Svathi influences slowly gave way to a melded culture, the city became renowned for its many observatories (most of which were built on the sheer-sided hills beyond the city). As THE TERATHA'S influence increased, the city became home to the HIGH-TEMPLE OF TERATHA in c. -900 RM, which brought further prestige to the Ora. As Dhea began to resemble a true nation, pressure from the aggressive city-state of CONTH to the west of Ora escalated into conflict in c. -900 RM. Though confined to little more than border skirmishes and coastal raids, events coalesced into full war by -813 RM. The Temple of Teratha was sacked and hundreds of people taken west as slaves.

The city faltered after that time, with many people losing faith. The cult of Teratha never regained its following and as the philosophy known as THE VOID began to spread into Dhea from SALOROC it slowly began to grow again, though it never regained the prestige it had lost to Conth.

Following the spread of Atramental taint from DHAMATEA in c. -110 RM and the rebuilding efforts of the ADUMBRAESKI spearheaded by the ATRAMENTIST AKH, whose death in -29 RM led to Dhea and Dhamatea being renamed BA'AKH in his honour, the small settlement of Ora and its environs were taken by his lieutenant Thus, and it became one of the 17 states of Ba'akh, renamed Oress.

4. Mil. Str. Fortress just west of the above sea^(1.) in northern BA'AKH.

 \underline{ORAAL} : Set. Coastal city in the west of $\underline{IZABAL}^{(1.)}$ (Pop. c. 102,000).

ORAASKHA: also 'the City of Towers'. Set. City in the c south of LAASKHA, known for its alley-like streets and 3–4 storey buildings that look like towers. These are a remnant of an older culture that was dominated by noble families and gang warfare, where scuffles and family feuds commonly erupted into bloody fighting, necessitating fortified dwellings. That culture has now passed, and the city is smaller than it once was, before the coast withdrew from it, though many of the noble families remain to this day (Pop. c. 23,000).

ORABOU: Fau. Large aquatic creature common around coastal waters of the SEA OF AMMASH^(2.) and, less commonly, in the BATHASHAL OCEAN, particularly the wasters of NORTHERN SIMBARA. They are quadrupedal, with large forelimbs and less developed hind limbs, and they have large powerful flattened tails that taper to a blunt tip, that they sway up and down when swimming. Their faces are vaguely feline, though more elongated with short thick barbells extending from back of their cheeks.

They are famed for the eerie voices that they make at night, which in legends are said to lure adulterers to their deaths. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

- ORACASHO: Geo. Rocky highland region in the south east of SARASTRO, to the south of the SOKHA Mountains.
- ORACLE OF ULUTUL: Sup. Rel. Mummified oracle interred within the temple of ULUTUL, revered as sacred by the people of TERION. The oracle is guarded at all times and in times of need, SHAPERS under the command of TERIA, are sent to commune with the SPIRIT of the oracle.
- ORACLON, the: Arc. Monumental stone pillar, many miles high in the north east of the HENDECARCHY of HATON, in the c north of MALAN, that is said to scrape the clouds. It is of a polished stone finish and its surface is unblemished despite its age.

Though the people of Makan have varying stories regarding its creation and purpose (most of which involve the LADY AEGIS or the demigoddess SESHA), in truth, its origins remain unknown, and, like so many other ancient unattributable monuments, it is assumed to have been created by a DEMIURGE.

- ORACLON OF TAXUS: Rel. Str. Temple in the north of NÁRTHEL. It was considered sacred ground as far back as the early FIFTH AGE, when a LYRADEAN oracle was said to preside in the great tree that once lived there, around which the temple was constructed. With the coming of the KORACHANI EMPIRE in 84 RM, the place was exhumed of all religious significance and abandoned, though SVATHI leaders reclaimed the area following Korachani abandonment of Nárthel to the DOMNITORS in c. 2950 RM, re-sanctifying the land where it remains an important place in Svathi religion; a place sacred to death and the cycle of life.
- ORACCA SHUR: (D. 3762 RM) Pol. Queen of ELEKHID following the assassination of her uncle UDRAN SHUR in 3701 RM to her natural death in 3762 RM. She was only two when Udran was killed, and had not yet been born during his ascent to the throne in 3694 RM. She ruled through proxies until her seventeenth birthday, and was beloved by the people for restoring order to the SHURAN DYNASTY.
- ORACRO: Set. Small city in the north of VENTHIR. The RED ROUTE passes through it, bringing trade with it from far away (Pop. c. 14,500).
- ORADAYA: Set. Settlement in the region of TARACEH in the north east of THE SURRACH (Pop. c. 7,000).
- ORAH: Set. Coastal settlement in the north of BA'AKH. It was settled by refugees from the deserted city of ZADAK in c. 3395 RM (Pop. c. 5,100).
- ORAM HELAYA: (B. 3942 RM) Present ruler of TERION.
- ORAMON: 1. Geo. Mountain-range in the east of SAMMAEA, running from north to south, dominating the c of ANANTHUL.
 - 2. Set. Coastal city in the west of PORPHYR. It is a major trade city, with a large harbour and storage yards and warehouses (Pop. c. 42,000).
- ORAMOR: Set. Settlement in the c of OKKHAM, to the west of the Okkhami Mountains. Its main industry is sericulture the production of silk from caterpillars of the giant ORUNA moth that is endemic to the lower mountains of Okkham (Pop. c. 6,000).
- ORAN: Sup. Arc. FIRMAMENTAL monument erected outside SIRIPHAGOS in c. 2100 RM by the ALIHEIOAN caste. Oran was the largest of many similar monuments erected in the region in about a century, its abstract form meant to depict the Firmament resurgent.
- ORANASH: Rvr. River in the west of IO flowing west for 185-miles from sources in the south of GHOLA and the north of AMARU Mountains before emptying in the GULF OF DAARKEN. The river becomes heavily polluted from the metal industry downstream of the city of UR SITH.
- ORANEM: Rvr. River in the east of AZAZEM, and tributary of the larger river ZEMEN.
- ORARAG: Set. Settlement in the c of RHEA. It appeared in between 3910 3920 RM as a boom-town after meteore was discovered in the north east of the BOKKARIS Mountains. Since then, major mines have appeared and a permanent settlement has grown to cater to the industry (Pop. c. 3,000).
- ORACADA: Set. Settlement in the c west of AMMESH. It is an agricultural centre and is known for its production of beans and legumes, which are sold across lake RALIA to the markets of ORATARA (Pop. c. 8,200).
- ORAST, SHRINE OF: also 'Shrine of Growth'. His. Rel. Arc. An idol-like altar in a plateau in the north west of the KHARKHARADONTID desert in a region of known ATRAMENTAL ACTIVITY. It is made from a soft stone that is clammy and oily to the touch. The area immediately surrounding the altar is covered in thick moss, lichen and vines, and the air, which reeks of sweet sickly decay, is replete with small swarming insects that never abate. It is thought to have once been used for Atramental rituals, possibly by FOURTH AGE PLAGI.

ORAT: Sca. Bay in the south west of LLACHATUL, north of ELAT and AYAD, stretching for over 250-miles north to south western RAONGEN^(2.).

ORATARA: Set. City in the c west of AMMESH, along the western short of lake RALIA. It is the centre of a large agricultural community that surrounds the lake and is considered the garden of Ammesh. It is known for its great horseshoe-shaped harbour market, where twin-hulled DHOWS from across lake Ralia bring their wares to sell. (Pop. c.).

ORATHA: Set. Fortified settlement in the north of the tribe of SALARNA, in the c north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 7,000).

ORATAN: Set. City in the north west of PARAIYA (Pop. c. 43,000).

ORATON PERTHENIUS: (B. 3929 RM) Pol. Current governor of PELASGOS, under appointment of THE SEVEN, and Arch Patrician of HOUSE THALASA.

ORATORY OF THE HOLY SWORD: Rel. Str. Small church of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE situated in an area of the HOLY PRECINCT that is dense with places of worship. The oratory is not open to the public, and is attended by members of the clergy and other votaries, as well as some members of the SECT OF THE HOLY SWORD. It is most famous for the 3,000-year old replica of the SWORD OF TARTARUCH, the sword that the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR rediscovered and wields to this day, that it contains. Incredibly valuable and a fine artefact in its own right, this facsimile is kept within a large reliquary in the Oratory of the Holy Sword.

Some maintain, despite proof to the contrary, that the sword on display here is indeed the original sword, and that it is referred to as a replica to draw attention away from it.

ORATORY OF ST. BARBAS: Rel. Str. Gigantic oratorium located in the temple-city of KAIROR, around which are located various districts and lodgings that cater to the many pilgrims that travel to the city along THE SHADOW MARCH.

ORAWARAN: Pol. Ser. Capital of DATEPHA on the isle of ISEA (Pop. c. 89,000).

ORAY: Set. City in the c-south east of SAGITTARIA (Pop. c. 40,000).

ORBAN: Set City in the north east of GREST^(1.) in the island-continent of BROR^(1.). It forms part of an industrial region though little is known as to what these industries are (Pop. unknown).

ORBS OF LIFE: Ast. Myt. In the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, the name given to PLANETS and stars following the DEMIURGES' SHAPING OF CREATION. See Vol IV: the Mythologia Elyden.

ORCAMMOR: also 'the Red Mountains'. Geo. Snaking mountains in SAUA, running from the north west to the south west of the nation, on which the RED WALL was built.

ORCAMMOR PASS: Geo. Mountain pass in SAUA, to the south of the ORCAMMOR Mountains and north east of the KOKORO MOUNTAINS. The pass like the south east of VIRAHAN with the north west of SAUA.

ORCATH: Set. Settlement in the west of LYRIDIA, populated by refugees from CYRENA in 1672 RM. The major industry is cattle-raising, and like the rest of Lyridia, its cattle is a stable form of ATRAMENTALLY-CORRUPTED ancestors (Pop. c. 4,300).

ORCHARD OF THE HENDECARCHS: Flo. Arc. Walled royal garden in the city of MELIBODHA, in the HENDECARCHY of AONIA. The garden is famed for its cultivated forest of cedar trees. Upon the appointment of a new HENDECARCH in Aonia, one of the first things they do is plant a cedar sapling, which they tend to (often by proxy) throughout their rule. Today the eldest of these cedar trees, the oldest of which is almost two millennia old, dominate the garden.

ORCI NARAIMAN: m. Per. (D. 3733 RM) eccentric PARTHISAN patrician who founded the ANAGOGIC ORDER OF ZABRASSANA in 3673 RM. He believed that ELYDEN was destined for greatness but that this fate was stalled by the unintended proliferation of mortalkind. He wanted to see all MORTALS, including himself, destroyed so that Elyden's intended fate could finally be achieved. He proposed that the best way of doing this was to summon a great spirit known as Zabrassana from the OTHERWORLD whose merest presence on the MATERIAL PLANE would be anathema to mortals, causing the air itself to burn, killing them all in an unstoppable wave of destruction.

He commissioned the construction of a great TECHNARCANE engine in the city of TAULAR dominated by high-frequency electron tubes and other techno-mystic mechanisms made from the rare metal tantalum. He clad the sprawling engine in stone and wood, disguising it as a mundane apartments of interesting appearance but which otherwise did not draw any suspicion.

It was slowly populated by unsuspecting families as Naraiman recruited members for the Anagogic Order of Zabrassana. The engine was a powerful summoning platform that he intended to use in a ritual in which the people would have been unwittingly sacrificed to power the engine, drawing the demon-spirit Zabrassana to the Material Plane.

He died before his plan could be put into effect and the Order fragmented without his leadership, and his plan was forgotten, never to be fulfilled. His notes were sold by his estate, spreading across Parthis and the INNER SEA, being sold and bought by collectors of esoterica, never to be heard of again.

ORCU: Set. One of 5 isolated self-sufficient city-states in the south of DURCHAA whose people revere the so-called Netherqueen – an entity believed to reign in the darkest reaches of the MAW OF DORMORRO. They clash with rival cults, each of which is based in another city-state near the Maw, and has its own beliefs surrounding the Maw (Pop. c. 4.000).

ORDEALS, the: Art. Vol. National epic in AHKA, recounting the struggle of the Ahkan ancestral people. It is likely a remnant of the region's ancient LASCAR(2.) culture, and is similar to some ancient LAASKHAN military epics of the day. Recently, popularity of the epic has surged due to the struggles of its people between the armies of KORACHAN and PARTHIS. See Vol II: Books of Elyden.

ORDER OF ACHRA: Org. see ACHRA, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE ACQUIESCENT MONKS: Org. see ACQUIESCENT MONKS, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF ASTROMANCY: Org. see ASTROMANCY, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF ATARAXIA: Org. see ATARAXIA, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF BA'AKHI RANGERS: Org. see BA'AKHI RANGERS, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF BAALBETH: Org. see BAALBETH, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE BROKEN CREST: Org. see BROKEN CREST, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF CARNIFEXES: Org. see CARNIFEXES, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF CHEMISTERS: Org. see CHEMISTERS, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE DRAGON: Org. see DRAGON, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF THE EBON SHROUD: Org. see EBON SHROUD, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF EPISTEMIC ESOTERY: Org. see EPISTEMIC ESOTERY, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF ELAT: Org. see ELAT, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE EISTAR: Org. see EISTAR, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF THE GATE: Org. see GATE, ORDER OF THE.

ODER OF THE GOLDEN EWE: see GOLDEN EWE, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF HARAMIS: Org. see HARAMIS, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE HEART, MIND AND BLADE: Org. see HEART, MIND, AND BLADE, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF KHELEAF: see KHELEAF, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF LICTORS: Org. see LICTORS, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF LORE: Org. see LORE, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE MANILL: Org. see MANILL, ORDER OF THE ORDER OF MALICHARIAN SISTERS: Org. see MALICHARIAN SISTERS, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF MANNALAN: Org. see MANNALAN, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF MENISCUS: Org. see MENISCUS, ORDER OF THE ORDER OF ORPHEA: Org. see ORPHEA, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF PEOSHK: Org. see PEOSHK, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE PRAXIS: Org. see PRAXIS, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF PROSELYTISERS: Org. see PROSELYTISERS, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE SALIFEROUS PALM: Org. see Saliferous Palm, Order of.

