

THE TOWN OF FABLEGRAVE

Scroll of Locality #002

The town formerly known as Fableburg has slowly rotted away as the ghosts of restless adventurers who came here in search of fame and glory now haunt its lifeless streets.

CULTURAL DETAILS

- + [Key Visual] Ghosts of dead adventurers.
- + [Local Custom] Few citizens bother making friendships or attachments with adventures since they all seem to perish.
- + [Catchphrase] "May you rest in peace," in anticipation of a hero's untimely demise.

INTERESTING LOCATIONS

1. [Mayor's Estate] A new mayor hasn't been elected in Fablegrave in years since anyone who was elected died within a week of moving into this decrepit estate.
2. [Starwagon Mercantile] Its worn steps and tall shelves speak to a time of booming business, but now all it stocks are the husks of dead insects and poor service.
3. [Heavenly Jester's Church] Its stained glass windows are covered in cracked jester masks that appear to weep with the constant rain that falls over this town.
4. [Whiterose Residence] Mr and Mrs Whiterose run one of the town's only 2 profitable businesses out of their shack—a grave digging business for adventurers.
5. [Newmoon Brewery] At the far edge of town sits the other profitable business, a brewery run by a grumpy old halfling with unusually hairy feet and a thick beard.

6. [The Fabled Rest] Heroes from across the realm spent their nights here, and now their restless spirits linger here sitting alone and sipping at moldy ale steins.

INTERESTING NPCs

- + [Filip Proudtent] The cowardly ghost of the former mayor who was murdered in his sleep by unhappy townsfolk a decade ago.
- + [Arthur Proudstring] Ghost of a failed bard who spent the last of his coin getting here only to be mugged and killed by thugs who didn't care to be the butt of his jokes.
- + [Father Godgrin] This hunched and wrinkled half-elf is the only living townsfolk who can recall the town's grand festivals hosted by the Proudtent family.
- + [Cazimir Coldspear] Ghost of a paladin who swore to cleanse the nearby woods of ghouls only for them to rip his tongue out.
- + [Mia Moonscabbard] A timid sorceress who came to Fablegrave to learn how to control her powers. Ended up burning down the only other inn in town and all of its guests.