

The Crashed Dragon Scroll

1d8 ruined wagons and 1d10 bits of lost luggage to discover on the road

Ruined Waggons

What a beautiful thing this wagon once was.

1. {Herbalist Wagon} This bronze and copper framed wagon was once a traveling greenhouse used to collect and grow herbs from all across the realm. Now it lies in a mangled heap with blighted weeds growing up from piles of shattered glass.
2. {Rancher's Wagon} Resembling a small white and blue barn, this wagon was home to a halfling family who traveled the hills with their goats and slept in cozy hammocks strung up in the hayloft.
3. {Star Chaser Wagon} A 30-foot-tall observatory tower teeters atop this otherwise ordinary wagon, though the broken telescope hangs limply observing only the marshy ground below.

4. {Dead Man's Wagon} This rusty prisoner's wagon is little more than an iron cage on wheels, but etched into its bars are the tales of those it brought to the hangman.
5. {Defender's Tower} Built from stolid stone and set atop iron wheels, this wagon was more a mobile watchtower than a wagon once used by a selfless knight who would take it wherever vigilance was needed.
6. {Church Wagon} At one time this humbly crafted wagon, which resembles both a small church and inn dedicated to the god of travelers, was used to deliver roadside sermons and prayers to wayward souls.
7. {Nested Wagon} Covered in nests of various sorts, this wagon was either once home to an avid bird watcher or has been claimed by birds in the previous owner's absence.
8. {Cave Wagon} Far from a true cave on wheels, this crudely built wagon resembles a cave-like burrow made of scavenged [and stollen] wood planks and was used to transport goblin nobility.

Lost Luggage

Evidence of an abandoned life litter the wagon's rotting frame.

1. {Portrait} Hanging crooked is a painting of the family who called this wagon home.
2. {Moon Saber} Though a bit rusty, an heirloom saber with moon-iconography is tucked under the wagon's bench.
3. {Letter} Tucked between the seats is a love letter that never reached its recipient.

4. {Suit} A fanciful suit commissioned, perhaps, for an upcoming ball or gala.
5. {Decorative Horns} Mounted atop the wagon is a pair of gold-etched gazelle horns.
6. {Map} A blood stained map that leads to an off-road destination which would be inaccessible for the wagon..
7. {Dress Collection} Stored in a waterproof compartment are 3 breathtaking dresses intended as gifts for a princess.
8. {Silver Arrows} Peppering the wagon are 1d10 silver-tipped arrows whose razor-sharp heads resemble snarling bears.
9. {Poison} Hidden under the driver's seat is a case designed to securely store 2 vials of poison, only one of which is still present and unopened.
10. {Flower Collection} A portable drawer containing sheets of beautiful pressed flowers from exotic lands.