ORDER OF THE STONE: Org. see STONE, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE TAELLANNIR: see TAELLANNIR, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF TEREBINTH: Org. see TEREBINTH, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF TEUTAR: Org. see TEUTAR, ORDER OF.

ORDER OF THE UNMOVING HAND: Org. see UNMOVING HAND, ORDER OF THE.

ORDER OF WITNESSES: Org. see WITNESSES, ORDER OF.

ORDERS MILITANT OF THE NINE: Org. Following the GUILD TREATY of 1073 RM, a guild pact that rose c. 1200 RM in ALMAGEST to safeguard the property and industry of several (colloquially known as the Nine) guilds in and around the CITY OF ALMAGEST. By c. 2000 RM had grown to most cities north of THE INNER SEA under the rule of the KORACHANI EMPIRE.

The Orders Militant of the Seven is a private defence force funded by various guilds across the empire, whose members act as bodyguards and security for various guild-activities, most notably the transportation and trade of goods across nations and cities. It is the largest and most well-known of such guild pacts that were formed in the wake of the Guild Treaty.

OREAE: Set. Settlement in the south east of OKKHAM, along the isthmus that connects the peninsula of Okkham to the headland of KHURTAE. It is part of the SASACZHOT canal and controls the gate leading to the SEA OF KHURSA (Pop. c. 2,000).

OREAHASH: Geo. Region some 25,000-square miles dominating the north east of present-day OTINTH. The region was once made up of virginal forests, though was exploited by the KORACHANI colonies of OHDURTAR between c. 2200 and 2600 RM. The region was left a barren wasteland, its topsoil blown away by dry winds caused by natural mismanagement during the imperial tenure there.

OREBAN: Set. Small fortified city in the c west of SARASTRO, to the west of the SHAY Mountain. It controls the pass leading to the monastery of YUSSAI (Pop. c. 12,000).

OREDOS: Sct. City in the south west of the tribe of ATEVEGOS, in the west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is known for its open cast gold mines (Pop. c. 36,000).

OREI: Lak. Lake in the c of OPHIUSSA, forming part of the river MARAGA drainage basin.

OREKH'S HORN: Geo. Escarpment, around 50-miles long along the border between the north of SKAROS and the south of ALMAGEST, forming an extension of the north western GORRAN Mountains. The escarpment is named after the KORACHANI explorer, Orekh, who 'discovered' the region in 37 RM.

OREMIA: Set. City in the south west of ALMAGEST. It is home to a large temple and many monasteries, and it is famed for the sounds of monk praying on the roofs of their cloisters (Pop. c. 34,200).

ORENAS: Set. City in the south east of SKAROS, famed as one of its longest surviving settlements, dating back to c. 330 RM. It has, since its earliest records, been known as a centre for ATRAMENTAL learning, and was likely settled by the CHEIROAHIN following their exile from KORACHANI lands in c. 100 RM (Pop. c. 17,500).

ORENHELD: Int. Set. Small city that is situated entirely within an ancient FOURTH AGE fortress. Found in a decrepit state by a nomadic family group early in the FIFTH AGE who took shelter in it, it was slowly restored over time and added to, becoming a near-impregnable fort in by c. -400 RM. Over the years, the family grew in power and influence, taking various surrounding settlements as territories.

It is no longer independent but remains a curious settlement, forming a part of the NACRE ROAD, which actually passes through the castle, where travel taxes are claimed. Outside the city stands a large open market place (Pop. c. 17,200).

OREOR: Set. Settlement in the c-south east of the tribe of ORIM, in the far west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. The settlement is known for its ascetics and small community of AHHAS (Pop. c. 2,000).

ORESS: Set. Small coastal settlement in the north of BA'AKH. It is the remnant of a great metropolis and one of the KORACHANI EMPIRES' so-called GEMS, which during its height in c. 2600 RM boasted a population of over 5,000,000 bodies.

Built over the faltering shell of the DHEAN settlement of ORA(3.), Oress was named in c. -10 RM by the ADUMBRAESK warlord Thus, whose construction of SIPHON ENGINES cleansed the region of the ATRAMENTA, attracting people from across the north of Ba'akh.

The city broke away from Ba'akh in 65 RM, and became an ally of sorts with Korachan, which in 237 RM had begun sending ATRAMENTISTS and TECHNARCANISTS into Ba'akh to explore the region. These explorers were pushed back by Ba'akhi armies in c. 240 RM, where they sought refuge in Oress, which in 267 RM established imperial embassies within its borders. The linking of UMBRA pipelines from BAAL to Oress in 303 RM resulted in the trade of the stuff with Korachan, which brought great wealth to Oress. As imperial influence in the city grew, Korachani armies began pouring into the city in 315 RM, where they moved south into Ba'akh, though by 318 RM they had been countered by Ba'akh, forced to retreat. Oress was pressured into expelling its imperial institutions and signed a unification of Ba'akh, uniting the nation for the first time.

But as imperial troops moved into Ba'akh once more in 469 RM, the nation slowly fell to Korachan, with Oress one of the last cities to ball by the dawn of the 6th century RM. As Korachan settled in Ba'akh, many of its cities, including Oress, began to grow, the riches garnered from umbra trade and processing filling their coffers. Oress became one of the empire's largest umbra processors, its harbours growing steadily to accommodate the vast tankers and ships that travelled there from across the empire. By 1103 RM a Atramental college of great prestige had appeared there, bringing further respect to the nation.

Oress was at the peak of its 'Golden-Age' in 2623 RM when disaster struck; a great Atramental explosion in a refinery in the upper city left half of it ruined, raw umbra corrupting a 10-miles radius outside it. The remnants of its population were themselves tainted by the disaster – the entire north of Ba'akh was affected, with cities sickened and trade-routes abandoned. It was Oress's downfall, that primarily led to Korachan withdrawing from Ba'akh in 3097 RM, and the eventual surrendering of northern Ba'akh to SARASTRO in 3103 RM as part of the SARASTROAN SANCTION.

The War of Sundering saw Oress blockaded and besieged by Korachani and Sarastroan forces, and once it was retaken in 3704 RM it was allowed to rot, the Atramenta slowly infecting its ruins and corrupting flora and fauna that survived around it. Its once glorious harbours had by then found themselves about a quarter-mile away from the coast, due to ELYDENS' retreating waters, though the Sarastroan government later linked it to the sea through a series of locks and canals, allowing a new settlement to emerge along the new coastline, with most of the original city now ruined and forgotten. Ancient siphon engines and pipelines were restored into working order, allowing a new Oress to emerge after 3964 RM (Pop. c. 4,000).

ORETLI: For. Scrub forest in the west of KORACHAN, west of the FATUACH Mountains. It was once a major woodland, stretching to the western-coast of Korachan, though had been largely cut down by c. 2000 RM. Parts of it have grown back since then, though what nutrients the soils in the area once possessed have long-since been leached-away and the trees that grow there are stunted and of little use to the empire's industries.

OREXTRA: Geo. Hard stone plains and scrubland dominating the northern half of SHOTHA.

ORGAL: Rel. Str. LACHRYMIST monastery in the c north east of THE SURRACH, in the southern foothills of the NGHALLEAL Mountains.

ORGAN TRADE: see RED MARKET.

- ORGANIZIER: Pol. Soc. Rnk. One of the noble ranks and titles in the empire of RAONGEN⁽²⁾, falling beneath the HEGEMONS and above INSPECTORATES. They are in control of individual manufactories, mines and quarries, and similar designations, and are directly responsible for the well-being and productivity of the vassals that live and work within their designated area.
- ORGDA: lit. 'life'. Rvr. River in the east of CYHLAGHARR, flowing for 310-miles east from sources in the GRCAUTHAIRM, GRCAUTH, ODRAND and DRGRAD massifs, before emptying into the CAMARINAL SEA. The capital city CYHULIR was founded on its banks. Its waters became tainted in 1008 RM following a massive ALCHEMBRAL explosion that left the city of ADAGRIN ruined, though over the centuries, the taint has slowly abated.
- ORGLDIA: Set. City in the south east of CYHLAGHARR, in the south west of the GULF OF OPHAR. It is widely-recognised as the slaver capital of Cyhlagharr and is known for its large harbours and slave trading-yards, where exotic slaves acquired from distant lands are sold and traded (Pop. c. 180,000, excluding slaves).
- ORIAN: Geo. Large steep-sided massif in the c of LIDEA, some 480-miles long. The mountain north facing foothills are renowned for their brown coal deposits, which are quarried in vast amounts by Lideans.
- ORIAS YETZIRAH: His. Mil. Pol. Undisputed autocrat of the early FIFTH

 AGE DALLIAMORAAN empire, whose armies swept across BROR⁽¹⁾ between c. -200 c. 50 RM, leading to the total unification of the islandcontinent under his banner by the end of the period. The resultant empire was extremely insular and little is known of Orias' life following this, though we do know that he was a scion of not inconsiderable power.

Very little is known about him though some records exist in which he is described as being a large man, having felid features and a great mane of hair, causing some to erroneously believe he was an eelyouhn. He was an accomplished astronomer and surrounded himself with a court of both astronomers and astrologers, who would go on to become rulers of Dalliamoraa, through which he ruled by proxy.

Though he is known to have had an unnaturally-long life (likely confirming the commonly-held belief in Bror that he was a scion), he is thought to have died some time before the collapse of the Dalliamoraan empire in 1247 RM, possibly contributing to his empire's eventual downfall.

- ORICALCHA: Pol. Set. One seven ruling cities in the empire of RAONGEN(2.), located in the industry of HEMAYANA, in the east of the empire, in WESTERN LLACHATUL. It is in control of the easternmost territories of the nation, and it is responsible for securing its lands against the barbarians of the CALLOW HORDES (Pop. c. 420,000).
- ORICHAL: Rvr. Lake in the c of AURUM (2.).
- ORIHANA: Set. Settlement in the west of ALAM BETHYL, in the c south of the territory of ESAUN^(1.)(Pop. c. 8,000).
- ORIKA: Set. City in the region of ADA in the c west of THE SURRACH, along the course of the river HATHURAN. It is known for its reed cultivation and reed-based items (Pop. c. 36,200).
- ORILILA HET: Int. Rui. Ancient pyramid if the east of SURUTUR, now overgrown and worn down by the elements. It is thought to have once been coastal, with its front (which had an opening) facing east. Its innermost stone chambers remain unexplored, though its exterior is covered in vines lichens and epiphytes.
- ORIM: Pol. Soc. Tribe in the west of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, at the border between AETHIOS and RHINOCOLOURA. Situated along the glass hills of ATHORNA, it is known for its crystal-manipulating ATRAMENTISTS, known as SICLASET, and openly trades with both its neighbours. Despite this, it is known for its many groups of notorious bandits that terrorize merchants they are unaffiliated with.
- ORINSIAN GUARD: Law. Pol. Org. Government agency in METHUMN that was founded by the GILDED UNION in 3783 RM to serve overtly as keepers of the peace and hunters of unauthorised travellers, particularly foreigners, and covertly as secret police of the Union. They operate from the capital city, Araroby, and can be found in most major cities across the nation, and also travel between cities patrolling highways, keeping the peace.

- ORINTH: Set. Small city in the south west of SEDISIA (Pop. c. 15,500).
- ORIT: Ind. Set. Mining settlement situated at the foot of the northern face of the KOTHA ORIT Mountains in the TURCAR desert (Pop. c. 4,000).
- ORIXENG: Set. Fortified city in the c south of RAONGEN⁽²⁾, along the course of the river SOSHALI. It is a centre of trade in the region and its people often trade south with SEDISIA (Pop. c. 6,000).
- ORKA: Sea. Sea in the north of the SEA OF BYSSOS. It borders the south western coast of the TARAHID ANNEXES and the south western coast of PARTHIS.
- ORLANA: Set. Small coastal city in the south east of OD MEGINNAS^(1.) (Pop. c. 14,000).
- ORLASS: Sec. Coastal city in the west of TAMAR. Orlass is Tamar's largest port and harbour (Pop. c. 40,000).
- ORM ZALESH: Set. Major fortified city in the south of THE OLD FOREST, close to the borders with RHAMIA and AHRISHEN. The city has a major trade influence in the region and is the terminus of both the GREY ROAD from Ahrishen as well as the GÂTHAN ROAD, from Gâtha.

The city is largely autonomous and is considered to be one of the most 'Imperialised' cities by KORACHAN (Pop. c. 180,000).

- ORMA: Sea. Small sea off the western-coast of NAARETH, forming a part of the ROILING SEA. Its waters are deep and very rough, particularly in the monsoon season.
- ORMARIKH: Geo. Mountain 300-mile-long mountain in the centre of the isle of ISEA, dividing the nation of IRORA in the west from DATEPHA in the east. The island is considered by the VAPULIM of Datepha to be a holy place, where the body of their DEMIURGE father's scion ERES is buried.
- ORMES: Set. Major fortified city in the far north west of PELASGOS, overlooking the east of KORACHAN. It is an industrial centre and forms a part of the RED ROUTE. It has a proud long-standing tradition of weapon manufacture, particularly artillery and other large weaponry, and is also home to the MINASTERIA^(2.) of INCENDIARIIN, which continues the tradition, in a MAGICKAL sense (Pop. c. 80,000).
- ORMOQ: Set. City in the c north west of CHEIRA (Pop. unknown).
- ORN BALONT: Set. City in the far east of BANT, in the c of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA^(1.), in the east of SAMMAEA. Its main industry is iron mining (Pop. c. 40,000).
- \underline{ORNAH} : Set. Small city in the north of $\underline{IPANAH}^{(2.)}$ (Pop. c. 16,400).
- OROAEGH: Set. Fortified city in the south of PNESSA. It is noted as one of two cities (the other being DA ARAE, in OKKHAM) that are linked by the subterranean CISTERN OF MÉAT PUDON that traverses almost 250-miles of the Okkham Mountains (Pop. c. 120,000).
- OROBIAS: Flo. A form of incense that is cultivated in the south of $\underline{\text{KASIHAAL}}$ and $\underline{\text{KRENN}}$ in in the north east of the island-continent of $\underline{\text{BROR}}^{(1)}$.
- ORNACH: Str. Mountainside colliery in the north of KORACHAN, in the c southern face of the RHAECHA Mountain that was abandoned in c. 3300 after its yields dwindled beyond sustainability. The mines were a labyrinth of vertical shafts and horizontal tunnels, many of which were expansive and supported by square columns of hewn rock. The mine lay abandoned for centuries, the PATRICIAN HOUSE that owned it ignoring it. It was eventually bought in 3882 RM by a private investor who had it converted to a bunker where hundreds of people could take shelter in the case of a disaster. It is now operated by the ORPHANS OF THE SUN, an apocalyptic cult that believes ELYDEN'S sun SOR it slowly dying. The bunker has supplies to last 500 people decades, and employs a privately-trained army that defends it and the surrounding region.
- OROCON: Set. Settlement in the BAKHRAN STATES in the north west of THE SURRACH, in the south eastern foothills of the BAKHRAN Mountains (Pop. c. 9,000).
- OROGEN: Geo. Expansive highlands in the south east of BROR⁽¹⁾.

