

The new master who summoned Raikou wanted to summon friend points to bolster his meager forces. He wanted to summon friend points to bolster his meager strength, but no one would call on his low-level servant, who had just begun to repair Human Order. I'm sure you'll be able to understand why I've been so impressed with your work. The new master is depressed because of the slow progress of the human repair

When Raikou saw him, he wondered if he could help him somehow. A veteran master with a long history of bravery, but with a bad reputation In exchange, he offers to follow the new master (and Raikou)...

Raikou was wondering if he could help him. In the meantime a veteran master with a bad reputation In exchange for one condition offers to follow the new master (and Raikou).

One condition was that every time Yorimitsu came to support her, she had to have physical relations with the veteran master.

It's outrageous to have a relationship with someone other than the new master who is recognized as my child. ...Normally, Raikou would have thought so, but he had achieved the restoration of Human Order. Raikou agrees to the proposal, thinking that he wants his beloved new master to become a great man...

After that...

It was Raikou who suddenly stopped being called by the veteran master, as if he was tired of being played with.

By that time, the new master had become powerful enough to repair the Human Order. That kind of action was no longer necessary...

The days of peace and tranquillity are long overdue...

But Raikou, who was awakened to sex by the veteran master, can't control the tingling in his body day by day.

And now he has a relationship with his beloved master.

Raikou is finally bored and abandoned.

And who was introduced to the other masters by a veteran master, loses contact with them and is at a loss.

Her master, who forgives her and extends his hand to her.

A master who, though initially for his own sake, has consequently betrayed her cruelly.

She is touched by the kindness and generosity of the man she had half abandoned.

And then, as if something had fallen from her heart, she regains her former motherly and tender feelings.

I regained what I had lost and what I could not get back and spent my days in peace with her master.