 Dominated by a high flat plateau in its middle, the region is populated by loosely-united city-states that owe their ancestry to the now-extinct FIFTH AGE nation of TIAMOLDOR; and scattered tribal idolators, themselves descendants of the APLI people who abandoned their home in c. 3100 RM, which became corrupted following a potent ATRAMENTAL eruption that wracked the southern part of the continent.

- OROLIT: Set. Settlement in the c south of SERROK. It is situated in the region of BAULAUROCH and is noted for its diamond mines. The mines are government-owned and strict regulations and rules are in place safeguarding the welfare of workers, yet working conditions remain difficult for relatively little-pay (Pop. c. 1,500).
- OROMANCY: Mys. Divination through the reading of stars, common in many astrological practices, and various religions, including IANHAN in the SIX CITIES region of THE SURRACH.
- OROMUN: Set. Small city in the c east of VAALK. Its main industry is the cultivation of aloares. It forms a part of the RED ROUTE (Pop. c. 15,000).
- ORONTA: Flo. Dead husk of a SIGARIA tree in the north of OPHIUSSA, deep in the ANNEAMAL forest. It dates back to the THIRD AGE, when sigaria trees were still relatively common in the area. It stands 200-ft. tall, though was once far taller than that, though many of its branches have broken over the years. Today it is grey and hollow, its lifeless arms leading purposelessly to the sky.
- OROS: Ind. Set. Mining settlement in the south west of ARKOS^(1.), noted for its copper deposits. It forms a part of the SALT ROAD, leading traffic into Arkos from J'THANA (Pop. c. 3,800).
- OROTA: Set. Settlement in the c of KARAKHAS (Pop. c. 7,200).
- OROTEA: Set. Settlement in the south of HOLOLACH^(1,). Its main industry is lobster fishing (Pop. c. 3,800).
- OROTTA: Mil. Str. fortress in the c north of KARAKHAS, overlooking sea routes int the BAY OF TARAKH.
- OROTUAN: Pol. Set. Capital city of LANTUA, occupying a small headland in the BAY OF LUVI in the c south east of the nation (Pop. c. 143,000).
- OROTUR: Pol. Set. Ruling city in the tribe of CHRIL, in the c west of MULCIBER, in the western-face of the GROWING MOUNTAINS. The city controls the highland plains of OTHROD, which forms the majority of the tribe's territories (Pop. c. 78,000).
- OROTUT: Set. Settlement in the south of SERROK (Pop. c. 2,000).
- ORPHAH: Geo. Spiny jagged mountains in the south east of LIDEA, forming a 120-mile extension of the ENRATON Mountains.
- ORPHANOTROPHIA: Soc. Str. Orphanages in the KORACHANI EMPIRE, populated with the orphaned children FREEMEN and PATRICIANS. These children grow up to be drafted into various imperial administrative, bureaucratic and military functions.
- ORPHANS OF THE SUN: Org. Apocalyptic cult that recognises that ELYDEN'S sun SOR is slowly dying and are preparing for its eventual demise. The name refers to all the MORTALS of Elyden who will, one day, be orphaned by the slow death of Sor.
- They are based in the private fortress of ORNACH in the north of KORACHAN and individuals can be seen in surrounding lands, proselytising to anyone willing to listen, with varied results.
- ORPHEA, ORDER OF: Org. part of the CHURCH OF THE MEEK. It is one of several pseudo-religious orders that survive in the KORACHANIEMPIRE. Many care for the homeless and destitute, while others are more concerned with bodily purity as opposed to the preaching of the UNDYING MACHINE. The Order of Orphea is well known for its nurturing kindness. None know how or why these orders were allowed to exist in the Korachani empire, but many rumours and suggestions abound, none of which can be trusted.
- ORPHEAR: Rvr. River in the c north west of GNOTH flowing south west for 220-miles from sources in the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains before meeting its parent, the river NEPHOT.
- ORRA: (8,930 ft.) Geo. Highest peak along the ADAMATI hills in SKAROS, to the south east of the BLACK MOUNTAINS.
- ORRAN: 1. Lak. Lake in the c south of LYRIDIA.
 - 2. Geo. Region around the above lake inhabited by tribes of wandering $\underline{TROGLODYTES}$ that inhabit the caverns that surround the lake in winter months they congregate in the city of $\underline{ORYS}^{(2)}$, increasing its population by thousands.
- ORREH: Set. Farming conurbation in the north of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of UCHRON (Pop. c. 4,500).

- ORRERAL, the: Rui. Ancient stone observatory in the north east of SAUA, in the ZAHAT YA HZA region.
- ORRERISM: Sup. Rnk. SPHERE of FIRMAMENTISM, which started in SABIA, concerned with the positions of stars and the drawing of power from them. It is often linked with ASTROLOGY.
- ORRERY OF CANOLLEGH: (10,320-ft.) Geo. Large KORACHANI-built observatory built on a solitary peak in the north east of the SYNHODOS massif in the c of JURRAS^(2.). Its steel walls, now pitted and tarnished, house large telescopes and a gigantic orerry that lies rusted in place.

The PLANETS depicted in the orerry correspond with the SORCHARI SYSTEM, of which ELYDEN forms part. Some explorers and scholars postulate that the position is relevant to some future event. The place is guarded by a winged otherworlder, known as the TELLURION.

- ORREX: Pol. The rulers of ELDRIA. They emerged from the WHITE SHEET in c. 2180 RM, claiming to be descended from a line of genetically-engineered warriors from ancient CEEROPIA. They slowly rose to power between 2185 and 2205 RM, creating a wedge within Eldria, eventually sundering it by 2227 RM, causing great chaos. The Orrex claimed leadership of one half of the sundered state, though by 2289 RM they had re-united all of Eldria, starting a great dynasty that would rule until its eventual fall in 3682 RM, when the last of their line was killed.
- ORRIAH: 1. Geo. Peninsula in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of MEDES⁽¹⁾. It is famed for its ROTWINES, which are highly sought-after across not only the Haréshk but the INNER SEA REGION as well.
 - 2. For Sparse forest in the $\underline{\mathsf{HAR\acute{E}SHKI}\,\mathsf{CITY\text{-}KINGDOM}}$ of $\underline{\mathsf{MEDES}}^{(1)}.$
- ORRIDA: Sea. The western-most sea in the NEAR HEMISPHERE, lying between the south west of WESTERN LLACHATUL and the north east of WESTERN SAMMAEA. It is situated to the west of the INNER SEA and its water flows east across the GATE OF EREBETH into the Inner Sea.

It is a temperate-to-warm sea and is also considered an inland sea by many. It remains relatively bountiful despite the increased industrialisation of the lands bordering it, but its marine life is expected to suffer as heavy industries increase in the surrounding lands.

- ORRIDAN BASIN, the: Geo. Drainage basin formed by various continental divides in the continents of LLACHATUL and SAMMAEA, including parts of the LLACHATUL, the EREBETIAN, and the KHARKHARADONTID DIVIDES. The basin comprises parts of the south west of Llachatul and the north of Sammaea, and all rivers within it drain directly into the SEA OF ORRIDA, which itself flows into the INNER SEA.
- Nations and territories that are at least partially within the Orridan Basin include: AYAD, ELAT, ERET^(2.), ESHIR, GNOTH, GYZHA, IZABAL^(1.), KAZZAR, KARGAMA, KHULL, MARACHA, OPHIUSSA, OTINTH, SAGITTARIA, SEDISIA, SEPAHAUNAT, THE SURRACH, TAHALL, TATAR, and URTAN, amongst others.
- ORRIDAN CIRCUIT, the: Int. Soc. Trip commonly undertaken by young males of independent means, with an itinerary that takes them across multiple cities and places of historical or cultural interest around the SEA OF ORRIDA. See also the GRAND TOUR, which is a similar custom common amongst those of the INNER SEA REGION.
- ORRIN: Set. Settlement in the region of ORRIN in the west of THE SURRACH in the UBIQUA delta. It is known for its many riverboats (Pop. c. 8,200).
- ORRMAKISH: Geo. Vast area of felled trees along the LASCAR⁽²⁾ coast in the north west of LAASKHA and the south west of SKAROS. Gigantic column-like trees once dominated the steep slopes of the IKATHIAN HEADLAND in the first millennium RM, though overexploitation of the area has left the area devastated, the waters of the BAY OF TAANHA filled with escaped sediment from the hills. The area is littered with the ruin of ancient logging yards that haven't been used in centuries.
- ORROS: Set. Settlement in the south eastern mainland of the FREE-ISLES OF PELASGOS (Pop. c. 15,800).
- ORRUH: Set. Fortified settlement in the north of EZASUH⁽²⁾. Its main industry is logging (Pop. c. 8,400).
- ORSAT: Set. Small city in the south west of SEDISIA (Pop. c. 16,000).
- ORTHODOX CHURCH OF RACHANAEL: Rel. A sect of the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO prevalent in the west of LIDEA, that appeared in the city of ZHEMILACH in c. 3840 RM. Since its appearance, the region has been a powder keg of religious extremism, with fundamentalists from both churches clashing against each other, leaving many innocents dead. See Vol IV: Religions and Cults.

ORTHOSIS: Plr. 'orthoses'. Tec. Artificial enhancements to the MORTAL body that range from crude mundane augmentations such as leg callipers, to advanced TECHNARCANE prosthesis. Typically, the term orthosis is used for the latter form, which is related to the fields of BIOMACHINERY and technarcana. The process of augmenting a body with an orthosis is not an easy one and infections and outright rejections are not uncommon, and antibiotic supplements are often needed to prevent the body from rejecting the orthosis. HALFBLOODS and OTHERWORLDERS have bodies that are naturally more adaptable to the implantation of orthoses, so it is more common so see such creatures with orthoses and for them to sport more extreme variants.

ORTLU: Ast. Large cluster of stars in the SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE. It is the PARAIYAN domain of the dead. Its old imperial name is Gael, though Ortlu is now more popular, especially in SAMMAEA. It is the object of the STARGAZERS' vigil.

ORULITO: Set. Small city in the c west of SERROK. It is a major source of granite (Pop. c. 12,000).

ORUNA MOTH: Fau. Giant moth endemic to the jungles of OKKHAM.
With a wingspan close to 30-cm swarms of their blue-winged moths are a spectacular sight in the upper canopies of the jungles. Their caterpillars are used on a large scale in the silk industry in Okkham. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life.

ORUSOT: Geo. Hills in the c of MULCIBER, marking a part of the GROWING MOUNTAIN range. It serves as a border between the tribes of CHRIL, LEGEO, and TATRAS.

ORUT: Geo. Name given to the south eastern coast of OHTURDAR (present-day OTINTH), while the region was a KORACHANI colony. Following the empire's retreat from the region in 2671 RM the region found itself landlocked with the retreat of ELYDEN'S oceans. The area is now a dry coastal shelf, peppered by the ruins of Korachani colonists.

ORVANDIR: Mil. Str. Major coastal fortress in the west of LIEVTHRA, overlooking the SEA OF AXONIN. It is home to most of the nations' navy, which patrols the waters of the Axonin. The fort originated as a granite mine, and many of its internal structures are constructed from granite excavated in situ.

ORYS: 1. (8,010-ft.) Geo. Mount in the c south of LYRIDIA, to the north of the KYTHI Mountains and to the east of lake ORRAN^(1.). The mount is of religious symbolism in Lyridian culture as it is claimed to be the site where the first ABULIA gained her gift after receiving an otherworldly vision thousands of years ago. It is a sacred place and as such it is forbidden for any to go there.

2. Set. City in the c south of LYRIDIA. The city and its environs are amongst the densest-populated regions in Lyridia, known for its vast eastern hewn cave-dwellings and large outer courtyard markets. In winter months, TROGLODYTES from as far as 300-miles away congregate around the city, which is an ancestral meeting place. In such times the population of the city can increase by as much as 20,000. (Pop. c. 138,000, or 175,000 in winter).

ORYSAI: Soc. Org. One of the 17 GRAND HOUSES of the NACRE LEAGUE. The House is based in the nation of SHEZALIAH, in the far east of the NACRE ROAD, where is a key player in the agrarian sector, managing the output of the vast farmlands and gardens of Shezaliah, though it also plays a key role in the sale and movement of archaeological finds across the trade-route.

House Orysai specialises in the trade of grains, cereals, fruit, plants and trees, and other agricultural products, ensuring food security for the League's territories. Its members are also involved in the production of a myriad of wines, which are grown in different climates and conditions along the course of the trade-route, which are exported across the Nacre Road at great profit.

ORZOC: Geo. Dry plains dominating the west of SHAZGIN, in the rainshadow of the EGETAKH Mountains. Though not technically classified as a desert (the plains receive a small amount of rainfall each year), most Shazgini refer to it as such, and there are few large settlements in the expanse, which tapers from south to west for over 1,500-miles, reaching around 250-miles wide at its widest point. The city of $\underline{\text{RUCHATIN}}$ lies on the north eastern edge of the plains.

OSAIOON: Set. Fortified coastal city in the north west of KREM, in the region of ABALASOON. It is a major manufacturer of GLASTEEL, made from sand procured in the coastal plains of Abalasoon (Pop. c. 60,000).

OSAWEL: Geo. Mountain in the north of KREM, forming an extension of the larger ARGENT Mountains.

OSCULATA: Sup. Geo. Dre. A particular DREAMSCAPE in the east of GRARNEÂST that takes the form of a specific navigable route between two cities where travel takes a fraction of the time it otherwise should.

The dreamscape appeared in c. 2100 in what was then the east of SYNCHTHONITHA, close to the city of DETHURE. Once the effects of the phenomenon were documented and the safety of travel through it confirmed, a new settlement, known as HOTOCHTHIA, emerged, allowing fast travel between the two. Though they are around 120 miles apart, travellers can move between the two in around 12 hours of steady walking (Assuming an average speed of 3 mph), or faster if mounted or by vehicle. Only travel through a very specific 'corridor' will result in this effect and those who stray from the designated path will see their destination times altered accordingly.

The reason for this phenomenon remains unknown, and is simply attributed by the vagaries of dreamscapes by most, though oneiromancers and scholars continue to study the region to this day. It has been observed that a row of people marching along the corridor at set distances from each other will find individuals moving closer to the 'corridor' to move and act faster than those walking farther from it, with the opposite true of those walking along the 'corridor' being observed of those moving farther away from it.

OSCITA: 1. Geo. Large cave-system in the southern-face of the MALAUR Mountain in far north of PARTHIS.

2. Set. Mining settlement close to the eponymous region^(1.), known for granite and limestone (Pop. c. 5,800).

OSCYLLR: Set. Mining settlement in the c north east of CYHLAGHARR. It is known for its iron mines (Pop. c. 15,000).

OSGEED: Ser. Small coastal city in the north west of KULIGALA, in the north of the CARCHEMISHI PENINSULA⁽¹⁾, in the east of SAMMAEA. It is thought to be the largest kingroup in both BANT and Kuligala, with hundreds of extended families living in close proximity with one-another in one of the largest KINTOWERS (Pop. c. 15,000).

OSH: 1. Lak. Lake in the c-south east of the MULL CITY-STATES, along the course of the river BATALL.

2. Set. Settlement in the c-south east of the $\underline{\text{MULL CITY-STATES}}$. It forms a part of $\underline{\text{THE WAY}}$ trade-route and is the last major stop before the route reaches the capital in $\underline{\text{ZBALL GHAR}}$ (Pop. c. 5,800).

OSHAAKTU: Set. City in the north of the wastes of KHARKHARADONTIS, in the c of SAMMAEA. It is notable for its shared governance, and leadership of the city is divided between representatives of both the HIGH- and LOW-EMPIRES. This is due in no small part to the city being the final resting place of the mortal body of the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR, who is an important figure in both empires' religions. It has become a major stop along the SHADOW MARCH, and exists today as a site of pilgrimage and to cater to the PETITIONERS OF THE MACHINE that pass through it on their way south to the SEPULCHRAL PALACE, and it boasts many hostels, hospitals and churches and chapels.

It is protected by many SIPHON ENGINES that maintain a modicum of normally against the ATRAMENTAL TAINT that surround the city, and thanks to this aegis it has grown into a thriving city and melting pot of different cultures from across LLACHATUL and SAMMAEA (Pop. c. 60,000).

OSHAK: Set. Settlement in the south of AHKA, along the north western shore of lake OSTOS (Pop. c. 7,300).

OSHANTI: Rel. Str. Major temple in the ASONA of MATHIS in the VESPERTINE LEAGUE. The temple of Oshanti is vast and dominated by dozens of walled tranquil gardens. It exists outside of the KARGAMAN IDOLATORY that forms the dominant religion of the region, and is instead a place where individuals can find peace and tranquillity, unburdened by the complex politicking of the different Kargaman factions.

OSHEL: Geo. Region in the far north of the LEVANTINE in the south of AHRISHEN covering 7,500 square-miles, known for its sheer stark ridges and wetlands.

OSHOLA: Geo. island in the SEA OF SAMMAIDU, below the southern POLAR CIRCLE.

OSHORKA: Sec. Small fortified settlement in the north of the tribe of THLOLOT, in the north east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 4,800).

OSHORN I: (B. 2543 – D. 2621 RM) Pol. His. King of the FLUN-SANDRA SOVEREIGNTY in AHRISHEN, acceding to the throne in 2565 RM. He was a militant leader and spent most of his years as king campaigning to the north east of Ahrishen against the UNITED KINGDOMS OF EBUSHEN, and spent very little time in Ahrishen itself.

He finally subjugated Ebushen in 2612 RM, after almost five decades of war. His actions greatly increased the territories of Ahrishen, though the work required to maintain the territories led to him spending the remained of his days far from the capital, and he died in one of the administrative centres of the region in 1612 RM. His rule is celebrated in Ahrisheni history books, but the people of the kingdom barely knew their king.

OSHRUHANA: Ser. Settlement in the south east of PERGOST, forming the northern-most settled reaches of the territories claimed by the TRIUMVIRATE of KHARWARYAN (Pop. c. 5,000).

OSHYX: Set. Settlement in the c west of GIBEAH (Pop. unknown).

OSIAN: Mil. Str. Fort in the south east of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES overlooking the BAY OF MEREN.

OSILK: Rvr. Wetlands in the prefecture of TERECHANT^(1.) in south east of HOLOLACH^(1.), along the border with the MULL CITY-STATES and 80-miles of the course of the river TENASAAR.

OSKR: Geo. Mountain in the c south of the TARAHID ANNEXES.

OSMIDROSS: Rvt. Wetlands in the south east of KHARKHARADONTIS (specifically an expansive fen), within the region known as the EYE OF DARKNESS, in the IBRAOBALI endorheic basin. The region is renowned for its unbearable stench and the caustic nature of its water. Despite this, it is a haven to both flora and fauna of many varieties. They were documented by a NOAVATURI expedition in 1183 RM.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{MODERATE THREAT}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ Institute of Atramental Studies.

OSMOS: Rel. Str. Monastery on the island of ALLAI, off the western-coast of ALLASAN. The monastery is home to an order of ascetics who willingly travel to ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED lands to test themselves. There are legends of grandmasters of their order who travelled south into the heart of SAMMAEA and returned, untouched. Not all are as fortunate.

OSOEME: Set. Coastal settlement in the south of TZALLRACH, north of the PTHASSAL'OSS Mountains overlooking the BAY OF ATTAS (Pop. c. 6,800).

OSOMATHIA: For. Boreal forest in the south of ATARAXIA.

OSOS: 1. Set. Settlement in the south of TZALLRACH, at the northern-most point of the BAY OF ATTAS (Pop. c. 8,000).

2. Mil. Str. Fortress in the c north west of ATARAXIA. The fort is ancient and was once a major city controlling large territories west of the river SISSEBA, though today it is a relic of an ancient time.

OSOTHOT: 1. Geo. North western peninsula of VAALK, 525-miles long, characterised by dry plains and grasslands to the north of the Osothot hills⁽²⁾. It's largely unpopulated, save for the coastal areas.

2. Geo. Hills, 225-miles long, to the south east of the eponymous peninsula.

3. Set. Settlement in the north west of VAALK. It originated as a walled citadel, with a settlement later appearing around it by c. 2310 RM. It has since become renowned as a centre breeding for large animals, including INDRIKS and ANATHEROPSES, many of which go on to spend their lives on the SHADOW MARCH, travelling south into KHARKHARADONTIS (Pop. c. 10,000).

OSPIZIUM: Plr. 'ospiziin'. Soc. Str. Org. Respite homes in the KORACHANI EMPIRE for elderly HELOTS and SLAVES who are no longer able to work. They are given little true care and are largely left to their own devices, given the minimum of food needed to survive. They dwell in communal dormitories and those who are capable are given minor tasks to do in the homes, or given jobs in workshops where goods are sold to earn more money for the homes.

The homes are largely funded through donations and the earnings of residents, though some form part of manufactory complexes and are privately owned. These examples have dire reputations and are said to treat residents badly, even hastening their demise, selling corpses to the FUNERARY CULTS as anonymous bodies before any family can claim them.

OSRA: Rel. Dei. Religious pantheon of deities personified by ancient colossi facing east in the hills of OSRIS in the c east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of Mulciber. The colossi were not constructed by the current inhabitants and are a remnant of an ancient age. See Vol IV: Deities and Pantheons.

OSRAZ: Set. Fortified port in the north east of ATARAXIA, overlooking the STRAIT OF SKAROS. The port is situated on a headland of hard granite that stands as a table-like plateau amid the gullies and canyons of KAMON (Pop. c. 9,500).

OSRAZ, BAY OF: Sea. Technically three bays in the c north of the STRAIT OF SKAROS, along the north eastern coast of ATARAXIA.

OSRIS: Pol. Soc. Relatively small tribe in the c east of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. It shares a border with the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, and is known to trade with the settlement of CHUTA. It is noted for the many ancient colossi that are found there. So abundant were they at one point that they became a source of stone and bricks for modern settlements that have appeared close by. Today some of these colossi have been elevated to the status of Deity by the natives, who now worship them as a pantheon known as the OSRA. Most of the population of Osris is concentrated around the metropolis of GATUN MORATHA.

OSSAYON: Set. Settlement in the west of RHEA, to the east of the ARCHAEDON^(1.) Mountains. Its main industry is iron-mining (Pop. c. 12,000).

OSSELDOR: m. Myt. His. Per. In the mythologies and ancient histories of ELYDEN, a SCION of the DEMIURGE RACHANAEL. He was a mighty champion who defeated SUHA, the scion of the DEMIURGE ASHTERATH in battle. He later fell in battle against a MESOCHTHON. See Vol IV: Scions. Children of the Gods.

OSSHYL: Set. Small city in the c of OKKHAM (Pop. c. 18,000).

OSSIANIC EDICTS, the: Soc. Vol. A comprehensive series of laws and charters relating to the anti-MAGICKAL movement that rose in OSSIEL in c. 2400 RM. Penned by the SOVEREIGN-MILITANT ILLATHUR, the Edicts remain true to this day and have become a major part of practical life in the state, for better or worse. Each of the seven ARCHZEALOTS of Ossiel carries a meticulously decorated annotated copy of the Edicts as a symbol of their power.

OSSIEL: Dem. 'Ossielan'. Ntn. Wet temperate nation in the west of MENISCEA, east of the SEA OF MIRA. Its people are vehemently secular and are also fanatically opposed to SHAPING and TECHNARCANA due to the teachings of its OTHERWORLDER ruler, the SOVEREIGN-MILITANT ILLATHUR, who rules from a great necropolis called ILLATHURIA.

The people of Ossiel are insular through the edicts of their tyrannical leader, and are of an ancient descent, with many noble houses claiming to trace their ancestry to the FOURTH AGE nation of OLYSSIA and the later FIFTH AGE people of OCCAETIA, the ruins of which still dot its lands.

The nation is famed for its magickal crusades against neighbouring lands which began in c. 2400 RM, reached a crux in c. 2900 Rm, and which are ongoing to this day, albeit with long periods of lulls peppered by intense bursts of activity.

The nation's cultural aversion to shaping and technarcana is due to a reverence of the MATERIA OMNA, which is considered to be perfect. MORTAL meddling would tarnish that, so related practices are outlawed. Despite this, the nation and its people are not backwards, and they remain industrious, making use of traditional technologies in their industries. There exists a loophole though – the HALFBLOOD descendants of Illathur are seen as divine beings and are allowed by birthright to shape and they exist as a caste outside of traditional societal norms. Illathur itself does not shape, though it is believed to be an innately powerful shaper, possibly what is known as a BASILEAN within the KORACHANI EMPIRE.

Its main industries are the cultivation of cotton and OLIVE oil, and it has a monopoly on the mining of IET, which it exports across ELYDEN, and uses to produce jewellery. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

- OSSIKEHONA: 1. Geo. Dre. Region in the c east of THE SURRACH unique in that the entirety of its 8,000-square-mile area is dominated by rock that is indistinguishable from sun-bleached bone. It is thought to be a supranatural feature, attributed to the works of a DEMIURGE in ancient Mythohistory, or possible a DREAMSCAPE or a region of faint ATRAMENTAL TAINT. The bones are mined and, due to their strength and relative light weight, are used in construction and the crafting of fine statues.
 - 2. Set. City in the above region^(1,) renowned for its BONE MINERS and for its artisans who craft objects from the supranatural bone of the region (Pop. c. 14,000).
- OSSIPHRAGA: Set. Human city in the north east of STOLAS. It is ruled by the HALFBLOOD VEGA, a xenophobic tyrant who is worshipped as an idol (Pop. c. 28,000).
- OSSOH: Geo. Basaltic ridge 150-miles long in the c-south east of THE SURRACH, forming the western-most extent of the INOTAHL basin.
- OSSOLITH FOREST: Sup. Geo. For. Region of stone pillars in the west of DHA NAR, thought to have once been a great forest, much of which has sunk into the seas west of Dha Nar. What remains of the forest is now shattered and stone-like, each stump standing like a crumbling butte, fossils of ancient unknown creatures embedded in the surrounding rock.
- OSSOMRU: Sup. Geo. ATRAMENTALLY TAINTED region in the c of the ZHKAA in the south east of TAHALL. It is covered in DUSTSTONE formations and sinkholes, rendering travel difficult.

The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{LEAST CONCERN}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ $\underline{\text{INSTITUTE OF ATRAMENTAL STUDIES}}.$

- OSSRA: 1. also 'Octiran Peninsula'. Geo. Peninsula in the west of PELASGOS, and location of the capital of OCTIRA⁽³⁾. The peninsula slopes to the north from its southern cliffs to the picturesque OCTIRAN Basin⁽²⁾.
 - 2. Sea. Sea in western PELASGOS, forming the southern part of the SEA OF CYPRIA^(1,).
 - 3. Rvr. River in the west of PELASGOS, flowing for 50-miles north from the cliffs of Ossra, before emptying in the Sea of Ossra^(2.).
- OSSUARY OF ST. DEMATER, the: Rel. Str. Ossuary dedicated to ST. DEMATER in the city of OCTIRA in PELASGOS, housing the bones of 80,000 men and women who died during an ancient civil uprising. It is one of the largest ossuaries in the KORACHANI EMPIRE and is maintained by a holy order of monks, who tend to the bones and protect it if from attack, if need be.
- OSSYINIA: Ser. Major coastal city in the c west of the SYCHTAN PREFECTURES. It forms a part of the ISHMMARRAN TRAIL and caters to the many merchants and travellers that cross through it (Pop. c. 210,000).
- OSSYR: 1. Sea. Sheltered bay in the north west of CYHLAGHARR, forming part of the SEA OF DANAEL.
 - 2. Set. Large coastal city in the north west of CYHLAGHARR, overlooking the above bay. The city is renowned for its slavers and piratism; its many fast ships preying on sea-trade and coastal settlements in the western waters of the INNER SEA, venturing as far was the GATE OF EREBETH and even beyond into the SEA OF SERPENTS. The city is renowned for its massive coastal fortifications and the natural levees that guard its western face, making it highly defensible.

It was regraded and relocated after the sea levels lowered drastically by c. 3200 RM and again in 3650 RM (Pop. c. 290,000).

OSTARA, the also 'equinox'. Ast. Cal. In the KORACHANI tongue, a biyearly phenomenon when days and nights are closest to being equal in length; typically, MALICHALEN (March) 21st, and KORAHALEN (September) 22nd, though the dates are not fixed. The event is significant amongst

- many rural and heathen people as it symbolises a balance between day and night. To those initiated in the ways of the FIRMAMENT and ATRAMENTA, these two dates are observed as festivals of equilibrium.
- OSTARAN: Set. Settlement in the east of RHEA, just south of the river ENNOIA. Its main industry is cotton growing (Pop. c. 6,000).
- OSTEIA: Pol. Regional rulers in MHAROKK and LIDEA. The title has existed since c. 950 RM and is kratocratic, based on ruling values that are traditional in the regions. The practice was maintained in Lidea following its annexation by the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO in 3705 RM.
- OSTEOMANCY: 1. Mys. Traditionally, a form of divination by the reading bones. It is considered a form of charlatanism today.
- 2. Sup. Rnk. Following the rise of TECHNARCANA and the modernisation of ATRAMENTISM, the term osteomancy became associated with a field of technarcana concerned with the manipulation and experimentation with bones.
- OSTIOLATRA: 1. Geo. Expansive region in the far north of PORPHYR, known for its honeycomb-like rock and pitted surfaces.
- 2. Geo. Specifically, the cave-system in the above region with many entrances and sinkholes that lead to a linked network that reaches deep into the POROPHOSSYR Mountains.
- OSTIS: Rui. Ancient ruined city in the south east of CHEIRA. The city, though overgrown, its stone walls held together by little more than the weight of roots covering them, bear testament to a complex if primordial culture with early instances of post-DEMIURGE theism.
- OSTODON: Geo. Wasteland in the south of SHAZGIN, with marrow-like rock formations.
- OSTOS: Lak. Lake in the south of AHKA, fed by the river ALANAD.
- OSTOYAN: Set. City that appeared around the old colosseum of PERGOST, where the Federation was first agreed upon in 3721 RM. It has since become an unofficial capital of the federation, with the coliseum restored and used as the headquarters where diplomats and envoys from across Pergost travel to take part on councils (Pop. c. 180,000).
- OSTRACHAN: His. Set. KORACHANI colony that settled the northern coast of SAMMAEA, in the far north of KHARKHARADONTIS, overlooking the SEA OF UGOLOTH in c. 2100 RM. An earthquake struck the region in 2166 RM severely damaging the city and killing many inhabitants, and Korachan would later abandon it following this, thinking the city had been destroyed. Though damaged, it would recover from the earthquake, the people who had previously scattered from it returning, coming to trade with ANDILUTH in the west and TARTAK in the east, eventually becoming part of the SALT ROAD.

Contact with merchants of the Salt Road brought prosperity to the region and new settlements were established as eastern culture thrived, and by c. 2300 RM it had become known as OSTROHAN.

Further contact with the east brought SIRIPHAGAN merchant-lords to the region, who married into its own nobility, establishing a new plutocratic regime. This new regime founded the city of TRINITANIA⁽²⁾ as their capital, securing their control of the entire region and overseeing all trade in the surrounding area, which by c. 2500 RM had become known as the Free Land of Trinitania^(1,1).

- OSTROHAN: Set. Fortified coastal city in the Free Land of TRINITANIA^(1.) northern coast of SAMMAEA, in the far north of KHARKHARADONTIS, overlooking the SEA OF UGOLOTH. It is a major mercantile centre and goods traded from across the SALT ROAD reach its deep harbours before making their way north over the sea (Pop. c. 55,200).
- OSURPRA: Set. Small city in the east of SERROK (Pop. c. 16,000).

OSVALT: Geo. Hills in the c of VALBAR^(2.).

OT: (D. c. 2903 RM) Rel. TEMUIAN fire goddess and ancestral leader in Temuja, descendant of the Legend MAGHORA. She is one of the most powerful SHAPERS in Temujan history, a disciple of the highest order of the SPHERES of fire. She was a celebrated leader in her life, renowned for leading three wars against the ALMAS, liberating much of north eastern Temuja from KASPIAN occupiers, and for reuniting tribes that fragmented in the decades after the Legend Maghora's death. She died a powerful well-respected elder and her SPIRIT has been revered ever since, her name evoking more power with every passing generation. By a thousand years after her death, Ot has been elevated to the status of demigoddess in Temuja, taking a place alongside the Legend Maghora.

OTAAR: Set. Fortified city in the south west of the tribe of ESSENIA, in the south of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. The city lies close to the border with PNESSA, and trades south with the nation (Pop. c. 38,000).

OTAGHAR: Set. Settlement in the c north of the MULL CITY-STATES (Pop. c. 7,200).

OTAII: Ser. Settlement in the south of SEDISIA. Its main industry is the production of plum wine (Pop. c. 6,000).

OTALGIA: Sea. Sea in the east of SAMMAEA, forming the eastern-most part of the SEA OF LETHEA, at the border between the nations of PORPHYR, SABAISA, and ANANTHUL. Its waters are largely unaffected by the amnesia that the Sea of Lethea is known for, though those spending prolonged time in its waters can feel aches.

OTEAL: Mil. Str. Major fortress in the far east of the tribe of ESSENIA, in the c south west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER.

OTEGAAN: Mil. Str. DURCHAAN outpost in the WHITE SHEET, in the far north of LLACHATUL, used as the starting point for many expeditions into the White Sheet.

OTESATABANT: Sec. Small fortified city in the far north west of BANT, in the east of SAMMAEA, overlooking the contested territories with AMPHISCARA (Pop. c. 14,000).

OTGHALLA: Set. Settlement in south west of the MULL CITY-STATES, close to the river TENASAAR that forms a border with the east of HOLOLACH^(1.) (Pop. c. 5,000).

OTH HABBAY: Set. Fortified settlement in the north of IACIO, along the course of river PURANAR (Pop. c. 5,800).

OTH MAMAKHA: also 'the Steaming fields'. Geo. Expansive region in the c-south east of the nation of DURCHAA, known to be geothermically active. The area is named after the steam that is constantly seen escaping from the ground, which has resulted in it being one of the few areas that is now covered in snow, ice, or permafrost.

 \underline{OTHA} : Set. Small city in the c south west of \underline{ELAT} . Its main industry is the mining of zinc (Pop. c. 12,000).

OTHACHA: Geo. Mountains in the north of KORACHAN, forming a southern extension of the RHAECHA Mountains, leading to foothills just north of the city of CLOTHO.

OTHALANT: Geo. Large massif in WESTERN SAMMAEA, dominating the south of the VESPERTINE LEAGUE and stretching west into the far south east of the CITIZENRY OF THALI.

OTHAMA: Rui. City in the north of NORTHERN SIMBARA that in 3973 RM was attacked by MAENMIST in retaliation of SIMBARAN opposition of its withdrawal from the NACRE ROAD economic area during the NACRE WAR. The attack was made with ATRAMENTAL BOMBS that levelled the city, which at the time had a population of around 472,000, and rendering the entire area uninhabitable to this day. The attack soured relations between Maenmist and its neighbours, and it remains isolated from foreign politics and economies to this day.

OTHAMAN: Set. Fortified coastal settlement on the far east of the island of ALETARA in the south of LIMOTH^(1.). Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 6,400).

 $\underline{OTHAMEL} \hbox{: $Geo.$ Limestone formations in the north west of $\underline{JURRAS}^{(2)}$. *}$

OTHAN: Rvr. River in the north of MALAN flowing from the NIYAN Mountain into the SEA OF ELRI.

OTHAR: Set. Settlement in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of NICAEA.

OTHASY: Set. Cave-settlement in the south east of LYRIDIA, in the region of SYSHALLIH. It is one of the larger settlements in the south east. The city itself is situated along the face of a long cliff along the south west of Syshallih, and runs for some miles, though a large part of the city remains subterranean (Pop. c. 12,800).

OTHAUR: Set. Settlement south of the river THAUR in the south of ARKOS⁽¹⁾. It is a major producer of platinum (Pop. c. 10,000).

OTHEOTOKOS, THE SEER: (B. 3969 RM) shaper based in the city of MADOUR^(2.). In 4002 RM he was placed in charge of seeing engine polls within the fortress od the IMPERIAL ARMY there, and shortly after became plagued by visions of a child bathed in the sun being born.

OTHERA: His. Ntn. Ancient FIFTH AGE nation that emerged in what is now the far south of ADHERA and the south east of SYNCHTHONITHA. Its capital was situated in what is now the city of KEELA.

OTHERBORN TERRITORIES, the; see MEGHRANIZ BHOOKH.

OTHERLIFE the: Oth. Mys. In the study of the OTHERWORLD and OTHERWORLDERS, the period of gestation of the SPIRIT (1.) of a MORTAL who has died. During this gestation the spirit returns to the otherworld and remains there with the spirits of other dead and as-yet unborn mortals. It is generally the spirits of dead mortals that are contacted by ASTRALLY PROJECTING SHAPERS (as opposed to the spirits of the as-yet unborn), as they are most-likely to possess information useful to mortals.

At some point during this gestation, which can last for an arbitrary amount of time ranging from hours to millennia, the spirit will 'burn out' and disappear. In its place an otherworlder will appear on the MATERIAL PLANE, often with little-to-no memory of the events of its mortal life or spiritual gestation.

OTHERWORLD, the: also 'Realm of the Dead'. Oth. Sup. Phil. Rel. Supranatural realm where SPIRITS dwell in the AFTERLIFE both before the birth of their MORTAL vessel and following their death, before their possible rebirth as OTHERWORLDERS.

It is a realm of thought and is immaterial, appearing differently to anyone who sees it or observes it.

It is inaccessible by mundane means though SHAPERS can ASTRALLY PROJECT there and there have been TECHNARCANE engines built that allow people to view the otherworld (such as the aetheric resonator).

OTHERWORLD WARS, the: Pol. Mil. His. War fought by the FOURTH AGE. Little is known of this warm for tis events were not recorded.

OTHERWORLDER: Oth. The SOULS of dead MORTALS reborn onto the MATERIAL PLANE in physical form. After death, a mortal's SPIRIT separates from the body and transmigrates to the OTHERWORLD, where it gestates as a 'STAR'\(^{12}\) (different to an astronomical star, though largely indistinguishable to mortals on Elyden observing the night sky) for a seemingly arbitrary amount of time (which can range from instantaneous to millennia, or longer) before being reborn. The rebirth sees the star extinguished; its vitality transferred into a new physical body that appears in ELYDEN in a blast of stellar energy.

The form that each otherworlder takes varies greatly, and they are typically alien in appearance, with often grotesque or fantastical features that many mortals find disturbing yet fascinating.

In classical times they were thought to fulfil a role similar to that of a psychopomp, but guiding the living instead of the dead. However today, after centuries of research and observation, this school of thought has been dismissed and though many theories have been proposed, the truth is that we simply do not know their purpose, if even they have one.

A recent theory that is gaining traction is that otherworlders are nature's attempt at replicating ancient attempts at creating an immortal people. As detailed in the MYTHOLOGIA ELYDEN, the mortal peoples are but inferior forms of a greater idealised being that became corrupted by the actions of the DEMIURGES.

Most otherworlders are capable of copulating with mortals, and many are fertile, with their progeny known as HALFBLOODS, which inherit some of their otherworldly sire's traits, which diminish with each passing generation and the dilution their bloodline.

The Mythologia Elyden mentions mortals being gifted spirits in the First Age of Mortal Life, and in the Second Age of Mortal Life the spirits were altered to give mortals the gift of choice and the ability to see right from wrong, which was likely responsible for the ancient belief that there were two forms of otherworlders – angels and demons, which returned to Elyden to guide or tempt mortals, respectively. At this time the spirit would harden within the mortal body after death, growing into a SOULSTONE, which would go on to become valuable commodities. The Second Age ended with the final apotheosis of the spirit, and in the place of a soulstone growing in the deceased's body, it would instead transmigrate to the otherworld in the hopes of later becoming an otherworlder.

The Church of the Undying Machine and its offshoots have had a difficult history with otherworlders and their stance towards them have different with each other over history and region. Today, the Church's stance is largely arbitrary and self-serving, using otherworlders to further its own standing and agenda. It will often make a puppet of a popular otherworlder in an area it needs to strengthen its presence in, elevating it to the status of a saint and declaring it an agent of MALICHAR or the UNDYING MACHINE, though not all otherworlder (and, more importantly, their followers) are open to such manipulation, leading to politically messy situations. However, it largely distances itself from them these days, even going so far as to demonising them as well as halfbloods, to a lesser extent.

In the past, otherworlders and their offspring became scapegoats for fearmongers, and were forced to endure around two millennia of bigotry, largely due to the treatise 'ISAWHANIM' penned by the historian ARRAM OZIO, who argued that they posed an intrinsic threat to mortals, who were the true heirs of the MATERIAL PLANE. This attitude began to lessen in the early fourth millennium, until the present status quo in which halfbloods are a common-enough sight in most urban areas and which are generally accepted. There is more racism towards otherworlders in general, largely due to their unearthly nature and supranatural abilities, though attitudes have softened greatly since the dark days brought by the Isawhanim. See Vol II: Classification and Taxonomy of Life; and Vol IV: the Afterlife and the Spirit.

OTHERWORLDER, CHURCH OF THE: Rel. Str. Large church in the city of Thali in the CITIZENRY OF THALI, where the PERENNIAL PAEAN has been taking place since 3217 RM.

OTHERWORLDER, CULT OF: Int. Phil. Org. loosely-connected cult with cells across southern LLACHATUL and the north of SAMMAEA and beyond, whose members follow a particular regimen in the hopes of influencing their chances of being reborn as OTHERWORLDERS. They live frugal lives, and seek to educate themselves in world philosophies in the hopes of broadening their mind. It is unknown if their methods are of any consequence, but they adhere to them religiously,

They are most common in LIDEA and MHAROKK, though can be found in most major cities across the INNER SEA, with outposts in most territories. They have been a ubiquitous sight for the past century and are known to most people, even though their beliefs may not be largely-accepted.

OTHERWORLDER'S HEAD, the: (15,750-ft.) Geo. Highest peak of the AHSET Mountains, and site of a gigantic mummified OTHERWORLDER'S head.

OTHERWORLDER'S LISTING, the: Int. Vol. Major directory divided into several volumes penned and kept by the OFFICE OF LINEARCHS in BAESHA, in which the lineages and bloodlines of hundreds of OTHERWORLDERS are kept. Office genealogists (typically known as LINEARCHS) travel across ELYDEN interviewing people, HALFBLOODS and otherworlders where possible, collecting anecdotes and family histories in the hopes of expanding on their knowledge.

Various copies of the Listing exist across Elyden, most of them kept by government institutions or archives, though many may be centuries out of date.

OTHMOR: Set. Coastal settlement in the south of the emirate of LIMOTH⁽²⁾, In Limoth⁽¹⁾. It faces the delta of the river ATROTHA⁽¹⁾, across the Bay of Atrotha⁽²⁾ and is known for its fishing fleet (Pop. c. 6.900).

OTHOLOSH: Set. Only major city in AETHIOS situated to the west of the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾. It is connected to other cities to the east by ferries that cross the Shibboleth (Pop. c. 115,000).

OTHOR: Geo. Massif in the south of AHKA.

OTHOROKK: Pol. Ser. Capital city of SHEZALIAH, in the south east of SAMMAEA. It is known for its expansive fortress-like stone-necropolis, which dominates its centre-most expanses, and which displays the mummies of ancient rulers. It is home of the $\underline{BIMARID\ CROWN}$ (Pop. c. 107,000).

OTHOTEL: 1. Pol. Geo. One of five emirates of the SECULAR EMIRATES OF LIMOTH, located to the far west of the nation, bordering the east of THETIS.

The other states are DEITHO^(1.), LIMOTH^(2.), NIMALO^(1.), and UKOLIST.

2. Pol. Set. Capital city of the eponymous emirate within LIMOTH^(1.), located in the south west of the emirate, along the banks of the river SHARATHA^(2.) (Pop. C. 156,000).

OTHRO OF HABBAR: (B. 2694 – D. 2776 RM) Sup. AZAZEMI FIRMAMENTIST born in the city of HABBAR. He began his training as an ATRAMENTAL SHAPER, though after learning that he had an affinity for the Firmament, abandoned his teachings and travelled east, settling in KHAMID in c. 2729 RM. He wrote the ATLAS OF THE OTHERWORLD whilst in Khamid, compiling his findings on the nature of the OTHERWORLD and its inhabitants.

OTHROD: Geo. Highland plains in the c west of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS. The plains' lowest point is at the border with ATEVEGOS, and is 2,420-ft. in elevation and comprises most of the territories of the tribes of CHRIL and TATRAS.

OTHUR HALL: Rel. Rul. A corrupted idol of ASHTERATH worshipped by the tribe of Drakaina in the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER.

OTID: Set. Settlement in the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of MEDES^(1.) (Pop. c. 7,000).

OTINA: Set. Small city in the west of LAASKHA, along the path of THE SHADOW MARCH. The settlement arose relatively recently in c. 3600 – 3700 RM, and serves the spiritual and physical needs of the march, though recently has become a staging post for military activity in the war against AHKA (Pop. c. 36,400).

OTINDHAR: Geo. Mountain in the c west of SARASTRO, its northern face is the source of the BLACK RIVER and its southern-face is a source of the now-dry river SINA, that flowed west and north, its dry canyon forming a natural border between Sarastro and IO.

OTINTH: 1. Dem. 'Otinthian'. Ntn. Located in the south west of LLACHATUL, this insular nation is gifted with an idyllic climate and is dominated by terraced farmlands and pastures that have been cultivated over millennia, replacing the forests that once called the region home. Its north west is dominated by the URAHASH Massif, an expansive rocky highland region, noted for its cold wet weather.

The Autocracy was formed in 2735 RM, with the growth of a cult of personality that emerged around a self-proclaimed SCION known as THE VHOCENT who over the span of a few years managed to stand against the VETHRANDAN theocracy that had stood unopposed for over a millennium, toppling it when he single-handedly destroyed the capital city of EVHRAN in a blast of pure ATRAMENTAL energy that obliterated the entirety of the ruling caste, leaving Vethranda leaderless and vulnerable to his propaganda. With the theocracy destroyed, he was able to instate his closest followers – a group of shapers collectively known as THE PARLIAMENT, indoctrinated to his secret teachings – into power, where they continue to rule to this day.

Under the leadership of the Vhocent, Otinth has become an isolationist and paranoid nation that forbids foreign travel within its borders and which refuses to take part in world trade. This has left it technologically and culturally backwards, and its people ignorant to the ways of the world.

Little is known of the culture or people of Otinth, though their devotion to the Vhocent is believed to be absolute, bordering on a cult that has come to dominate most aspects of life in the nation.

Of note is the region of ATILIPHO, which is heavy in deep UMBRA reserves and exists at the border with SEDISIA. It has been empty since the expulsion of the KORACHANI colony of OHDURTAR from the area in 2641 RM. Both Otinth and Sedisia have claimed this area as their own since then, leading to it being contested. As part of each nations' claim to the land, the smaller area of ARROKAN must also remain unclaimed, and the borders of both it and Atilipho are heavily fortified, and the political climate between both remains tense to this day. See Vol III: Extant Realms and Nations.

2. Pol. Sec. City and capital in the eponymous nation. It emerged as a major city in the theocracy of VETHRANDA in c. 2520 RM and welcomed the SCION known as THE VHOCENT with open arms following his arrival to Vethranda in 2732 RM. From there he gained a major following and used his powers of shaping to annihilate the city of EVHRAN. The attack left Vethranda leaderless, wallowing in chaos. From Otinth he appointed a PARLIAMENT of shapers and founded the nation of Otinth (1.), forsaking the old name of Vethrand.

The city of Otinth remains the capital to this day, though very little is known of it (Pop. c. 600,000).

- OTIPHA: Set. City in the south of OPHIUSSA along the course of the river OTRA. It is home to a CHAPTER (2.) of the WHITE LEAGUE (Pop. c. 45,000).
- OTIXO: Set. Small city in the c north of SURUTUR. It is known for its mahout schools. Many established mahout households have their roots here before becoming established in other nations, such as RHEA and IACIO (14,000).
- OTIUS: Pol. Set. Coastal capital city of KRENN, located to the south of the nation, overlooking the coast of GHAYATTAN. The city is relatively recent, having been founded on reclaimed land in 3676 RM (Pop. c. 280,500).
- OTLIS: Set. Small city in the west of AETHIOS, in the region of ATHAPEN (Pop. c. 14,000).
- OTODA: Geo. Region of mesas in the UPPER DANOSATH Mountains in the south of the territories of ETHISTONITH in RHINOCOLOURA. The mesas are noted for their moss-covered tops.
- OTOGOR: Set. Settlement 16-miles north east of the capital city of LIRAET in the south of TARTAK. The settlement, like many others in the region is a satellite of Liraet and provide much of its food. It also serves as a stop along the SALT ROAD, feeding the merchants and porters that cross its borders (Pop. c. 5,800).
- OTOHOST: Geo. Shallow caves in the south east of PERGOST, in the far south east of the DANTIS mountains. The rocks surrounding the caves are made of a soft limestone that, after years of extreme weather and thawing ice, have formed a vast network of shallow caves, most of which are too small for mortal exploration.

The caves are also home to gigantic salamanders that dwell in subterranean pools, emerging only in month-long summer sun.

- OTONORS: Rui. Abandoned city in the west of AETHIOS. It was once a growing city that appeared on the shore of lake AESAPIA⁽²⁾, which appeared following the damming of the river SHIBBOLETH⁽³⁾ in 2943 RM. The destruction of the dam in 3017 RM stymied the growth of the city, and within decades it was struggling to maintain its population. It was dwindled greatly after this, and was eventually abandoned in c. 3050 RM.
- OTRA: Rvr. River in the south of OPHIUSSA flowing south for 100-miles from lake ACANA to the coast at the SEA OF SERPENTS.
- OTRAKK: Set. Coastal settlement in the south west of PNESSA, overlooking the GULF OF SAURIAR. Its main industry is fishing (Pop. c. 8,000).
- \underline{OTRANT} : 1. Sea. Bay in the south west of $\underline{SAMMAEA}$, to the south east of the SEA OF AMMASH.
 - 2. Set. Major coastal city in the north of Vaun, overlooking the above bay^(1,). It emerged as a centre of the nacre industry and has since grown to dominate miles of the coastline (Pop. c. 87,000).
- OTRIN: Set. Farming settlement in SABIA, in the delta of the river ALLASH (Pop. c. 6,000).
- \underline{OTRNAT} : Set. Settlement in the south of the prefecture of $\underline{HOLICHRIS}$ in the c of $\underline{HOLOLACH}^{(1.)}$.
- OTROST: Geo. Small bay in the south west of the SEA OF BIELOST in SABIA.
- OTRU: Set. Settlement in the north west of the tribe of HAVATH in the south east of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 5,500).
- OTRUKA: Set. Small city in the south east of THE OLD FOREST, north of the ADDA Mountains. The city and its satellites are known for their stone beehives, and its honey is said to be the best in all of LLACHATUL (Pop. unknown).

- OTTAR: Mil. Str. Major fortress of the DESOLATI, in northern SHOTHA. It was once of the first regions settled by the DESOLATI following the WAR OF THE ARTIFEXES and remains a major stronghold.
- OTTIR BRANA: Mil. Str. Coastal fort in the far south east of EZASUH^(2.), overlooking the passage into the SEA OF LIAKARRA.
- OTTONO: Set. Major coastal city in the north of EZASUH⁽²⁾. Its primary industries were once clam and sea asparagus farming, though these have dwindled in importance as the city has grown, though they do remain important to its culture (Pop. c. 815,500).
- OTUCHTHON: Geo. Cave-system in the north east of GNOTH, to the south of the eastern-most reaches of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains. The caves are known for their dark river that flow south, emerging at the 'source' of the river YATHAROTH. The caverns are known to be a refuge to various giant colourless salamanders, which are the apex predators there.
- OTTUSARA: Pol. Soc. Com. Bus. PATRICIAN HOUSE renowned for its incredible generational wealth, most of which was garnered over many centuries of a holding the controlling interest in the WHITE BANK, which it helped found in 1592 RM.

The house has assets across Elyden, with many territories in TARTAK, JURRAS⁽²⁾ and HOLOLACH, and it controls its assets from the mighty fortress of TERAMA UNA in the INNORADOS Mountains in Jurras. Its present PATERFAMILIA is REVAHAZ OTTUSARA VIII, who is thought by many to be the wealthiest mortal in ELYDEN. See Vol II: Patrician Houses.

OTUTU: Geo. Island off the western-coast of TZALLRACH.

- OUAT HASH: Rvr. River in the north of LIDEA, flowing west for some 150-miles from sources in the BURKAN Mountains before meeting coast at the BAY OF MHARKA.
- OUBATRETH: Rvr. River in the east of THETIS, flowing south west for 470-miles from sources in the KOTHA ICHOLLIGHA Mountains, before meeting lake TARAHA.
- OUBLIETTE: Med. Tec. Str. Dungeon-laboratories of the BIONACHA.
- OUDISS: Ind. Set. Small fortified city in the north west of PARAIYA. It is dominated by an expansive open cast gold mine, which serves as a prison and hard labour camp to dissenters from across Paraiya. The mines are heavily guarded, though escape is not uncommon. It is believed that most escapees die in the wilderness while trying to leave the area (Pop. c. 14,000).
- $\underline{\text{OUISH}}$: Rvr. River in the north of $\underline{\text{LIDEA}}$, flowing for 225-miles from sources in the north of the $\underline{\text{ORIAN}}$ Mountains before meeting the mouth of the river $\underline{\text{SHIBBOLETH}}^{(3)}$, at the $\underline{\text{BAY OF MHARKA}}$.
- OURANASSA: Pol. Soc. Tribe in the south west of MULCIBER, in the GROWING MOUNTAINS, in the north east of SAMMAEA. It is a major stronghold of the AHHAS, who enjoy a more elevated status than they do in other regions. Its sect of the cult of NEPHTHALONT is closest to the original religion that prevailed before the assassination of the God-king.
- OURED HAMMAD: Rvr. River in the c of the SULTANATE OF

 ABACARDAT, flowing north for 800-miles from seasonal sources in the MARD and UHBATAQI Mountains, before meeting the BITTER SEA.
- OURED OHMAR: Rvr. Seasonal river in the south west of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT flowing as a result of snowmelt in the highlands to the south. When at its fullest, it flows for some 675-miles north into the BITTER SEA.
- OURED OUMAQ: Rvr. River in the c north of the SULTANATE OF ABACARDAT flowing north west from seasonal sources in the MARD Mountains before reaching lake EINA.
- OUSIAN: Set. Settlement in the c north of GNOTH (Pop. c. 4,000).
- OUTANIA: Set. Settlement in the south west of PARAIYA, in the north west of the BELLN. Its main industry is agriculture and it provides food and provisions to caravans travelling the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 6,300).
- OUTER GODS: Rel. Dei. One of two pantheons of the ETHER-ZOTHAZA religion of the ETHERI nomads of the UMBRA SOKHAR, the other being the INNER GODS. The Outer Gods are unknowable and distant, and are seen by the priesthood of the etheri as being unreachable and so distant and alien as to be ignorant and uncaring of the matters of mortals.

Scholars postulate that the Outer Gods may be a corrupt representation of the Two-and-Twenty DEMIURGES, though if this is case the entities in the pantheon have been warped so much from the original representation of the Demiurges as to be different entities entirely.

The etheri fear the Outer Gods, yet do not pray to them, and in most cases do not even acknowledge them openly due to superstition, however they do know that their actions and the reactions of the world around them are all governed by their whims.

Many of the godheads scattered around the Umbra Sokhar are believed to be attributed to early representations of the Outer Gods, before the religion turned to the worship of the Inner Gods.

OUTOCHAN: Rui. Once a major KORACHANI city in the north east of KORACHAN. At its peak in 3720 RM, it boasted a population of around 340,000 and was a major industrial centre that was also renowned for its large public gardens that continued an ancient GERICIAN horticultural tradition.

It was left devastated in 3891 RM when a LANDSHIP carrying volatile ATRAMENTAL chemicals from VÂRR suffered a catastrophic malfunction that ended in it exploding. The wreck burnt for weeks afterwards, spewing toxic flames into the air and leeching ATRAMENTAL CORRUPTION into the earth just outside the city. The years following this saw a massive spike in congenital birth defects and cases of AEPATHY and other Atramental ailments. The bedrock on which the city was built became brittle, causing many of its larger structures to collapse into sinkholes. By c. 3930 RM the city had been largely abandoned, with those remaining doing so out of desperation or because they were physically incapable of leaving. In 3952 RM the city was raided by the Korachani army, with the intention of culling the population. What they found was a deplorable cesspit dominated by Atramental corruption, in which dwelt pitiful creatures that were more akin to DEGENERATES than HUMANS.

Today, the city has been omitted from all maps, and the army maintains a perimeter around the city – or what remains of it – to discourage people from entering, and, perhaps more importantly, to stop anything from leaving.

OUTPOSTS OF THE GOD-MACHINE: see DUNTAL I' UD'YO-TECHNADEUS.

OUTSIDER: see EMPYREAN SPECTRE.

OVARAC: Geo. Reef in the east of the BHALASSIAN ARCHIPELAGO⁽²⁾. of the PANTHEON ISLES, to the east of LLACHATUL.

OVARAM: Geo. Dry badlands region in the west of the BARRIER LANDS, to the south of the SILMA Mountains, situated along the TROPIC OF RAH.

OVATE, the: Pol. Cult-leader who emerged in ANUBIA in c. 3805 RM, spreading word of the CULT OF MAEG throughout the ARID TRIPTYCH. An extremist, he clashed with the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO and the CULT OF THE SPHINX many times over the next century. His longevity and multiple unconfirmed sightings since the quelling of the cult of Maeg in 3912 RM have led scholars to believe the Ovate is but a title amongst the cult.

OVERCOUNCIL: also 'Diwan'. Pol. Org. Ruling council in the REFORMED EMPIRE OF SARASTRO, often compared with the COUNCIL OF SEVEN of the HIGH-EMPIRE OF KORACHAN. It is composed of dozens of fluctuating members, many of which are elected through nepotism or which are otherwise sycophants of SATHEP THE RISEN, and are based in the city of ARGEA.

It has its origins in a far older organisation that was implemented after a civil war caused by the SECULAR DISSOLUTION, which ended with the political weakening of Sathep, and the formation of the Overcouncil in 1532 RM.

Originally made up of emirs and patricians sympathetic to the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE, Sathep was able to slowly corrupt them to his cause, turning most of them to UMBRAPHAGY, supplying them with all the UMBRA they could need. With most of the Overcouncil under his control, he was able to restore his strength, and in 2974 RM he silently rid himself of the handful of disloyal Overcouncil members, with the remaining members serving as puppets. This forced the HOLY STATE OF HAGRADEA to supplicate itself to him, reuniting Sarastro

Since then, the Overcouncil has remained a puppet entity, its members only serving to further the goals of Sathep, with many claiming that he has full control over many of the members.

Following the independence of Sarastro and Sathep's reorganisation of the government in 3728 RM, the Overcouncil was renamed the IMPERIAL DIWAN (or simply the Diwan), though most continue to call it the Overcouncil.

OVERLAY: Sup. Geo. In the study of the OTHERWORLD, an overlay is a region where the link between the otherworld and the MATERIAL PLANE is particularly strong, making it easier for SHAPERS who interact with the otherworld and SPIRITS (1.) to SHAPE. The same is also true of spirits, who find it easier to interact with the Material Plane and its denizens in such regions, which can vary greatly in size.

Overlays can be dangerous to MORTALS due to the ease with which spirits can interact with them, and many overlays situated close to inhabited areas are cordoned off and/or guarded from entry by shapers adept in otherworldly shaping, such as ANIMISTS or SULRACHARIIN. In other cases, the overlay may lead to a fortress or settlement appearing nearby, where shapers and other scholars study its effects on the Material Plane.

The term overlay can also apply to regions where the link between Material Plane and the DREAMWORLD are particularly strong.

OVERSEER: Atr. Rnk. Org. Commanding rank within the GRIGORIAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, standing above the ranks of the SEERS⁽³⁾. Like the Seers, they too are shapers, typically PROGNOSTICARIIN (diviners) or PROCULIN (farseers), and they guide the Orders' surveillance across the EMPIRE and beyond, coordinating the efforts of individual Seers to work towards often undisclosed goals of the Order.

OVHE: Set. Settlement in the south east of CHEIRA, close to the floodplains of the river YAGNOTH PHATHAN. Its main industry is the cultivation and drying of reeds used in construction (Pop. c. 4,000).

OVIO: Set. Settlement in the region of KARAXHANES of the south west of the mainland PANTHEON ISLES (Pop. c. 6,000).

OVIUYL: Mil. Str. Fortress in the north west of ALAM BETHYL, in the north of the territory of QRED^(1.). It is a bulwark against the attentions of the CALLOW HORDES, who often cross the border from the LOST DEMESNE into Alam Bethyl. The fortress is a hub of a large defensive network in the north west of Alam Bethyl, that spans over 50-miles and dozens of fortresses and towers, whose soldiers patrol the frigid wastes for foes.

OVOO: Rel. Str. Burial sites in PERGOST. Bodies are buried close to one another, each covered in small stones until a mound is formed. The bodies, frozen by the harsh climate, remain largely in state. During certain familial festivals, the bodies are uncovered and venerated.

OVOT VORPI: Set. City in the east of CHEIRA (Pop. unknown).

OXAHIL: Set. City in the north west of the tribe of USAR, in the west of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It forms part of the SALT ROAD (Pop. c. 39,000).

OXAL: Set. Fortified settlement in the north of ALLASAN, 4-miles from the border with VAALK (Pop. c. 10,000).

OXTER: Sea. Large bay off the north western coast of SAMMAEA, slowly shrinking from the diminishing of ELYDEN'S seas. The retreat of the coastline there has revealed various ancient coastal ruins thought to have belonged to an ancient MERILL empire. The ruins are constructed from a light stone with a soapy texture and are shunned by locals.

OXYS: Rvr. River in the north east of LIDEA, flowing north for 150-miles from lake CATHA. It is known to be mineral rich.

OYAAN: Set. Settlement in the c north east of TEMUJA (Pop. c. 17,500).

OYUAN: 1. Rvr. Freshwater wetlands in the c of RAONGEN⁽²⁾ along the western shore of lake TAHONG. The wetlands are fed by various rivers, including the river AOGILI. The wetlands are home to diverse wildlife, perhaps most famously its spotted salamanders, which can grow to around 9-ft. long.

2. Geo. System of shallow caverns in the c of RAONGEN⁽²⁾, to the west of lake TAHONG. They are half-submerged, with lots of sinkholes and sky windows linking them to the surface. The entire system is expansive, and individual caverns can be the size of a city block, and are linked together

- by shallow tunnels and other smaller chambers. The caverns are home to various small animals, such as crabs, fish and SALAMANDERS, all of which are pale and accustomed to the isolated habitat.
- OZAGMA: Rvr. River in the south east of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR, flowing west and north for 500-miles before reaching its parent, the river LAUL EGLEA.
- OZAR: Lak. Lake in the north of the HENDECARCHY of CHLORIS in the south west of MALAN. It forms a part of the course of the river OZAGMA and is situated to the north of the EGEAHAR Steppes.
- OZEL: Set. Conurbation in the c of AZAZEM, on the north eastern foothills of the AAORA Mountains, known for its iron quarries. In 3243 RM the town was settled by the aschismatic EMEMETH JACEN, whose divergent beliefs had him excommunicated from the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE (Pop. c. 13,000).
- OZGADORA: Int. Geo. Blasted expanse in the west of the KHARKHARADONTID desert, to the east of the MARKED PALL, partially within the north eastern territories of the MARKED PALL. The region is mildly ATRAMENTAL in nature, with the terrain slowly changing, with hills rising and falling, tearing into cliffs or collapsing into deep sinkholes. Those travelling across its lands must be aided by ETHERI nomads who have esoteric means of navigating the changing landscape.
 - The region is categorised as a $\underline{\text{LEAST CONCERN}}$ by the $\underline{\text{KORACHANI}}$ Institute of Atramental Studies.
- OZGUR: Lak. Lake in the south east of the HENDECARCHY of LONAR, forming a part of the river OZAGMA.

- OZMANTHA: 1. Rvr. River in the c of SALOROC, flowing north for 160-miles from sources in the MIRADOR Mountains before emptying in the BAY OF ELAPHA in the SEA OF SUN.
 - 2. Set. City in the far north of SALOROC, overlooking the STRAIT OF SUN. any link with the river of the same name is unknown (Pop. c. 24,800).
- OZOLL: 1. Rvr. River in the east of OKKHAM flowing south for 4000-miles from sources in the NESAE and Okkhami Mountains^(1.), before reaching the wetlands of Ozoll to the north west of the SEA OF KHURSA.
- 2. Rvr. Salty marshlands making up a 75-mile stretch of the river Ozoll⁽¹⁾, close to its estuary.
- OZOLL PECZHEAT: Geo. Large valley in the c east of OKKHAM, between the NESAE and Okkhami Mountains, to the west and east respectively. The river OZOLL flows through it.
- OZURNIA: Rvr. River flowing from the northern face of the ARECANTHEA Mountains for 140-miles in c eastern LAASKHA, before joining with the far larger river AHAABARIPAR.
- OZZARUN: Geo. Major mountain range in the east of KAZZAR, in the north of SAMMAEA, stretching for over 600-miles from north to south. Its western face has a shallow incline and is characterised by rough terrain and deep valleys and gorges through which flow many rivers to the north east, which empty in the SEA OF ESCHATA.
- OZZUM: Rvr. River in the south of ALAM BETHYL, flowing east for 500-miles from sources in the far east of the NARAHASAPHAEL Mountains and the northern face of the DIVUMMA Mountains, before meeting its parent, the river KEGHOK.

P

PAAN: Set. City in the region of NEVAIHM in the south of THE SURRACH in the north west of SAMMAEA. It was once part of the DAAZI confederacy though broke away in 3521 RM. The city is recognised as an ancient place with anachronistic customs by KORACHANI explorers who visited the land in c. 2600 RM, and most of its knowledge of the region comes from their accounts.

It is known throughout THE SURRACH for its mystics, who are said to have protected the city and its satellites for centuries (Pop. c. 87,500).

PAARA: 1. Rvr. River in the north of PARAIYA, flowing north into its parent, the river SHIBBOLETH^(3,).

PAARUTA: Set. Small coastal city in the c north of KAZZAR. It is a major producer of Thyme and other herbs (Pop. c. 16,200).

PAAT: Geo. Roughlands just south east of the BASILICA OF HOLY BLOOD in the south west of VENTHIR that cover around 40,000 square-miles of area. The basin is cossetted by the URIACHIS Mountain in the north west and the SHANA Mountains⁽¹⁾ in the north east and is crossed by those undertaking THE SHADOW MARCH, as they move east from the Basilica, to the monument of SYMARI.

PACHOMIA: 1. Geo. Arid region in the south of LIDEA that gives its character to the nation. The badlands of Pachomia are, though inhospitable, far from lifeless, though those who live there are hardy people, accustomed to a hard life in the region.

2. Set. City in the south of LIDEA, straddling the banks of the river ASOUSH. It is noted as being the first city in which the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE was readily accepted in the nation, with the majority of its extant populace devoted to the running of the large institution.

The city's dedication to the UNDYING MACHINE can be traced back to c. 925 RM where the exocrine Kinfar (now ST. KINFAR) worked ceaselessly to spread the teachings of the Undying Machine to the city. His power of oratory and the attention he gave to even the lowliest person earnt him the trust of many natives, leading to the city's rapid conversion to the Church of the Undying Machine. Following Kinfar's death and canonisation in 1003 RM, his tomb in the cathedral of IRARET became a holy site and place of pilgrimage to those undertaking THE SHADOW MARCH.

In 1862 RM the city became the centre of the imperial faith in the continent of SAMMAEA, and it remained so for many years after the CONCLAVE OF KHADON, which saw the REFORMED CHURCH OF SARASTRO become the main religion of the LOW-EMPIRE. It would slowly be converted to worship of the Reformed Church through pressure from neighbouring Sarastroan cities.

The city was a major staging point for Lidean and Sarastroan armies during the WAR OF SUNDERING, and it was the origin for many incursions south into PARAIYA (Pop. c. 540,000).

PADDAS: Rvr. River in the north east of SAMMAEA, flowing south west for 935-miles from sources in the tribes of LEGEO and ESSENIA in the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER, before meeting its parent, the river YAGNOTH PHTHAN.

PADEM: Set. Settlement in the c south of the tribe of LINARIS, in the south of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER. It is a major source of food for the region (Pop. c. 5,000).

PADHI: Set. Small city in the c of the tribe of AUEREN, in the far north of the GROWING MOUNTAINS of MULCIBER (Pop. c. 12,000).

PADHIS: Geo. Island in the north west of the BROKEN LANDS, and home to the monastery of MEHET HI.

PADUAS: For. Forested region in the north west of the BAKHRAN STATES in the north west of SAMMAEA.

PAEL: Geo. Island that closes the SEA OF BAKKEA in the south west of the HARÉSHKI CITY-KINGDOM of EDICULE⁽¹⁾, forming part of the duchy of BOKENAT⁽²⁾. 50-miles long at its longest point, the island has, since recorded history in the region, been an important strategic asset, guarding the entrance into the SEA OF DERAEA. Presently the large fortress of PALLADA guards the region.

PAENA: Rui. Ancient citadel in the western-face of the ARGENT Mountains in the north of the HENDECARCHY of ATALLUA, wholly carved from a natural peak in a past age.

PAEZAL: Ser. Small fortified city in the north west of RHEA, to the northern-most reaches of MATHRU'IL AN. It was the first city to fall under the sway of the Hieromonarchs in c. 3135 RM, and it became a stronghold to them until they ousted the AURADIAN DYNASTIES in 3192 RM (Pop. c. 13,500).

PAFRAN: Rvr. Major river in the east of BROR^(1.) flowing south east for hundreds of miles, from sources in the north west of Emenrist, before meeting its parent, the river Hemah, at the capital city of SEIRE.

 $\underline{\textbf{PAGON}}$: m. Rel. Pol. Per. (B. 3855 RM) Head of the $\underline{\textbf{REFORMED CHURCH IN SARASTRO}}$.

PAHADRON: 1. Geo. Once a major industrious region in the south of present-day SUMA'YA (once BA'AKH), with hundreds of open collieries and quarries, and UMBRA pumps. The region was exploited continuously from c 1910 RM, through to c. 2540 RM, by which time may of its resources had waned to the point of unprofitability. By the time it was left to the DOMNITORS in 2732 RM it was a scarred wasteland of empty quarries, felled forests and polluted man-made lakes.

2. Lak. Since the above-region's abandonment, the largest man-made lake took on the region's name of Pahadron. Measuring no less than 4-miles wide, the pit is a tiered drop into unnaturally-coloured waters from chemical pollution. Iron and other trace ores were once quarried there, though was abandoned in 2348 RM after yields decreased below acceptable levels. It continued to be worked by independent workers for decades on a far smaller scale, though was abandoned fully in 2432 RM.

PAHHUR: lit. 'wedded to flame'. Sup. Rnk. FIRMAMENTIST with control over fire and its various domains. PAIAMALLI ORDER: His. Pol. Org. A historical Order of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION in the KORACHANI EMPIRE that was founded in DEKANA in KARAKHAS in 1242 RM to deal with the SABISSILIAN REVOLTS, though its agents were later put to use across the empire to quell insurrections and unrest, specialising in rebel cells and neutralising demagogues.

The tenets of the Order overlapped with the far greater ARÂTHUAHI ORDER and in 2358 RM the decision was made for it to absorb the Paiamalli Order, whose agents continued to focus on their former role of stymying unrest and the actions of demagogues.

PAIMAN: Pol. Set. Capital city of SATHAII. It has no foreign embassies or offices and little is known of it and its inner working, much like the nation itself (Pop. Unknown).

PAIN-HOUSE: Phil. Str. Centres of the KWEI philosophy in the SOLEYN TERRITORIES. An object of fascination to foreigners, who imagine Soleyn as a land of pain-houses and little else, the truth is in fact far more subtle. Most practitioners of Kwei do so in a sensible manner and the pain that they inflict upon themselves is more metaphorical than literal – hard work, giving birth, and other daily sufferings. Many rituals that are important to Kwei, such as COMING-OF-AGE OBSERVANCES and weddings, will involve a small amount of bloodletting or physical trials that will cause momentary small amount of pain, after which the survival of the act is celebrated.

Pain-houses exist cater to those who are more fervent in their worship and take the words of the Kwei philosophy to be more literal. They see the need to inflict pain upon themselves every day. There is no dictate stating that the pain must be felt, and in many cases, those going to pain-houses will imbibe narcotics and painkillers as a means of negating the effects. Indeed, in many cases the pain-houses are little more than opium dens, with true fanatics hiding themselves in dungeons and hidden rooms where they can suffer in peace.

These extremists take the teachings of Kwei to an excess and may flagellate themselves and other willing people. They may wear a spiked chains (called a cilice) on their thighs, or seek out some other form of harm that can be readily found in the pain-houses. In most cases this behaviour becomes something separate from the need to fulfil the teachings of Kwei, becoming instead an obsession or a mental disorder.

PAJUH: Set. Settlement in the south of the SOLEYN TERRITORIES, in the IMYRI TRADE-ZONE. It was once the seat of power of the demon sultan AMENABAST, though following his death in 1328 RM, the city suffered and the capital was moved to ANSA. Today echoes of the old capital remain outside the present-day limits of Pajuh, in the form of crumbled ruins and half-buried idols constructed in the sultan's name (Pop. c. 8 000)

- PALA: 1. Rvr. River in the City-kingdom of PALUS^(1.), in the HARÉSHK that flows for c 210-miles from sources in the ASHER Mountains and BRACHI highlands.
 - 2. Geo. Basin in the north of KORACHAN between the RHAECHA, AKAGHA, and ADALLA Mountains. It is home to many marble mines, the most renowned of which is the city of PHALERE.
 - 3. Set. Major city in the north of KORACHAN, and link north into the west of \underline{VARR} . It is a major industrial centre and has a tradition of stone mining, and is also home to the MINASTERIA^(2.) of TELLURARIIN (Pop. c. 69,500)

PALA NU: Geo. Mountain pass to the north east of the KORACHANI city of PALA, between the RHAECHA and ADALLA Mountains, leading into the far western VÂRR, and the city of CARILLAR.

PALACE OF THE ARBITER: Str. Marble palace in the city of DANILAT, UCHRON^(1.), in the HARÉSHK.

PALACE OF CRYSTAL: His. Pol. Str. Ancient structure thought to date back to the FOURTH AGE in the GREATTOWN of DUARIAHAHN. Today it is occupied by the nations' government, the PLAINSLEAGUE.

PALACE OF THE DONAGER: Pol. Str. Immense alabaster palace outside the city of HOLLAMEA in KOMMEA, home of the ruling household of the DONAGER. The palace is a remnant from a past age, its architecture in a ribbed style unused elsewhere in Kommea. The place was originally settled by TETHYSIAN immigrants around 2250 RM after the colonies had been established for around a hundred years. The city of Hollamea would slowly grow around the palace over many centuries and is today home to the $\underline{\text{TETHYSIAN}}$ administration of Kommea.

PALACE OF THE HENDECARCH: Pol. Str. Generic name for the various palaces from which the HENDECARCHS of the eleven FOREST KINGDOMS of MALAN, rule. The term is specifically used for:

1. also 'Mandefahr'. The palace of the $\underline{ATALLUAN}$ $\underline{HENDECARCH}$ in the $\underline{DAURAENT}$ Mountains.

2. also ' $\it Temple \ of \ Tahlib$ '. The palace of the $\it \underline{CYRENIAN} \ \underline{HENDECARCH}$ in the city of $\it \underline{ENIGOST}^{(2.)}$.

PALACE OF INDUSTRY: Ind. Str. Gigantic manufactory in the city of ZEPHANICHAN in the c east of the nation of KORACHAN. It is known for its baroque architecture, which is called by many a cathedral to industry. It was built during the height of the Korachani industrial revolution in c. 1300 RM and was as much a celebration of the empire's might and culture as it was a show of its technological progress. Over the years it has fulfilled different purposes, including a foundry, chemical plant, and manufactory, amongst others.

It was divided into five districts in 3189 RM, with each fulfilling a different role and overseen by different governors, and it remains one of the most productive of manufactories in the Korachani empire. Many believe that organised crime syndicate known as The Household has a controlling interest in the manufactory, but this remains unproven.

PALACE OF LEARNING, the: Edu. Str. University in the GREATTOWN of DUARIAHAHN in the south east of TEMUJA. It is home to many scholars and academics of the MATERIA OMNA.

PALACE OF THE MAPHRIAS: Pol. Str. Main residence of the MAPHRIAS at HETEPHEROPOLIS, in VENTHIR, built over a powerful ATRAMENTAL LEY, allowing physical transference and telemetry to various degrees along points on the ley. This is possible through a powerful TECHNARCANE engine located in the palace that, through the aid of a constant CHOIR of ATRAMENTISTS, draws the Atramenta closer to the MATERIAL PLANE.

PALACE OF THE PEOPLE: Pol. Str. Council hall and home to the TRIPARTITE MONARCHS in the city of ELAT between c. 3250 – 3762 RM. The palace was demolished in 3771 RM following the wane of the city of Elat after the capital was moved to LIGERNA.

PALACE OF THE PRAEDICATE: Pol. Str. Fortified palace in the c south of PORPHYR constructed between 1587 – 1635 RM atop an ancient CANOPIC ENGINE, at the behest of the PRAEDICATE TELEANYARA APEXEIDE. Following its construction, she would become increasingly reclusive, emerging only during great festivals, and lately, not even then.

PALACE OF THE PRECEPTORS: Pol. Str. Palace in BA'AKH and centre of the KORACHANI administration following its occupation of the nation in 634 RM. The palace was an immense structure, located in the city of BAALBETH that melded common imperial architectural themes (metal girders, buttresses, grotesques, corroded copper domes) with native themes. The palace was abandoned in 2732 RM following the empire's handing over of Ba'akh to the DOMNITORS, who moved their offices from Baalbeth to RE'HAIZ.

PALACE OF THE PREFECTURATES: Pol. Str. Ruling palace in the city of NOAVATUR in the eponymous nation. In 1876 RM it was burnt to the ground with the entirety of the Plutocracy locked inside, instigating a civil conflict that lasted for weeks left a quarter of the population dead. It was rebuilt in 1907 RM and renamed the HALL OF VOICES, and became a house to the REPRESENTATIVE COUNCIL OF NOAVATUR.

PALACE OF THE PROPHET OF THE EMPYREAN: Pol. Str. Palace built in the east of CHEIRA between 3631 and 3651 RM, around which the city of MENITAB would appear over the following decades. The palace was built as a home for the OTHERWORLDER HAR-RSI, who was unearthed in a necropolis in the massif of HOBADR-AGHTUL in 3621 RM, and which went on to become a living deity until its disappearance amid a religious schism in 3790 RM. At the time Cheira was gripped by civil unrest caused by the unearthing of texts disproving the divinity of Harrisi in 3782 RM. As the CHURCHOFTHE PROPHET OF THE EMPYREAN lost its grip over the people of Cheira and dwindled in power and influence, the Palace, which had been the centre of the church and state, was handed over to a coalition of secular guilds and worker unions which in 3803 RM took up residence in the palace as rulers of a new republic.

PALACE OF THE SIGHT: Edu. Str. Set. Monolithic college in the SAUTUGURAI Mountains in the c of NOAVATUR. Completed in 2753 RM after close to a century of construction, it remains now as one of the largest structures in the NORTHERN HEMISPHERE dedicated to the study of the MATERIA OMNA, and SHAPERS (FIRMAMENTISTS and ATRAMENTISTS alike) have studied in its great halls and libraries. A settlement now exists outside the walls to cater to the needs of the many scholars that live here.

The few imperial scholars who are aware of it contend that it should be considered as one of the WONDERS OF THE ANCIENT WORLD (Pop. c. 10.000).

PALACE OF THE STARS: (12,870-ft.) Rel. Str. Temple-complex in the south of ABACARDAT, constructed atop the highest peak of the UHBATAQI Mountains⁽³⁾, in c. 2470 RM. The complex has since become home to the OTHERWORLDER JAHINN^(1,1) who has lived there in self-imposed exile for many centuries. Visitors are turned away but monks who tend to the complex.

PALACE OF STEAM AND RUST: Mil. Str. Tower-like fortress erected in IO in 225 RM (replacing the older fortress of ETIEL as its main stronghold in Io) by KORACHANI occupiers to serve as a headquarters for its forces that were then at war with the nation of SARASTRO.

The palace's original name is long forgotten, lost in records buried miles beneath the BASTION OF STEEL in KHADON; with the current name being one given to it by the locals of HACHALIAH – a shanty town built in the dry river bed beneath the towering ruin, which gave its skin to the huts of the settlement following its abandonment in c. 3103 RM.

The palace became a rallying point for many degenerate cavalcades undertaking the $\underline{\mathsf{MARCH}}$ OF $\underline{\mathsf{ROT}}$.

PALACE OF THOUGHT: Pol. Str. Government structure in the capital city of BISMUTH in GNOTH.

PALACE OF TRUTHS, the: Rel. Str. High-temple of the AURADIAN religion of ARRETOY and, later, RHEA, in the city of Auradia. The religion was abolished by the HIEROMONARCHS after they took control of Rhea, and it was abandoned c. 3350 RM. Its ruin remains today in the middle of the city of Auradia, as a sign of respect to the ancient religion. and the role it played in the shaping of Rhean culture.

PALACE OF THE TWELVE: see HALL OF THE HENDECARCHS.

PALACE OF TYRAGHON: Pol. Str. The sovereign palace in the capital city of CYHULIR in the OGHUR nation of CYHLAGHARR. It is named after an ancient Cyhlagharri warlord and is famed for the blue crystal that crowns its roof – a prize taken from an ancient lighthouse in AQUARIIA.

PALACE OF THE UGIA: Pol. Str. Cliff-top palace outside the conurbation of TOTH in HARAPPA (3), from where its council convenes. The palace overlooks the wastes just north of the Harappan (1.) Mountains.

PALADINS OF THE SEPULCHRAL PALACE: Mil. Pol. Rnk. Militant arm of the VÁMAN ORDER of the SANCTIFIED INQUISITION, whose members are sworn to defend the SEPULCHRAL PALACE and, by extension, the UNDYING MACHINE himself.

They are elites amongst an order of elite SHAPER-warriors and are armed to the best of the EMPIRE'S capacity, with TECHNARCANE equipment and ORTHOSES common amongst its members, who operate independently of their parent Order, patrolling the monolithic palace and the ATRAMENTAL WASTELAND surrounding it. Members are known as Paladins, in honour of the Sepulchral Palace itself and few of them live to see old age due to the hardships of working in the environs of the Palace, despite wearing the finest SOFTSUITS available in the empire.

PALADINS OF THE SHADOW: His. Mil. Rel. Org. Historical policing force in the KORACHANI EMPIRE established in 667 RM as a SANCTIFIED ORDER OF THE INQUISITION specifically to regulate and control the actions of SHAPERS and ATRAMENTISTS, who until then had been mostly operating autonomously and with little restriction or unifying doctrine. Originating in KHADON, new regiments were rapidly established across the empire, and had become a ubiquitous sight within a century.

The Paladins were staunch followers of the CHURCH OF THE UNDYING MACHINE and were guided by the teachings of the SCRIPTURE OF SHADOW, which inspired the ARCHPOTENTATE MALICHAR to pen his own doctrine that went on to become the basis for the Church and the Korachani shaping tradition.

